The Florida Department of Health is discontinuing weekly water quality testing at Fort Island Gulf Beach. Citrus County plans to step in and perform monthly tests at the site.

CRYSTAL RIVER — Budget cuts have forced the Florida Department of Health to stop its weekly testing of water at Fort Island Gulf Beach, but county officials say they will pick up the slack. The health department's Healthy Beaches Program had its funding cut by $500,000, which forced prioritizing water sampling at beaches of significant concern, officials said. Fort Island Gulf Beach was eliminated from the program, along with beaches in Taylor, Dixie, Levy and 22 other Florida counties, according to a letter to Citrus County officials from the health department.

District might seek waiver

CHASSAHOWITZKA — Even permitting agencies have trouble getting permits sometimes.

A dredging project in the Chassahowitzka River main spring is on hold while state water regulators await a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Southwest Florida

Water Management District project, budgeted at $1.3 million but expected to cost far less than that, goes out to bid Friday and should be awarded by mid-October, project manager Philip Rhinesmith said Thursday. During a public information meeting in June, Rhine-smith said he hoped to have started the project in July. Now it could be delayed until May because of federal regulations that prohibit work from Nov. 1 to April 30 during manatee season. Rhinesmith said the water district is discussing a possible waiver with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that could allow work to occur between mid-October and the end of December. He said the federal agency approved a similar request for the Department of Environmental Protection's 2006

County employees tour new government office space

Meadowcrest facility has more room

TAYLOR PROVOST
Chronicle

CRYSTAL RIVER — County employees got their first look at the West Citrus Government Center on Thursday as they toured the work site with Public Works Director Ken Frink and Tax Collector Janice Warren. "We're a little ahead of schedule and we're currently under budget," Frink said as he led about 12 county employees through soon-to-be offices and meeting rooms separated by newly constructed metal frames. The new 25,000-square-foot location on State Road 44 near Winn-Dixie will consolidate different departments into one location, including the tax collector and driver's license office, property appraiser, supervisor of elections, clerk of courts and public access studio. Employees from the current tax collector's office in Inverness marveled at the spaciousness of what will eventually be their first break room. In addition to separate bathrooms for the employees and the public, each individual office space will have its own "convenience" sink for making food and coffee. The break room will house refrigerators and a microwave. "Employees get water to make food and coffee from the bathroom sink and wash their dishes in there — and they've been doing that for 20 years. This is amazing," Warren said. The Meadowcrest building is a complex that also houses a branch of the SunTrust Bank and an office for

Many 9/11 families haunted by lost remains

Associated Press

NEW YORK — His family has his spare firefighter uniform, but not the one he wore on 9/11 — or any other trace of him.

Killed at the World Trade Center, 32-year-old Scott Kopytko's remains were never recovered — a painful legacy of grief for families looking for answers, closure or final confirmation that their loved one was actually a 9/11 victim.

"Very painful and very hurt" is how Russell Mercer, Kopytko's stepfather, describes it. "And mistrusting of everybody."

Numbers tell the story in the decade of search and recovery of the remains of Sept. 11 victims — a massive forensic investigation marked by a Supreme Court appeal of families who wanted a more thorough search, and discoveries years after the attacks of even more remains in manholes and on rooftops around ground zero.

Tens of millions have been spent, including on the painstaking extraction of DNA from tiny bone fragments, using technology refined from a decade ago.

Of 21,000 remains that have been recovered, nearly 9,000 are unidentified, because of the degraded condition they were found in. More than 1,100 victims have no identifiable remains.

And the pace of the process is telling — in five years, only 26 new identifications. Ernest James, a 40-year-old man who worked in the trade center's north tower, was the last identification, in late August.

"I can't give a time frame of when an identification is going to be made, if at all," said Mark Desire, who heads the World Trade Center identification unit for the city medical examiner's office. "But we are working nonstop."

Five scientists work seven days a week trying to make new identifications at a lab in an ultra-modern building on the east side of Manhattan. The unidentified remains are stored in climate-controlled conditions under a white tent blocks from the medical examiner's office. About 400 bone fragments are looked at and analyzed every month.

DNA analysis is done by comparing the remains' genetic profile to DNA found from victims' possessions, like toothbrushes; from relatives; or from previously identified remains.

See the Chronicle's special 9/11 edition Sunday.

The fragments are examined, cleaned, and pulverized into powder to extract tell-tale genetic traces — a process that can take up to a week before an identification is made. Most of the DNA profiles generated belong to previously identified victims.

When an identification is made, the remains are returned to the family. Sometimes, nothing survives the DNA testing. Relatives might only receive the packaging where the remains had been stored.

Desire, assistant director of forensic biology for the medical examiner's office, says the office won't give up.

"The dedication of this team ... is as strong as it was 10 years ago," he said in a recent interview.

But the extended search baffles family members like Mercer.

"You can find DNA from the Civil War, World War I and World War II," he said. "But you can't find DNA from first responders or civilians?"

The failure to identify so many victims has affected the final victims' count over the years. The city's list of the dead — often with multiple missing persons' reports of the same people — peaked at nearly 7,000 in the months after the attacks, but dropped to 2,752 by the fall of 2002.

Three more names were removed in 2004 after investigators failed to track them to the trade center; including Sneha Anne Philip, a Manhattan doctor who was last seen Sept. 10, 2001, at a department store across from the twin towers. Her name was added back to the death toll in 2008 after her family argued in court that there was no other place she could have been.

And the mystery of who died in the trade center hasn't yet been solved by science.

Twenty-seven profiles DNA generated so far don't match any of the approximately 17,000 genetic reference materials that were collected. Scientists aren't sure who they are.

Wind delays launch of moon spacecraft

High wind forced NASA on Thursday to delay the launch of twin spacecraft destined for the moon, the first mission dedicated to measuring lunar gravity.

NASA will try again Friday, despite another poor weather forecast: 60 percent no-go. Launch time is 8:33 a.m. The space agency has just two single-second launch windows every day.

Thursday's countdown made it all the way down to the four-minute mark, but was halted because of gusty wind high up in the flight path.

The mission is the first in more than 50 years of lunar exploration that's dedicated to measuring the moon's uneven gravity — about one-sixth Earth's pull.

Volusia County sheriff's deputies are searching for a man they say tried to pull an armed boat-jacking on the Intra-coastal Waterway.

While the 37-year-old victim was driving through shallow water, he saw the man pull a gun. The two scuffled and fell into the shallow water.

Deputies say the boat's owner was able to get away.

FLORAL CITY — Every Friday, 43 students at Floral City Elementary School take home a "Bubba Backpack" filled with food to keep their tummies full over the weekend.

Some even take home food for siblings. In its fourth year, the Blessings in a Backpack program, sponsored by Citrus County Harvest, feeds as many as 700 children countywide for 35 weeks during the school year at a cost of $80 per child.

"This is our first full year at Floral City Elementary," said Debbie Lattin, Harvest director. "We also have four new schools this year: Central Ridge, Citrus Springs, Lecanto Primary and Crystal River Primary."

On Thursday, volunteers met in the basement at Floral City Church of Christ. In assembly-line fashion, each person put a specific food item in each backpack as it went down the line.

Each child receives two beverages, two breakfast items, one meat item, one fruit, snack and entrée.

Next, the backpacks were loaded into plastic tubs to be taken to the school to be passed out at the end of the school day Friday. It took less than 20 minutes.

"We call them 'Bubba Backpacks,' after our mascot, Bubba the Bullfrog," said Janet Reed, Floral City Elementary School's principal. "I heard about the program from my sister who's a teacher at Hernando Elementary and I called Debbie Lattin to see how we can be a part."

Lattin told her it depended on fundraising, estimating it wouldn't be until the beginning of this school year. However, the funds became available and Floral City joined the program in February.

"It's a phenomenal program," Reed said, "and the children are so appreciative of it."

In 2009, 47 percent of Citrus County public school elementary students participated in the federally funded meal program. Currently, the rate is about 67 percent.

Blessings in a Backpack has five food pantry sites within five miles of each participating elementary school.

"We have been busy," Lattin said, "and there's more to do."

States' last frontier depicted in photographs of cowboys

MATTHEW BECK
Staff writer

INVERNESS — The long, rich history of Florida's cattle ranching industry is depicted in a visually stunning photography exhibit portraying the Florida cowboy at the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum.

Carlton Ward Jr.

"Florida Cowboys: Keepers of the Last Frontier" is a compilation of work by eighth-generation Floridian Carlton Ward Jr.

Ward holds a strong connection to ranching.

"The exhibit focuses on Florida ranchlands and ranching culture and the environment it protects," he said. "It's an unseen and tremendously important part of Florida."

Kathy Turner-Thompson, Citrus County historical resource officer, said the exhibit will appeal to many local residents because the subject matter hits close to home.

"We've had a long-standing history of cattle ranching in our county, and I think that it shows some of the heritage of the past and why it's important to keep it going into the future. And I think this tells an American story, not just a Florida story."

At 7 p.m. Thursday, October 6, Ward Jr. will present a free program in the second-floor courtroom at the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum.

The presentation will feature many of the images from his book in a slide show.

Ward, whose grandfather, Doyle Carlton, was Florida's governor from 1929 to 1933, will have his hardcover book "Florida Cowboys, Keepers of the Last Frontier," available.

According to Turner-Thompson, the exhibit has been on the move lately, showing in galleries between Tallahassee and Orlando. Most recently, the exhibit was on display in the Florida Museum of Natural History in Gainesville. John Grannan, president of the Citrus County Historical Society, liked what he saw upon viewing the exhibit for the first time.

"I was amazed," he said. "The breadth of the photography, the different aspects of ranching and the landscape of our state are outstanding. I also like his use of people in the exhibit."

While the museum's main gallery houses the majority of the exhibit, other images hang in the museum's main corridors. The large, bold images possess striking colors that at times appear three-dimensional.

Ward's use of aerial photography offers yet another unique perspective that helps give an understanding of just how massive the cattle-ranching landscape can be. Ranchers often work tens of thousands of acres herding and driving cattle.

"This is a photojournalistic presentation of this topic that goes across so many spectrums," Turner-Thompson said. "That's what I like so much about it. It's our history, our heritage, our culture, it's our natural environment, our economy and our people and places."

The exhibit officially opens today at the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum in downtown Inverness and admission is free. The museum hours of operation are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The exhibit runs until Jan. 9, 2012.

State rejects more than $100 million in grants

Associated Press

MIAMI — Gov. Rick Scott and the Republican-led Legislature have rejected or declined to pursue more than $106 million in federal grant money and returned another $4.5 million for programs linked to federal health care initiatives, including cancer prevention, leading critics to say he is putting his conservative agenda ahead of residents' needs.

Scott ordered state agencies to reject any money tied to President Barack Obama's health care plan, which Florida is challenging in court, but Scott kept more than $13 million for a four-year abstinence education grant and for another program coordinating background checks for long-term care workers.

"Things that are simply implementing the Affordable Health Care Act, or Obamacare, I'm not going to support because I believe this: It's the biggest job killer in our state, we can't afford it and it's going to be bad for patients," Scott said.

Critics have accused the governor of cherry-picking which programs he will accept grants from. The Legislature rejected $11.1 million that would have been paid out over four years to educate teens about pregnancy and HIV rates.

"It's not only disappointing, it's a huge health threat. These are real people's lives at stake," said Judith Selzer, spokeswoman for Planned Parenthood.

Florida returned $2 million to fund centers linking elderly and disabled residents with services and another $500,000 to counsel patients on long term care options, according to the Department of Elder Affairs. Another $2 million was returned that would have covered implementation and planning costs for the federal health program.

Panther's comeback creating new problems

TALLAHASSEE — The endangered Florida panther's comeback from near extinction is creating new problems.

Wildlife officials said Wednesday the big cats are beginning to prey on ranchers' cattle and homeowners' pets and backyard livestock such as goats.

A report to the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission says an estimated 100 to 160 adult panthers are living in South Florida. That's up from as few as 20 in the 1970s.

The increase is credited to the release of eight female Texas pumas in Florida in 1995. They bred with panthers and increased the genetic stock.

State BRIEFS

Man charged with stabbing girlfriend

MULBERRY — Authorities said a central Florida man stabbed his girlfriend, killed his dog and then wounded himself. The Polk County Sheriff's Office reported that 55-year-old David McCorkle and his girlfriend came out of their home, covered with blood, when deputies responded Tuesday. Authorities said McCorkle told a deputy to kill him and threw a butcher knife at the deputy. Deputies said McCorkle stabbed the woman several times with the butcher knife. Authorities said McCorkle killed the couple's pit bull mix when it tried to defend the woman. McCorkle faces charges of attempted murder, aggravated assault of a law enforcement officer and animal cruelty causing death.

Neighbors angry over crash memorial

SARASOTA — Residents of a Sarasota neighborhood aren't happy about a planned memorial for four teenagers who were killed in a car crash near there in March. The Sarasota Herald-Tribune reported that the neighborhood homeowners association didn't want the memorial because it would bring more teenagers to the community entrance, where remembrances have already been painted on the wall and street. But Stacey Monroe, whose 19-year-old son died in the crash, bypassed the neighborhood association and got county officials to approve a memorial plaque that will be placed in the county right-of-way at a dedication ceremony Thursday morning. Some residents are also questioning whether a memorial is appropriate for a single-vehicle accident caused by the driver reaching an estimated 99 mph on a 30 mph road.

Judge tosses SeaWorld lawsuit

ORLANDO — A Florida judge has dismissed a lawsuit filed by New Hampshire parents who claimed their 10-year-old son suffered emotional distress when he witnessed a killer whale drown a SeaWorld trainer. Last week, Judge Julie O'Kane ruled that Suzanne and Todd Connell's lawsuit was futile because it did not show how SeaWorld harmed the child. The Orlando Sentinel reported the judge's ruling also noted she could not find any case in which a complete stranger to an injured party was allowed to go forward with a lawsuit claiming negligent infliction of emotional distress. The Somersworth, N.H., couple and their son, Bobby, were attending the Dine With Shamu event when Tilikum, a 12,000-pound killer whale, pulled trainer Dawn Brancheau underwater.

Tampa-Cuba flights to resume

TAMPA, Fla. — Commercial flights from Tampa to Cuba are back for the first time since 1962, when relations between the two countries broke off during the Cold War. The first flight left Tampa International Airport Thursday afternoon for Cuba. Tickets to the island aren't cheap, often running more than $400 for the 75 minute trip. But the region's deep-rooted Cuban-American community no longer has to travel to Miami or New York to visit the island.

Permitting has held up a planned dredging project in the Chassahowitzka River's main spring near the county boat ramp.

DREDGING

dredging project in the Homosassa River springs.

But even if the water district receives the waiver, Rhinesmith said the timeline would be tight, since the project is expected to last 60 to 90 days.

"I'd prefer to be a little more conservative," he said. "I know folks are real antsy to see it, and I am as well."

The dredge project entails workers vacuuming about 3,000 cubic yards of sediment from the river near the county boat ramp.

Permits require the water district to have an archeologist on site to sift through the sediment for early 20th century items that could be donated to the county historical museum in Inverness.

Rhinesmith said the Corps of Engineers sent notice June 17 that it intends to issue a permit; however, the water district hasn't received the permit yet.

He said the district will go through the bid process with the hopes of receiving the necessary permits by early October.

"We're progressing along as much as possible," Rhinesmith said. "I know it's frustrating for the folks who live out there and recreate out there, to watch agencies linger along. The last thing the district wants is to put itself at risk of being in non-compliance."

JOBS

The newest and boldest element of Obama's plan would slash the Social Security payroll tax both for tens of millions of workers and for employers, too. For individuals, that tax has been shaved from 6.2 percent to 4.2 percent for this year but is to go back up again without action by Congress. Obama wants to deepen the cut to 3.1 percent for workers.

"This plan is the right thing to do right now," Obama said after a divided body rose in warm unison to greet him. "You should pass it. And I intend to take that message to every corner of this country."

In his televised address to Congress, Obama sought to provide a jolt for the economy, still staggering on his watch, and for his own standing at one of the lowest marks of his presidency. He put forth a jobs plan that he hopes can get bipartisan support and spur hiring in a nation where 14 million people remain out of work and the jobless rate is stuck at 9.1 percent. Public confidence in his stewardship of the economy is eroding.

Obama did not venture an estimate as to how many jobs his plan would create. He promised repeatedly that his plan would be paid for, but never said how, pledging to release those details soon.

The president also would apply the Social Security payroll tax cut to employers, halving their taxes to 3.1 percent on their first $5 million in payroll. Businesses that hire new workers or give raises to those they already employ would get an even bigger benefit: On payroll increases up to $50 million they would pay no Social Security tax.

Obama also proposed spending to fix schools and roads, hire local teachers and police and to extend unemployment benefits. He proposed a tax credit for businesses that hire people out of work for six months or longer, plus other tax relief aimed at winning bipartisan support in a time of divided government.

Under soaring expectations for results, Obama sought to put himself on the side of voters who he said could not care less about the political consequences of his speech.

"The question is whether, in the face of an ongoing national crisis, we can stop the political circus and actually do something to help the economy," Obama said.

His aim Thursday night was to put pressure on Congress to act — and to share the responsibility for fixing the economic mess that is sure to figure in next year's elections. For every time he told lawmakers to "pass the bill" — and he said over and over —

Democrats cheered while Republicans sat in silence.

Tax cuts amounted to the broadest part of Obama's proposal — in essence, a challenge by the Democratic president to congressional Republicans to get behind him on one of their own cherished economic principles or risk the wrath of voters for inaction. The tax cuts alone would amount to roughly $250 billion.

The president said deepening the payroll tax cut would save an average family making $50,000 a year about $1,500 compared to what they would if Congress did not extend the current tax cut.

"I know some of you have sworn oaths to never raise any taxes on anyone for as long as you live," Obama said, a reference to the conservative tea party influence on many House Republicans. "Now is not the time to carve out an exception and raise middle class taxes, which is why you should pass this bill right away."

Obama's jobs plan put a special emphasis on the long-term unemployed — those who have been out of work for six months or more. He repeated his calls for a one-year extension of unemployment insurance in order to prevent up to 6 million people from losing their benefits, and he proposed a $4,000 tax credit for businesses that hire workers who have been out of work for more than six months.

TESTS

State health officials tested beach water once a week under federal Environmental Protection Agency standards that required the state to issue no-swim advisories for all but two weeks between November 2010 and late April this year.

Health officials said the federal guidelines required several "clean" samplings for every sampling that showed a high presence of bacteria in the water. That meant the no-swim advisories were in place even during some weeks when tests were negative.

As a result of the state's budget decision that drops Fort Island Gulf Beach, county officials will obtain samplings of the water once a month for health department testing.

Parks and recreation manager Rafael Del Valle said the county now tests water at Hernando Beach once a month and will add Fort Island Gulf Beach to the testing program.

Both Del Valle and Will Bryant, environmental manager of the Citrus County Health Department, said they do not believe the public is at risk by changing once-a-week testing to once-a-month.

Del Valle said he thought most of the swim advisories last winter were due to the state's testing regulations, though he said the beach at times has a problem with high bacteria counts during cold weather or after heavy rains.

The letter from state officials to the county suggests placing "swim at your own risk" signs at the beach with some basic protective information.

They say they have outgrown the space, about 8,400 square feet, and the current building needs repairs. In the new building, the consti-

"Location-wise, it's also a lot more central," Frink noted.

The office is slated to open in December.

GOP leader dies of Lou Gehrig's disease

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Republican Party Chairman David Bitner died Thursday at his Monticello home, just two weeks before he was scheduled to step down as the state GOP boss. He was 62.

Officials at the state Republican Party headquarters announced Bitner's death from Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, which is more commonly known as ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease. Gehrig, the legendary New York Yankees first baseman who earned the nickname "The Iron Horse," for his durability playing in 2,130 consecutive games, died from ALS on June 2, 1941 at the age of 37.

ALS is an incurable disease that progressively attacks the brain and spine and leads to complete paralysis.

Bitner was diagnosed with the disease in April and at that time said he would carry out his duties as long as he could. Eight days ago he said he would step down from his position as the party chairman on Sept. 23 during the high-profile Presidency 5 event in Orlando that will feature a Fox News debate among Republican presidential candidates as well as a straw poll among party activists.

Tributes poured in from Republicans around the state, as well as Bitner's counterpart with the Democratic Party, former state Sen. Rod Smith.

"Chairman Bitner was a tireless advocate for the people of Florida and the state and party he dearly loved," Smith said. "His strength of character and dedication were respected by all who knew and worked with him, even those of us on the opposing side."

Born in Maryland where he was raised on a farm,

Bitner moved to Florida in 1967.

He served for many years as general manager of the Port Charlotte-based Charlotte Sun-Herald, helping to build it into one of the most successful newspapers in southwest Florida.

"Dave came to work with the free weekly when we had only four employees," said Derek Dunn-Rankin, chairman of the Suncoast Media Group. "He was the key player in building it into a significant daily newspaper."

In 1990, Dave sold his interest in the newspaper and joined his wife, Wendy, in starting a company that provided promotional products and business gifts.

Bitner is survived by his wife, daughter Jennifer Blackburn of North Port, three sisters, a brother, four grandchildren and a great grandson.

There were no details immediately available on funeral arrangements.

U.S. orders Fla. museum to keep painting

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — U.S. authorities are ordering a Florida museum to keep a more than 400-year-old Italian painting because it may have been stolen from a Jewish family during World War II.

The painting was one of 50 lent to the Mary Brogan Museum of Art & Science by a Milan museum for an exhibit that closed earlier this month.

The museum's chief executive officer, Chucha Barber, said she was notified by the U.S. Attorney's office in July that the painting may have been stolen by Nazis. The Tallahassee Democrat first reported that federal authorities had ordered the painting to remain in the U.S.

Associated Press

Chucha Barber, chief financial officer of the Mary Brogan Museum, discusses the status of the painting "Christ Carrying the Cross Dragged by Rogue" by Italian Renaissance artist Girolamo Romano Thursday.

The Tallahassee museum has permission to display the painting until at least November while federal authorities and the Italian government try to resolve its ownership.

U.S. might post Iraq force in Kuwait

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration is considering staging American troops in Kuwait next year as a backup or rotational training force for Iraq, after the Pentagon completes the scheduled withdrawal of its current 45,000-strong force from Iraq in December, U.S. officials said.

The proposal, not yet announced, is among a number of options the administration is considering for extending its military training role in still-violent Iraq, whose divided government has been reluctant to ask Washington directly to keep troops on its soil beyond this year.

All troops are to leave Iraq by Dec. 31 under a 2008 security agreement, but senior U.S. officials worry that without more training the Iraqi forces may squander hard-won security gains. The Iraqi army, for example, is only now taking delivery of U.S. battle tanks, on which they have yet to be trained.

Iraq's security forces are improving but still lack the capability to defend fully Iraqi air space, borders and territorial waters, U.S. military officers say.

"There are some gaps in their military capabilities, their security capabilities, that we believe we could offer some assistance with," Navy Capt. John Kirby, a spokesman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Thursday. Discussions with the Iraqis on this are in an early stage, Kirby added.

The Obama administration favors a proposal that would leave 3,000 to 5,000 U.S. troops in Iraq next year to train Iraqi forces, U.S. officials said this week. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because Iraq has not yet asked for any extension of forces.

It has not previously been reported that staging U.S. forces in Kuwait as a part of that training mission, or possibly along with that mission, is being considered. One of the U.S. officials said the administration would foresee the Kuwait arrangement lasting for three years, starting in 2012, with troops rotating into Iraq for six-month stints.

Congress OKs major patent law

New system enshrines "first-to-file"

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress gave President Barack Obama's drive to promote jobs growth a boost Thursday by presenting him with a major overhaul of the patent system that the president has sought as a means to spur innovation and put more people back to work.

The Senate voted 89-9 to pass the patent bill and send it to Obama for his signature. The vote came a little more than an hour before Obama's speech to a joint session of Congress on his jobs agenda and gave some evidence that lawmakers can, in an age of political division, occasionally find common ground.

The first major change in patent law in six decades is aimed at streamlining the patent process, reducing costly legal battles and giving the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office the money it needs to process patent applications in a timely fashion.

With passage, said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., "we could unleash the genius of our country and put our entrepreneur class to work and create jobs. It can let us compete with the rest of the world."

Leahy's partner on the bill, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Lamar Smith, R-Texas, said it was the most significant change to patent law since the Patent Act of 1836 and hailed it as "one of the most significant jobs creation bills enacted by Congress this year."

The legislation, which transforms a patent system now operating on legislation passed in 1952, passed the Senate in March and the House in June in a slightly different form. Thursday's Senate vote accepted the House version.

It wasn't easy. Congress has debated a patent bill every year over the past six years and, before final passage, the Senate had to defeat three proposed amendments that would have forced the bill to return to the House and increased prospects of another deadlock.

The measure would switch the United States from the "first-to-invent" system to the "first-inventor-to-file" system for patent applications. That change would put the U.S. in line with other industrialized countries.

The proposal has met resistance from some small-scale and independent inventors who say it will put them at a disadvantage with big corporations. Supporters say it will add certainty to a system now riddled by costly lawsuits.

With rivals having to rely on their own secret documents to prove they were the first inventor, it becomes difficult to "gain a clear picture of whether a patent is valid without years of litigation" and millions of dollars of discovery and other litigation costs, said Sen. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz.

Bones are 'game-changer' in evolution study

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two million-year-old bones belonging to a creature with both apelike and human traits provide the clearest evidence of evolution's first major step toward modern humans — findings some are calling a potential game-changer.

An analysis of the bones found in South Africa suggests Australopithecus sediba is the most likely candidate to be the ancestor of humans, said lead researcher Lee R. Berger of the University of Witwatersrand in South Africa.

The fossils, belonging to a male child and an adult female, show a novel combination of features, almost as though nature were experimenting. Some resemble pre-human creatures while others suggest the genus Homo, which includes Homo sapiens, modern people.

"It's as if evolution is caught in one vital moment, a stop-action snapshot of evolution in action," said Richard Potts, director of the human origins program at the Smithsonian Institution. He was not among the team, led by South African scientists, whose research was published online Thursday in the journal Science.

Scientists have long considered the Australopithecus family, which includes the famous fossil Lucy, to be a primitive candidate for a human ancestor. The new research establishes a creature that combines features of both groups.

The newly studied bones were found in 2008 in the fossil-rich cave region of Malapa near Johannesburg. Berger's then 9-year-old son, Matthew, found a bone that was determined to belong to the child. Two weeks later Berger uncovered the fossils of the female.

The journal published five papers detailing the findings, including separate reports on the foot, hand, pelvis and brain of A. sediba.

Berger said the brain, hand and foot have characteristics of both modern and early pre-human forms that show a transition under way. It represents a bonafide model that could lead to the human genus Homo, Berger said.

Kristian J. Carlson, also at Witwatersrand, said the brain of A. sediba is small, like that of a chimpanzee, but with a configuration more human, particularly with an expansion behind and above the eyes.

This seems to be evidence that the brain was reorganizing along more modern lines before it began its expansion to the current larger size, Carlson said in a teleconference.

"It will take a lot of scrutiny of the papers and of the fossils by more and more researchers over the coming months and years, but these analyses could well be 'game-changers' in understanding human evolution," according to the Smithsonian's Potts.

So, does all this mean A. sediba was the "missing link"?

Well, scientists don't like that term, which Berger calls "biologically unsound."

This is a good candidate to represent the evolution of humans, he said, but the earliest definitive example of Homo is 150,000 to 200,000 years younger.

Scientists prefer the terms "transition form" or "intermediary form," said Darryl J. DeRuiter of Texas A&M University.

"This is what evolutionary theory would predict, this mixture of Australopithecene and Homo," DeRuiter said. "It's strong confirmation of evolutionary theory."

But it's not yet an example of the genus Homo, he said, though it could have led to several early human forms, including Homo habilis, Homo rudolfensis or Homo erectus — all considered early distant cousins to man, Homo sapiens.

These articles "force a rethinking of how traits are coupled together in human evolution," the Smithsonian's Potts said in an email from Kenya, where he is doing research.

"For example, in previous definitions of our genus, the leading edge in the emergence of Homo has been brain enlargement. The sediba bones show, however, that reorganization of the brain and pelvis typically connected with the evolution of Homo need not have involved brain enlargement," he noted.

"The more we learn about human evolution, the more we see that traits" that must have happened together could occur separately, Potts said.

For example, the study of the hand shows that major changes in the thumb usually associated with toolmaking "did not imply abandoning life in the trees. In the foot article, we're introduced to a unique and previously unknown combination of archaic and advanced traits in sediba," Potts explained.

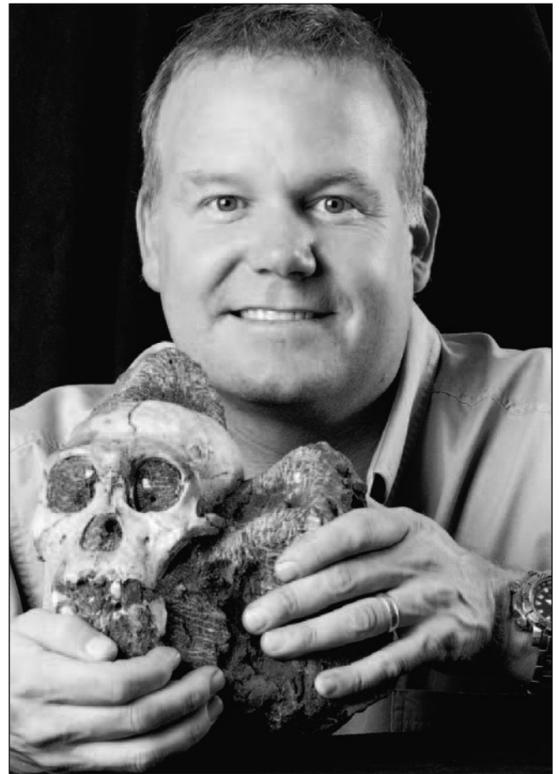

The researchers reported that the fingers of A. sediba were curved, as might be seen in a creature that climbed in trees. But they were also slim and the thumb was long, more like a Homo thumb, so the hand was potentially capable of using tools, though no tools were found at the site.

The fossil provides the first chance for researchers to evaluate the function of a full hand this old, said Tracy Kivell of the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology in Germany. Previously, hand bones older than Neanderthals have been isolated pieces rather than full sets.

The heel bone seems primitive, the researchers said. Yet its front is angled, suggesting an arched foot for walking on the ground, and there is a large attachment for an Achilles tendon as in modern humans, they said.

The pelvis is short and broad like a human pelvis, creating more of a bowl shape than in earlier Australopithecus fossils like the famous Lucy, explained Job Kibii of the University of the Witwatersrand.

That may force a re-evaluation of the process of evolution because many researchers had previously associated development of a human-like pelvis with enlargement of the brain, but in A. sediba the brain was still small.

The name Australopithecus means "southern ape," and "sediba" means natural spring, fountain or wellspring in the local Sotho language.

After the bones were discovered, the children of South Africa were invited to name the child, which they called "Karabo," meaning "answer" in the local Tswana language. The older skeleton has not yet been given a nickname, Berger said.

The juvenile would have been aged 10 to 13 in terms of human development; the female was in her 20s and there are indications that she may have given birth once. The researchers are not sure if the two were related.

Tuition hikes fail to stop cutbacks in higher ed

Associated Press

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — America's public colleges and universities have burned through nearly $10 billion in government stimulus money and are still facing more tuition hikes, fewer course offerings and larger class sizes.

Many college students are already bearing the brunt of the cuts in their wallets as they prepare for their future careers.

"This next academic year is going to be the hardest one on record" for cash-strapped colleges, said Dan Hurley, director of state relations for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Hurley said the higher education system has entered a phase in which cuts will begin to affect academics.

Public university systems used the stimulus to prevent deeper layoffs, maintain degree programs and keep campuses open and are now bracing for the end of the federal program.

The effects will be greater in some states than others.

Since 2009, Colorado has used more than $600 million in stimulus money for higher education, accounting for more than a quarter of the higher education budget over that period.

Stimulus money covered 35 percent of South Carolina's higher education budget in 2009 but less than 2 percent last year, according to a report by the New America Foundation.

California used $1.4 billion in stimulus money to pay nearly 30 percent of its higher education tab two years ago, but stimulus accounted for less than 1 percent in 2010.

Like most states, Nevada's stimulus infusion only softened a steep spending slide. The higher education budget fell about $210 million, almost 30 percent, over the last three years, even with the stimulus.

"We have frozen pay in the system. We have closed programs. We have cut back everything we could. You name it, we've cut it," said Dan Klaich, chancellor for Nevada's higher education system.

Without the stimulus boost, at least 35 states have been forced to make further cuts in higher education spending for the 2011-12 school year, with double-digit decreases in 13 states. That means tuition hikes, which for years had exceeded the rate of inflation, are even greater.

At Colorado State University in Fort Collins, students are paying about 20 percent more this year, up to about $8,000 for in-state and $24,000 for out-of-state tuition. For many, that means extra roommates, second jobs or giving up dreams of studying abroad.

The rising costs were the reason junior Ryan Thistlethwaite to join the Air Force ROTC program.

The human development and family services major pays out-of-state tuition with student loans and said he made the decision after figuring he would owe about $125,000 after four years at Colorado State.

He will not receive an ROTC scholarship, but he will be guaranteed a job after finishing school to help pay off his loans. "The money, I'd say that's 60 percent of it, why I'm joining ROTC," he said.

The cost shift from states to students has been going on for years, according to State Higher Education Executive Officers, a group that tracks college funding.

Adjusted for inflation, public colleges and universities in 1985 received about $7,479 per student from their states, with about $2,274 per student coming from tuition. The group says the amount coming from state budgets dropped to an average of $6,451 in 2010, while the tuition portion rose to $4,321.

Businesses take global approach

Quietly tucked away in various pockets of Citrus County are local businesses that embrace global philosophies. Three such businesses were highlighted on the front page of a recent edition of the Chronicle.

New Concepts International Hair Salon: Owners Sharon and Dale Malm look from London and Moscow to Los Angeles and New York to see the extremes being created by stylists. They then practice those extremes with the goal of modifying them for fresh looks that customers feel comfortable with.

SocialMedia Designs: Diana Broesler was with Smartphone Experts in 2004 and became aware of a significant talent pool of young people in the community capable of meeting a variety of tech-age business needs. From that arose Social-Media Designs, which "basically does anything to grow a business." Web design, video production and managing social media accounts are among their specialties.

Hernando Moss: Owner Arbuth Bumgarner has evolved from a floral designer to an environmentally-minded entrepreneur who sees the value in biodegradable products. Whether it's pots for plants that are 80 percent bamboo and 20 percent stone powder, or plates 100 percent made out of starch, he sees great potential and practical applications for the biodegradable products he produces in China, where he also has an office.

These are just three examples of entrepreneurial enterprises based right here — and that's just a fraction of the business community that is basing business models on modern-day society with an eye to the future.

Small businesses are the economic engine of Citrus County and it is critical that local government understands that it is supporting the community — and taxpayers — when viewing such businesses from a how-can-we-help standpoint.

Government should aim to be a partner, not a barrier, to their success.

So often, a literal view of regulations by government officials stands as a barrier to business vs. considering the intent of regulations and offering support toward achieving success.

When the spirit of enterprise is clearly something the community can point to with pride, it is incumbent upon government to embrace its role as a facilitator to success. With that mindset, the sun will shine on Citrus County's economic future.

THE ISSUE:

Enterprising businesses.

OUR OPINION:

Small business is county's economic engine.

Huntsman's last chance

By Douglas Cohn and Eleanor Clift

WASHINGTON — During the 1956 presidential campaign, a woman called out to Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, "Governor Stevenson, all thinking people are for you!" An erudite man with a wry sense of humor, Stevenson replied, "That's not enough. I need a majority."

That story comes to mind as Republican candidates face off against each other at the Reagan Library in California, and the field narrows. GOP strategist Ed Rollins stepped down as Minnesota Rep. Michelle Bachmann's campaign manager after telling the Washington Post that it is essentially a two-person race between Texas Governor Rick Perry and former Massachusetts Governor Mitt Romney, with Bachmann in third place.

Rollins has a history of telling the truth even when it hurts his candidate, and Bachmann is fading as Perry with his oversized personality commands the stage. Perry questions evolution and doubts that climate change is manmade. Meanwhile, rival Romney gets skewered for signing a health care bill that Massachusetts citizens mostly like and that became the model for national health care reform.

In a tug of war that pits intellectuals and philosophers against demagogues, the political culture favors the latter: Republican primary voters are charmed by Perry, an unambiguous conservative whose swagger inspires confidence among his Tea Party followers. Romney is like the dutiful suitor standing at the altar only to learn that his bride has run off with someone else.

Some Democrats are rooting for Perry on the grounds that he is a regional candidate with little appeal to women and Independents. But Democrats who dismissed Ronald Reagan as an aging movie star with orange hair are nervous about being too cavalier about Perry.

If unemployment remains at or near 9 percent, Obama can be beaten if the Republicans can pick a winner. Romney could be the one, but it's hard for him to get the nomination because the GOP has been taken over by the tea party. Romney's distaste for the tea party is part culture and part policy, and he can't fake it. For a candidate who has indulged in so much fakery in his positions on social issues, the tea party is a bridge too far, and they know it.

So here's one last pitch for former Ambassador Jon Huntsman, who is running out of time to become a serious candidate. The debate at the Reagan Library could be his last chance to distinguish himself from the rest of the field the way Reagan did in 1980 when he declared into a microphone that was about to be turned off, "I am paying for this microphone." The remark elicited applause from the audience and is credited with securing Reagan's come-from-behind win in New Hampshire.

Now is the time for Huntsman to show what he's got. If he's the candidate in the race with the broadest appeal, he's got to find that moment to demonstrate to the country, and to Republican primary voters, that he's what they are looking for if they want to take back the White House.

Huntsman is in single digits in the polls, and nothing he's tried so far has moved the numbers. He's done a media tour touting his moderation; jogged in Labor Day parades in New Hampshire, and released an economic plan that the Wall Street Journal loves. Voters have yet to pay attention, and if he can't lift himself above the crowd in the Reagan Library debate, he may have to face reality the same way Minnesota Governor Tim Pawlenty did after faring poorly in the Iowa straw poll.

Pawlenty realized if he couldn't win Iowa, he couldn't win anywhere. This next debate is Huntsman's Iowa; if he can't break through there, where can he?

LETTERS to the Editor

Top-notch care

To whom it may interest to know.

Having any kind of surgery can be very scary, but if you want the most pleasant surgical experience one can have, go to Citrus Memorial.

On July 17 of this year I had wrist surgery performed by Dr. Hubbard. Starting with pre-op to post-op, I was treated extremely well and was kept very comfortable.

I am one of those patients to whom it can be very difficult to administer anesthesia, and everything went very smooth, with minimal side effects.

Every one of my needs was promptly taken care of. My wife and I were also very pleased with a follow-up phone call to my home from the O.R. department.

I cannot remember all the names of all the people who cared for me, but here are the few I do remember: Dr. Hubbard, Maggie Breast, Rob Barlow, Cindy Eldridge.

I would like to thank these people along with Admitting, Pre-op, Same-day Surgery, the O.R. and Recovery Room personnel.

My wife and I, who worked in a hospital in the past for many years, were very pleased with the communication and professionalism of Citrus Memorial.

Thank you.

Have money? Spend it

There are some who would fault Gov. Romney for proposing to demolish his $12 million home and replace it with a larger $27 million home, and who might look at this as an arrogant display of excess wealth.

Instead, Romney should be thanked for creating his own $27 million mini-stimulus program designed to create jobs and stimulate the dormant economy. Imagine all the jobs this $27 million mini-stimulus will create: Jobs to demolish and haul away the old house, jobs to design the new house, a general contractor to hire subcontractors and to coordinate their efforts. Electricians, plumbers, carpenters, roofers, landscapers, cement workers and laborers. Government jobs to issue permits and provide inspectors to oversee the work. Also imagine the additional benefits of this job creation: monies spent on groceries, gasoline, clothing, etc.

Instead of faulting Romney for spending his money rather than keeping it in a bank or in stocks, people should encourage other extremely wealthy people (Hollywood comes to mind, and those who complain about not giving enough money to the government so that it can waste it) to create their own mini-stimulus programs and help to create more jobs in the private sector.

Hot Corner: POPEYES

BH needs fast food

I'm calling about Popeyes coming to Crystal River or Homosassa in today's paper. We need fast food in Beverly Hills. There's only Burger King and all there is around here is pizza to eat. We need some burger shops. We need a McDonald's here, way on the other side of town, not by Citrus Hills, on the other side on County Road 491 for us other folks who don't or aren't able to drive or get there except by taxi. We need fast food here on this side of town in Beverly Hills. We've needed it for years. I've been here 35 years.

On Target

No, we really don't need a Popeyes chicken restaurant here in Citrus County, but we do need a Target store, not another Walmart store. We have enough Walmarts already. We could use a Target store...It will stop a lot of the people from going out of the county to do their shopping.

Chicken chain needed

First of all, people in Citrus County are not complaining to see a Popeyes. They are requesting to see a Popeyes. You don't think we realize that you don't just put up a building and start frying chicken? Do you really think chicken and rice is that expensive? I think people in Citrus County can afford a piece of chicken and a biscuit. All the other fast-food restaurants have more than one of theirs in the county — actually one in each town — and seem to be doing great. Love that chicken from Popeyes.

Good Samaritan

Citrus County is full of good Samaritans. I want to thank the kind man who helped me out by Lake Rousseau when my pup was hit by a car. He's doing well thanks to you — only a broken jaw. Thank you again, sir, whoever you are.

LONGVIEW, Wash. — A federal judge is ordering union protesters to halt illegal activity as they battle for the right to work at a new grain terminal in Washington state.

U.S. District Judge Ronald Leighton issued a preliminary injunction to restrict union activity, saying Thursday there was no defense for the aggressive tactics used in recent days. Protesters blocked the pathway of a train twice on Wednesday, and police said they broke windows and dumped grain at the Port of Longview terminal Thursday morning.

Leighton said he feels like a paper tiger because the union clearly ignored a temporary restraining order he issued last week with similar limits. He now wants to have a hearing to determine whether the union should be held in civil contempt.

The public relations blitz helps set up a diplomatic showdown at the U.N., where Israel and the U.S. are leading opposition to the bid, and adds to concerns in Israel that mass demonstrations could turn violent.

Obama care clears court hurdle

2 Va. lawsuits challenging health care reform dismissed on technicalities

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — The federal health care overhaul survived two lawsuits dismissed Thursday on technicalities, leaving President Barack Obama's signature initiative headed toward a final resolution in the U.S. Supreme Court as early as next year.

It's possible the high court could rule on the issue by June 2012, in the midst of Obama's re-election bid.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ignored the core issue of whether the law can require that individuals buy health insurance or pay a penalty starting in 2014.

In the lawsuit filed by Liberty University, the court ruled that the penalty amounted to a tax — and that a tax can't be challenged before it's collected.

The panel said the state of Virginia lacked legal standing to file its lawsuit.

Three federal appeals courts have now weighed in on lawsuits filed over the law, and both opponents and advocates say the overhaul will ultimately be reviewed by the Supreme Court. A decision by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati upholding the law already has been appealed. The Justice Department has yet to appeal the Aug. 13 decision by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, which struck down the insurance mandate, and was given 60 days to appeal or ask for more time.

Virginia Attorney General Kenneth Cuccinelli, a Republican, and Liberty University attorney Mathew Staver said they plan to appeal Thursday's rulings to the Supreme Court.

The only questions are which case or cases the court will look at, and when that might occur, said Carl Tobias, a law professor at the University of Richmond.

"The court will entertain at least one if not all of them," Tobias said.

He said the court could take up the issue by January, which would allow enough time for a decision by June.

The Obama administration acknowledged after Thursday's rulings that more legal hurdles await in the coming weeks.

"When it ends, we are confident we will prevail," White House adviser Stephanie Cutter wrote in a blog message.

Two of the judges on the Virginia panel were appointed by Obama, the other by Bill Clinton.

They ruled 3-0 that Cuccinelli did not have legal standing to file his lawsuit, which had argued the federal law conflicts with a state law that says no Virginian can be forced to buy insurance.

Judge Diana Gribbon Motz, the Clinton appointee, wrote that the only apparent function of the state law was "to declare Virginia's opposition to a federal insurance mandate." The state law was signed by the governor a day after Obama signed the federal health care law.

Cuccinelli said he was disappointed not only that the court ruled against Virginia, "but also that the court did not even reach the merits on the key question of Virginia's lawsuit — whether Congress has a power never before recognized in American history: the power to force one citizen to purchase a good or service from another citizen."

In the Liberty case, the court ruled 2-1 that the appeals court did not have jurisdiction to rule on the case because federal law prohibits challenging a tax before it is collected.

Judge Andre Davis disagreed. Furthermore, Davis wrote that if the court had ruled on the merits of the case, he would hold that the law's health insurance provision is constitutional.

Staver noted that the lawsuit filed by Liberty, a Christian school founded by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, is just one of more than 30 that have been filed across the country challenging the health care overhaul.

"That in and of itself says something that this is unprecedented, it's unwanted and it's unconstitutional in my view," Staver said.

Record flooding in N.Y.

Tropical Storm Lee deluge wreaks havoc

Associated Press

ONEONTA, N.Y. — Roiling water surged over flood walls built decades ago to tame the Susquehanna River, 20,000 people were ordered to head for higher ground and passage through Binghamton was banned to all but emergency officials Thursday as heavy rains pushed swollen rivers to record levels.

"The situation is dire," Binghamton Mayor Matt Ryan told The Associated Press. "It's the worst flooding in the history of Binghamton at least since the flood walls were built in the 1930s and '40s."

Lingering rain from the tattered remains of Tropical Storm Lee swamped the region starting Wednesday, adding misery to a part of the country already sopping from the remnants of Irene 10 days earlier.

On Thursday afternoon, Ryan said a heavy band of rain appeared to spare the city and water levels were rising more slowly than anticipated, a bit of good news but not enough to let the mayor relax.

Dozens of homes and businesses were already flooding and Ryan worried about the concrete flood walls that funnel the river safely around the city of about 45,000 people. If they were to fail, "that could change the whole ballgame," Ryan said.

Sen. Thomas Libous, of Binghamton, told The Associated Press: "The flood walls could give out in the city and we could have a mini-New Orleans."

All roads in the city were restricted to emergency vehicles and several main highways outside it were closed, effectively cutting Binghamton off from every direction. High-axle National Guard vehicles were used to ferry people and supplies through the city, which sits near the Pennsylvania border at the confluence of the Susquehanna and Chenango rivers.

"We'll probably stay closed down overnight to make sure there's no additional rainfall," Ryan said. "We'll open them up as soon as safety permits."

The Susquehanna was above 25.5 feet Thursday afternoon, higher than the record set in 2006 and headed for a predicted peak above 26 feet by later Thursday.

City Hall had been circled by water and a major new student housing complex under construction at Binghamton University had first-floor flooding, Ryan said. The mayor also said there was a good chance the city's water treatment plant would get knocked offline, and there were fears the floodwaters would damage a newly-repaired wall that collapsed at the city's sewage treatment plant.

In outlying areas, residents were awakened by knocks on the door early Thursday and told to get to safety. Tonia Merrill and her husband Kevin Stone had to leave seven cats behind, three in their trailer home and four outside in the flooded trailer park.

"I'm not holding up," Merrill said. "I have anxiety and panic and this is not good. I can't be where I need to be — in my home. My home is my safe zone."

They were spending the day at the shelter trying to ride out the storm.

Broome County emergency services manager Brett Chellis said people who remained in inundated neighborhoods were being evacuated in public transit buses, but some had to be rescued by boat.

Special Libyan unit hunting down Gadhafi

Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Libya — Determined to hunt down Moammar Gadhafi, Libya's new rulers say they have dedicated a special unit of fighters to track the elusive former leader, listening in on his aides' phone calls, poring over satellite images and interviewing witnesses.

Although leads come mostly from on-the-ground tips, help is also coming from France and other Western countries, according to a French intelligence official. Satellite-based transmission intercepts of suspicious phone calls try to pinpoint where Gadhafi might be. Small CIA teams are also assisting in the manhunt, according to former U.S. officials.

Gadhafi, who hasn't been seen in public for months, went underground after anti-regime fighters swept into Tripoli on Aug. 21. Capturing the ousted ruler would allow the former rebels to seal their grip on the country and shut the door on the possibility of Gadhafi inspiring an insurgency against the new leaders.

After more than four decades under his authoritarian rule, Libyans are haunted by the question of Gadhafi's whereabouts, and the country has been awash with rumors that have put him everywhere from deep in a bunker under Tripoli to safe in exile in neighboring Niger or Algeria. On Thursday, Gadhafi himself dismissed talk of his flight, saying in an audio broadcast that he's still in Libya, and exhorting followers to keep fighting.

An anti-Gadhafi fighter, speaking on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the matter, said revolutionary forces stormed a villa on Tripoli's outskirts last week acting on a tip.

The fighter, who took part in the operation, said they believe Gadhafi was at the villa and escaped less than an hour before the raid through a secret tunnel. Computers were on and cups of tea were still warm, he said, indicating the occupants had just fled.

Two chefs working at the villa were detained and documents recovered, the fighter said.

Officials say the most reliable reports, culled from witnesses and informants, put the fugitive leader in or near one of three remaining strongholds of loyalist support — his hometown of Sirte on the Mediterranean coast, the city of Bani Walid southeast of Tripoli or the city of Sabha deep in the southern desert.

Panthers host Buffaloes in undefeated matchup

SEAN ARNOLD
Chronicle correspondent

GAME OF THE WEEK

With a shutout win in his first coaching victory, you might forgive Lecanto coach McKinley Rolle if he engaged in hyperbolic rhetoric about the Panthers entering a new era of winning ways.

But in the wake of last Friday's 17-0 win at Chiefland (0-1), the first-year coach is recalling the virtues of composure, no matter the previous result and imploring his team to focus on the most basic requisites for success as they prepare for tonight's inaugural home game against The Villages Charter (1-0).

"The win is huge," Rolle said. "Anytime you win it's a good thing, and that was the first opening-season win for the varsity players. But you can't get too high or too low. Remember the feeling and try to go get it again next Friday.

"Now we need to get back to basic fundamentals in football-blocking and tackling. We also have to know our assignments."

Along with a stalwart defensive effort, the Panthers (1-0) received an offensive boost last week from a muffed punt recovery and return by Lecanto middle linebacker Nick Nighten-gale, a pair of rushing scores by junior running back Akeem Gibbs, and a 32-yard field goal by junior kicker Scott Stearns.

However, it's the team effort that draws the most interest for Rolle.

"Gibbs made some nice plays. Scottie made a great kick. Nightengale made a heck of a play. And defensively, we played pretty well. We're not about individual performances, though. We are all about the team. Whatever it takes to win.

"I'm happy we competed and fought through the game even though it wasn't our best performance," he said. "The boys always give me very good effort. I'm encouraged by that."

"I'm looking for us to continue to play with a nasty attitude, run to the football, and play fast, physical, and hard," he added.

That Panther ferocity will collide with a Buffalo team that is boasting an opening-week shutout of their own, a 41-0 clobbering of Belleview.

In addition to their usual exemplary effort, Lecanto is looking to employ discipline on defense and opportunistic

CRYSTAL RIVER - ICystal River edges Eustis in four games

Taylor Provost The Crystal River Lady Pirates volleyball team took defeated the Eustis Panthers Thursday night in four sets in a match of high drama and intensity.

Every point mattered from start to finish for both teams in the match, and the score was tied an impressive 28 times in all.

"It was back and forth. It was close throughout. Eustis is a very strong team and I was proud and pleased with the defensive effort," said Crystal River head coach Mike Ridley after the game.

The Lady Pirates first overcame a 10-point deficit in Game 1, scoring 10 unanswered points with Megan Unverdorben (in the serving position where she had two aces. Casidy Newcomer spiked the ball to tie the game and Ashley Allen contributed two kills, giving Crystal River a 25-22 win.

The score was neck and neck in Game 2, thanks to quick-thinking defense on both sides, but too many missed passes by the Lady Pirates allowed Eustis to pull away with a 25-20 victory.

PREP SWIMMING

CRYSTAL RIVER - When Citrus High swimmer Lauryn Rashley swims against Crystal River High, the competitive fires are there.

"I think it's always competitive," Rashley said. "You always have to do your best."

Rashley took second in the 50 freestyle with a time of 32.96. Crystal River's Marissa Penn was first with a 30.30 time.

This was a dual meet between Citrus and Crystal River Thursday at Bicentennial Park.

Rashley is more into her sport of girls weightlifting. Last year, she placed second in the state in the 110-pound weight class. She is hoping for a state title this year.

"I do this partly to keep in shape for weightlifting," she said. "It keeps me in good shape."

The Crystal River High boys and girls swim teams both won against Citrus High Thursday at the Bicentennial Park pool. The Pirate boys won 99-79. The Pirate girls won 114-56.

Crystal River High freshman Dylan Earnheart thought the first meet was fun but this meet was more serious. He won the 200 IM with a time of 2:19.19 and the 100 Butterfly with a time of 1:01.69.

"It's great to get that first win," he said. "Last week, the meet was fun. This week, we have to work harder."

Citrus High coach Holly Foster expected her Canes to struggle. "Our numbers are low," Foster said. "I think a lot of our swimmers did excellent. It's our first meet."

It's impressive when your golf team has its weakest outing and still manages to average a four-over-par 36. Those were the circumstances for the Crystal River boys after they defeated Seven Rivers Christian and Weeki Wachee, 160-215-266, at Southern Woods Golf Club on Thursday.

Crystal River (5-0) junior Michael Kidd won the match's medalist honor with a 36, his third straight par performance to begin the season. On tap for Kidd was his typically remarkable short game.

"I felt good today," Kidd said. "I was making my putts."

Kidd's brother, freshman Kyle Kidd, was also thanking his putter after he scored a second-place 37.

"I pretty much wasn't hitting any of my irons solid, but I've been putting out of my mind lately," Kidd said. "I think I've only putted a total of 12 or 13 times each of the last three rounds I've played."

Junior Travis Swanson (43) and senior Matt Mallarkey (44) completed the Pirates' scoring.

After scoring a par and a one-over in his first pair of matches, Mallarkey felt disappointed with his Thursday showing.

"I was not very good," he said. "I had trouble with everything, and I did very poorly all around." Warriors (2-2) senior Timothy

Still, because of rain earlier in the week, the tournament decided Thursday afternoon to revamp its schedule and push the men's final to Monday at 4 p.m. EDT — 24 hours later than originally planned. ## Manning may be done for the year

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Peyton Manning underwent more neck surgery Thursday, the third time in 19 months, and will miss not only the opening game but possibly the entire season.

Losing Manning for any stretch of time is a huge blow to the Colts and throws the race for the AFC South wide open. The four-time NFL MVP hasn't missed a game in 14 NFL seasons, with 227 consecutive starts, including postseason.

"Rehabilitation from such surgery is typically an involved process," the team said in a statement, calling the procedure "uneventful."

"Therefore, there will be no estimation of a return date at this time. We will keep Peyton on the active roster until we have a clear picture of his recovery process."

The Colts' statement came just hours after team owner Jim Irsay wrote on Twitter that the 35-year-old

Learn to stretch with Parks & Rec

Citrus County Parks & Recreation offers a new low-impact stretching class. This ongoing class will be from 10 to 11 a.m. at Citrus Springs Community Center. Cost is $5 per class.

The low-impact class is easy, fun with good benefits. Stretching helps to make you more flexible and regular stretching will help mobility and balance. This helps to slow down the onset of common degenerative conditions, such as osteoarthritis. Stretching increases physical and mental relaxation and reduces the risk of joint sprain, muscle strain or back problems. Low-impact exercises can improve health and fitness without harming weight-bearing joints. Research suggests that moderate-intensity, low-impact activity is just as effective as high-impact activity in lowering the risk of heart disease.

Orioles 5, Yankees 4

BALTIMORE — The New York Yankees would have preferred doing just about anything on their day off rather than playing a makeup game at Camden Yards.

And that was before they lost to the Baltimore Orioles 5-4 in 10 innings on Thursday.

Robert Andino singled home the winning run after tying it in the eighth, giving the Orioles their second straight extra-inning win over New York.

It was the fourth game in four days between the division foes. The first three were held at Yankee Stadium before both teams headed south for a makeup of an Aug. 27 contest postponed by Hurricane Irene.

"It's not ideal, but the Orioles had to do it, too," New York left fielder Brett Gardner said. "It's part of the game. A lot of rain, seems like the whole season."

Although rain was in the forecast, the game started on time and was played without interruption. Afterward, the Yankees headed to Los Angeles and the Orioles took off for Toronto.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 4

TORONTO — Ricky Romero won for the seventh time in nine starts, J.P. Arcencibia hit a three-run homer and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Boston Red Sox 7-4 on Thursday night.

Edwin Encarnacion and Eric Thames added solo shots as the Blue Jays won back-to-back games for the first time since Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 at Baltimore.

Rookie David Cooper went 3 for 4 and had two RBIs as Toronto evened its record at 72-72.

Boston lost for the fourth time in five games and failed to gain ground on the first place New York Yankees, who lost 5-4 in 10 innings to Baltimore earlier in the day. The Red Sox are 2 1/2 games behind New York with 19 left to play.

Romero (14-10) came in 2-6 with an 8.08 ERA in 11 career starts against the Red Sox, including an 0-3 record and 10.62 ERA in five home starts. But the left-hander turned his luck around in this one, allowing three runs and five hits in 6 2-3 innings. He walked three and struck out seven.

Romero has lost just once since July 21, dropping a 6-4 decision at Yankee Stadium on Sept. 3.

Casey Janssen worked 1 1-3 innings and Frank Francisco pitched around Jason Varitek's leadoff homer in the ninth to finish it.

Braves 6, Mets 5 Braves 5, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Julio Teheran gave flashes of his vast potential in earning his first big league win and the Atlanta Braves, using a lineup with Chipper Jones starting as the No. 2 hitter for the first time in 15 years, beat the New York Mets 5-1 Thursday night to complete a sweep of a doubleheader made necessary by the threat of Hurricane Irene.

Jones had a sacrifice fly and RBI double in the nightcap and a solo homer and a double in the opener, a 6-5 victory for Atlanta. The Braves were making a quick stop in New York to play two games postponed Aug. 27-28 after being handed their first three-game sweep of the season, by the Phillies.

The Braves next head to St. Louis for a crucial series with the team they lead in the wild-card race by 7½ games. Only several hundred fans were on hand to see the start of the twinnbill at 4:10 p.m. A few thousand more sat through a misty rain in the nightcap, though the announced attendance was 25,953.

Teheran (1-1) gave a performance more in line with his minor league credentials than his first two big league starts in May. The International League's Most Valuable Pitcher and Rookie of the Year went 15-3 for Triple-A Gwinnett, but he gave up a combined five runs in 8 2-3 innings for the Braves earlier this year for a 5.19 ERA.

This time, he gave up two hits to start the first and a sacrifice fly then little more in 5 1-3 innings. He left after walking two with one out in the sixth but Christian Martinez retired two in row to end New York's best threat. He yielded five hits overall.

Dan Uggla had an RBI single in the first, driving in Michael Bourn two outs after the speedster reached on Jose Reyes' fielding error at shortstop. Catcher David Ross had an RBI single in the fifth off Dillon Gee (12-6) and a homer in the ninth to straightaway center. Jones drove in a run when his sinking liner was caught by a diving Jason Bay in the seventh and doubled after Bourn tripled in the ninth.

Bay hit a grand slam off Mike Minor (5-2) in the opener and had a sacrifice fly in the finale, both coming in the first inning. The Mets had won 10 of 13 coming in and had a chance to pull to .500 in the opener but are now 70-73.

year that the U.S. Open ends on Monday.

Before the change was made, one of the men's finalists faced the prospect of playing four best-of-five-set matches in four days, back-to-back-to-back-to-back, something Nadal called "not fair." Now the men will get Thursday off.

The start-and-stop, fourth-round match between 2003 U.S. Open champion Roddick and Ferrer was supposed to begin Tuesday, when showers washed away all play. They got on court Wednesday, but only for about 15 minutes, enough to play four games. And Thursday, they played for less than 10 minutes — two more games — before Roddick pointed out a damp spot in Louis Armstrong Stadium that made it dangerous to play.

So eventually, they were ushered from that 10,103-seat arena over to 584-capacity Court 13, while fans ran and pushed their way up the stairs to the bleachers in the new locale. At one point, Roddick said, he saw someone trying to scale a fence to get a peek at the action.

"I thought the atmosphere was great. People packed in," Roddick said, recalling he last played on Court 13 as a junior in 1999. "I'd rather play a smaller court and have it packed, than playing a bigger court and have it a quarter full."

The U.S. Tennis Association later issued a statement saying: "Until this situation is rectified, no further play will occur on Louis Armstrong Stadium."

Elsewhere, No. 2-seeded Nadal beat 68th-ranked Gilles Muller of Luxembourg 7-6 (1), 6-1, 6-2 in Arthur Ashe Stadium; No. 4 Murray eliminated 84th-ranked Donald Young of the United States 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 in the Grandstand; and No. 28 John Isner got past No. 12 Gilles Simon of France 7-6 (2), 3-6, 7-6 (2), 7-6 (4) on Court 17.

Roddick next faces Nadal with a semifinal berth at stake.

"I'm going to have to play pretty aggressively now, similar to what I did today," the 21st-seeded Roddick said. "He's one of the great-est ever, so I'm going to have to have a repeat, at least."

Murray plays Isner, who reached the first Grand Slam quarterfinal of his career.

On the other half of the men's draw, they already were into the quarterfinals, and No. 1 Novak Djokovic improved to 62-2 in 2011, advancing when his opponent, No. 20 Janko Tipsarevic, stopped playing while trailing 7-6 (2), 6-7 (3), 6-0, 3-0. Tipsarevic had his left thigh bandaged by a trainer at 5-0 in the third set.

Djokovic needed his own visit from the trainer for treatment on a bloody left big toe after sliding to get to a drop shot in the fourth set's opening game.

In the semifinals, Djokovic will face five-time U.S. Open champion Roger Federer beat 11th-seeded Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 on Thursday night in a quarterfinal interrupted by rain for about 1½ hours in the first set.

"I was saying I hope it rains tonight," Murray said, "because then everyone is in the same boat, really."

In the women's quarterfinals, 13-time major champion Serena Williams overcame some shaky serving early to beat No. 17 Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova of Russia 7-5, 6-1 and improve to 17-0 on hard courts this season.

"I just kept losing serve in the beginning. Very weird," said Williams, whose older sister Venus watched from the stands.

Seeded only 28th after missing nearly a full year because of health problems, Williams hasn't dropped a set so far heading into a semifinal against top-seeded Caroline Wozniacki, a 6-1, 7-6 (5) winner against No. 10 Andrea Petkovic of Germany on Court 13.

On the other half of the women's draw, No. 9 Sam Stosur will play 92nd-ranked Angelique Kerber of Germany in the semifinals. Kerber upset No. 26 Flavia Pennetta 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, while Stosur easily defeated No. 2 Vera Zvonareva 6-3, 6-3. Zvonareva was the runner-up at the U.S. Open and Wimbledon last year.

Nadal was down a break and trailing Muller 3-0 when play was stopped Wednesday because of rain. He, Roddick and Murray then marched to the office of tournament referee Brian Earley to voice their complaints about the safety of the courts and make the case that they never should have been sent out to play in the first place.

Nadal also raised a bigger concern, which he discussed at his postmatch news conference Thursday: Players should have more say about how Grand Slam events are run.

"The problem is we don't have enough power in these kind of tournaments," Nadal said. "That's what have to change very soon."

One specific criticism he leveled at the U.S. Open is that it's the only major tournament where the men are slated to play the semifinals Saturday, and the final Sunday, without a day of rest in between. He called that schedule "something crazy for the players." But the changes made later Thursday by the USTA rendered that complaint moot this year.

Given all the delays, Roddick was eager to get going against Ferrer somewhere — anywhere, really.

While workers tried to dry the problematic patch at Armstrong — caused by a buildup of water just under the court surface being pulled up by evaporation — Roddick and Ferrer headed to the locker room. About an hour later, at 12:30 p.m., they returned to Armstrong with Earley, and the trio went over to inspect the area together.

Roddick pointed out that the spot still was wet and said to Earley, "Can you tell us why you brought us out here? ... How hard is it to not see water? ... What are we doing here?"

As he walked over to the sideline, Roddick shook his head, saying, "I'm baffled right now. Absolutely baffled." Then he shoved his racket in his bag and walked off the court as some fans booed.

Roddick, Ferrer and Earley then spoke in a hallway of Armstrong stadium.

"Put us on 13. 13's open. Let's go play. I don't care where we play," Roddick said.

Within minutes, the decision was made to switch courts, the match eventually resumed a little before 1 p.m.

Not much more than two hours later, Roddick was a winner.

He hadn't played anywhere at Flushing Meadows other than 23,771-capacity Arthur Ashe Stadium since Sept. 3, 2002, when he beat Juan Ignacio Chela at Armstrong in the fourth round. That was a run of 39 consecutive U.S. Open matches at Ashe for Roddick.

On Thursday, he started a new streak at Court 13.

what to say," James said, somewhat exasperated. "I just didn't do well, and I was feeling tired by the end of it. I can do better. I shot a 40 on Tuesday against Nature Coast."

More optimistic was Seven Rivers sophomore Adam Gage, who logged in his best day of the young season with a 48. It was nearly even better for the sophomore.

"I was five-over on hole 7, but then I triple-bogeyed 8, and hit a four-over-par on 9 after going out of bounds," Gage said.

Seven Rivers freshman Zach Daniel and fellow Warrior Austin Johnson each posted 61s.

Packers top Saints in opener

Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Aaron Rodgers threw four touchdown passes and rookie Randall Cobb tied an NFL record with a 108-yard kickoff return, giving the Green Bay Packers a 42-34 win lead over the New Orleans Saints after three quarters on Thursday night.

It was a high-scoring beginning to the NFL season, and the Packers got off to a fast start in their title defense.

Rodgers threw three first-quarter TD passes — finding Greg Jennings, Jordy Nelson and Cobb as Green Bay's offense picked up where it left off after a 31-25 win over Pittsburgh in the Super Bowl.

The Saints cut the Packers lead to 28-20 on John Kasay's 38-yard field goal before Cobb's return. He avoided one tackle and broke through four other defenders for Green Bay's first kick return for a score in 11 years.

Drew Brees and New Orleans answered when he found Devery Henderson for a 29-yard touchdown that made it 35-27 heading into the fourth.

Trailing 21-10 early in the second quarter, New Orleans got its own special teams boost when Darren Sproles returned a punt 72 yards for a touchdown. Sproles turned his back on the crowd, pointing emphatically to his name plate as Reggie Bush's replacement while a smattering of "Who Dat" chants could be heard in the overwhelmingly partisan Packers crowd.

Green Bay took a 28-17 halftime lead by using the run, and James Starks dragged safety Roman Harper into the end zone for a 17-yard touchdown following key blocks by Scott Wells and T.J. Lang.

Rodgers, the reigning Super Bowl MVP, was 21 of 29 for 257 yards heading into the fourth quarter to continue his strong string of performances after leading the Packers to four postseason wins for the team's first title since 1997.

The Packers have won a record 13 NFL championships, including four Super Bowls.

On Thursday, they won the toss, took the ball and went right down the field with Rodgers hitting Nelson for a 36-yard gain to set up a back-shoulder toss to Jennings for a 7-yard touchdown. After a Saints turnover, Rodgers found Nelson for a 3-yard pass that made it 14-0 and Rodgers connected with Cobb for a 32-yard score to give Green Bay a 21-7 lead.

Brees threw an early touchdown to Robert Meachem and the 41-year-old Kasay, who is filling in for Garrett Hartley, made a 30-yarder in the second quarter. Brees was 21 of 31 with 269 yards through three quarters.

The Saints were missing three key players.

Defensive end Will Smith was serving the first of his two-game suspension for his 2008 positive test for a banned diuretic, wide receiver Lance Moore was out with an injured groin and Hartley's right hip kept him from the opener.

Before the game, 50,000 filled the streets surrounding Lambeau Field for the NFL's pregame concert and party, which included national acts Kid Rock, Lady Antebellum and Maroon 5.

The Lecanto Panthers boys and girls swim teams defeated Leesburg Thursday night at Terra Vista in Citrus Hills. The girls were victorious 100-70, and the boys won with a score of 121-49.

Coach Matt Bouthillier said it was a special night because everyone contributed, and both teams really pulled together. "It was a night when we were a little bit concerned about adversity because we knew that Leesburg has a pretty strong team. Plus, our strongest lady swimmer, Anna Heinsman, was sick today, so I had to re-vamp the entire girl's lineup before the meet. There were a lot of personal bests and just a lot of great performances."

The biggest star of the night was Jake Tamposi, who broke two Lecanto High School records: the 200 freestyle, a record he previously set, and a 100 freestyle record from the early 1990s.

Bouthillier says Tamposi's records were just icing on the cake. "The team has been gunning after the 100 freestyle record for years. I wanted Jake to break it this year, and he broke it tonight. So that's done," Bouthillier said.

It was also a big night for the other Lecanto High coach, Becky Harris, who was pushed in the pool, fully-clothed, before a "Happy Birthday" serenade from her team and group hug.

First place winners for Lecanto include:

Inverness — The greens were alive as the Citrus Hurricanes improved their match record to a perfect 4-0 on Thursday afternoon at the Inverness Golf & Country Club. The 'Canes team score of 176 was more than enough to top Nature Coast (1-2) 203 team total.

The 'Canes team score was contributed to by Zach Gufford, Dylan Nelson, Dalton Homan, and Andrew Judd. Leading the way as low medalists in the match were Zach Gufford and Dylan Nelson with a pair of 42s. Jake Arnett shot a 45, and Tanner Cummings shot a 48 to lead the Sharks.

Even though the 'Canes were happy with the win, they were not fully satisfied with their play overall. Nelson had mixed emotions about his match. "The drives were good, but couldn't putt," he said. As for Gufford, it was the opposite, he didn't hit his shots well, but he putted well. Gufford said, "that's not his game," regarding his shots.

This was the 'Canes first home match of the season.

First year Citrus golf coach Mike Kenniston was pleased his team hung in there despite mixed results during the match. Citrus looks to extend their unbeaten match streak when they travel to Crystal River to play the Pirates' on Tuesday.

Drivers' meeting

Johnson honored at the White House

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama says NASCAR and the presidency are alike: Anything that can go wrong will go wrong at some point during the season.

Comparing himself to a race car driver, President Barack Obama honored Jimmie Johnson and seven other NASCAR drivers Wednesday for their performance on and off the track. Johnson has won an unprecedented five consecutive Chase for the Sprint Cup championship titles.

The president also thanked NASCAR for supporting military families.

"NASCAR is a sport where anything that can go wrong will go wrong at some point during the season, similar to being president," Obama said at a brief White House appearance that was forced indoors because of rain.

"That's true even for even the best drivers. And with so much extraordinary talent that is going bumper to bumper in every race, just making the chase is hard, let alone winning the whole thing. And that's why Jimmie is not just one of the best drivers of all times, he's up there with some of the great sports dynasties," Obama said, naming the Boston Celtics, New York Yankees and Montreal Canadiens.

Obama also highlighted NASCAR's support for U.S. troops.

Johnson spent time at the Pentagon on Wednesday, and the drivers served dinner to 400 wounded troops and their families last month during a visit to the now-shuttered Walter Reed military hospital. They also plan to hold a 9/11 anniversary event in Richmond, Va., with military families and first responders before a NASCAR race there this weekend, Obama said.

The other drivers that joined Johnson at the White House were Jeff Burton, Kyle Busch, Jeff Gordon, Denny Hamlin, Matt

Kenseth, Kurt Busch.

Four other drivers didn't come to the White House on Wednesday, sparking speculation that they were making a political statement about Obama's policies on behalf of a generally conservative sport. But the four — including some who met Obama at the White House during a NASCAR event in 2009 — said the decision was not political. They cited commitments to sponsors and others that couldn't be rescheduled.

Patrick hopes to start Cup career at Daytona 500

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Danica Patrick thinks it would be nice if she got her NASCAR Sprint Cup career started at the Daytona 500.

The IndyCar star is moving to NASCAR full time next season and will run a limited Cup schedule in a car owned by Tony Stewart. He expects her to struggle at most of the tracks where she'll race, making a Daytona debut even more attractive to her.

"I think it would be a good start," she told The Associated Press in an interview Thursday. "It would be nice if the Sprint Cup debut was at a track where I have the opportunity to finish well, especially given the idea that we're going to go to tracks that are going to be challenging and probably ones that I'll do the worst at, but I don't know yet."

Stewart, who was at an appearance with sponsor Office Depot in Richmond, said in a telephone interview that he has looked at having her run the sport's biggest race of the season, but hasn't decided yet if she will. He said he worked with Patrick in a two-car draft during a Nationwide series race at Daytona in July, and said "she ran really, really well all day there."

Stewart has said that Patrick, who also will race full time in the Nationwide series in a car owned by Dale Earnhardt Jr. next year; will drive in eight to 10 Cup races with an emphasis on learning. The complete schedule for the 2012 season has yet to be released.

"I think it's hard for anyone coming into this Cup series," he said. "I was intimidated the first time I raced in the Daytona 500. I went into that race just thinking about running laps."

As an owner, he said, "it's my job to make sure we keep her goals attainable." Patrick sounds ready to do the same, especially since the plan is to have her race full time in the Cup series in 2013.

"I think the idea is to pick tracks that'll be really hard and that I'll need the most practice at, which is going to be really exciting as I'm lapped for the fifth time out there," she said.

"But it will make it better for the next time I come back."

Patrick, who was in town a day before the Nationwide series race to promote DRIVE4COPD.com, an awareness campaign for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, said she also does not know yet whether she will attempt to drive in the Indianapolis 500 next year.

"My world is quite complicated with sponsors, and sponsor conflicts and what colors and what people are on the sides of my car, and where I'm at and what I'm doing, and what engine manufacturers," she said. "That's all really complicated, and you know, there's a lot of things to look at and think about before we can know for sure if that's going to happen next year."

ABC said Thursday that the singer is the featured guest on Dick Clark's annual "New Year's Rockin' Eve" special. Clark will appear along with Ryan Seacrest to celebrate the 40th anniversary of his New Year's show, the annual program already teen-aged before Lady Gaga was even born.

Fergie will host the Los Angeles portion of the show. No other musical guests were announced.

It figures to be a long party. Clark's show takes up three hours of prime-time, breaks for local news, then comes back for more than two and a half hours.

LOS ANGELES — Costume designer Lou A. Eyrich was just this side of gobsmacked upon discovering she and supervisor Marisa Abotiz had been nominated for a Creative Arts Emmy Award for their work on the "Glee" episode, "New York."

"I just didn't expect it," Eyrich explained. "But I'm thrilled, obviously. But there is so much good TV on this season, so many great shows. And all the great period shows."

This year, "Glee" competes with all period pieces: "Boardwalk Empire," "The Borgias," "Game of Thrones" and "Mad Men."

"So, it was, I felt like the little engine that could," Eyrich said, "even though 'Glee' is not a little engine, obviously anymore."

The 2011 Creative Arts Emmy Awards is set for Saturday in Los Angeles.

Fashion's Night Out

Global shopping party struts 3rd year

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Justin Bieber met fans in a purple leather jacket at Dolce & Gabbana in New York, Michael Kors launched his new Rockefeller Center store with a Rockettes kick line, and crowds of fashionistas spilled into the streets of Paris Thursday as Fashion's Night Out entered its third year.

"I'm wearing Dolce & Gabbana head to toe," said Bieber, who was signing D&G T-shirts ($195 apiece) for fans in Manhattan, one of hundreds of Fashion's Night Out events worldwide.

Fashion's Night Out was started in 2009 in New York by Vogue editor-in-chief Anna Wintour as a celebrity-studded way to lure shoppers into stores during the recession, but it's turned into a global shopping party. Retailers ranging from upscale boutiques to suburban malls to websites have embraced the nocturnal shopping extravaganza, which coincides with the start of New York Fashion Week and the important fall fashion season.

At the jam-packed Bieber shirt-signing in the D&G boutique on Madison Avenue, nearly every adult shopper had a pint-sized companion, the boys with Bieber hair, the girls with lip gloss courtesy of free touchups to promote D&G lipstick.

Stephanie Steinberg brought her 11-year-old daughter Caroline, who clutched her just-signed shirt after meeting the pop star. "I've never seen her speechless until now," the mom said. D&G donated a portion of proceeds from the event to Bieber's favorite charity, Pencils of Promise.

In Paris, teenage girls mingled with grand dames in Chanel jackets and pearls inside luxury boutiques in the so-called "Golden Triangle" shopping district. Crowds were so thick they spilled off sidewalks and into the streets, much to the annoyance of taxis snared in the surge. Participating boutiques included Chanel, Dior, Prada, Armani and Ralph Lauren.

"With the Champagne and the music, it's like a party in here," said Paris reveler Sandra Pauwels, 35, while sipping a cocktail at Ungaro.

Milan, Los Angeles, Dallas and even Adelaide, Australia, were among cities participating worldwide. Celebrities at Fashion's Night Out in London included actress Gwyneth Paltrow, who attended a Vogue party. In New York, Fifth Avenue was packed with throngs of shoppers streaming in and out of stores like Bergdorf Goodman, where crowds came out to see Oscar de la Renta and to get their tarot cards read by jewelry designer Amy Zerner. One of New York's longest lines was outside an Yves Saint Laurent boutique, where fans waited to meet rapper-turned-R&B star Nicki Minaj.

Florida welcomed Fashion's Night Out with runway shows, after-hours shopping and cocktail receptions. More than 65 retailers in the Miami area took part, along with venues in Fort Lauderdale, Orlando, Tampa and Jacksonville.

Stylist Danny Santiago, who collaborated on looks from the "Sex and the City" movies as well as "Confessions of a Shopaholic," styled a runway show at the Aventura Mall in Aventura, Fla., for FNO using pieces sold at the mall today that echo influential styles from the past. They included sheaths and beaded dresses inspired by the 1920s; hourglass silhouettes reflecting tailored 1940s looks; psychedelic prints and mismatched black-and-white patterns echoing the 1960s; and graphic patterns and the famous wrap dress look from the 1970s.

"I was inspired by vintage pieces that I actually own," said Santiago.

Sporty American designer Tommy Hilfiger hailed Fashion's Night Out as "a big celebration."

"Anna Wintour came up with such a genius idea, and it actually worked," Hilfiger told The Associated Press in a phone interview. "I think it's not just about the shopping that night; I think it's the idea of getting out there — exposing the fact that fashion can be fun. ... It doesn't have to be this serious thing that's too expensive. Fashion and shopping doesn't have to be anything but fun."

Getting face-time with his customers is another of the event's positive side, said Hilfiger, who held court Thursday night at Macy's Manhattan flagship with jazzy singer Joss Stone: "To see them and hear directly from them is pretty cool."

Dozens of potential Jackson case jurors dismissed

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — More than half of the first panel of prospective jurors for the manslaughter trial of Michael Jackson's doctor were dismissed because of hardship claims Thursday, signaling a long search ahead for those who will serve in the five-week trial.

And it is yet unclear how many prospects will be excused for disclosing strong opinions about Jackson, defendant Dr. Conrad Murray and the high profile case with which all potential panelists are familiar.

Authorities contend Murray gave Jackson a lethal dose of the anesthetic propofol in the bedroom of the pop superstar's rented mansion in June 2009, but attorneys for the physician deny he administered anything that should have been fatal. They will contend that Jackson swallowed an overdose of propofol when Murray wasn't watching.

When the judge asked Thursday whether anyone in the jury room was unaware of case, not a single hand was raised.

A larger than expected contingent of 187 prospects showed up for questioning Thursday.

Court officials said that of those, 115 were dismissed and 72 remained to fill out lengthy questionnaires probing their views of the case in which Murray is charged with involuntary manslaughter in the pop star's death. Murray has pleaded not guilty in the case.

A new panel of prospects was on call for Friday morning and questioning could continue Monday if a sufficient pool has not been cleared by then.

The judge has said he wants 100 prospects available who have no problems with hardship and no views on their questionnaires extreme enough to require dismissal.

Those who reported for duty Thursday appeared ready for the news delivered to them by Superior Court Judge Michael Pastor: They had been summoned to serve on Los Angeles' biggest trial of the year — the involuntary manslaughter trial of Michael Jackson's doctor.

No one flinched at the announcement. And all indicated they had prior knowledge of the case.

The judge was not surprised.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Friday, Sept. 9, the 252nd day of 2011. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 9, 1971, prisoners seized control of the maximum-security Attica Correctional Facility near Buffalo, N.Y., beginning a siege that ended up claiming 43 lives.

On this date:

In 1776, the second Continental Congress made the term "United States" official, replacing "United Colonies."

In 1850, California became the 31st state of the union.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) was incorporated by the Radio Corp. of America.

In 1957, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the first civil rights bill to pass Congress since Reconstruction.

Ten years ago: Barry Bonds of the San Francisco Giants hit three home runs against the Colorado Rockies to give him 63 for the season, passing Roger Maris' on-magical mark and moving him closer to Mark McGwire's record.

Five years ago: After two frustrating weeks of delays, space shuttle Atlantis and its six astronauts blasted off on a 12-day mission to install a big new piece of the international space station.

One year ago: A natural gas pipeline explosion killed eight people and destroyed dozens of homes in the San Francisco suburb of San Bruno, Calif.

Thought for Today: "A heretic is a man who sees with his own eyes." — Gotthold Lessing, German dramatist-critic (1729-1781).

Today's HOROSCOPE

Today's Birthday: You could be extremely fortunate in the upcoming solar cycle, through an arrangement that another has started and upon which you can build your own nest egg. Don't hesitate to take advantage of this unusual opportunity.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Working hard and giving a job all that you can might not be enough to accomplish your goal. Fortunately, you'll have Lady Luck helping you drive to the post.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — It behooves you to try to make a game out of a tedious job that you're trying to complete. It'll take the edge off the boredom, especially if you get a friend to help you out.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — When helping another, treat what you're trying to do earnestly and place importance on it, even if you have no stake in it. It'll make you look good in the other party's eyes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — We all, upon occasion, find ourselves in need of a good sounding board. If you have an issue weighing on your mind, discuss it with someone you respect.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — A major objective that you've been finding to be far more difficult to accomplish than you had expected might suddenly get completed, owing to new forces becoming involved.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Although you might be faced with a situation similar to one that gave you fits previously, you learned from it and can now use the same tactics that proved to be so successful before.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Why would you settle for the status quo when your destiny is in your own hands? Take charge and implement whatever changes you feel would improve your life.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Give a friend the benefit of the doubt when things aren't adding up the way they should. Until you know differently, trust what your pal has to say about a delicate issue that affects you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — You're in a good achievement cycle in terms of your ambitious objectives. Now is the time to take on that special project.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Letting the one you love know how much she or he means to you isn't likely to be accomplished by words alone, but by how you act and what you do for him or her. Deeds say more than words.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — It takes dedication as well as skill to excel to capture the win. Thus, if you're more determined to take the crown than the other person, victory can be yours.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — If you've been falling short on accomplishing a major goal, perhaps it's time to bring in someone who has certain skills you lack.

RUN RAMPANT AT ART CENTER THEATRE IN HERNANDO

Heather Foster
FOSTER ON FILM

'Apollo 18'
 grainy
 but good

As much as I felt like shrinking into my shoes while watching "Apollo 18," I am baffled at how the grainy, documentary-style sci-fi flick scared me.

The perpetrators in the movie are largely unseen, not to mention the premise is fetched as far as it is (shouldn't get too scared of lunar baddies — right?).

Still, something to the nondescript clips shot through dusty, shattered lenses, hasty transitions and torturous pauses had my heart pumping, for the moment anyway.

Other than plugging a cockamamie conspiracy, "Apollo 18" has no other aim than pure, spooky fun.

"Apollo 18" takes on the guise of top-secret NASA footage. It documents an unknown manned lunar mission of the '70s. Three astronauts (Warren Christie, Lloyd Owen and Ryan Robbins) go to the moon, believing their goal is to set up a global surveillance system before the Soviets. Several days after landing, the two men who collect rock samples and explore the moon begin to suspect they are not alone. Upon finding an abandoned Soviet ship and some dead cosmonauts, their fears are confirmed.

Relatively obscure for the sake of the pseudo-documentary's believability, the actors do more than just lend unfamiliar faces. The duo, Warren Christie and Lloyd Owen, strike an interesting chemistry. The two share some genial, mildly comical moments that hint to how they would behave in tenuous situations. Owen has some particularly creepy expressions.

As far as filming style and editing choices, "Apollo 18" is a masterpiece of cheap scares. Grainy, underexposed footage enhances mundane settings and got me imagining dreadful boogeymen. Rapid, in-your-face splices make harrowing scenes inescapable, pursuing viewers outside the boundaries of the silver screen. Worse yet are the slow, quiet shots poised to unleash some scream-inducing scare.

By and large, "Apollo 18" is airy but a romp for what it is. I give it a rock-solid B.

Audience to see posh suburban dinner party deal with outrageous circumstances

TAYLOR PROVOST
 Chronicle correspondent

The Art Center Theatre will debut its latest production — Neil Simon's "Rumors" — at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16 in Hernando.

"The Tuxedos and lovely gowns give it a Noël Coward atmosphere and the set is very appealing," director Jackie de Torres said of the play, which takes place at a posh suburban dinner party in New York that never gets going.

"Rumors," which premiered on Broadway in November 1988 and had a run of 585 performances, is a farcical play that depicts several affluent couples who gather at a dinner party that quickly goes awry when it is discovered the host has shot himself through the earlobe and the hostess and servants are missing. Instead of attempting to solve the situation, the remaining couples do all they can, through two comical acts, to conceal the night's events from the authorities and the media and maintain their upper-class reputations.

"The play may be old, but the cast is new and full of energy," de Torres said. "Actors Ed and Bonita Martin are old favorites to the theater, along with Pam Schreck and James Wellborn, Jim Farley and Sharon Farnsworth."

'RUMORS'

- Showtimes: 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16; 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17 and 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24.
- Cost: $18 at the door.
- Location: 2644 N. Annapolis Avenue, Hernando.

Rhoda Kylis, last seen in "Ladies in Retirement," also joins the cast, as does Tim Stuart from the theatre's production of "Murder by Misadventure." Newcomer Leslie Belskie will make her debut as one of the officers who shows up to investigate a completely unrelated incident, while Jack Clark will play the equally well-meaning but confused Officer Welch.

Elsie Aponti and John Cepeda are stage managers for the show. Additional performances of the play will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17 and an extra Saturday matinee at 2 p.m. Sept. 24.

Non-subscription tickets are $18 at the door, and tickets may be reserved by calling the Art League box office Monday through Friday from 1 to 4 p.m., or one hour prior to show time by calling (352) 746-7606.

The Art Center Theatre is at 2644 N. Annapolis Ave. in Hernando.

Review: Calm, realism are weapons in 'Contagion'

Director Soderbergh gathers Oscar winners, character actors for his infectious, thrilling film

CHRISTY LEMIRE
 AP Movie Critic

The calm is what's so startling in "Contagion" — the cool precision with which Steven Soderbergh depicts a deadly virus that spreads throughout the world, quickly claiming millions of victims.

There's no great panic in his tone, no hysteria. Soderbergh has amassed a dazzling cast of Oscar winners, but this is not like those '70s disaster movies that had melodrama to match their star power.

Characters become increasingly confused and frustrated, they struggle to survive and then die in a matter-of-fact way. Even the eventual instances of looting and rioting that crop up — as they are wont to do in these kinds of movies when societal rules have long since been abandoned — feel like blips of intensity, understandable reactions to an incomprehensible situation.

Working from a script by Scott Z. Burns, who also wrote his 2009 comedy "The Informant," Soderbergh takes us from suburban living rooms to labs at the Centers for Disease Control to remote Asian villages with equally clear-eyed realism. The attention to detail — and to the infinite ways germs can spread that we probably don't want to think about — provide the sensation this sort of outbreak really could happen right now. "Contagion" begins with Gwyneth Paltrow's character, Beth, coughing as she reaches into a bowl of peanuts at an airport bar on her way home to Minneapolis from a business trip in Hong Kong. This is Day 2, we are told, and she will end up being Patient Zero. With the help of a low-key but prodigious electronic score, Soderbergh steadily focuses on the hands as he jumps

Consider the alternatives

Master gardeners talk Fla. plant options

Special to the Chronicle

Do you long for the luscious smell of lilacs? Are you missing the beauty of great bearded irises? Or maybe you miss the cool green of hosta.

If you bemoan not being able to grow some of these great Northern plants, attend one of the free September Master Gardener Plant Clinics. September's topic will be "Florida Alternatives." Master gardeners will provide some suggestions on plants that make good (or better) substitutes for these and introduce many other great alternative plants.

The remaining schedule is:

■ Friday, Sept. 9 — 1:30 p.m. at Coastal Region Library, Crystal River.

■ Tuesday, Sept. 13 — 1 p.m. at Lakes Region Library, Inverness.

■ Wednesday, Sept. 14 — 1:30 p.m. at Central Ridge Library, Beverly Hills.

■ Wednesday, Sept. 21 — 1 p.m. at Citrus Springs Library.

■ Tuesday, Sept. 27 — 2 p.m. at Homosassa Library.

There are many great plants that grow well in Florida. You may find some you like better, or have a better scent, or may last longer than those you loved up North.

Master gardener volunteers will be available to discuss this topic, answer questions, identify plant problems and offer solutions at any of the free clinics.

The clinics are offered through the Citrus County Cooperative Extension Service. For information, call (352) 527-5700.

Festival of Roses

Beautiful roses will abound at the society's 16th annual Rose Show and Festival on Saturday, Oct. 29, at Marion County Agricultural Center, 2232 N.E. Jacksonville Road (County Road 200A), Ocala. The event is an opportunity to enjoy prize-winning roses. The public is invited to join in the fun by bringing roses in from their own gardens by noon for placement in a non-judged display. All roses may be viewed from 1 to 5 p.m. There will be three free door prizes drawn every hour, sales of potted roses and cut rose stems, and handouts on all aspects of growing roses. The society's publication "Growing Great Roses in Central Florida" will be available for purchase. There will also be consulting rosarians on the floor to answer rose-growing questions. Entertaining and informative programs will be at 1:30 p.m. (Introduction to Rose Growing) and 2:30 p.m. (Rose Fragrance). A drawing for a wheelbarrow of rose-related items will be made. All new members joining the society will receive a free potted rose. Area's theater season is up and running

Sunday, Sept. 18, is a day for sleuthing. Encore Ensemble Theater Inc. will present two dinner theater performances of the popular interactive murder mystery "Honeymoon From Hell" (a cruise into murder) by Eileen Moushey.

Directed by Mike Shier II and Jeri Augustine, and performed at Kellner Auditorium in Beverly Hills, this production incorporates Encore Ensemble Theater's "trademark" combination of music, comedy and murder mystery. Congregation Beth Sholom is the recipient of a portion of the proceeds from the show.

It's talent night onboard the honeymoon cruise on the ship The S.S. Amore. Some of the passengers have made it to the finals and are competing for a prize. When the murder occurs, it interrupts their plans. Ship's crew includes the ineffective captain (Mike Shier), the highly emotional chef (Howard Christ) and the outraged cruise director (Ashley Kisner).

Among the disgruntled passengers and talent contestants are Fran Barg, Olivia Moeschet, Mike Shier II, Jeri Augustine and Shirley Kisner. Audience members will have the opportunity to determine the person who committed the evil deed by questioning the cast members and studying the clues provided.

All amateur sleuths are involved in the case as soon as they arrive in the auditorium, ready to join in the festivities of the talent night, yet aware that there will be a murder during the show.

In order to honor kosher requirements, the meal served will be a meatless penne pasta dish, with salad, bread, dessert, tea and coffee. For the first dinner theater show, the doors will open at 1 p.m. The second dinner theater show will have the doors opening at 6 p.m. A cash bar will be on the premises. Price of dinner and show is $20 per person by reservation only; call the box office at (352) 212-5417.

Even though Encore Ensemble has one dinner show about to open, there is more dinner theater scheduled for next month. Already in rehearsal is the zany "Seance At The Bingo Hall," another interactive murder mystery by Eileen Moushey, once again proving that murder can be fun. Take an eccentric character like Madame Zodiak (Jan Hunt) her "boy toy husband" (Mike Shier II), her assistant (Olivia Moeschet), cantankerous professor (Ashley Kisner) and clueless security guard, (Edwin Martin) and the situation is ripe for a murder. This show will mark the directorial debut of both Mike Shier Sr. and Ashley Kisner. "Seance at the Bingo Hall" will be a fundraiser for Homosassa Lions, staged at the club on Homosassa Trail. Show dates are Saturday evenings, Oct. 15 and 22, and Sunday matinees on Oct. 16 and 23.

Reservations for both shows can be secured at this time. Just call the box office and make a reservation for one or both shows. Information and reservations can be obtained by calling 352-212-5417.

Encore Ensemble Theater has become known for its dedication to dinner theater fundraising for local organizations. "Honeymoon From Hell," "Seance at the Bingo Hall" and "My Big Fat Italian Funeral" (to be performed in November to benefit the Wounded Warrior Project) are available to local organizations as fundraisers.

The Art Center Theatre opens its season with the Neil Simon comedy "Rumors" under the direction of Jackie DeTorres. Show dates are weekends beginning Sept. 16 and running until Oct. 2. Ready to open are Ocala Civic Theater's musical "Chicago" and Stage West's "Lend Me a Tenor" in Spring Hill. The 2011-12 season is up and running. Enjoy!

REVIEW

from Chicago to Tokyo to London in these early scenes, fluidly revealing how we pass our credit card to a waitress or grasp a bus railing or press an elevator button.

Kate Winslet's character, the steely Dr. Erin Mears, who thrusts herself into the vortex as the virus starts developing, offers a chilling statistic to some skeptical medical administrators: We touch our hands to our face 2,000 to 3,000 times... a day. I don't even want to finish writing this review for fear of what's lurking on my own laptop. But I must.

As Soderbergh did in the superior "Traffic," he intertwines various story lines to give us a complete picture of the devastation. Matt Damon, as Paltrow's stoic husband, Mitch, tries to stay strong and protect his teenage daughter as it becomes clear they're both immune. Jude Law, believably skeezy as an online journalist with questionable ethics, digs for the truth of the story—but government scientists are just as keen on stopping the spread of information as they are the disease itself.

Marion Cotillard gets a bit lost in the shuffle, though, as Dr. Leonora Orantes of the World Health Organization, who's working backward to find the disease's origin. She's gone for large chunks of time and her plot line feels unfinished; it's an example of how, given the enormity of the cast and the subject matter, not all of the characters are fleshed out as well as you'd like them to be.

But then excellent character actors show up and lend weight to some of the smallest parts: Hey, there's John Hawkes as a janitor. There's Bryan Cranston as Laurence Fishburne's boss at the CDC. And you'd like to see more of them, too.

Despite all the big names crammed together, Jennifer Ehle might just steal this thing as Fishburne's right-hand woman, Dr. Ally Hextall, who's racing to find a vaccine even as the number of dead skyrockets. Like the film itself, she's got an irresistible cool about her. But she's also so confident and radiates such no-nonsense intelligence, she commands the screen every time she shows up. (And how great is it that three of the top scientists here are strong, decisive women?)

Her performance represents one of many elements of "Contagion" that will make you stop and think. And then wash your hands.

"Contagion," a Warner Bros. Pictures release, is rated PG-13 for disturbing content and some language. Running time: 103 minutes. Three stars out of four.
