ately, the food pantry at Citrus United Basket (CUB) has been so empty, echoes instead of food items fill the void space

With the economy still in a slump and unemployment remaining high, Kathy LeMons, manager of food distribution at CUB, said the need for food in the community keeps growing, but resources are dwindling.

"I've never seen it this bare," said LeMons, who has worked at CUB for three years. "I work here and it scares me."

In the last month, donations have begun to drop. LeMons said many churches who used to give are now disbursing goods among their own congregations. And people who used to have the means to donate now have to think about taking care of their own families during this time of economic uncertainty.

Every month, CUB feeds about 600 people. It's no easy task to make sure people leave the building with food, but LeMons said those who work at CUB fight daily to make sure people don't leave empty-handed.

"It's a battle every day, but we come out on top," she said.

However, as the belt tightens, LeMons said she is beginning to dread having to turn people away who really need assistance. "It breaks my heart when I can't help people," she said.

It also breaks Brenda Flowers' heart. Flowers is the executive director of CUB.

Kathy LeMons, manager of the food distribution program at Citrus United Basket, stuffs a grocery bag Wednesday morning with some of the essential food items given to those in need of the charity's assistance. She says the bags are a bit lighter lately due to the lack of donated items at the Inverness food pantry.

From talking to the people who come into CUB, Flowers said it has become apparent the need for jobs in Citrus County is crucial. Many of the residents who come in have just either lost their jobs or lost their jobs months ago and their unemployment assistance has run out.

For June, Citrus County's unemployment rate of 11.8 percent was up from 11 percent in May; its labor force shrank by 286 to 58,131; and the number of people employed dropped by 721 to 51,299 while those unemployed increased by 435 to 6,832,

Consumer groups have questions

TALLAHASSEE — Α power company lawyer told state regulators Wednesday that questions raised by consumer advocates could undermine Florida's push to expand the use of nuclear energy

He made the comment at the beginning of a lengthy hearing on whether cusset for late October.

Consumer advocates are questioning expenses being piled up by Florida Power & Light Co. and Progress Energy Florida.

The state's Office of Public Counsel and a group of industrial power users are asking whether some of those projects will ever be aster, the filing notes completed, although consumers are paying for them now. They cite factors such as waning public support after an earthquake and tsunami crippled a nuclear plant in Japan, and dropping prices that have made natural gas a less-expensive alternative.

As the hearing began, the commission denied an FPL focusing first on FPL and what you're saying that's request to strike testimony by an expert for the Office of Public Counsel, nuclear engineer William Jacobs. He will contend that FPL's decision to "fast track" upgrades at its Turkey Point and St. Lucie nuclear plants was imprudent and added millions to their cost. "We will testify that fast tracking is a term of art that connotes far more than simple expediting," said Associ-ate Public Counsel Joe McGlothlin. FPL lawyer Bryan Anderson argued that allowing testimony now about a decision made four years ago to fast-track the work would amount to "double jeopardy.' "This creates exactly the kind of uncertainty that discourages investment in nuclear energy," Anderson said. "That harms us." FPL, which serves about 4.5 million homes, businesses and other customers in South Florida and on the state's east coast, has asked the commission to approve $196 million in nuclear cost recovery for 2012. That would raise the current 33-cent fee for 1,000 kilowatt hours, which is about average monthly use for a home, to $2.09. That's an increase of $1.76. Progress, with 1.6 million customers in central and north Florida, is seeking $141.1 million after the commission approved the company's request to defer for a year $16 million for upgrades to its existing Crystal River nuclear plant. Most of the remaining 2012 request is for a new plant in Levy County. That proposal would decrease Progress Energy's current monthly charge for 1,000 kilowatt hours by 87 cents to $4.66. In papers filed with the commission, the Public Counsel's Office says it appears increasingly unlikely expressed sympathy for the utility's argument. Anderson said it's unfair to question FPL's fast-tracking decision in 2007 for a ruling on the nuclear fee that's supposed to be based on the company's performance in 2009 and 2010.

The commissioners agreed to allow the testimony at the urging of their staff lawyers who said it would cover both time periods. They warned that striking it could be grounds for a court appeal. The PSC lawyers also noted FPL is free to rebut the testimony and that the commissioners still can decide how much, if any, weight to give it when they make their decision.

INVERNESS — Citrus County is a safer place because of Tom Kern. As the former director of the Law Enforcement Academy at Withlacoochee Technical Institute, he taught the likes of Capt. Doug Dodd and Deputy Scott Roush of the Citrus County Sheriff's Of-Dunnellon of Police Joanne Black and Lt. Phil Royal, the Thomas current academy Kern director, to name a

"Mr. Kern laid the foundation for our academy, and his influence has impacted literally thousands of law enforcement officers and criminal justice professionals," Royal said at Kern's memorial service Saturday. "I didn't know it then, but when I look back at the knowledge, the skills, the values and integrity he instilled in us at the academy -Ididn't know how important it would be today as I follow in his footsteps.'

Thomas P. Kern, of Inverness, died July 31. He was 78.

Glenn Wade recalled being the one to hire Kern back in the 1980s.

"It was his personality, his dynamic smile and his ability to get along with people," Wade said, "He was the epitome of a police officer and a teacher. I hired the best.'

Thomas Kern: The epitome of a police officer

Joanne Black first met Kern when she was in high school. She, along with every other student he ever taught, learned that law enforcement isn't a job, it's a career, and if they ever thought of it as just a job, they were in the wrong field.

"He knew every one of his students by name," Black said. "He kept up with his people, too. He knew where you were working, and he helped a lot of people get jobs in law enforcement.'

Roush recalled how he always started each class with a joke — he was known for his jokes.

Dodd, too, spoke about Kern's infectious laugh and how he loved to have a good time.

"He also had a serious side," Dodd said. "He took policing seriously. He knew the importance of training. He wanted his officers to be trustworthy, honest and dependable.

His No. 1 rule was: Make sure you go home safe every night.

The pistol range at the academy is named for him — the "Tom Kern Pistol Range.'

Thanks to Kern's influence and example, his youngest son, Russ, is now a police officer for the city of Ocala. Also, one of his grandsons is going through law enforcement training. Kern was extremely proud of that Tom Kern grew up in Pennsylvania. He met Jewell, his wife of 58 years, while he was in the Navy. They had three sons and raised them in Tampa where Kern served as a police officer until he was injured in a car accident while chasing a suspect.

After that he was hired at WTI and he and Jewell moved to Inverness in 1986.

"My dad put others first," said Russ Kern. "I was in ninth grade when he started at WTI and because he didn't want to interrupt my (schooling), he commuted every day to Inverness and that was a long drive.

"But the thing I admire most about him is his commitment to my mom," he said. "He gave her anything she needed or wanted, did everything for her ... whatever was important to her was important to him. Even in his last few days, he was more concerned about her than himself.

Tom Kern loved baseball and rooting for the Braves. He was a Miami Dolphins fan, had a sweet tooth, liked a good steak — and he liked to talk.

"He'd talk to a mannequin," Russ Kern said.

He wasn't a handy guy around the house. Instead, he believed you could fix anything with "plastic" (credit cards). He could get angry. but he never held a grudge.

As a father, his bark was worse than his bite, although it took his sons a while to learn that. All their mother had to say was, "Wait until your dad gets home," and they would wait with fear and trembling.

Russ Kern said, "Dad taught us that family is first. He showed me what it means to put others before myself. That actually helped me accept him dying.

Being selfish. I would want him here, but to see him in pain, you can't worry about you. From him I learned that it's not about you," he said. "It struck me in his last days that as rambunctious little guys we waited for him to get home and that now I was waiting for him to go home (eternally) where there's no more pain or suffering."

expected. Officials had not decided how to handle extradition.

The siblings' mother, Barbara Bell of East Palatka, Fla., said she had no comment on the arrests. Last week, she urged the trio to give up before there was bloodshed.

A citizen tipped the Colorado State Patrol about 9 a.m. that the suspects were believed to be in Colorado City, about 25 miles north of Walsenburg. Their vehicle was later seen at a nearby campground, but the suspects fled before deputies arrived.

A deputy then spotted the car at a gas station, and the chase began. Troopers deployed spiked stop sticks on the interstate, causing the car to roll over and crash into a guardrail, patrol Lt. Col. Anthony Padilla said.

Two of the three suspects, including Lee Dougherty, were arrested at the scene. A third fled on foot into Walsenburg but was arrested without incident by state troopers.

The arrests came a day after the FBI warned citizens the trio had likely been spotted buying camping gear in Colorado Springs. Alerts went out to dozens of law enforcement agencies.

"I was worried about the safety of our troopers," said Colorado State Patrol Chief Col. James M. Wolfinbarger. "To have them shooting at you and continue the pursuit, those men are brave."

It was a similarly dangerous chase in Florida on Aug. 2 that launched the manhunt. An officer tried to pull a car over for speeding northeast of Tampa, Fla. A five-mile chase followed, with speeds up to 100 mph, and at least two people in the fleeing car squeezed off 20 or more gunshots.

A bullet burst the patrol car's front tire and the suspects got away, Nocco said. The officer wasn't injured.

Hours later, about 210 miles north along Interstate 75, three people wearing masks charged into Certus Bank in Valdosta, Ga. One of the robbers brandished an AK-47 while another was photographed by a security

Forced retreat in war on meth

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - Police and sheriff's departments in states that produce much of the nation's methamphetamine have made a sudden retreat in the war on meth, at times virtually abandoning pursuit of the drug because they can no longer afford to clean up the toxic waste generated by labs.

Despite abundant evidence that the meth trade is flourishing, many law enforcement agencies have called off tactics that have been used for years to confront drug makers: sending agents undercover, conducting door-to-door investigations and setting up stakeouts at pharmacies to catch people buying large amounts of cold medicine.

The steep cutbacks began after the federal government in February canceled a program that provided millions of dollars to help local agencies dispose of seized labs. Since then, an Associated Press analysis shows, the number of labs seized has plummeted by a third in some key meth-producing states and two-thirds in at least one, Alabama.

The trend is almost certain to continue unless more states find a way to replace the federal money or to conduct cheaper cleanups.

In Michigan, authorities still bust meth labs when they find them, but tougher missions like secretly sending officers into the meth underworld have been scrapped.

"They're not actively out there looking for it," said Tony Saucedo, meth enforcement director for Michigan State Police. "And the big issue is money. We have taken 10 steps backward."

Authorities say they have no doubt that meth trafficking remains brisk. Record busts are being reported in some states that fund their own cleanups.

But in places that rely on federal money, law enforcement agencies feel paralyzed. At least one sheriff became so frustrated that he considered burning meth waste illegally in a landfill rather than leaving it in neighborhoods where curious children could find it.

'We didn't have an opportunity to prepare," Matheny said. "We just got a phone call saying, 'You're not going to have funds anymore.' It just absolutely crippled us."

The AP analysis involved building a database of lab seizures in the nation's top 10 meth-producing states based on 2010 figures. Combined with numbers from the first half of 2011, the statistics showed that seizures gredients such as battery had dropped sharply in acid, drain cleaner and amstates that depended on federal money. Lab seizures were down 32 percent through May 31 in Tennessee, which led the nation in seizures in 2010. The numbers were similar or worse in other leading meth states: down 33 percent in Arkansas, 35 percent in Michigan and 62 percent in Alabama.

All of those states relied heavily on funding from the federal Community Oriented Policing Services, or COPS program. It offered In Warren County, Tenn., local agencies $19.2 million system, police say.

gence Center reports that shipments of meth from Mexico are also on the rise.

In states that have developed their own lab cleanup programs, full enforcement has continued. Missouri, the leader in meth lab busts for a decade before falling to No. 2 behind Tennessee last year, has seen a 9 percent increase in seizures through May 31. Kentucky seizures are up 34 percent, Illinois up 36 percent.

Because meth is made using a volatile mix of inmonia, only crews with specialized training are waste and debris cannot be The AP also conducted 50 dumped in a regular landproved waste sites.

In years past, a typical meth lab often consisted of pots of simmering chemicals in basements. kitchens and garages. But then restrictive new laws made it harder to purchase large quantities of the cold medicine pseudoephedrine, a key ingredient. That led many meth makers to give up on big batches in favor of smaller ones produced by combining ingredients in a 2-liter soda bottle.

The majority of labs now use this "shake-and-bake' have been busy the past week in the garden.

Our cucumbers are really doing well this summer. I canned dill pickles and jalapeno peppers last week. I'd like to do a couple of more batches of dill pickles and a few more batches of freezer pickles.

Our early cabbage is used up now, so that is history for another year. The boys have been gradually digging up the last of the red potatoes.

We do have another patch of sweet corn ready that we have been using. Yum! And we still have one more later patch of sweet corn coming along, so we'll enjoy it a while longer.

Friday was the funeral of 11-month-old Clara. Clara is a little girl in our church and the niece of Elizabeth's daughter boyfriend Tim. She left this world at such a sweet, young age.

This will be a very hard week for her family as they get back to their normal schedule. Reminders will be around of her and memories will be all that is left. When feeding time around, comes the mother's arms will ache to hold and cuddle her. My sister Emma can sympathize with this mother, having lost Baby Marilyn last year. God's ways are not our ways, but He knows best.

Some of our church women took turns going over to help prepare meals. Everyone was assigned to help bring in a meal sometime over the viewing period. On the morning of the funeral, I left around 6:30 a.m. along with some other women to help prepare sandwiches for the funeral.

During the viewing, slips of paper were made out for anyone who wanted to take one home. On it, it said what they should bring for the funeral. You could choose from the slips either chicken broth, potato salad, jello with fruit or cakes. Once the slips of paper were all gone, we knew we had enough food coming in for the funeral. The broth is used for chicken and noodle soup. Eleven 12-quart cool were made. And the morning of the funeral, we prepared about 500 ham sandwiches. although we probably had about 75 to 100 left when it was over. I stayed after the funeral to help clean up. We also served supper to the family in the evening. It was probably around 7:30 or 8 p.m. until I came home. It was nice to call it a day, but I was happy to help out. The burden is much lighter the more people who help carry the load. I feel privileged to have a caring church and community during times like these.

Meanwhile, I am trying to decide whether I should do laundry today. So far, it has been cloudy. I would be glad to get laundry caught up be-Wednesday fore when daughter Verena has surgery on her foot. I think she is getting a little nervous about it.

Daughters Elizabeth and Susan are detasseling corn again. They are hoping to finish up for the season tomorrow. Their detasseling picnic is Saturday.

Sisters Verena and Susan will have our annual family gathering Saturday, Aug. 20. We all take turns to have the gathering. So next year, it will be sister Leah's turn again. There is always someone missing, though. It seems we should see our dear parents there, but God had other plans for our future

Yesterday, we had Emma and Jacob's family come for brunch cook-out. We а made all the food outside on the open fire. Husband Joe grilled side pork. And we had eggs, sausage gravy, biscuits, potatoes, cheese, tomatoes, hot peppers, cider, milk, coffee and a Jello cake that Emma brought.

After dishes were all washed and put away, daughter Susan served root beer floats to everyone. It was enjoyable to cook and eat outside.

PEACHES AND CREAM COFFEECAKE

Dough:

- 2/3 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 🔳 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons butter melted
- 1 quart canned or fresh peaches, drained, reserve the juice

Cream filling:

- 8 ounce cream cheese softened
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons peach juice

Topping:

- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350. In a large mixing bowl, mix flour, baking powder and salt. Add egg milk, butter and beat for 2 minutes. Pour into a wellgreased 8 inch round pan. Drain peaches and arrange over batter.

For the filling, cream together ingredients and spoon over peaches.

For the topping, mix sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle on top.

Bake at 350 for 30 to 35 minutes.

Stocks resume sell-off; Dow finishes down 519

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Back to reality for the stock market – and back down.

Wall Street focused Wednesday on the bleak landscape ahead for the economy and sold off, wiping out the big gains from a day earlier and then some. The selling was intensified by worries about debt problems in Europe. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 519.83 points.

On Tuesday, the Federal Reserve said it planned to keep interest rates ultra-low for two more years. After some initial confusion, the stock market staged a huge comeback and had one of its best days.

But the interest-rate news proved to be a distraction. The Fed made the pledge because it sees almost no chance that the economy focused on that, they will improve substantially dumped stocks again.

"Now it gets back to the fundamentals," said Mark Lamkin, founder of Lamkin Wealth Management, which manages $215 million.

The Dow closed at 10,719.94, down 4.6 percent for the day. By points, it was the ninth-steepest decline for the market. The Dow has lost more than 2,000 points in less than three weeks.

Wednesday was another day marked by big moves on the stock market. The Dow was down more than 300 points within minutes of the opening bell. It recovered some of that loss, then drifted steadily lower in the last two hours.

The market has traded that way for two weeks, lurching up and down. The most extreme example was Tuesday, when the Dow swung more than 600 points from a loss of 205 points to a gain of 429 points in the one hour and 45 minutes after the Fed's statement.

= Business HIGHLIGHTS =

Fed's low rates no fix for weak Chart-based trading behind big economy or retirees

WASHINGTON - The Federal Reserve's plan to keep interest rates super-low for at least two more years is great news for mortgage refinancers and other borrowers.

For retirees and others who need interest income? Not so great.

Nor will low rates likely revive a depressed home market, energize a weak economy or reassure frightened consumers.

No matter how low rates stay, nervous individuals and wary businesses remain reluctant to spend money. The economy is barely growing, unemployment is stuck at a recession-level 9.1 percent, the stock market is falling and the risks of another downturn appear to be rising.

market swings

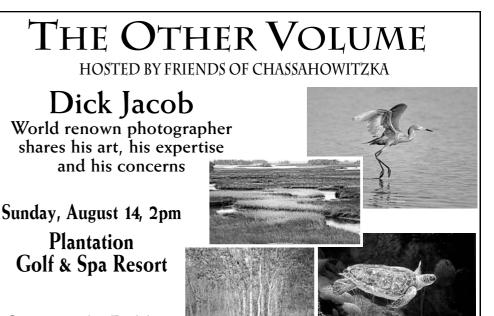

NEW YORK - Support levels. Moving averages. Breakouts.

That strange language is being spoken more forcefully on Wall Street these days. It is the language of technical trading, which is helping to drive recent wild gyrations in stock prices.

Technical traders ignore fundamentals, such as corporate profits or expected growth rates. Instead they rely on stock-chart analyses that signal when to buy or sell the entire U.S. stock market.

In the absence of clear signs about the economy's direction, more of Wall Street is turning to technical trading, magnifying volatility.

And I'm actually not a fan of leaping from two minutes in the Senate to a potential presidency. As one seasoned political pro puts it: "We don't do ourselves or our future leaders any favors by rushing the wine before its time. Reagan would not have been nearly as good a president had he won in '68 or '76 as he was in '80, having been tempered by failure and steeled by defeat and adversity."

one is. I get nervous when we act like any one politician or celebrity or hero is something more than he or she is. Rubio is a great freshman senator, who has not walked into the chamber preening like a rock star, as his detractors have claimed. He waited until June, in fact, to give his first speech on the Senate floor. He hasn't seemed to be poisoned by his press clips.

So I will leave the "Draft Rubio"

After speaking to the Senate during the last Saturday in July, the Florida freshman gained 14 approval points, according to a Quinnipiac poll of his state's voters.

This impressive surge was due to a single Saturday speech on the debt-ceiling debate in Washington.

In his remarks, Rubio blasted 'compromise that's not a solution" as a "waste of time." He said: "If my house was on fire, I can't compromise about which part of the house I'm going to save. You save the whole house or it will all burn down. We either save this country or we do not. And to save it, we must seek solutions.'

He said, before voting against the debt-ceiling deal, that "Americans are looking at Washington with anger, disgust, and concern that maybe America's problems are just too big for our leaders to solve.'

Later that afternoon, he offered some closing thoughts, laying out the competing worldviews that rule Washington. And, as if reminding voters that you get the government you ask for, he noted that the divide wasn't a Washingefforts to others. But you don't ton creation, that it instead re-have to draft him to no- flects a split in America about what government is for and should be about.

"We borrow $120 billion a month to pay our $300 billion-a-month bill," Rubio said. "And that's just too much money." Nothing to disagree with there.

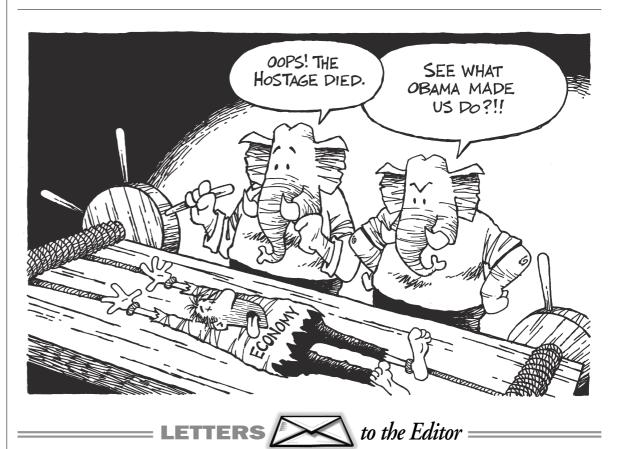

And so we debate the role of government over and over again. Does it exist to provide economic justice or opportunity? Do we tax the rich more because they make more money than they need, or bring in more taxpayers?

And there may not always be a compromise; choices need to be made. "Ultimately, we may find that between these two points there may not be a middle ground," Rubio said.

I could go on. But you can listen yourself. Listen particularly to a conversation Rubio recently had with Wisconsin Rep. Paul Ryan, chairman of the budget committee. Ryan is another rising politician who is getting nudged to run for president. Why? Because he wants to find solutions; because he knows of what he speaks and because he can communicate his convictions about making America an exceptional, prosperous place for posterity.

This is also the heart of Rubio's message: We face a "generational choice," and every citizen has the power in their vote to write the story of how we kept the American dream alive.

Dems' grand plan

Now that the debt-limit debacle in Congress has concluded, the final phase of the Democrats' Grand Strategy is underway.

After Mr. Obama assumed the presidency in 2008, the Democrats had total control of government. They not only continued the expansion of government under the Bush administration, they drastically increased its reckless spending spree, increasing the so-called "Bush deficit" by more than 40 percent in just three years. Democrats rammed through health care reform that was concocted behind closed doors, with substantial input and direction from special-interest groups, together with threats, bribes and political gress. It was also accomplished by significant fudging of the numbers and other accounting gimmicks. This was done in spite of the fact that a majority of Americans opposed the plan. Then we had the stimulus plan. which has been an unmitigated failure, as unemployment has increased to 9.2 percent and the threat of another recession increases daily under Democrat leadership.

The 2010 midterm elections sent a clear message to Washington: We the people do not want this kind of "change." When the Republicans were handed control of the House, the Democrat strategy was changed to one of defense. Their plan is to do nothing and allow the Republicans to unilaterally initiate legislation and budgets and then go on the offensive and aggressively attack everything brought forth for discussion and negotiation, regardless of its merits. Their plan deflects criticism of the Senate's defiance of its constitutional responsibility to prepare annual budgets for the country. The Senate, under Harry Reid's direction, has not produced a budget for the country in more than 840 days! When Mr. Obama finally produced a budget earlier this year, it was so irrational that his Senate defeated it by a 97-0 vote.

It will be interesting to see how this charade plays out between now and the 2012 elections

What separation?

Re: "Freedom Abounds." letter to the editor, July 24, by Robert P. Curran.

Mr. Curran is upset that some of that "In God We Trust money" (Religious Freedom Amendment) will find its way into the Florida private school system. He assures us that "There is no doubt" the amendment will be found in violation of both the state and federal constitutions under the "separation of church and state" provisions.

I can't find anything resembling a "separation" clause in the state constitution, and I know full well there is no "separation of church and state" clause in the U.S. Constitution. I think Mr. Curran is referring to the old Soviet constitution, Chapter 7, Article 53: "... in the USSR, the church is separated from the state, and the school from the church.'

BIRMINGHAM, England With police nowhere to be seen, the Muslims of Dudley Road armed themselves with bricks and stones, clubs and cricket bats to fend off carloads of marauding gangs.

Their vigilante stand in Birmingham's west end saved a humble row of family-run shops and a redbrick mosque from the looters' grasp - but at a terrible cost.

A carload of rioters sped into a fleeing crowd of shop defenders, witnesses said, hurling three young men into the air and killing amateur boxer Haroon Jahan, 21, and brothers Shazzad Ali, 30, and Abdul Musavir, 31.

'We all had stones in our hands. But we had no defense to stop a car. They revved their engines and drove right at us as fast as they could,' Mohammed Ibrahim, 23, told The Associated Press. "These black men deliberately tried to kill us all."

Wednesday's 1 a.m. slaughter has laid bare racial tensions underlying this week's riots in Birmingham, Britain's second-largest city and its most ethnically diverse. A fifth of the city's 1 million "Brummies" are Muslims, most commonly of Pakistani origin. About 7 per-cent are black, mostly Caribbean, in background.

While the riots that have swept England this week have involved looters of every creed and hue, the street anarchy also sometimes has exposed the racial fault lines that run beneath the poorest urban quarters.

N. Korean shell in S. Korean waters

South Korean marines returned fire Wednesday after North Korea launched artillery shells into waters near the disputed maritime line that separates the two rivals, South Korean defense officials said.

The three North Korean shells fired near the Northern Limit Line in the Yellow Sea prompted the South to fire three shells back, Defense Ministry spokesman Kim Minseok said. Another ministry official, who refused to be named because of office policy, said North Korea fired more rounds later in the day and South Korea responded. He could not immediately say how many rounds were fired by both sides.

Both sides' shells landed in the water, and there were no reports of casualties.

South Korean forces have been on high alert in the area since a North Korean artillery attack killed four people in November on South Korea's Yeonpyeong island. Wednesday's artillery exchange, which happened in hazy weather, was near that island.

Britain's rioters are young, poor and disillusioned

LONDON — Young rioters clogged Britain's courthouses Wednesday, each one painting a bleak picture of a lost generation: a 15vear-old Ukrainian whose mother died, a 17-year-old who followed his cousin into the mayhem, an 11-year-old gangster arrested for stealing a garbage can.

Britain is bitterly divided on the reasons behind the riots — some blame the unrest on opportunistic criminality, others say conflicting economic policies and punishing government spending cuts have deepened inequalities in the country's most deprived areas.

standard of success on the eve of the PGA Championship.

It wasn't long ago that Woods said it couldn't be a great year without winning a major.

Now he would consider the year a success because he no longer hurts.

To be clear, he is thinking only about winning when the PGA Championship gets under way Thursday in the stifling heat at Atlanta Athletic Club. That much hasn't changed, and probably never will.

Asked for a realistic expectation in the final major — remember, this is only his third time teeing it up since April and he hasn't won any tournament in 21 months -Woods said a "W."

"Do you want me to elaborate?" he added. "A nice W."

But he sounded as though he were looking at the bigger picture. Success is measured differently these days because of injuries to his left knee and Achilles tendon that have made it difficult to walk, play and even practice as much as he would prefer. At least now he is able to hit balls as long as he wants after his rounds.

He's not alone.

The Seminoles, who finished 10-4 last season, were an overwhelming favorite of the media covering the Atlantic Coast Conference to win their first league championship since 2005 and run their streak of winning seasons to 35.

They'll have to do it with a new starter at quarterback, but junior EJ Manuel is hardly untested. He has a 4-2 record when he started games the past two years when Christian Ponder was sidelined with injuries.

Bucs pleased with progress of rookie defender Bowers

TAMPA — Da'Quan Bowers is eager to prove the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were right, and 31 other teams were wrong about a knee injury that hurt his stock in the NFL draft.

The former Clemson defensive end led the nation in sacks last season and was NFC with 26 sacks a year considered a probable top 10 pick before undergoing surgery in January.

Some teams shied away from him on draft day, fearing a less than full recovery

Pay television industry loses record number of subscribers

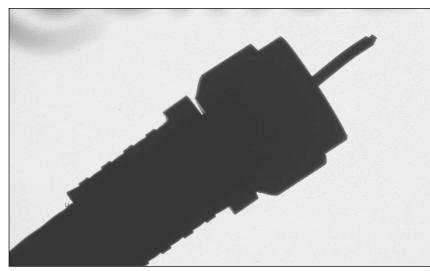

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The weak economy is hitting Americans where they spend a lot of their free time: at the TV set.

They're canceling or forgoing cable and satellite TV subscriptions in record numbers, according to an analysis by The Associated Press of the companies' quarterly earnings reports.

The U.S. subscription-TV industry first showed a small net loss of subscribers a year ago. This year, that trickle has turned into a stream. The chief cause appears to be persistently high unemployment and a housing market that has many people living with their parents, reducing the need for a separate cable bill.

But it's also possible people are canceling cable, or never signing up in the first place, because they're watching cheap Internet video. Such a threat has been hanging over the industry. If that's the case, viewers can expect more restrictions on online video, as TV companies and Hollywood studios try to make sure they

The weak economy is hitting Americans where they spend a lot of their free time: at the TV set. Therefore, they are cutting their coaxial cable lines.

The second quarter is always the like Netflix.com and Hulu.com are year's worst for cable and satellite companies, as students cancel service at the end of the spring semester. Last year, growth came back in the fourth quarter. But looking back over

The ratings agency said it started noticing last fall a segment of consumers were starting to make a tradeoff between online video and regular TV. The activity was more pronounced among people ages 18-34. Olgeirson expects programmers to keep tightening access to shows and movies online. A few years ago, Olgeirson said, "they threw open the doors," figuring they'd make money from ads accompanying online video besides traditional sources such as the fees they charge cable companies to carry their channels. But if it looks as if online video might endanger revenue from cable, which is still far larger, they'll pull back. "Are they really going to jeopardize that? The answer is no," Olgeirson said Already, News Corp.'s Fox broadcasting company is delaying reruns on Hulu by a week unless the viewer pays an $8-a-month subscription for Hulu Plus or subscribes to Dish's satellite TV service. Other subscription-TV providers may join in the future. TV producers and distributors want to discourage people from dropping their subscriptions. Moffett believes it's hard to separate the effect of the economy from that of Internet video. Subscription-TV providers keep raising rates because content providers such as Hollywood studios and sports leagues demand ever higher prices. That's causing a collision with the economic realities of American households. "Rising prices for pay TV, coupled with growing availability of lower cost alternatives, add to a toxic mix at a time when disposable income get paid for what they produce.

In a tally by the AP, eight of the nine largest subscription-TV providers in the U.S. lost 195,700 subscribers in the April-to-June quarter.

That's the first quarterly loss for the group, which serves about 70 percent of households. The loss amounts to 0.2 percent of their 83.2 million video subscribers.

The group includes four of the five biggest cable companies, which have been losing subscribers for years. It also includes phone companies Verizon Communications Inc. and AT&T Inc. and satellite broadcasters DirecTV Group Inc. and Dish Network Corp. These four have been poaching customers from cable, making up for cable-company losses — until now.

The phone companies kept adding subscribers in the second quarter, but Dish lost 135,000. DirecTV gained a small number, so combined, the U.S. satellite broadcasters lost subscribers in the quarter — a first for the industry.

The AP's tally excludes Cox Communications, the third-largest cable company, and a bevy of smaller cable companies. Cox is privately held and does not disclose subscriber numbers.

Sanford Bernstein analyst Craig Moffett estimates the subscription-TV industry, including the untallied cable companies, lost 380,000 subscribers in the quarter. That's about one out of every 300 U.S. households, and more than twice the losses in the second quarter of last year. Ian Olgeirson at SNL Kagan puts the number even higher, at 425,000 to 450,000 lost subscribers.

That's also a first.

The subscription-TV industry is no longer buoyed by its first flush of growth, so the people who cancel because they're unemployed are outweighing the very small number of newcomers who've never had cable or satellite before. Dish CEO Joe Clayton told analysts on a conference call Tuesday the industry is "increasingly saturated.'

But like other industry executives, Clayton sees renewed growth around the corner. Though his company saw the biggest increase in subscriber flight compared with a year ago, he blamed much of that on a strategic pullback in advertising, which will be reversed before the end of the vear.

Other executives gave few indications the industry has hit a wall. For most of the big companies, the slowdown is slight, hardly noticeable except when looking across all of them. Nor do they believe Internet video is what's causing people to leave.

Glenn Britt, the CEO of Time Warner Cable Inc., said the effect of Internet video on the number of cable subscribers is "very, very modest;" in fact, so small it's hard to measure.

SNL Kagan's Olgeirson said the people canceling subscriptions behind, or never signing up, are an elusive group, difficult to count. Yet he believes the trend is real, and he calls it the "elephant in the room" for the industry.

Anecdotal evidence suggests young, educated people who aren't interested in live programs such as sports are finding it easier to go without cable. Video-streaming sites isn't growing," Moffett said.

Thought for Today: "Journalism is literature in a hurry." - British poet (1822-1888).

Today's Birthday: Involvements in shared enterprises can represent a promising future for you in the next year. For best results, team up with someone who has experience and knowledge you lack, while you fulfill what she or he is missing.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Being in a gregarious mood is likely to produce a more industrious you. You'll find that spending your time productively gives you a bigger lift than does wasting your time doing nothing.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Business and pleasure can make a compatible mix if you know how to handle it. Be responsible and serious when discussing the job, and a free spirit when you can take a break or when the work is finished. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Even if you should be a slow starter, there are strong indications that you'll still be a strong finisher. When you get out ahead, forget about looking back to check on the competition.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) - Plan your schedule so that it contains plenty of activities that involve mobility of purpose and freedom of movement. You aren't likely to be productive if you're anchored in one spot.

=Today's HOROSCOPE

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Be sure to take a hard look into all your windows of opportunity. You're in a brief cycle where the possibilities for material growth are especially strong. Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Productivity and effectiveness can be greatly enhanced by delegating some key assignments to various competent allies. Utilize all your avenues to reach your goal

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) - You should be able to devote plenty of time to taking care of all of your urgent responsibilities as well as your personal affairs, if you can discourage others from hanging onto you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — The best way to elevate your hopes and expectations is to think and act like a winner and not get so easily discouraged over minor, negative influences. Try it, you'll like it.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Everyone is appreciative of receiving compliments, but if you listen carefully, they could significantly help you measure just how much progress you've made on any one particular achievement. Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Although you'll take all your involvements seriously, you'll still be quite philosophical about their outcome. This unruffled attitude makes what you have to do much easier.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Partnering with others for a common cause is once again your strong suit. You've found that sharing something in common with another is an extremely rewarding pastime.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) - As long as another is able to contribute something you can't, a partnership arrangement can be quite advantageous for you. Life is easier when someone else is sharing half the burdens.

ST. PETERSBURG - Sam Fuld hit a game-tying triple and then scored on an errant throw to complete a five-run ninth as the Tampa Bay Rays rallied to beat the Kansas City Royals 8-7 on Wednesday night.

Fuld hit a drive to right center off closer Joakim Soria (5-5) and wound up scoring the running run when second baseman Johnny Giavotella was charged with an error for a bad relay throw to third.

After Aaron Crow gave up consecutive singles in the ninth, Soria entered and gave up an RBI double to Evan Longoria, a run-scoring grounder by Ben Zobrist and Casey Kotchman's RBI infield single before Fuld's two-out hit. Soria has blown 7 saves in 28 opportunties this season.

Salvador Perez got his first career hit, RBI and made several key defensive plays in his major league debut and Melky Cabrera homered and drove in five runs for Kansas City.

The Royals purchased the contract of the highly-regarded catcher from Triple-A Omaha. The 21-year old had a seventh-inning single in three at-bats and added a sacrifice fly. He also picked Kotchman off first during the fourth and Fuld at third in the eighth.

Cabrera had a pair of sacrifice flys and extended the lead to 7-3 with a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth off Jake McGee (1-1).

Matt Joyce homered for the Rays. Johnny Damon singled in the ninth to tie George Davis for 65th place on the career hits list with 2,683.

MIAMI - Dan Uggla extended his hitting streak to 31 games and Tim Hudson pitched into the eighth inning, leading the Atlanta Braves over the Florida Marlins 6-2 Wednesday night for a three-game sweep.

Uggla's two-run single in the first inning tied Rico Carty for the secondlongest hitting streak in franchise history. Tommy Holmes hit in 37 straight for the Boston Braves in 1945. Uggla went 3 for 5. It was his ninth multihit game during the longest hitting streak in the majors this season.

NEW YORK — Curtis Granderson hit a three-run homer off Garrett Richards before the rookie got his first major league out and the New York Yankees snapped their three-game losing streak with a 9-3 win over the Los Angeles Angels on Wednesday night.

Granderson later added his 31st homer of the season on a long shot to the second deck in right field. Robinson Cano tacked on a two-run shot in the seventh inning, getting within a single of hitting for the cycle.

Indians 10, Tigers 3

5-5 L-1 31-24 21-40

CLEVELAND — Ubaldo Jimenez showed why Cleveland traded for him, winning his home debut and rookie Jason Kipnis went 5-for-5 with four runs and three RBIs as the Indians shaved another game off Detroit's lead in the AL Central by beating the Tigers 10-3 on Wednesday night.

With its 13th straight win at Progressive Field over Detroit, Cleveland closed within two games of first place.

Ravs' Cobb to have surgery near ribs

ST. PETERSBURG — Tampa Bay Rays right-hander Alex Cobb will undergo surgery to remove a blockage in the area of his first right rib.

The surgery will be performed Friday by Dr. Gregory Pearl at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas. The recovery time is 10 to 12 weeks.

Cobb is expected to assume his normal winter throwing routine and be completely recovered by the start of spring training.

CITRUS COUNTY'S RECREATIONAL GUIDE TO OUTDOORS

DAN HERMES For the Chronicle

The archery deer hunting season starts in Citrus County Sept. 17 and hunters in the know will get a jump on things by doing their scouting now.

The white-tailed deer is a creature of habit, with the exception being during the mosquitoes buzzing about rut, so scouting out deer movements; feeding areas and bedding grounds prior to the season opener will give you a good idea on where to put tree-stands and blinds for maximum results.

If you are blessed with private property to hunt on, you may have spent time the 2011 archery/crossbow planting food plots earlier in the year and hopefully the local deer population has been steady customers. Now all you have to do is find out where they have been bedding down for the night, find the routes they are taking to the food, and set up several prime ambush points.

Deer will often use the same trail going to and from bedding and feeding areas, so knowledge of these trails, coupled with a topographical map of the area, can give the hunter a distinct advantage when it comes to setting up a game plan.

Trail cams are also a great tool to use to give you some idea of the local population, and maybe even surprise you with photos of a bruiser or two hanging out in the neighborhood.

Now, if you have never sound like a sure thing with information. all this Hunters know different. Things change in the great outdoors and happenings like large amounts of rain, drought and frontal systems will change things up in the blink of an eye. Throw in "buck fever" and a million your head while you are drawn back, waiting for your quarry to take one more step, and a "sure thing" suddenly seems far off.

hunted before, this may

However, there are steps you can take to increase your chances of filling the freezer with venison during season, which in Zone C runs from Sept. 17 to Oct. 16.

First and foremost is practice time with that deer decoy in the back yard. Lots and lots of practice time will and as seasoned veteran bowhunters know, even then there is no guarantee. You will want to put the field tips away and start shooting broadheads.

Also, make sure that you practice shooting from an elevated platform if you will be hunting out of a treestand, as is the choice for most bow hunters. Many newcomers to the sport will practice shooting "flat" shots, and then climb into a tree-stand on the season opener. Then they will be surprised when they sail that first arrow right over the back of a deer.

help alleviate heartbreak, your compound hunting trauma to the target. bow, be sure it is with the same arrow weight, size, length, and fletch that you will be hunting with," said Harold Ross, a veteran bowhunter who is the president of Ross Hammock Ranch in Inglis. "Another very common error is to practice with field tips and then just switch to broadheads the day of the hunt, they do not fly the same." Ross also added that he personally likes to hunt with a Muzzy four-blade, 100grain broadhead. He said they sell a dull blade that you can practice with that is "When you practice with safer and causes less with a bow and arrow from ing a clean kill shot and danoutdoors2001@yahoo.com.

If you are a novice, you tency is the key to a successwill want to head to one of ful bowhunter and the only the archery pro shops in the area. Seeking the guidance of a veteran bowhunter and well equipped pro shop is the best step you can take when it comes to getting fitted with the proper equipment to get the job done right.

Practice your set-up, draw and release from different angles. Killing a deer a tree-stand is a difficult thing to learn. You will be twisted, turned and tested "Therefore, I don't have to like nobody's business, so re-sight my bow as others do practicing beforehand for different shots will help fine-tune your skills. Consisway to get consistent is to practice, practice, and when you think you have it down, practice some more.

Associated Press

The last thing you want to do is hit a deer in the hindquarter or make a gut shot and then never find your quarry. It happens to the best of them, but with practice you can help improve your chances of makharvesting your game.

Go to www.myfwc.com for a complete list of rules and regulations for the upcoming hunting seasons. Also be aware that on Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs) the seasons are different and may require quota hunt permits. Being ignorant is not an excuse for breaking the rules.

So get out in the woods before the season opener and get a feel for things. If you do your homework, and practice, your chances for a successful season will improve dramatically.

Labor Day Jamboree

The Florida Bowhunters Council, in its 50th year, will conduct the Bowhunter Jamboree Broadhead Shoot Sept. 3-5 at the Holder Mine in Citrus Wildlife Management Area. Tickets are $35 for adults, $20 for youth or $55 for the family. Registration starts at 9 a.m. on Sept. 3 and on that same day there will be a bowhunter education program conducted also.

This is a prime opportunity for bowhunters to practice a wide range of shots while competing with shooters from across the state. Free campsites are available, so come out and enjoy this family-friendly affair.

For more information, go to www.floridabowhunters.net or call 2011 Jamboree Chairman Bob DuBose at 386-985-2205.

I'll let you decide for yourself whether that's A Good Thing or A Bad Thing. I personally agree with whomever it was (the experts disagree) who first said, "That government is best that governs least." We need look no farther for an example of excessive governing than today's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and its heavy-handed "solution" to a problem many say doesn't exist.

Ways to stretch grocery dollars obs are scarce, the stock market is tank-J ing and long-term so-lutions seem obscure. Therefore, families continue to seek inexpensive, but healthy solutions to planning and preparing meals for their families.

Today's column offers some ideas for making the supermarket dollar stretch a bit, though that's not easy when food prices are climbing. Even such old reliables as chicken, ground meat, dried beans, pasta and rice are skyrocketing in cost.

Really search for the flavor-rich meats including ham hocks, fresh pork hocks and sales on large chuck roasts to cut into thirds for several meals.

There is nothing tastier or more nourishing than a big pot (or crockpot) of beans of choice simmered all day with a couple ham hocks. Cut up a couple of potatoes to add to the mix and you have a really hearty meal.

Fresh pork hocks are delicious cooked with sauerkraut, and pieces of beef chuck cooked long and slow — with noodles added the last 15 minutes makes a great supper to feed many. Idahoan instant are sometimes cheaper nowadays than bags of fresh spuds - and keep much longer in the summer months. Buy tortillas, both flour and corn, and save leftover chicken and turkey to make homemade enchiladas — a little meat goes a long way with this treat. Buy cheese in bulk and grate your own for toppings. Plain old cornmeal is perfect for a breakfast cereal with milk and sugar and chilled in a loaf pan. It is also a great meal stretcher when sliced and fried and served with butter and syrup. Don't hesitate to ask someone in the meat department for meaty bones for soup and to cut large packages of meat in half or even quarters if that's all you need. ■ When it's on sale, I buy a rotisserie turkey breast from SweetBay and usually manage to get at least four big turkey sandwiches and plenty of leftovers for six to eight turkey enchiladas from that single purchase. ■ For a quick gumbo, fry a large chicken or chicken parts in a skillet. When good and brown, mix in a big pot with a quart of chopped okra, fresh or 1 can of whole kernel corn, four large tomatoes and 2 chopped onions. Add a goodly amount of pepper, a good dash of cayenne pepper and salt to taste. Simmer uncovered for about three hours. Serve over cooked rice. ■ Another economical dish I like to call Hoosier Soul Food is Indiana goulash. It was a staple when my children were small and I still crave it today. Cook 8 ounces of elbow macaroni (we like Mueller's) according to package directions. Drain and set aside.

JULIANNE MUNN Chronicle Food Correspondent

mphasis is on passion at the new Taverna Manos Mediterranean Grille east of Crystal River. Passion for food, for innovation, for fusing flavors of the Mediterranean with other cuisines in an old-world setting.

Nicholas Everhart said the family passion is the key to success at the restaurant that offers everything from Moroccan lamb tagine to Greek lemon chicken to Rioja pork to seafood and steaks and much more. Everhart, along with his mother, Debbie Manos, and brother, Damian Everhart, are owners of Taverna Manos, which boasts decor that evokes the sunny Greek Isles, both inside and out. The dining area seats up to 68 patrons, including a room that can be reserved for private parties. Tables and booths evoke casual elegance with fresh flowers, adding a breath of color and fragrance to the ambiance. Everhart said the restaurant has gathered a trio of cooks and chefs who all have specialties. Ben Hensley, executive chef, is multitalented, specializing in seafood dishes. Jesus Rodriquez, sous chef, is skilled in preparing Spanish, Italian and French items. And Chris Fugate concentrates on Italian and French cuisine.

Debbie Manos is no stranger to food service.

"I am a baker's daughter," she said, adding her family originally comes from Olympia, Greece.

All of the dishes at the restaurant are those handed down by her family.

Those visiting Taverna Manos should be prepared to peruse a lengthy menu with breakfast, lunch and dinner items.

The Taverna Manos Mediterranean Grille features a collection of Greek, French and California wines. From left, the restaurant co-owners are brothers Damian and Nicholas Everhart and their mom, Deborah Manos.

Breakfast choices are mostly traditional, but the house specialties include omelets and skillets with home fries, hash browns or grits and toast. The names are as festive as the $8 servings: Athenian, Deep South, Brittany, Corsica, Lorraine, Tuscan and Greek. to list a few.

"We believe in the pageantry," Nicholas Everhart declared, noting a restaurant should be more than a place to go eat.

He said it should offer good interesting food at affordable prices.

"We just want to make people feel special without spending a lot of money," Manos said, pointing to the restaurant's early bird specials from 3 to 5 p.m. daily ($8.95) as well as the regular menu.

Some of the early specials include meatloaf with mashed potatoes, liver and onions, half a Greek lemon chicken, and openface turkey and roast beef sandwiches with mashed potatoes. Entrees include a cup of soup or small salad and one beverage.

"Everything here is fresh," Nicholas Everhart said. "We buy produce every other day. Our meat is from a local butcher and the French fries are hand-cut."

The innovation and excitement in the kitchen of the Taverna also means there is experimentation, Manos said.

At a recent Saturday and Sunday brunch, a new quiche was the daily specialty. It was prepared with flaky filo dough rather than the usual pie crust. She said it raised the dish to a new level and was delicious.

Also new is the tagine, Nicholas Everhart said, describing the traditional lamb and vegetable stew served with Israeli cous cous. The dish is on tap when available, so diners desiring tagine might want to call first to be sure it's on hand.

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Soups, sandwiches and salads adorn the lunch menu including such favorites as Reubens, beef French dip, and a "Bro Roll," a giant pile of roast beef, corned beef and pastrami on a Kaiser roll topped with melted Swiss, provolone and horseradish sauce $9 and worth every penny.

Some of the unique specialty appetizers are crispy calamari ($9), turkey ribs ($5 and $9), empanadas ($8) and tiger shrimp cocktail ($8).

The tempting list of good eats at Taverna Manos seems to never end. There are rib-eye and New York strip steaks ($12 and $14 respectively); Tuscan chicken stuffed with sundried tomatoes, feta cheese and artichokes finished with a white wine sauce ($14); Rioja pork, Spanish style pork chop with green peppers, onions, cured ham in tomato sauce ($14). That's just a small sample.

You might also consider the souvlaki, homemade spanokopita or the mano plaki, a red snapper stuffed with Greek herbs and baked with celery, carrots, onions, potatoes and tomatoes for one at $17 or for two at $30, served with soup or salad and roll.

No one knows when the cocktail was invented. Anecdote says it started more than 2,000 years ago with the Roman statesman Pliny the Elder who wrote it was OK to drink before a meal on an empty stomach, and lo, the cocktail was born. Fanciful maybe. Still in this spirit, we have come up with a batch of neat recipes for this time of year.

Finally, read carefully how to make the classic version of the best Margaritas you ever tasted. Sure you can use the pre-mixed Margarita mixes, but I have never been really happy with any of the popular brands and prefer to make my own from scratch.

Margarita Numero — Use any decent Tequila. I recommend the silver. And the Tequila must be made from 100 percent Agave, the true plant from which it is derived.

AUNT HELEN'S GREEK TZATZIKI

- 1 cucumber
- 2 to 3 cloves garlic
- 1 teaspoon medium wine vinegar
- 300 grams (1 1/3 cups) full-fat strained Greek yogurt
- 100 ml (1 1/3 ounces) extra virgin olive oil
- 1/2 tablespoon finely chopped dill leaves cucumber and Peel roughly grate it. Finely grate the garlic. Salt the cucumber and leave it in a colander for 1/2 hour and then drain well.

Put cucumber in a bowl with the garlic and the rest of the ingredients. Mix well with a fork. Put the dip in a bowl, add salt to taste and decorate with a few dill leaves.

1 1/2 cups tomato sauce (Recipe follows)

Remove from heat and add the nutmeg and tomato sauce. Stir until well combined and check for seasoning. Set aside to cool completely.

Simple tomato sauce:

- 1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 small onion, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 1 rib celery, chopped 1 carrot, chopped
- Sea salt and freshly ground pepper
- 2 (32 ounce) cans crushed tomatoes
- 2 dried bay leaves
- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter (optional)

In a large casserole, pot or Dutch oven, heat oil over medium high heat. Add onion and garlic and sauté until soft and translucent, about 5 to 10 minutes. Add tomatoes and bay leaves and simmer uncovered on low heat for 1 hour or until thick.

Remove bay leaves and check for seasoning. If sauce still tastes acidic, add unsalted butter, 1 tablespoon at a time to round out zarella cheese on top of the the flavors.

- 2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry
- 3 cups shredded Mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

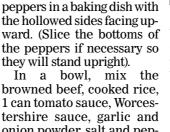

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

In a sauté pan, heat extravirgin olive oil. When almost smoking, add the ground chuck and season with salt and pepper. Brown meat, breaking any large lumps, until it is no longer pink. Remove from heat and drain any excess fat. Set aside and cool completely.

In medium size bowl, thoroughly mix the ricotta and eggs. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

Into the bottom of a 9-by-13-inch baking dish, spread 1/3 of the Bechamel sauce. Arrange the pasta sheets side by side, covering the bottom of the baking dish. Evenly spread a layer of all the ricotta mixture and then a layer of the spinach. Arrange another layer of pasta sheets and spread all the ground chuck on top.

Sprinkle 1/2 the Mozbeef. Spread another 1/3 of WAR offers good music

Beth Sholom offers mini-courses

Two thought-provoking mini-courses begin Monday, Aug. 15, at Congregation Beth Sholom, 102 Civic Circle, Beverly Hills. Classes meet for three weeks on Aug. 15, 22 and 29.

"When Bad Things Happen to Good People," from 7 to 8 p.m., will discuss the purpose of life, faith, good and evil. Students will see how the anger and pain of personal tragedy can lead us to fearlessly question the ways we comfort each other and to question God.

"Miracle in the Middle East: The Israeli Economy" will be from 8:15 to 9:15 p.m. How did a tiny, backwater province of the Ottomon Empire 100 years ago turn into one of the most dynamic and robust economies today?

Each class is $5 per session, plus textbook. To register, email Hazzan Mordecai Kamlot at mkamlot2@gmail. com, or call (352) 643-0995.

Citrus County's high unemployment rate is one of the primary causes for the increase of people turning to CUB for assistance, said executive director Brenda Flowers. Citrus County residents are asked to assist CUB with essential food items so that it can continue to provide for those residents who have less than the average citizen.

Needed items are nonperishable canned meats, macaroni, macaroni and cheese, Tuna Helper, canned vegetables, peanut butter, Hamburger Helper, canned fruit, jelly, baby food, cereal, soup, tuna and rice.

Drop off items Monday through Friday at 103 Mill Avenue, Inverness. For monetary donations, checks can be mailed to: CUB, P.O. Box 2094, Inverness, FL 34451-2094.

For more information, call Flowers at (352) 344-2242.

Habitat to raise walls of 70th house

Habitat for Humanity of Citrus County will raise the walls on house No. 70 for the Diaz family at 8 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 13. The house is at 9602 N. Feigel Terrace, Crystal River.

All interested persons are invited to help. For driving directions, call the Habitat office at (352) 563-2744, or visit www.habitatcc.org.

Habitat for Humanity is a nonprofit ecumenical Christian housing ministry seeking to eliminate poverty housing and to make decent shelter a matter of conscience and action. To volunteer, call (352) 563-2744.

Robert Heinlein wrote, "A human being should be able to change a diaper, plan an invasion, butcher a hog, conn a ship, design a building, write a sonnet, balance accounts, build a wall, set a bone, comfort the dying, take orders, give orders, cooperate, act alone, solve equations, analyze a new problem, pitch manure, program a computer, cook a tasty meal, fight efficiently, die gallantly. Specialization is for insects." That is perhaps excessive, but if you can analyze problems, you can be a good bridge player. Part of that analysis is working out what an opponent's opening lead tells you. In this deal, for example, you are in four hearts. West leads the club nine. East wins with his ace and returns a club, West following with

The original declarer played a heart to dummy's king, but East won with his ace and led another club, which West ruffed. And shortly thereafter East scored a second trump trick for down one.

South correctly pointed out that he was unlucky to find West with low doubletons in both rounded suits, but he should have made the contract anyway.

East's only potential entry is the heart ace. Declarer should play a diamond to dummy's ace, then call for a low heart. How can East defend?

If he wins with his ace and gives West a club ruff, South can draw the missing trumps without further loss. If East plays a low heart, South wins with his queen and ducks a round of hearts, again losing at most three tricks (unless trumps are 4-1, when he is always down).

Dear Annie: This is for "Nebraska," who is raising her grandson while her daughter spends the child support money on other things.

I work in a Child Support Enforcement Unit (CSEU), and this happens quite frequently. The grandmother should talk to her local CSEU. They can help her file, at no cost, a change of beneficiary, making her the recipient of the payments since she is, in fact, the child's actual guardian. If the father should be granted custody, he can file a modifying petition that will terminate his payments of child support. I hope this helps. -Jemal D. ANNIE'S MAILBOX living room, not fixing him a better dinner. We fight most I'm tired of the highs and lows. Jimmy's temper has escalated, and he hits walls and slams doors. He is mean to the kids, and when I defend them, he says I am never on his side. I worry what my children are learning about relationships.

I have a part-time job, but my main job is paying the bills, cooking, cleaning, laundry and child lem for several years as a result care. I rarely ask to get my hair done or buy clothes, because Jimmy's ex spent him into debt and I don't want him to think I'm like her. I would love to resume my career once the kids are older, but if it interferes with the other men who have one, and this running of the household, life around here will be miserable.

We barely have sex, because we go to bed angry. Jimmy expects the house to be magazineperfect and says if he knew I was such a lazy witch, he never would ures, disappointments, embarhave married me. When I protest, rassments or anxiety. My only
