CHAT gone, Animal Control carries on

County to look for group to operate adoption center

By AMANDA MAYOR
amayor@thewakullanews.net

In the wake of the Citizens for Humane Animal Treatment's departure from the adoption center next door, the Wakulla County Animal Shelter has had their hands even more full than usual.

But, said Animal Control Officer Ivanhoe Carroll, the shelter is anything but closed.

"We're still here," she said. "We're still providing a safe place for lost, homeless and unwanted animals."

Animal Control is a county entity that reports to Fire and Rescue and, ultimately, the Board of County Commissioners.

"We're responsible for code enforcement and enforcing state statute," Carroll said. "We're concerned with the safety of the citizens and welfare of the animals."

Currently, in an effort fill the void of an empty county adoption center,

Carroll said that the county is preparing to issue a request for proposals to see if another group may want to operate the adoption center.

"My understanding is that the same things that were extended to CHAT will be offered to the new entity," Carroll said.

As a shelter, the division is not responsible for adoptions.

"There is a difference between the two," Carroll said. "We're grateful to CHAT. They stepped up when nobody else would."

The animal shelter is an open intake, which means they don't turn anything away. Its employees work to provide reunification, shelter and the placement of animals into rescue groups, which are the ones to provide adoption services as well as medical treatments and procedures such as spaying, neutering and rabies vaccines.

"We work with about 30 different rescue groups and we rely on them for vetting and fostering," said Carroll. "That's simply out of our hands."

Despite some criticism from the community that animal control is only concerned with the turnaround of animals and not whose hands they are placed in, Carroll said that she and her colleagues do their homework on those they hand animals over to and have developed partnerships with many.

"We work hard and do our best to find these animals new homes and appropriate rescues," she said. "We're animal people because we love animals. We're here every day trying to find them a good place to go." Carroll said that they, at the shelter, believe its better for an animal to go elsewhere than for it to just sit in a cage for too long.

"We let someone else try to find the animal a home if we can't," she said. "A lot of times when you change the audience you can find the animal a home. There's always a potential owner somewhere."

According to the county's ordinance, the shelter holds animals that are taken in for a period of five days. If someone doesn't come to claim the animal by then, it becomes property of the county.

"That's when we get to work," Carroll said.

However, in some cases because there are so many unwanted animals in Wakulla County, the topic of euthanasia is unavoidable. "It's unpleasant," Carroll said, "but unfortunately it is a reality."

At the time that Carroll was appointed to her position in 2007, the shelter had a 74 percent euthanasia rate. Now, the rate is at a record low of 22 percent. That includes feral cats and most of those cases, Carroll said, are due to severe behavioral or medical issues.

"We could be a no-kill shelter," she said. "But that takes the support of our community leaders."

Carroll attributes the drop in the euthanasia rates to the hard work and selflessness of those she works with and those who volunteer their time.

Makenna Roddenberry wins district spelling bee

By WILLIAM SNOWDEN
editor@thewakullanews.net

Makenna Roddenberry, a sixth grader at Riversprings Middle School, won the district spelling bee last week.

The winning word was "guineas."

The runner-up was Jaquesha Jefferson, who missed the word "queue" in the seventh round.

Roddenberry was presented with a trophy from the district for the win. She will represent Wakulla in the regional spelling bee to be held in Tallahassee next month. If she's unable to attend that, then Jefferson would represent Wakulla.

The Wakulla News is a sponsor of the spelling bee, and Roddenberry was presented with a Merriam-Webster Collegiate Dictionary as a prize from the newspaper.

Wakulla High earns an 'A' in state grading

By BETH O'DONNELL
Assistant Superintendent

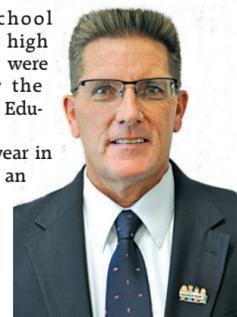

Wakulla High School earned an "A" when high school grades for 2013 were recently released by the Florida Department of Education.

This is the second year in a row WHS has made an "A" in the revised grading system for high schools.

High school grades are released later than school grades for elementary and middle schools. In addition to state test scores, other factors such as graduation rate, industry certifications, and college entrance exams scores are included in the high school grades, so it takes several months longer for this data to be gathered and checked by the Florida Department of Education.

"Everyone in the school system can take pride in the high school's accomplishment since the major-

Observance set for MLK Day Christian coalition to hold program in Hudson Park

Special to The News

The Wakulla County Christian Coalition will be holding a celebration in honor of the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King on Monday, Jan. 20, in Hudson Park starting at 9 a.m.

Pastor Samuel Hayes of Mount Olive Primitive Baptist Church No. 2 will be the speaker and, after a short program, a continental breakfast will follow.

"This is an inclusive event," said Jenny Jones, president of the coalition, "and we invite the whole community to celebrate the life of a great man who represented fairness and justice for all people. As Dr. King said in his 'I Have a Dream' speech, 'We cannot walk alone. And as we walk, we must make the pledge that we shall always march ahead.'"

Saturday's severe storms cause damage to homes

By MICHAEL MORGAN
Wakulla Fire Chief

On Saturday, Jan. 11, beginning shortly after 2 p.m., Wakulla County Fire-Rescue faced a challenge of responding to 26 calls for service plus numerous details assisting the Wakulla County Sheriff's Office.

Two homes were destroyed during the severe storms that passed through the county. Several more were damaged and dozens of trees were blown down, many into power lines.

One person was freed from his home by WCFR personnel and another transported to the hospital with minor injuries.

Much of this work was done during a continuing driving rain storm. Fire-Rescue units from all over the county were manned and handling calls far away from their home station.

WCSCO Communications received a multitude of calls during the storm. They were able to coordinate and prioritize the calls so that all emergencies were handled in a timely fashion.

The two power companies that provide service in Wakulla County were overwhelmed, requiring extra time for our units to standby and sometimes the wires were obviously still charged and arcing.

A large portion of the population went without power for many hours.

The bee, held Friday, Jan. 10, started with 37 contestants from Riversprings and Wakulla middle schools, COAST Charter School, Crawfordville, Medart and Shadeville elementary schools, and Wakulla Christian School.

Some of the words missed by contestants included "Fletcherism,"

"feldspar," "muumuu," "autobahn," and "yieldable."

The district bee was coordinated by district staffer Beth Mims. Melanie Homan, chair of the English department at Wakulla High School was the pronouncer. Judges were Assistant Superintendent Beth O'Donnell, district staffer Sue Anderson, and News editor William Snowden.

ity of the Wakulla High War Eagles are our students from kindergarten through graduation," said Superintendent of Schools Bobby Pearce. "The whole school system, including parents and the community, help prepare our students for futures as productive citizens."

A new grading system for high schools was used for the fifth year in Florida since schools began earning letter grades in 1999.

Florida high school scores now derive 50 percent of their school grade from Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test (FCAT) and state End of Course Exams scores in Reading, Algebra, Biology, Writing, and United States History.

The other 50 percent is now comprised of the following areas: graduation rate; graduation rate for at-risk students; participation and performance in Advanced Placement and college dual enrollment courses; industry certifications earned in career/technical courses; and "College Readiness" in reading and math, as assessed on the American College Test (ACT), and the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT).

Of note, the 2013 WHS graduates exceeded the state average scores on the ACT in all areas including English, math, science, and reading.

Areas that increased even more over last year's point total included the success rate of students passing accelerated classes in Advanced Placement, Dual Enrollment, and Career and Technical Education (vocational) courses for college credit opportunities and industry certifications.

"Adding even more opportunities for students like this year's Automotive Technology Center and future plans for a welding program will also increase the industry certification component of the WHS school grade. More importantly, they will give students a head start on their careers," added Superintendent Pearce.

In addition, WHS has added even more Tallahassee Community College dual enrollment classes on the WHS campus such as Engineering and English.

The Graduation Rate improved as well, up from 80 percent in 2012 to 84 percent in 2013. It ranks among the top graduation rates in the state and exceeds the state average of 76 percent for 2013.

WHS Principal Mike Crouch attributes the increases in reading and math scores in part to the emphasis on looking at every student and what he or she needs help with to improve. "Our counselors, teachers, and administrators work hard to make sure every student has an opportunity to succeed. It's a balancing act of challenging our top students and making sure we give that same kind of attention to students who need extra help."

Notes WHS Assistant Principal of Curriculum Sunny Chancy, "In addition to the academic excellence our teachers bring to the classroom, it is their enthusiasm and genuine concern for our students that keep students motivated. It's also important to acknowledge that activities like sports, band, ROTC, and drama help keep students interested in coming to school."

Wakulla High School continues to improve in all areas as more diverse opportunities for student success are added each year.

Youth coalition moving forward with one-stop community center

By AMANDA MAYOR
amayor@thewakullanews.net

With the holidays over and the dust from Operation Santa settling, the Wakulla County Coalition for Youth is now free to focus fully on a new grant they received through the Ounce of Prevention fund, which is supplied by the Florida Department of Health for the Community Center.

At their meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 8, the board-appointed commissioner to the coalition, Ralph Thomas, reported that the community center building itself is coming together.

"The heating and air is done inside the new gym," Thomas said. "And the Sheriff's annex across the street from the sheriff's department is scheduled to be finished in mid-March."

When the new sheriff's annex is complete, the part of the community center that is currently being used by the sheriff's office will be vacated, opening it up for even more room for community services to be offered.

"Also, at our last meeting," Thomas said, "we approved a contract between the library and the coalition to allow them to offer services at the community center."

Coalition director Gail Campbell reported that the organization is currently pursuing or has obtained subcontracts with four other community entities for their services: DISC Village, NAMI Wakulla, the sheriff's athletic league and the Department of Health. Each contract will have to be approved by the county commission.

Campbell said that the coalition is promising the five entities right now, but they are sure there are many more to come.

The coalition is also currently working with the county for a legal agreement and is in the process of interviewing for a couple of fulltime positions.

"It's going to be brilliant for this county," Campbell said. "Just brilliant. This gift of a one-stop community center could not have happened at a better time."

Zandra Gilley and Winifred Heggins from the Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida were present at the coalition's meeting on Wednesday to offer their support and to give encouragement. They stressed the importance of spending the funds as it is a state fiscal year and, at any time, the state can pull data from the system to see if outcomes are being reached.

"We are all under a microscope," said Heggins. "That being said, the grant is somewhat flexible. We're here to work with you and help you along the way with whatever you need."

Other reports were also given at the coalition's meeting on Wednesday.

Coalition Chairman Bruce Ashley updated the group on happenings with the sheriff's office.

Ashley said they have recently finished working closely with Superintendent of Schools Bobby Pearce and the school board in providing bullying education to the community.

"Honestly, the turnout was less than we had expected and hoped for," Ashley said. "But I think it was well received and overall beneficial."

Ashley also reported that staff has recently finished a teen driving challenge, in which youth are educated on distracted driving - texting while driving, etc. - and that there is another session coming.

Also, said Ashley, on March 26, there will be a domestic violence education seminar held at the Wakulla Correctional Institute on best practices when it is occurring in the home.

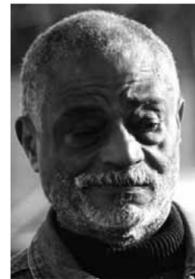

The coalition's next meeting will be at the community center on Wednesday, Feb. 5, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Veterans officer J.D. Johnson in coma after wreck

Wakulla Veteran Affairs Director J.D. Johnson was involved in a serious car accident recently while in Tampa for his son-in-law's funeral.

According to the county's Communications and Public Services Director Jessica Welch, Johnson and his wife, Patricia, were involved in a collision while driving in poor conditions and were not at fault. Mrs. Johnson was not hurt in the accident, but early last week, it was reported that J.D. was in a coma.

On Friday, Welch said that he has made some progress by opening his eyes and was transferred to a veteran's hospital in San Antonio, Texas.

Fire-Rescue extricates driver in one-car crash

WCFR responded to a single vehicle accident at 6:07 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 11. Units arriving found a full size car that had sustained heavy damage from apparently striking several trees.

The driver, Jacob S. Ward, 20, of St. Marks, was pinned in the car. Two hydraulic rescue tools had to be used to safely extricate him. The operation took close to 30 minutes to get the driver out of the mangled wreckage.

The accident occurred inside the Wakulla Springs State Park.

The Florida Highway Patrol reported that Ward was transported to Tallahassee Memorial Hospital in critical condition.

Stigma and risk factors for suicide

Editor, The News:

As a licensed psychologist who has worked with many suicidal clients in my career, I was pleased to read Tracy Renee Lee's Bereavement Column in The News ("Suicide Victims," Jan. 2 edition), with her emphasis on the importance of connection and the need to seek help in dealing with loss and depression. I would like to add to her comments by touching on the issues of stigma and risk factors.

As Ms. Lee notes, surviving loved ones are likely to feel not only loss but also blame and guilt. This frequently results in stigma attached to both the people who commit suicide, that they were somehow weak, and to family members who should have somehow been able to prevent the tragic action.

Neither of these assumptions is accurate, but the result is that survivors often have a difficult time seeking assistance due to a sense of shame and friends may not know how to be helpful or supportive in the same way as they might with someone who dies from an illness such as cancer.

This problem is exacerbated for the elderly whose support systems and connections to others are usually diminished. Older males who lose a partner are particularly vulnerable in this respect, resulting in that subgroup having the overall highest rate of suicide.

Dr. Thomas Joiner, a colleague of mine when I worked at FSU and a national expert on suicide, has emphasized that the key components in completed suicides are this sense of loneliness and alienation combined with a feeling of that one has become a burden to others and an acquired fearlessness about death.

While a suicide can sometimes seem "out of the blue" to others, the person who does it has typically been "working up to it" in thoughts and actions for a considerable time and has made some preparations (e.g., acquiring a firearm, putting affairs in order). While untreated depression remains the greatest risk factor in suicidal behavior, access to lethal means facilitates completed suicides, with over 50 percent involving the use of a firearm. It is not coincidental that while women attempt suicide three times more frequently than men, four times more men than women kill themselves. Men are also much less likely to seek treatment for psychological conditions.

The unprecedented rate of suicide among young returning veterans is, in many ways, a perfect storm of these risk factors. The most current statistics released by the Department of Veterans Affairs this past week indicated that the suicide rate among veterans ages 18-24 is four times the rate of non-veterans in the same age group. The combination of exposure to death and trauma in war zones, alienation, disrupted relationships, struggles with finding employment, access to firearms and the reluctance to seek help for depression has created a truly tragic situation.

The good news is that those young veterans who do receive mental health treatment have lower rates of suicide than non-veterans.

We can all help by increasing our awareness of the factors involved in suicide, providing support and reducing the stigma of seeking assistance, as treatment is a proven preventative step.

County must have a vision for the future

Editor, The News:

It would be great if we had a county with a vision for the future and the flexibility to deal with the present. Homeowners should not have laws restricting them from using the property they are currently using, but we do need to have zoning for rural, wetlands, housing, commercial, etc., established in such a way that someone cannot buy property and then get it rezoned to suit their wants.

You shouldn't be entitled to use money or influence to that effect.

Most people in Wakulla do not live in a deed-restricted community that tells them what they can and cannot do with their home. There are tons of places to live if you prefer that lifestyle.

If the people using the argument of property rights to fight the wetlands ordinance really wanted to fight against tyranny to homeowners, they would attack the odious code violation scheme that lays heavy fines on people for anonymous and arbitrary reasons.

I am not against development, but it has to be done in a way that fits the community.

Unfortunately, developers have been known in many places to use both rezoning influence and code violation fines to acquire property for their use.

Since I live in Panacea, which I consider a very special place with a lot of potential, I have seen how fast the developers dove in when the housing boom hit this area. This county has plenty of empty commercial sites and if you choose to sell your house right now, be prepared to get less than you thought.

If we want a vision for our area, we need to nail it down soon, because when the property market returns someday, it will be much harder to do.

Not just Panacea, but all of Wakulla County has the old Florida feel that people are yearning to find. That is the best thing we have to offer people who want a day trip with the family or other tourists.

Hopefully, the fishing will recover and we can treat people to the sight of our local color and flavors.

We must make sure that what we decide today is in line with our vision for the future.

CHAT supporting senior pets project

Editor, The News:

The Citizens for Humane Animal Treatment, Inc., better known as CHAT, begins the year with an exciting new presence in Wakulla County.

For the past few years, CHAT leased the building adjoining the animal shelter, and served as an adoption-guarantee facility. The county recently presented CHAT with a proposed contract that would change our mission. The CHAT Board of Directors voted to end management of the Adoption Center and serve pets and citizens in other ways.

We are in the process of updating our website and determining projects for the year.

We are excited to share our first project is our partnership with the Wakulla Senior Citizens Center to help with collecting and supplying pet food for the seniors the center serves through the Meals on Wheels program. Many seniors put their companion pets' needs before their own by sharing their food with the pet because they have no pet food. This prevents the senior from getting the nourishment they so badly need.

Now pet food will be delivered when the meals are delivered. The community can help in several ways: 1) drop bags of dry dog and cat food off at the Senior Center, 33 Michael Drive in Crawfordville, or VCA Wakulla Animal Hospital, 2571 Crawfordville Hwy; 2) donate to CHAT by sending a donation to CHAT, PO Box 1195, Crawfordville FL 32326, or via PayPal on CHAT website, chatofwakulla.org, or the donation link on our Facebook page.

Please like CHAT of Wakulla on Facebook to make sure you are made aware of upcoming announcements. The Board of Directors is excited to be expanding CHAT's services and help throughout the community. We will have a membership drive in March and will soon share how the community can get involved.

Thank you for your support.

Explaining the octopi bowl choice

Editor, The News:

After last week's Zing in the Tallahassee Democrat, "Did anyone tell the octopus" (that Auburn lost), I am compelled to salvage the good name of octopus sports prognosticators and set the record straight.

The octopuses at Gulf Specimen Aquarium did indeed predict that FSU would win the BCS over Auburn, even though it looked just the opposite.

In the FSU-Auburn trial, four octopuses swarmed over and piled in on the Auburn crab, like football players grabbing for a fumbled ball as they squeezed down into the box in a writhing mass.

Spirits among the locals recruited from the Coastal Café and elsewhere plummeted, and it looked as if Auburn won. Meanwhile a fifth octopus shot across the tank, snatched open the lid of the choice box, grabbed the FSU crab and rocketed back to its den. Spirits soared. The seers then predicted that it was a sign that Auburn would stomp FSU in the first half, but that at the last minute the Seminoles would snatch victory away. Isn't that what happened?

After football season, I'm going to ask them who is going to win the wetlands war in Wakulla County, the environmentalists or the developers. Or whether the county commissioner who are up for re-election will remain or be thrown out of office.

But in the meantime stand by, let's see what the octoes have to say about the Super Bowl next month.

Arbor Day will be celebrated on Saturday

Editor, The News:

This Saturday will be the 10th year that Wakulla's Iris Garden Club has celebrated Florida Arbor Day by giving away trees at Hudson Park. Holding a local celebration was the brainchild of former IGC President, Hilda Starbuck. The first Crawfordville Arbor Day celebration was held in January 2005.

During the early years, tree were donated by local nurseries and transplanted from the yards of garden club members. Supplying enough trees proved difficult, however.

Soon the ICG was purchasing bareroot seedlings to give away. To improve tree survival, plastic bags were offered. Then plastic bags were replaced with a potting station where people could put their bareroot trees into pots and cover the roots with soil.

Several years ago, current IGC President, Jeannie Brodhead came up with the brilliant idea of growing the bareroot trees in pots for a year before giving them away. Now IGC members plant hundreds of bareroot trees in 1-gallon pots for the next year's festival.

Just Fruits and Exotics Nursery generously provides space for the little trees and keeps them watered through the year. Garden club members periodically weed, mulch, and prune the young trees.

The result is hundreds of healthy young trees, some 3-4 feet tall, that are much more likely to survive and thrive in their new homes. If you haven't attended the Crawfordville Arbor Day Celebration since the early years, it's worth stopping by on Saturday to see the quality and quantity of trees being given away.

If you planted an Arbor Day tree that is living and growing, we'd love to hear about it or see a photo. Please contact us at Crawfordville Arbor Day, PO Box 937, Crawfordville, FL 32326 or send an email to lynn_artz@hotmail.com.

Hope to see you on Saturday!

Apalachee Bay VFD successful fundraisers

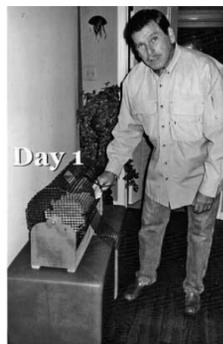

Editor, The News:

Recently the Apalachee Bay Volunteer Fire Department held two fundraising events, both of which were very successful.

The first gave area residents an opportunity to enjoy some of the best smoked wings in the county. Thanks to two generous residents who donated the wings there were plenty to go around.

Of course, much of the credit also goes to Walter McMullen and his son, Billy, who gave up TWO hunting weekends to smoke the wings. Once the word got out that the wings were plentiful and delicious there was that desirable problem of keeping up with orders.

We are both fortunate and grateful that we have so many neighbors who enjoy good eating and were willing to work up an appetite in support of their fire department.

The second fundraiser began on Nov. 11 and has not yet concluded. For each $10 donation made to the fire department a raffle ticket was given to the donor. The promotion phase of the fundraiser ended on Dec. 31.

As of Jan. 1, a raffle ticket has been selected each day - the winner receives $50. Initially the hope was that enough tickets would be requested to continue the daily drawing through January.

However, so many tickets were given out that more tickets had to be printed and the daily drawing will continue through Feb. 16.

That is called success and the people of Wakulla County made it happen.

A deep expression of gratitude is given to all those who recognized the importance of having a viable fire department in the community and who so willingly jumped in to support the ongoing efforts of the Apalachee Bay volunteer department.

Note: a list of daily raffle winners may be requested at abvfd4@gmail.com.

CHAT, senior center partner for pets

By MAURICE LANGSTON
Special to The News

Citizens for Humane Animal Treatment (CHAT) voted to partner with the Wakulla Senior Citizens Council to help provide animal food for the Senior Center's new Pet Project - Pet Meals-on-Wheels.

CHAT is more than citizens, they're champions for the cause, care, and wellbeing of animals in Wakulla County, great and small.

The need for pet meals-on-wheels was brought to the forefront when a meals on wheels drive reported that the serving tray we provide meals to seniors was in the yard of a senior's resident and the tray had been licked clean!

Many of our senior citizens are widows or widowers and at the passing of a spouse, the family pet is transformed into the family companion and is no longer viewed as just "a pet."

We always take care of our companions, many times at the cost of even our individual welfare. It's called sacrifice.

The senior citizens pet meals-on-wheels has been an ongoing project for the last three months at the Wakulla Senior Center. Several businesses pitched in and donated pet food to support this effort and we are grateful and thankful for each bag donated.

However, we always found ourselves either running short of dog food or cat food and we needed a reoccurring partner and source so that no animal is left hungry or in need. Who better than CHAT to meet the need.

All it took is one call to Heide Clifton and she put the "wheels" (pun intended) in motion for pet meals-on-wheels.

Vice President Petra Shuff called me within minutes for more information to present to the Board of Directors of CHAT. It was voted on and approved unanimously by CHAT's board to help provide, partner and be pals to the senior center's pet project.

T. W. Maurice Langston, the Executive Director at the Wakulla Senior Center stated, "It's amazing what 501 (c) 3 entities (not for profit) can do for the good of people and pets when they partner with one another. At a time of government cutbacks, local non-profits are stepping up and are becoming a source of solace and sensitivity to populations in need whether they are two-legged or four-legged, whether they have hair and hide, fur, fins or feathers. Someone has to step up and CHAT and WSSC are new best friends! Thank you, CHAT."

To learn more about C.H.A.T. or the Wakulla Senior Citizens Council, visit our respective websites and Facebook pages. You may well be surprised what is happening behind the scenes for pets and people.

CHAT's website will be updated shortly due to the organization's re-direction of mission and goals.

Our pets give us unconditional love, sharing their lives add so much to ours. Our senior citizens are the ones who have made this county the great place to live, work and raise our families. Now we/you have the opportunity to share with the ones who have brought so much happiness into our lives.

What can you do? You can give of your time, talent and treasures to support both organizations. Contact CHAT today chat-president@embarqmail.com or befriend their Facebook page "CHAT of Wakulla" to stay tuned on upcoming projects, fundraisers, etc.

The shelter receives labor from county inmates, food donations from Wal-Mart, work from the two other full time animal control officers, Bonnie Brinson and Mark Carter as well part-time employees through Workforce Plus and community donations and volunteers.

"It's amazing how many people want to help," Carroll said. "We don't have much to work with, but it's phenomenal how much we are able to."

That being said, though, the shelter still relies on the generosity of the community and is always looking for donations and volunteers.

"We're doing such a good job here. We really are," Carroll said. "But sometimes we get such a bad reputation." She added that if anyone would like to help or see what goes on at the shelter, they welcome visitors and volunteers any time.

"There is always something to do and you don't necessarily have to get dirty to help out here," she said. "Everybody can do something."

We must choose how to use the tongue's power

By ETHEL SKIPPER

There is power in the tongue.

When I was a child, my mom would say, Child, keep your tongue from ringing.

I didn't understand what she meant because I did not hear the ringing sound.

A wholesome tongue is a tree of life, but perverseness therein is a breach in the spirit. (Proverbs 15:4)

Our words are a powerful force for good or evil. Some people love to hear about drama. Still others love to perpetuate it.

Truth be told, we all have a bit of a fascination with conflict and business that is not our own.

The admonition in Proverbs 26 is to put out the fire of unnecessary controversy by withholding the wood of perpetual talk.

For a talker, someone who keeps talking and joking, sometimes they like to stir things up and say, Oh, I was just joking.

The things we say set us up for success or failure. A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger.

We have a choice in how we use our words.

This is the beauty and the genius of the tongue – an instrument created by God for bringing order and declaring praise.

OK, now I remember

By JAMES L. SNYDER

Memory is a beautiful thing, that is, when it is working. I must confess there are many times in which my memory is on some kind of a vacation.

What I want to know is simply this, how do you know you have forgotten something if you have forgotten it?

I do many things I cannot remember exactly why I do them. Behind everything I do is a reason for why I do it or those things that I do not do. I must confess I am quite a reasonable person along this line.

Without memory, we can take many things for granted. We go through motions we do not know why we are going through them, we just go through them.

Everybody says that when you get older your memory rather takes a backseat. That may be the case with me, I am not quite sure. I cannot remember.

I must confess it is a great asset at times to have a memory failure.

For instance, when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage accosts me and says, "Did you remember...?" She may have sent me to the grocery store to fetch something or she may have sent me, God forbid, to the mall to pick up something she ordered online.

When she asked this question, I always respond by saying, "I forgot, you know my memory is not what it used to be."

It is an easy way to slither out of something I have forgotten to do. The older I get the more plausible this excuse is, I just cannot remember why.

However, on those occasions when she is a little more exasperated than others at me she will say, "Your memory never was what it used to be!"

What that means exactly I do not know. She probably told me sometime in the past, but right now, I simply cannot recall. I am perfectly happy just forgetting that for the time.

Why is it I can remember things I do not want to remember and I cannot remember the things that I need to remember? For instance, I can remember the year my wife was born, but I can never recall the month or the day. As a good husband, I should reverse that, not remember the year and positively remember the month and day.

Why is it when my wife is giving me a piece of her mind, all I can remember at the time is a funny incident that happened to me earlier that morning? Smiling at a time like that is not advantageous to a happy life of the husband. When she asks, "What is so funny?" I cannot tell her I was not listening to her but thinking about something else.

My memory was jogged earlier this week when a certain incident happened at the Post Office.

Anybody who knows me knows that I am not in any way shape or form a hugger. I am a firm believer in what the Bible says, "the right hands of fellowship" (Galatians 2:9). I am vigorous in this hand-shaking ceremony. That is about as far as it goes.

I had quite forgotten my position along this line, or rather, I should say why I came to this position.

Standing in a very long line at the post office at which time I was in somewhat of a hurry to get through a lady walked in. She looked at me and says, "Oh, it's so nice to see you. I haven't seen you for a long time." Then she caught me off guard and gave me a hug.

I did not know who this woman was; I could not remember ever seeing her before. With the way my memory is these days, I pretended as if she was a long-lost friend of mine. She chatted about stuff that really did not make any sense to me at the time. I smiled and nodded my head and chatted away to her about things I am sure did not mean anything to her.

I was not really paying attention and as the line moved forward, something dawned on me.

You know how it is when all of a sudden something hits you. Your vacationing memory comes home and unpacks. Well, that happened to me standing there in line.

By the time I had figured out what had happened, it was too late to do anything about it. When she hugged me, she stepped in front of me and therefore was ahead of me in line.

I had one of those "aha" moments but there was nothing I could do about it at the time. I had to swallow my pride, display a contagious smile across my face and take it like a man. A man who has been outwitted by some lady he had no idea who she was.

I now remember why I do not do any hugging. I know all hugs are not equal but with the memory I have I do not remember the difference and I am not taking any more chances.

Driving home from the Post Office, I remembered the wise words of King Solomon. "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun" (Ecclesiastes 1:9).

If I could just remember that, I certainly would be okay.

Strategies for marital bliss

By TRACY RENEE LEE

Prior to our marriage, my husband had been married once before. After his first marriage failed, he developed a strategy for marital bliss that he faithfully applies to our marriage.

The first rule in his "Strategies for Marital Bliss" is, "Never go to bed angry, upset or annoyed at your spouse."

Seems simple enough, unless, of course, one has ever been married.

Through the years, however, anger, discontent and annoyance have never been a significant problem for us. The reason, I imagine, is directly related to his second strategy for marital bliss.

During the 1960s, the "flower children" coined a phrase, "Love is never having to say you're sorry." My husband's second strategy for marital bliss is in direct conflict with this philosophy.

His second strategy is "Regardless of fault, love rushes to say sorry first."

My husband's "Strategies for Marital Bliss" actually apply to every relationship between human beings. Whether you are sweethearts, siblings, relatives, co-workers or acquaintances, you should seriously consider incorporating his rules, into every relationship in which you participate.

While it is true that none of us is perfect, at the moment of death, imperfection is frozen. Death robs the living of the opportunity for simple resolution and blocks the comfort of peace.

These lost opportunities for resolution and peace are unfortunate indeed. This undesirable state of affairs creates years of complicated grief for the bereaved survivor.

The depth of stress brought on by this situation can lead to serious ailments. My best advice is to follow my husband's "Strategies for Marital Bliss" in one's everyday interactions and in every relationship in which one engages.

If one finds that he or she is at odds with a loved one, or with anyone for that matter, try to incorporate my husband's strategies into the relationship.

Strategies for marital bliss

I am certainly not advocating that a victim apologize to a perpetrator for any abuse or crime inflicted upon them. What I am suggesting, is that you try to forgive.

Forgiveness will bring you the most comfort possible. Do not continue the cycle of victimization at your own hands. Do what is best for you, by releasing the negative stresses of anger and hate.

Once a death has occurred, victims become the unexpected losers, giving the obnoxious or abusive acquaintance, indefinite power over them.

Due to their own inability to resolve their lives, the victim has perpetuated the negative control that will hamper their recovery until they are able to effect resolution within themselves. This is an extremely difficult feat to accomplish.

Turn your woes into a winning scenario; deal with the abuse while your abuser remains living.

In the case of a failed marriage, no matter who is at fault, both parties lose. The same is true in life and death. Do not rob yourself of peace, do not rob yourself of happiness and certainly, do not rob yourself of bliss.

Take care of unfinished business today before your head hits the pillow.

Free trees will be offered at upcoming Arbor Day Festival

Special to The News
January 18 will mark the 10th annual Crawfordville Arbor Day celebration – and tree giveaway – at Hudson Park. Starting at 10am on Saturday, more than fifteen hundred trees will be given away for free. The young trees are all pot-grown and several feet tall (except for the Longleaf pines). Festival goers may choose from among the following trees: Chickasaw plum, bald cypress, American snowbell, basswood, post oak, eastern hophornbeam, shumard oak, swamp chestnut oak, southern red cedar, mockernut hickory, redbud, tulip poplar, myrtle oak, southern red oak, winged elm, and pignut hickory. In addition, the Florida Division of Forestry will give away 500 Longleaf pine seedlings in small containers. Every person who attends may take home one free tree in a pot plus several Longleaf pines. After 12 noon, any number of the remaining trees may be obtained for a requested donation of $4 per tree. If you want a free tree for your yard but don't know what tree would be best, help will be available. Tree-giveaway volunteers are all experienced gardeners or Master Gardeners and will be able to answer questions and give advice. Don't forget to bring your empty, black-plastic plant pots (6-inch diameter or larger). Pots must be in good condition and reusable. You can trade them for chances to win a beautiful Yaupon Holly from Just Fruits & Exotics Nursery. Families will find delightful music, food, and exhibits. The Iris Garden Club will sell baked goods to raise scholarship funds. Artisans, craftsmen, and other vendors will be selling their wares. Arbor Day is a nationally celebrated observance that encourages tree planting and care. "Trees provide welcome shade in hot weather and reduce electricity bills," said Lynn Artz. "Trees also provide food and shelter for wildlife and beautify our county," added Jeannie Brodhead, President of the Iris Garden Club. The Iris Garden Club of Wakulla organizes this annual event. The festival will be held rain or shine. For more information, please contact Lynn Artz (850-320-2158; lynn_artz@hotmail.com).

Community working to bring awareness to the dangers of candy-flavored tobacco

Special to The News
There's berry, vanilla, chocolate, and green apple. There are flavored cigars, tobacco leaves, smokeless, chew, snuff, snus, hookah and dissolvable tobacco. In short, a wide variety of candy and fruit flavored tobacco products are available in communities throughout Florida, including Wakulla County, despite overwhelming evidence that these deadly products appeal to youth and can lead to a lifetime of tobacco addiction. The past 12 months have been busy for the Wakulla County Tobacco Free Partnership and Students Working Against Tobacco (SWAT) in their fight against candy flavored tobacco products. In November 2012, the Wakulla County Commission unanimously adopted an ordinance restricting the sale of candy-flavored tobacco products in the county. Proposed by then Commissioner Alan Brock, a huge supporter of the Tobacco Prevention Program, the ordinance would have only allowed those establishments which require patrons and customers to be 21 years-old or older to enter to sell flavored tobacco products. In January 2013, Tonya Hobby, Tobacco Prevention Specialist for the Wakulla County Health Department was notified that the ordinance was going to be placed on the January 22nd County Commissioners Meeting agenda, 10 days before the agenda was going to go into effect. Hobby immediately contacted the Tobacco Free Partnership and the SWAT Wakulla County Coordinator Molly Clore. Clore reached out to the SWAT students of Wakulla High School and the County's Youth Advocacy Board Representative Wakulla Middle School 7th Grader Andrew Walker. At the January 22nd County Commissioners Meeting, Arien Hart and Shannon Wood, Juniors at Wakulla High School presented a video public service announcement showcasing how tobacco companies market candy flavored tobacco products with the intent of attracting youth and gaining future smokers. Hart and Wood produced and filmed the video and interviewed high school students to present the opinions of the youth in our community. Andrew Walker, President of Wakulla Middle School's Students Working Against Tobacco chapter also spoke at the meeting and urged the commission to keep the ordinance in place. In a 4-1 vote, the Commission voted in favor of repealing the ordinance. Dr. Howard Kessler proposed a workshop relating restrictions on the sale of tobacco products in the county. The workshop had members of the Commission, Tonya Hobby, Molly Clore and members of the Wakulla County Tobacco Free Partnership as well as many community members and store owners. Ronald Fred Crum, owner of Crum's Mini Mall, said everyone should be against children having access to tobacco but these products are behind the counter and those who buy it must be 18 years of older. Crum said, everyone should be making an effort to enforce the law and address when children under age are using tobacco. On May 6, county commissioners voted in favor of an ordinance regulating the placement of tobacco products. The ordinance requires vendors to sell tobacco products through vendor-assisted transactions and restricts all tobacco products behind a counter in an area accessible to the personnel of the vendor. Wakulla Middle School SWAT club secretary, Eb-one Davis, told commissioners: "I'm here to represent the students in favor of placing candy flavored tobacco products behind the counters and out of the sight of children under 18 years of age." The motion of the ordinance passed with a 4-1 vote. Commissioner Ralph Thomas encouraged kids to speak out to their peers against tobacco as the best way to achieve the goals of the ordinance. New data released by the Florida Department of Health shows that 23 percent fewer Florida high school students are current cigarette smokers compared to 2010. The results indicate a decline in overall tobacco use among youth. "The decrease in tobacco use among our state's youth is an encouraging indication of the effectiveness of our tobacco prevention programs, yet our work is not done," said State Surgeon General Dr. John Armstrong. "We in Florida are fortunate to have a comprehensive program that provides county-level community interventions and continued education for all youth." Tonya Hobby, Tobacco Prevention Specialist for Wakulla County Department of Health said, "The tobacco product placement ordinance was a true collaboration of community leaders, community members and involved youth who care about the health of their peers. We will continue to work to keep these products out of the hands of our youth."

HOME ON THE RANGE

Shooting trap, or humiliation in the air

By MARJ LAW

I've wanted to shoot trap since I first saw four guys and a gal on a trap range.

They were shooting: one after another. Orange birdies are slung into the air. When hit, they explode into bits. If not, they sail unharmed onto the field where they break apart on the ground.

"Looks pretty darn easy," I thought to myself. "Why should they have all the fun?"

So Joe lets me borrow his 12-gauge and we go to the Wakulla County Sheriff's Office range in Sopchoppy to try it out. Piece of cake.

I hoist the heavy gun, stretching my arms wide to be able to reach the trigger.

I press my cheek against the stock and my "ears" (the earmuff kind) push into my "eyes" (protective glasses) and set them askew. Of course, I can't see now.

I yell "pull!" and naturally the shot goes way wide.

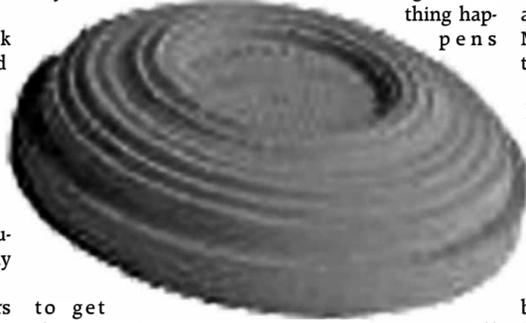

I reposition both ears and eyes and try again. Same thing happens. I push my glasses back into position so I can see.

By now, the gun weighs 2.5 tons and my arms are jelly from holding it up. My shoulder hurts. And it's downright disheartening to have seen those birdies sail gently onto the ground. Waah waah waah.

Joe says the gun is too big for me.

Duh. So our friend and instructor Michael Nappi says that to get the correct size gun, you place it on your shoulder, put your arm at a right angle to the gun, and see if your index finger reaches the trigger. I tried that with Joe's gun. Naturally, that trigger was far from my finger.

Joe says I need a "youth" stock, so we visit a local outdoor sports shop and find a youth model.

We load up 7.5-grain shot and head back to the WCSO range.

I rest my cheek against the stock, and the earmuff-glasses thing happens all over again. I can't see worth beans so I take off the muffs and stick squishy earplugs into my ears. They don't push the glasses over anymore.

"Pull!" I say, and the birdie sails through the air and smashes to smithereens.

Cool! "Pull!" I say again, and the birdie sails and sails and sails.

Drat. So I finish shooting five shots, and Joe shoots five. His birdies are dead, dead, dead. Mine laughed all the way to the ground.

After Joe shoots the last of his 50 rounds, I'm shooting my last five. Maybe I've hit a dozen or so of the rest, total.

It would be nice to be a good sport, but I wanna go home. Those birdies are frustrating. But Joe has taken me this far and only five rounds are left. I try to remember to align the front sight and to "sweep" through the shot.

"Pull!" and miss. "Pull!" and miss again. Three shots left.

I'm done with listening to good advice on how to aim and how to shoot. I pretend that birdie is supper and we're going to eat tonight.

With the stock tight to my shoulder, I'm getting that darn bird. "Pull!"

Blam! Goes the birdie.

"Pull!" I call again. Birdie No. 49 explodes in the air.

"Pull!" I call for No. 50.

Again, blam! Pieces fly every which way!

Well, if you want to know the secret to hitting the birdie, I can't tell you why each one of those last three birdies dusted.

Maybe it's not the aim or the swing through, maybe it's trying to be a good sport.

Or maybe it was the thinking of birdie for dinner!

Marj Law is the former director of Keep Wakulla County Beautiful who has become an avid shooter in retirement.

LOGBOOK
A fishing logbook will help improve your odds as a fisherman. Logging your trips won't guarantee you success on every outing, but it will definitely increase your chances of catching fish during every season of the year.
A logbook helps you begin to notice patterns in bass movements and behavior related to water conditions, food supply, weather, type of lake, time of year and time of day. Information that should be in your logbook includes site, date, time, weather, temperature, water clarity, water conditions, barometric pressure, lake level, how you fished, depth, lure (type, size, color used and presentation), number and size of fish caught, plus anything else you think that could be helpful down the road.

FSU, UCF fans get in to state parks for half-price

Florida State Park System honors the university teams for bowl wins

From DEP News

TALLAHASSEE -The Florida Park Service is celebrating the BCS National Championship win of Florida State University and the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl win of the University of Central Florida by cutting admission in half for its fans Mondays through Thursdays throughout January.

What better way for fans to celebrate the nail-biting victories of the Seminoles and the Knights than with a relaxing hike, picnic or stroll in a Florida State Park?

Team-themed cookouts and gatherings in park pavilions are a good way to show others the pride they have in these two programs.

Fans wearing FSU and UCF hats or shirts and students showing a current ID will get into a state park for half price. The offer is good for day-use of Florida State Parks on Mondays through Thursdays.

"FSU and UCF are winners, just like the state parks," said Donald Forgiore, Director of the Florida Park Service. "So it's only natural that the state parks cheer on these bowl wins along with fans. The players and coaches of Florida's universities work hard and we applaud their success."

Half-priced admission is good at all Florida State Parks except Ellie Schiller Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park, Weeki Wachee Springs State Park and Skyway Fishing Pier State Park.

This offer does not include additional usage fees, special events or Martin Luther King Jr. Day on Jan. 20.

Florida State University won the Bowl Championship Series National Championship game against Auburn University on Jan. 6. The University of Central Florida beat Baylor University in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 1.

In October, the Florida State Parks System had its own big win, when it was awarded a third Gold Medal of Excellence from the National Recreation and Parks Association. This makes Florida the first three-time gold medal award recipient.

Since 1935, the Florida Park Service has provided recreational activities, while preserving, interpreting and restoring natural and cultural resources.

Coast Guard Auxiliary Reports

By Carolyn Brown Treadon

The following article was submitted by Flotilla Commander Duane Treadon:

The first meeting of the year is always an exciting one for a Flotilla as Staff Officers take the Oath of Office and prepare for the new year.

Staff Officers serve an important function in a Flotilla as program area coordinators. We had 15 members and three guests in attendance.

Several of our program areas are more visible to the public: Surface Operations (Phil Hill), Public Affairs (Tim Ashley), Program Visitor (Mike Harrison), Vessel Examination (Steve Hulst), and Public Education (Alexander Gulde).

There are also several positions that primarily support internal function of the Flotilla and Auxiliary. These include Finance (Carolyn Treadon), Member Training (Bob Asztalos), Information Systems (Duane Treadon), Materials (Mike Harrison), and Secretary of Record (Norma Hill).

Additional positions that serve both members and the public include Navigations Systems (Bob Asztalos), Communications Services (Duane Treadon), Marine Safety (Tim Ashley), Diversity (Geoffery Gonzalez) and Human Resources (Raye Crews).

Coast Guard Auxiliary

A final very important staff officer position is that of Detachment Liaison for St. George Island (Dave Rabon). Each staff officer brings unique skills, talents, and backgrounds to their program area and all are very qualified to hold such office.

The Flotilla had a special visitor from Division in attendance, Ellena Roland, the Division staff officer for Public Affairs and Publications. Ellena is an impassioned speaker. Her pride in the Auxiliary and its critical role of promoting safe boating was evident in her dynamic talk to the Flotilla. She stressed the need to tell the Auxiliary's story as we prepare for our 75 anniversary.

Educating the boating public on what we do is one way of keeping the promotion of safety boating on people's minds.

This story and discussing safe boating is often done during public affairs events and through material we pass out. It is important, she emphasized, that the boating public receive gentle reminders of the importance of safe boating during both the active boating season and the non-active season. We were happy to report to Ellena that our public affairs and public education program areas were already working on plans to promote safe boating in the coming year.

There were two important awards presented during the meeting. First, Dave Rabon received an award for the completion of over 60 program visits and free courtesy vessel exams during 2013. Dave's totals for the year were nearing 100. Congratulations, Dave, for a job well done.

The other award was a notice of qualification for Alexander Gulde.

Alexander applied for and, after a rigorous screening process, was accepted into the Auxiliaries Interpreters Corps. This is a program area of the Auxiliary that supplies interpreters all across the world to assist not only the Coast Guard but also other governmental agencies like the State Department.

Alexander's language specialty is German. Congratulations, Alexander, on making it through a very hard screening process and being chosen to serve with this elite team.

If you are interested in becoming involved in the Auxiliary, check out our website at www.uscgaux.net for membership information or contact our Flotilla Staff Officer for Human Resources at fso-hr@uscgaux.net or Flotilla Commander Duane Treadon at FC@uscgaux.net.

Underwater Wakulla

By Gregg Stanton

Capital City to the Sea Trails

Last October, the TCC Environmental Institute hosted a group calling themselves the Capital City to the Sea Trails, proposing hiking and riding trails that will begin in Tallahassee, run through Wakulla County and terminate at the sea.

Our Rails-to-Trails program has long been very popular to the cycling community. Our rivers and wetlands have provided canoe and kayak trails for even more, attracting national businesses and enthusiasts for decades.

Not to be left out, the Farrell property was recently advertised for sale in The Wakulla News with the potential that it could serve as a diver portal into our underground river attracting another group of people to Wakulla.

Wakulla County has long been recognized as the bedroom community to Tallahassee and a natural playground to both our capital city community and a much larger national wildlife interest group.

While folks are proposing multiple cycling and hiking trails departing south from Tallahassee by way of historic rail lines and pioneering trails, I would like to propose a surface and underwater trail that follows the natural underground rivers that snake through our county. By combining the two focus groups, we serve a much larger interest community that can support each other's needs. Let's say, two for the price of one.

Interpretive displays will document what is going on above and underground adding to the thrill of the journey, provide way stations with information, water and shelter, and safe portals around and into the Karst along this 30-plus mile thrilling trail.

Like the Appalachian Trail, this trail, with its multiple entrances, will be supported with well-documented log books, encouraging folks to take each step of the way in comfort and safety at their own pace.

Our proposed trail may begin south of Tallahassee, perhaps near the Munson Slough and Ames Sink with trail description boards that discuss the challenges two communities currently face together in search of mutually beneficial solutions. The trail then snakes south to Sullivan Sink, just north of and then through the Leon Sinks Geological Park, home to Little Dismal and Big Dismal Sinks.

The trail then heads south past Chip's Hole (discussing the Indian lore of these sites) to Emerald Sink, across the Crawfordville Highway to Clearcut Sink and down the long chain of shallow sinkholes ending in the Promise Siphon.

There are many trails already in place set up by the Forestry Service and Wakulla Springs State Park. Southward the trail will go through Whiskey Still, Turner, and Indian Springs (discussing the exploration of these caves) to reach the mighty Wakulla Springs.

Then southward it travels to Cherokee Sink, then Guy Revell and the phreatic crack, and south to Harveys Hole, Swirl Swamp and Hatchet (discussing the early settlers culture). The trail will then pass over and under U.S. Highway 98, to Rat, Dog and Punchbowl sinks, ultimately reaching the sea at the many vents of Spring Creek (discussing the fishing communities).

We walk on water in Wakulla County! This is an ambitious vision I am pleased to see local folks finally embracing. Perhaps our multifaceted naturalist community can come together and help each other out where fractioned individually, we faltered.

Quo vadis, Wakulla?

Clockwise from above: Alexander Gulde receiving award; Dave Rabon receiving award; Ellena Roland presenting; group shot of Auxiliaries.

Sherrie Stokes The Medart folk artist paints on recycled panes

By JENNY ODOM
Special to The News

Although she spent her career in the arts, Sherrie Stokes began painting just six years ago.

Of a humble nature, she is slender with straight silver hair and light blue eyes. On a cool November morning she wraps a navy sweater around her shoulders to keep off the chill.

Stokes is originally from Henderson, Texas. At the age of 12, her family moved to Miami, where they would visit family on fishing trips.

"It was culture shock for me," she says. "I went from a small town in east Texas to Miami, Florida."

She eventually found North Florida and it reminded her of her beloved east Texas childhood and she decided to study art history at Florida State University.

Stokes spent her career curating at museums. Employed by the Tallahassee Museum (formerly known as the Tallahassee Junior Museum) for many years, she organized shows and was involved in grant writing.

Retired now, Stokes lives and glass.

"I kept seeing paintings on windows like this, but everything was a lot more country," says Stokes. "So I decided to give it a try, in my own way."

Stokes began working on a process that would work for what she wanted to achieve with the windows. She eventually developed the tedious layering technique she uses today.

"It took a lot of trial and error, but it comes down to using polyurethane between coats, and applying a lot of layers," she offers.

Her paintings begin with sketching. She uses butcher paper to draw out an image full size, then transfers it to the window pane, using marker or oil stick.

"What's nice about this is that if I draw something out and like it, I can use it over again," she says.

Hummingbirds and sea turtles are two of her most popular subjects. But as well, she has paintings of flowers, dogs and fish. She also creates commissioned paintings of pets and just about anything you'd like her to paint. Recently she painted a gorilla and a large lizard for a couple who are decorating a new home.

them to me," she says.

Once she cleans off the old windows, she starts to lay down the first of many layers of acrylic paint. It is a time consuming process, and once in a while Stokes suffers from some arthritis pain that makes it hard to work.

"Some days I'm inspired, other days I'm just old and lazy," Stokes laughs.

She works on her artwork in every spare moment, using different workspaces throughout her house. It takes a lot of layering, so she works on multiple pieces at one time.

An animal lover, Stokes also lives with a pack of small dogs - five chihuahuas and one yorkie mix.

"I'm very empathetic when it comes to animals, maybe even overly empathetic," she admits.

Even though Stokes is not selling her work anywhere on a regular basis, you can see her work, or commission a painting the old fashioned way, by calling her.

"The feedback I get mostly is that my artwork makes people smile," says Stokes. "And I really like that. That's why I continue to do it" in a large brick home on Jack Crum Road, with her six dogs and her family. She is helping raise and take care of her young two grandsons, 11 and 7.

"They are all boy and a lot of energy," she says. "But I love them so much."

She's dabbled in different kinds of artwork through the years, but she was inspired when she began seeing other artists painting on old windows

"They were so happy with the gorilla," her clients told her, "because I used browns and greens, in his face, and they told me later that those were the primary colors of their new house."

The windows she uses come from various sources, but they are all old and rustic.

Red Clay Footprints

By John Roberts

Mighty proud to write this one to relate to all you readers out there how three sets of "Red Clay Footprints" made it all the way from Tallahassee to Pasadena, Calif., and back.

Why did we go way out there with all the expenses involved when we could have stayed home and simply turned on our television sets, you might ask.

The simple answer is what you have here are three of the most loyal Seminole football fans in the state of Florida. Two of us, me and Van Page, have been attending football games since Doak Campbell stadium was built and we were small enough to crawl under the fence to gain entry, or purchase a ticket for $5 and sit wherever we pleased.

The third fellow, Mickey Brady, came down from Georgia in about 1958, and has hardly missed a game since then.

Yessir, we're 71 years young, good friends and classmates from the Leon High School class of 1960.

You're right about it being expensive to go out there and we knew it'd put a real strain on our pocket books to take that trip along with the vast majority of fans. We got to figuring on how we were going to make the long trip and came up with the perfect plan.

We would drive non-stop over there and back, stopping only to refuel with gasoline and coffee, check out the restrooms, get snacks and occasional bits of food, and basically just keep "trucking."

If you are interested in the scenery, don't go this way because half of the trip is in pitch darkness. The only thing we were interested in was getting to our destination as soon as possible.

We were positive the Seminoles would come away with a win and we wanted to witness it firsthand.

None of us had any desire to drive our personal vehicles and put those miles on it, so we rented a Ford Explorer under the "unlimited mileage" plan. There was no requirement to tell the rental clerk where we were going, and we figured if, when we returned it, they wanted to know how we put so many miles on it, we'd just say we "rode around a lot" and leave it at that.

We then put together a plan as to how we would split up the driving chores. We first thought of the way the military would do it, since we're all veterans and are familiar with military things. Maybe we'd each drive four hours and therefore stand watches of four hours on and eight hours off.

We discarded that with what seemed a better idea, just every man take his turn filling the tank with gas and driving until it needed refilling. The range of that Explorer on a tank of gas was roughly 400 miles. So after a fellow drove his 400 miles he would be able to "rest" for 800 miles.

I should say right here that there was very little rest in that vehicle. I don't remember getting any rest at all, but must admit to short periods of time I could not account for when I must have just lost consciousness. Because of fatigue, one of us always sat next to the driver acting as something like a co-pilot in case the driver became too tired to drive.

The coffee and snacks at our 400 mile stops helped keep us fairly alert. This method worked very well as we averaged 34 to 36 hours from Tallahassee to my son's apartment in Huntington Beach, Calif., where we collapsed in our sleeping bags on the floor because he only has one bed.

Rugged, but better than staying on a soft bed in a fancy hotel and not being able to sleep from wondering if your credit card would max out when you left. I promise you when you're as tired as we were, we never even felt that floor under us.

The game was on Monday, Jan. 6, and we left Tallahassee about 7:30 p.m., Friday the 3rd, and reached our destination, Huntington Beach, on Sunday morning the 5th, at 3:30 a.m. Our return trip was much the same as our trip over except we didn't push it quite so hard and even stopped a couple of times to have a hearty breakfast at a nice restaurant.

We all agreed that the entire endeavor was a complete success. Our Seminoles winning the national championship made that ride back a happy one, and we agreed we would do it all over again.

The costs, divided three ways and free lodging at my son's apartment, were not bad at all. People we met in California were amazed at what we had done, especially at our age, but honestly, it was actually enjoyable, an adventure we will never forget.

Lastly, my conscience will hurt me if I don't tell you, if anyone ever asks how wide Texas is, you can tell them that on Interstate 10, from Beaumont to El Paso, it's 881 miles.

And don't forget, you have to cross it twice.

Library News...

By SCOTT JOYNER
Library Director

We are very happy to announce that beginning next week we will begin offering afterschool programs at the Community Center on Shadeville Hwy on the corner of Shadeville and Trice Lane.

With the help of a grant from Ounce of Prevention, the Wakulla County Coalition for Youth is partnering with many community organizations such as NAMI Wakulla, the Health Department, WCPL, and many others to make a One Stop center to help assist the citizens of Wakulla County with education, health, recreation opportunities for the entire family. This will be a springboard in making for Wakulla County a state of the art, heavily used community center.

WCPL will begin on Thursday, Jan. 23, with an afterschool program for K-2nd graders from 4 p.m. until 5 p.m. in the afternoon.

The following Thursday, Jan. 30, will be a program for 3rd-5th at the same time.

Then, on Thursday, Feb. 6, there will be a program for middle-schoolers from 4 p.m. until 5:30 p.m.

The two programs for the elementary school aged children will be versions of our summer programs for kids in that age range.

The middle school program will be some sort of a book club where literature for the young adult crowd will be discussed in what we hope will be a fun and informative way.

These programs are in addition to, not taking the place of, programs that we already offer in house at WCPL. We also hope to have expanded Summer Program events at the Community Center as well.

These three programs are just a starting point for all that we wish to do at the Wakulla One Stop Community Center.

We hope to be able to meet more often with expanded programs in the near future.

To do that we need your help. Please bring your children by and see all the community center has to offer.

Transportation assistance plans are in the works and are hoped to be implemented soon, but until then please stop by and allow WCPL, Wakulla One-Stop, and all the partners in this project build a Community Center worthy of the great citizens of Wakulla County.

WEEKLY ROUNDUP – (Recap and analysis of the week in state government)

University trifecta, but what are odds for gambling deal?

By DARA KAM
THE NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE, Jan. 10 – Three Florida universities made big news this week, two of them for presidential searches and the third for a championship game that hardly needs mentioning, at least for anyone who hasn't been living under a rock in Tallahassee.

State lawmakers cut the first committee week of the new year short so they could head out west to engage in a little fundraising and a lot of football at Monday night's BCS matchup between Florida State and Auburn at the Rose Bowl. Straggling into committee meetings Wednesday morning, gamet-and-gold fans cheered the Seminoles' national championship win, turning some Gators green with envy while cashing in on the cachet of another crystal football under FSU's belt.

Later in the week, Florida A&M University set off a Rattler Nation furor with the selection of a new president, the first woman and first non-FAMU alum in modern times to head the Tallahassee school.

And an institution farther south is the center of chatter about a potential political domino effect after Chief Financial Officer Jeff Atwater made the final cut to head up Florida Atlantic University.

Odds are on Atwater for getting the job, but it's a longer shot for a gambling deal involving a controversial permit involving the Gulfstream race track and casino conglomerate Genting.

ONE PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH HEATS UP

Former Senate President Atwater, a North Palm Beach banker who boasts on his resume of being a fifth-generation Floridian, surprised staffers (and some supporters) when he announced over the weekend that he was in the running to head up FAU. The Palm Beach County school has been searching for a president since Mary Jane Saunders announced she was stepping down this spring in the wake of a series of controversies.

Atwater's announcement raised eyebrows in part because it was widely expected that he would run for governor in 2018. But it's the scramble for his replacement that's the focus for now.

If Atwater gets the job, Gov. Rick Scott could appoint a replacement and would likely choose a Republican heavy-hitter who would run for election in November in the hopes of avoiding a GOP primary.

Two of the state's most powerful elected officials are considered to be high on the list of possible replacements. House Speaker Will Weatherford, R-Wesley Chapel, and Senate President Don Gaetz, R-Niceville, both signaled this week they could be interested in the job, mostly by not saying they weren't and thereby fueling speculation that they are.

State Sen. Tom Lee, R-Brandon, could also be a candidate to replace Atwater on the Cabinet. Lee, who's been rumored to be on Scott's short list for lieutenant governor, ran for chief financial officer in 2006 but lost to Democrat Alex Sink.

And House budget chief Seth McKeel, who was already planning to run for CFO in 2018, confirmed that he's interested as well.

"If that vacancy happens, I have expressed interest in it... I think we need to wait and see if there is a vacancy," McKeel, R-Lakeland, said.

Pat Neal, a developer and former legislator who was also already making plans to run in 2018, said he'll run whether he gets appointed or not.

Democrat William Rankin is currently the only candidate who has filed to run against Atwater. But the field could become more crowded for the retired Army vet and former director of asset management for the Ohio State Treasury.

Atwater isn't the only politician with his eye on the post. State Sen. Jeremy Ring, D-Margate, didn't make the cut, but former U.S. Sen. George LeMieux joined Atwater on a list of 10 finalists. FAU trustees are supposed to make a decision by Jan. 17.

ANOTHER UNIVERSITY SEARCH ENDS

Florida A&M University trustees named Elmira Mangum, currently Cornell University's vice president for budget and planning, as the university's 11th president. Mangum is the first woman to serve permanently in the post since the historically black university was founded in 1887.

Mangum will also be the first FAMU president in 60 years who didn't graduate from the university. She beat out the other finalist for the job, John Price, a former founding president at the University of North Texas at Dallas.

Mangum said her goal is "to strengthen the academic programs that we have, strengthen our faculty and provide the services that our students need to fulfill the promise that we made to them when they entered."

The board of trustees voted 10-2 on Thursday to accept a search committee's recommendation of Mangum. But the decision came after an at-times testy public hearing where Rattlers alums, students and staff showed support for making Interim President Larry Robinson the permanent prez.

Robinson has led FAMU through a series of struggles since former president James Ammons resigned in the summer of 2012. Ammons left following the hazing-related death of Marching 100 drum major Robert Champion after a football game in November 2011. Champion's death led to arrest of 15 band members, the suspension of the renowned band and the ouster of the long-time music director.

After Champion's death and a series of questionable audits, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools placed FAMU on probation in December 2012.

Robinson is credited with turning around FAMU's financial and accreditation woes during his 18 months at the helm. The university has resolved financial irregularities and instituted a campus-wide anti-hazing initiative. And last month, FAMU was taken off probation, a critical move that allows the university to accept federal financial aid. Also, the famed Marching 100 returned to the football field in August with a new director, new roster and a new set of rules.

At Thursday's meeting, board Chairman Solomon Badger praised Robinson and noted that the board had asked the interim not to apply for president "in order to attract a wide pool of candidates, and he agreed."

But FAMU Alumni Association President Tommy Mitchell said the alumni had asked the trustees seven months ago to retain Robinson, and accused the board of "contempt and arrogance" for taking so long to respond.

Robinson hasn't ruled out going to work for another historically black college or university.

LONG ODDS FOR GAMBLING DEAL?

Gambling operator Resorts World Omni, Gulfstream Park and the horse industry have struck a deal aimed at getting slots rolling in downtown Miami.

The proposal, being pitched to lawmakers as they consider the shape of the state's gambling footprint during the upcoming session, is a dramatically scaled-back version of a multi-billion dollar casino resort proposal pitched to – and rejected by – the Legislature two years ago.

The plan hinges on a controversial permit held by a non-profit linked to the track's owners. Gulfstream and its allies say the permit is based in Miami-Dade, but state regulators say it is based in Broward County.

Under the agreement, Resorts World, a division of Malaysia-based Genting Group, would operate slot machines and a poker room at a hotel on the bayfront property purchased by Genting in 2011 for $236 million. The horse races would continue to run miles away at Gulfstream.

Backers of the plan, which has the blessing of breeders and thoroughbred horse owners and trainers, say it would be a shot-in-the-arm for the state's horse industry, suffering from fierce competition to the north in places like New York, where Genting has helped the industry thrive.

But critics of the proposal say it would be a major shift in the state's gambling landscape and would essentially "decouple" horse and dog racing from slot machine operations.

Sen. Gwen Margolis, D-Miami, complained that slots at the Genting property, located near museums and performing arts centers in an already congested area, would inject the wrong flavor into an area of the city where the goal is to attract more high-brow culture lovers.

"When we gave the ability to have slot machines to the pari-mutuels, it was because they complained they were hurting. Now everybody wants to have a different kind of deal. And the result of it is opening casinos all over the place by moving slot machines to some other area. That's something that will get out of control. You can't allow that to happen," Margolis, D-Miami, said.

And, if approved, the deal would shrink the amount of gambling money the Seminole Indians are required to pay to the state by at least $40 million a year.

Resorts World lobbyist Brian Ballard said his client will work with the state to make sure no revenues are lost if the plan is approved. And Ballard said the state would be better off expanding its gambling revenue sources.

"I would argue that having more than one large payer in South Florida is probably good for the people of Florida. It lowers risk. I wouldn't want to have one client as a law firm or lobbying firm because if the market changes for that client, you could have a real bad day," he said.

STORY OF THE WEEK: Chief Financial Officer Jeff Atwater becomes a finalist for Florida Atlantic University president.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK: "Every time we attempted a smoking thing, like we did in the restaurants, the first complaints we get are from our military folks, who say, 'I fought and died, and got shot in World War II, and I can't have a cigarette at the VFW'... So be prepared to hear from our veterans." – Sen. Nancy Detert, R-Venice, on a bill that could snuff out smoking on playgrounds.

WHITE'S WINES

In 2014, drink something old and something new

By DAVID WHITE

January is the perfect time to reflect on the previous year and make resolutions for the new one. For those of us who take wine seriously, it's smart to include wine in our New Year's resolutions.

This year, I plan to drink something old and something new.

In other words, I'll dig deep into a classic wine region and also explore a part of the world that doesn't get much attention. Whether you're a veteran oenophile or a budding wine enthusiast, following this plan will surely heighten your appreciation of wine.

Consider my consumption habits.

For my palate, America's most exciting Pinot Noir comes from the "extreme" Sonoma Coast, a series of remote hillside vineyards in northern Sonoma County just miles from the Pacific Ocean. My favorite examples, which come from producers like Peay, Hirsch, and Littorai, combine all the elements I look for in Pinot – rich, ripe aromas of cherries along with fresh herbs and earth, together with lively acidity. So regardless of the season or the meal, these tend to be my go-to wines.

Such complacency is easy to understand; we're creatures of habit. But it's silly. The world of wine is infinite. And when it comes to Pinot Noir, Burgundy wrote the book. So this year, I hope to finally get my head around this legendary French wine region. I want to learn about its history, memorize the vineyards and producers my friends obsess over, and taste as much as I can.

Discovering a classic wine region should be on every oenophile's list of New Year's resolutions. If you're fond of Washington State Merlot, try some classic, Right Bank Bordeaux. If you enjoy Riesling, stock your cellar with wines from Germany's Mosel River Valley. And don't just drink the classics, learn about them. It's the classics that inspire New World vintners.

Next year, I also plan on embracing obscurity.

Last summer, for example, I fell in love with Muscadet, a white wine produced in France's Loire Valley from a grape called "Melon de Bourgogne." Typically, the wines are marked by subtle yet precise aromas of apples, limes, and seawater. Thanks to extended contact with the dead yeast cells left over after fermentation, Muscadet is also known for exhibiting a creamy mouthfeel. These wines are perfect with shellfish and light seafood dishes. Plus, like most obscure-but-delicious wines, Muscadet is generally affordable.

This past summer, I fell for northeast Italy's electric white wines, trying as many offerings as I could find from Alto Adige, a neighbor to Austria and Switzerland, and Friuli-Venezia Giulia, which borders Slovenia to the east and Austria to the north.

Alto Adige is best known for Pinot Grigio, but dozens of varieties flourish there. Gewurztraminer, Muller-Thurgau, Sylvaner, and Kerner are exceptionally aromatic and display enough sweetness and acidity to complement cream sauces and even spicy foods.

Friuli-Venezia Giulia, commonly shortened to Friuli, is home to a host of unfamiliar grapes like Ribolla Gialla and Friuliano. Producers in the region are also known for producing rich, complex blends that include these grapes alongside more traditional varieties like Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, and Riesling.

This year, I hope to learn more about the wines of Hungary, Slovenia, Croatia, and other spots in Central and Eastern Europe. More and more of these wines are making their way to the United States, and plenty are fun, food friendly, and affordable.

Adventurous drinking should make everyone's list of New Year's resolutions. Tasting different wines is the best way to learn, and surprising your palate is the best way to keep things fun.

So regardless of which resolutions you make – and which resolutions you keep – just make sure wine is a part of your life in 2014.

Ice Sculpture

Crawfordville resident Jim Savage left the water running during the recent subfreezing weather and created an ice sculpture in his yard in Songbird.

The icicles created interested patterns, though by the time these shots were taken on Wednesday, Jan. 8, temperatures were warming and the ice was already dripping, cracking and breaking.

The bonds of matrimony are like any other bonds — they mature slowly. — Peter De Vries

This is when winter annuals come out

Natural Wakulla

By Les Harrison

Recent weather has confirmed winter is really here.

While the days are getting marginally longer, the appearance of frost in the morning is not a surprise to anyone.

Last week's painful subfreezing temperatures will lead to noticeably higher power bills in the coming weeks. The short days and low thermometer reading have taken a toll on plants too.

Sweet gums, cherries, some oaks and many other hardwoods, weeds and shrubs have lost their leaves. Their period of seasonal dormancy is here as they await spring's reawakening.

For a minority of plants, the frigid temperatures and short days are the ideal environment to sprout, bloom and grow next year's seed.

Wild radish is one such plant which is currently in bloom.

Raphanus raphanistrum, the scientific name for wild radish, is a native of northern Europe and northern Asia. This annual flourishes in marginal soils and has spread to most of the world, especially areas with disturbed soil.

The term Raphanus has a Greek origin meaning quickly appearing.

This accurately describes the rapid emergence and growth, when the soil temperature falls below 65 degrees and enough moisture is present.

Bloom color of wild radishes can vary. Yellow and white are the most commonly encountered colors, but occasionally lavender is on display.

When first emerging the wild radish's leaves are kidney shaped and covered with hairs, top, bottom and on the stems. The plant may reach three feet in height, but will rapidly decline with the return of warm weather.

Crimson clover is another cold season annual commonly seen in wintertime Wakulla County. The delicate appearing leaves remains viable under a coat of sparkling frost and never wilt.

Three clover leaves per stem is the most common structure on this dense growing legume. Persistent searching will reveal the infrequent four leaf clover for the lucky individual.

This European native germinates in late autumn, but has a slow steady growth pattern which lets it escape notice until about this time of year. The plants are currently clumps of green leaves among brown grass.

The distinctly red blooms appear in spring and are an early season nectar source for European honeybees. The scientific name, Trifolium incarnatum, references the "blood red" bloom color which produces a striking vista when mass plantings occur.

Crimson clover is commonly seeded on roadsides to stabilize the soil and add organic matter. This annual legume will reseed itself when conditions are right.

The Roundleaf Bluet or Innocence is a tiny, native wildflower currently in bloom. The white flowers are about the size of a dime and appear in clusters of ten or more blooms.

The height of this plant is less than two inches and barely appears above the decaying leaf litter. The plant requires partial sun, but uses the protection offered by tree canopy along with its natural hardiness to produce blossoms during periods of cold and frost.

Like plants, many of the insect pollinators are inactive during the cold weather. One which is active is the Syrphid fly, sometimes called a hoverfly.

They work with the available cool season pollen and nectar sources to assure the seed production for next winter's blooming annuals. Their wasp-like appearance serves as a mean of repelling potential predators.
