Carolyn Parrish named LBMS principal

Campbell leaving after one year

BY VINCENT ALEX BROWN
Times Editor

The Union County School Board named Carolyn Parrish as the new principal for Lake Butler Middle School to fill the spot after her predecessor David Campbell took a position with the Suwannee County School District.

Campbell resigned on June 10 after serving one year as LBMS principal while Parrish served as his assistant. He will be the new director of curriculum for elementary back in Live Oak. Campbell's family lives in Branford and both his wife and daughter teach for the district at Branford Elementary School where he also served as principal for several years.

"I think he did a good job of communicating with teachers and had a good plan for the year," said Carlton Faulk, superintendent of the Union County School District. "Very proud to have him for the year we had him.

"This is a promotion for him."

Parrish, having served as assistant principal at both LBMS and Union County High School, "kind of paid her dues," Faulk said.

"Carolyn is very organized, detailed, comes to work early, stays late..." he said. "She's one of those who comes to all the events.

"She's very knowledgeable with the curriculum. I think with the outstanding staff at the middle school they'll continue to do good things."

UCI K-9 finds fleeing suspect

A K-9 unit from Union Correctional Institution found a suspect that broke away from a Bradford County deputy on June 13 near the Clay County line.

According to Capt. Brad Smith, Deputy Amanda Wallace was in the process of handcuffing Christopher Lee for an Alachua County warrant when Lee broke free from the officer and ran away. The suspect fled into a neighborhood surrounding Southeast Third Avenue, behind a BP-branded convenience store on S.R. 100 and near the Keystone Heights Shrine Club.

The responding deputies established a perimeter around the area and requested help from the K-9 unit. In less than 10 minutes, the dog, named "Dawg" found Lee hiding under a house. Lee was wanted in Alachua County for failure to appear on charges of driving with a suspended license and possession of a controlled substance without a prescription.

Yoho visits Lake Butler Hospital

Meets with administration to discuss challenges, ACA, decreased funding

On June 3, Rep. Ted Yoho toured Lake Butler Hospital and visited with employees and patients. LBH administration also met with Yoho to discuss the concerns and challenges rural hospitals are facing.

Issues discussed included the Affordable Care Act and decreased state and federal reimbursements, which help cover the costs of treating uninsured patients. LBH provided uninsured and bad debt care totaling $4.5 million last year.

"Rural hospitals like Lake

Butler Hospital are an important part of the healthcare system in North Central Florida. When visiting their facilities I found they reflect the warmth and neighborly atmosphere of the Lake Butler community," Yoho said. "Lake Butler Hospital's high standards and quality of care stems from their relevant mission statement, engaged leadership, and dedicated team members.

"The services provided by rural hospitals improve the quality of life for the residents in Florida's rural communities. It is important to ensure unnecessary, one-size-fits-all government regulations don't drive these hospitals out of business."

LBH CEO Pam Howard praised Yoho's visit.

"We are very appreciative of the time Congressman

Rep. Ted Yoho, center, pictured with some of Lake Butler Hospital's staff.

Yoho spent with us," Howard said. "He seemed genuinely interested in understanding the challenges we face as a small hospital and supportive of legislation that could positively impact us."

State funding will bring mental health, other services back to ACORN

BY MARK J. CRAWFORD
Telegraph Editor

ACORN Clinic is one of four organizations serving low-income residents that will be sharing a $750,000 state appropriation to expand their services.

ACORN (short for Alachua County Organization for Rural Needs) acts as a safety net for individuals who aren't eligible for Medicaid and cannot afford private health insurance. It provides medical, dental and social services on a sliding fee scale with the support of public and private donors, including county government, the United Way, civic groups and churches.

In spite of Medicaid—which ACORN's Executive Director Candice King says primarily covers children, pregnant mothers, mothers with children at home and the elderly or disabled—and subsidies under the Affordable Care Act that don't help people too poor to purchase health insurance, cracks remain in the system for a portion of the population.

Medicaid wasn't expanded in the state to cover those folks, and that's why a safety net like ACORN is so important, King said.

The organizations benefiting from the state appropriation all have a relationship with the University of Florida, which rotates students in and out of the clinics. There they receive invaluable training. King said that was the foundation of the state award—the educational opportunities the clinics provide for future medical professionals and the need to restore programs that were lost during the recession.

"The very special thing about ACORN Clinic is that not only are we a training site in general, but we're a training site in a rural area," she said. They are expanding access to affordable care for rural residents and exposing health care students to the concerns—medical and social—in rural communities.

"ACORN does a great job as a training site. The students that rotate here love it, and their eyes are always really opened," King said. "They see examples of what happens when people do not have access to health care."

The appropriation will do a couple of important things for the clinic, including restoring mental health services. The recession cost ACORN the rotation of a psychiatric nurse practitioner from UF's nursing college and many of the mental health services they were able to provide.

People living in poverty and people suffering chronic health problems are often afflicted with resulting mental health issues, and access to mental health care is even tougher in rural areas than access to other care. Being able to have support for those issues along with their primary care is a huge plus for patients, King said. That includes issues like anxiety, depression, substance abuse and more severe diagnoses. There is also a sense of anonymity that helps patients avoid stigma when they can go to a primary health provider for mental health assistance.

The state appropriation will give ACORN one faculty member specializing in mental health and at least one student.

"Were talking about the whole spectrum of behavioral support," she said, adding that a psychiatric nurse practitioner is able to prescribe and help patients manage their medications alongside their primary care provider, who is conveniently located in the same building. ACORN also helps patients with the process for accessing free medicine.

"It's a wonderful addition in many ways for ACORN Clinic," King said.

The additional money will allow ACORN to expand its patient education efforts. Clinical pharmacy students supervised by a faculty member will meet with patients to discuss the proper use of medication and equipment, but also educate them about healthy lifestyles.

King said their co-morbidity patients are dealing with multiple health problems, but whether they are dealing one or compounded issues, being able to meet with someone who can guide them toward better health is a great service to them.

Funding cut for the medical and dental training side of ACORN's work is also being restored with these funds.

The appropriation survived the governor's veto and King said they are especially grateful to the legislators like Sen. Rob Bradley, Rep. Keith Perry, Rep. Charles Van Zant and Rep. Clovis Watson Jr. for going to bat for ACORN and the other safety net organizations benefitting from this funding.

It will take a couple of months for ACORN to receive their portion of the appropriation and roll out these services. The future of the funding is uncertain, but depends in part on demonstrating the benefits. That shouldn't be hard for an organization with ACORN's record.

Although Alachua County is called out in the name, the nonprofit also serves patients from Bradford and Union counties, as well patients from outside the area. Founded by volunteer funding from two churches in 1974, ACORN opened its first medical clinic in 1976 and moved to its Brooker location on the Alachua-Bradford county line in 1984.

In 2013, ACORN served nearly 3,000 patients. Just over half were from Alachua County, while 23 percent were from Bradford and 10 percent were from Union. Surprisingly, 16 percent traveled from 17 other counties in rural north central Florida to receive care from ACORN.

Eighty percent of those patients were at or below 150 percent of the United States poverty level. 20 percent were children and 19 percent were adults over 65 years old.

ACORN provided more than $2.1 million in free health care in 2013, thanks in part to the medical professionals and students who contributed 10,632 hours of their time—time valued at more than $1.3 million. More than 200 patients received medicines through the patient assistance program worth more than $771,000.

With nearly 4,400 visits in 2013, ACORN's dental clinic was even more popular than its general medical clinic, which received nearly 4,000 visits. In addition to these clinics, the organization operates a women's health program, a dental outreach program for young students in eight counties, a homeless clinic and a clinic for Spanish migrant workers. Because of their partnership with UF, they also have relationships with specialists like dermatologists.

Last year, the number of visits by Union County residents increased 19 percent and the number of unique Bradford residents served by the medical and dental clinics increased by 22 percent. Tooth Fairy Dental Outreach contacts doubled.

7 charged in CCI inmate shooting

FDLE says inmates conspired to shoot themselves

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement Tallahassee Regional Operations Center

charged seven based upon a scheme by two inmates to sue the Florida Department of Corrections after self-inflicting gunshot wounds. Five are in custody and two are at-large.

According to a release dated June 17, FDLE began its investigation on March 22 after two inmates were shot with a .25 caliber Beretta semi-automatic pistol inside Columbia Correctional Institution in Lake City.

Inmates Kirk Cartwright, 33, and Deshaundre Billups, 26, told investigators they were shot by an unknown person while praying inside their cell. However, investigators found that the inmates conspired to bring a gun into the prison through the mail, and shoot themselves with the intent of suing the prison system.

The investigation shows that inmates Cartwright and Billups smuggled contraband items into the prison without detection of CCI staff. The pair routinely smuggled in cell phones and drugs they sold to other inmates or kept for themselves. Family members and friends of the two inmates, along with inmate Tony Underwood, 21, helped in the scheme.

Inmate Kirk Cartwright – Investigators found that Cartwright conspired to obtain a gun inside CCI, intentionally shoot himself and then sue Department of Corrections and seek to have his sentence reduced. Cartwright is currently serving a life sentence for murder.

Inmate Deshaundre Billups – Investigators found that Billups conspired to obtain a gun inside CCI, intentionally shoot himself and then sue Department of Corrections and seek to have his sentence reduced. Billups is serving a 20-year prison term for robbery with a deadly weapon and armed burglary.

Both inmates are charged with:

- Possession of a firearm inside a correctional facility;
- Introduction of contraband into a correctional facility – unauthorized written communications, 10 counts;
- Possession of contraband in a correctional facility – cellular phones, 10 counts;
- Possession of a firearm by convicted felon; and
- Possession of ammunition by convicted felon.

Additionally, inmate Billups is charged with possession of contraband-currency and inmate Cartwright is charged with introduction of contraband-controlled substances.

Inmate Underwood – Investigators found that inmate Underwood assisted in the distribution of contraband into CCI. He is serving a six-year prison sentence for burglary and grand theft.

Inmate Underwood is charged with:

- Introduction of contraband into a correctional facility – unauthorized written communications, 10 counts; and
- Possession of contraband in a correctional facility- cellular phones, 10 counts.

Joanne Billups, 46, – Investigators found that inmate Billups' mother knowingly communicated with her son via cell phone and text messages and that she sent at least 10 text messages in the days before the shooting including one less than two hours before the incident. Billups was arrested this morning and booked into Hillsborough County Jail on a $100,000 bond.

Ekecia Anderson, 21 – Investigators found that Anderson knowingly communicated with her boyfriend, inmate Underwood, via cell phone and text messages. An arrest warrant has been issued for Anderson.

Monique Thompson, 35 – Investigators found that Thompson knowingly communicated with her brother, inmate Cartwright, via cell phone and text messages. An arrest warrant has been issued for Thompson.

Billups, Anderson and Thompson are charged with unauthorized written communications with inmates, 10 counts each.

Katherine Landrum, 28 – Investigators found that inmate Cartwright's girlfriend assisted with bringing contraband into CCI. She is charged with 10 counts of introduction of contraband into a correctional facility-unauthorized written communications and introduction of contraband-controlled substances. Landrum was arrested Tuesday morning and booked into Duval County Jail on a $110,000 bond.

The investigation is ongoing and additional arrests and charges are anticipated. The Florida Department of Corrections is assisting FDLE with its investigation. The Office of the State Attorney, 3rd Judicial Circuit, is prosecuting this case.

ELECT: Debra Browning
City Commission, Seat 4

VOTE: June 24th, 2014

Working Together we can...

- Support keeping city costs down, to save money for all of the taxpayers.
- Support more activities being made available for the children and young people.
- Support the needs of the older adult population, address their individual concerns and ideas.

I am a responsible administrator familiar with business management and budgets. It is important to make the children a priority; I am proud to say that I have a son who was a Marine in Iraq, a son who is a medic in the Navy and a son in the Air Force in Kansas. I have also volunteered my time serving as a health care professional with Alzheimer's and Dementia related support groups. My experience has been assisting distraught families through a most difficult time.

Working together — We will build a better community!
Please support Debra Browning for City Commissioner, seat 4 ... and I thank you!

28 graduate from Basic Recruit Training

The officers will work at 4 area institutions

A total of 28 recruits from four area institutions successfully completed Correctional Officer Basic Recruit Training (BRT) and were recognized in a graduation ceremony on Jan. 27.

The recruits are:
Putnam Correctional Institution: Edward Robidoux.

Union Correctional Institution: Thomas Aherns, Shawn Boyette, Ashley Brewton, Paul Crawford, Michael Eason, Kristopher Gore, Destiny Griffith, Clinton Jenkins, Julmito Julmis, Nichole Miller, Wendell Smith, Henry Sutton, Andrew Warren, Cody Waters and Roosevelt Williams.

Florida State Prison: Omar Platt, Craig Rhoad, Robert Stephenson, Richard Stitt, Brittany Thomas, Brett Warner, Wirt Washburn, Da'Rell Wilson and Garnett Wooten.

Reception and Medical Center: Hayley Foote, Ryan Hall and Daven Perry.

Four recruits earned special awards for excelling in various aspects of the 11-week training program—which incorporated both classroom learning and physical demonstration of the skills being taught.

FSP's Stephenson earned both the Top Academic Award and the Top Gun Award. He earned a 97.5 percent average on the numerous tests given during the training. He also turned in the top scores on the range during firearms training each week.

Two recruits shared the Top Defensive Tactics Award for consistently giving an excellent performance in demonstrating the tactics being taught in the training. The award went to UCI's Boyette and RMC's Foote.

The recruits selected one of their instructors to receive a special award for being especially helpful and inspiring to the new recruits. Milton Brinson received the Top Instructor Award.

FSP's Washburn was chosen as class president and, as such, he spoke briefly to his fellow graduates at the ceremony. The class vice president, UCI's Jenkins, also took part in the ceremony.

UCI's Major Daniel Manning acted as keynote speaker for the ceremony and congratulated the graduates on their achievement.

He urged them to rely on the training they had received, both in basic training and at the institution, in guiding their careers. He told them not to let themselves get discouraged by looking at what seem to be large obstacles far in the distance. He told them to concentrate on overcoming the smaller obstacles right in front of them and they will find the distant obstacles won't be so hard to overcome.

Following the ceremony, the recruits enjoyed a variety of refreshments and enjoyed time with their families.

Reynolds resigns as Bradford High football coach

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Staff Writer

Steve Reynolds has resigned after two seasons as Bradford High School's head football coach, leaving the school looking for its 10th coach in 23 years.

In a statement via text message, Reynolds said, "I decided it was time to make a move. From a head-coaching standpoint, I'm looking for something different."

"Thank you for your years of love and support."

Superintendent of Schools Chad Farnsworth said Reynolds didn't go into detail about the decision, though he said he believed Reynolds, as a young coach, was still mapping out his future.

"His resignation came unexpectedly, but I know Steven was looking at his career path," Farnsworth said, adding, "I feel like he just felt it was a good time to move on."

The Tornadoes were 9-11 under Reynolds, a 2004 BHS graduate. Bradford went just 3-7 last season, but did qualify for the playoffs for the second time in three years as the District 4-4A runner-up.

Farnsworth said he's appreciative of what Reynolds did and said Reynolds will always be a part of the program.

"He's a lifelong Tornado," Farnsworth said. "He put a tremendous amount of love and effort into our program."

When Reynolds was hired in 2012, he wanted to assure BHS supporters that he was going be around for a while, telling the Telegraph-Times-Monitor, "People can rest assured it's not going to be a revolving door around here anymore."

Instead, though, it's more of the same for the program, which hasn't had much stability since David Hulse retired after a 29-year stint as head coach following the 1990 season. Bradford has had nine head coaches since, with all but one lasting just three years or less. Rowland Cummings—the one exception—coached four seasons before resigning.

Four of the last five BHS coaches have resigned.

Cummings, who had a record of 31-16, guided the Tornadoes to three postseason appearances and had the team one win away from playing for a state title in 2003, cited the fact he was being moved as an administrator from BHS to Bradford Middle School as his reason for quitting.

Chad Bankston, who followed Cummings, led the Tornadoes again to within one win of playing for a state title in 2004. Bankston, who had a record of 17-15, resigned in June 2007, but refused to discuss the matter with the Telegraph-Times-Monitor.

After Steve Hoard (13-17 in 2007-09) was fired, Derek Chipoletti was hired. Chipoletti was 14-7 and guided the team to one postseason appearance, but stepped down after his second season to take the head-coaching job at Orange Park's Oakleaf High School. Chipoletti, who has family in Clay County, said the move would allow him to be closer to an ill family member.

Farnsworth said he believes that "perfect fit" is out there and indicated he feels good about this upcoming search. He stressed the search will be approached the same way he approached hiring Bryan Boyer as BHS principal, with longevity being a key factor.

A successful applicant should want to be at BHS for 10 years or more, Farnsworth said, adding, "We're going to find that person."

The superintendent said there should be quite a number applicants to consider. "The Bradford High School football coaching job is always a coveted position whenever it opens up," Farnsworth said.

Bergman shines in return to school, earns top SFC accolades

BY CLIFF SMELLEY
Staff Writer

Sometimes, Timothy Bergman doesn't feel like himself. The things that are happening to him now seem unreal.

Yet it is his picture that will hang on a wall at Santa Fe College, designating him as a member of the school's most recent hall of fame. Plus, Bergman will represent Santa Fe during the 2014-15 school year as an ambassador.

A lot has happened in the past year and a half after Bergman, 28, enrolled at Santa Fe College.

"It's almost like somebody else's dream," Bergman said. "It's my dream, but it's later. It took 10 years to happen, but it's happening now."

"It's surreal."
The Santa Fe College Hall of Fame is limited to one-tenth of the top 1 percent of students in a given year. To apply for consideration, a student must have a cumulative 3.0 GPA and be involved in service to the college and the community.

Students selected for the Ambassador Program work with faculty, staff and students to help promote Santa Fe College, assisting in such areas as recruitment, campus tours and public speaking engagements.

Santa Fe College Andrews Center adviser Kathleen Combass said it's impressive for someone to not only enroll in college at a non-traditional age, but to also become as involved as Bergman has. "We're all kind of Timmy rooters here," Combass said. "We're his cheerleaders here at the Andrews Center."

Bergman dealt with some issues in the past that caused him to leave home at the age of 17 and eventually give up on his schooling. He said he went to a private school at one point and was actually going to enroll at Bradford High School to finish his high school education. However, because of the differences in curriculum, he found out he was going to have to basically repeat his sophomore year while also taking senior-level classes.

He doesn't doubt that he could've successfully done what was required of him, but there were just other things going on in his life that affected him at that time.

"With a loved one who was suffering with cancer at the time, it was so much to handle," Bergman said. "I think I could've done it, but I was just so beaten down by the fact I was going to have to go back and repeat what I had already done."

"I gave up temporarily. Then temporarily turned into almost 10 years."

Bergman admitted it was almost traumatizing for him. He had always been an "A" student, so grades had never been an issue when it came to giving up on school.

He went to work for Verizon

and advanced to a position of district manager. However, the business went through an ownership change, and Bergman said he saw an opportunity to return to school.

Bergman signed up for classes at the Andrews Center, though he admitted, "I was extremely nervous. The first couple of weeks I even doubted myself, wondering, 'What am I doing here?'"

Combass and Andrews Center Director Cheryll Canova were—and still are—extremely supportive and encouraging, Bergman said. They helped him to realize, "This isn't as bad as I thought it was going to be."

Canova said, "That first step to come (back to school) is one of the hardest things for anybody to do, but it just shows that it can be done."

Bergman did more than just enroll and take classes. He joined the Andrews Center's Student Activities and eventually becoming president of that group. That kind of surprised him, he admitted, but it really has been beneficial in establishing a network among fellow students.

"There are commonalities and diversities there that I've grown to appreciate," Bergman said. "They've actually helped me in my studies a lot because I've gotten to interact with so many different types of people from different walks of life."

He fell in love with Santa Fe College during his first semester, and nothing changed when he later began taking classes at the Northwest Campus in Gainesville. Therefore, he applied for the Student Ambassador Program, which required him to submit a resume and go through a four-part interview process.

In the end, 12 ambassadors are chosen. Bergman was not one of the original 12 chosen for 2014-15, but he was the first alternate who would become an ambassador in the case something came up to prevent one of the original selections from serving. That exact scenario occurred, leading to Bergman stepping up into one of the 12 roles.

"I will actually go through a rigorous training at the end of this month to prepare me for the fall and spring terms," Bergman said.

One of the things Bergman is most looking forward to is interacting with his fellow ambassadors, some of whom come from such countries as Ecuador and North Korea.

"Again, it's that diversity that Santa Fe has given me such a love for and appreciation for," Bergman said. "I'm going to get to be right in the center of that type of diversity."

Being selected for the school's hall of fame is considered the highest honor a Santa Fe College student can achieve. Bergman said it's an honor he'll never forget and one that will continue to inspire him to make the most of his studies.

"That really made me feel good," Bergman said. "That picture will be in the hall of fame forever. That's something I'll look back at when I go to grad school and say, 'Well, when you thought you couldn't go back to college, you went back to college, and you did these things.'"

"That will be a constant reminder for me to carry that confidence through grad school, too, when I go to UF."

Bergman first intended to study psychology when he enrolled at Santa Fe, but has since been pursuing a lifelong passion—music. He credits Canova for helping to foster his love for music and the arts. Bergman was involved in Starke Recreation Department activities when Canova was the department's director. There, Bergman learned to play piano and participated in dinner theater performances among other things.

Dolph Reddish: following in father's footsteps, helping others

BY TRACY LEE TATE
Special to the Telegraph,
Monitor and Times

Following in a father's footsteps is sometimes difficult for sons, and meeting and exceeding the standard of excellence set by a father is even harder.

Dolph Eugene Reddish was born on the family farm in Heilbronn Springs on Aug. 27, 1932. He is the son of Pete D. "P.D." and Ruth (Sapp) Reddish—both members of old Bradford County families.

"The Reddishes were some of the first people to settle in Bradford County," Reddish said. "The family came down from Jessup in Wayne County, Ga., where there was a pair of father and son sheriffs. I've seen the first voter role for this county, and there are about a dozen Reddishes on it."

Reddish was the second oldest of seven boys, six of whom are still living and remain in the area. He is the only one, however, who followed in his father's footsteps into politics.

Reddish was named by his mother's brother Felix Sapp. He doesn't know why he was named Dolph and said he has often wished for a different name.

"It's just so uncommon," Reddish said. "When people ask you your name, and you tell them, half the time they don't understand and ask you to repeat yourself."

P.D. Reddish was a Bradford County commissioner and owned a successful truck farm. Reddish remembers that the family grew most of its own food, as well as sweet corn and strawberries, as cash crops. He even remembers plowing fields behind a mule when he was a boy.

In 1948, when Reddish was 17, his father ran for county sheriff and was elected by the slim margin of 20 votes. After the election, the family continued to live on the farm until April 1949, when P.D. moved them into town to a house on Broadway Street, near the jail. It seems that telephone service was not available at the farm, and the sheriff was required to have access to a phone.

The family still ran the farm, with Dolph Reddish overseeing the operation for his father. He graduated from Bradford High School in 1951 and continued to farm until December 1952, when he enlisted in the Air Force. During his four-year tour of duty as an aircraft mechanic, he served a year at Thule Air Force Base in Greenland (part of Denmark).

"Even today, I still consider my time in the service as one of the highlights of my life," Reddish said. "Here I was, a farm boy who had only been out of the state a couple of times,—and not far then—suddenly meeting a lot of people from everywhere. I enjoyed all the diverse backgrounds of my fellow soldiers, and I learned to be on my own and make decisions for myself. The whole experience was a great benefit to me."

Spending a year in the Artic Circle close to the North Pole did not provide Reddish with much to do or spend his pay on, so he saved his money. He said that by the time he was transferred to West Palm Beach Air Force Base for his final two years, he had saved up enough to buy himself a new 1955 Ford.

Reddish said several of his buddies at West Palm tried to get him to reenlist, but he was ready to come home, returning to Bradford County in December 1956.

"There really wasn't a lot going on then in the job market around here," Reddish said. "I knew I did not want to farm, so I went around applying for jobs. In March 1957, I was working at a temporary job at DuPont when my father called me and said he wanted me to take over the jail. I asked him when, and he said in a couple of days."

Reddish said he had never had any idea about getting into law enforcement, but he needed the job, so he took it. He moved into the jail (then on Broadway Street) with his family and stayed there until 1960. Reddish lived downstairs, and the prisoners lived upstairs.

"It was a very consuming job, with something going on all the time," Reddish said. "Dad was the boss. I had no training in law enforcement or corrections, but I soon learned. I guess you could say that I had on-the-job training."

At the time, the county had only two jailors, so Reddish would work the morning shift, while the other man worked second shift. The jail closed at midnight, but Reddish was on call all night and had to open up and process any prisoners who were brought in after hours.

The county also had only two deputies at that time, and one of them resigned, so Reddish found himself working as a deputy as well.

"I would work the mornings at the jail and then work second shift as a deputy," Reddish said. "Russell Redding was the other deputy. He drove a black, unmarked 1957 Dodge. I got to drive the car the deputy who had resigned had been driving, the first marked car owned by the BCSO—a 1957 Chevy Bel Air, painted green and white."

Reddish was also one of the first two deputies in the county to wear a uniform. It seems that the Florida Sheriffs Association passed a ruling on Oct. 1, 1956, that required all officers to have marked cars and that the deputies wear uniforms.

Redding and Reddish worked six months straight, seven days a week, without a day off unless they were sick, which didn't happen often. Finally, Redding talked Reddish into going to talk to his father to see if he would get them some help.

"I went to my dad's office and told him about the problem

The 'worst case ever' eventually got solved

Information for this story was derived from numerous Bradford County Telegraph stories from 1971 and 1975 and in an interview with former Bradford County Sheriff Dolph Reddish.

BY TRACY LEE TATE
Special to the Telegraph,
Monitor and Times

On the morning of Nov. 30, 1971, Bobbie Turner, 38, of Lake Geneva and Patricia (Pat) Marr, 22, of Melrose arrived at work at Nell's Style Shop.

Nell Duncan, who was taking the day off, owned the combination hair salon and boutique, located on C.R. 21 between Keystone Heights and Melrose. Turner's 16-year-old daughter, Valerie, a student at Keystone Heights High School, accompanied the women.

Valerie answered the phone about 8:45 a.m., taking a call from a patron checking an appointment time. The woman said the girl did not sound like anything was wrong.

At 9:30 a.m., another patron entered the store for an appointment and found the shop apparently empty and the phone ringing. She answered the phone, which was Duncan checking in. The patron, who told Duncan that no one seemed to be there, was asked to check in the back, where there was a small storeroom.

When the woman opened the storeroom door, she found a shocking scene. Bobbie Turner and Marr were lying on the floor, shot to death and nearly nude. Turner was wearing only a bra and had been shot four times. Marr was wearing only her shoes and had been shot five times.

The patron called law enforcement, but was so upset by her grisly discovery that her name was withheld by the Bradford County Sheriff's Office.

Upon arrival at the scene, then BCSO Deputy and Chief Investigator Dolph Reddish quickly determined that Turner's daughter, Valerie, was missing. There were no signs of sexual molestation (which was totally ruled out at autopsy) or of a struggle. It appeared that a small amount of money had been taken from the three women's purses and the salon's cash box (eventually determined to be about $12). The FBI was immediately called in, as kidnapping was a suspected issue.

The murders started a 40-plus-month odyssey for Reddish, who would become Bradford County Sheriff in just a little over a year. Tips came pouring in to the BCSO, with Reddish questioning 150 people in the first nine days after the crime.

"I just never could bring myself to give up on the case," Reddish said. "I had a desk drawer full of information, and I just kept at it whenever I could. I just couldn't let the case go cold."

On June 24, 1972, some children playing in a wooded area near S.R. 16 found a badly decomposed body. Using personal effects, the body was identified as the missing Valerie Turner. She had been shot three times. Reddish said the body had most likely lain there since the day of the other two murders.

Finally, after 40 months and two trips to California, Reddish obtained an indictment for Carl Robert Taylor. Taylor was currently serving time at Folsom Prison in San Quentin, Cal., with a further sentence awaiting him in Texas. Reddish traveled to California to bring him back to Florida, accompanied by an agent from FDLE. He described Taylor as "congenial," with a "generally good and cooperative attitude."

Taylor determined to be what was then known as a "cross-country killer"—what would be called a serial killer in today's terminology. He had been in and out of prison since 1966.

Charles and Charlene Blalock

Blalocks celebrate 60 years

On June 20, 2014, Charles and Charlene Blalock will celebrate 60 years of marriage.

Charles and Charlene met in St. Augustine, Florida in 1950, at Calvary Baptist Church. Charles' family made it a point to give Charlene a ride to church any time there was a service. Charles waited patiently for Charlene to finish High School (four years), while he worked for his Uncle Jake at Blalock's Grocery, there in St. Augustine.

Finally the day came that they were married in the same church in which they met.

They were blessed two years later with the world's most wonderful baby, Charles Edwin Blalock, Jr. (Eddie). Four years later God blessed with another son, just as wonderful, Jerry Michael Blalock.

In 1961 Charles was transferred to Starke, as manager of Food Fair Grocery, where he worked for several years.

Charles left the grocery business after several years, but by this time, they had fallen in love with the city of Starke and chose to make it their home.

During the 1970's Charles owned "Blalock's Meat Market" and many will remember him from that.

Their son, Eddie is currently pastor at the Orchard Community Church in Lake City. Jerry has retired from the Department of Corrections and is now serving with the police department in St. Augustine.

They were blessed with two great daughters-in-love, Beth Chapman Blalock and Lee Ann Green Blalock.

Madison Street Baptist Church has been (and still is) an integral part of the Blalock's lives. They have been active members there for 52 years where Charles served as deacon and Charlene has taught various ages in Sunday School.

They have enjoyed four grandchildren; five great-grandchildren and another on the way.

The Blalock family has truly been blessed by God and gives Him honor and glory for 64 wonderful years.

UCHS class of '56 holds 58th reunion

The Union County High School class of 1956 held its 58th reunion with an informal get-together at Cedar River in Starke on June 7.

Lowell Loadholtz, recipient of numerous awards and honored for a lifetime of distinguished service with his induction into the National Hall of Fame for County Agricultural Agents, served as master of ceremony. He also shared his talent as an auctioneer by auctioning off several items for the Sunshine Fund.

A social hour was followed by a Dutch-treat luncheon, at which plans were made concerning where the 59th reunion will be held. The monthly Lunch Bunch group was selected to work on the event.

Class members from outside Union County who attended were Loadholtz of Cocoa, Eldred Bivins of Earleton, Ronald Hersey and Shirley Guynn Patterson of Jacksonville and Donna Dekle Coleman of McAlpin.

To date, the class of 1956 has lost only seven members: Jimmy Nettles, G.A. Mole, Lamar Williams, Gary Roberts, Geneva Andrews Grimes, Kenneth Stafford and Josphine Crews Peeples. Nettles, Mole and Williams never had the opportunity to attend a reunion.

Larry and Valarie Coburn

Coburns celebrate 50 years

Happy 50th Anniversary Larry and Valarie Coburn!

As children, Larry and Valarie grew up just a block away from each other in Miami. They attended the same church and became High school sweethearts, at the age of 16. After graduation they got married on June 19, 1964. From high school Larry attended a four-year technical school, and has been a faithful protector and provider as a sheet-metal mechanic and other various types of construction for nearly 55 years. In 1974 they built with their own two hands the house in which they still reside. Valarie as a godly wife, mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother has made this house the beautiful home it is today. They have lived out their dream in raising a family, and living on a farm, in which they still enjoy their growing family, various gardens and all kinds of animal life. As a gift from their children, Larry and Valarie celebrated their 50th Anniversary in the romantic city of Savannah, Ga. They enjoyed at a bed and breakfast and stayed the sites and sounds of Savannah, including the famous Paula Deen

Tour where they feasted on good southern home cooking, followed by a family barbeque celebration at the Coburn residence.

Thank you mom and dad for making your home, a home of love and character, and allowing the beauty of Jesus to be seen in your commitment to each other through the toils, hardships and happiness of life. Congratulations, Happy 50th Anniversary!

REDDISH

we were having," Reddish said. "He listened very patiently, but I could tell he wasn't too happy. Finally, he looked at me and said, 'I don't remember telling you when I hired you that you would work just 40 hours a week, so get your behind back out there and go to work. I don't want to hear any more about this.'

"That was the end of the conversation. I told Mr. Reddish about it, and he just laughed, and we continued on for a while, but Dad did eventually hire another person."

Reddish said he has no really clear idea of why he stayed on the job. The only reason he could come up with was that he liked the job because it allowed him to help people.

He worked as a jailor/deputy until 1960, when he resigned his jailor position and used a Veterans Administration loan to build a home off Wilson Road. He became a full-time outside deputy, while his second-shift man at the jail moved in and took the day shift. As a combination jailor/deputy, Reddish said he had been making $300 a month plus room and board. Once he cut back to just being a deputy, he made about $400 a month and acquired a $70-a-month house payment.

As a deputy, Reddish said he got a lot of training, both formal (such as at the FBI Academy in 1969, where Reddish participated in the FBI School for Law Enforcement) and through experience, which has helped him, both in his work in law enforcement and later in the political arena. He said he learned to treat people well and to be as nice to them as was possible, although he allowed that you could only be so nice and still arrest someone.

He said he learned to make hard decisions and "to speak to people frankly and directly with limited BS." He quickly learned the best way was to tell it like it is and to make quick, right decisions based on the circumstances known at the time. He said if this was done sincerely, then the decision was usually the right one.

One of the hardest lessons for him was when he had to arrest someone he knew, especially if that person was a friend.

"When I first went to work for the sheriff's office, Bradford County had its share of moonshiners," Reddish said. "I remember going out to a still site on a raid with some state and federal officers. We would catch whoever was there, or wait for them until they showed up."

"We could tell the batch they were making was about ready to run off, so we all set up a perimeter and waited for the moonshiners to show up. About daylight, I was hiding in a bush about 200 yards out from the still, and the people showed up. One agent flushed them, and as they ran, we were supposed to catch them.

"I could see one of them running toward me at a high rate of speed, and as he got closer, I recognized him as a friend. I pulled my pistol—an old Luger—and shot up in the air. The gun sounded like a cannon going off, and my friend just stopped and wilted away (because) I scared him so bad.

"When he got straightened out, he came up to me and said, 'Dolph, what kind of damn gun is that?' I told him and then arrested him. We are still friends to this day, even though he didn't quit making moonshine."

Reddish found pleasure in the variety provided by his job. He said it was "not mundane, not the same all the time." He said he loved the diversity of situations he discovered and was proud of the fact that the job taught him the art of making quick decisions.

By 1971, he was chief investigator for the department, dealing with all of the serious crimes and felonies. It was in this capacity that he dealt with the case which he recalls as the "worst case" he ever dealt with in his entire career: the murders at Nell's Style Shop on Nov. 30, 1971. (See sidebar for details.)

Reddish was still investigating the case in 1972 when his father decided not to run for sheriff again. P.D. Reddish had been sheriff for 24 years and a county commissioner for 10 years before that, so he felt he had done his share for the people of the county. He told his son that the job was there if he wanted to try for it and that he would help him if he could.

Reddish faced seven opponents in his first election, and it served as a real eye-opener for him as to how "small-town (or county)" politics worked. "I had to go out and meet the public on different terms when running for office," Reddish said. "As a deputy, I was out there every day providing a service, but in an election, the tables were turned, so to speak. They weren't asking me for my help. I was asking them for theirs."

Reddish won the election and took office at midnight on Dec. 31, 1972. This first term started a 16-year odyssey as Bradford County sheriff.

He said that at the time he became sheriff, the BCSO had seven full-time deputies, either three or four full-time jailors and three office workers to keep up with the paperwork.

"The amount of paperwork required of my office, including the jail, was huge," Reddish said. "I knew money was going to be an issue and that keeping track of it was going to be a full-time job."

Reddish described himself as an "ultra fiscal conservative, who was even more conservative with the county's money than he was with his own." He said his solution to what he saw as a potential problem came in the form of a financial secretary.

"I was lucky to find an excellent—not just good—financial secretary in Grace Searle," Reddish said. "We devised a system where if a deputy needed something, he requested a purchase order for it, which Grace would sign after checking to see if the budget would allow the purchase. It then came to me, and if I thought it was all right, then I would sign it as well. If we didn't have the money, we didn't spend it."

Reddish remembered that when his father was sheriff, he would have a sort of "wish list" of items, which he would select from at the end of the year to purchase with any money left over in his budget. Reddish stresses that these were needed items, just not critically so.

"That was the mentality back then around the courthouse, the whole group of elected officials," Reddish said. "The thinking was clearly, 'If I don't spend it, someone else will, or else the county commission will cut my budget by that much next year.' I felt a little different."

Reddish said he always stayed within or under budget and turned any excess money left in his budget at the end of the year back to the county. This brought him some criticism from other county officials.

"At the end of the first year, I turned back a few thousand dollars," Reddish said. "The county tax collector at the time, J.R. Kelley, came to me and told me I couldn't do it. When I asked him why, he said it just wasn't the way things worked. When I persisted, he finally said that it was because it 'would make all the rest of us look bad.'"

Reddish was elected for three more terms, running unopposed and becoming, in fact, the first sheriff to do so in Bradford County. This state of affairs suiting Reddish, he said, because he never really liked getting out and politicking. His father told him it was the worst mistake in his career.

"Dad told me in 1976 that running unopposed and not getting out there to the people was the worst thing that could happen to me politically," Reddish said. "He told me I was losing my political base, which was hard work to build and even harder to rebuild. I guess he was proved right in the 1988 election."

Reddish was high man in the primary election of 1988, but lost in the run-off to Kenneth Etheridge. He credits his loss of his political base as one of the main reasons.

"My dad was right," Reddish said, "but then he was always more of a politician than I was. I like Kenneth and think he's a good man, and we are friends to this day."

Reddish said Etheridge's four years as sheriff were plagued with problems—not all of his making—and a sort of opposition party developed which asked Reddish to run again.

"I really didn't want to run again in 1992, but I did it just to quiet people down about it," Reddish said. "I was settling in to being retired, and my heart just wasn't in it. I had bought a farm—cows not crops—and I was enjoying life."

Once again, Reddish made a strong showing in the primary, garnering the most votes, but he lost in the run-off to Bob Milner, who went on to also serve the county for 16 years as Reddish had.

This second loss was it for Reddish, and he vowed never to throw his hat into the political ring again. He does, however, have many fond memories of the years he and his father served the county and is grateful that they had the opportunity.

"On behalf of my late father, P.D. 'Pete' Reddish, and myself, I want to thank all the citizens of Bradford County for allowing us to serve them," Reddish said. "Between us, we served for 40 years, 1948-1988, and both of us considered it to be a great honor."

Just because he no longer serves does not mean that Reddish doesn't keep up with what is going on in law enforcement.

"The biggest issues when I was in office were mainly felonies like theft and breaking and entering, with a few shootings and robberies mixed in," Reddish said. "The numbers then were very similar to those we see in the county today with one exception: drugs."

Reddish said drugs were not really an issue in the county until his last term (1984-88) as sheriff. He said that before that time, moonshine was the predominant illegal substance his deputies had to deal with.

"The first drug on the scene was marijuana," Reddish said. "It slowly replaced moonshine. It started with a few local people growing it for their own use. When they started selling it, the problem quickly grew. As drugs became more prominent, the people became very afraid and couldn't understand why law enforcement couldn't just stamp it out. My arrest record was as good or better than any since, but the problem didn't go away. It kept growing and getting worse every year."

"As the drug problem mushroomed nationally, not just in Bradford County, law enforcement budgets mushroomed right along with it. Today, it has become the single biggest issue in law enforcement, and the cost is astronomical. (See sidebar.) Not only do you have the cost of enforcement, (but) add in the costs of prosecution, incarceration, care and rehabilitation."

Reddish said law enforcement has changed since his time in the field, becoming more socialized and politicalized. He said it has expanded into areas where it didn't travel before, such as into the schools and more community outreach. He wonders if that "is really what it's for."

Budget quite different in Reddish's day

BY TRACY LEE TATE
Special to the Telegraph, Times and Monitor

The business of enforcing the law has changed a great deal since the days of P.D. Reddish and his son Dolph.

The scope of coverage in the community has increased greatly, as has the focus and emphasis placed on various areas addressed, but in no area has there been a greater increase as in the overall "cost of doing business."

The budget for the Bradford County Sheriff's Office, including the jail, for the 1988-99 fiscal year (the last budget compiled by Dolph Reddish) shows an initial budget request of $1,002,767, with a final commission-approved figure of $964,767 after the lack of county commission approval for the current budget year, 2013-14, is 26,850—an increase of about 20 percent since 1988. The 2013-14 BCSO budget has increased as well to $5 million. This translates to a cost of $186.22 for every man, woman and child in the county—an increase of about 431 percent.

According to the U.S. Census, the estimated population of Bradford County in 1988 was 22,355. The cost per person for funding the BCSO and Bradford County Jail was $43.16 per person in the county.

Census estimates of the Bradford County population for the current budget year, 2013-14, is 26,850—an increase of about 20 percent since 1988. The 2013-14 BCSO budget has increased as well to $5 million. This translates to a cost of $186.22 for every man, woman and child in the county—an increase of about 431 percent.

CASE

The trial began Sept. 22, 1975. It had already been ruled by Judge R.A. Green Jr. that the death penalty was not an option since the murders took place during the time that the U.S. Supreme Court had ruled the death penalty to be invalid. The judge also rejected motions from the defense that testimony given by Taylor in other states be disallowed in his trial.

The all-male, six-member jury heard testimony from law enforcement and 31 subpoenaed witnesses before finding Taylor guilty on three counts of first-degree murder. He was given three life sentences, to be served sequentially, but first had to be returned to California to finish out his terms there before then serving another term in Texas.

"It was the worst case I have ever handled in my years in law enforcement," Reddish said in a recent interview. "It was the most grisly and the most time-consuming case I have ever worked. I'm just glad it was finally solved."

Banquet honors TALKS students, mentors

The TALKS (Transferring a Little Knowledge Systematically) mentoring program held a banquet May 29, honoring the 58 students whose lives were touched by 21 mentors this past school year.

TALKS, designed by Bradford County Faith Community Center founder James E. McKnight Jr. and its director, Iana Patterson, is a program in which adult mentors share their wisdom with children in Bradford County's public schools. (TALKS has an agreement with the Bradford County School District to conduct the program on school campuses.) The belief is that an impact can be made on the life of a child with a minimal investment of time by an adult.

a lot of little parts of the arts," Bergman said of Canova. "That's where that started."

At Santa Fe, Bergman has been a part of the Santa Fe Jazz Ensemble and the Santa Fe Singers. Plus, he also earned a fine arts scholarship.

"He wants to be an educator of music," Combass said. "I think that's wonderful. That's going to touch a lot of people's lives."

It has all added up to quite a full college experience in a short amount of time. Canova said Bergman has certainly put his whole heart into his efforts, which makes watching his success rewarding.

"I'm proud that he's going back (to school) and trying to accomplish his dreams," Canova said.

He will eventually transfer to the University of Florida, but Bergman will never forget the start Santa Fe College gave him. In fact, if he hadn't been selected as an official ambassador, he would still be one. He loves to talk about Santa Fe College and what it can offer.

"Why would you not want to go to Santa Fe? It's wonderful," Bergman said. "It's in the (Aspen Institute's) top 10 (for community college excellence). It's right her local. It's everything you could want in a college."

As Bergman can also tell you, going to college is a viable option for a person of any age.

"All the things I wanted to do in high school, I'm doing now at the college level," he said. "I think it's kind of an example to anybody that it's never too late to go back and do those things."

CRIME

Recent arrests in Bradford Clay and Union

The following individuals were arrested recently by local law enforcement officers in Bradford, Union and Clay (Keystone Heights area) counties:

Bradford

Danyelle Lee Barreda, 28, of Melrose was arrested June 14 by Bradford deputies for child neglect and for probation violation. According to the arrest report, Barreda went to the Kangaroo store in the Midway area between Keystone and Melrose and tried to purchase beer. The clerk refused to sell her the beer as she was already intoxicated, holding an infant and falling down in the store. Barreda then tried to get into her vehicle to leave the store, but the clerk and several other customers took her baby from her and wouldn't let her drive away. The clerk told the deputy Barreda had already purchased several four-packs of beer earlier in the day, and the deputy discovered through dispatch that Barreda was already on probation for trafficking in stolen property and that part of her probation conditions was no alcohol or drugs. She was arrested, with no bond allowed for the charges.

Allen Brent Carlisle, 24, of Lake Butler was arrested June 15 by Bradford deputies for driving a vehicle without having a valid driver's license. Bond was set at $2,000 for the charge.

Christopher Lee Crawford, 26, of Starke was arrested June 11 by Bradford deputies for probation violation. Bond was set at $5,000 for the charge.

Kristi Nicole Crews, 21, of Starke was arrested June 10 by Starke police for battery. According to the arrest report, Crews and her boyfriend got into an argument, and when he tried to leave in his vehicle, Crews grabbed and scratched him as he tried to shut the door.

Robin Michelle Dampier, 23, of Lake Butler was arrested June 15 by Bradford deputies on an out-of-county warrant for failure to appear for original charge of disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $5,000 for the charge.

Robert Demps, 62, of Starke was arrested June 13 by Bradford deputies for driving while license suspended or revoked.

Derric James Dinnell, 32, of Starke was arrested June 14 by Starke police for driving under the influence, possession of marijuana and possession of drug equipment. According to the arrest report, Dinnell was driving and hit another vehicle at the intersection of Old Lawtey Road and S.R. 16. When police arrived, Dinnell admitted the accident was his fault, with the officer noting his speech was slurred and observing open beer cans in his vehicle. Dinnell refused to do the DUI tests, and a search of his vehicle turned up a pill bottle with marijuana in it, along with a pack of rolling papers. Dinnell was arrested and transported to the jail.

Brothers Cody David Dover, 23, of Starke and Jessey Lee Dover, 19, of Lake Butler were arrested June 12 by Bradford deputies for burglary and larceny for stealing two ATVs from two different residences, according to the arrest reports. In addition to the burglary and larceny charges, Jessey Dover was charged with criminal mischief-property damage and charged on three different out-of-county warrants from Columbia for failure to appear relating to original charges of driving with license suspended or revoked. The brothers were caught after one of the victims spotted someone driving an ATV near his property—an ATV the victim thought might be his even though it was black in color and his was yellow. The victim knew those particular ATVs come in only two colors, and black isn't one of them. The victim called law enforcement, and they went to Cody Dover's residence, eventually discovering the missing ATV hidden behind the house, which had been painted black. They also found another ATV that had been stolen in early April, with several people verifying both brothers had been seen driving the ATVs in the area recently. Bond was set at $45,000 for Jessey Dover's charges, and bond was set at $30,000 for Cody Dover's charges.

Lafonda Norman Garrard, 44, of Lake Butler was arrested June 14 by Bradford deputies for driving while license suspended or revoked.

Craig Hart, 51, of Starke was arrested June 16 by Starke police for possession of drug equipment. According to the arrest report, Hart was riding a bike and stopped by an officer. The officer stated Hart was riding in an area known for narcotics activity (Oak Street and Crosby Street) and that Hart was known by the officer as a narcotics user due to previous contacts. While questioning Hart, the officer spotted a metal homemade pipe secured to the bike rack, which had an odor of marijuana and marijuana residue in it. Hart was arrested, and his bike was taken to the police department.

Christopher Jermaine Henderson, 22, of Lawtey was arrested June 16 by Bradford deputies for burglary and contempt of court. According to the arrest report, the victim came home from work and found Henderson in her home and an unidentified female exiting her home. The victim, who had a no-contact order placed against Henderson previously, got in a verbal altercation with Henderson about him and the other person being in her home without her permission. Henderson left, and law enforcement was called. The victim discovered the rear door of the home had been opened and found candles burning and an alcoholic container unopened and still cold in the home. Henderson was located later by the deputy and arrested. Bond was set at $35,000 for the charges.

Michael Hudnall, 45, of Starke was arrested June 12 by Bradford deputies on an out-of-county warrant from Alachua for violation of a pre-trial release for original charge of domestic battery. Bond was set at $70,000 for the charge.

Chelsea Hudnell, 19, was arrested June 12 by Lawtey police for driving a vehicle without having a valid driver's license and possession of drug equipment. Bond was set at $3,000 for the charges.

Brian K. Jenkins, 43, of Lawtey was arrested June 15 by Bradford deputies for domestic battery. According to the arrest report, he punched and slapped his wife after getting into an argument during a cookout. The victim also told the deputies Jenkins had bruised her wrists and scratched her legs the previous day when he grabbed her to stop her from leaving their home to go to the store with a friend. Bond was set at $5,000 for the charge.

Christopher Mark Adam Lee, 27, of Keystone Heights was arrested June 13 by Bradford deputies for operating a vehicle without a valid driver's license, possession of drug equipment, destroying evidence, resisting an officer, escape, and on an out-of-county warrant from Alachua for failure to appear on original charges of driving with license suspended or revoked and possession of a controlled substance without a prescription. According to the arrest report, deputies were called to a residence near Keystone Heights by Lee's girlfriend about a stolen vehicle. Lee told his girlfriend he would go put gas in her car, but hadn't returned and had texted that the vehicle was broken down. While the deputy was talking with the girlfriend, Lee returned with the car and apologized to her, as she needed to leave for work. Determining the car wasn't stolen, the deputy started to leave, but he ran Lee's information through dispatch and discovered the warrant on him from Alachua County. The deputy returned and told Lee about the warrant, asked him to place his hands behind his back and searched him for a weapon. The deputy found a box with a pipe and a scouring pad commonly used for smoking crack. He started to place handcuffs on Lee when Lee took off running into the woods with the handcuffs on one of his arms. Lee circled back and appeared to be running to his residence, but he instead grabbed the box with the pipe that the deputy had placed on the ground and went back into the woods. A K-9 unit from Union Correctional was called, and Lee was eventually found in a nearby residence hiding under a lawnmower tarp underneath a porch. After being completely handcuffed, he told the officers he had thrown away the pipe while running in the woods. Bond was set at $320,000 for Lee's charges.

Charles Edward Lee, 50, of Lawtey was arrested June 14 by Bradford deputies for driving while license suspended or revoked. Bond was set at $500 for the charge.

Denario Marquontis Lewis, 20, of Starke was arrested June 15 by Bradford deputies for probation violation. No bond was allowed for the charge.

Leigh Phillip Pinckney, 20, of Lawtey was arrested June 11 by Lawtey police for trespassing.

Cory Dequilla Randall, 34, of Putnam Hall was arrested June 16 by Bradford deputies for possession of marijuana. According to the arrest report, Randall was stopped for speeding, and the deputy could smell marijuana in the vehicle. A search of Randall turned up a small bag of marijuana, plus over $1,400 in cash, which he eventually admitted was proceeds from selling marijuana.

Deon Jamal Sewell, 24, of Starke was arrested June 14 by Bradford deputies during a traffic stop for possession of marijuana.

Sarah Louise Sizemore, 50, of Keystone Heights was arrested June 14 by Bradford deputies for cruelty toward a child. According to the arrest report, Sizemore came home intoxicated and slapped the 15-year-old victim in the face for no apparent reason.
