Emotional welcome for Atlantis

Thursday landing ends 30-year shuttle program

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — The space shuttle passed into history Thursday, the words “wheels stop” crackling over the cockpit radio for the very last time.

In an almost anticlimactic end to the 30-year-old program, Atlantis and its four astronauts glided to a ghostly landing in near-darkness after one last visit to the International Space Station, completing the 135th and final shuttle flight.

It was a moment of both triumph and melancholy. “I saw grown men and grown women crying today — tears of joy to be sure,” said launch director Mike Leinbach. “Human emotions came out on the runway today, and you couldn’t suppress them.”

Now the spaceship and the two other surviving shuttles will become museum pieces, like the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo capsules and the Wright brothers’ flying machine before them.

NASA astronauts, a dwindling breed, will have to hitch rides to the space station aboard Russian Soyuz capsules for at least three to five years. And thousands more shuttle workers will lose their jobs, beginning with a round of layoffs on Friday.

The spaceship’s return was witnessed at the Kennedy Space Center and Houston’s Johnson Space Center by a relatively small Edna Foster remembers her parents, Jack and Mary Wims: Each had a heart full of compassion and love for their community and each other.

As a child, watching the passion they had for wanting to better their neighborhood left an impression Foster said she carried with her into adulthood.

But now she hopes sharing the story of her parents will touch the younger generation and show them how important it is to do more than just exist. “Young people don’t know what our older people contributed to the community. It’s not about being here,” she said. “We need to make a contribution to our lives.”

That is something she said both her parents stood for and became an essential part of the legacy they left behind.

The Wims came to Crystal River from Red Level in 1943. Foster remembers their first home being a meager, run-down shanty on Citrus Avenue that they rented for only Inverness Airport Business Park is ready to take off. It just needs businesses.

Taking a proactive stance, two Citrus County business leaders will attend a major air show next week to woo businesses to the business park.

“While the Inverness business park has been discussed for many years, we believe now is the time to move forward and work to bring the business park to the next phase, from the proposal to a reality,” said Citrus County Commissioner Joe Meek, president of the Citrus County Economic Development Council. “We are

YMCA camp introduces kids to dancing, crafts

SAMANTHA KENNEDY
Chronicle Intern

HOMOSSASSA SPRINGS — On Thursday, the YMCA Cultural Kids camp was nearing the end of the week when Pansey “Grey Eagle” Cleaveland and a few other members of the Red Eagle Lodge of West Central Florida paid a visit to the Y Camp.

“I want them to remember the traditions and crafts,” Cleaveland said, “They need to realize and understand where it all came from.”

At the headquarters of Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park along U.S. 19, Cleaveland and her group introduced the children to elk, buffalo, fox, beaver, and muskrat hides. The kids were allowed to touch and feel them all.

“The only thing I won’t bring is the skunk hide,” Cleaveland said. “Even now, if you pull its tail, it still smells like a fresh skunk.”

Also, the children had the chance to view a collection of different arrowheads, bone knives, turtle shell dance rattles, drums, and different bones. Cleaveland explained to the group, “You use what you kill, no matter what.”

Once the group was taken upstairs, they were put in what Cleaveland referred to as a “powwow circle.”

They began learning different Native American dances, starting with the Round Dance, which was played on the drums.

The boys were brought to the inside of the circle and the girls were placed on the outside. The entire group then spun in a clockwise pattern.

During the dance, the Hernando County Y group, which was on a field trip to the Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park as well, joined the local Y group.

After the dance ended, they played a women’s traditional song, where there are also four men in the dancing circle. The men stand on the four corners: north, south, east and west. This is a protection method for the women.

As the day progressed, the children were able to engage in more dances, and went on to make crafts such as bracelets and necklaces.

Dawsey receives national award

Forty and Eight taps sheriff as National Law Officer of the Year

CHERI HARRIS
Staff Writer

Earlier this summer, Citrus County Sheriff Jeff Dawsey was named Florida’s Law Officer of the Year by an independent fraternal organization of U.S. veterans commonly known as the Forty and Eight.

Now the same organization has named him the National Law Officer of the Year.

“About a week ago I found out that I had won the national award,” Dawsey said.

He thanked the Voiture Nationale of La Societe des Quarante Hommes et Huit Chevaux, as the organization is formally known, and described the honor as “humbling and overwhelming.”

“The whole agency shares in the award,” he said.

He will accept the award in mid-September at the society’s 92nd annual conference in Vancouver, Wash.

Dawsey said he had been nominated for the state award and went through an interview process that relied heavily on a portfolio the organization put together about background.

“They really go through your whole career in law enforcement and they document it,” Dawsey said. The interview process for the national award was not as in-depth, but he said only state award winners are eligible for the national recognition.

Dawsey’s background includes his role in obtaining state and national accreditation status for the Citrus County Sheriff’s Office, the Jessica Lunsford murder investigation and subsequent state legislation known as the Jessica Lunsford Act, the agency’s extensive use of volunteers, and partnerships with the Citrus County School Board, the Citrus County Commission and the Florida Department of Children and Families.

The Forty and Eight formed in March 1920 by Joseph W. Breen, a member of the newly formed American Legion, and 15 other prominent Legionnaires who envisioned a new and different level of elite membership and camaraderie for leaders of the American Legion committed to charitable goals.

The independent organization’s national award program recognizes a law enforcement officer who has done an outstanding job of performing his or her duties, both past and present.

“I truly am overwhelmed,” Dawsey said of the recognition from the Forty and Eight. “A national award of this caliber, presented by the extraordinary men and women of the Forty and Eight, easily is one of the major highlights of my law enforcement career.”

CLM Workforce holding career workshops

Workforce Connection of Citrus, Levy and Marion counties has again teamed up with Monster.com to help job seekers.

Workforce's month of Career Launch programs begins with the Monster Power Seeker Workshop from 8 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 10, at the College of Central Florida's Klein Conference Center, 3001 S.W. College Road, Ocala. There is no charge to attend, but participants should register at www.clmworkforce.com.

The workshop is designed to help those struggling with unemployment to create strong resumes, build lasting career networks, find the best career advice and sharpen interview skills. Participants will receive an electronic toolkit of tips and strategies.

Job seekers are invited to become Premier Candidates, granting early admission to the Talent Marketplace Career Fair set for Aug. 31. Premier Candidates also benefit by having their resumes included on an electric database provided to employers at the career fair, which takes place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at CF's Klein Conference Center.

Only 100 job seekers will be designated as Premier Candidates. Those who attended the career fair in May are also eligible to take part in the program. To earn premier status, candidates must: Post a full application and resume on the Employ Florida Marketplace, www.employflorida.com; complete a "Navigating the new world of work" workshop (six workshops are available to choose from — five in Ocala and one in Lecanto); register at Calendar of Events at www.clmworkforce.com; create at least one electronic, targeted resume approved by Workforce staff (two resume labs are available for those needing guidance); and receive "thumbs up" on their Talent Marketplace attire.

For more information, visit www.CLMworkforce.com or call (800) 434-JOBS.

RUN FOR THE MONEY 2011

BRIAN LAPETER/Chronicle

Upon the Suwannee

Runners and Key Center clients crossed the Suwannee River bridge on U.S. 19 on Thursday morning during the fourth day of the Run for the Money, the Key Training Center's annual fundraiser. The run from Tallahassee to the Key Center ends Saturday with festivities at the Lecanto campus.

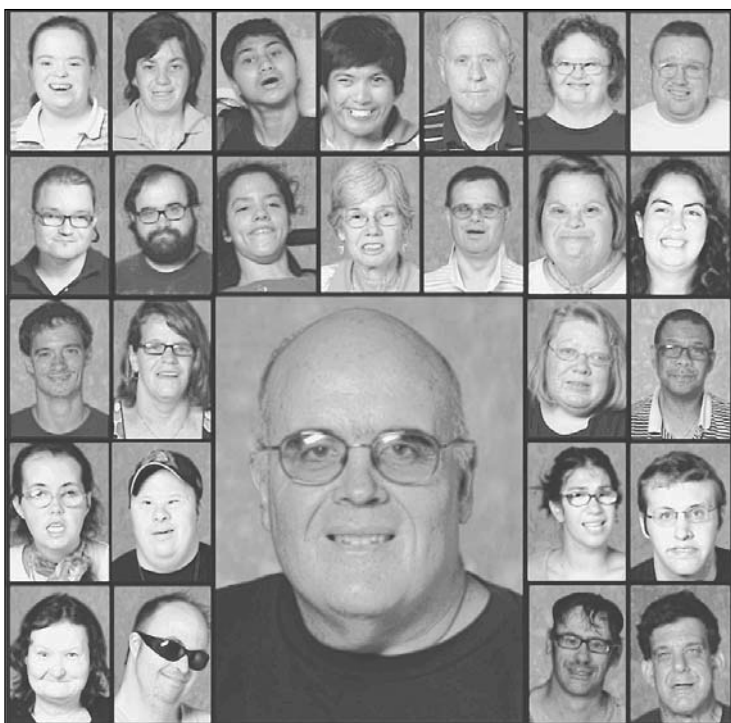

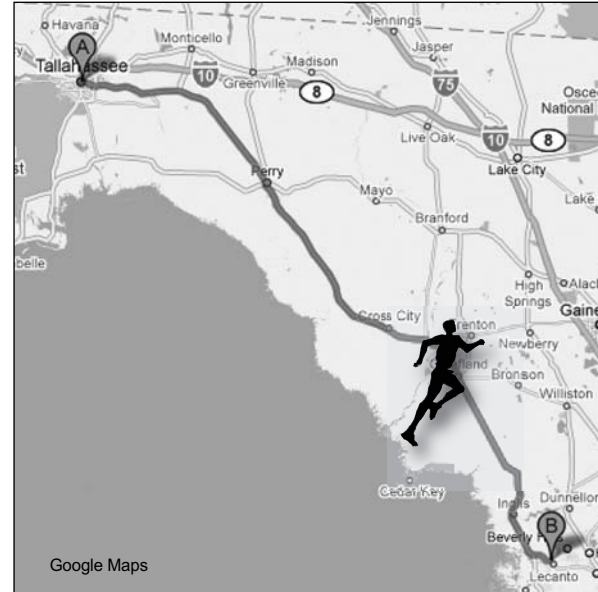

EDITOR'S NOTE

It's Run for the Money Week, with runners taking turns covering the 180 miles between the Capitol in Tallahassee and the Key Training Center campus in Lecanto. While the grueling journey is to raise awareness about the developmentally disabled, it is especially significant in that it brings attention to the need for donations to cover the expenses of Key clients who don't receive government support. Featured here is a quote from a parent whose child receives a Key Center scholarship, a photo of the child and an individual who is participating in the run.

"The Key Training Center has given Eddie Zadronzy a place where he belongs and is comfortable. It's been a wonderful thing for him. ... Eddie has progressed in many ways. He's considerate of other's feelings, helpful around the house, he's independent, and he earns money. He's proud of that! We couldn't have Eddie at the Key without his scholarship. We thank everyone who gave Eddie the chance to go to there."

Former assistant county attorney in line to become TPO counsel

MIKE WRIGHT
 Staff Writer

INVERNESS — A former assistant county attorney is in line to become new attorney for the Citrus County Transportation Planning Organization.

During a meeting Thursday night, TPO members chose Michele Lieberman over former County Attorney Robert "Butch" Battista and Inverness private attorney Denise Lyn.

Three members of the TPO — Commissioner Joe Meek, Inverness Councilman Cabot McBride and Crystal River Councilman Ron Kitchen — gave the nod to Lieberman in balloting that followed interviews with all three.

Councilwoman Paula Wheeler of Crystal River and Jacquie Hepfer of Inverness had Lyn atop their ballot. Commissioners Rebecca Bays and Winn Webb were absent.

The final vote to have Meek negotiate a contract with Lieberman was 5-0.

TPO members were pleased with the applicants.

"We can't lose with the three people we have here," Hepfer said.

Lieberman was Battista's assistant county attorney from 2002 to 2007. She went into private practice, though she still works for the county as its code compliance special master, ruling on code cases.

Lieberman said the only way her work with the county would create a conflict as the TPO attorney would be if the planning organization wanted to sue the county for any reason.

The TPO is completing its first year of existence. The make-up — two council members each from the cities of Inverness and Crystal River, three county commissioners and one non-voting member of the Citrus County Economic Development Council — is designed to create a unified county front for transportation issues.

Speaking with one voice opens the county up for state and federal dollars for local transportation projects.

Lieberman will replace Tampa attorney Fred Busack, who helped create the TPO in Citrus County and crafted its bylaws.

A TPO majority in April voted to seek another attorney because of Busack's role in proposing the Port Citrus project. Council members on the TPO said they thought Busack was showing more of an allegiance to the county commission than the TPO.

The attorney's position is not full-time. Meek and Lieberman will negotiate a retainer and hourly rate for legal services. Chronicle reporter Mike Wright can be reached at (352) 563-3228 or mwright@chronicleonline.com.

State BRIEFS

Scott backs off a bit on public record fees

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Gov. Rick Scott has backed off slightly on the fees he slapped on requests for public records.

Scott's office on Thursday announced a couple changes to reduce the cost of obtaining records from the governor's office.

There no longer will be a fee for the first 30 minutes of staff time it takes to process any request.

Also, the charge for staff time will be $19.43 per hour. That's the pay rate for an administrative assistant in the governor's Office of Open Government.

Previously the rates could be dramatically higher because they were based on the salaries of those staffers whose records were requested.

Anthony attorney receiving threatening calls

SANFORD — The wife of one of Casey Anthony's defense attorneys called the Seminole County Sheriff's Office because of the number of threatening phone calls they've received in recent weeks.

Shirley Mason, whose husband Cheney Mason represented Anthony, told deputies on Tuesday that someone posted their phone number on Facebook that Reports indicate callers have left voice mails stating that Anthony "can run but she can't hide" and warning that Mason and attorney Jose Baez "better sleep with one eye open."

going to attempt to do that and we are going on the offensive."

Josh Wooten, president and CEO of the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce, and John Siefert, executive director of the EDC, plan to be a part of the 2011 AirVenture in Oshkosh, Wis., next week. The event draws more than 500,000 people from more than 60 countries to the Wittman Regional Airport. They will try to interest some of those people in the business park.

The business park is about 80 acres owned by the county, zoned for industrial purposes and ready to be equipped with Inverness water and sewer services. Behind the business park are about 400 privately owned acres that have a potential for future development.

A fixed base operator, called an FBO, has been staffed to provide support services to aviation operators. The fully equipped airport will feature aviation fuel, aircraft ground handling, aircraft parking with ramp or tie-down, hangars, hangar leasing or sales, passenger terminal and lounge, flight training, aircraft rental and aerial tours for sightseeing.

"The FBO is going to be very aggressive in offering services to the aviation community," Siefert said.

He explained the airport's connection to the air show in Oshkosh.

"The person that runs that FBO is a member of the board of directors of this AirVenture," Siefert said. "It's an annual event to which thousands upon thousands of manufacturers of airplanes and airplane parts and suppliers come. There are avionics and all kinds of electronics equipment. Even Boeing is coming with their new 787 Dreamliner."

Siefert and Wooten will make contact with many manufacturers.

"It's an opportunity under one roof to talk to people that we're not normally exposed to in Citrus County, that build planes, that supply parts to the plane manufacturers, and we want to talk to them about moving to this industrial park," Siefert said. "And we can do it on a 10,000-square-foot building or 150,000-square-foot building because we have that much room there."

Meek outlined several factors in their favor for bringing businesses to the airport.

Those factors include:
 ■ The new FBO running the Inverness Airport is motivated, has a good understanding of the aviation business and what is necessary to make it successful.

■ The 5,000-foot extension to the runway has been completed.

■ The county now has the economic incentive packages in place to attract and offer competitive recruitment of business to the county, including tax abatement programs, job creation grants, infrastructure improvement grants, tangible tax relief and other incentive programs.

■ Road and infrastructure improvements to the business park.

■ A large amount of available land.

Location would be another factor, Siefert said, as Florida has two aircraft manufacturers, one in Vero Beach and another in Melbourne.

"For somebody who supplies those manufacturers, hydraulics or avionics or something like that, they could very easily get them from here to there without transportation problems," Siefert said.

Meek said the county would be looking for suppliers and manufacturers of products that would complement the aviation industry.

After being a concept for several years, the business park is seen as finally coming together. It fits in with the overall goals of the chamber, EDC, county commission and other business partners to bring targeted industries to the county to increase economic diversity.

Siefert said the business alliance had been helping smooth the way for companies to come to the county, and is getting more aggressive.

"We've been reactive to those companies that express an interest," Siefert said. "But we haven't been proactive like this is — going out and talking to them and saying, 'Here we are, we've got what you want, and you are most welcome to our county.'" with a variety of relay competitions. Whittaker described it as a combination of events similar to those featured on the TV shows "Wipeout" and "Minute to Win It."

The timed relay challenge includes tasks such as blowing up a balloon, tying it and sitting on it to pop it, a three-legged race, carrying an uncooked egg with a wooden spoon without breaking the egg, and sealing an inflatable rock climbing wall.

"I know they can get through the four different challenges," Whittaker said, "because I did it."

Registration is $50 per team; team size is seven or fewer. Trophies will go to first-, second- and third-place winners. Whittaker said these rotating trophies are "a little on the crazy side."

The annual softball game that pits Key Center consumers — those served by the Key — against a team of deputies from the Citrus County Sheriff's Office also starts at 9 a.m. Another game starts at 10 a.m.

"Our champs are planning on continuing their no-loss streak," Whittaker said.

An arts and crafts sale featuring items made by Key Center consumers will start at 8 a.m. in the Imagination Workshop. Items for sale while they last will include bracelets and necklaces, trinket boxes, T-shirts, hats and Christmas ornaments.

From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Gold Fever Band will rock the Life Enrichment Center, providing a lively background to carnival games provided by Kiwanis of Homosassa Springs. Beef 'O' Brady's will have hamburgers and hot dogs for sale. Key Center consumers will have a cookout.

During this time, there will also be a butterfly exhibit on the Key campus provided by a butterfly farm in Dunnellon. Citrus County Cruisers will also have vintage vehicles on display, all classic lines and gleaming chrome.

Runners are expected to arrive at noon "to cheers and applause and great celebration," Whittaker said.

At 3 p.m., Marilynne Denison will lead participants in Zumba for the Key. Cost to participate is $10 per person. Whittaker said the trained Zumba instructor will have help from Key consumers in leading the exercise party that lasts until 5 p.m. Whittaker said participants can take breaks, sit down and relax and enjoy light refreshments during the two-hour event.

"What we tried to do," Whittaker said, "was create a day that would celebrate and provide an exciting opportunity for people to come out, join with Key Center consumers, get to meet them and know them and to share their excitement."

SHUTTLE

crowd, mostly of NASA family and friends, compared with the 1 million who watched Atlantis lift off on July 8.

In Houston, flight director Tony Ceccacci, who presided over Atlantis' safe return, choked up while signing off from Mission Control for the final time.

"The work done in this room, in this building, will never again be duplicated," he told his team before the doors opened and the center filled with dozens of past and present flight controllers.

Shuttle commander Christopher Ferguson and his crew seized every opportunity to thank the thousands of workers who got them safely to and from orbit and guided them through the 13-day flight.

"After serving the world for over 30 years, the space shuttle's earned its place in history. And it's come to a final stop," he radioed after Atlantis touched down just before dawn.

"We copy your wheels stop," Mission Control replied. "Job well done, America."

NASA is getting out of the business of sending cargo and astronauts to the space station, outsourcing the job to private companies.

The first privately operated supply run is expected later this year. But it will be an unmanned flight. It could be several years before private companies fly astronauts to the space station, which is expected to carry on for at least another decade. In the meantime, NASA will rely on the Russians for rides.

The longer-term future for American space exploration is hazy, a huge concern for many at NASA. President Barack Obama has set a goal of sending astronauts to an asteroid by 2025 and Mars in the mid-2030s. But the space agency has yet to even settle on a rocket design.

Thursday, though, belonged to Atlantis and its crew: Ferguson, co-pilot Douglas Hurley, Rex Walheim and Sandra Magnus, who during their mission delivered a year's worth of food and other supplies to the space station and took out the trash.

They were greeted with cheers, whistles and shouts by 2,000 people who gathered near the landing strip — astronauts' families and friends, as well as shuttle managers and NASA brass. Ferguson and his crew were later swarmed on the runway by well-wishers.

Bringing the shuttle home in the dark was not exactly a dramatic way to end the program. NASA actually had two landing opportunities Thursday morning — one before daybreak, the other 90 minutes, or one orbit, later, both of them dictated by the day and time of launch and the length of the mission. But NASA always prefers to use the first available landing opportunity because the weather in Florida can deteriorate rapidly. And the space agency had no intention of departing from that practice merely for a better photo op.

As a thank-you to workers — especially those losing their jobs — NASA parked Atlantis outside its hangar for several hours so employees could gather round and say goodbye. Close to 1,000 stood in the midday heat, waving American flags and paper fans and photographing the shuttle.

The shuttle was NASA's longest-running space exploration program, making its inaugural flight in 1981.

Shuttles launched the Hubble Space Telescope and fixed its blurry vision; built the space station, the world's largest orbiting structure; and opened the final frontier to women, minorities, schoolteachers, even a prince. The first American to orbit the Earth, John Glenn, became the oldest person ever in space, thanks to the shuttle. He was 77 at the time; he turned 90 this week.

Jessie's Place now offering in-house counseling services

SHEMIR WILES
Staff Writer

BEVERLY HILLS — Continuing on the course of helping children who have experienced abuse and neglect, Citrus County's child advocacy center (CAC), Jessie's Place, now offers in-house counseling services to help families cope.

Starting July 1, the center began providing counseling for children ages 3 to 18 and a non-offending parenting support group on Thursday evenings.

Melissa Bowermaster, a victim advocate for the Citrus County Sheriff's Office and Jessie's Place board member, said three of the four part-time, contracted therapists offer trauma intervention and trauma recovery counseling. The therapists develop treatment plans for each individual child and help the child for as long as needed, depending on the plan.

The remaining therapist conducts the support group specifically for non-offending parents.

Bowermaster said having the ability to provide in-house counseling services at Jessie's Place has been in the making for three years and all concerned are excited to see the dream fulfilled. Currently, there are about 15 children utilizing the free services.

In the past, Sunshine Arnold — a Jessie's Place board member and program director for the University of Florida Child Protective Team — said they would have to refer children and their families to CACs in Brooksville and Ocala for treatment. That became a problem because many of the parents were having trouble transporting their child once or sometimes twice a week to a CAC outside of the county.

With counseling services being available in-house, Arnold said parents are more likely to comply with treatment and it makes it easier for the staff to follow up with families.

"We're seeing them more on a weekly basis," she said. "Plus, it's good for the staff because we get to see these kids are improving."

Arnold explained how important it is for children who have suffered trauma to have stability in their life. She said to imagine going to a new doctor in a new town and the unease that can cause; then, multiply that feeling by 10. She said that is what children feel when they are being bounced from place to place, especially during a distressing time in their life.

However, when a child can stay at Jessie's Place, Arnold said, they come in with less anxiety because they are familiar with the people and surroundings and they can do certain things like play with the same toy they played with last time they were there.

"They remember this place," she said.

In addition, Bowermaster said having the in-house counseling services makes it easier to provide children with immediate care. There is no waiting list, she said, and the staff is now capable of controlling the quality and scheduling of care, which was not possible before.

The new in-house counseling services are available to child victims of abuse who are going through the court system. It is not open to the public. For more information about Jessie's Place, visit www.jessiesplacecitrus.org or their page on Facebook called "Jessie's Place—Citrus County Children's Advocacy Center."

COUPLE

$1 a week. It was the only kind of home blacks could afford to live in during that time.

"There were no decent homes for blacks," Foster said.

Mary Wims worked shucking oysters and cleaning houses while Jack Wims worked many jobs including being a turpentine worker, an oyster gatherer and a cedar mill worker. But along the way, he also learned construction and in 1950, built his first home, which still sits on the corner of Northeast Sixth Terrace and Northeast Eighth Avenue.

During that same time, Foster said her father began working for Florida Rock in Brooksville, and he would haul rock from Brooksville to Crystal River to build Eighth Avenue, which at the time was just a dirt path, into a road.

Once he left Florida Rock, he started to work in construction, building more homes near his first one. Foster said her father's passion to help provide nice, affordable places for blacks to live in Crystal River grew when he became a Christian in 1954. He believed it was what the Lord wanted him to do, she said.

"He had the vision for trying to help people," Foster said.

Bertha Brooks-Walker, who knew Jack Wims, said there were times tenants couldn't pay their rent, but he would let them stay because of the children or because the parents were simply out of work.

Foster said while her dad worked on building and buying homes, her mother managed them. Ethel Joyner said Mary Wims would call her sometimes and they would talk about the problems and joys of being their husbands' bookkeepers.

Jack Wims brought about 10 units to the city before dying suddenly on June 26, 1986. Foster said her mother continued to manage the homes until 1984, when she and her brother, James, took over.

Mary Wims died Feb. 6, 2001.

Even now, Foster said people still come up to her and thank her for all that her parents gave to Crystal River.

"They were friends to many people," she said.

Samuel Joyner met Jack Wims during the summer of his last year in high school, when they both were working on building County Road 491 from Lecanto to Brooksville. Ever since their first meeting, Joyner said they became good friends and worked on other projects together.

They had good times together, like the time they were racing cars down U.S. 19 and were chased by police. Joyner said Jack Wims turned on State Road 44 and headed to Inverness while he drove around town for a while before heading to Inverness.

Eventually Joyner said one of the officers found him and hauled him off to jail. When he got there, Jack

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

■ Bernice Knight: Knight, who grew up in Crystal River, recalled how Mary Wims would pick up children in the neighborhood to make sure they went to church every Sunday.

"I remember getting pinched in church and her fussing if you forgot your Easter speech," she said with a laugh. "She always gave me the easiest one."

■ Gerladine Walker: Walker said she knew the Wims for years and became their neighbors in 1968 when she moved two houses down from them. She also said the Wims' daughter, Edna Foster, was her hairdresser.

"Ms. Mary was always a sweet lady. Very quiet," she said. "She was an easy person to talk to and I liked the way she carried herself. She had a lot of influence on my life by just watching her."

■ Carrie Hicks: When Hicks moved to Crystal River in 1979, she met Mary Wims at church.

"I remember her as a teacher. She taught young women how to dress and carry ourselves. She taught us about keeping house and loving our husbands," she said. "She was a virtuous woman and a living example to young people."

■ Velma Foster-Lockett: The eldest grandchild, Foster-Lockett said she has fond memories of spending almost every summer at her grandparents' home.

"They had a heart for people. They were God-fearing people," she said. "And they helped everyone they could."

■ Betty Jackson: Jackson said she spent so much time at the Wims' home with their daughter, she became like family.

"This was like home. I never felt like a stranger or visitor," she said. "Mr. Jack was just like a second father to me. They were a loving couple and always welcomed me like another daughter."

■ Cassandra Wims: Cassandra Wims said the key to her in-laws' mark on the community was their giving nature.

"They were both very strong, quiet people, and when they spoke, you listened," she said in an email. "Our youngest son learned that as a toddler. She'd take him out when there were errands to do and he was told to leave his hand in her apron pocket and not to take it out ... He would obey and do just as told. People were amazed to see this."

■ Bertha Brooks-Walker: Brooks-Walker said she knew them as Chairman Deacon Wims and Mother Wims.

"He was a philosopher and scholar of the written Word. We often refer to Deacon Wims' words when we are in Bible study or teaching our young people," she said. "Mother Wims was a woman of great character, splendid reputation, eloquent and a champion in patience. She never hesitated to help those who were less fortunate than she."

Wims was already there.

"I asked him, 'What are you doing here?' and he said, 'I don't know,'" Samuel Joyner said with a laugh.

Ethel Joyner, however, remembers the remarkable kindness of Mary Wims. When she first married Samuel, she said she didn't know how to drive and Mary Wims would routinely call to see if she needed to go to town.

"I'd say, 'Ms. Mary, can you take me to the clinic today? The kids need their shots,'" she said, "and she would drop what she was doing. She was a loving lady."

Mary Francis Watkins said she knew Mary Wims as Sister Wims when she attended the Unity Church of Christ Written in Heaven of Crystal River. She also was able to see personally just how wonderful of a seamstress Mary Wims was when she made her 25th wedding anniversary dress.

"It was made with gray sequins and it was a long gown," she said, "and she made it from scratch."

For Willie Joyner, he said he would always remember

Jack Wims being a man of faith and having a caring soul.

"I took that for an example," he said. "He was a man of his word. He made me believe in myself."

An aerial view shows Pag-asa Island, part of the disputed Spratly group of islands, Wednesday in the South China Sea off the coast of western Philippines. A group of Filipino lawmakers flew Wednesday to the Philippine-occupied island in the disputed South China Sea to assert their claim to the potentially oil-rich region in defiance of China's protest that the visit threatens regional stability.

Boredom the biggest burden for residents of disputed area

Asian nations vie for potentially oil-rich waters

Associated Press

PAG-ASA ISLAND, South China Sea — This speck of a sun-splashed island in the turquoise South China Sea has little sign of the tensions that have consumed politicians and diplomats in distant Asian capitals.

Six different nations are pressing their stake to all or part of these potentially oil- and gas-rich waters teeming with fish. Most recently, the Philippines and Vietnam have been wrangling with China in a noisy territorial dispute that is dominating this week's Asian security forum in Bali.

And yet, here on Pag-asa, the only sounds are the waves slapping the shore and the wind whistling in the ears. At high noon, fighting off sleep is a struggle.

There are no cars, newspapers, Internet connections or shopping malls on an island that mostly consists of a single gravel airstrip and some structures. This, one of the nine islands, reefs and shoals occupied by Philippine troops, is also claimed by China, whose looming presence is a worry for outgunned neighbors.

Two Filipino police officers, looking bored, say there hasn't been a single crime for years. "One big problem really is how to kill time," said Mayor Eugenio Bito-onon Jr. of Kalayaan town, which includes Pag-asa.

"After fishing, walking around, playing billiards and cards, what else can one do next?" wondered the bespectacled mayor.

The tadpole-shaped, 91-acre Pag-asa, or 'hope' in the Tagalog language, is the biggest of the Philippine-held islands in the South China Sea's Spratlys archipelago. Taiwan, Brunei, Malaysia and Vietnam also claim the islands. The battle for ownership has settled into an uneasy standoff since the last fighting, involving China and Vietnam, killed more than 70 Vietnamese sailors in 1988.

Tensions flared again this year after the Philippines and Vietnam separately accused China of encroaching into their territorial waters, sabotaging oil exploration and harassing fishermen. China, which claims the entire South China Sea on historical grounds, acknowledges some of the incidents in what it says are its waters, and Beijing has warned other claimants to stop exploring for oil and gas without its permission.

The incidents, accusations and feelings of hurt national pride carried over to Bali and this week's meeting of the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations. On Wednesday, China announced it was ready to firm up existing nonbinding guidelines for behavior in the contested waters.

Philippine Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario balked, saying the guidelines have no teeth.

And at the opening of Vietnam's National Assembly Thursday, Deputy Prime Minister Nguyen Sinh Hung talked tough, saying Hanoi will "resolutely and comprehensively ... implement measures to defend the country's sovereignty, protect fishermen, economic and trade activities and protect oil and gas exploration and exploitation activities under its sovereign seas."

Washington says it is ready to play a role to peacefully resolve the row, but China has warned the U.S. to stay away.

Longtime resident Obnor Lenasic said the news does not bother villagers. He said nationals from rival claimants have learned to live together in the disputed region.

In the past, Chinese and Vietnamese forces would fire warning shots when others neared their islands. Filipinos would raise fish on skewers to signal they were just fishing. The soldiers would smile and spread their palm to beg for some of the catch, Bito-onon said.

“One big problem really is how to kill time. After fishing, walking around, playing billiards and cards, what else can one do next?”

Eugenio Bito-onon Jr.
mayor of Kalayaan town.

Gov't proposes clearer labeling of meat additives

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department wants consumers to know when there's less chicken in their chicken.

A proposed rule aimed at food companies would require that poultry and other raw meats be labeled appropriately when they're plumped up by added solutions such as chicken broth, teriyaki sauce, salt or water. The practice of adding those ingredients is common, but many consumers don't know about it.

According to USDA, about one-third of poultry, 10 percent of beef and 90 percent of pork may have added ingredients — about 40 percent of all raw, whole cuts of meat. The rule does not apply to ground beef, which may have other added substances.

"Consumers should be able to make an informed choice in the store, which is why we need to provide clear, informative labels that will help consumers make the best decisions about feeding their families," said Elisabeth Hagen, head of food safety at the department. "It has become evident that some raw meat and poultry labels, even those that follow our current Labels now say that the meat contains added solutions or is "enhanced," but they may not be visible to consumers or understandable.

guidelines, may not be clear." Labels now say that the meat contains added solutions or is "enhanced," but they may not be visible to consumers or understandable. If the rules are finalized, the label would now have to be part of the product title. An example of the new labels would be "chicken breast — 40% added solution of water and teriyaki sauce," according to USDA.

Richard Lobb of the National Chicken Council said the poultry industry is split on the issue, as some companies add ingredients to their poultry and some don't. He said the level of added ingredients in poultry is generally 15 to 18 percent of the piece of meat.

Red meat processors immediately objected to the rule. The American Meat Institute called it "wasteful" and "unnecessary" and said it would cause prices to go up.

Consumer groups have been pressuring the department to crack down on the practice for several years, saying the added ingredients are unhealthy.

"Who wants to pay $4.99 a pound for the added water and salt?" said Michael Jacobson, executive director of the advocacy group Center for Science in the Public Interest. "Besides cheating customers financially, 'enhancing' meat and poultry delivers a stealth hit of sodium."

White House threatens to veto GOP bill that would curb consumer agency

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House on Wednesday threatened to veto a House Republican bill that would curb the powers of the new Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, reviving last year's pitched partisan battle over President Barack Obama's overhaul of the rules governing financial markets.

The veto threat came a day before the House was to vote on the GOP legislation — a debate to be held on the very day the bureau officially opens. The agency was created by the financial overhaul measure, which Obama signed into law a year ago Thursday as a response to the 2008 financial crisis.

While the legislation is expected to clear the Republican-run House, it has little chance of even being considered by the Democrat-led Senate, making both the bill and the veto threat symbolic gestures.

The bureau is supposed to protect consumers from abuses involving mortgages, credit cards and other financial instruments.

The GOP bill being debated this week would replace the bureau's director with a five-member bipartisan commission. It would delay the planned transfer of powers to the bureau from other agencies until a Senate-confirmed chair of the commission was in place, and make it easier for other federal financial regulators to block the bureau from issuing regulations.

All 47 Republican senators have promised to block confirmation of anyone to head the bureau unless Obama agrees to change it, including replacing the director with a bipartisan commission. That would leave Senate Democrats seven votes short of the 60 votes they would need to confirm a director.

Presidential adviser Elizabeth Warren, a Harvard law professor and longtime consumer activist, has led the administration's start-up of the agency. Facing sharp GOP opposition to her becoming its director, Obama this week nominated Richard Cordray, the former Ohio attorney general who has been the bureau's enforcement chief, to become director.

Gadhafi boobytrapped oil installations, rebels claim

Associated Press

MADRID — Libyan ruler Moammar Gadhafi's troops have boobytrapped petroleum installations in the strategic oil port of Brega so they can be blown up if his regime loses the town, a top rebel official said Thursday.

Mahmoud Jibril, the rebels' diplomatic chief, also said Gadhafi's forces have boobytrapped oil fields. He did not state which fields. While Brega is a key oil processing and shipment hub, the fields that feed it lie far to the south in the Libyan desert.

"Unfortunately, Brega is a big minefield right now," Jibril told reporters after meeting with Spanish Foreign Minister Trinidad Jimenez. "We discovered that they planted mines all over the place. Even some oil establishments, some oil fields, have been full of bombs, explosives."

Rebels and pro-Gadhafi forces have been locked in a stalemate, despite a NATO air campaign against Gadhafi's forces. Rebels hold most of eastern Libya, but their push to seize Brega since last week unraveled Tuesday when 27 rebels were killed in shelling by Gadhafi's troops.

With the NATO-led air campaign entering its fifth month, Britain's military reported its first death related to the campaign after an airman died in a traffic accident in southern Italy.

Rebel forces have since pulled back from the city amid hopes that

A street artist paints a caricature of Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi and his spokesman Abdel-Majid al-Dursi, left, Thursday in the rebel-held town of Benghazi.

Gadhafi's forces will surrender, and Jibril said rebel fighters "are circulating Brega from all fronts right now." Rebel commanders have said mine fields laid by Gadhafi's troops have hampered their advance.

In Libya, local medic Mohammed Idris said a mine killed one rebel and injured four on Thursday.

The Libyan government had no immediate comment on the rebel accusations, but on Monday, spokesman Moussa Ibrahim sounded a defiant note about the oil city.

"We will turn Brega into hell, we will not give Brega up even if it causes the death of thousands of rebels and the destruction of the city," Ibrahim said.

Jibril said the boobytrapping of oil facilities and fields is a signal that Gadhafi's regime fears it can't hold Brega much longer "and the only course they have embarked on is to destroy everything."

Gadhafi has insisted he will neither step down nor flee the country he has led for more than four decades.

TALLAHASSEE KNOWS BEST?

Local views drained from water policy

Now that Gov. Rick Scott has disbanded water district basin boards, a cloud of uncertainty forms over citizens who hope to have their local interests represented by their district — in our case, the Southwest Florida Water Management District, commonly known as Swiftmud.

For 50 years, these boards helped to ensure that tax levy decisions were made at the lowest possible local level. This is important, because smaller counties need to be assured their tax dollars will not solely support the needs of the larger counties. In the large, 16-county district, basin boards were an effective means to ensure that issues of local concern were not lost. Swiftmud contains four water supply regions — the Northern Planning Region, the Tampa Bay Planning Region, the Southern Planning Region and the Heartland Planning Region.

Each of these regions has unique concerns with a variation of metro, agricultural, coastal springs, lakes, rivers, swamps and reservoirs.

An example of the basin board's effectiveness is the public acquisition of Three Sisters Springs, which was made possible in part because local members were aware of the importance of the springs and helped the private/public coalition succeed.

Swiftmud's challenge now is to establish a means for each areas' concerns to be addressed with equal concern.

We encourage the grassroots advocates like TOO FAR, the Withlacoochee Area Residents and the Homosassa River Alliance to continue to voice their opinions and campaign for change. If not, issues of grave concern to the local environment might get lost in the mix now that basin boards are history.

THE ISSUE:

Basin boards disbanded.

OUR OPINION:

Local environmental concerns face uneasy future.

Disappointment

In regard to the hospital battle of the boards: I'm really a little perplexed. The legislation that was recently passed and signed by the governor had gone through four committees before it went up for a vote. The vote was 115-1 and 38-1 in the House and Senate. I don't understand how the Foundation Board feels that anyone in Tallahassee is on their side. It is completely a waste of our tax money. Your disappointment is profound, so is mine.

CALL 563-0579

Volunteer labor

One good way to create more jobs is to cut out some of the volunteers, maybe, and give the jobs to all the people who are volunteering, and that might create some jobs.

Senior liabilities

I'm calling about senior discrimination for car insurance. (Some companies) if you're 74, they won't even give you a quote for insurance and they don't want you to buy insurance from them. I think that's awful.

Thanks for the tip

This is in regards to "Don't feed the cranes." I'm the lady that you're talking to. I was not aware that you cannot feed the cranes. I kind of suspected. So I called the wildlife people and they did direct me that, in fact, you cannot feed the cranes. So when the ducks and the geese come, you can, however, feed them. So to everyone else, I learned something and I thank that person to keep my boyfriend from getting a fine. When the cranes do come to the park, you must stop feeding everyone until they leave. They are protected. So I did know they were protected, but I did not know that you could not feed them. So let's keep on keeping an eye on the cranes and our beloved animals. And hopefully, we can find the person who killed one of our beloved cranes.

Well said, doctor

I just wanted to commend Dr. William Dixon and his column he wrote on Sunday, July 10. I think that he put in words what every American has thought about this manatee problem we've had here on King's Bay. I think he hit the nail on the head. And with that being said, what about all the manatees who are actually getting hit out in the bay or out in the Gulf and them coming up into the rivers to die? So it's not just a problem you have in the rivers; it's a problem you're having all over the ocean. Good job, Mr. Dixon.

Talking manatees

I am a "spokesmanatee" for my group. We take serious exception to a member of the human race opining that 500 manatees is a sufficient population. Do you have a number for sufficient human population? How would you enjoy your life if you were forever dodging boat propellers with no way to protect yourself? And all this just because you claim a right to be able to use the waterways as you see fit. We have no problem sharing our habitat with you. And make no mistake about it, it was given to us first. That is in the book you refer to.

Senseless spending

With our nation in a depression, with Florida's unemployment higher than the national average and our people having a hard time keeping up with the inflated food prices, it seems like the wrong time for our county to be borrowing $2 million to build a new government building.

Murdoch will pay the piper

DOUGLAS COHN AND ELEANOR CLIFT

Rupert Murdoch's ability to intimidate is gone, along with his power to expand his empire. The rapid descent is an astonishing turnabout for the media baron, and an instructive warning about the power of money and how money blinds people to reprehensible acts in the name of journalism.

Politicians revered Murdoch in public because they feared him, and to take him on would threaten their careers and their livelihoods. But for those who know Murdoch, pretending they're shocked that his company went over the line is truly a Casablanca moment.

Murdoch pushing the edge of respectability is as shocking as gambling going on in Rick's Café. The Australian-born Murdoch originally made his money by dumbing down and sensationalizing the newspaper he inherited from his father. The formula worked, and as his empire grew, he insinuated himself through power and money into the political class, forging top-tier connections now embarrassingly visible in the United Kingdom.

People in authority in the British government and in Scotland Yard were in on the deception that allowed the media properties associated with Murdoch in London to hack into private cell phone records of British 9/11 victims and to bribe public officials for juicy tidbits on horrific crimes, interfering with police investigations.

Other VOICES

The head of Scotland Yard and his deputy have resigned, and the coalition government headed by Conservative Prime Minister David Cameron could face a no-confidence vote.

Top editors have been arrested and detained for questioning, and as the circle tightens around Murdoch and his son, James, who's been running the media conglomerate in London, it's unlikely that those caught up in the scandal will fall on their sword to protect the higher-ups.

The drip, drip of the evolving story as it spreads is reminiscent of the Watergate scandal. Investigators are asking what Murdoch knew and when did he know it, the signature question that led to the jailing of several top officials in the Nixon administration, and finally to the resignation in 1974 of President Nixon.

The Watergate scandal unfolded over a period of almost two years, but events happen faster in a parliamentary system, which Cameron recognizes. He is behaving as though his government could fall, ordering an investigation and calling for resignations in an effort to contain the scandal whose tentacles reach throughout the government and into the police and judicial system.

Murdoch stepped on a lot of people on his way up the corporate ladder, and now that it's evident he has feet of clay, they're not rushing to his defense. Rather, they're taking pleasure in seeing him deflated, holding him up as a symbol of a media that's out of control.

It's unclear if other media outlets employ the kind of tactics Murdoch's people resort to when they want information. But it is clear that bribery and phone hacking is illegal, and if there is evidence that Murdoch's minions broke the law, and that he knew about it, or tolerated it, his money will not be able to save him.

Most companies the size of Murdoch's are highly leveraged when it comes to debt versus assets. If Murdoch has significant debt, he could be in real trouble. This scandal is moving so fast that his creditors could come demanding payment, and if he is unable to satisfy them, he could be forced to put some of his properties up for sale.

In the U.S., Murdoch is known principally for the Fox News Network, the highest-rated cable network and a showcase for Republican candidates, the New York Post, a cheeky tabloid, and the Wall Street Journal, one of America's great newspapers. Keeping the taint of this scandal from overwhelming his American operations is a huge challenge for Murdoch now that he can no longer scare his critics or creditors into silence.

LETTERS to the Editor

Social Insecurity

How dare Dave Bruns, acting state AARP director, call for finding common ground and bipartisanship? Was that the tune AARP and the democrats were singing during the debate over Obamacare? They sang a different tune when they had a majority in Congress. I call it the height of hypocrisy for them to now become advocates of cooperation and bipartisanship. If AARP is a centrist voice, pigs fly.

Brun's relies on the tired argument of the $2.5 trillion Social Security trust fund, but doesn't tell you it's non-marketable treasury securities. It's a debt from the U.S. government to the Social Security system. Have you heard that we may default on our debt? Which debt do you think we will find it easier to default on: our debt to China or to our own citizens?

Brun's goes on to say that workers paid what they were told to pay and are entitled to the benefits they were promised. The first recipient paid in $22 and received $20,940.85 in benefits. In 1940, 159 workers were paying in for every person drawing benefits. By 1950, the ratio was 16 to 1. Today the ratio is 3 to 1, and is heading for 2 to 1 by 2040. Does that sound like a Ponzi scheme winding down?

A Ponzi scheme is a fraudulent investment operation that pays returns to separate investors, not from any actual profit earned by the organization, but from their own money or money paid by subsequent investors. The Ponzi scheme usually entices new investors by offering returns other investments cannot guarantee, in the form of short-term returns that are either abnormally high or unusually consistent. The perpetuation of the returns that a Ponzi scheme advertises and pays requires an ever-increasing flow of money from investors to keep the scheme going. The system is destined to collapse because the earnings, if any, are less than the payments to investors.

If you scratch the word fraudulent from the paragraph above and compare it to Social Security, you will see some amazing similarities. It's fraudulent for everybody but the government.

Viva Geoff Greene

Every day, there are many suggestions offered as to how to improve the local economy.

Most of these projects require a great deal of time and/or very large capital expense. Most also emanate from "pat-me-on-the-back" politicians.

However, there is one politician, an elected official, who has his feet on the ground and repeatedly comes up with solid, provocative suggestions.

Then, Mr. Geoff Greene, our property appraiser, follows up with substantial action on his suggestion.

This week, Greene petitioned the governor to fast-forward the Suncoast Parkway Project. What a great idea, and what an asset to Citrus County. Something really worthwhile that doesn't take all kinds of attorneys, committees, commission actions to facilitate.

Here is an elected official with his thinking cap on, and he's not stirring up a hornet's nest of opposition with his proposals.

Viva Geoff Greene. This is the third solid suggestion Greene has proposed without a big "look-what-I'm-doing" noise.

Nation BRIEFS

Family slain

Associated Press

Jesse Adams, 32, weeps as he recalls his sister, Tabasha Paige-Criado, and her four children, who were slain in Medford, Ore., Thursday. The Oregon woman whose husband is suspected of killing her and their four children knew going into the marriage that he was a convicted child molester, but she did not feel threatened by him, Adams said Thursday.

Obama debt offer risky

But could be win-win situation

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It's hard to know which is more surprising: a Democratic president pushing historic cuts in spending, including Social Security and Medicare, or a Republican-controlled House refusing to accept the deal and declare a huge victory for long-sought GOP goals.

Political orthodoxy has been turned on its head ever since President Barack Obama stepped up his call for a bipartisan "grand bargain" to raise the national debt ceiling and avert a default on U.S. obligations. The deal would include $4 trillion in deficit reduction over 10 years, mainly through steep spending cuts but also including up to $1 trillion in new federal revenue.

Those are far bigger targets than typical budget negotiations. And the spending cuts would seem more appropriate for a Republican president than a Democrat.

Some pundits and political insiders say Republicans should leap at the offer. But there's a hitch: The new revenue — mainly from overhauling the tax code and lowering rates by eliminating or limiting a broad swath of loopholes, deductions and tax breaks — presumably would violate a no-net-tax-hike pledge that scores of Republican lawmakers have signed.

Mostly for that reason, House Republicans so far have rejected Obama's overture, despite the interest shown by Speaker John Boehner. Some pro-Republican analysts seem bewildered.

Obama's offer of big spending cuts would have "brutally fractured the Democratic Party," and congressional Republicans probably "will come to regret this missed opportunity," wrote David Brooks, a moderate-to-conservative columnist for The New York Times.

Such comments lead to a question: Why did Obama make the overture, and how might it affect him and his party as he ramps up his reelection campaign?

The consensus answer, based on interviews with key players in Congress, the White House and elsewhere, is that Obama may be maneuvering himself into a win-win political position for 2012, although it's not without risks.

If Congress approves a version of the "grand bargain," Obama can run next year as a president who began taming the runaway deficit, extracted concessions on higher taxes from Republicans and put Medicare and Social Security on a possible path toward greater stability.

If congressional Republicans block the plan — and especially if the Aug. 2 debt ceiling deadline is missed — Obama might persuasively argue that he tried his best to strike a compromise, at some political risk to himself. Recent polls suggest that strategy is working, as Americans seem disgruntled with the Republicans' dug-in opposition.

Either way, Obama can appeal to the all-important independent voters next year, portraying himself as above the bitterly partisan House and Senate squabbles.

SANAA, Yemen — A senior leader of Yemen's al-Qaida branch has been killed in fighting in the nearly lawless south of the country, the Defense Ministry said Thursday.

A ministry statement said Ayed al-Shabwani was killed in fighting on Tuesday near the town of Zinjibar, a provincial capital that has been held by al-Qaida-linked militants since May.

The statement said one of the leader's cousins, Awad al-Shabwani, was also killed in the fighting, but it gave no further details.

Ayed al-Shabwani has been on the government's list of most-wanted al-Qaida linked militants. He escaped death in January when Yemeni warplanes bombed the Wadi Adeeda area, 115 miles east of Sanaa, Yemen's capital, in Marib province.

The government then claimed the airstrike killed al-Shabwani along with al-Qaida's military chief, Qassim al-Raimi, and four other operatives of the group. But al-Qaida released a statement shortly afterward denying any of its men were killed in the raid.

Al-Shabwani is from the al-Shabwani tribe in the province of Shabwa and is believed to have his tribe's protection. He is accused of providing sanctuary for top al-Qaida figures in the country and was implicated in several fatal attacks on security troops and police officers.

Al-Qaida in Yemen has been taking advantage of the turmoil arising from months of anti-regime protests across much of the poor Arab nation, seizing and holding territory in the south. Al-Qaida's growing presence in Yemen has been a source of serious concern to the United States and Yemen's rich Arab Gulf neighbors.

pounded their positions throughout Wednesday night and early Thursday, killing more than 20 militants, military officials said.

They said at least 13 soldiers were killed and more than 60 wounded in fighting against militants at al-Code area, near Zinjibar, over the past 24 hours.

Soldiers reported seeing the bodies of dozens of militants killed in government shelling of the area, the officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media.

As many as 90,000 people are thought to have fled Abyan province to the port city of Aden and other nearby cities after the militants seized Zinjibar and Jaar.

Elsewhere, government troops opened fire on a large anti-government demonstration in the city of Taiz, killing one protester, activist Mahmoud Taha said.

States ignore federal school law

Associated Press

BOISE, Idaho — At least three states are vowing to ignore the latest requirements under the No Child Left Behind law in an act of defiance against the federal government that demonstrates their growing frustration over an education program they say sets unrealistic benchmarks for schools.

The law sets a goal of having 100 percent of students proficient in math and reading by 2014, but states were allowed to establish how much schools must improve each year. Many states saved the biggest leaps for the final years, anticipating the law would be changed.

But it hasn't, and states like Idaho, Montana and South Dakota are fed up. They are preparing to reject the latest requirements for determining school progress under the 9-year-old law — even if the move toward noncompliance may put them at risk of losing some federal funding.

Idaho will no longer raise the benchmarks that public schools have to meet under No Child Left Behind, nor will it punish the schools that do not meet these higher testing goals, said Tom Luna, the state's superintendent of public schools.

The federal requirements are unrealistic for schools to meet while they wait for the government to enact new education standards, he said.

"We've waited as long as we can," Luna said.

Montana and South Dakota are also rejecting the latest No Child Left Behind targets, while Kentucky is seeking a waiver that would allow the state to use a different method to measure whether students are making adequate progress under the program.

And more states could follow in seeking relief from the federal requirements.

Federal officials recently warned Montana to get in line with the No Child Left Behind requirements by Aug. 15 or the federal government could withhold funds under an education program. The state receives more than $44 million in federal funding for that program, though it is unclear just how much of that money is at risk. In Idaho, that program is worth more than $54 million.

Exxon spill shows gaps in oversight

BILLINGS, Mont. — Federal officials are unsure how many pipelines carrying hazardous fuels cross the nation's rivers and streams.

That's the assessment three weeks after a broken Exxon Mobil pipeline spilled 1,000 barrels of oil into the Yellowstone River.

Lawmakers are raising alarms that another spill could be imminent unless the government steps up oversight of the pipeline industry.

Alleged killer gets meds by force

PHOENIX — Lawyers for the suspect in the Tucson shooting rampage said prison officials have resumed forcibly medicating their client with a psychotropic drug.

Jared Loughner's attorneys questioned in filings Thursday whether the forced medication violates an earlier order by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeal.

State officials at the federal prison facility in Missouri resumed the forced medication on an emergency basis because Loughner had become an immediate threat to himself. He has been on 24-hour suicide watch.

Africa famine

Abdihakim Omar, 3, a malnourished child from southern Somalia, sits in Banadir hospital in Mogadishu, Somalia, Thursday. Somalia's 20-year-old civil war is partly to blame for turning the drought in the Horn of Africa into a famine. Analysts warned that aid agencies could be airlifting emergency supplies to the failed state 20 years from now unless the U.N.-backed government improves.

Bones of Hitler deputy exhumed

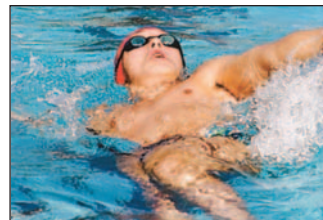

BERLIN — The bones of Adolf Hitler's deputy, Rudolf Hess, have been removed from their grave in a small Bavarian town after it became a pilgrimage site for neo-Nazis.

The administrator of the cemetery in Wunsiedel told The Associated Press on Thursday that the bones were exhumed early Wednesday.

Andreas Fabel said the remains were cremated and the ashes scattered into a lake whose name is being kept secret.

He said Hess's relatives and Lutheran church authorities in the town both agreed to the solution.

O'Meara: Tiger will cope without caddie

WALTON ON THE HILL, England — Mark O'Meara says Tiger Woods has lost one of the best caddies around in Steve Williams but believes his close friend will cope without the New Zealander.

O'Meara last communicated with Woods about three or four weeks ago by text and knew of the 14-time major winner's plans to split with Williams after 12 years.

O'Meara tells the Associated Press that "they had a great run together as a team. Steve Williams is a loyal guy but Tiger is Tiger."

Speaking Thursday after the first round of the Senior British Open at Walton Heath in south England, the two-time major champion says "for a caddie, there's not much better than Steve Williams. But as good as Tiger can play at times, he doesn't need a whole lot of help out there."

Turkey team in talks with Kobe Bryant

ANKARA, Turkey — Turkish club Besiktas says it is in talks with Kobe Bryant's representatives about the possibility of the Los Angeles Lakers' star playing in Turkey during the NBA lockout.

Besiktas coach Ergin Ataman says "it is a fact that Kobe Bryant's managers have contacted us" after the club signed New Jersey Nets point guard Deron Williams last week.

Ataman says on the club's website Thursday that Bryant is waiting for an offer from Besiktas. He says the club would need a sponsor to be able to pay for Bryant's contract.

He says "our board will evaluate that."

Bryant has won five NBA titles with the Lakers and is a 13-time NBA All Star. He has a career scoring average of 25.3 points.

Deal or no Deal? Owners say yes, but...

Players delay Thursday's vote on new contract deal

Associated Press

COLLEGE PARK, Ga. — NFL owners overwhelmingly approved a tentative agreement Thursday that would end the lockout, provided that players re-establish their union and sign off on the proposal. But the players didn't vote, leaving the country's most popular sport in limbo for at least another day.

Owners and players failed to see eye-to-eye on much of anything for months, so perhaps the way Thursday's events unfolded shouldn't have come as a surprise.

At about 7 p.m., owners voted 31-0 — the Oakland Raiders abstained — to OK the deal, pending players' approval. Soon after, the league issued a press release announcing: "NFL clubs approved today the terms of a comprehensive settlement of litigation and a new 10-year collective bargaining agreement with the NFL Players Association."

Less than an hour later, NFLPA head DeMaurice Smith sent an email to team reps saying: "Issues that need to be collectively bargained remain open; other issues, such as workers' compensation, economic issues and end of deal terms, remain unresolved. There is no agreement between the NFL and the players at this time."

And then the players held a conference call and decided not to take a vote, saying they had not seen the full proposal approved by owners.

Commissioner Roger Goodell spoke on the phone several times

Thursday with Smith, including filling him in on the results of the vote before it was announced.

"Hopefully, we can all work quickly, expeditiously, to get this agreement done," Goodell said at a news conference at an Atlanta-area hotel. "It is time to get back to football. That's what everybody here wants to do."

But several players took to Twitter, expressing opposition to the proposal. Pittsburgh Steelers safety Ryan Clark wrote: "The owners want u to believe that they have been extremely fair everywhere and this is their 'olive

Calcavecchia shares lead at Senior British Open

Associated Press

WALTON ON THE HILL, England — Mark Calcavecchia defied the afternoon rain to shoot a bogey-free 68 and take a three-way share of the first-round lead at the Senior British Open on Thursday.

Bidding to become the fourth player to win both the British Open and the senior version, the 51-year-old American had two birdies on either side of the turn before paring the final five holes.

Calcavecchia, winner of the British Open at Troon in 1989, was joined on 4 under by Ireland's Mark McNulty and Australia's Mike Harwood, who earlier benefited from still and dry conditions on the parkland course at Walton Heath that hosted the 1981 Ryder Cup.

"The weather moved in when we were on No. 11 — it wasn't horrible but it made it tougher for sure," said Calcavecchia, one of three players not to drop a shot in their first rounds. "Not making any bogeys was nice, so it was a good score, a good start."

South Africa's David Frost and Scotland's Albert MacKenzie were a shot behind, with defending champion Bernhard Langer of Germany one of seven players who shot 70. Americans Bob Tway, Mike Goodes and Lee Rinker were among those tied with Langer.

Tom Lehman and Mark O'Meara finished with 71s and Corey Pavin was another stroke back.

Three-time winner and eight-time major champion Tom Watson shot a 75, which included a double bogey at No. 8 after finding the middle of the fairway off the

"I wasted a lot of strokes on the greens today. I made two putts, that's about it," Watson said.

After Gary Player and Bob Charles, Watson is the other player to have done the British Open double.

"It's a bit early to talk about that," Calcavecchia said. "We'll give it all we got and see where we're standing on Sunday coming down the stretch. Hopefully I'm there with a chance."

Calcavecchia faded after a solid start at last week's British Open at Sandwich — shooting a 79 after an opening-day 69 to miss the cut. He spent his days off in Paris and sightseeing in London, taking in Wimbledon.

Appearing fresh, he birdied the par-5 No. 2 and picked up three more shots in six holes around the turn.

"I will do better here than I did on Friday last week," he said. "Especially hitting irons into the green, this is a lot more like what we are used to playing in the States."

Langer was 4 under after seven holes but acknowledged the "wheels fell off" when he bogeyed three out of four holes at the start of the back nine.

"I never made any putts from distance ... and I'm still battling with my swing, not totally trusting everything yet," said Langer, who is on the comeback trail after four months out following thumb surgery.

Do muscles cramp your summer?

Muscles cramping at the wrong time can really cramp your style. There's nothing worse than cramping at night after a great run or hike through Whispering Pines Park, a great day on the golf course or water skiing in Kings Bay. Whether it's during, or after, a game or work out, cramps affect our lifestyles, sleep and occasionally amorous activities.

A spasm occurs when a muscle contracts involuntarily, that is without trying to contract the muscle. Muscle spasms occur suddenly, usually resolve quickly, and are painful.

If a spasm is forceful and remains for a period of time, it becomes a 'cramp'. A muscle cramp is defined as an 'involuntarily and forceful muscle contraction that does not relax'. Cramps may last from seconds to fifteen minutes or longer. It is common for a cramp to recur several times until it finally goes away.

Any muscle can cramp. Cramps affect muscles of the hamstrings, groin, feet and calf most frequently. A 'Charley horse' seems to apply to almost any cramp, especially one that awakens you out of a deep sleep.

Why is it that athletes cramp when you watch football games, tennis matches and even golf matches in elevated temperatures? The answer is excessive fluid as well as electrolytes loss from sweat known as 'dehydration'. Dehydration increases the likelihood of "true" cramps and is a sign of heat stroke. Prevention of dehydration is the best treatment of cramping.

Regardless of conditioning, cramps are due to vigorous muscle activity resulting in muscle fatigue. Even doing unaccustomed muscle activity, such as women wearing high heels can result in cramping during the activity or later, sometimes hours later.

Rays earn split with Yankees

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Tampa Bay Rays All-Star James Shields won for the first time in nearly a month, outpitching CC Sabathia and beating the New York Yankees 2-1 on Thursday night.

Shields (9-8) allowed six hits, walked three and struck out six over 7 2-3 innings in his second duel with Sabathia in 12 days. The right-hander lost 1-0 to the major league wins leader on July 10 at Yankee Stadium, yielding the game's only run on an errant pickoff throw to third base.

Sabathia (14-5) lost for the first time since June 9, ending a streak of victories in seven consecutive starts. Slumping Evan Longoria homered and finished with two of the five hits off the Yankees ace. Sam Fuld drove in Tampa Bay's second run with a fifth-inning triple.

The loss dropped New York two games behind first-place Boston in the AL East. The third-place Rays salvaged a split in the four-game series, but only went 4-6 in a critical stretch of 10 straight games against the Red Sox and Yankees.

Shields ended a personal four-game skid, winning for the first time since a 5-1 complete-game victory at Houston on June 24. The right-hander allowed just one baserunner past first until the eighth, when Derek Jeter doubled for career hit No. 3,010 and scored on Robinson Cano's double into the right field corner.

Brandon Gomes replaced Shields and got Nick Swisher hit a first-pitch flyball to center to end the eighth. Kyle Farnsworth worked the ninth for Tampa Bay, earning his 19th save in 22 op-

Keselowski knows time running out to make Chase

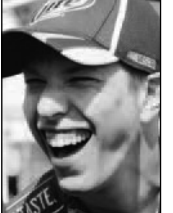

Associated Press

LOUDON, N.H. — Brad Keselowski has provided fans about every way to contact him except his cell number. Want an autograph? He'll stand and sign. Have a question? Click in the box at his sponsor's "Ask Brad" website and fill in the space with whatever is on your mind. Be quick, or else a videotaped message from Keselowski pops up, needing the slow typers. Demand a more instant response? Try him — where else, these days? — on his Twitter account (at) Keselowski. Favorite songs, favorite races, or just the hot topics of the day are all open for debate among Keselowski and his nearly 28,000 followers. His popularity on the social media site prompted Sports Illustrated to recently name him to "The Twitter 100." "I said Keselowski was, "Perhaps the most active Sprint Cup driver on Twitter. Regularly converses with fans and has even engaged in debates with media." He's attracted a growing fan base, the sponsorship of Miller Lite, and the attention of the sport as one of the most talented young drivers around. He finished 25th in his first full season in Sprint Cup last year and won the Nationwide Series championship as proof he can develop into a driver who could contend down the road for a title in NASCAR's top series. It just won't be this year. Time is running short for Keselowski to even make the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship field. Stuck in 23rd place, he won't clinch one of the guaranteed 10 spots in the field. The last two slots are reserved for drivers 11 to 20 with the most victories. That's where Keselowski sees his sliver of hope. Only David Ragan, in 13th place with one victory, meets those criteria. Keselowski won at Kansas Speedway last month, giving him a big edge if he can crack the top 20. He's 25 points behind veteran Mark Martin for 20th. Keselowski has only two top-fives and four top-10 finishes this year, blaming a "lack of execution combined with poor speed." Before last Sunday's race at New Hampshire Motor Speedway, Keselowski gave his Penske Racing team "a little bit over 50 percent" shot at making the Chase field. "Ready to go racing here in new Hampshire. Think we can run well, i'd say we are top-5 car on short run and top-15 on long run. (hash)Letsdothis." he posted shortly before the race. He blew a right tire and finished 35th, crippling his chance at moving up the standings. Like so many NASCAR drivers who have embraced Twitter, Keselowski refused to wait until the next race week-end to address his failure. "2 team is back to work today. Not gonna let a blown tire hold us back! On a positive note, think we figured out what was wrong with our car," he posted Monday. Keselowski said he became a frequent Twitter user because he doesn't like the way the media cover his sport. "Twitter is a way for me to set the record straight on anything I feel like setting straight," he said. He defended five-time Cup champion Jimmie Johnson when NFL player Golden Tate criticized the Hendrick Motorsports' driver's inclusion on the ESPY male athlete of the year awards list. Tate hit Twitter to claim drivers aren't athletes. Keselowski, who played football, wrestled and ran track growing up, stuck up for the drivers-as-athletes side. "What separates racing from those sports is that being a physical freak of nature is not an advantage," Keselowski said. He's gotten personal on Twitter, revealing things like his favorite three-man band as Rush. But mostly, he's a country music fan. He hummed a few bars to an Elton John song outside his hauler, having some fun after cutting a promo for an upcoming race at Michigan ("Time for my serious face," he said, smiling.) His two favorite songs: "Fancy," by Reba McEntire and "Lonesome, On'y and Mean," by Waylon Jennings. "Been driving these highways/Been doing things my way," part of the lyrics to Jennings' song, can serve as the calling card for most everyone in the garage. It's easy for the 27-year-old who scrapped his way to stardom to relate.

Brad Keselowski is in the mix to make Chase.

Braves 9, Rockies 6

DENVER — Brooks Conrad made the most of a rare start.

Conrad, playing for the injured Dan Uggla, homered, scored twice and used his speed on the basepaths to help the Atlanta Braves overcome a shaky start by Tommy Hanson to beat the Colorado Rockies 9-6 Thursday.

"You get him in there because Danny can't go and he comes up with a big homer," Braves manager Fredi Gonzalez said. "He's a helluva teammate; guys love him. He's a pro. Great to have him."

The switch-hitting Conrad hadn't started a game since July 4 against Colorado but didn't show any rust. He broke up a double play in the third that led to one run and he broke up a double play in the fifth that helped the Braves score another.

"That's Brooksie, man. That's him," Jason Heyward said. "That's why we love him around here and we pull for him."

Padres 5, Marlins 3

MIAMI — Dustin Moseley and three relievers held the Florida Marlins without an earned run Thursday, and the San Diego Padres completed a series sweep by winning 5-3.

Padres second baseman Orlando Hudson collided with a wall after catching a pop foul in the seventh inning and was carted off the field. He was taken to a hospital for neck and shoulder tests but was expected to be fine, a team spokesman said.

Cameron Maybin had four hits and scored twice for the Padres, who outscored the Marlins 23-6 in the series. Maybin went 9 for 14 in the three games against his former team.

Moseley (3-9) went six innings and allowed three unearned runs. He stayed in the game after a 2½-hour rain delay in the second inning.

Moseley came into the game needed next to last in the majors in run support, but the Padres gave him a quick lead when their first three batters scored.

The Padres swept the Marlins for the second time this season.

Cardinals 6, Mets 2

NEW YORK — On a sweltering get-away day at Citi Field, Jake Westbrook helped his teammates beat the heat — and the Mets.

Albert Pujols hit a two-run homer in the first and Westbrook had the Mets pounding the ball into the ground over eight excellent innings as St. Louis beat New York 6-2 on Thursday to avoid a three-game sweep and snap a three-game skid.

With the temperature already at 90 when the first pitch was thrown at 12:13 p.m., Westbrook (8-4) worked efficiently (90 pitches) and rapidly, and kept his infielders busy. Just as important, he let them quickly get back to the dugout and out of the scorching sun.

"That's the way he works all the time. This guy don't mess around," Pujols said. "Working fast, keeping the ball down. He had his sinker going today."

Westbrook recorded 17 outs on groundballs, including two double plays, and allowed only four hits and two runs. He walked one and struck out three, leading the Cardinals to their second win since the All-Star break in a tidy 2 hours, 7 minutes.

"I think everybody appreciated it," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said.

Pujols drove a pitch from Jonathan Niese (9-8) left up in the strike zone off the facade of the second deck in left field for his 21st home run of the season and a 2-0 lead.

U.S. wins World Cup opener

American softball team earns 7-2 win

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Stacy May-Johnson homered, Rhea Taylor had a two-run triple and the United States beat the Czech Republic 7-2 Thursday night at the World Cup of Softball.

Playing without an Olympic medalist, the Americans are fielding an inexperienced bunch instead of the group of veterans who once were a dominant force in international softball.

Superstar Jennie Finch retired from the U.S. team during last year's World Cup, and Jessica Mendoza, Cat Osterman and Natasha Watley are among several former Olympic gold medalists who decided not to return to the team this year.

A group of rookie Americans still combined to win the team's first international game on U.S. soil this year.

Taylor put the United States ahead to stay with her two-run triple to deep right field in the second inning. May-Johnson's solo shot bumped the lead to 6-2 after the Czechs scored twice in the top of the fourth. She also singled twice.

With only three players who'd even been on the national team before, the U.S. is going through a transition period. The sport has been dropped from the Olympics for both 2012 and 2016 and the earliest it could return would be 2020.

Many top stars retired after the 2008 Games, and others have stepped aside since then or turned their attention to building the professional game. Without them, the Americans lost three times to top rival and 2008 gold medalist Japan this month at the Canada Cup, including in the championship game.

Instead, the national team is stocked with players who are in college or just finished it. Taylor was a part of three Women's College World Series teams at Missouri, playing her last college game on the same field in Oklahoma City less than two months earlier.

Her former teammate, Chelsea Thomas, got the save after relieving Whitney Canion (1-0) with two runners on in the sixth. She got a double-play grounder and struck out cleanup hitter Eva Rendlova to end the threat.

Kelly Grieve had a pair of infield RBI singles, including one when Taylor scored from second in the sixth.

After being retired in order the first time through the lineup, the Czech Republic got to Canion for two runs in the fourth.

Lucie Petraskova broke up Canion's no-hitter with a soft line single to right, and Dina Pfeiferova followed with an infield single. Canion then uncorked a high wild pitch to allow both runners to advance.

Schleck shines, Contador slumps in Stage 18 of Tour de France

Associated Press

LE MONETIER-LES-BAINS, France — Andy Schleck has finally gotten the edge against Alberto Contador.

After two second-place Tour de France finishes behind the Spanish champion, Schleck all but quashed Contador's hopes for a three-peat with a bold, long-distance breakaway win in Stage 18 in the Alps on Thursday.

The 26-year-old rider from Luxembourg handled the main pack midway along the second of three huge climbs, with 30 miles left in the 125-mile ride from Pinerolo, Italy, to Galibier Serre-Chevalier in France.

By the finish atop the ski station — the highest-altitude finish in the Tour's 108-year history — Schleck had beaten the favorites by more than two minutes, come 15 seconds within Frenchman Thomas Voeckler's grasp on the yellow jersey, and left Cadel Evans of Australia clinging to his title bid.

But the biggest casualty was Contador, who with an aching right knee from a crash earlier in the three-week race, struggled up to the finish — his hopes of a fourth title in tatters.

"Victory is impossible now," said Contador, who had dropped back to the race doctor for an anti-inflammatory just as Schleck prepared his move. "I had a bad day. My legs didn't respond and I just hit a wall."

The two riders, once friends who vacationed together, had animosity during last year's Tour when some say Contador breached etiquette by speeding ahead when Schleck had a chain malfunction — a move that turned out to make the difference in the outcome.

tions are overused and tired, particularly if overstretched or having been held in the same position for a prolonged period of time. In effect, the muscle cell runs out of energy and fluid, becomes hyper-excitable and develops a forceful contraction... the cramp.

Cramps at rest are common, especially in adults, but may be experienced at any age, including childhood. A rest cramp often occurs during the night are painful, disrupt sleep and recur frequently. The actual cause of night cramps is unknown. It is related to muscle fatigue, electrolyte balance and dehydration. Such cramps are initiated by making a movement that shortens a muscle. For example, in bed pointing the toe down, shortens the calf muscle, a common site of cramps. Most often this occurs following a day of exerting that muscle.

Contraction of a skeletal muscle requires numerous complicated steps, within the muscle cells and fibers, that require oxygen, sugar, electrolytes, such as potassium, sodium and magnesium. All are supplied by the abundant blood flow to muscle. Hydration keeps the blood flow pressure adequate for muscle contraction. Any imbalance or lack of fluid volume, blood flow, electrolyte balance will result in muscle weakness and cramping. Like gears without oil or oil pressure, the gearing is going to grind and lock. The cramp.

Low blood levels of sodium, potassium, calcium and magnesium directly increase the excitability of the muscles thus leading to cramps experienced by many athletes and adults. Cramps are caused by and associated with many underlying medical conditions and a number of medications for asthma, osteoporosis, blood pressure and medications for lowering cholesterol. Chronic diuretic use is a most common cause of dehydration especially when associated with a few rounds of golf or hours of fishing on a hot and humid day.

Depending on the sporting event, temperature and body weight, an athlete can lose up to 2 gallons of fluid an hour. It takes drinking 1 to 3, 8 oz bottles of vitamin water/Gatorade type drinks per hour for 3 hours prior to, during and after a sport event or work out to maintain hydration and electrolyte balance. Beware drinking significant amounts of WATER not containing electrolytes especially sodium. This can result in lowering the sodium in your system that can cause worse cramps and even cardiac arrest. When you are working out in humid elevated temperatures and sweating, it is not the time to listen to your doctor and restrict salt.

Most cramps can be stopped if the cramped muscle can be gently stretched out to length. Easier said than done. Also, massaging the affected muscle will help it relax, as well as applying heat. Medication is not generally needed to treat an ordinary cramp. Painful recurrent cramps may warrant medication or even Botox injections. Treatment is often trial and error.

Cramps are common and a major pain. With vigorous physical activity, fluid and electrolyte replacement especially sodium, potassium and magnesium are essential. If frequent, painful or worrisome, underlying medical causes have to be investigated. Don't forget muscle cramps after exercise or sports are a sign of dehydration and electrolyte imbalances, which can result in shock or coma and may be life threatening.

Don't let your muscles cramp your summer fun. Ron Joseph, M.D. is an Orthopedic specialist and can be reached at Gulfcoast Spine Institute at (855) 485-3262, or rbjhand@cox.net

Blanks shoots 67 to take lead at Canadian Open

Associated Press

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — American Kris Blanks shot a 3-under 67 to take a one-stroke lead after the first-round at the Canadian Open on Thursday.

Matt McQuillan was the best of 17 Canadians with a 2-under 68, putting the 30-year-old PGA Tour rookie in a tie with 11 players, including Ernie Els.

Rickie Fowler, Anthony Kim and Lucas Glover — playing together in softer morning conditions — all shot 69 to finish among another group of nine players on a day when only 21 players were under par on the tight tree-lined, 7,010-yard Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club.

Blanks played in the morning, after overnight rain softened the course, making it easier to attack the small greens. But first players had to find the fairway to avoid thick rough many said was tougher than the U.S. Open.

branch' to finalize it." The four-month lockout is the NFL's first work stoppage since 1987.

As a result of it, the exhibition opener was canceled — the Aug. 7 Hall of Fame game between Chicago and St. Louis in Canton, Ohio.

"The time was just too short," Goodell said. "Unfortunately, we're not going to be able to play the game this year."

Providing players eventually approve the agreement, team facilities would open Saturday, and the new league year would begin Wednesday.

Owners exercised an opt-out clause in the old collective bargaining agreement in 2008, setting the stage for the recent labor impasse. The new deal does not contain an opt-out clause.

"I can't say we got everything we wanted to get in the deal," New York Giants owner John Mara said. "I'm sure (players) would say the same thing. ... The best thing about it is our fans don't have to hear about labor-management relations for another 10 years."

The old CBA expired March 11, when federally mediated negotiations fell apart, and the owners locked out the players hours later. Since then, teams have not been allowed to communicate with current NFL players; players — including those drafted in April — could not be signed; and teams did not pay for players' health insurance.

"These things, by their very nature, aren't supposed to make you necessarily happy when you walk out the door. It was a negotiation," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said.

Lohan must speed community service

LOS ANGELES — A judge warned Lindsay Lohan Thursday that she needed to spend more time doing community service and enroll in psychological counseling or risk running into problems with her probation.

Lindsay Lohan

Superior Court Judge Stephanie Sautner reminded the actress during a status hearing that she had to complete 480 hours of community service by next April, and that she would not grant any extensions, even if Lohan is working on a film.

The actress remains on probation for a 2007 drunken driving case and a misdemeanor grand theft case in which she pleaded no contest in May to taking a $2,500 necklace without permission.

Kardashian sues Old Navy over ads

LOS ANGELES — Kim Kardashian wants Old Navy to stop using a lookalike to advertise its clothing.

The reality show starlet and model on Wednesday sued the clothing store and its parent company, The Gap Inc., in a Los Angeles federal court alleging their ads violated her publicity rights with ads that feature a woman who looks like her.

Kim Kardashian

A video of a broadcast ad featuring a smiling, dark-haired woman who bears a resemblance to the real Kardashian has been viewed more than two million times on Old Navy's YouTube channel.

Melissa Molinaro

Kardashian's lawsuit claims consumers may be confused by the ads and the model's actual endorsements, which include her own clothing store and shoe line. A commercial, titled, "Super C-U-T-E," began airing in February and Old Navy is still using some of the promotions, the lawsuit states.

The model in the ads, Melissa Molinaro, is not named in the lawsuit. She expressed exasperation that the resemblance was being pointed out again.

"Were (sic) still talking about this," she posted on Twitter, noting the ad ran five months ago. "Some people have too much time on (their) hands."

Hacking and tracking?

Associated Press

A pedestrian passes newspapers for sale Wednesday with headlines relating to the phone hacking scandal, near Westminster in London. Prime Minister David Cameron on Wednesday emphatically denied claims that his staff tried to stop an inquiry into phone hacking at the News of the World newspaper and defended his decision to hire one of the tabloid's editors as his communications chief.

Scotland Yard investigates phone 'pinging'

Associated Press

LONDON — Scotland Yard, still reeling from the alleged police role in Britain's phone hacking scandal, was asked Thursday to investigate another explosive claim: that journalists bribed officers to locate people by tracking their cell phone signals.

The practice is known as "pinging" because of the way cell phone signals bounce off relay towers as they try to find reception.

Jenny Jones, a member of the board that oversees the Metropolitan Police Authority, cited claims that reporters at the now-defunct News of the World tabloid paid off corrupt police officers to trace cell phones.

The allegation was made by the late Sean Hoare, a former News of the World reporter who spoke to the New York Times about skullduggery at the tabloid. Hoare — who was fired in 2005 — said that officers were paid nearly $500 per trace. The paper cited a second unnamed former News of the World journalist as corroborating Hoare's claim.

Hoare was found dead on Monday at his home near London; police say the death is not suspicious.

Jones asked Scotland Yard to examine the records of all cases in which police accessed phone-tracking data "to ensure those were valid requests."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Jones said that going through the cell phone tracing requests "is a relatively simple way of finding corrupt officers" given that it would be clear who was being targeted and when.

"The information is there and you can check," she said.

Pinging joins a host of alleged media misdeeds being put under the microscope as police, politicians, and the public weigh allegations that journalists at Rupert Murdoch's News of the World engaged in years of lawless behavior to get scoops.

What began in 2005 as a slow-burning scandal over one reporter's efforts to spy on voice mails left on the phones of Britain's royal household has exploded into a crisis that has shaken Murdoch's media empire and led to resignations of two of Scotland Yard's most senior officers.

British politicians have felt the heat too, with the country's top two party leaders falling over each other to distance themselves from papers they once both courted assiduously.

Prime Minister David Cameron's former communications director — Murdoch newspapers veteran Andy Coulson — came under fresh scrutiny Thursday after it was reported that he did not have a top-level security clearance, which spared him from the most stringent type of vetting.

And there was further intrigue injected into the scandal after Britain's Cabinet Office released correspondence showing that a senior official believed he had had his phone broken into as recently as last year, when Coulson was already in government.

The unnamed senior bureaucrat believed that someone was trying to intercept his calls to settle a political score, according to a letter signed by David Bell, who works as permanent secretary to the Department for Education. The letter was forwarded to journalists late Thursday after the issue was raised in Parliament.

Bell emphasized that the official did not believe he'd been targeted by Coulson or anyone else at Cameron's Downing Street office. He added that neither police nor the man's phone company found any evidence of wrongdoing.

Still, the revelation suggests that at least one top official believed he was being spied on by journalists — well after Coulson and his former News of the World colleagues insisted the practice was dead and buried.

Although the issue had been covered off-and-on over the years, almost exclusively by the Guardian, allegations of illegal behavior at the News of the World have received feverish attention since a July 4 report alleged that someone at the tabloid hacked the phone of 13-year-old murder victim Milly Dowler in 2002 while police were still searching for her.

The temperature cooled a bit on Thursday, with Parliament closed for the first day of its summer recess, but the investigation appeared to be intensifying.

Review: Faithfull rocks, but acts her age

Associated Press

Marianne Faithfull has survived a roller-coaster-like ride through life to reach the age of 64 that her friends, the Beatles, once celebrated in song. On her new CD, Faithfull still rocks but acts her age, unlike some of her contemporaries who vainly chase after their lost youth.

On "Horses and High Heels," which reunites her with producer Hal Willner, Faithfull shows her mastery at finding familiar and obscure songs to cover that she can relate to personally and transform. On the Carole King pop ballad "Goin' Back," a 1960s hit for Dusty Springfield, she poignantly recasts it to reflect the viewpoint of an older woman looking back on her past. Her distinctive world-weary, gravelly voice and acting skills add gravitas to the melancholic, fatalistic "Past, Present and Future," a quirky song by the Shangri-Las, spoken rather than sung to an accompanying theme based on Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

After overcoming writer's block following recent bouts with cancer and depression,

Faithfull includes four originals among the 13 tracks that draw on recent life experiences. The guitar-driven "Why Did We Have to Part?" expresses regrets over a romantic breakup. The Celtic folk-inspired title track creates haunting late-night images of horses' hooves and women's high heels clattering on the streets of Dublin and Paris — the two cities the British expat now calls home. This album, recorded in

New Orleans, has some songs that almost seem out of character for a singer long associated with the dark side of life. The rollicking blues-rock "No Reason," by British songwriter Jackie Lomax, sounds like a Rolling Stones song, while Allen Toussaint's "Back in Baby's Arms," with guest appearances by Dr. John and Lou Reed, finds Faithfull singing soul with a funky groove. Dare we say that Faithfull has finally arrived at a happier place?

CHECK THIS TRACK OUT: On her original "Eternity," Faithfull samples the late Rolling Stone guitarist Brian Jones' 1968 recording in Morocco with the Master Musicians of Jajouka in an uptempo, and surprisingly optimistic, folk-rock song.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Friday, July 22, the 203rd day of 2011. There are 162 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On July 22, 1861, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a resolution declaring the Civil War was being waged to preserve the Union rather than to end slavery, a stance that would shift as the conflict continued. (The Senate passed a similar resolution three days later.)

On this date:

In 1934, bank robber John Dillinger was shot to death by federal agents outside Chicago's Biograph Theater, where he had just seen the Clark Gable movie "Manhattan Melodrama."

In 1995, Susan Smith was convicted by a jury in Union, S.C., of first-degree murder for drowning her two sons. (She was later sentenced to life in prison, and will not be eligible for parole until 2024.)

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush and other world leaders closed out a summit in Genoa, Italy, with a vow to wage a united attack on global poverty and disease; they failed, however, to resolve a sharp dispute over global warming.

Five years ago: Israeli tanks, bulldozers and armored personnel carriers knocked down a fence and barreled over the Lebanese border as forces seized the village of Maroun al-Ras from the Hezbollah guerrilla group.

One year ago: President Hugo Chavez severed Venezuela's diplomatic relations with neighboring Colombia over claims he was harboring leftist guerrillas.

Today's Birthdays: Game show host Alex Trebek is 71. Singer George Clinton is 70. Actor-singer Bobby Sherman is 68. Movie writer-director Paul Schrader is 65. Actor Danny Glover is 65. Actor-comedian-director Albert Brooks is 64. Rock singer Don Henley is 64. Movie composer Alan Menken is 62. Singer-actress Lonette McKee is 58. Jazz musician Al Di Meola is 57. Actor Willem Dafoe is 56. Rhythm-and-blues singer Keith Sweat is 50. Actor-comedian David Spade is 47. Actor Patrick Labyorteaux is 46. Rock musician Pat Badger is 44. Actress Franca Potente is 37. Actress A.J. Cook is 33. Actress Selena Gomez is 19.

Thought for Today: "Life is the art of drawing without an eraser." — John W. Gardner, American government official (1912-2002).

Today's HOROSCOPE

Today's birthday: Conditions tend to look more hopeful for you in the year ahead than they have for quite some time. In fact, you could start to enjoy some victories and advancement in the very areas where you previously experienced disappointment.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Something material that starts out to be rather small could quickly transform itself into being enormous. This might involve a purchase or an investment of some kind that you make.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Something over which you have no control could turn out to be much better than you dared hope. Do what you can to make the most of it, the moment you hear about it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Lady Luck must like you, because she's arranging for you to take part in something that is pretty special. It's an arrangement that is already producing positive results.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't hesitate to join any type of collective endeavor, whether it's just getting involved with friends for an outing or investing in a joint undertaking. You'll be fortunate in such activities.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Act immediately on any bright ideas you get regarding ways to further your ambitions and aspirations. Your perceptions will be worthy of prompt and pervasive action.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Regardless of what the odds are, think "win" on your participation in a competitive involvement. It doesn't matter if what you are doing is a sport, a romance or a business deal.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Don't hesitate to move things around a bit if you think it would help better your lot in life. Any changes you make at this time could have excellent, far-reaching results.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Because your thoughts are likely to be focused on what you can do to please others, companions will find you a most delightful person to be around and do things with.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — It pays to be observant about economic and/or career opportunities. Something quite substantial could come out of a participation in one or both of these areas.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Don't hesitate to speak up and suggest something fun to do over the weekend. Chances are your ideas will be better than most, and will be ones that everyone would enjoy doing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Normally most financial tips you get aren't that spectacular, but someone might share some information with you that few are privy to. At the least, it's worthy of investigation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — It isn't unusual for you to sometimes enjoy involvements that are more verbal than physical, so getting together with friends for a long-winded chat could be just the ticket.

KEY TRAINING CENTER TELETHON TIME

DON'T TOUCH THAT DIAL

Television event to raise funds for local organization

CHERI HARRIS
Staff Writer

Tune in for great entertainment for a great cause during the annual Run for the Money Telethon. It benefits Key Training Center, which serves adults with developmental disabilities.

The show airs from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, July 23, on WYKE digital channel 47 or cable channel 16.

"The telethon is a blast," Key Center spokeswoman Iris Whittaker said. "It highlights everything that the Key Training Center does, the needs of the consumers (who) we're doing the telethon for, and it also provides a look at local talent. This area is just filled with people who have unbelievable talent."

"So it's just a great day," she said, "and, of course, the last hour when we're getting the final totals in, when we bring in the consumers to end the telethon with the singing of 'Amazing Grace,' it's just phenomenal."

James Rogers, the headliner at Dollywood theme park, is the featured entertainer for the telethon.

"He's our spokesman in music," Whittaker said.

He has pre-recorded several songs that will air during the telethon. His repertoire ranges from country to contemporary and classical to pop.

Local acts on the lineup include Bill Lindsey, who will portray a mature Elvis, and Sunshine Sound, a barber-shop quartet.

"They are definitely local," Whittaker said, "and not only do they have great harmony, but they've got a terrific sense of humor as well, and so does James Rogers, for that matter."

April Saxer, who lives in Citrus County and works at Brooksville Regional Hospital, will perform inspirational selections.

"She has a beautiful voice," Whittaker said.

Other names on the entertainment roster are: Blood, Sweat & Tears, Chuck Negron (who was the lead singer for Three Dog Night), the Citrus Swing Band, Cristi Vale and the Sequel Band, Hellenic Dance Troupe, Klassic Kountry Kloggers, Odyssey, Southern Exposure, a Minnie Pearl impersonator and more.

Make telethon pledges Saturday, July 23, by calling (352) 527-2341, or (866) 385-4919. Donations are tax deductible. Major credit cards are accepted. For information, call (352) 795-5541, ext. 311 or 313.

'Potter' finale satisfying conclusion to phenomenal series

"It all ends." From the moment I saw those words on the poster for "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2," I was counting down the days until July 15, which I knew would be a monumental day for cinema — the day the highest-grossing franchise of all time comes to a close.

Liam Cash
CASHMONEY MOVIES

And it went out with a magical bang. So far, the newest "Potter" has broken every record there is to break, making almost half a billion dollars its first weekend. Is it worth all the hype? Yes! In every way imaginable, and it is my pleasure to tell you why. "Deathly Hallows: Part 1" ended with Voldemort (Ralph Fiennes) finding the Elder Wand, the most powerful wand in the world, which is capable of performing the most advanced forms of magic. Now, Harry (Daniel Radcliffe) is in more of a hurry than ever to find the remaining parts of Voldemort's soul called Horcruxes.

But things get worse when Voldemort realizes what Harry is searching for: The final stopping point of the trio's search is where it all began — Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry. Knowing the final Horcrux rests in the halls of Hogwarts, Harry continues his search while all the teachers, students and members of the remaining Order of the Phoenix prepare for the final battle against Voldemort and his army of Death Eaters, who stand just outside the castle walls. In the Battle of Hogwarts, old faces will be seen, secrets will be told, and the ultimate sacrifice will be made so the Dark Lord can finally meet his end.

Despite being the shortest entry in the series (clocking in at a little more than two hours) "Deathly Hallows: Part 2" has more action, emotion and chills (the good kind) than any previous "Potter" film.

Ralph Fiennes portrays Lord Voldemort in "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2." The movie is the eighth and finale film in the franchise based on the novels by J.K. Rowling.

Thinking back, the Battle of Hogwarts takes up about three-fourths of the movie. But don't worry; it's not all mindless action and explosions. All of the action has a distinct purpose, such as showing the bravery of a student against a horde of enemies, the sacrifice Harry's friends make for him, Mrs. Weasley's (Julie Walters) fierceness as she dishes it out to a certain female Death Eater, or the survival of hope. The action is never just there.

But between the duels and suspense are emotional moments. Scenes that have no music and no dialogue have the most power in the series. The prime example of the emotion found in "Hallows" is the moment where we find out the life story of the mysterious Severus Snape (Alan Rickman), which ends up being one of the key points in the entire saga. "Hallows" reaches its audience better than any of its predecessors has, and I'm not just saying that because of the tears I could hear around me.

And then there is the acting. The world has seen Daniel Radcliffe, Rupert Grint and Emma Watson grow up the past 10 years, and their acting always grew with their age. Now, at the climax, it's better than ever.

Radcliffe is challenged with acting out the most difficult scenes of the series, and he pulls off every one. My favorite scene of his doesn't even have any words. He just acts with his body and his eyes and his breath — and it is powerful.

As always, the trio is surrounded by an all-star British cast, including Maggie Smith, Jason Isaacs, Robbie Coltrane, Michael Gambon and many, many others. But who could talk about the "Harry Potter" series without mentioning Alan Rickman? Possibly the best casting choice of the films, Rickman once again pleases as Severus Snape; but this time showing a whole new side of the dark professor that people who did not read the books probably were not expecting (but I will not reveal).

Now there is a whole other thing to deal with. It's over. The series has come to an end. All the adults who adored the books and films and introduced their children to them are saying goodbye. All the kids like me who have spent the majority of their lives reading the books, watching the films, going to midnight book releases and film premieres are saying goodbye to a major piece of their childhood.

I was in dismay just like the rest of the fandom, until I remembered the words of J.K. Rowling: "Hogwarts will always be here to welcome you home." It all ends, but our love for Harry. His magical world will always live on to be enjoyed by countless others. This great achievement in cinema deserves every bit of four stars out of four.

"Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2" has a running time of 130 minutes and is rated PG-13 for some sequences of intense action, violence and frightening images.

'Winnie the Pooh' a bother

It had been a while since I last read a "Winnie the Pooh" book or seen a "Pooh" animation — but this latest "Pooh" movie did little to rekindle my nostalgia.

Sure, the old-fashioned aesthetic, including antique toys and old storybooks (not to mention traditional animation), is charming. But the magic stops at the look.

"Pooh" is pointless. No one can expect stuffed animals to have juicy dilemmas, but the hour-long feature hinges on a misunderstood "back soon" note. With its ridiculous premise, "Pooh" gets boring pretty quick.

Pooh (voiced by Jim Cummings) and his friends Piglet, Eeyore, Kanga, Roo, Owl and Rabbit are shocked to find their boy Christopher Robin (voiced by Jack Boulter) gone. Owl takes it upon himself to read the note Christopher left behind. The blustery bird confuses the reassuring "back soon" for "Backson," and cooks up a horrific tale about Christopher being nabbed by a Backson monster. While everyone scrambles to rescue Christopher, Pooh tries and fails to keep his mind off honey.

For the most part, these "Pooh" characters revel in their iconic personalities: Pooh dull; Piglet timid; Eeyore depressed; Kanga motherly; Owl verbose; Rabbit prying; and Tigger rambunctious. But deep down, they feel like small-brained imposters. Falling for their own booby traps and disguises, these poor dolls become stooges to swell a trying plot.

More than celebrating classic "Pooh" characters, it seems filmmakers grope for the 60-minute length.

Still, John Cleese's narration and the presence of storybook text add a sprinkle of magic. Watching Pooh amble over sentences describing his past, present and future actions has this fascinating destiny slant. Cleese's narration buzzing around every Hundred Acre Woods inhabitant is neat enough. But Pooh clambering through page numbers borders on time travel.

Nevertheless, the characters are disinteresting and, alas, the quasi-sci-fi touch did not save "Pooh."

Since it revisits not only a Disney but literary classic, it is especially disappointing to find this "Winnie the Pooh" merely mediocre.

Plus, it does not help that the preceding short, "The Ballad of Nessie," is 10 times more charming than the feature.

I give "Winnie the Pooh" a C+, and only recommend it for those eager enough to see Nessie on the big screen. With a running time of 69 minutes, "Winnie the Pooh" is rated G.

Tobacco-free group to meet next week

Special to the Chronicle

The public is invited to the Tobacco-Free Partnership of Citrus County meeting at 9 a.m. Thursday, July 28, in Room 166 of the Lecanto Government Building, 3600 W. Sovereign Path.

Special guest will be State Rep. Jimmie T. Smith. During the 2011 legislative session he co-sponsored HB 211, which would have allowed local governments to restrict outdoor smoking; for example, in parks.

This meeting also will feature youth advocacy news. On June 28, the Board of County Commissioners proclaimed July to be Youth Tobacco Awareness Month in Citrus County. Members will also review and get partnership input on the new fiscal year tobacco workplan.

The Tobacco-Free Partnership's goals are to prevent initiation of tobacco use among youth and young adults, create tobacco-free policies to protect everyone from secondhand smoke exposure and increase the number of people who receive information about quitting tobacco use.

PUBLIC NOTICE
STATE OF FLORIDA
DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION
NOTICE OF DRAFT PERMIT AND REQUEST FOR PUBLIC COMMENT
The Department of Environmental Protection gives notice of its preparation of a draft NPDES renewal permit (FLO000159) for Progress Energy Florida (PEF) to operate wastewater treatment and effluent disposal facilities for the PEF Crystal River Power Plant Units 1, 2 and 3 located at 15760 West Power Line Street, Crystal River, Citrus County. Power generation units at the facility consist of three steam electric units. Units 1 and 2 are fossil fuel plants, and Unit 3 is nuclear fueled. However, Unit 3 is currently not operational due to structural repairs, which are anticipated to be completed by 2014. Wastewater from the facility consists of non-contact, once-through condenser cooling water (OTCW), intake screen wash water, treated coal pile runoff, plant area storm water runoff, and other waste streams from plant operations. Wastewater and storm water is discharged to the site discharge canal and thence to the Gulf of Mexico, a Class II Marine Water.

The applicant has requested a continuation of the facility's thermal variance under Section 316(a) of the Clean Water Act which was granted by the Department at the time of issuance of the applicant's current permit. The Department has determined that the continuation of the 316(a) variance is appropriate and intends to renew the 316(a) thermal variance with the issuance of the renewal permit.

Misc. Notices

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND
NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS
NSP3 B-11-UN-12-0020
Recipient: Citrus County Date: 07/22/2011
Address: 2804 W. Marc Knighton Ct. Key #12, Lecanto, FL 34461

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:
On or about 08/05/2011, Citrus County will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, to remove the environmental conditions and release Federal Funds under Title 1 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) and Section 1497 of the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 (Dodd-Frank Act) for the following project:

Project Title: Neighborhood Stabilization Program (NSP3)
NSP3 Grant Number B-11-UN-12-0020

Purpose: LMMI Housing Acquisition and Rehabilitation (unspecified sites) Citrus County proposes to complete a NSP3 national objective with this project by purchasing and rehabilitating foreclosed single family homes for sale to Low and Moderate Income (LMI) and Very Low Income (VLI) households as defined by the State of Florida based upon Area Median Income (AMI). The Citrus County NSP Housing Assistance Plan will provide a guide as to the solicitation, ranking and processing of applicants. At least 8 LMMI housing units are proposed to be addressed, no less than 2 of which will be VLI (50% AMI) as defined by the State of Florida. The average NSP3 cost per house will be $113,072 for Acquisition/Rehabilitation. Since 25% of all units will be VLI (50% AMI), the VLI threshold will be achieved. No activities will occur outside of the applicant jurisdiction. Only units in the HUD-designated NSP3 area of greatest need, located in a portion of unincorporated Citrus County known as Beverly Hills will be addressed. Units addressed will not be in the 100 year flood plain.

Location: Area of greatest need located in a portion of the unincorporated area of Citrus County known as Beverly Hills
Estimated Cost: $1,005,084.00

It has been determined that such request for removal of environmental conditions will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment; accordingly the above named recipient has decided not to prepare an environment impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The Reasons for such decision not to prepare such Statement are as follows:
An environmental assessment was performed which verified that the only impacts to the environment would be minimal and beneficial.

An Environmental Review record respecting the above project has been made by the above named recipient that documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. The Environmental Review record will be available for review by the public and copying upon request between the hours of 9:00AM - 4:00PM at 2804 W. Marc Knighton Court, Lecanto, FL 34461. Please contact Heidi Blanchette, Operations Manager, 352-527-7528, Heidi.Blanchette@bocc.cts.fl.us. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for removal of environmental conditions.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the recipient to the office of the undersigned. Such written comments should be received at the address specified on or before 08/05/2011. All such comments so received will be considered and the recipient will not request the removal of environmental conditions or take any administrative action on the above project until the date specified in the preceding sentence.

The recipient will undertake the project described above with NSP3 funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and Section 1497 of the Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 (Dodd-Frank Act). The recipient is certifying to HUD that its environmental certifying officer identified below, in the official capacity as Chair, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval the recipient may use the NSP3 funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD, or (b) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Community Planning and Development Division, Jacksonville Field Office, 400 West Bay Street, Suite 1015, Jacksonville, FL 32202-1015. Objections to the removal of environmental conditions on bases other than stated above will not be considered by HUD.
