Mad Anthony's Waterfront Grille in Panacea opened during the annual Rock the Dock Fishing Tournament, held at Rock Landing Marina.

The restaurant and tiki bar has been redesigned from floor to ceiling, along with a new menu and new staff.

Chelsi Murphy and David Willits of Hindsight Insight Consulting, a restaurant redesign team based in Naples, has worked closely with the owner to completely revamp the restaurant and bar at the former Posey's Dockside Cafe.

"The owner of Rock Landing Marina is an avid boater and fisherman, and he wanted to create a full-service restaurant for boaters and marina clients," says Murphy.

As part of their research for the project, Willits and Murphy traveled the Forgotten Coast to sample the local restaurant offerings.

"We've been everywhere around here to eat," says Willits. "From Apalachicola to St. Marks, we've tried every place around here, including the food trucks."

And with what he found, Willits has designed a full-range menu from fried seafood baskets, steaks, and special dishes.

"One of our signature dishes is the crab cake with jumbo lump crab meat," says Willits. "We will also serve top quality steaks, along with flatbreads and pub and grub baskets."

Wakulla eyes $3.8M in state projects

By NICOLE ZEMA
nzema@thewakullanews.net

Two years of calculated preparation has allowed the Wakulla County Commission to strike while the iron is hot. If the $3.8 million appropriated for infrastructure projects within Wakulla County is the iron, then a well-developed adopted infrastructure strategy is the hammer that will bang the plans into shape.

County Administrator David Edwards and Sheree Keeler, director of governmental affairs, said the Florida legislature has sent the appropriations bill to Gov. Rick Scott to sign for Wakulla County.

County Administrator
David Edwards

Once the governor has the bill, Keeler said he has 21 days to determine his vetoes, and can sign it before that time is up.

Keeler said there is not a guarantee that the whole $3.8 million will come Wakulla County's way. She said the Governor's Office of Planning and Budgeting goes through the budget line by line, looking at every item to evaluate if an economic driver or special project meets the statutory requirements for the funding source. Sometimes the requirements don't sync up with the funding, so vetoes are possible.

Brick campaign will build Eagle Scout legacy at WHS

By NICOLE ZEMA
nzema@thewakullanews.net

The result of Jacen

Jones' Eagle Scout project will be set in stone for students, staff and visitors to appreciate for many generations to come.

The Wakulla High School junior said he wanted his project to benefit the school somehow.

"I talked to the principal, and he told me about the flagpole," Jones said. "As soon as I saw it, knew that's what I needed to do. I didn't like it. It is decrepit, disrespectful, and needs work."

The flagpole itself, and the concrete base reinforced by red bricks, need a beautification overhaul since it was built with the school in the 1960s.

"A lot of the bricks are falling off," Jones said.

NICOLE ZEMA
Troop 8 Boy Scout and Wakulla High School junior Jacen Jones is refurbishing the school flagpole and base as part of his Eagle Scout project. To fund the venture, Jones is selling commemorative bricks at $30 each, which will be installed on the flagpole's base.

"To fundraise, people can permanently have something that will be part of the school."

For $30 a brick, donors can order etched text of three lines with 18 characters in each line, including spaces. Jones set his fundraising deadline for June 1. To purchase bricks, visit the website: www.bricksrus.com/order/jacenseagle or call Jones at 745-8484.

"As long as it's appropriate, put whatever you want," Jones said. "In person, I've sold one brick. Though online sales are supposedly going well."

Jones said the flagpole itself is not in bad shape.

"It will be rebuffed and repainted," Jones said. "I'll be pressure washing the concrete base, and rebuilding the (outside of the) base with bricks, and plant a flower bed with low-maintenance native flora around the base."

Jones said he would also add stepping-stones, leading from the base of the flagpole to the front of school.

"The ROTC raises the flag, and my ROTC friends' feet are wet for the rest of the day."

"The Oysters Rockefeller is made with the one of our specialty brews," adds Murphy.

Likely to be a craft-brew lover's delight, Mad Anthony's will be pouring Erie Brewing Company ales, famous for their Railbender, an award winning Scottish Ale.

They will also tap local vendors to fill their pantry and refrigerators with local seafood, meats, and vegetables.

"We are getting local seafood from Mineral Springs Seafood in Panama, Water Street Seafood in Apalachicola and The Local, a farmer's market in Medart, to name a few," says Willits.

Prices will range from pub prices, under $10, for baskets and sandwiches to about $30 to the full-scale dinners of steak, seafood and local specials.

Along with a retooling of the menu and total redesign of the kitchen and interior decor, is the expanded outdoor patio on the water. The outdoor space has been adorned with a new deck, more than twice the size of the old patio, and a roof installed by the Seminole Indians from the Naples area.

The chickee, "a shelter supported by posts," that covers the new and larger patio feels like a polynesian cathedral, is an architectural style the Seminole Indians began using in the 1830's.

Seminole Tiki Huts, a company based in Bonita, Florida, designed and constructed the roof in January and put the finishing touches on it just a few weeks ago.

The hand-peeled cypress used for the structure was harvested from the Everglades off the Seminole reservation, and hauled to Panama for installation. The thatched roof is made of sable palm, also harvested from the Everglades.

Gabriel Antunez designed and lead the team that built the tiki hut. He says the roof should last anywhere from seven to nine years.

"It took about one month to complete the project," says Antunez. The crew of four came to Panama, rented a house and worked on the project daily until it was finished.

"It's a lost art," he says about the traditional method used to construct the tiki hut. "I learned the trade from Joe Dan Osceola," he continues.

"We are one of the oldest companies that builds native huts and roofs like this," he says. "We weave the thatching in the traditional way, as the Seminoles have done for centuries."

"We've done some really nice restaurants and marinas in South Florida," says Antunez. "And we get our business through word of mouth, from our other jobs. We don't advertise."

"People who used to come here will be completely surprised by the redesign of the entire restaurant," says Murphy. "It's a new place."

After researching the project and getting it approved by school administration, Jones organized the rest of his plan. The level of organization required for an Eagle Scout project imparts life and career skills that will benefit Jones for a lifetime.

He designed a timeline for the project; identified the requirements and how they would be met; estimated how many volunteers would be needed and how work would be delegated; calculated costs; considered safety procedures; and planned how he would acquire materials.

After the Eagle Board scrutinized the project details, they approved it.

Jones has moved on to the fundraising phase of the project, which calls for help from the community. Jones said the physical work will be completed over the course of a weekend in July. Overall, the project will cost $6,430, including bricks, and all the funding will be raised through bricks or donations.

Jones is also relying on material donations from local businesses, like going to ACE hardware for donated mortar or bricks to rebuild the base, and approaching restaurants like Subway and Stone Creek Pizza to feed his volunteers.

Jones estimates he will need 16 volunteers who he will choose from his troop, classmates, ROTC and fellow band members, as well as a local brick mason who has pledged to volunteer his time and expertise.

"Then I go back to Eagle board, tell them how I did it, how I organized it, and did I succeed or fail," Jones said. "Once they sign off, I become an Eagle Scout."

Jones said the end of project will be commemorated with a flag-raising ceremony around Veteran's Day.

Unlike many Eagle Scouts who work toward the highest rank for many years, Jones only joined the Boy Scouts organization four years ago after moving to the area from Texas at age 13.

"I thought it was a great program, and always wanted to in Texas, but there was not a troop one nearby," Jones said. "I thought it was a good way of making friends since I moved in middle of summer, and hadn't met anyone yet."

Through Troop 8, Jones has accrued 32-plus merit badges, and 12 Eagle-required badges. The science-obsessed scout has 20 additional badges that reflect his interests, including aviation, space exploration and nuclear science. Jones has served as Senior Patrol Leader of the troop, which is head youth position in scouting, for two years.

Troop 8 is based in Medart, with eight members.

"We're a rather small troop," Jones said. "But a high amount of kids who pass through Troop 8 get to Eagle status."

At school he plays baritone saxophone with the band's wind ensemble and jazz band. In his downtime, Jones plays tennis and participates in a local video game group. He attends church at First Baptist of Crawfordville, and sings in the Sopchoppy Messiah group. He is looking forward to a scouting hiking adventure at Philmont, New Mexico this summer.

Jones is on the school's academic team, is a member of the engineering academy, and is a dual-enrollment student through Tallahassee Community College. Jones takes AP classes, honors courses, and will graduate in 2015 thought the STEM scholars program.

"Science my favorite subject by far," Jones said. "I hope to become physicist or engineer."

After graduation, he wants to attend either TCC or FSU, depending on scholarships. But first, Jones is focused on attaining Eagle Scout status. Not only will the status be a boost on college applications and job resumes, being an Eagle Scout says something about character.

"If you can, support me, or support other scouts," Jones said. "Being an Eagle Scout is an honor in itself. It also opens countless doors. If you join military after boot camp, Eagle Scouts automatically get three ranks. I also believe it is a great character reference. When I meet an Eagle Scout, it tells me a little about who they are, how they do things, and that they will get the job done."

CITY OF SOPCHOPPY

City election dates changed, terms extended

By NICOLE ZEMA
nzema@thewakullanews.net

A meeting of the Sopchoppy City Council resulted in the adoption of an ordinance to change the date of city elections, set corresponding dates for candidate qualification, and extend terms of current council members to coincide with the new election dates.

A proposed charter change to improve the election process for the city was approved by voters in an April 1 referendum. The change extends terms of office for Sopchoppy City Commissioners from two to four years, and makes city elections coincide with general elections. City elections have been the second Tuesday in June, and now voters can elect city offices on the day of general election.

The charter change ordinance was scheduled as a second public hearing, though no community members attended to weigh in.

The adoption of a new flood code was also discussed as part of an initial public hearing.

“The Department of Emergency Management put out the word recently that the national flood insurance program has to be modified to require some additional things to be in the community’s flood ordinances in order to keep your rating for the flood insurance program,” said Dan Cox, city attorney. “Because Wakulla County administers your building permits and reviews the plans, we wanted our ordinance to mirror theirs.”

The new flood ordinance is being advertised for adoption at the next council meeting on June 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Sopchoppy City Hall.

In other matters:

- A water meter reader presentation, featuring low maintenance, high-tech wireless water meters was given by Billy Carter, North Florida representative for Municipal Water Works. The new meters will cost the city approximately $710,000 (which includes installation), and Carter said the meters will significantly increase revenue because of accuracy. They are designed with a 20-year warranty, and can detect tampering, leaks and also pinpoint water usage down to the minute, since they perform readings every 11 seconds. City Clerk Jackie Lawhon will prepare financing options to be discussed at the June 9 meeting.

- A Big Bend Scenic Byway interpretative sign will be installed near the historic train depot since the Tourist Development Council offered to pay for 75 percent of its cost. The council voted to pay $1,375, which is 25 percent of its cost, for installation of the sign. The TDC will also help fund the interpretive signs at St. Marks and in Panacea commemorating the Blue Crab Festival.

- A mullet fish fry on May 31 will raise money to fund the annual Sopchoppy Fourth of July celebration.

Tickets are being sold for $8 a plate. Buy tickets at city hall (962-4611) or purchase plates at the event downtown, on the corner of Municipal Avenue and Rose Street.

Wakulla County Animal Control has new signs to place in areas where loose animals were picked up, to boost the return-to-owner ratio.

Signs are to help owners find pets

By Nicole Zema
nzema@thewakullanews.net

New signs provided to Wakulla County Animal Control are intended to increase the return-to-owner percentage when roaming animals are picked up.

When animal control is called to a location where an animal is roaming loose, a red and white sign will be stuck in the ground. When the animal’s owner goes out to look for their pet, hopefully they will see the sign and call the number to retrieve their animal.

The return-to-owner percentage is about 17 percent, which Animal Control Director Ivanhoe Carroll said is about average. The signs should give that percentage a boost, and get lost pets back into the homes of their owners more quickly.

Small Organization Support, through the Florida Animal Control Association, provided a $300 grant for the signs. Carroll said SOS paid for the signs directly at no cost to the county. Auto Trim and Design in Crawfordville printed the attention-grabbing signs at a discount for Wakulla County Animal Control.

“There are so many places that are remote, like the other side of Sopchoppy, or in St. Marks, and people might not think that we’ve been down there,” Carroll said. “Sometimes we’ll go in the middle of the day, pick up the dog and leave. Then people get home and wonder, ‘Where’s my dog?’ Putting out a sign when someone does lose an animal is the most effective thing you can do. This way we can increase our return-to-owner ratio by saying, ‘We were here.’ People don’t always think to call the shelter when they’re looking for an animal.”

Carroll said the quicker an animal is in and out of the shelter, the healthier the shelter, and the animal, will be. The Caucasian Care Facebook page is also a useful resource for owners seeking their lost pets.

The signs are printed with a request for signs to be returned to Animal Control, so they can be used multiple times.

Trave Williams has a big heart

William Snowden
editor@thewakullanews.net

He's the founder of Big Hearted Angels, a group he and his family started in 2003 to help underprivileged kids.

For the past five years, Williams has taken needy Wakulla kids to Wal-Mart for back-to-school shopping and then treated the kids and their families to a steak dinner.

Williams, who grew up in Crawfordville, is a successful businessman who provides wood to Charlie's Steakhouse and other restaurants. Back in 2003, he had a vision and decided he wanted to start giving back, so he started Big Hearted Angels in Lakeland. Soon chapters were open in Havana, Chattanooga, Tenn., and, as of 2009, here in Wakulla.

Last week, Williams was in town for a meeting with Superintendent of Schools Bobby Pearce and all of the school principals. Pearce said the district would continue to support Williams' project with school buses to transport the kids, plus pledging $50 per student for those who are recommended for the program by the individual schools.

After the meeting with district officials, Williams told me his goal for Big Hearted Angels is not just for the organization to give things to kids, but to educate them.

He wants his group to help teach kids about love and compassion and respect for others.

His mother died when he was 13, he said, and his father remarried – Williams called his dad's new wife a "bad stepmother," and he went out on his own.

He said he had a lot of mentors, white and black, who reached out to him when he was young, and kept him on the straight and narrow.

He graduated from Shadeville in 1958 and went into the service.

For him, giving back to his community "is what it's all about."

If you'd like to make a donation to Big Hearted Angels, the group has a local account at Ameris Bank. Contact Williams at (863) 370-6139.

The journey to excellence

Editor's note: This is the speech that track star Madison Harris gave at Medart Elementary's SAVE graduation last week.

By MADISON HARRIS

Congratulations, as fifth graders graduating from Medart and moving on to middle school, you are all at a cross road in your academic journey.

Completing elementary school was your first destination but you have two more milestones to achieve: completing middle school and finally high school, hopefully you will want to do it with excellence because it is through hard work and determination that you will achieve your dreams in life.

It may not seem very important today that you are conscious of your goals or performance but it is. Each year builds upon the other and after 13 years two very important things will be created along the way which will make a huge impact on your future. One, your academic transcript will be complete. An academic transcript is a record of all the courses you took and the grades you earned, your grade point average, test scores, community service hours, and class rank. Secondly, you will use your academic transcript to create your own academic resume. Both of these items (your transcript and your resume) will be used by colleges and even employers to determine if you qualify for admission or a future job.

Many kids do not think past today, some forget their actions will produce a consequence. You must always ask yourself, "Do you want the consequence to be good or bad?" It is also wise to consider HOW it will affect you, WHO you might hurt or disappoint and THE PRICE that will be paid.

Every choice you make will result in something good or bad. As a student who stood in this very auditorium seven years ago, I recall how I felt as a Medart graduate. I wasn't sure about everything but I knew some basic things: I would try to make smart choices, I would stay away from drugs, I would choose friends who were a good influence, I would not fall to peer pressure, I would make an effort in school and respect my teachers, parents, and fellow classmates. Being successful is not as difficult as some may think. It is simply a choice of doing what is right!

When I was in 5th grade, my speech was selected for the SAVE graduation. I remember I was required to identify my short and long term goals. I still have that essay and I want to share with you a few of the goals I established at your age:

"I will have to maintain my grades and continue to study. Getting behind and slacking off will only interfere. My long term goal is to be a great athlete. I will have to stay physically fit, be disciplined, and have the ability to persevere to achieve. Not finishing school and doing drugs would get in the way of my dreams; it would be just plain stupid. Goals are important because they give you something to look forward to, a sense of direction and purpose."

One of my main goals was to make good grades so that I could be admitted to a reputable college and another was to earn an athletic scholarship to play a sport as a Division I athlete. I have achieved both. The journey wasn't always easy but I was determined and well equipped because I listened to good role models – such as Deputy Jones, my teachers, Bobby Pearce, who was my principal, my parents, and my pastor. I stayed away from kids who were troublemakers, who did drugs and those who would only take me down with them. I was wise in the friends I chose and did not waiver.

I remember Deputy Jones telling us that whenever we are approached by somebody who wants us to try drugs or get involved in a gang to walk away and just say no and that sometimes you may have to run! Being strong and saying no is much cooler than being a druggie. Drug users are losers and they achieve nothing in life. You will have to remember this in both middle school and high school. Other kids will want to persuade you to try smoking or drinking but before you give in, think about the consequence! What will the outcome be? How will your parents feel? The consequence for poor choices is always bad! Surround yourself with the right friends. Decide the type of friends you want early and maintain that standard as you will often become just like them. It would be better to have no friends at all than friends that do drugs and get in trouble. Set yourself apart, set a high standard for yourself, don't fall to peer pressure and be proud that you are strong enough to say "no."

WCSO/SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

When I was writing this speech I tried to think of some simple rules you can remember as you begin your journey into middle school which may help you:

- AVOID DRAMA and GOSSIP. Don't get involved in talking bad about others, they always find out.
- GET INVOLVED in a SPORT or CLUB and stay committed.
- STAY in CHURCH or if you don't go to one FIND ONE, maintaining your faith and always having those positive influences will help you when the road gets rough.
- SET REALISTIC SHORT TERM GOALS which will help you reach your LONG TERM GOALS.
- ACCEPT and LOVE YOURSELF just as you are. God made us all different for a reason. When we become discontent with ourselves we seek approval from others and we often make poor choices in friends and activities.
- STAY FOCUSED on your GOALS. Do not allow popularity, looks, partying, and other things that will distract you from your journey to excellence. In seven years it will not matter how popular you were, what clothes you wore, or how good looking you are. The only thing that will matter is if you achieved your goals because again you will be at a crossroad.
- COMMUNICATE, reach out for help if you find yourself struggling with peer pressure or somebody is encouraging you to do drugs or commit a crime. Do not think you can handle it on your own. It takes a stronger person to admit they are feeling weak or tempted than a coward who falls in silence. Talk to your principal, a teacher, and your parents. Later, you will be glad you did.
- STAY HONEST. Being open and honest with your parents and teachers in all things. Often it may appear that lying is easier when you find yourself in trouble but it only digs a more serious hole and your reputation is the most important credential you have in life. Once honesty is broken, people lose respect and respect is very hard to earn back. Start a habit of being honest no matter what regardless of the consequence because it always pays off.
- REPORT students who are involved in drug activity, who are asking you to be a part of a gang or other criminal activity, report any student who is bullying or brings a weapon to school. Principals and the SAVE officers will not tell anybody you reported it. You could save a life!
- RESPECT and CARE for others regardless of their color or background. Be helpful, caring, and kind and many people will like you.

Like you, I am a former Mustang. I'm proud to say I grew up in Wakulla County, that I attended all 13 years of school here and that I was surrounded by teachers and friends that supported me in all of my goals, I could have not done it without their guidance but I also had to be willing to listen!

I could have also not achieved my goals if I had not followed the straight and narrow path. I was strong in not taking a bad turn. Like you, I was at a crossroad and I set out to win the race. I find myself today at the finish line and I am a winner and I want you to be one too! GO MUSTANGS!

Wakulla eyes $3.8M in state projects

But Edwards and Keeler are optimistic. Keeler said the funding will allow the county will enter into contracts with agencies including Fish and Wildlife for a public access boat launch facility at Shell Point; dredging of channels and canals at Shell Point, Spring Creek and Mashas Sands through the Department of Transportation; and paddling trails with kayak and canoe launch projects county wide, including a municipal dock at St. Marks through the Department of Economic Opportunity.

On May 6, Keeler, Commissioner Ralph Thomas and St. Marks City Manager Zoe Mansfield met with governor's budgeting staff to have a detailed discussion on how these projects not only benefit Wakulla County, but have a regional impact as well.

"It all fits in to what the county's been trying to do in the overall scheme of things as part of the adopted infrastructure plan," Edwards said.

The plan, created by the board of commissioners and county staff, details the comprehensive needs assessments and costs of dozens of county projects including aquaculture, trails, boat ramps, bridges, intersections, parks, public facilities, safety, sidewalks and sewers.

"This is not happenstance," Keeler said. "We have a very unified approach with how we're doing things. Moving forward, everything we do ties together.

Edwards said the board adopted the infrastructure plan two years ago.

"We'll update it, take projects off as they're completed, and add projects to it," Edwards said. "This allows us to go to the legislature and granting agencies and show them the plan, which gives them the ability to say, 'Wow, you guys have really thought this out.' It's not some willy-nilly stuff we're throwing out there. With this plan, we're able to react quickly, and that what makes a big difference in dealing with the legislature."

Keeler believes Wakulla County has the best delegation in the state. She said Sen. Bill Montford and Rep. Halsey Beshears have worked closely with the county commission to get the projects into the budget. Now it's just up to the governor.

"We are working hard for this citizens of this county," Keeler said. "Our commissioners are continuing to support these (plans), and reaching out to the governor's office."

Edwards said he was thankful to Commissioners Thomas, Jerry Moore and Randy Merritt, who have made phone calls or worked as legislative liaisons to increase the visibility of needs in Wakulla County.

OUT TO PASTOR

Mothers make good politicians

By JAMES L. SNYDER

In looking forward to Mother's Day, I could not help but think about the mess our country is in right now. Not that messes remind me of mothers in particular, but honesty compels me to admit they are good at cleaning up messes. And the messes they clean up are not their doing.

Anybody who steps outside their house knows that the country is in a terrific mess these days. It would be impossible to blame one political party over another. In this area, everybody is equal.

The truth is, politicians make messes. Furthermore, they leave these messes for other people to clean up.

There are two kinds of politicians in our country. Those who make messes and those who allow those messes to be made. Wouldn't it be nice to find a politician who actually would clean up a mess?

Our country is in the soup, and not the kind of soup your mother used to make. Politicians make soup out of circumstances that nobody can stomach while mothers have a marvelous way of making soup out of almost anything, and it tastes heavenly, plus it is good for you.

Recently, some politicians have been in an uproar and quite nervous over the swine flu situation. And there is good reason. With all the pork in Washington these days, they should be afraid they might catch whatever is going around. Maybe, and I know I'm a little sadistic here, it might be good for a couple of them (OK, all of them) to come down with some kind of flu to send them to their beds for at least a month.

But getting back to my subject, I believe mothers would make wonderful politicians for several reasons. Mothers, generally speaking, know how to ask questions.

"Have you washed behind your ears?"

"What time are you getting back?"

"Do you have clean underwear?"

"If all your friends jumped off a bridge would you?"

It is one thing to ask a question, but it is another thing altogether to ask the right question. I firmly believe asking questions is a highly refined art. Politicians, before they query any audience, take 197 polls to make sure they have the right question so they are not embarrassed.

Mothers, on the other hand, ask questions to embarrass you and put you back on the straight and narrow.

Politicians rarely expect answers to their questions. They are all rhetorical. They ask questions in such a way that nobody in their right mind could ever answer it.

Mothers expect an answer to their questions immediately - without delay.

Question a politician, you get the runaround. Question your mother and she will chase you around.

Another reason mothers would make good politicians is that they never stop until the work is finished. Everybody has heard the old saying, "A man works from sun up to sun down, but a woman's work is never done." At the end of the day, every mother has something to show for her work.

It would be beneficial for our country if every politician were apprenticed to a mother with four or five kids. Let him follow her around for a week, if he can last a week, and he will get some idea of what working is all about.

Let some politician

clean up after four or five kids for a week and experience what real work is all about. Perhaps, if he has to clean up messes of other people's making he might think twice before he makes a mess himself. The only work a politician really does is working his mouth, which rarely accomplishes anything useful.

By her very nature, a mother is always thinking about others. Rarely does she take any time for her own personal pursuits. Other people come before her interest and comfort. Wouldn't that be a wonderful trait in some politician?

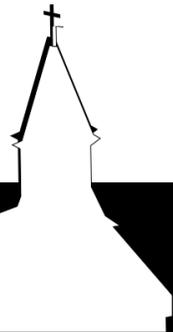

Instead of always thinking about re-election and what can get him re-elected, he begins to think about other people and their needs.

Instead of putting his political career ahead of everything else, he would sacrifice himself to benefit other people, to help clean up the messes around him.

Although it may seem like a good idea, we can't afford to send mothers to Washington and neglect the important work she has at home. Nehemiah said it so well, "I am doing a great work, so that I cannot come down: why should the work cease, whilst I leave it, and come down to you?" (Nehemiah 6:3).

God knew exactly what he was doing when he put together a marvelous creature we now know as Mother.

Robert 'Bob' Lloyd Helen Thomas

Robert 'Bob' Lloyd

Robert "Bob" Lloyd, loving husband, father, and friend, passed away May 6, 2014.

Bob worked in video productions for Health and Family Services for 25 years. He was also the broadcast engineer for WAMF-FAMU for 22 years, and for WFRF-Faith Radio since its inception.

Bob was predeceased by his beloved wife, Tommye P. Lloyd. Survivors include his son, Charles "Chuck" Lloyd (Sarah McGilvary); two grandchildren, Anna Lloyd and Lydia Lloyd; a sister, Charlotte Baughman (Bruce); and a nephew, David Baughman.

A private memorial service will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers donations may be made to Faith Radio Network Inc., P.O. Box 181000 Tallahassee FL 32318 or Lighthouse Children's Home, 7771 Mahan Dr. Tallahassee FL 32309.

Bevis Funeral Home, Harvey-Young Chapel in Crawfordville is assisting the family with arrangements (850-926-3333 or bevisfh.com).

Covenant Hospice to celebrate National Nurses Week

Special to The News

Every year, National Nurses Week focuses attention on the diverse ways America's 3.1 million nurses work to save lives and to improve the health of millions of individuals.

This year, the American Nurses Association (ANA) has selected "Nurses Leading the Way" as the theme for 2014.

Annually, National Nurses Week begins on May 6, marked as RN Recognition Day, and ends on May 12, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, founder of nursing as a modern profession.

During this week, nurses at Covenant Hospice will be honored for providing excellence in end-of-life care.

Covenant Hospice nurses are specially trained in pain management techniques that help to alleviate the suffering often associated with a life-limiting illness. Nurses make regularly-scheduled visits, educate patient and families and provide skilled patient care.

Additionally, nurses direct and supervise teams of specially trained hospice aides who provide many personal care services for Covenant patients.

Traditionally, National Nurses Week is devoted to highlighting the diverse ways in which nurses, who comprise the largest health care profession, are working to improve health care.

From bedside nursing in hospitals and long-term care facilities to the halls of research institutions, state legislatures, and Congress, the depth and breadth of the nursing profession is meeting the expanding health care needs of American society.

Covenant Hospice is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to providing comprehensive, compassionate services to patients and loved ones during times of life-limiting illnesses.

For more information about Covenant Hospice or to make a hospice inquiry, contact the local branch office at 575-4998 or visit www.covenant-hospice.org.

The un-dead might describe a survivor with debilitating grief

By TRACY RENEE LEE

Recently, I have noticed a long list of movies, books and television series that focus on the un-dead, the living dead or the zombie pseudo dead.

As I have watched these topically based productions, I have been intrigued by the similarities of these half-dead, half-living persons compared to a survivor who is caught in a continual cycle of debilitating grief.

When a person is caught in a cycle of grief that continues for an extended period, we say that he or she is experiencing "complicated grief."

In other words, the grief cycle seems to have trapped him or her, significantly retarding their recovery time table and negatively affecting their ability to re-enter normal functionality.

One wonders why one individual over another, finds him or herself unable to recover from a loss and exit the grief experience. Quite possibly, one does not ever recover completely from the loss of someone they love. They simply adjust their life's existence, enabling them to survive without the debilitating ache that finds its way into their hearts once loss has occurred.

Generally, when one finds him or herself in this extended state of grief, we recommend that they enter grief counseling or in extreme cases, psychotherapy. The advantages of counseling or therapy are that the professional grief advocate can intervene, and help the survivor identify habits that have trapped him or her into this undesirable state of non-recovery.

This undesirable psychological state seems to hold these unfortunate survivors hostage as the un-dead, a state of mind where they exist, but they do not experience. Prolonged existence such as this will eventually land the grief stricken person into a state of serious depression and eventually psychosis.

At this juncture, the depressed individual truly needs and should benefit from psychotherapy.

A qualified psychotherapist can help the grief-trapped individual identify habits and cycles of behavior that are inconducive to grief recovery. The counselor or psychotherapist can set into practice a positive growth experience; possibly yielding a sound recovery plan, that the survivor has been unable to identify, or obtain on his or her own. If the survivor has been trapped in this cycle for years on end, recovery may be a slow and complicated process. Their psychotherapist may utilize the benefits of prescription therapy to enable and enhance the recovery process.

If you find you have a friend or loved one trapped in the zombie pseudo experience of complicated grief, love and understanding may not have been enough to help them recover.

It may be time to suggest something more substantial for their grief experience. Grief counseling or psychotherapy may be of great benefit to them.

Lynn Wright.

Brooke Brown, Karolyn Lewis and Lewis Pollard did an excellent job as the mistresses and master of ceremonies. Bri Marin and Jessica Howell wowed us with their vocal talent.

The Blessings in a Backpack Team provided the concessions again this year. Blessings in a Backpack is a unique program that is designed to feed students who are at risk of having little or no food on the weekends. The pageant committee appreciates the opportunity to work with such a program.

Special thanks to our sponsors as well as in-kind donations from the following businesses: Carolyn Kent-31 Gifts, Capital City Bank, Hamaknocker's BBQ, Whaley Photography, The Little Black Dress, and Sundance.

Committee Members include: Cami Bernales, Brooke Brown, Suzanne Camp, Molly Clore, Michelle Davis, Pamela Davis, Sara Daw, Candace Hicks, Tara Kieser, Amber McIver, Elena Myhre, Nicole Singleton, Vickie Whaley, and Sally Wheeler.

We enjoyed working with this great group of young ladies and seeing what the future of Wakulla County holds. We would like to thank our families and Wakulla County for their support in making the pageant a success.

Gym open at Community Center

NICOLE ZEMA

The Sheriff's Office Athletic League has begun at the Wakulla One Stop Community Center gym for sports activities. The gym is open from 4 to 7 p.m. Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays through the early summer. WCSO staff will provide mentoring services, discuss substance abuse, anger management and making good choices in life. The youth have taken advantage of the program as more than 20 youth showed up on May 9 and more than 40 attended May 7. The program is open to males and females. ## Notice local carnivorous plants

By ELEANOR DIETRICH
Florida Wildflower Association

State Road 65 through the Apalachicola National Forest in nearby Liberty County is known for its many kinds of carnivorous (insect eating) plants. Two of these can be seen blooming now — the Dewthread sundew (Drosera tracyi) and the Parrot pitcher plant (Sarracenia psittacina). They both get their common names from the shape of their leaves — can you tell why? The Dewthread sundew has tall thin leaves full of sticky hair-like glands that catch small insects. The "beak" on the leaf of the parrot pitcher plant has an opening that small insects like ants crawl in to get a sweet substance, then aren't able to find their way out.

If you are driving on 65, the dewthread sundews are in many places all along the roadside. Forest Road 117 is a good place to pull off and walk south towards the wildflower sign where you will find both of these plants. Forest Road 117 is 8 miles south of T&P Foods which is in south Hosford on SR 65.

A good place to see the parrot pitcher plants is by Forest Road 141 about 15 miles south of the T&P Foods store, (a little less than 12 miles from the north boundary of the national forest) but they are sprinkled all along the roadside, too.

For your safety, pull off into one of the side roads instead of parking along the edge of SR 65. Please remember that it is illegal to pick or dig plants in the national forest. Take only photos and let others enjoy the beauty.

Eleanor works for the Florida Wildflower Foundation as a liaison between the Panhandle Wildflower Alliance and the Florida Department of Transportation.

Memorial Day event will be at courthouse

Special to The News

On Monday, May 26, the Wakulla County Board of County Commissioners will observe Memorial Day at an opening ceremony at 10 a.m. in front of the County Courthouse. This Memorial is dedicated to the lasting memory and sacred honor of the brave American servicemen and servicewomen who gave their lives for our Country and a special emphasis of Wakulla County's own heroes.

This year's ceremony includes keynote speaker Commissioner Ralph Thomas and will highlight patriotic music, laying of the wreath, and raising of the flag.

"I would like to encourage everyone to remember the sacrifices of veterans who have fought for our freedom and hope each can do so by attending our ceremony on Monday, May 26th," said County Administrator David Edwards.

Kids fishing is Saturday

Special to The News

The Wakulla Children's Fishing Tournament will be May 17 from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Wooley Park, and is open to boys and girls ages 3-15. The tournament is free to all children with lunch provided.

Children can also enjoy games, rides and exhibits.

Trophies will be awarded after weigh-in from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Children may fish from a boat, or another legal fishing site, including Mashers Sands Pier, Otter Lake and Woolley Park. For more information, contact David Moody at 925-6121, or Bruce Ashley at 745-7162.

War Eagles' playoff hopes end with 8-7 loss to Mosley

By DAVID MONTEZ
Special to The News

Going into the 5A Regional quarterfinal baseball game on May 1, the Wakulla War Eagles were riding an eight game win streak and are a record of 15-1 in their last 16 games.

Their opponent, the Mosley Dolphins (24-3), came into the game with a similar amount of momentum with a record of 12-2 in their past 14 games. In a game that was stretched into extra innings and multiple shifts in momentum, fans in attendance of the game were audience to a game worthy of the teams' records with the War Eagles just falling short in the 10th 8-7.

After being blanked by Wakulla starting pitcher and team leader in wins (5) Kaleb Atkins (Sr.) in the first inning, the Mosley Dolphins jumped out to an early 4-1 lead scoring 2 runs in the second and third innings. In the fourth, Mosley moved runners into scoring position at third and first with no outs.

This ended the day for Atkins after giving up five earned runs on just five hits over three complete innings. Head Coach Mike Gauger brought Junior Bailey Metcalf, team ERA leader (0.38 in 18.2 innings), in for relief who was able to close out the third inning with only one other run scoring on an infield error. Metcalf kept the War Eagles in the game holding the Dolphins to just three runs and four hits over the remaining seven innings of the game.

Despite being down 6-1 going into the bottom of the fourth, Wakulla was able to rally back against Mosley's hard throwing starter Andrew Deramo.

A single by catcher Jake Webb started the fourth for Wakulla. After a fielding error put runners at first and second, junior Brandon Geiger tripled scoring two. Sophomore Nick Lentz followed up with a single scoring Geiger making it 6-4 and knocking out Deramo, who allowed 3 earned runs over 3.1 innings.

After Metcalf shut down the Dolphins in the fifth, an infield single by Webb plated senior Bryan Nichols to narrow the score to 6-5.

Mosley was able to tack on another run making it 7-5 going into the bottom of the sixth.

Finally with a runner on, senior James Estes, team-batting leader (.481), smashed a 2-run home run to left-field to tie the game 7-7.

Metcalf and Mosley's Weston Bizzle, who sports an impressive 0.53 ERA over 62.1 innings, traded shut-out innings until the 10th.

Both teams were able to threaten with runners in scoring position over the three innings but were not able to break through until the 10th.

Deploying a little small ball, the Dolphins were able to position a runner on third with one out through a sacrifice bunt. An infield fly accounted for the second out, but Wakulla's luck finally ran out as a ground ball single dribbled into center field scoring the decisive final run making it 8-7.

The War Eagles were unable to muster a second comeback in the bottom of the 10th.

The hard-fought loss brought an end to a remarkable season for the Wakulla War Eagles who rebounded from a disheartening first seven games of the season going 1-6 to go undefeated in district play and take to the brink the now FHSAA third-ranked baseball team in Florida.

Lady War Eagles fall to Mosley, 3-1, to end season

Michael Cooper swings for the fences in the first inning.

Staff Report

The Wakulla Lady War Eagles traveled to Lynn Haven on May 3 for the regional semifinal against the Mosley Dolphins, but lost a tough game 3-1.

The Lady War Eagles score came on a solo home run by Michael Cooper in the top of the first inning. Mosley tied it in the bottom with a single through the infield to score a run.

Lady War Eagle pitcher Meghan Sarvis off the scoreboard until the fourth, when a bloop single scored two runs.

Despite the best efforts of the Lady War Eagles, they couldn't tack on any more runs.

Local elementary and middle school students have participated in the Annual Wakulla County 4-H Tropicana Public Speaking Contest. Wakulla Christian School student Zoe' Doler won the sixth grade division with her speech "Don't Judge a Book by its Cover" and Medart Elementary student Molly Jones won the fourth and fifth grade division with her speech "Girls are Smarter than Boys".

The contest was held at the UF/IFAS Wakulla County Extension arena on April 24. The 16 contestants were chosen by their respective schools after winning classroom, and the school level competitions.

The 4-H Tropicana speech program is designed to provide students the opportunity to develop their public speaking skills while meeting Florida's state standards in the language arts. This event is sponsored by Tropicana and the UF/IFAS 4-H Program, and supported by the Wakulla County School System.

The 2014 judges were Mike

Plummer, WFSU - TV producer and director, Doyle Hill, local rancher and state livestock inspector, and Will Woodley, information technology specialist with the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

The winners of the Wakulla County competition will receive a $230 scholarship funded by Tropicana to attend the 4-H Camp of their choosing. The winners will also have the opportunity to compete in the Tropicana District Public Speaking Competition May 15 at the Leon County Extension Office.

Free student sports physicals offered May 17

Special to The News

Wakulla's health care providers are teaming up to offer free sports physicals to local student athletes on Saturday, May 17 from 9:00 am to 1:00 pm. These medical evaluations will satisfy the annual requirements of the Florida High School Athletic Association (FHSA).

Students who plan to participate on athletic teams (or cheerlead) at the high school - or either middle school - during the 2014-2015 school year may take part. NJROTC cadets, Scouts, summer campers, Special Olympians, and other students who need pre-participation physicals will be accommodated as well. Students with no primary care provider or no health insurance are especially encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity.

The physicals will be offered at Tallahassee Memorial's Family Medicine Office at 15 Council Moore Road. This medical office is located south of the County Courthouse on the east side of Crawfordville Highway. Several other local clinicians will be participating, not just providers with this practice.

Student athletes should check with their coaches to find out what time they should report to Tallahassee Memorial's Family Medicine Office. In general, students playing football at Wakulla High School should report between 9 and 10, student athletes at Riversprings and Wakulla Middle Schools between 10 and 11, and all other Wakulla High School athletes between 11 and 12. Families with children attending two schools may choose the most convenient slot for both students.

The medical evaluations on May 17 will include a history, a vision check, measurements of height, weight, heart rate, and blood pressure, and a physical exam by a licensed physician (or PA/ARNP). A parent or guardian's signature is required so parents must either accompany their child or the student must bring the FHSA form with a parent's signature on it. The form is available at the schools or online at: <http://www.fhsaa.org/forms/general-forms/general-eligibility/e12>

Local health care providers are offering free physicals to prevent any student who wants to play sports (or cheerlead) from being denied an opportunity to participate because they lack a family doctor, health insurance, or the ability to pay. In addition to local clinicians, nurses, allied health professionals, clerical staff, and other volunteers will be assisting. All of these professionals are donating their time to provide this free community service.

For more information or to volunteer, please contact Lynn Artz (320-2158; lynn\_artz@hotmail.com) or Tanya English (850-926-0065 X 253 office; Tanya.English@wcsb.us).

HOME ON THE RANGE

Different loads in .38 revolvers

By MARJ LAW

Got a .38-caliber revolver? Then, when you shop for ammunition, you ask for .38-caliber rounds. Right?

Well, you'll want to choose the type of .38 rounds best for the way you want to shoot.

You can find .38 rounds with lead tips or "clad" tips. You can find .38s with "+P" and you can find "wadcutters."

And .357 revolvers can also shoot these 38 loads.

Each different load handles differently when you shoot the gun.

So, when Joe and I went to the Wakulla County Sheriff's Office Range last Tuesday, we shot some of these different loads in a Taurus snub-nosed .357 with a 2-inch barrel, a Smith & Wesson snub-nosed 2-inch barrel model 36, a Smith & Wesson K-38 Masterpiece with a 6-inch barrel and a Ruger Security Six which, like the Taurus, can shoot either a .38 or a .357 load. It has a 4-inch barrel.

First, I loaded three wadcutters in each gun.

Using a 1-5 scale with 1 meaning easy and 5 meaning difficult, I shot each gun. On the 1-5 scale, I considered each revolver for easy of use, trigger pull, kick, and satisfaction. For satisfaction, 5 was the highest degree of satisfaction.

As I suspected, having shot wadcutters before, all the guns were fairly easy to handle. For ease of use, they all got a 1 for being very easy. Trigger pull on the Ruger and the Taurus were both 1s as well.

Trigger pull on the K-38 was set really light, so it received a .5, and the S&W model 36 had a hair trigger, so it also rated a .5. The trigger pull is sometimes adjusted, according to the owner, so this rating does depend how your gun is set and

	Lead	Clad	Wad	+P	.357
Ease	1.5	1.5	1	1	1
Trigger	1.5	2	1	1	1
Kick	2	2.5	1.5	2.5	3.5
Satis.	2.5	2.5	5	2.5	1.5

	Lead	Clad	Wad	+P	.357
Ease	1.5	1.5	1	1	n/a
Trigger	1.5	2	1	1	n/a
Kick	2	2.5	1.5	2.75	n/a
Satis.	2.5	3	3	1.5	n/a

	Lead	Clad	Wad	+P	.357
Ease	2	1.5	1	1	n/a
Trigger	1.5	1	.5	1	n/a
Kick	2.5	1.5	1	2.75	n/a
Satis.	2.5	3	3	1.5	n/a

	Lead	Clad	Wad	+P	.357
Ease	2	2	1	n/a	n/a
Trigger	2.5	2	1	n/a	n/a
Kick	2.5	2.75	2	n/a	n/a
Satis.	2.5	2.5	3.5	n/a	n/a

what springs you put in.

For me, liking a smooth action with little kick, the kick question is most important.

Both the Ruger and the K-38 are somewhat heavy guns. The Ruger got a 1.5 and the K-38 got a 1 for kick.

The snub-nosed revolvers are lighter, and lighter guns tend to kick more. The S&W 36 got a 1.5 and the Taurus got a 2.

For a generalization, I like wadcutters the best because the kick is very light, and they made shooting easy. Wadcutters were made for match/target shooting with lower powder amounts which gives lower velocity. They also give fat round holes in your target, which are easy to see and are very satisfying. Because of the low kick, you are more likely to retain your "sight picture," and therefore your next shot will be more accurate. When you see a tight grouping on your target, you feel like a good shot! This is a great morale booster for practice and chicken-kick shooters.

It seems that the clad bullets had more kick than the lead bullets. Except for the K-38. I'm not certain why! Go figure!

The +Ps gave more kick in all the guns. +P is a defense load and more powerful. The +P has more powder than a standard 38 special. Naturally, the load in itself is not the only criteria for liking a gun. Smaller and lighter guns tend to have more kick, and are not so good at distances as larger and heavier ones. So I enjoy the heavy guns for target shooting, and the smaller, lighter ones for self-defense.

The grips on the K-38 were really too large for my hand, and I had a difficult time seeing the black sights on the S&W model 36 snub nose. Its trigger pull was too loose for my liking, as well. But it shot very accurately.

The Taurus Model 605 with a 2" barrel had a screw that came off during shooting. I was unable to try the +P load or the 357 load in it because we could not locate that tiny screw! Next time, Joe's going to replace the screw using blue Loctite!

In conclusion, all the guns shot very accurately at the 7-yard target setting. I like the Ruger best because it is a heavier gun with a longer barrel than those snub-nosed revolvers. The longer barrel and the wadcutters made shooting more accurate and fun. I like the Ruger with wadcutters.

For chicken-kick shooting!

Free Wilderness Film Fest at Apalachicola National Forest

Special to The News

The U.S. Forest Service is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Wilderness Act with a family-friendly film at the Trout Pond Recreation Area on Friday, May 16 from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Haven Cook, recreation planner with the National Forest in Florida will introduce a stunning new film on the Tongass National Forest Wilderness Areas and several short videos that focus on the importance of this uniquely American idea.

"The Meaning of Wild" is a half hour documentary film that takes viewers on a journey through one of our nation's wildest landscapes, the Tongass National Forest of Southeast Alaska.

The film follows wildlife cameraman Ben Hamilton as he travels by boat, plane, kayak and foot to capture and share the true value of Wilderness.

The Film Festival is free and will take place at the Trout Pond Recreation Area located on Springhill Road in Tallahassee.

Attendees are encouraged to bring flashlights, insect spray, and blankets or lawn chairs; and are welcome to use all facilities.

For more information about this event please contact the Wakulla District Office Ranger Station at (850) 926-3561 or email chandrabort@fs.fed.us.

Soldiers in fishing program will come to Wakulla May 17

Staff Report

Warriors and Quiet Waters will welcome a group of heroes as they arrive in Wakulla County on Saturday, May 17, at 1:30 p.m. in Hudson Park.

If possible, please bring an American flag or make up a welcome sign. Let's show this group genuine Southern hospitality!

Warriors and Quiet Waters is a non-profit organization that provides wounded soldiers from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan a trip to our county for a week of fishing and relaxation as they work to recover from war-related injuries.

These soldiers came back to our country in need of medical attention and in many cases never received a welcome home from their communities.

Past groups of soldiers said the welcome to our county overwhelmed them with emotion as they were driven through the crowd of citizens.

Please come out and let this group know how thankful we are for their sacrifice for us.

Coast Guard Auxiliary Reports

By Carolyn Brown Treadon

This past week-end was Mother's Day. While it may not seem that this day has much to do with the Auxiliary, there is a very strong connection.

The Auxiliary is an organization of roughly 32,156 members. We are demographically very close to the Active Duty Coast Guard in many respects.

While we are significantly older than the average Coastie, we are approximately 85 percent men and 15 percent women.

That means for many of our male members, there is a wife, mother or significant other who is involved in the Auxiliary.

A members commitment to join the Coast Guard Auxiliary not only affects them, but their family.

Many members have a family and being in the Auxiliary is a commitment from the entire family to support our mission.

During this time of year that we all take time to reflect on the important women in our lives - mothers, grandmothers, aunts and mentors/friends.

Members of Flotilla 12 would like to send a very special thank you to the many women who are members and spouses/significant others to our members for your continued support of our organization.

May is also an important time in the boating community - National Safe Boating Week is fast approaching.

Check back next week for some helpful tips for safe boating.

Our members are available to assist area boaters with complimentary Vessel Examinations, and scheduling Boat Safety Courses.

Underwater Wakulla

By Gregg Stanton

An alien world.

While preparing for my summer curriculum to teach Family Diving, I inquired into the expectation of our young diving candidates. What I found was fascinating.

Many of our kids see our world through the virtual imagination of others. They know, for example, about coral because the TV or a book had a picture of one and called it coral. This same learning tool has a wide variety of science fiction crowding into the same educational time frame.

They accept these creatures because they have seen pictures. And what is portrayed as from another world is called alien. Is coral a group of alien creatures?

James Cameron, the film director of "Titanic" and "Avatar," is also an ocean explorer. He recently gave a TED talk last October regarding his passion in which he said his drive to explore and document the ocean is because it was an alien world.

He argued this underwater world is poorly understood but relatively easy to study considering we humans don't need to travel through the vacuum of space to get there. The creatures in this ocean are as strange as any other alien creatures in that they exist in a very different environment, not easily occupied by us humans.

The physics of an environment 800 times denser than on dry land, creates evolutionary adaptations of its occupants that are as alien as any portrayed on Star Trek, Star Wars, or other science fiction virtual reality show, except that they are real. And more to the point, we can visit most them.

My basic scuba training requires an early motivational message when offered to universities. In the past, I have focused on a reality that if you want to join NASA or other space agencies (and many do), then learning to dive is a pre-requisite since they all must train in the neutral gravity simulator. This facility is a huge pool that contains a replica of the Space Shuttle, and the Space Station underwater. Astronauts don a space suit and must perform their missions underwater that they expect to perform in space. I have trained graduate students who are seriously applying for the mission to Mars! But something was missing when I focused on the younger generations in my Family Diving classes.

An alien is a creature that is different from what we recognize from our surroundings. Wikipedia spends much of its talent on defining the film "Aliens" (also by Cameron) before defining an alien as extraterrestrial life (not of this earth). I suspect we think of extraterrestrial as not of this land.

Last week I began my Family Diving class by introducing aliens (in picture form) that my young students will meet in person later this summer. What was to be a short motivation statement became a discussion. All the challenges of mastering water physics and human physiology now had a reason, not to satisfy their parents to try out something new, but to become explorers into an alien world.

In an expanding USA population, recent statistics portray our world of divers as shrinking. There are more divers in the age group from 45 to 70 than in the age group from 18 to 45. Dive shops are routinely failing. We are down to two in a 100-mile radius. We entertain many more older divers at our facility than younger ones. Our spearfishing tournament this weekend is untested!

We older divers have become accustomed to the aliens we encounter in the underwater world and do not generate the thrill of exploration we once had when younger. Perhaps, we as a diving community have lost the reason for the training: preparing the next generation of underwater explorers, not selling equipment. There is still hope. I have four opportunities, Family Diving classes on the books!

Swimming pool safety tips

Special to The News

Water safety is an important topic year-round in Florida. Children and adults should be aware of the steps necessary to stay safe. There have been numerous drownings and near drownings in Florida in recent weeks. Below are some important water and swimming pool safety tips.

• When near the water, watch children with constant, undivided attention. Do not become distracted with things such as text messaging, talking on the phone or yard work. Have a designated pool watcher keep an eye on swimmers at all times.

• Watching your children is just as important when everyone is indoors. Children are curious, creative and innovative; they can quickly figure out how to get outside and water can pique their interest. For this reason it is important to have several layers of protection between children and the pool.

• Safety devices that are available include a mesh barrier fence, self-closing and self-latching gate, alarms - for doors and windows and for detection in and around the pool, personal immersion alarms, certified safety covers, and life rings and shepherd's hooks.

• Do not leave anything near the fence that a child could use to climb over it and remove steps to above ground pools when not in use.

• Learn to swim and enroll children in swimming lessons - survival classes can start as early as six months old.

• Learn CPR and keep emergency phone numbers posted in the pool area.

While a backyard swimming pool is an obvious place to be practicing water safety, don't forget that bathtubs, lakes or ponds, inflatable kiddie pools and the beach are all on the list.

Additional pool rules and safety tips are available at www.floridapoolpro.com or upon request.

Law Enforcement and Courts reports

Sheriff's Report

On Friday, May 2, Deputy Vicki Mitchell and Sgt. Ray Johnson investigated a business burglary at the Stow Away Center in Crawfordville. Gerard Merkle of Tallahassee, the owner of the business, reported that he was notified by the Leon County Sheriff's Office that his vehicle was recovered in southern Leon. It is valued at $3,500. A forced entry was discovered at the business. A boat was also recovered in Leon County with the stolen truck. A boat motor was stolen from the boat prior to it being recovered. The motor is valued at $20,000. The boat is owned by Jeff May of Carrollton, Ga. A boat motor was also stolen from Branko Stefanovic of Tallahassee. And another boat motor was stolen from Lawrence Walker III of Kathleen, Ga. A trailer stolen recovered at the scene is owned by Molly Jones of Shell Point. The trailer is valued at $2,300. The stolen items were entered into the NCIC/FCIC data base. Detective Derek Lawhon also investigated.

In other activity reported by the Wakulla County Sheriff's Office this week:

THURSDAY, MAY 1

- Patricia Mims of Crawfordville reported a credit card offense. Three unauthorized charges were observed on the victim's bank card. The charges were created in Washington and Arizona and totaled $125. Sgt. Ray Johnson investigated.

- Deputy Adam Pendris investigated a battery reported at the Wakulla County Jail. A 34-year-old Crawfordville jail inmate was struck by Amanda Suzanne Davis, 24, of Crawfordville with a shoe. The victim was struck several times by the suspect until other inmates broke up the altercation. Davis was charged with battery by a person detained in a jail facility. Detention Deputy Randy Barnes also investigated.

- Principal Susan Brazier of Shadeville Elementary School reported a weapon offense. The principal took a knife blade from a 12-year-old student. The knife blade was nine inches in length and was located in a book. It was displayed in front of other students. The juvenile was issued a juvenile civil citation for carrying the concealed weapon. He also faces discipline from the school district. Sgt. Billy Jones investigated.

- Frances Barker of Crawfordville reported a vehicle burglary. A wallet was removed from an unsecured car. The missing items are valued at $130. Deputy Ross Hasty investigated.

- Tonya Harrell of Crawfordville reported a vehicle theft. The victim observed a door partially open and discovered that someone rummaged through the vehicle. Nothing was reported missing. Deputy Gibby Gibson investigated.

FRIDAY, MAY 2

- Gail Nance of Crawfordville reported a grand theft. Jewelry was taken from the victim's residence. The jewelry is valued at $2,700 and a suspect has been identified. Deputy Ward Kromer investigated.

- Bobby Dugger of Crawfordville reported a vehicle fire on Crawfordville Highway. A piece of land clearing equipment caught fire. The tractor was a complete loss following a mechanical failure. It was valued at $35,000. Wakulla County Firefighters put out the blaze. Deputy Ward Kromer investigated.

- Wesley Faircloth of Crawfordville reported a vehicle burglary. The victim was away from the vehicle for a short time when he discovered that the truck had been entered. Items were removed from the unsecured vehicle including cash, a knife, keys and medications. The stolen property is valued at $120. Deputy Matt Helms investigated.

SATURDAY, MAY 3

On May 3, Michael Rosselot of Crawfordville reported a credit card offense. Two unauthorized charges were observed by the victim on his bank account. The two charges totaled $100 and were created in California. Deputy Vicki Mitchell investigated.

- Sgt. Jeremy Johnston and Deputy Matt Hedges reported taking possession of an iPod in Panacea. The property was turned over to Deputy Roy Gunnarsson during the Blue Crab Festival. Deputy Hedges was unable to locate the owner and the property was turned into the Property and Evidence Division.

SUNDAY, MAY 4

- Sgt. Ryan Muse conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle for leaving the roadway twice. A 16-year-old male was driving the vehicle and the teenager only had a learner's permit. The odor of cannabis was reportedly coming from the vehicle and Sgt. Muse located marijuana after being granted permission to search the vehicle. The teenager was issued a juvenile civil citation for possession of less than 20 grams of cannabis and was issued 40 hours of community service. The marijuana weighed five grams. The vehicle was returned to the subject's parents.

- The clerk at the Kangaroo Express in Wakulla Station reported a retail theft. A customer pumped gas into a vehicle but he failed to pay when finished. Evidence was collected at the scene. The gas was valued at $20. Deputy Vicki Mitchell investigated.

MONDAY, MAY 5

- Principal Dod Walker of Sopchoppy Second Chance School reported a school disruption. A 15-year-old female refused to go to In-School Suspension as required. She was disruptive in ISS and refused to stay in the classroom. Deputy Joe Page gave the student a notice to appear in court for interfering with the school administration function. She was turned over to her mother who came from Tallahassee to pick her up.

- Frances Collinsworth of Crawfordville reported a vehicle burglary. Medications were stolen from inside her unsecured vehicle. The medications are valued at $150. Deputy Ross Hasty investigated.

- Deputy Stephen Simmons observed a vehicle driving at 30 miles per hour in a 55 miles per hour zone on Spring Creek Highway. The vehicle was observed driving over the center line and over the fog line. A traffic stop was conducted and it was discovered that the driver had an active warrant out of Brevard County. Charles Cecil Brown, 65, of Tallahassee was arrested on the warrant out of Brevard. Gregory Antonio Jackson, 33, of Tallahassee was arrested for possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana as Deputy Ross Hasty discovered the marijuana in his pocket. The marijuana weighed 1.1 grams. Both Brown and Jackson were transported to the Wakulla County Jail without incident.

- Kathryn Wilson of Crawfordville reported a vehicle burglary. The victim left her purse in the unsecured vehicle and $100 was stolen from her wallet. Deputy Ross Hasty investigated.

- Jennifer Mott of Crawfordville reported a fraud. Two unauthorized charges were observed on her bank account. The charges were made at a Target in Panama City. The charges totaled $947. Lt. Mike Kemp investigated.

- Wal-Mart Asset Protection staff reported a retail theft. Fawn Marie Keith, 23, of Carrabelle was allegedly observed putting items in her purse that she failed to purchase. The personal items were valued at $58. Keith was issued a notice to appear in court for retail theft. Deputy Ross Hasty investigated.

- Michelle Feigeles Weltman of Crawfordville reported an animal incident. The victim reported being bit by one of her animals as she was attempting to separate two dogs from fighting. The victim reported 11 puncture wounds in her arms and legs. Wakulla Animal Control was called to the scene to quarantine the dog for 10 days. The victim was transported to the hospital by Wakulla EMS. Deputy Adam Pendris investigated.

TUESDAY, MAY 6

- Wal-Mart Asset Protection reported a retail theft. Latravia Thurston, 20, of Tallahassee was allegedly observed taking items and placing them in her purse. She attempted to leave the store without paying for them. Two shower curtains and a shower liner, valued at $56, were recovered. Thurston was issued a notice to appear in court for retail theft and a trespass warning was issued by the store for her as well. Deputy Ross Hasty investigated.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 7

- A concerned citizen reported observing a subject attempting to remove an air conditioning unit from an old crab house in Panacea. The theft was unsuccessful and a description of the vehicle and subject was given to WCSO Communications for release to other law enforcement. The WCSO was unable to contact the property owner due to a disconnected phone. Deputy Vicki Mitchell investigated.

The Wakulla County Sheriff's Office received 1,192 calls for service during the past week including 19 residential and business alarms; 88 citizen contacts; 11 disturbances; 24 E-911 calls; 57 investigations; 58 medical emergencies; 25 school security checks; 30 special details; 17 suspicious vehicles; 50 traffic enforcements; 124 traffic stops; 15 disabled vehicles 13 reckless vehicles; and 17 wanted people.

School Resource Officers focus on helping kids

Special to The News

Monday morning arrives and Wakulla County school students scramble out of their buses and family vehicles to beat the first bell of the morning. The bus drivers and dozens of other motorists are all on some sort of a time schedule and everyone seems to be running a few minutes behind.

Beating the tardy bell creates a little early morning chaos that quickly quiets down for students as they settle in for the day.

But the students have one constant each day as they fill the hallways and head to their classrooms to start another day. There is a green uniformed deputy sheriff who is ready to perform myriad tasks to keep the student body, the teachers and staff safe.

Wakulla County Sheriff's Office School Resource Officers greet students and staff and make sure that their day remains constantly uneventful. Sheriff Charlie Creel and Superintendent of Schools Bobby Pearce share the cost of law enforcement presence at Wakulla High School, Wakulla Middle School, Riversprings Middle School and Sopchoppy Second Chance School.

When both the sheriff and superintendent were new to their positions they agreed to form a partnership between law enforcement and education to provide a safe learning environment for the district's approximately 5,000 students.

Sheriff Creel has assigned Sgt. Billy Jones SRO supervisor. Sgt. Jones works directly with Deputy Scott Rojas who serves as the Wakulla High School SRO.

The SROs want the students to feel comfortable enough with the law enforcement presence that they can speak to deputies about any subject.

SRO Deputy Evelyn Brown handles Wakulla Middle School as her home base and also addresses concerns at Medart and Crawfordville elementary schools as the need arises.

SRO Deputy Nick Boutwell is assigned to Riversprings Middle School and handles issues as they arise at Shadeville and Riversink elementary schools.

SRO Deputy Joe Page works out of the Sopchoppy Second Chance School.

Lt. Bruce Ashley and Deputy Richard Moon also serve as SROs if one of the regular SROs is out of the school for the day.

Sgt. Jones said he loves being able to help students who may be facing a crisis by sharing his own life experiences. The other side of the SRO coin is security and protection of the students and employees. Sgt. Jones is in a unique position where he also has exposure to students through the Ounce of Prevention Grant and the Police Athletic League.

"It's rewarding to be able to counsel the students and offer some sort of advice," he said. "Through the Police Athletic League we will not only give youths a chance to play sports but we will also take time to address issues of the youth today such as conflict resolution, anger management, substance abuse, making good choices, self esteem and becoming a role model."

When Sgt. Jones served as the SRO at Wakulla High School he stationed his patrol vehicle by the student parking lot exit and required all of the students who drove past him to leave school to wear their seatbelts for safety.

"The students understood that they could not leave the parking lot without wearing their seatbelt," he said. "We want to start them young and build a habit of wearing their seatbelt."

Jones relates two stories of his seatbelt successes involving traffic crashes with high school students. The first traffic crash was a vehicle roll-over involving two male students on Rehwinkel Road. The vehicle flipped but the students were able to walk away from the crash without injuries because they were wearing their seatbelts.

"When I arrived at the scene they came up to me and said, 'Deputy Jones we were wearing our seatbelts,' so it had an impact on them."

The second traffic crash involved a female student who survived her accident because she was wearing her seatbelt.

"She came back to me and told me the Florida Highway Patrol Trooper who worked her crash said the only reason she survived the crash is because she was wearing her seatbelt. She came back and told me I trained her that year. Those are pretty powerful reminders of the impact SROs have on our students," Jones said.

SRO Scott Rojas has spent an entire high school student cycle at WHS as the freshman class he started with graduates this year.

He admits that dealing with the issues of more than 1,000 teenagers has its challenges but the reward is helping our youths stay on track.

"I love working with the kids and to be able to ensure the safety of school is very rewarding," said Rojas. "You meet a lot of people, parents, and teachers and have lots of contacts with the public."

Sheriff's office holds annual Law Appreciation Day

Special to The News

Wakulla County Sheriff Charlie Creel recognized the efforts of several staff members during the annual Law Appreciation Day luncheon Friday, May 9 at the Wakulla Community Center.

The 2014 honorees came from five agency divisions representing: Law Enforcement; Detention; Communications; Civilian Employees; and Volunteerism.

The Law Enforcement Officer of the Year award was given to Detective Derek Lawhon and Sgt. Jeremy Johnston. Detective Lawhon joined the WCSO in 2009 as a Detention Deputy. He transferred to the Road Patrol Division and was later assigned to the Criminal Investigations Division where he handles property crimes. He has done an outstanding job recovering stolen property so that the goods can be returned to their rightful owner.

Detective Lawhon recently assisted Road Patrol Sgt. Jeremy Johnston in conducting a traffic stop that led to the arrest of a suspect who was in possession of more than two kilograms of cocaine and $125,000 in cash on the Woodville Highway.

Sgt. Johnston joined the WCSO in 2007 as a Detention Deputy. He has also served the agency in the Road Patrol Division, Criminal Investigations and Narcotics. Sgt. Johnston has been an integral part of training new deputies to safely serve Wakulla County. He is a former Staff Sergeant in the U.S. Army.

The Detention Deputy of the Year was Detention

Sheriff Charlie Creel and this year's Law Day honorees.

Deputy Robert Stanley. Deputy Stanley graduated from the Pat Thomas Corrections Academy in 2012 and joined the WCSO the same year. He was awarded Detention Deputy of the Quarter recognition in the third quarter of 2013. He expresses compassion toward the inmates and detainees while remaining professional and fair.

The Communications Officer of the Year was Dispatcher Shannon Day. Officer Day joined the WCSO in May 2012 and has since earned her Certification as a Public Safety Telecommunicator. She has the respect of her peers and is always willing to do whatever it takes to make sure that the citizens receive the required level of support.

The Civilian Employee of the Year award was given to Finance Director Mary Dean Barwick and Human Resources Director Karen Day.

HR Director Day joined the WCSO in April 1993 as the E-911 Coordinator. She has also served as the Finance Director as well as in Information Technology, Maintenance Division, Fleet Management and Purchasing. She helped address county growth with the creation of the Human Resources Division. She has seen the WCSO grow from 80 employees to a peak of 170 and is responsible for insurance issues, health benefits, hiring, discipline, court cases, training paperwork, accreditation standards, performance evaluations, open enrollment and annual health shots for the staff.

Finance Director Mary

Dean Barwick joined the WCSO in June 2000 and is responsible for preparing and submitting the annual operating budget. She is also responsible for administering purchasing policies, submitting monthly orders for inmates, cleaning and office supply orders and the processing of all invoices and checks for services and purchases.

She works with Human Resources to make sure the Florida Retirement System information is followed for each employee and with her staff she handles payroll, accounts payable, cash receipts, trust funds and special revenue funds.

The Volunteer of the Year award was given to Reserve Sgt. Roy Gunnarsson and Reserve Sgt. Tom Kilbourn.

Sgt. Gunnarsson is employed by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and has been a Reserve Deputy since 2012. He has successfully completed training to become a Class I Reserve Deputy in the Road Patrol Division operating on his own responding to calls for service.

Sgt. Kilbourn is retired from the Florida Capitol Police where he served in communications, security training and patrol. He joined the WCSO Reserves in 2008 and coordinates the reserve program in support of the many community events in Wakulla County. The WCSO Reserve Unit worked 4,800 hours over the past year creating an enormous saving to taxpayers over paid personnel.

During the event, the gathering was asked to remember the two law enforcement officers who lost their lives in the line of duty in 2014 and four more law enforcement officers who lost their lives in the line of duty in 2013. The group also honored the efforts of Taylor County Deputy Robert Lundy for his Feb. 5, 2014 heroics of saving many lives at a Perry Ford dealership. Deputy Lundy shot and killed a gunman who began a rampage inside the dealership. Deputy Lundy was nearly killed in the confrontation, but has since recovered.

The event was catered by Coastal Restaurant of Panama City and included catfish, shrimp and chicken. The event is sponsored by the Coastal Optimist Club each year which presented plaques to the WCSO staff.

School Resource Officers focus on helping kids

Deputy Rojas is pleased to be able to work in a high school that really doesn't face the serious issues at inner city schools. Violence, drugs and weapons are uncommon at WHS and the joint effort between the school system and sheriff's office plan to keep it that way.

"All in all we have a good group of kids," he added. "We are there to protect and assist them in any way we can."

Deputy Nick Boutwell moved to his SRO post from a position in the Criminal Investigations Division. He said the immediate and positive impact resource officers have on their students is one of the most enjoyable parts of being an SRO.

"I believe the school resource officer position is one of the most important jobs the sheriff's office has to offer," he said. "It's very important, not only for the students but for everyone who works in the school system."

Technology has created new challenges for law enforcement and school administrators. There is a "never ending battle of drama between students who interact with each other utilizing Instagram, Twitter, Facebook, Snap-chat and other apps."

"Most issues arise from over the weekends away from school, leading to issues at school, when the students are able to interact in person," said Deputy Boutwell.

School Resource Officer Deputy Joe Page works at the Sopchoppy Second Chance School and has opportunities to interact with students who have had disciplinary issues in the past.

"The most enjoyable thing for me is to be able to work through conflicts with the kids," he said. "I can help them or show them other options to the conflicts they may be having in their lives. Many of them have been arrested and are on probation. Some of them look at law enforcement officers as the enemy. I'm not here to be their friend. But I'm here to be fair with them. They respect that and often times I receive thanks from them or their parents. It's great to know that I have earned their trust and they can come to me for any reason, good or bad."

Sheriff Creel and Undersheriff Trey Morrison are committed to the School Resource Program and regular training. Deputies Rojas, Page, Boutwell and Sgt. Billy Jones are all SWAT trained and are prepared to handle whatever challenges they may face.

"The biggest challenge I face as a School Resource Officer is not knowing how the day will go," said Page. "You work through issues that may seem small and keep them from turning into large problems. At the end of the day knowing that you have done the best you could do and making sure that the property and people are good to go for the next day, that's what it is all about. I trust in both leaders (Creel and Pearce) who run this program and I am proud to be a School Resource Officer in Wakulla County."

Deputy Evelyn Brown enjoys the interaction with her students. "I like getting to know the students and letting them see a different side of law enforcement," she said. "Yes, we make arrests and in their opinion take people to jail, but we also help people in many different ways and areas of their lives."

She sees the School Resource Officers as an important link to the students in addition to providing security at the facility. "Sometimes students need to speak to a law enforcement officer but really don't know how to approach them. In schools, they are exposed daily and interact with an officer daily, which breaks the communication barrier."

Deputy Brown's goal is to help the students understand the role of law enforcement. "Getting students to know that we are here to help them and not hurt them is a challenge," she said. "I think getting students to 'trust' law enforcement because of things they may have been told or what they have been exposed to when dealing with law enforcement is something we have to overcome."

Sheriff Creel said the cost breakdown is split by the school district and WCSO but school resource officers would be included in the schools even if the school district could not afford to partially fund them.

"We would put them in there anyway," said Creel. "It's just that important. We will do everything in our power to provide and maintain a safe learning environment for our children."

The impact of the School Resource Officers on Wakulla County youth can also be measured by being around Sgt. Ray Johnson when he is outside of the office. Many of Sgt. Johnson's former students come up to him on the street and say hello and thank you to him though they are now in their 20s and 30s. They remember what a positive impact he had on their school experience.

"The one thing all SROs have a common is a love for helping our kids," Jones concluded. "We are stationed at four schools and we offer 100 percent coverage during the school year."

Multiple vehicle burglaries reported May 10

Special to The News

Wakulla County Sheriff Charlie Creel continues to hammer home a message of "lock your vehicles" to avoid losing property inside them.

Wakulla County Sheriff's Office deputies investigated 18 vehicle burglaries reported in the Crawfordville area Saturday, May 10. All of the vehicle burglaries involved cars and trucks that were left unsecured by their owners.

"This is one of the easiest crimes to prevent if citizens will just lock their vehicles," said Sheriff Creel. "All of these incidents and most of the vehicle burglaries that we have investigated in the past involve unsecured vehicles. This is a crime of opportunity. The suspects open the vehicle and grab property and get away from the scene as quickly as possible. They do not want to draw attention to themselves by creating noise through a forced entry."

The victims in the May 10 cases live in the Jasmine Drive, Mulberry Circle, Duncan Drive and Traynor Court communities north of Crawfordville. The victims reported the theft of currency, wallets, a gym bag, a firearm, electronic equipment and purses. Three individuals reported their vehicles being entered but nothing being stolen.

"I cannot emphasize enough the importance of locking your vehicle," said the Sheriff. "There is a chance that insurance companies will not pay off claims when the vehicle is left unsecured."

A person of interest has been identified by deputies. The WCSO has periodically attempted to conduct public awareness campaigns to make residents understand the importance of locking vehicles. Those efforts will continue, said the Sheriff.

Spurweed and its stickers lie in wait

Natural
Wakulla
By Les Harrison

The mild weather with pleasant temperatures and moderate humidity create an excellent environment for hours outdoors. Wakulla County has numerous locations where one can enjoy nature's wonders, and get a respite from the distractions of daily life.

Escaping the bond of modern civilization frequently includes the removal of shoes and enjoying the sensation of grass underfoot. The cool, pliable and irregular leaves are in vast contrast to the tight confines of contemporary footwear.

While a few may be initially intimidated by the change of routine, younger people usually enjoy the liberating experience of toes in the turf while the older are reminded of their youth, reflecting on the days before mature responsibilities dominated thoughts.

Unfortunately, there is a serpent lurking in this local Garden of Eden. Stickers and thorns silently lay in wait of a tender foot to violate.

Spurweed is an annual cool season weed which grows very close to the ground. As temperatures warm in the spring, spurweed grows rapidly forming spine-tipped burrs on its central stems.

It usually persists in open areas such as lawns, fields and pastures through May. In cooler years it can actively grow until early June.

The feathery leaves often cause onlookers to confuse this plant with dog fennel, a common native weed, in its spring growth phase. Spurweed, Soliva pterosperma, is actually an invasive exotic native to South America.

The burrs are seed which attach to anyone or anything coming into contact, and are deposited at a new site for germination and vegetative conquest. The technique has been very successful for this plant as it is now established in many temperate and tropical locations worldwide.

Similar to the spurweed and often confused with it, sandspurs are native to Florida. While the plants are quite different in appearance, the injury experienced from the seed is identical.

Wakulla County actually has two native sandspurs. Coastal Sandspur, Cenchrus incertu, and the Southern Sandspur, Cenchrus echinatus, both populate open, grassy spaces.

Both plants are members of the grass family and can be quite difficult to identify when mixed with other grasses and not producing their seed.

Only one kind of spine on the burr of the Coast Sandspur separates it as a species from the Southern

PHOTOS BY LES HARRISON/SPECIAL TO THE NEWS
The stickers on a spurweed, above, are designed to attach to a passerby and relocate to a hospitable environment for autumn germination. The low growing spring weed, below is sometimes confused with dog fennel, a native weed.

Sandspur.

While the habitat preferences and seed relocation methods of spurweed and sandspurs are nearly identical, the sandspur can be encountered throughout the year. Unless identified before physically contacting the seed, the contact is usually unpleasant.

Dewberries and blackberries reside in sunny open spaces and can be intertwined with grasses. Both carry a generous quantity of stiff thorns.

It may be difficult to distinguish dewberry and blackberry when looking at a single leaf.

The overall plant appearance and growth habits of these two species are quite different.

Dewberry has a low, vine-like growth habit and rarely reaches heights greater than two feet. Blackberry has a very upright growth pattern and commonly reaches three to six feet in height.

Dewberry commonly has slender thorns with red hairs on the stem while blackberry has hard, tough thorns and no hairs. With any of the stickers or thorns, it is good to have a pair of shoes handy.

Wakulla watercolor artist is part of Tri-State exhibit

By JENNY ODOM
Special to the News

Watercolor artists from Alabama, Georgia and Florida come together this Friday as The Tallahassee Watercolor Society hosts the 26th Tri-State Juried Water Media exhibit.

Two paintings by Wakulla County's Fran Mathis were selected for the exhibit.

"The painting titled 'On Time' depicts a group of men at the airport standing together watching a plane arriving," she says. "Something about the scene spoke to me."

A native of New Jersey, Mathis enjoys painting people, and uses watercolor and acrylic as her medium of choice. She has been exhibiting in the area for years, accepting many accolades and awards in juried shows for her bold use of color and abstract style.

"This three-state exhibition will showcase watercolor at its finest," says Rosemary Ferguson, Publicity Chair for the TWS.

'On Time,' a watercolor by Crawfordville artist Fran Mathis, is part of the Tri-State Exhibit.

"The judge has selected a wide range in style and subject matter and diverse use of watercolor from transparent to the opaque. It promises to be an exciting show," she says.

The juror for the exhibit is Susan Hinton, an Oregon artist who has racked up many awards for her own creations.

Hinton will be flying into Tallahassee this week to judge the show she's already juried from Oregon. She juried the exhibit using slides and digital images, but she will award the winning pieces by getting the first look at the artwork in person, before the public gets to see it. The awards will be given out at the opening reception.

Hinton is also an award winning watercolor artist, and a member of the National Watercolor Society. She has selected 60 paintings out of 161 for the exhibit. She judges for composition, presentation of subject matter, color and the artist's personal style.

"First impression is always key to me," says Hinton. "Something that quickly draws me in and makes me want to take it home and hang it on my wall."

Other local artists who will have works in the Tri-State exhibit are Susan Allen, Lorraine Clark, Rosemary Ferguson, Sue Ellen Knowles, Susan Lester, Rene' Lynch, William McKeown, Yoshiko Murdick, Eluster Richardson and Suzanna Winton.

The exhibit opens Friday evening at FSU Museum of Fine Art. It is free to attend and the public is invited.

The story of the last run of the Daily Double

Red Clay Footprints

By John Roberts

Tragedy always lurks in the lives of those who make their living in the fishing industry. The sea is often unpredictable and always unforgiving.

Those who go down to the sea, be it to make a living or for pleasure expect to be challenged in many ways while operating in rough seas, and must be extra careful and vigilant in their decisions and actions when the seas are angry. There is little to fear, however, on days such as the one which resulted in a horrible tragedy aboard the fishing boat, Daily Double.

On June 9, 1956, I was a boy, just turned 14 years old, working as a helper for the owner/operator of the fishing boat Jenny Lee, John Tooke, out of St. Marks.

We took a deep sea fishing party out on a calm, sunny, day, perfect for fishing. Most of the deep sea fishing boats fished in the same general area, far out in the Gulf, about a two-hour run from the mouth of the St. Marks River. I knew all the young boys who worked as helpers on the boats, and on clear days such as this one, could see their boats out on the horizon of the fishing grounds.

Such a routine day, I would never have recalled it, but because of such an unusual event later that day, with respect to the Daily Double, I never forgot having seen it operating not very far from where the Jenny Lee was fishing.

The Daily Double, of all those boats was very easily discernable as it was also equipped for commercial fishing with a large Mackerel net roller on the stern. She was owned and operated by my mother's first cousin, Elmer Oliver (I always referred to him as my uncle). His son, Ralph, was my friend and constant companion while growing up, and his daughter, Yvonne, was one of my sister, Myrna's, best friends.

The Jenny Lee and other boats operating out of St. Marks usually left the fishing grounds about 2:30 p.m., since the run back to the dock took about three hours, the fish had to be offloaded, cleaned, and iced down, and with several boats out, many would not finish their tasks before dark. Most of our fishing parties were from South Georgia, and if not spending the night in St. Marks or nearby Tallahassee, drove home that night.

I recall the Jenny Lee was able to off load and I completed my tasks aboard which amounted to cleaning the boat and preparing it for the next trip. I then went to the dock and assisted in tying up the fishing boats as they came in, and refueling them. The Daily Double was the last boat in that afternoon.

It was still daylight and as it approached the dock, it was very obvious that something was terribly wrong. On a good day like this one, as the boats docked, the fishing parties aboard were always happy and in high spirits as the boats were loaded with fish. In stark contrast, those on the Daily Double, including Uncle Elmer, were very pale and downcast. As I tied the boat to the dock, Uncle Elmer stepped off and walked quickly straight to my daddy's office. I followed close behind him to see what the problem was, and his exact words to my daddy were, "Wilbur, I lost a boy. I'll never take another party out again."

The commercial and charter fishing boat the Daily Double.

Uncle Elmer was a devout Christian and a man of his word, and he kept his word. The Daily Double never again took out deep sea fishing parties, but was used strictly for commercial fishing.

Now the tragedy. The boy who drowned was only 18 years old. He had accompanied his daddy and some close friends from Georgia for a day of fun and deep sea fishing at St. Marks.

It had been a great day out on the Gulf, they'd caught lots of fish, and were almost back to port. Sometime during the ride back, the boy had gone below to the cabin to take a nap. The Daily Double routinely entered the channel of the St. Marks River. At a point almost directly in front of the St. Marks Lighthouse, Uncle Elmer was at the helm and the boy's daddy was sitting on the ice chest talking to him.

Suddenly, the boy came running up from the cabin, went right by his daddy, and vaulted over the stern of the boat into the water. It happened so fast, no one had time to react.

They were less than an hour out from the dock. The last that was seen of the boy was one hand above the water. He never surfaced and immediate efforts by Uncle Elmer to locate and save or recover the boy were fruitless. Despite extensive efforts by search parties covering several days, his body was never recovered.

As it turned out, the boy had a history of panicked sleep walking, especially if he slept in an unfamiliar place. No doubt that is what happened to him as he slept in the cabin of the boat.

The story does not end here. The sea claimed the life of another one of those aboard the Daily Double that fateful day. It was in 1980 at Fort San Marcos de Apalache, near the boat ramp at the junction of the St. Marks and Wakulla rivers. Returning from a very successful commercial fishing trip with a boat heavily loaded with mullet, Uncle Elmer was maneuvering the boat to the boat ramp and applied power to the motor. This caused the boat to founder and it began taking on water over the stern. It appeared the boat would stay afloat with it bow up out of the water, and Uncle Elmer called out to the man who was ashore with his truck and the boat trailer that he thought he would be all right and to go ahead and get some help. When the man left for that purpose, the boat drifted a little further out in the river and sank. Uncle Elmer tried to swim to land but did not make it. His body was recovered only several feet from the water's edge.

In later years, while researching the history of the St. Marks Lighthouse, and reviewing the Keeper's log books at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., I noted this entry: "June 9, 1956: 2330 (11:30 p.m.), Received telephone call from Elmer E. Oliver, owner of the fishing boat Daily Double, that Charles Collett of Alpharetta, Ga., jumped overboard from his boat and drowned near St. Marks River light beacon #8 at 1725 (5:25 p.m.)."

GREEN SCENE

Waste Reduction: A University's Perspective

GREEN LIVING

By SHELLEY SWENSON
Wakulla Extension Service

I just returned from the University of Florida during which I attended workshops on promoting sustainability in our county extension offices and beyond.

With this opportunity so soon after the Green Living Expo, I am even more motivated to make Wakulla County citizens even more responsible in making green choices.

One part of the Expo that was very successful was the area where persons could share their gently used items with another. I spent some time in that area and it was fun to hear what people intended to do with an item that someone else had discarded. We asked the persons who took things to consider giving them to another person when they were done using it.

I was personally satisfied to hear what people were intending with my contributions because so many of my donated items had already been in someone else's possession before mine. I am an avid second-hand shopper. It provides me a great deal of satisfaction and another avenue for creative thinking.

Two other sections that were very well received was our silent auction which featured many re-purposed items and our display of re-purposed items from those who had made them. There is nothing more motivational than seeing how interesting and innovative items can be designed from discarded items.

As did so many of the other Green Living Expo planning committee members, I sincerely appreciate those who assisted and those who attended the event.

At my recent UF meeting I was highly impressed with the steps that the University of Florida has gone through to reduce waste and increase recycling. Whether you are a Gator or Seminole fan, you should be impressed to learn that UF's main campus in Gainesville has achieved a waste recovery rate of nearly 35 percent and recycles over 5,500 tons of materials annually. They have adopted a different four "R's" than I am familiar; they work to Reduce, Reuse, Recycle, and Re-buy.

They also stressed that all of us the need not only to recycle but to think about how we can lower our consumption of disposal goods, reuse or share items and purchase items with recycled content. Everyone was encouraged to identify waste streams, and institute reduction/recycling efforts as appropriate to our own office and our home.

Let's review several ideas to do so. Several months ago I encouraged people to request removal from mailing lists for any unwanted hard copy catalogs, newsletters, magazines and "junk" mail. I will once again do so by encouraging you to utilizing this website: http://directmail.com/directory/mail\_preference/Default.aspx.

You can also use your cell phone and a program called PaperKarma (<http://www.paperkarma.com>) to take a photo of the mailing label of the unwanted mailing and they will contact the company directly to remove you from that specific mailing list.

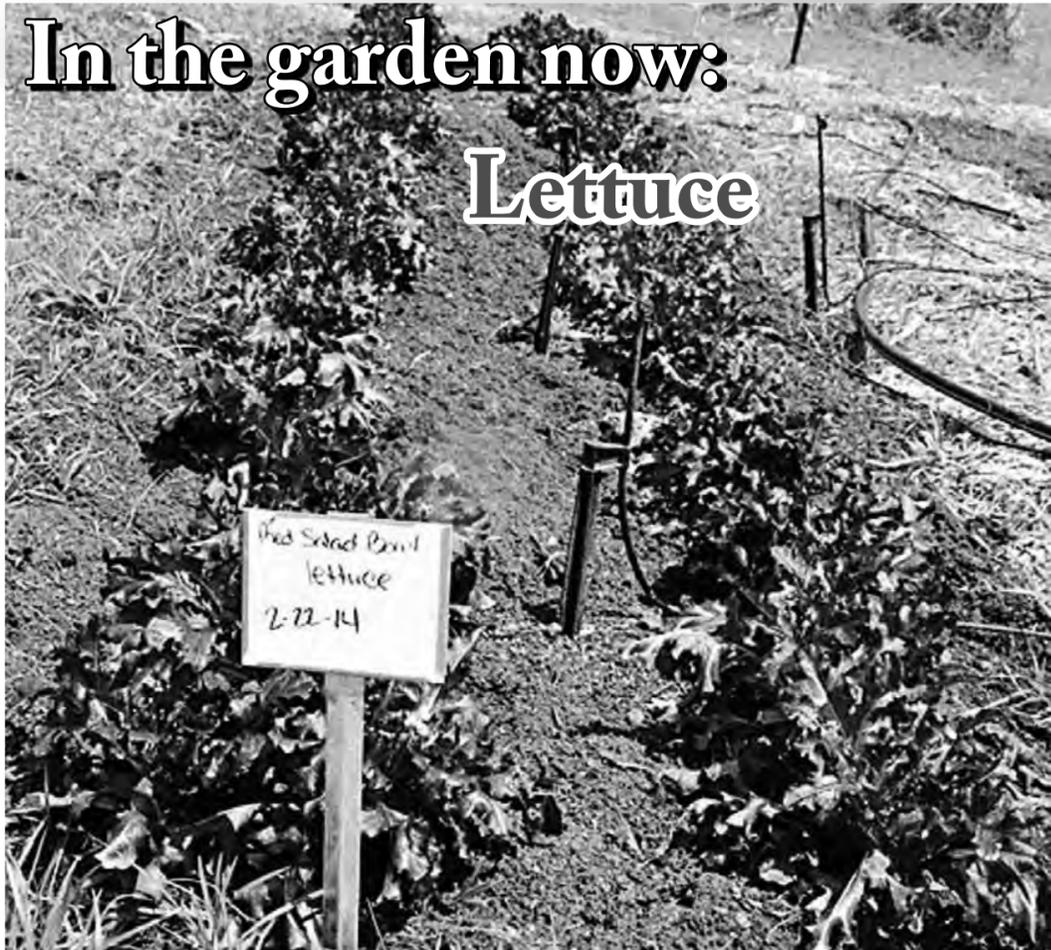

I would highly encourage that in all offices and homes to print in color only when absolutely necessary. Be certain that your computer's printer default setting is set to print in black-and-white. In addition, print double-sided. Think of the number of sheets you would eliminate. Use scrap paper for drafts and re-use envelopes to circulate internal communication at both office and home.

This provides you with your living sustainably assignments for May.

Small steps can result in great savings.

In the garden now: Lettuce

Red Lettuce, above, is a variety of red oak leaf lettuce that's still producing well.

A cool April was good for lettuce, but won't last long

By LES HARRISON and SHELLEY SWENSON of the Extension Office

The seasonal temperatures have moved Wakulla County vegetable gardens from the spring phase to the summer phase. The unusually cool April has made it possible for a few spring holdouts to remain for early May 2014.

While many spring vegetables are responding to the longer days by bolting, sending up flower spikes, a few leafy vegetables are still producing. Now that the days are reaching 90 degrees, they will not last long.

Two lettuce varieties in the UF/IFAS Wakulla County Extension Demonstration Garden are still producing tasty, usable leaves. Red Oak Leaf Lettuce and Butter Crunch Lettuce are growing strong, but the Butter Crunch is beginning to show signs of bolting.

Lettuces (Lactuca sativa) are annual plants in the aster family.

This cool season annual has a long and storied history which began in North Africa. Egyptians during the Fourth Dynasty about 4,600 years ago made the first recorded use of lettuce.

The plant was initially cultivated for the seeds which were used to produce oil. The oil was used as part of a religious celebration for one of their many deities.

Somewhere along the way an adventurous and likely very cautious individual sampled the leaves and discovered the gastronomic potential of this native plant. Cultivation became formalized and the plant was incorporated into Egyptian Old Kingdom diet.

The vegetable proved so popular it was included in tomb engravings to follow the pharaohs and other important people into the afterlife. Lettuce in Pharaoh Sneferu's day looked much like romaine lettuce today.

The cultivation of lettuces was spread at first by the Greek Army of Alexander the Great, and then the Romans. Lettuces were selectively bred to meet individual needs and preferences as the increasingly popular vegetable was moved across succeeding empires.

This hardy and easily cultivated annual is thought to have come to North America with Columbus.

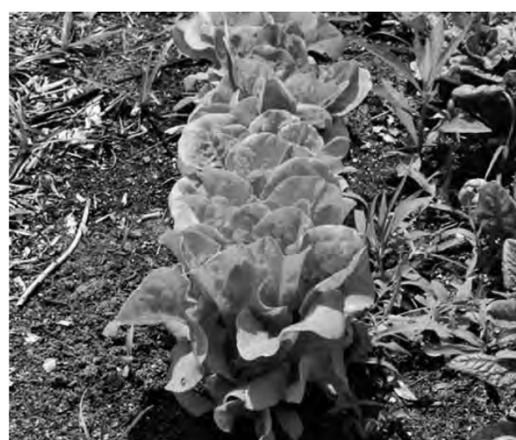

Lettuce can be a good source of vitamins and minerals with little fat and no sodium present. The darker green lettuces are the best source for vitamin A.

Iceberg lettuce, the most commonly seen cultivar in grocery stores, provided the least nutritional benefit of the commonly recognized lettuces. Still, it is a good source of dietary fiber.

Lettuce is easy to grow in Wakulla County, but it must be planted during the cool season.

Plant the seed in rows about 1/8 inch deep in the soil. The seeds are very small and can easily be planted too deep.

Mixing the seed with clean sand makes it easi-

Butter Crunch Lettuce is very popular and has a variety of uses. It will be bolting soon.

er to uniformly distribute in the rows. Seedbeds should be kept moist, but not soggy.

Seed germination will occur within a week, but may be delayed if the temperature stays below 40 degrees. Depending on the variety, harvest can start in about 60 days. Thin the seedlings as necessary after about two weeks of growth.

Contact the UF/IFAS Wakulla County Extension Office at 850-926-3931 or <http://wakulla.ifas.ufl.edu/> to learn more about growing lettuce in Wakulla County or to visit the demonstration garden where the results can be viewed.

WEEKLY ROUNDUP – (Recap and analysis of the week in state government)

They're off and running

By BRANDON LARRABEE
THE NEWS SERVICE OF FLORIDA

THE CAPITAL, May 9 – It didn't take long.

The Legislature adjourned its 2014 legislative session on May 2, with Gov. Rick Scott and former Gov. Charlie Crist already beginning to take a few shots at each other. Within a week, the campaigns were in full swing.

Scott toured the state, touting the $500 million in tax and fee reductions that lawmakers had agreed to during the 60-day session. Along the way, he and his surrogates also hammered away at Crist, who has a slight lead according to most polls.

Meanwhile, Crist hit the airwaves, using an appearance on the Fusion television network to blast away at his former partymates, essentially accusing the GOP of racism. The former governor also tried to convince the audience --- and, indeed, the show's host --- that the reason Crist left the Republican Party four years earlier was because of the party's drift to the right and hostility to President Barack Obama, not because he was about to lose a Senate primary.

It didn't take long for the mud to start slinging after the Legislature adjourned, and there are almost six long months to go before voters head to the polls. Buckle up.

'HELP IS ON THE WAY!'

Over the last few years, Scott has picked up the political habit of naming everything. This year's spending plan was the

"It's Your Money Tax Cut Budget." And Scott's triumphant cross-state journey was entitled the "Help Is On The Way

Part of what Florida voters need help with, apparently, is beating Crist. Speaker after speaker at a stop in Panama City on Thursday slammed Crist either directly or indirectly, comparing the sunnier economic times under Scott to the darker times Crist faced during the depths of the financial downturn.

"We need four more years of Rick Scott, and we're going to get four more years of Rick Scott, because the alternative would be a nightmare," said Lt. Gov. Carlos Lopez-Cantera.

If signs are any indication, the crowd was also stridently anti-Crist. Among the handwritten posters: "Charlie Crist [Hearts] ObamaCare" and "Charlie Loves Charlie."

And the subtext was clear: Scott is a governor who has made things happen, while his famously charismatic predecessor was someone talented at speaking, but not much else.

"He's a lot of talk," Scott told reporters after the event. "We're a lot of action. And that's what we're going to talk about over the next six months."

Scott himself appeared to be loosening up a bit after the business-like tone of the session. The suit was gone, replaced by dark slacks and a light blue dress shirt, with the sleeves slightly rolled up. He posed for pictures and talked to supporters after the rally, even kneeling down at one point for a photo-op with a young girl.

And the event did stick to at least one of the issues Scott is hoping to use this fall --- that much-hyped tax and fee reduction, primarily focused on rolling back a vehicle-registration fee increase signed into law by none other than Charlie Crist.

"On the back of every vehicle, there's a driving tax cut delivered by Gov. Rick Scott," said Bill Herle, executive director of National Federation of Independent Businesses' Florida chapter.

Meanwhile, Crist journeyed to the set of "AMERICA with Jorge Ramos," the flagship interview show on Fusion TV, an English-language channel geared at Latinos. Things got tense in the Tuesday interview when Crist tried to explain why he broke with the GOP in 2010 --- saying that it had to do with the sharp rightward turn the party took in the wake of President Barack Obama's victory two years earlier.

But Ramos, drawing implicitly on Crist's statement in 2010 that he wouldn't let "a club within that club" decide who won the U.S. Senate race, suggested it had more to do with the then-governor's lagging poll numbers in his bid for the GOP nomination.

"I understand, but the moment in which you decided just to leave the Republican Party, it was because you were going to lose to Marco Rubio," Ramos said.

"No, it was because I couldn't be consistent with myself and my core beliefs and stay with a party that was so unfriendly toward the African-American president. I'll just go there," Crist replied. "... And I saw how the party, some of them, were treating the African-American president. And I couldn't take it anymore. That's a big part of what I left the party."

In his own interview with Ramos on Thursday, Rubio hit back.

"It's quite embarrassing," he said. "When all is said and done, I think the Democrats are going to be embarrassed that Charlie Crist is one of them."

Crist also tried to defend his changing tone on in-state tuition for undocumented immigrants, something he opposed as governor but now supports. Scott is expected to sign a bill granting the discounted rates to some students in the next few weeks.

Crist said he opposed the idea because he was trying to fit in with the GOP.

"I really felt like a round peg in a square hole, and so, you know, would try to be a good team player. And it wasn't always comfortable for me," he said.

COURT: NO EXEMPTION FOR SEMINOLES

Outside of the narrow lens of politics, a federal appeals court rejected arguments that the Seminole Tribe of Florida should be exempt from state taxes when fueling up vehicles on non-tribal lands.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals sided with the Florida Department of Revenue in the long-running dispute, which involves fuel that the Seminoles say is used to provide government services on tribal land.

The ruling, issued Monday, said the Department of Revenue and top officials are shielded by sovereign immunity from the claims.

"An Indian tribe can sue a state and its departments in federal court only if Congress has validly abrogated the immunity of the state or if the state has waived its immunity, but neither of those conditions has occurred here," said the ruling, written by Judge William H. Pryor and joined Judge Paul L. Friedman.

In the lawsuit, the tribe contested $393,247 in fuel taxes it paid between June 7, 2009, and March 31, 2012, according to the ruling. A federal district judge dismissed the case, which was similar to an earlier unsuccessful challenge in state court of taxes the tribe paid in 2004, 2005 and part of 2006.

STORY OF THE WEEK:

The 2014 campaign was already in full swing days after the Legislature adjourned its 2014 legislative session.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK:

"Our goal was not to convert Florida into a magnet for the pot industry." – Rep. Matt Gaetz, a Fort Walton Beach Republican who helped pass a bill allowing low-THC marijuana to be ordered for some medical conditions, on restrictions on who can produce and sell the substance.

Practicing casting a fly rod on the street

By SLIM RANGLES

The problem Marvin Pincus had yesterday was simply time. You see, he'd found that new-to-him but older-anyway deluxe glass Fenwick fly rod at a yard sale and snapped it up.

While others had succumbed to the flyweight temptations of graphite, give Marvin a grand old glass Fenwick and just turn him loose.

This rod was for a four-weight line, which he didn't have, so he had to go to the store and outfit himself with all new everything for it. So by the time he had his "outfit" ready to fish, it was late afternoon.

The fish would have to wait until tomorrow.

Flogging (gracefully of course) the waters of Lewis Creek would have to wait until tomorrow. But Marvin wasn't going to wait until tomorrow. Not with a brand-new (to him) Fenwick!

So he walked out in the street in front of his house and began casting. Oh that backcast was smooth. The line just went lazily back there, and then, with a master's touch, he flicked his wrist forward and the line came over, traveled out to a spot about three feet above the asphalt, and the fly quietly fluttered down.

Even without water, Marvin could feel the fly fisherman's unspoken thrill at doing something so well people would stop to watch.

It was a ballet, like those girls do with ribbons in the Olympic games, but this ... he just smiled.

And it was the first time his fly casting had ever stopped traffic ... literally.

He stepped out of the way to let the car go by. Ten-year-old Johnny Symmes rolled down his window in the back seat of the car.

"Catchin' anything, Mr. Pincus?"

"Little slow without water, Johnny. But I'll keep trying."

"Without water?"

Marvin grinned. "It's okay," he said, "I'm using a dry fly."

Even Exchange

by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

1. ___ the leader	_ O _ _ _ _ Chap	_ E _ _ _ _
2. Night sky hunter	_ R _ _ _ _ Pungent bulb	_ N _ _ _ _
3. Mason's block	_ _ _ C _ _ Invigorating	_ _ _ S _ _
4. Thick	D _ _ _ _ Nervous	T _ _ _ _
5. Friendly ghost	_ _ S _ _ _ Tent dweller	_ _ M _ _ _
6. Mariner	S _ _ _ _ Clothes maker	T _ _ _ _
7. Candle glow	_ L _ _ _ Portrait border	_ R _ _ _
8. Compassion	_ _ _ C _ _ Jolly	_ _ _ R _ _
9. Electrical jolt	_ H _ _ _ "Star Trek" officer	_ P _ _ _

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below. Different: 1. Parasol is missing. 2. Headband is missing. 3. Doll's hair is different. 4. Tablecloth is different. 5. Sleeve is shorter. 6. Number 6 is missing. 7. Spoon is missing. 8. Spoon is missing. 9. Spoon is missing. 10. Spoon is missing.

Junior Whirl

by Hal Kaufman

BOX SPRING! Object of this exercise is to place the digits 1-9 in the diagram, at right, so that a total of 15 results in all rows, across, down and diagonally.

Four odd digits are presently in place. Odd digit 5 is missing as are the four even digits 2, 4, 6 and 8.

While it's fairly obvious where 5 belongs, placement of the even digits requires some juggling. Give it a try.

Top across: 819, middle 357, bottom 452, with 6 to 11.

SAY WHAT! What Roman ruler had hay fever? Julius Sneezer. What hat is used in math? The sum-brer. What bird winters in Kansas? The Kansas-back duck.

SPOON-FED CHIMES!

YOU can simulate the resonant chime of a bell with a simple apparatus. Here's how:

Loop and tie the center of a piece of string (about three feet long) around the handle of a teaspoon, see above. Hold one end of a string up to left ear and the other end to right ear.

Now, with spoon dangling from string, cause the bowl, or handle (whichever provides the best point of contact) to jar against a wooden tabletop or other solid surface.

Listen carefully and a chime-like sound will reverberate in your ears.

TEST 1: Unscramble names of flowers. TEST 2: Find twin butterfly

Flowers: Dahlia, poppy, rose, aster, pansy, petunia, pink, zinnia, violet, crocus, phlox, daisy, tulip, hollyhock, dandelion, twins 1 and 7, 2 and 8.

OVER & OUT! Graduation — that day of days — is here. Apply the following colors neatly: 1— Red. 2— Lt. blue. 3— Yellow. 4— Lt. brown. 5— Flesh tones. 6— Lt. green. 7— Dk. brown. 8— Dk. blue

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

UNBEATEN

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Possible words: Turn, bean

Wurzberg has a wealth of beautiful buildings

Marienberg Fortress in the Bavarian city of Wurzburg.

Wurzburg is a city in Northern Bavaria on the Main River. Arriving in Wurzburg, you're greeted by the imposing Marienberg Fortress, the first residence of the Prince Bishops.

The prince bishops held the equivalent of the highest political office while serving the church and the people as a bishop.

A city tour reveals a wealth of beautiful buildings and churches. The finest of them, the "palace of palaces" was the residence of the Schonborn family of Prince Bishops.

Inspired by Versailles, the Wurtzburger Residenz was completed in 1744. A highlight of any trip here is a visit to this famous palace and adjoining gardens.

Today a UNESCO world heritage site, it contains two massive domed ceilings, spanning 200 feet by 300 foot. An engineering feat in its time, it is miraculous that it has survived.

The palace was designed with the most modern features. Carriages pulled inside to the impressive staircase for their honored guests to alight. The Prince-Bishop would descend the steps, sufficiently to reflect level of importance of his visitor.

Only once did he descend all the steps to meet the carriage of Maria Theresa, the only female ruler of the Habsburg dominions and the last of her house. She was sovereign of Austria, Hungary, Croatia, Bohemia, Mantua, Milan, Lodomeria and Galicia, the Austrian Netherlands and Parma.

Built in the Baroque style, the palace was completed on 1780. Still, the beginnings of the rococo style is evident in the plasterwork.

Instead of simply frescoes, walls and ceilings are adorned with a mixture of painting and plaster work. Plaster curtains seem to sway in the breeze; cherub's plaster legs dangle from the ceiling, and musicians plaster trumpets jut from the walls. The cooperation between the painter and plaster worker created a three dimensional masterpiece.

The impressive hall of mirrors is based on the famous amber room in Czar Catherine's Palace. Scenes painted on the back were covered with mercury to create an effect similar to amber's glow. An effort was made to remove the glass. Unfortunately it was so well glued in the plaster that the pieces cracked. Those mirrors not removed before the war were completely destroyed.

Today, all that remains are the two original panels that cracked upon removal. Now redone with modern mirrors, the effect is nonetheless impressive.

"Near the end of World War II, on 16 March 1945, about 90 percent of the city was destroyed in 17 minutes. All of the city's churches, cathedrals, and other monuments were heavily damaged or destroyed. The city center, which dated from medieval times, in a firestorm in which was totally destroyed 5,000 people perished."

After the war most buildings, including the palace were painstakingly recreated. While the Wurtzburger Residenz's domed ceilings survived, the task of removing the grime from the domed ceilings took four years.

Today Wurtzberg appears much as it has for centuries. Spend your time meandering the historic streets. Marvel at the work that went into restoration, primarily completed by local women within 20 years of the wars. End your day on the Old Main Bridge, completed in 1543, and watch as the Main River slowly glides by.
