IN BRIEF

Tentative millage rate set

At a tentative budget hearing Thursday, the Citrus County Board of County Commissioners adopted the following tentative millage rates: total countywide — 5.7299 mills; Citrus County Fire Protection Taxing District — 0.7682 mills; and Citrus County Special Library District — 0.3102 mills.

The rates can be reduced at the final hearing, but cannot be raised.

When calculating property tax, the assessed value of the property is multiplied by the mill rate and divided by 1,000.

The proposal to adopt the millage rate passed unanimously. However, the budget passed by only a 3-2 vote after Commissioner Winn Webb raised questions about the budget from the Citrus County Sheriff's Office.

Commission Chairman Dennis Damato asked that Sheriff Jeff Dawsey, who was not present, address the questions before the final budget hearing.

The 2011-12 proposed budget is $225,262,189, which would be about a $5 million reduction over last year.

The final budget hearing is set for 5:01 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, at Citrus County Courthouse, Room 100, 110 N. Apopka Ave., Inverness.

Citrus hospitals not among the top

Commission evaluates 19,000 facilities; nearby counties' medical centers make list

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff Writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — An organization considered the gold standard for hospital accreditation issued a report this week of the top 405 hospitals in the U.S., and Citrus County didn't make the list.

System nor Seven Rivers Regional Medical Center is included in The Joint Commission's Top Performers report for 2010.

Oak Hill Hospital, Brooksville/Spring Hill Regional Hospitals and Ocala Regional Medical Center are included. The list, which includes 49 hospitals in Florida, represents 14 percent of

The Joint Commission's accredited hospitals in the U.S.

The Joint Commission, an independent, nonprofit organization, accredits and certifies 19,000 health care facilities in the country. It is the nation's oldest and largest standards-setting organization in health care, according to its website.

The top-performing hospitals achieved a 95 percent compliance score for risk-adjusted process measures for patients with heart failure, heart attack, childhood asthma, pneumonia or undergoing surgical procedures.

Scores focused on hospitals that used key quality performance measures in deciding treatment practices.

"By following evidence-based care processes, hospitals will continue to improve the quality of the care they provide," Dr. Mark Chassin, president of The Joint Commission, said in a news release.

Seven Rivers Regional spokeswoman Dorothy Pernu issued a statement commending hospitals that made the list.

Schedule irks anglers

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Capt. Dan Clymer of Racin' Mullet Charters drops live bait to the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico on a recent outing. Clymer, like many other local fishermen, has taken issue with the temporary closure of the gag grouper season. The season opens today and runs until Nov 15.

Gag grouper season opens, but time cut due to overfishing

MATTHEW BECK
Chronicle

Recreational anglers along Florida's Gulf of Mexico will once again be able to legally harvest gag grouper in both state and federal waters starting today. The season will close Nov. 15.

Beginning in Jan. of 2011, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) adjusted the season for gag grouper harvest and made the season significantly shorter than years past as part of an interim rule to protect the game fish from what it calls overfishing.

Soon after the temporary closure set by NOAA, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) followed suit and adjusted the season to harvest gag grouper in state waters to mirror NOAA's season.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Marine Fisheries Service claims the gag grouper population in the Gulf of Mexico is being overfished.

Federal and state waters are strictly defined. Vessels operating west of the nine-nautical-mile zone offshore are considered to be in federal waters, and any vessels inside or east of that zone are considered to be in state waters.

While the opening of the season is a welcome date for many anglers, the moratorium on the fish for much of the year has come at a high price to others.

Bill Korade, owner of Blue Water Bait and Tackle in Homosassa, offered his opinion Wednesday about why he believes the abbreviated season has been so unpopular among the many anglers that come through his business.

"The commercial angler has not given up what the recreational angler has," he said. "Commercial fishermen were actually given an increase in the number of gag they can harvest, while the recreational angler's season was shortened."

NOAA Marine Fisheries changed the 2011 commercial gag quota from 100,000 pounds to 430,000 pounds, according to its website.

"A lot of people don't like that aspect," Korade said.

"In my opinion, if they

LECANTO — Marion Knudsen, who retired in 2006 after serving 19 years on the Citrus County Planning and Development Review Board, is under Hospice care after suffering two strokes since Saturday, her husband said.

Marion Knudsen served on planning board for nearly two decades.

Mrs. Knudsen, 83, of Homosassa, is at the Hospice of Citrus County facility off County Road 491, Lecanto. Harold Knudsen said his wife of nearly 62 years was hospitalized Saturday with bleeding in her brain and airlifted from Seven Rivers Regional Medical Center to Shands Hospital in Gainesville.

Knudsen said as her health deteriorated, Shands canceled a transfer to the Hospice House in Citrus County. Knudsen said he and his son decided to bring Marion to the Hospice center themselves on Tuesday.

"She's in a coma," Harold Knudsen said. "She's preparing to die."

Knudsen said visitors are welcome, but they should know his wife is not responsive.

The Citrus High School freshman class really tried to "knock out" the upperclassmen with their boxing ring float during this year's Citrus High School Homecoming Parade.

INVERNESS — Even after 100 years, some things never change — like school spirit during homecoming week.

On Thursday, Inverness residents turned out and lined the streets to cheer on the Citrus High School Hurricanes during their annual homecoming parade — this year, also celebrating the school's centennial.

This year, past, present and future CHS 'Canes rode, marched, waved, sparred in a boxing ring, passed out candy and yelled down the parade route.

Grand marshals Valentine and Frances Rooks (classes of 1943 and 1945, respectively) and Ethel Puckett Winn, class of 1930, were all smiles.

The parade also featured 16 past CHS homecoming queens from 1961 to 2009.

Patti Bradshaw, class of 1964, said she had been practicing her "princess wave." When she was crowned queen, she wore a long white dress with a hoop skirt.

"This is wonderful," she said. "I don't think they've ever acknowledged us before."

Bradshaw, now 65, is currently a student at St. Leo University, studying psychology.

Shalay Jackson, class of 2003, attended Florida State University and the University of Michigan and works as a social worker for the county school board in Crystal River.

Fundraiser benefits fallen deputy's family

A major fundraiser is slated to benefit the family of John C. Mecklenburg, the Hernando County deputy recently killed during a high-speed vehicle pursuit. Money raised will help out his wife Penny, and two small children.

Dan Heavrin, operating partner of the Beef 'O' Brady's of Brooksville, 7601 Horse Lake Road, will host the Family Fun Day Sunday from 2 to 8 p.m. to raise money for Mecklenburg's widow Penny and their two small children. All of the funds outside of the cost of food and drink raised at the event will go to the John C. Mecklenburg Fund.

Panther found dead in southwest Florida

A Florida panther has been found dead on private land in southwest Florida.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission reported the 3-year-old female was found Wednesday near Immokalee. Officials said the endangered animal was too decomposed to determine a cause of death. It had been dead for approximately four days.

Wildlife officials will send the body to a Gainesville lab for a necropsy.

This is the 22nd documented panther mortality for 2011.

State ranks highest with invasive species

A new report states Florida has the worst invasive reptile and amphibian problem in the world.

It was released Thursday, when state officials also confirmed the presence of another new invasive species of a different type — giant African land snails.

The amphibian and reptile study led by a University of Florida researcher was published in the journal Zootaxa. It traces the introduction of 84 percent of 137 non-native species to the pet industry.

That includes 25 percent linked to one importer, Strictly Reptiles of Hollywood. Ray Van Nostrand Jr., one of the owners, said only that he disagreed.

Giant land snails have been confirmed in Miami-Dade County.

They are a potential health hazard to humans and voracious eaters that can threaten crops and even buildings.

United Way campaign kicks off

SHEMIR WILES
Staff Writer

CITRUS HILLS — A number of community leaders and local United Way partner agencies packed the dining room at Citrus Hills Golf and Country Club to learn how they can help their community and "Live United" during the United Way of Citrus County's 2011 annual United Way kick-off luncheon Thursday.

The luncheon officially launches the 2011-12 campaign for the community.

After introductions and lunch, Marie Straight, president of the Citrus United Way board of directors, highlighted the many ways United Way helps better the community, such as working side-by-side with local churches and nonprofits that feed the hungry, to build a centralized food distribution center and supporting programs to end poverty. "Only by supporting the family can we narrow the achievement gap and break the cycle of poverty," Straight said.

In tackling the poverty issue in Citrus County, Straight explained United Way has three building blocks for a good life: Education, income and health.

"For many local residents, the basic ingredients for a good life are increasingly beyond reach. We need to challenge our systems to create opportunities for a better life for everyone," she said.

Therefore, Citrus United Way will be forming local impact councils to research data and seek input from local partners to "gauge where progress has been and has not been made over the last 10 years."

Straight announced nearly $25,000 was raised by the "So You Think You Can Dance... Like a Star" event and informed the crowd about donations being sought for the latest initiative, "Page it Forward," a fundraising drive to raise money to purchase and provide books through First Book — a nonprofit organization — to children in need.

The Nature Coast Volunteer Center (NCVC), Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), United Way of Citrus County and Citrus County libraries are working in partnership to reach the goal of supplying 1,000 local children in need with new books. The books are slated to be distributed at all five Citrus County libraries during a special literacy program on Make a Difference Day, Oct. 22.

Straight also reminded everyone to buy tickets for their chance to win a 2012 cherry red Chevy Corvette, which was donated by Steve and Jewel Lamb. Tickets are $100 each.

This year's campaign chair, Sheriff Jeff Dawsy, was not able to attend the luncheon because he was out of state accepting an award for National Law Officer of the Year from the 40 & 8 veterans' organization. However, he did provide a video sending an apology for his absence and said he will be working diligently to do more outreach in the community.

"I challenge each and every one of you to look deep inside your hearts ... and continue to partner with United Way," he said.

Jesus gets a new view

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Steven Erickson, of LaPerle Crane Service, Inc., right, and Harv Johnson, the building committee chairman for Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, unwrap straps that have been used to hoist a giant wooden sculpture of Jesus.

The statue of Jesus has a new home at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Hernando.

It has been relocated to the front of the church that faces County Road 486, near the entrance to Citrus Hills.

Church pastor Kenneth Blyth says a major construction project that includes renovation of the whole church and new construction of an education wing is being completed and with that, the statue has a new home.

"We have had this statue of Jesus in our courtyard for a very long time," Blyth said. "As we put the education wing in, we realized we had to relocate the Jesus statue, and we figured at that point, why put him back in the courtyard where it remains a private statue of ours to see when we can put him out front," he said.

"That way, instead of blessing only those of us in the congregation as we come into the church, he blesses the whole community as they drive by. It becomes a public sculpture instead of a Good Shepherd sculpture," said Blyth.

County chief says businesses need to work together

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Staff Writer

The county administrator encouraged business people to support each other to make it through a tough economy together.

As the keynote speaker Thursday at the annual meeting of the Citrus County Economic Development Council, Brad Thorpe said county government is trying to help county businesses.

"This board is an engaged board," Thorpe said about the five county commissioners. "They are so connected to the community, they give excellent feedback to the staff and the administration."

He said the board had changed at the urging of the community.

"The difference is the fact that we can no longer rely on the construction industry to drive the engine of this economy," Thorpe said. "It's over. There will never be the kind of construction boom that we had in 2005-2006."

Back in those days, construction workers filled restaurant seats every morning for breakfast, Thorpe said. Roads were filled with trucks carrying building supplies.

"People are asking me: What can you do to substitute for that?" Thorpe said. "The answer is you have to create jobs and diversify the economy."

Thorpe admitted that it was easier to offer that answer than to live with it. As every county in the state has been doing the same thing, the county government has asked what Citrus County has in assets that sets it apart from other Florida counties.

Thorpe listed the medical community and the nuclear power plant.

"And, of course, we have the port," Thorpe said, referring to consideration of establishing a port at the Cross Florida Barge Canal in the northwest corner of the county. "There's not many counties that have a port, you know."

He said it was time to take care of those assets.

Thorpe also spoke about bringing businesses to the county. When Olive Garden came into the county, the owner wrote Thorpe a note saying Citrus was one of the best counties they'd ever worked with.

At the same time while encouraging business to come, Thorpe said county government does not want to pave over the county. The 44,000-acre Withlacoochee State Forest is an asset, as is the chain of lakes on the east side and King's Bay on the west side. He said county staff works to find a balance.

When he mentioned Port Citrus and the barge canal, Thorpe said it is an underused asset that was built and paid for in the 1960s. He said taxpayers already had paid $71 million for it and that it is time for the county to make good use of it.

A presentation about Port Citrus will be made at the next port authority board meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, in the Board of County Commissioners chamber at the Citrus County Courthouse, 110 N. Apopka Ave., Inverness, Thorpe said.

Thorpe urged the community to work together.

"Everybody in here knows each other," Thorpe said. "It's like a family. And I think that's the reason why Citrus County is unique — because we are all connected. That's what's going to decide whether we are successful or not. We need to support each other as a community."

The EDC will host an open house for the new Citrus Enterprise Center Monday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the former Chamber of Commerce office on U.S. 19 in Homosassa. Light refreshments will be served.

Tickets are available for the 29th annual EDC barbecue Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m. at Holcim Ranch, 12664 HCR Limestone Trail, Crystal River. In addition to barbecue, entertainment will include ice cream, live music from a Blues Brothers band, Cajun Dave & Mitch Simmons and the Impac, and an open bar. Tickets cost $25 per person. Music fills Inverness streets Saturday

NANCY KENNEDY

INVERNESS — There may or may not be dancing in the street, but beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, there will be music.

The Greater Inverness Olde Towne Association (IOTA) is again bringing Music on the Square to downtown Inverness, featuring the bands Cool Corporate Cats and Southern Exposure.

The event is free. Fifty percent of the proceeds from a 50/50 drawing (tickets are $1 each or six for $5) will benefit Citrus 20/20, which in turn will go to support Save Our Waters Week.

Those with losing tickets won't necessarily be losers, however. The Ice Cream Doctor is offering 10 percent off cones with a losing ticket and Dillion's Irish Pub is offering half price on your first beer in exchange for a losing ticket.

Adopt-A-Shore cleanup volunteers who attend the event will be eligible to have their names entered in a drawing for a DVD Blue Ray player. Register by showing your Adopt-A-Shore Clean Up Day T-shirt at the IOTA tent.

"We had an anonymous donor cover the cost of the bands this time, which is a big help," said Lace Blue-McLean, IOTA president. "This donor is a huge supporter of non-profits."

Local non-profit organizations will have tables and tents set up with members offering information and selling items and goodies to raise money for their causes.

"We've been doing Music on the Square for about four or five years, and we fill the streets and the courthouse lawn," Blue-McLean said. "The mission of IOTA is to promote all the downtown merchants, not just our members."

She said last year they decided to connect the event with Save Our Waters Week.

"It's a way we can do good in the community," she said.

Woman faces abuse charges

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff Writer

An Inglis woman is facing a felony aggravated child abuse charge on allegations that she violently shook an 8-month-old child.

The baby was released Tuesday from Shands Hospital in Gainesville after initial MRI results showed bleeding on the brain. The infant is being sheltered by other family, according to the Citrus County Sheriff's Office.

Jennifer Lynn Shettleroe, 27, was arrested Wednesday after it was reported that the baby had fallen off a bed and hurt his head.

According to the arrest report, the baby was initially transported to Seven Rivers

Regional Medical Center and, when bleeding was discovered, was taken to Shands.

According to witnesses, Shettleroe alleged she left the boy on a twin bed Monday and went to the back porch to smoke and text on her phone. However, a witness reported hearing a high-pitched cry from the baby and went to check on him and found the baby in a trundle drawer beneath a crib, with the drawer partially open. The witness reportedly went outside and found Shettleroe on the porch smoking and texting.

Investigators collected medical results from Shands and discovered an MRI that indicated the baby had multiple bleeds on the brain — bleeding that is often caused by rapid back-and-forth movements. The multiple bleeds indicated a possibility of more than one incident of shaking, according to the report. Because of the child's age, the extent and ramifications of his injuries are difficult to determine, CCSO spokeswoman Gail Tierney said. Tierney added that the child's health and development will continue to be monitored.

After her arrest, Shettleroe denied shaking the child but admitted to leaving him unattended to text, according to the report. No bond was set.

Group home shut over charges of abuse

Associated Press

PLANT CITY — A 21-year-old worker at a group home was arrested and the facility where he worked was later shut down after authorities said he forced a mentally disabled man to stand barefoot on fire ant hills as punishment for stealing money.

Quentin Shunell Amos thought the victim stole money from the staff and forced him to place his hands and feet on several ant beds at Florida MENTOR's Ike Smith Group Home on Sunday. The victim was bitten multiple times, according to Hillsborough County Sheriff's deputies.

Witnesses confirmed the victim's story. Amos also threatened one of the witnesses, authorities said.

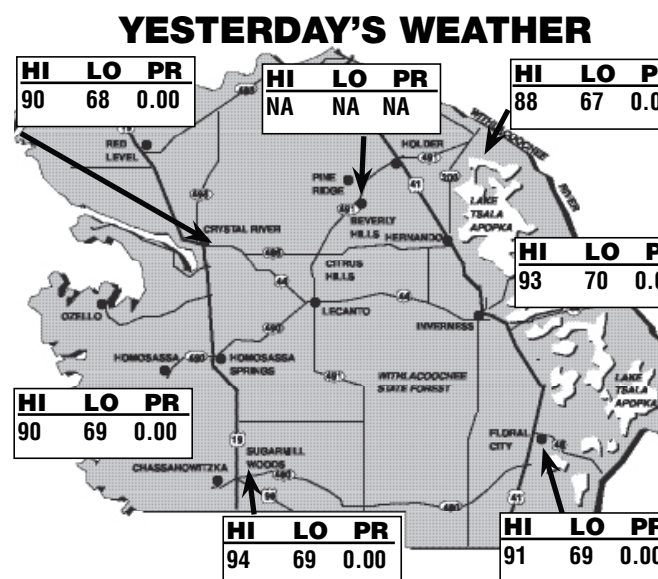

Amos was charged Tuesday with abuse of a disabled adult and released on $2,000 bond.

The Department of Children and Families and the Agency for Persons with Disabilities are investigating. DCF officials said the facility has been investigated five times this year, but no indicators of abuse or neglect were found. Officials said it's common for residents to report abuse after arguments with staff.

"I loved dressing up for Spirit Week," she said of past CHS homecomings. "I was a cheerleader, so I had a lot of spirit."

Also in the parade: the 1980 "Mr. and Miss CHS" Greg and Becky Evans. They met in seventh grade and started dating as sophomores. Now long married and the parents of four and grandparents of three, they're still sweethearts.

"We love Citrus High School," Mrs. Evans said. "It always had a hometown feel, and it still does."

Mrs. Evans teaches English at CHS.

Not to exclude the future, Landon Gibbs, class of 2024, rode on the float of "Future CHS Hurricanes."

Currently a kindergarten student at Inverness Primary School, he summed up everyone's thoughts that day about Citrus High School: "It's good."

want to replenish the stocks of gag because they are overfished, they are overfished because of two reasons — recreational fishing and commercial fishing — we both catch the fish," he said. "If you're gonna cut us out then cut them out too. I think that is what recreational anglers are most upset about."

The economics of the season's reduced timeframe is another issue Korade has to deal with.

"The biggest problem that I see is that the closed season has killed the recreational-angling businesses by cutting out gag grouper fishing."

While Korade says he doesn't rely solely on business from grouper fishermen for his livelihood, he has seen a good portion of his business wither away following the temporary re-setting of the season.

"It's not a huge part of my business, but it's 25 to 30 percent," he said.

In years past, the gag grouper season has had a closed season, but it has only lasted two months, during February and March. This year the season is only open for two months.

Charter captains who make their living fishing have also been affected.

Dan Clymer is a charter captain who has felt the economic sting of the closure. "It's absurd that they have this closure," he said.

Clymer, 32, is a full-time fishing guide and a native of Citrus County and works on the water nearly every day.

"My initial reaction to the closure was 'why?'" he said. "Last year I had the best grouper season ever, it was absolutely fantastic."

He said he doesn't see a lack of gag grouper numbers offshore.

"I see no reduction in numbers at all. In a way, I wish I could strap a scuba tank on them and take them on a dive with me to let them see for themselves," he said. "The NOAA Marine Fisheries should be ashamed of themselves for the decision."

In years past, Clymer said the 10 months of open season has comprised a hefty portion of his revenue. During the peak months, April to June and September through December, he would average about 15 trips with clients targeting gag grouper each month at a cost of $500 per trip. With the closure, that money has all but gone away, but he said it hasn't been a total loss for him.

"The one blessing in all this that has saved me is that I operate a bay-style boat that does not limit me to targeting only grouper," he said.

He said he can utilize his boat to not only fish far offshore where gag grouper primarily live, but also in more shallow water, where he can target inshore species like redfish, trout and snook. But he said other charter captains aren't so lucky.

"For the guy who has a 30-foot offshore boat, they're having trouble with this," he said.

Martha Bademan is a biologist with FWC's Marine Fisheries division. She said the restrictions in state waters were set because gag grouper has been overfished.

"The seasons are in place to protect the species," she said.

Bademan said that rather than close the season altogether, NOAA Marine Fisheries decided to set those dates to maximize fishing opportunities in the fall, and FWC followed along.

Korade said many anglers he has spoken with have voiced concern that the narrow, two-month window of opportunity to catch the gag grouper will be a long-term obstacle. Bademan said that's not the case.

The abbreviated season this year is an interim ruling and is meant for the short term, while a more permanent solution is being designed.

"The Gulf Council, a council that makes recommendations to NOAA Marine Fisheries for the Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas Gulf region, will make a recommendation that next year's season should be from July 1 through Oct. 31, but approval by NOAA will be needed to approve that recommendation," she said.

"The key quality measures effort is a new recognition and we congratulate those hospitals listed by The Joint Commission because of their performance on these measures," she said. "We are always happy when our colleagues are recognized for performance because this type of transparency improves the quality of care for everyone."

Both Pernu and Citrus Memorial spokeswoman Katie Mehl pointed to their respective hospitals' achievements.

"We know that the best hospitals are the ones that focus on continuous quality improvement, and that's exactly what we do here," Mehl said in a statement.

Pernu said: "Seven Rivers' performance is high quality by every measure. We are confident we will soon join others on The Joint Commission's list."

Oak Hill Chief Executive Officer Mickey Smith was pleased his hospital made the list.

"Obviously, The Joint Commission is the gold standard in the country," Smith said. "To be recognized by them is a big honor."

Smith said hospitals are being encouraged to become more transparent in the way they make medical treatment decisions. Transparency forces medical providers to show evidence of success, he said.

"To me the transparency is exciting," he said. "It's forcing the health care industry to be accountable."

Mrs. Knudsen also was one of the earliest supporters of saving what was then known as the Homosassa Springs Nature World Attraction from potential development. She, and many others in the Homosassa area, helped convince the state to buy the park.

Margaret Busby, 79
HOMOSASSA

Margaret I. Busby, 79, of Homosassa, went home peacefully on Fri., Sept. 9, 2011, at her home surrounded by family.

A native of Rochester, NY, she was born Aug. 20, 1932, to Floyd and Lena (Hall) Allen. Margaret moved here 20 years ago from Pittsburgh, PA, had many interests and passions in her life, including bowling, sewing, crocheting, billiards, horseshoes, dancing, riding horses, playing cards and the Game Show Network. She also loved her yearly trips to Las Vegas and was an avid Tampa Bay Buccaneer fan. She always had a smile on her face and a hand to lend without complaint. She was an independent, loving, courageous woman and the best mother anyone could ask for. She fought a long, hard battle and finally has her wings, peace, no more pain and will always be in our hearts and missed by so many.

Margaret is survived by her six children, Darlene Lech (husband Ray), Pittsburgh, PA, Julia A. West, Homosassa, Teresa Busby, Crystal River, William Busby, II, Lecanto, Roberta Busby, Beverly Hills, and James Busby, Homosassa; as well as her sister, Dorothy Templeton, Baltimore, MD; 20 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. Peggy was preceded in death by her husband, the late William Busby, on Oct. 30, 1998, and a brother, the late William Allen.

A Memorial Service of Remembrance for Margaret will be held on September 20, 2011, from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. at Wilder Funeral Home, Homosassa Springs, with Rev. Alan Ritter officiating the service at 5:30 p.m. www.wilderfuneral.com.

Dearld "Nunu" Lennon Jr., 46
DUNNELLON

Dearld "Nunu" Lennon Jr., 46, of Dunnellon, FL, died Sept. 13, 2011, of complications from cancer treatment. His final days were spent with family and friends by his side.

Dearld "Nunu" was the kind of guy you just had to like and he had a ton of love to give. He will be remembered always for his kind heart, pleasant demeanor, thoughtful actions, caring smile, loving personality, fun spirit and his selfless ability to make others happy. Of all the things Dearld enjoyed, spending time with family and friends was his favorite thing to do. His most enjoyed hobbies were hunting, fishing and NASCAR. For these reasons and so many more he is missed and will be remembered forever by the family and friends he loved so much.

Dearld was born January 14, 1965, in Waterville, ME., to Dorothy and Dearld Lennon.

Dearld is survived by his wife of 15 years, Angie. In addition to his mother, he is survived by his very special grandson, Matthew; his son, Tim; two sisters and their husbands, Diane Danforth and Billy, and Melinda Gunnells and Gene. Nunu embraced his wife's family as his own and is survived by his parents, Michael and Regina Gallant; three sisters, Renee Leary and partner, Martina Hopkins, Ramona Dillahunt and husband Matt, Robin Dodge and husband; and one brother, Todd Gallant, and wife, Terri. Dearld is further survived by many nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

He was preceded in death by his father, Dearld Lennon; brother, Gary Lennon; and sister, Bonnie St. Peter.

Dearld most enjoyed happy times with his friends and family. At his request, no service will be held. Loved ones will gather to celebrate his life and the special memories they shared.

Eldred Leturno, 89
HOMOSASSA

Eldred Ray Leturno, 89 of Homosassa, FL, left us on Wednesday, Sept. 14, 2011, at 10:30 a.m.

He passed away peacefully in his sleep with Hospice and his family surrounding him.

He was born in Effingham, Illinois, on Nov. 30, 1921, to Ray and Etha (Naab) Leturno.

He married his sweetheart, Esta (Poe) Leturno, on Dec. 24, 1945. They would have celebrated 66 years together this year.

He served in the U.S. Army during WWII. He was wounded twice in France. He received the Bronze Star, a Purple Heart, Bronze Oak Leaf cluster and a good conduct medal for his service to his country.

He was a farmer all his life in Effingham, retiring and moving to Florida in 1977. He loved fishing and woodworking. If he could fish every day, he was happy. There aren't many people whom he hasn't taken fishing or just for a tour of the Chassahowitzka River. Everyone who knew him loved him, and he did all he could to help out a neighbor.

He leaves behind his wife, Esta; daughter, Sharon Leturno Hoffman of Homosassa; sons, Larry (Deb) Leturno of Homosassa and Bob (Gail) Leturno of Effingham; grandchildren, 1st Sgt. Thomas (Kristina) Welch, Scott (Jen) Welch, Marcus (Margie) Leturno, Travis (Katrina) Leturno, Brigitte Leturno and Jay Leturno; 15 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

Friends will be received Saturday, Sept. 17, from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. at Wilder Funeral Home, Homosassa, FL. Funeral services will be held at a later date in Effingham, IL. Condolence may be given at www.wilderfuneral.com.

Betty Mansfield, 86
CRYSTAL RIVER

After many faithful years of service to her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, Betty Jane (Brown) Mansfield, age 86, passed into His loving care on September 12, 2011, in Crystal River, FL.

Born in Hockessin, DE, Betty first attended a one-room school in Hockessin and graduated from Conrad HS. She met and married Joseph Mansfield in 1954. Betty worked for the Wilmington Police Department for 20 years. Upon her leaving there, she was commended on her cheerfulness, friendliness and efficiency. She and Joe retired in 1973 to Crystal River, Florida, where they built a home. Betty worked for the Crystal River Police Department and as a receptionist for a doctor in the area. She faithfully attended the First Assembly of God Church of Crystal River and had previously attended Calvary Assembly of God Church. She used her talents of playing piano and organ at the services of both churches. She could play most anything, but the old traditional church hymns were her specialty. She enjoyed the company of her dogs over the years. She was preceded in death by her husband Joe on August 19, 1994, who she will be buried next to in Delaware.

She is survived by cousins Charles McAllister and his wife Marlene, Fran and her husband Jack Quinn, Pearl Jordan, Al Skinner and his wife Charolette, other extended family and by dear friends Debbie Nelson and Sandra and Joe Brown of Crystal River.

The family would like to thank the staff of Nature Coast Lodge and Hospice of Citrus County, for all the wonderful care that they gave to Betty.

A memorial service will be held in Crystal River at a future date.

Alfred Webb, 80
FLORAL CITY

Alfred Webb, age 80, Floral City, passed September 13, 2011, under the loving care of his family and HPH Hospice Care Center in Brooksville.

Alfred was born on January 21, 1931, in Tifton, GA, to the late Sylvester and Lula Mae (Hancock) Webb. He was raised in Alapaha, GA, and came to this area six years ago from Largo. He was the owner of Webb and Sons Roofing Company. He loved to fish and enjoyed gardening and cooking. He made many homemade "slingshots" for his family and friends.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Dorothy Webb, Floral City; three sons, Dennis Webb, Largo, Steve Webb, Palm Harbor, and Eddie (Bridget) Webb, Brooksville; his daughter, Kathy (Jerry) Castellano, Floral City; step-mother Margie Webb, Largo; two brothers, Troy Webb, Palm Harbor, and Ralph Webb, Largo; and three sisters, Faye from Alabama, Joyce from Massachusetts, and Geneva from Pinellas Park, FL; ten grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a son, Mark.

A Funeral Service of Remembrance will be held on Sunday, September 18, 2011, at 3:00 p.m. at the Chas. E. Davis Funeral Home with Crematory. The family will receive friends in visitation from 1:00 p.m. until the hour of service. The family requests donations in Alfred's name to HPH Hospice Foundation, 3545 N. Lecanto Hwy., Beverly Hills, FL 34465-3503, with designation for the HPH Hospice Care Center in Brooksville. Sign the guest book at www.chronicleonline.com.

First lady applauds Olive Garden announcement

Associated Press

HYATTSVILLE, Md. — Michelle Obama said Thursday that a pledge by the Olive Garden and Red Lobster restaurants and their sister chains to serve healthier meals is a "break-through moment" for the industry.

Darden Restaurants Inc. is pledging to cut calories and sodium in its meals by 10 percent by 2016, and 20 percent over a decade. Among promised changes for children: no more french fries. A fruit or vegetable side will become standard with kids' meals. One percent milk also will be served, including free refills, unless an alternative drink is ordered.

"With this new commitment, Darden is doing what no restaurant company has done before," said the first lady, who joined executives of Orlando, Fla.-based Darden for the announcement at an Olive Garden restaurant in Hyattsville, Md., just outside Washington.

The kids' menu changes have begun and are to be in place by July at Darden's 1,900 restaurants in 49 states. Its other brands are LongHorn Steakhouse, The Capital Grille, Bahama Breeze and Seasons 52. The Capital Grille and Seasons 52 do not have children's menus.

The children's menu will also include at least one 600-calorie or less option with reduced fat and sodium.

The company's promise is part of a trend by the restaurant industry to serve healthier food.

Since the beginning of the year, McDonald's,

First Lady Michelle Obama speaks Thursday during a Let's Move! event in a Darden restaurant in Hyattsville, Md.

Burger King, Chili's, IHOP, Friendly's and more than a dozen other large and small chains have said they will begin replacing the french fries in children's meals with fruit and removing enticing pictures of less healthy items from their menus.

Diners are becoming more health-conscious and are asking for improvements, such as for their meals to be cooked without butter or with less salt or to be prepared any way but fried. Then there's Mrs. Obama's campaign to bring down childhood obesity rates.

One in three U.S. children is overweight or obese, putting them at greater risk of developing diabetes, heart disease or other health conditions. Mrs. Obama has said her goal is to help today's youngsters become adults at a healthy weight by eating better and getting more exercise.

James Gavin, chairman of the board of the Partnership for a Healthier America, said the current generation of children is on track to be the first that will grow up to be sicker and live shorter lives than the generation before it. The partnership was created to work with the private sector to help reduce childhood obesity.

U.S. lung cancer rates fall, led by Western states

Associated Press

ATLANTA — The West is leading a national decline in the rate of new lung cancer cases, with states like California and Nevada accounting for much of the improvement, particularly among women.

Smoking rates in the West have long been lower, and that's credited for the good health news for that region. Roughly 90 percent of lung cancer cases are attributed to smoking.

Lung cancer rates for men have been declining for years, but the drop among women is much more recent. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday that lung cancer rates for women nationally decreased about 2 percent from 2006 to 2008, the last year studied. But the rate for women in select Western states fell about 4 percent in the same period.

Declines among men were similar, including a 4 percent decline in the West and about a 3 percent drop nationally.

"Over the past 20 years, lung cancer overtook breast cancer and became the No. 1 cancer killer of women. This is a horrific development that we have begun to turn around," said Dr. Tim McAfee, director of the CDC's Office on Smoking and Health.

Female lung cancer rates did not decline in every state, but six states saw significant drops — California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Texas and Florida. That was enough to pull down the national rate, even though female cancer incidence rose slightly in 14 states.

The rate of new lung cancer cases among males dropped in 35 states.

Lung cancer was something of a medical rarity 100 years ago, but is now one of the most commonly diagnosed cancers in the United States and is the form of cancer that kills the most people. More than 150,000 Americans will die of it this year, the American Cancer Society estimates.

It can take many years for lung cancer to develop in a smoker, although lung cancer rates can be seen to drop as soon as five years after smoking rates decline.

In the new report, CDC researchers looked at national cancer registries for the years 1999 through 2008, and also studied state-specific smoking rates from a separate data base that covered the same time period. The results are being published this week in a CDC publication, Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

The CDC report didn't capture all 50 states. Six were left out because the authors were not able to say what was going on with lung cancer rates in those states for the earlier years of the analysis. Five of those states are in the South, where smoking rates and cancer rates tend to be high.

A stark regional difference was seen in 13 Western states. Texas, grouped in with the South by the researchers, also saw significant declines. The regional declines in male lung cancer incidence were similar for men.

Smoking rates are lower in the West. The national smoking rate has hovered around 20 percent for several years, but the rates have been below — in some cases, well below — 19 percent in California, Hawaii, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Arizona.

Health officials and some advocates say at least some of the difference is due to some states having higher taxes on cigarettes, more comprehensive smoking bans and well-funded prevention programs. California is considered the prime success story for such health policies.

"Many Americans have a greater risk of lung cancer because of where they live and because their elected leaders have failed to implement proven measures to reduce tobacco use," said Matthew Myers, president of the Washington, D.C.-based Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids.

Senate OKs bill providing $7B in disaster aid

Measure faces resistance from GOP

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Setting up a battle with the GOP-controlled House, Senate Democrats on Thursday muscled through a $7 billion bill to replenish nearly empty federal disaster aid accounts.

The chamber advanced the legislation by a 62-37 vote to defeat a Republican filibuster. Eight Republicans joined with every Democrat to provide $500 million in immediate, emergency funding for the Federal Emergency Management Agency to make sure FEMA won't have to cut off help for victims of Hurricane Irene and Tropical Storm Lee at the end of the month.

The legislation still faces opposition from Republicans controlling the House. They promise action on a competing plan in the House next week that would provide $3.7 billion in disaster aid but require $1 billion in immediate aid for the 2011 budget year to be "paid for" with offsetting cuts to an Obama administration-backed loan program to encourage the production of fuel-efficient vehicles.

Since the House measure is attached to a bill needed to avert a government shutdown, Republicans may have the edge in the partisan dispute.

The House-Senate battle comes as the government's main disaster account is at risk of running out of money before the Sept. 30 end of the budget year. If the fund runs out — it now has less than $400 million — FEMA would have to suspend aid to disaster victims.

FEMA's relief fund is the main source of help for victims of the widespread flooding and other damage due to Hurricane Irene and Tropical Storm Lee. The agency provides help like emergency shelter, clothing and money to repair disaster-damaged homes. It also funds longer-term rebuilding projects like repairs to public buildings and infrastructure, but the money crunch has forced FEMA to suspend such aid to conserve money for the emergency needs of recent disasters.

Typically, disaster aid is added to the budget as an emergency expense, and the insistence by Republicans on so-called offsets has Democrats fuming.

But by putting the disaster aid funding on a separate piece of legislation that's required to keep the government running, House leaders seem to be calculating that the Senate will have no choice but to go along or risk a partial government shutdown.

The White House requested $5.1 billion in additional disaster aid money only last Friday, which had been a source of frustration for lawmakers responsible for funding disaster accounts.

The administration requested just $1.8 billion for FEMA's disaster funding in February, well short of documented needs to respond to past disasters like hurricanes Katrina, Rita and Gustav and the massive Tennessee floods of last spring. The tornadoes in Joplin, Mo., and across Alabama this spring only made the problem worse.

White House missed red flags

Administration ignored warnings

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration ignored repeated warnings about a clean-energy loan program that has become an embarrassment for the White House amid the collapse of a California solar energy company that received more than $500 million in federal loans.

At least three reports by federal watchdogs over the past two years warned that the Energy Department had not fully developed the controls needed to manage the multibillion-dollar loan program that provided more than $528 million to Solyndra Inc., a now-bankrupt solar panel manufacturer.

The Silicon Valley company was the first renewable-energy company to receive a loan guarantee under the 2009 stimulus law, and the Obama administration frequently touted Solyndra as a model for its clean energy program. President Barack Obama visited the company's Fremont, Calif., headquarters last year.

Even as Obama praised the company's plans to hire more than 1,000 workers, warning signs were being sent from within the government and from outside analysts who questioned Solyndra's viability as a "going concern."

Emails obtained by The Associated Press show that a White House official dismissed reports about Solyndra's gloomy future. An email from Greg Nelson, a White House official who had been involved in the planning of Obama's May 2010 trip to Solyndra's headquarters, to a Solyndra executive downplayed a July 2010 news story in a trade publication that criticized the company's financial health.

"Seems B.S.," Nelson wrote.

A 2009 report by the Energy Department's inspector general warned that the DOE lacked the necessary quality control for the loan guarantee program, which was created in 2005 to support clean-energy projects that could not obtain conventional bank loans due to high risks.

In July 2010, the Government Accountability Office said the Energy Department had bypassed required steps for funding awards to five of 10 applicants that received conditional loan guarantees.

The FBI recently raided Solyndra's headquarters, shortly after Solyndra filed for bankruptcy and laid off 1,100 workers.

A U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the case is under seal, said the search was related to a fraud investigation into whether Solyndra filed inaccurate documents with the government.

Meanwhile, the Treasury Department's inspector general said Thursday it has opened an investigation into the Solyndra loan.

The Obama administration is moving to finalize as many as 15 loan guarantees for renewable-energy companies before the stimulus program ends on Sept. 30. Republicans question whether that could lead to more loans to companies that fail, like Solyndra.

LaVera said the department won't take any shortcuts during the approval process.

House passes bill targeting labor board

Measure stems from outrage about controversial Boeing case

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Republican-dominated House approved a bill Thursday that would undercut the government's labor dispute with Boeing Co., wading into a case that has angered business groups and become a major political issue in the GOP presidential primary.

The measure, approved on a 238 to 186 vote, would ban the National Labor Relations Board from ordering any employer to shut down plants or relocate work, even if a company violates labor laws.

While the bill is not expected to get a vote in the Democratic-run Senate, Republicans are trying to keep up pressure on the agency over a move they claim interferes with legiti-mate business decisions.

"It tells job creators they don't have to fear an activist NLRB reversing important decisions about where to locate a business," said Minnesota Rep. John Kline, chairman of the House Committee on Education and the Workforce.

GOP lawmakers have vilified the NLRB for filing a complaint in April that alleges Boeing violated labor laws when it opened a new production line for its 787 airplane in South Carolina, a right-to-work state. The board's acting general counsel, Lafe Solomon, says Boeing went to South Carolina to punish union workers in Washington state for past strikes, and wants the work moved to the West Coast.

Union leaders claim the bill would render toothless the board's ability to enforce labor laws when companies simply eliminate work to get rid of employees who are pro-union. Democrats said the measure would give companies a free pass to punish employees for exercising their rights to organize.

"The bill before us guts the very fundamental rights of American workers to fight for better wages and working conditions and it makes it easier for companies to outsource American jobs overseas," said Rep. Jim McGovern, D-Mass.

Republicans and their allies in the business community have gone after the NLRB for more than a year, as the agency has issued a spate of decisions and rules favorable to unions. The Boeing case has become a rallying cry for GOP presidential candidates courting voters in South Carolina, an early primary state.

Boeing has denied the allegations, saying it had valid economic reasons to open the plant in Charleston, S.C. The case is pending before an administrative law judge in Seattle and could last years.

The National Association of Manufacturers praised the GOP vote, saying the NLRB's actions are having "a chilling impact on job creation and causing a great deal of uncertainty for manufacturers throughout the country."

The House vote fell largely along party lines, although eight Democrats from right-to-work states voted for the bill. There are 22 states with right-to-work laws that prohibit union fees from being a condition of employment.

48-HOUR DISTRIBUTION: These seldom seen full uncut sheets of new $1 bills are being moved from the private vaults of the World Reserve Monetary Exchange for immediate distribution to Crystal River area residents. Residents who beat the 48-hour order deadline to get the vault stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios for just twenty-nine dollars per portfolio are getting the valuable uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills for just face value. That's a real steal because only the first 6,049 residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List are getting the Vault Stacks full of real money just by calling 1-888-248-7476 to beat the 48-hour deadline.

Crystal River area zip codes turn up cash for residents

Valuable Gov't issued uncut sheets of money are actually being handed over to the first 6,049 callers who find their zip code on the distribution list below and beat the 48-hour deadline to get Vault Stacks full of real money

By Keith Berrymore
UNIVERSAL MEDIA SYNDICATE

UMS - Crystal River area residents who find their zip code on the Distribution

List will feel like they just won the lottery. That's because for the next 48 hours, full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills are being released by the World Reserve not to banks, not to dealers and not just to the rich and famous, but directly to Crystal River area residents who beat the order deadline.

The only thing residents need to do is look for their zip code on the Distribution List printed in today's publication. If their zip code appears on the list, they need to immediately call the Distribution Hotline before the 48-hour deadline to get the Vault Stack containing three protective bankers portfolios each loaded with its own full uncut sheet of never circulated $1 bills. But only the first 6,049 residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List can even get the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of real money.

"The money is being released until our last remaining uncut sheets of $1 bills are completely gone," said Jefferson Marshall, Executive Director of the private World Reserve.

"That's why we've set up a Toll Free Distribution Hotline to make sure residents get them now," he said.

"But everything in our vault may soon be gone. So residents who want to get the uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills had better hurry and call right now," Marshall said.

Those who get in on this now will be the really smart ones. Just think what they could be worth someday.

"Rare uncut sheets of real Gov't issued currency have sold at prestigious auction houses for thousands of dollars. Currency values always fluctuate, and there are never any guarantees. But at just twenty-nine dollars the bankers portfolio is a real steal since the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48-hour deadline are getting the valuable U.S. Gov't issued uncut sheet of money for just face value," Marshall said.

"You would expect to only see uncut money sheets on display in the Oval Office or under guard at the Smithsonian," he said.

"In fact, they are so seldom seen, banks don't even have them. That's why I've issued a directive to release a limited number of never circulated uncut sheets of valuable $1 bills from our private vault reserve to residents of the Crystal River area. Residents whose zip code is not on the Distribution List can't have our Vault Stacks of these full uncut sheets of $1 bills," Marshall said.

"These full uncut sheets of $1 bills will be highly sought after and are extremely popular to hand out as gifts for friends and family," he said.

Most people have never even seen one of these full uncut sheets of four never circulated bills.

"We're bracing for all the calls. With just hours left, we're doing our best to make sure Crystal River area residents get through. But, it is important that residents find their zip code on the Distribution List and call the Toll Free Hotline right away to beat the deadline. Because when our release is over, it's over," he said.

"We're allowing residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List to claim as many as 10 Vault Stacks. But, since you can't get these Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of uncut sheets of money at banks, credit unions or even the Federal Reserve the limits will be strictly enforced," Marshall said.

"So, residents who want these full uncut sheets of real money need to call right now. If lines are busy keep trying, we promise to answer all calls," he said. ■

FULL UNCUT SHEETS: Above is one of the valuable full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills that are actually being released to Crystal River area residents. These crisp seldom seen uncut sheets of real money are being released on a first come, first served basis. That's why Crystal River area residents whose zip code appears on the Distribution List need to call 1-888-248-7476 right away with Dept. Code ON411 to get the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios full of real money since they're only being released by the World Reserve through this offer for the next 48 hours.

VALUABLE: Pictured to the left are the Vault Stacks containing three protective bankers portfolios, each loaded with a valuable uncut sheet of never circulated $1 bills. It's impossible to predict how much the bills will be worth in the future. But, since the Gov't has already shut down printing in 2006 on some uncut sheets of money, smart collectors are snatching up all the valuable uncut sheets of Gov't issued money they can get their hands on, so you better believe at just twenty-nine dollars and shipping the bankers portfolio is a real steal since the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48-hour order deadline are getting the valuable U.S. Gov't issued uncut sheet of money for just face value.

How to get the money

The Toll Free Distribution Hotline opens at 8:30am today for Crystal River area residents only. The World Reserve has authorized the release of full uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills to residents who beat the 48-hour deadline. If lines are busy, keep trying all calls will be answered. If you miss the deadline you'll be turned away from this offer and forced to wait for future announcements in this publication or others, if any.

The only thing readers need to do is find their zip code on the Distribution List below and be one of the first 6,049 residents who call and beat the order deadline to get the Vault Stack containing three protective bankers portfolios, for just $29 per portfolio and shipping are getting the valuable uncut sheets of never circulated $1 bills for just face value. Guild makes quilt for the blind

Staff Writer

INVERNESS — Often a quilt is best appreciated with the sense of sight, looking at the intricate stitching and elaborate patterns.

But what about the blind and sight-impaired? How could they best enjoy a handmade quilt?

That was the challenge taken on by the members of the Citrus Friendship Quilters Guild, who recently finished a Braille quilt, which they presented to the Inverness Lions Club Thursday at the Lakes Region Library in Inverness.

One of the guild members, Kathy Smith, had made a sign language alphabet quilt with the various finger positions in each quilt block. She suggested the group do something similar with the Braille alphabet.

To make the raised Braille dots that form the alphabet letters, the quilters used a technique called "yo-yo," which makes what looks like three-dimensional fabric buttons.

"Somebody in the club (made patterns) to scale so we would have the exact placement of the dots," said guild Vice President

Denise Helt. "Everybody hand-sewed a block — we all had a hand in it."

Helt said the guild wanted to donate the quilt to the Lions Club so they could use it as a fundraiser.

"Any money we raise from raffling this quilt off goes to benefit the local needy who need eye-glasses and eye exams," said Lions Club member Cecile Meyers. "That takes about $5,000 a year. We also give to other local charities, like Blessings in a Backpack and the Boys & Girls Club."

The Inverness Lions Club meets at 6 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of the month at Mama's Kuntry Kafe, 1787 W. Main St., Inverness. The five Lions clubs in Citrus County have collection boxes around the area for donated old eyeglasses, sunglasses and cases to be cleaned and distributed to people in third world countries.

9/11 panel: U.S. remains vulnerable

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Former members of the 9/11 commission warned Thursday that despite efforts during the last decade to make American cities safer from terrorist attacks, the U.S. has failed to protect itself in at least three key areas and remains vulnerable to cyberterrorism and "lone wolf" terrorists.

Committee members said the U.S. must develop better bomb detection technology, has not adequately improved radio equipment to allow police and fire departments nationwide to better communicate and has yet to develop a national identification card that could add another barrier to terrorists trying to slip into the country.

Former Illinois Gov. James Thompson said he worries that terrorists from afar could hack into computers, crippling banks, businesses and key utilities while throwing the nation into disarray.

"You read stories day after day about some 18-year-old Romanian hacker getting in and playing havoc with banks, public offices, so think about what some of the rogue state actors might be doing," Thompson said.

Thompson and eight other members of the 10-member 9/11 commission disbanded in 2004 after recommending steps the nation could make to ward off terrorism gathered on the Indiana University campus for a two-hour discussion before about 800 students and others.

The wide-ranging discussion led by moderator Ken Bode included several commissioners recalling the important role that the families of those who died in the terrorist attacks in New York, Washington and Pennsylvania played in prodding Congress to form the panel.

Jamie Gorelick, who served as deputy attorney general under President Bill Clinton, said the families of many of nearly 3,000 people who died in the attacks closely watched the commission's work because they wanted answers that could prevent a repeat of the attacks.

"The effect of the families being very engaged in what we were doing was very profound," she said. "We asked the tough questions because we knew the people were watching us. ... We very much felt that the weight of history was on our shoulders."

Slade Gorton, a former U.S. Sen. from Washington, also credited the 9/11 families with getting both the panel formed and making sure all the key questions were addressed.

"They were on our backs the whole time. They wanted accountability. They certainly spurred our activities," Gorton said.

Some of the former commission members lamented the lack of the same nonpartisan, unified spirit that swept across the nation in the wake the 2001 attacks, saying the nation needs that same passionate commitment now with the current partisan divisions in Washington.

"I don't think we can be safe if we are as divided as we are today," Gorelick said.

Commission members said many of their recommendations are now reality but that some key ones — including better communications for police and fire — are still undone a decade later.

"Lives were lost on 9/11 because the police and fire could not talk to each other. That is still true today in most of America. Ten years later, Congress has not settled on a solution," Thompson said. "Ten years is long enough."

Thompson also said that hijackers like those who crashed planes in New York, Washington and Pennsylvania could still get state IDs today despite efforts to create uniform standards for identification.

He said the 9/11 Commission's 2004 report called for federal identification standards, but that those haven't succeeded because of civil liberties concerns and states' desire to guard their own processes.

"Our credit card companies know more about us than the government does," he said. "We ought to grow up and say hey, we're facing the kind of threat in America we have never, ever faced before. We have to adopt measures we have never, ever considered before."

Thompson also said that the nation remains vulnerable to "lone wolf" terrorists who act on their own, sharing their plans for an attack with no one — and therefore beyond the reach of being detected by the nation's intelligence-gathering agencies beefed up after 9/11.

"The lone wolf operative, a single person, radicalized by what they see on the Internet or hear at mosques, is going to be a greater threat to the U.S. today than on 9/11," he said.

Former U.S. Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, who was committee vice-chairman, said while the nation has seen progress screening airline passengers, despite millions of dollars spent on screening, the nation still lacks the technology to quickly and accurately detect explosives, including those that might be hidden inside a terrorist's body.

"That's the big gap in passenger screening right now,"

State gives up on tax scofflaws

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Despite a long-running budget crunch, Florida is giving up on collecting tens of millions in taxes, fees and fines owed the state.

Last year, Florida wrote off more than $109 million as uncollectable, forgiving the debts of everyone from those whose businesses owed unemployment taxes, to people who received treatment from county health departments and polluters fined for spilling oil or other chemicals.

The state annually collects $37 billion in taxes and fees, so $109 million is a relatively small amount, but state lawmakers this past year were confronted with a nearly $4 billion budget gap.

Some have suggested cracking down on those who refuse to pay up.

Stocks rally around Euro banks

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A joint effort by five major central banks to support Europe's financial system set off a rally in U.S. stocks Thursday. Gold plunged and Treasury yields rose as traders sold the safest investments. Markets in Europe soared.

The European Central Bank, the U.S. Federal Reserve and three other central banks said Thursday they would provide European banks with unlimited dollar loans. The aim is to fend off worries that the banks could be weakened by their holdings of government bonds from Greece and other struggling European countries.

Worries that European banks would struggle to borrow dollars have hung over markets in recent weeks. It's a key element in the European debt crisis, rooted in the fear that cash-strapped governments in Greece and Italy won't pay back their debts. European banks hold large amounts of debt issued by Greece and Italy, which they use as collateral to borrow dollars. The danger is that banks could lose their ability to raise money when other lenders won't take the collateral.

Europe's main stock markets jumped on the news. Germany's DAX and France's CAC-40 gained 3 percent. The euro rose against the dollar as confidence in Europe's shared currency increased.

Gold plunged $45, or 2.5 percent, to settle at $1,781 an ounce. Treasury prices fell, pushing their yields up. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note, which is used to set interest rates on a wide variety of loans, rose to 2.08 percent.

Business HIGHLIGHTS

Unemployment benefit requests jumped to 428,000

WASHINGTON — The number of people applying for unemployment benefits jumped last week to the highest level in three months. The Labor Department said Thursday weekly applications rose by 11,000 to a seasonally adjusted 428,000. Applications didn't drop as much as the department expected during the short work week, so the seasonally adjusted value rose. Still, applications appear to be trending up. The four-week average, a less volatile measure, rose for the fourth straight week to 419,500.

Consumers paid more for range of items in August

WASHINGTON — The Consumer Price Index rose 0.4 percent in August after jumping 0.5 percent in July. The core index, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, rose 0.2 percent. For the 12 months that ended in August, the core index surged 2 percent, the biggest year-over-year increase in nearly three years. That's at the high end of the Federal Reserve's informal inflation target. It could limit the central bank's ability to take further steps to try to revive the economy. —From wire reports

LISTEN, LEARN, ACT

Slow the flow of water degradation

From today through Saturday, Sept. 24, Save Our Waters Week will be observed and celebrated in Citrus County.

Established 16 years ago by a handful of people motivated by the Citrus 20/20 group's vision of "Nature and man living in harmony," Save Our Waters Week (SOWW) organizers work tirelessly to "promote citizen awareness, education and consensus to save our waters."

Over the years, a caring cross-section of individuals, agencies and businesses have combined efforts to offer a smattering of opportunities to highlight the significance — and importance — of water and a healthy environment to our community.

Be it games of environmental jeopardy or tours of water bodies or preservation areas, Florida-friendly landscaping or recycling, Save Our Waters Week has much in store.

At the heart of it all is the need to have an informed public that understands that without an ample supply of clean water, our unique corner of the world would hold little appeal.

With state funding cuts to the Southwest Florida Water Management District — a key partner in SOWW for all 16 years — the ability to reverse the trend of water degradation may be at further risk.

Some people will continue to dispute whether sewer systems are more environmentally sound than septic tanks, and whether fast-release lawn fertilizers aren't the nitrate-inducing demon many claim is wreaking havoc in our springs, bays, lakes and rivers. The fact remains, however: water quality is deteriorating where improvements have not been made — and improvements come at a cost. In this economy, the financial well is running dry, so it is educated, concerned people who are the first line of defense.

Check out some of the numerous activities planned during Save Our Waters Week; learn how you can help to protect our water resources and the environment at-large — and have some fun at the same time.

To view all the activities, go to Citrus2020.org and click the link to Save Our Waters Week.

THE ISSUE:

Save Our Waters Week.

OUR OPINION:

Participate and protect water resources.

Stop development

We don't need more stores here. We have enough problems with our septic tanks and water without bringing more people into this area. You can always go to Ocala if you like the big stores.

Get out of Asia

The USA should get out of the Asian theater. Bring back our troops from Afghanistan and Pakistan. We have lost enough over there in troops and money and we should pull our troops out of there and most of our troops in Japan and Germany and put them on the Mexican border.

One stamp, period

I'm calling the Chronicle, the Sound Off. I'm reading here, the New York Post, where the Postal Service of the United States is facing default. I've got a very simple solution to help save money. Stop printing all these different stamps. They're just coming out with a Ted Williams stamp and Joe DiMaggio stamp. Make one stamp and that's it, period. We don't need all these different stamps. They'll save money on making all of these different stamps. We'll save a lot of money. Stick to one stamp, period, and get rid of the rest. That's going to save money and help people not lose their jobs.

Fifty-cent stamps

I was just watching CNN about the post office, that they're on track of losing $9 billion next year. I think the only way to go about this is to make the stamps 50 cents each. And it is well worth it to send a letter or to get things and get your things paid for by mail, the way most people do, instead of using their computer where you have no track of anything. At least with the mail, you can keep track of everything.

Fifty cents a stamp and I'll bet you 10 to 1 that the post office will come out smelling like a rose.

And you know what? It would be the best bargain that an American can have.

Bob Evans, please

I think it would be nice to have a Bob Evans over here. You have to drive quite a ways to go to one and we need a nice restaurant like that here and a little variety around here in Crystal River and Homosassa.

Ax port, build casino

About that Port Citrus: I think it's just throwing money down a rat hole. Why not do something that is a surefire winner both for jobs and taxes and lots of money for Citrus County.

All they have to do is put a casino where they're going to put this Port Citrus.

Beach testing

The state's budget cuts are no longer paying for testing of weekly bacterial levels at Fort Island Beach but the county's picking up the slack, which means county taxes. Considering that beach is closed nearly every other week because of contamination, shows the state doesn't care.

Our governor's family obviously swims in a private pool. His attitude is, "So what if the peasants who use Fort Island Beach get sick?"

GOP keeps it real in debate

There was something remarkably attractive at the Republican debate at the Reagan Library on Sept. 7.

No, it wasn't Jon Huntsman's tan, Mitt Romney's hair, Michele Bachmann's shoes or Rick Perry's swagger.

Although I suppose the swagger isn't entirely unrelated. But what was special was something far less superficial, the kind of thing you know when you see, but that we all might be a bit too jaded about politics to acknowledge: authenticity.

Yes, even politicians can have it.

You saw it when Romney, given the opportunity to beat up on Perry for a terrible decision he made as governor of Texas — to mandate that Texas girls going into the sixth grade be inoculated against the human papillomavirus (a trampling of parental rights, for starters) — decided not to. Romney, the former governor of Massachusetts, perhaps seeing his own vulnerabilities — records can be a biting reality — didn't take the bait.

Whatever the motivation, it was one of many pander-free zones in the Reagan Library debate.

You even saw it in things I don't agree with. Consider Gov. Perry on the death penalty. I actually found it more than a little disturbing when the audience applauded his robust record of capital-punishment enforcement in Texas before he even had the opportunity to speak. I do think the death penalty is used way too widely, but Perry's record is what it is — and so he stood by it, explained it and didn't try to finesse it. I'm not with him, but the man seems to know who he is and is unapologetic about it.

Kathryn Jean Lopez

Perhaps there's even an authenticity to Jon Huntsman's presentation, which left everyone scratching their heads, wondering what exactly his strategy is or who makes up his constituency. One can't really accuse him of saying what conservative primary voters in South Carolina (or wherever) want to hear.

And then there is Rick Santorum.

Perhaps it was the Reagan overload that got to him, but "Hardball" host Chris Matthews took time out from being vocally disturbed by most of the debate goings-on to pay a little tribute to the former Pennsylvania senator. Matthews, himself from Pennsylvania, with a brother who has long been active in politics there, has always been decent to Santorum, when many others haven't. Just Google — or don't, especially not at work or with kids around — Santorum's name and you'll see the kind of nonsense he has to put up with. It's a real injustice, considering that he has been a self-sacrificing leader of the kind I think most Americans want in government. And so, in the post-debate analysis, he got a few minutes, which he was clearly grateful for. Matthews said, in introducing Santorum: "I think you're very honest. I don't think you play any games."

Making the case for himself in the presidential race, Santorum said: "I've gotten things done, I've been willing to make the compromises necessary, but never compromises on principle."

When people talk about wanting Washington to work, I think this is what they mean. They want people there who know who they are, and are willing to work with leaders of different points of view to move the bar. That's not what President Obama did when he forced through his radical and unwieldy health care plan. It is what Rick Santorum and others did when Santorum worked with Ted Kennedy and then-president Clinton to pass welfare reform (since rolled back by President Obama).

There is, of course, a certain liberation that comes from dismal poll numbers that lead people to underestimate your campaign. But this is who Santorum is. Anyone who, like Matthews, has watched him over the years knows that.

And it's attractive. Even to an MSNBC host who frequently disagrees with him. Even in a climate where 54 percent polled want every member of Congress voted out of office.

"Transparency" has been a buzzword in Washington for a while now. Anyone for a revival of "authenticity"? Not putting on a mask, just being who you are, unapologetic except where an apology is absolutely called for. Someday historians may trace its origins back to a little Reagan Library magnetism.

LETTERS to the Editor

License to steal

I spoke with a state representative from Orange County today, who expressed concern regarding the cost recovery charges Progress Energy and Florida Light and Power are charging customers to build antiquated nuclear power plants in Florida. Both companies are privately owned and operated with stockholders and enjoy a monopoly to provide power to their customers.

To date, Progress Energy has collected more than $487 million from customers and hasn't lifted a shovel full of dirt to show for it. I was interviewed by the ABC-TV affiliate in Orlando and asked for my comments regarding this egregious situation, and I had plenty to say.

In 2006, the state legislature passed the energy bill that designated numerous tax credits to those of us (who) chose to replace our appliances with "energy efficient" ones. As it turned out, those wonderful tax incentives and rebates were never funded, but the law was adopted with a provision the power companies could charge their customers for their behemoth antiquated power plants, with no accountability to ratepayers! Essentially, the state legislature gave the power companies a license to steal. And they are doing this with reckless abandon.

Progress Energy sells its power beyond our state's borders, and we're paying for their make-believe construction costs. In fact, if you look at your bill, you can't determine what you are paying each month for this never-to-be-built power plant!

Our legislature has run amuck. The Florida Public Service Commission has heard testimony from the power companies, and they have sold them a pig in a poke. They will never build a power plant in the design of Three Mile Island or Fukushima. It is old, antiquated technology, but they are getting away with charging us enormous amounts on our electric bills for something that will never be built!

The latest technology for nuclear energy is light years ahead of what they are charging us for. It is energy efficient, environmentally friendly and cost efficient. Stop the madness and spread the word ... call your state representative and state senator now. Just look them up in your telephone book.

Brandon Wright is wheeled to a news conference Thursday by his father, Craig Andrus, at Intermountain Medical Center in Salt Lake City, Utah. Wright, a 21-year-old man who was pulled from beneath a burning car by bystanders, says he is grateful to be alive and calls those who saved him "heroes."

Postal Service proposes cuts

WASHINGTON — The financially troubled Postal Service said Thursday it may close more than 250 mail processing facilities across the country and plans to reduce service standards for first-class mail in an effort to cut costs.

The steps are part of a broad effort to cut costs for the agency that lost $8.5 billion last year and is facing ever more red ink this year as the Internet siphons off the lucrative first-class mail and the stagnant economy holds down the growth of advertising mail. Over the last five years, mail volume has declined by more than 43 billion items.

"We are radically realigning the way we process and deliver the mail," said Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe. "With the dramatic decline in mail volume and the resulting excess capacity, maintaining a vast national infrastructure is no longer realistic."

Postal officials said 252 mail processing facilities across the country will be reviewed over the next three months for possible closing. Currently there are 487 such offices. That's in addition to about 3,700 local post offices also being reviewed for closure. Closing the mail-processing facilities could affect 35,000 workers.

Netflix price hike yields backlash

SAN FRANCISCO — Netflix's decision to raise prices by as much as 60 percent is turning into a horror show.

The customer backlash against the higher rates, kicking in this month, has been much harsher than Netflix Inc. anticipated.

That prompted management to predict Thursday that the company — the largest U.S. video subscription service — will end September with 600,000 fewer U.S. customers than it had in June.

Its shares plunged $39.46, or about 19 percent, to close at $169.25 on Thursday.

FDA slams corn syrup rebranding

LOS ANGELES — The Food and Drug Administration has cautioned the corn industry over using of the term "corn sugar" to describe high fructose corn syrup before the new name has received approval.

The Corn Refiners Association is seeking permission to use "corn sugar" as an alternative name for high fructose corn syrup.

In a letter, FDA labeling director Barbara Schneeman wrote to the Corn Refiners Association saying she was concerned with two of the group's websites, both of which use the terms high fructose corn syrup and "corn sugar" interchangeably.

The move comes after the processed syrup courted controversy for its role in America's obesity crisis and diabetes epidemic.

USB says rogue trader caused $2B loss

Swiss bank might post quarterly decline as a result; 31-year-old arrested, charged

Associated Press

LONDON — One man armed with only a computer terminal humbled a venerable banking institution yet again. This time it was Swiss powerhouse UBS, which said Thursday that it had lost roughly $2 billion because of a renegade trader.

The arrest of 31-year-old equities trader Kweku Adoboli in London is one more headache for troubled international banks, and fresh proof that they remain vulnerable to untracked trading that can produce mind-boggling losses.

Adoboli would join a rogue's gallery that includes Jerome Kerviel, who gambled away $6.7 billion at a French bank until he was caught three years ago, and Nick Leeson, who made so many unauthorized trades that it caused the collapse of a British bank in 1995.

The scale of those frauds rocked world finance. Banks tightened oversight rules to make sure such large sums could not be traded under the radar. But the safeguards, designed to protect the public and shareholders alike, seem to have failed.

UBS discovered irregularities in its trading records Wednesday night, and Adoboli was arrested early Thursday. Swiss banking regulators began looking into the scandal, which sent the bank's stock sharply lower.

"From the scale of this case, you can be sure that it's the biggest we've ever seen for a Swiss bank," Tobias Lux, a spokesman for Swiss regulators, told The Associated Press.

Analysts said the bank's image would be badly hurt. UBS was deemed to have recovered from the lending crisis that hammered banks in 2008 and to have improved its management of risk, said Fionna

Swaffield, a bank analyst at RBC Capital Markets.

"This obviously brings this very much into question," she said.

Details about the alleged fraud were scarce. In a terse statement shortly before markets opened, UBS informed investors that a large loss due to "unauthorized trading" had been discovered.

The bank estimated the loss at $2 billion, big enough that the bank said it might have to report a quarterly loss.

In a letter to employees, the bank said it regretted that the incident came at a difficult time: "While the news is distressing, it will not change the fundamental strength of our firm."

Adoboli was being held by London police. There was no word on whether he had retained a lawyer.

According to his profile on LinkedIn, a social networking site for professionals, Adoboli served on an equities desk at UBS called Delta One and worked with exchange-traded funds, which track different types of stocks or commodities, like gold. It is the same type of work Kerviel did for his bank.

UBS added extra security at its offices in London's financial district, and reporters were told that no additional information would be provided and were asked to leave.

Philip Octave, Adoboli's former landlord at an expensive loft near the financial district, described him as articulate and well-dressed, and said he did not cause substantial problems.

"He was very nice, very polite," Octave said.

He said Adoboli was untidy and had fallen behind on the rent on two occasions but paid up after some prodding. He said there were no problems with Adoboli's references.

Medal of Honor

Marine saved 36 lives in Afghanistan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama on Thursday bestowed the nation's highest military honor on Dakota Meyer, a young and humble Marine who defied orders and barreled straight into a ferocious "killing zone" in Afghanistan to save 36 lives at extraordinary risk to himself.

"You did your duty, above and beyond," Obama told Meyer after reciting his dramatic story.

Though the corporal and a fellow Marine were going against orders — commanders considered their effort too dangerous — they were doing what they thought was right, Obama said.

The president placed the Medal of Honor ribbon around Meyer's neck, patted his back and shook his hand as the audience in the White House East Room applauded.

At age 21, Meyer charged through heavy insurgent gunfire on five death-defying trips in an armored Humvee to save 13 Marines and Army soldiers and an additional 23 Afghan troops pinned down by withering enemy fire.

Meyer killed at least eight insurgents despite suffering a shrapnel wound in his arm as he manned the gun turret of the Humvee and provided covering fire for the soldiers, according to the military.

He had been supporting a patrol on Sept. 8, 2009, into a village in the Ganjal Valley on the day of the ambush.

Meyer and the other Americans had gone to the area to train Afghan military members when, suddenly, the village lights went out and gunfire erupted.

About 50 Taliban insurgents on mountainsides and in the village ambushed the patrol.

As the forward team called for air support that wasn't coming, Meyer, a corporal at the time, begged his command to let him head into the incoming fire to help

Associated Press

President Barack Obama awards the Medal of Honor on Thursday to former Marine Corps Cpl. Dakota Meyers, 23, from Greensburg, Ky., during a ceremony in the East Room of the White House in Washington. Meyer was in Afghanistan's Kunar province in September 2009 when he repeatedly ran through enemy fire to recover the bodies of fellow American troops. He is the first living Marine to be awarded the Medal of Honor for actions in Iraq or Afghanistan.

Four times he was denied his request before Meyer and another Marine, Staff Sgt. Juan Rodriguez-Chavez, jumped into the Humvee and headed into the fray. For his valor, Rodriguez-Chavez, a 34-year-old who hailed originally from Acuna, Mexico, would be awarded the Navy Cross.

"They told him he couldn't go in," said Dwight Meyer, Dakota Meyer's 81-year-old grandfather, a former Marine who served in the 1950s. "He told them, 'The hell I'm not,' and he went in. It's a one-in-a-million thing" that he survived.

Meyer and Rodriguez-Chavez began evacuating wounded Marines and American and Afghan soldiers to a safe point. Meyer made five trips into the kill zone, each time searching for the forward patrol with his Marine friends — including 1st Lt. Michael Johnson — whom Meyer had heard yelling on the radio for air support.

With Meyer and Rodriguez-Chavez ready to test fate a fifth time, a UH-60 helicopter arrived at last to provide overhead support. Troops aboard the chopper told Meyer they had spotted what appeared to be four bodies. Meyer knew those were his friends and he had to bring them out.

"Dakota, I know you've grappled with the grief of that day, that you said your efforts were somehow a failure because your teammates didn't come home," the president said. "But as your commander in chief and on behalf of everyone here today and all Americans, I want you to know it's quite the opposite."

Libya's new leaders attempt state-building from scratch

Associated Press

TRIPOLI, Libya — In the turmoil since Moammar Gadhafi's fall, Fathi Sherif got a new job: The gas station owner and his friends set up their own prison, jailing anyone they suspect of acting against the uprising.

In a windowless office clouded with cigarette smoke on a recent day, two of Sherif's men questioned a middle-aged woman they accused of arming civilians to kill rebels during Gadhafi's last months in power.

"We know you're lying! We know you killed people!" one man yelled when the woman, Zahra Mamara, said she had only recruited women to work at checkpoints.

Hours earlier, they had snatched Mamara from her home in Tripoli's Abu Salim neighborhood and taken her to the makeshift jail in a drab, gray building.

Her interrogators took no notes, carried no badges and worked under orders from no one.

"We have no titles," said Sherif, who runs the prison at a regime-era security agency. "We are all revolutionaries."

The United States and most world powers have recognized the National Transitional Council — the leadership body of the rebels who swept Gadhafi out of power three weeks ago — as Libya's legitimate ruler.

But that doesn't mean it has much authority, even over the capital, Tripoli, not to mention the rest of this vast desert nation.

Right now, despite initial steps being taken by the NTC, government remains largely atomized.

In Tripoli, an array of armed groups and local councils make their own rules neighborhood by neighborhood, carry out their own arrests, hold their own prisoners and care only to varying degrees about the personalities who make up the national council.

Some police have returned to the capital's streets, primarily to direct traffic.

Crime has not been a problem since the fall of Tripoli, which has not experienced a wave of looting such as the one that swept Baghdad after its fall.

Palestine presses U.N. bid

Associated Press

RAMALLAH, West Bank — In a direct challenge to the United States, the Palestinians said Thursday they will ask the Security Council next week to accept them as a full member of the United Nations, even though Washington has promised to veto the measure.

The Palestinian assertion came as a senior U.S. diplomatic team was in the region trying to avert an embarrassing showdown and relaunch peace talks. By pushing forward, the Palestinians risk putting President Barack Obama in the uneasy position of having to veto a measure supported by the vast majority of the international community.

Foreign Minister Riad Malki told foreign journalists the Palestinians were not looking for a fight. But he said the American stance puts the U.S. in a "confrontational position" with the rest of the world, and suggested American credibility could be at stake.

"I don't know what it means to the standing of the U.S. in the United Nations and among the countries of the world," he said.

Even so, the Palestinians left the door open for compromise.

Malki said the Palestinians were still ready to listen to suggestions from American envoys. And in New York, his U.N. ambassador, Riyad Mansour, said a final decision on whether to pursue recognition in the Security Council, or seek a lesser, symbolic status in the General Assembly had not yet been made.

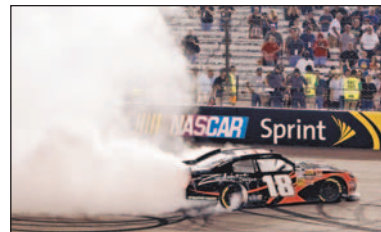

"The final decision will be taken in the next few days as to which path we will follow," Mansour said.

Asked about his boss's comments in Ramallah, he replied: "There are many words from many places, but what I'm telling you is that we are deliberating all these details and it is not yet finalized."

Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas was to give a speech Friday in Ramallah, and there was speculation he might address the issue then. In Washington, White House spokesman Jay Carney emphasized that negotiation with Israel was the only viable path to Palestinian statehood.

"The Palestinians will not and cannot achieve statehood through a declaration at the United Nations. It is a distraction, and in fact, it's counterproductive," he said, adding that "the only way to resolve the issues between the Palestinians and the Israelis, and to ultimately create a Palestinian state, is through direct negotiations."

Rays send message: NEVER SAY DIE

*Tampa Bay
crushes Boston;
moves to within 3*

Associated Press

BOSTON — Boston shortstop Marco Scutaro had to dodge a broken bat and wound up letting the go-ahead single through his legs on Thursday night as the Tampa Bay Rays beat the Red Sox 9-2 and cut their deficit in the AL wild-card race to three games. The Red Sox dropped to 3-11 in September to fall from first place in the division to 4½ games behind the New York Yankees and into a race with the Rays for the wild-card. Boston and Tampa Bay play three more times at Fenway Park this weekend.

B.J. Upton broke a scoreless tie in the third inning with his bat-aided RBI single, and Evan Longoria followed with a three-run homer. Casey Kotchman added a two-run shot in the sixth to make it 6-1, and in the seventh Upton hit a two-run homer and Kotchman added an RBI single.

Jeremy Hellickson (13-10) allowed one run on three hits and four walks, striking out four in 5 2-3 innings. Kyle Weiland (0-2) pitched three-plus innings, giving up four runs on three hits and two walks.

Weiland retired the first seven batters he faced before John Jaso doubled and, one out later, Desmond Jennings walked. Upton sent a grounder toward short, with the barrel of his bat arriving at about the same time as the ball.

Scutaro hopped out of the way as the bat went under his left foot and the ball went between his legs, allowing Jaso to score. Longoria followed with his 27th homer of the season, into the Red

Lady Pirates sweep Leopards

Taylor Provost

CRYSTAL RIVER - The Crystal River Lady Pirates volleyball team took down the Hernando Leopards in a three-game shutout Thursday, cheered on by an exuberant home crowd.

"We switched up the line-up a little and realized what we can do when everybody's playing consistently and working hard," Crystal River head coach Mike Ridley said.

The Lady Pirates (4-3, 2-2 district) looked fully recovered both offensively and defensively from their Tuesday loss to Nature Coast on the road. Three players had 15 digs or more, while captains Megan Unverdorben and Ashley Allen led the team in kills and aces.

Game 1 saw a lot of serving changes, with both teams committing multiple serving errors before the Lady Pirates pulled ahead and never looked back, defeating the Lady Leopards 25-16.

Crystal River again beat Hernando handily in Game 3, but not before a head-to-head Game 2 matchup that had the crowd growing quiet until the Pirate offense changed gears, blocking, digging and spiking as if determined to go home early.

"I was really pleased with defense, and some of our hitters came alive too," said Ridley, noting that Unverdorben, senior Olivia Hurn and junior Cassidy Newcomer all had great runs in the serving position.

By Game 3, the Lady Pirates had dismantled the Leopard offense, as nearly every Hernando attack either hit the net or flew past the boundary. A 25-14 blowout sent the away team back to the bus empty-handed.

"(The girls) like when we play at home, in front of the home fans. They really wanted to show what they could do," Ridley said. "(Hernando) is a really good team, and they're gonna be a big competitor for us this season."

Game of the Week: BELLEVIEW AT CITRUS

DAVE SIGLER/Chronicle

The 'Canes are hoping that Homecoming is just what the doctor ordered to jump-start their season.

Home, sweet home

Citrus looks for 1st win of season on Homecoming

SEAN ARNOLD
Chronicle correspondent

It will be the culmination of a weeklong birthday bash at Citrus High Stadium. Tonight's Homecoming game against Belleview arrives as the school is commemorating its 100th anniversary.

Centennial aside, the Hurricanes' (0-2) football team is just relieved to be home. They are coming off a pair of painful road losses in which they surrendered leads and totaled 11 turnovers.

"We only have four home games this year," Citrus Coach Rayburn Greene said. "So every one of them are important. It's nice to not have to do another road trip. It's nice to be home."

"We expect to come out and represent our school and our community well, especially with it being homecoming and the anniversary," he added. "But we have to understand that we've got a football team coming that is very capable of beating us. Our focus needs to be on the game."

Last week's 44-28 loss to West Port found the 'Canes gaining a 20-17 third quarter lead before yielding 27 unanswered points.

It's a pair of schools looking for their first win, but don't let that fool you. Their losses don't compare. The Citrus Hurricanes have enjoyed leads in both of their games, and were undermined by a torrent of turnovers late in last week's 44-28 road defeat to West Port. Conversely, the Belleview Rattlers have yet to be competitive. It's both Homecoming and a centennial celebration this week for Citrus, so the 'Canes will be looking to match the week's festivities with a memorable performance on the field tonight.

The Lecanto Panthers hope last week's inspired second half against The Villages will provide leverage for a more complete effort tonight. Lecanto scored 22 unanswered points after falling behind 27-0 in the second quarter. The Panthers are set to pounce on a Central team reeling from a 52-0 rout to Wildwood. The Bears also needed the help of a pair of block punts to find the scoreboard in their 33-14 loss at Crystal River in their season-opener.

Crystal River and Seven Rivers Christian are off this week.

Citrus' early-season struggles with turnovers leave the 'Canes with a lot of regret, according to Greene.

"I'm always going to give credit to the winning team," he said. "A win is a win. But when you have 11 turnovers in two games then you're not really going to beat anybody. We felt

Rough day on links for Seven Rivers

MIKE MAKSYMICZ

LECANTO - The Seven Rivers Christian Warriors took on the South Sumter Raiders on Thursday in what proved to be a very interesting golf match. Although their start was strong, the Warriors slipped into a lull midway through and were not able to dig out of it for the victory.

Seven Rivers came out on the short end losing 202-218 to South Sumter. The conditions were very good. The greens were fast and most of the Seven Rivers golfers felt the course was in excellent shape. But it was putting that proved to be the big crisis for the Warriors.

Seven Rivers senior Timothy James showed great poise on the second hole as his approach shot landed two feet from the cup. He also shined on the seventh hole where he landed a very long approach shot well on the green. Peters also said "it was his best game to date. I was striking the ball very well, but just could not motivate my putting game." Peters shot a 44 for the nine holes.

"The course was great and the first five holes I was in a groove but my short game was my downfall," Warriors sophomore Adam Gage said. He also admitted his driving was not a success to him. The sixth hole was not a confident hole for him and some of his problems began. Gage finished with a 55 for his round.

Austin Johnson said he had the best game of the year at this point. Johnson (54) did say that most of his drives were straight and his putting was not the best, but was decent.

Lecanto, Citrus enjoy day at country club

JOE KORNECKI

INVERNESS — It was a great day to be under the late summer sun Thursday afternoon at Lakeside Golf & Country Club for these respective Citrus County girls' golf teams. The best perspective to put on the match is not only did both teams compete, but they had fun. Also, both head coaches the Lecanto Panthers Doug Warren and Citrus Hurricanes Dave Hamilton have respect for one another, so it made the match even more interesting.

The Lecanto Panthers (2-0) defeated the Citrus Hurricanes (0-2) 219-259 in the match. The Panthers were led by Jennifer Hafner who finished with a 48 to capture low medalist honors. Her sister Kimberly Hafner (54) finished with the second best score of the match. Chynna Liu and Keriah Tettenburn finished third and fourth for the Panthers.

The 'Canes were led by Victoria "Tiny" Pfeiffer and Naomi DeJesus. Pfeiffer ended the day with a 55 and DeJesus a 66 for the nine-hole round. Pfeiffer still would like to see her putting improve as the season goes along. "I can do better on putting," she said. Caitlin "CJ" Johnson and Kayla Woodward rounded out the top four Hurricanes.

Lecanto will host Crystal River at home on Tuesday, and Citrus will host The Villages next week on Thursday.

Everything was Roses in BMW's first round

Associated Press

Justin Rose, of England, watches his tee shot on the 10th hole green during the first round at the BMW Championship golf tournament on Thursday.

LEMONT, Ill. — Feeling as though he had nothing to lose, Justin Rose put himself in position for a big gain with his best round of the year Thursday in the BMW championship.

Rose made birdie on half of his holes at Cog Hill, a tough course that played even longer in chilly conditions, giving him an 8-under 63 and a two-shot lead over Webb Simpson and Mark Wilson.

"Didn't expect that going out there today," Rose said. "I looked to the weather, looked at the temperature, and I thought today was going to be a day to hang in there. Little did I know I was about to play so well — certainly my best round of the year by a long, long way. And could have been top five, top 10 rounds I've ever played for sure."

There were other reasons he didn't see it coming.

Since a solid spring through the Masters, the 31-year-old player from England lost his way and went 10 straight tournaments without a top-10 finish. He is No. 34 in the FedEx Cup, and because only the top 30 advance to the Tour Championship and a shot at the $10 million bonus, Rose figured he might as well give it his best shot.

It was better than he imagined. He didn't miss a single fairway and only twice had to scramble for par.

One round made his prospects for the FedEx Cup brighter considerably, although plenty of other players took advantage of relatively soft greens that made up for the swirling breeze and temperatures that eventually climbed into the 60s.

Simpson remained hot despite the weather.

He won for the first time on the PGA Tour a month ago at Greensboro, then won again two weeks later in the Deutsche Bank Championship to move to the top of the FedEx Cup and assure himself one of the coveted top five positions at East Lake. Another week, another

Citrus County EVENTS

SEPTEMBER

Catch some Rays at baseball game

Citrus County Senior Foundation, sponsored by the Citrus County Chronicle, is offering a trip to watch the Tampa Bay Rays play the New York Yankees on Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Tickets are $40 per person, which includes admission to the game and round-trip motor coach transportation from Lecanto to Tropicana Field in St. Petersburg. Limited seating is still available.

For more information or to purchase tickets, call (352) 527-5975. All proceeds go toward helping seniors in Citrus County.

Equestrian team forming

Showtime Stables has started an IEA middle school and high school equestrian team in Citrus County. The Interscholastic Equestrian Association has created an opportunity for young equestrian athletes; there are four levels of hunt seat riding, beginner through medal/maclay, available to middle and high school students.

Riders will compete against other teams in hunter jumper meets in the region three to five times throughout the year in hopes of earning a spot at the Zone Four finals competition in April. The top four scoring teams at zones then go to national finals. The competitions allow riders to gain recognition from college scouts, as well as having the opportunity to earn scholarships toward college education.

For information, call Bridget Imperato at (352) 598-7469.

Players sought for softball

Calling all Co-Ed and Men's League softball players! The city of Inverness' Parks & Recreation Department seeks those interested in playing adult softball. The Whispering Pines Park leagues will be scheduled to begin play in September.

An organizational meeting will be scheduled at the park administration office in the near future. If you are interested in having a team, we will contact you to advise of the meeting date. Managers and/or players should call the park office at (352) 726-3913 or email parks@inverness-fl.gov to have your name added to the contact list.

ONGOING

Learn to stretch with Parks & Rec

Citrus County Parks & Recreation offers a new low-impact stretching class. This ongoing class will be from 10 to 11 a.m. at Citrus Springs Community Center. Cost is $5 per class.

The low-impact class is easy, fun with good benefits. Stretching helps to make you more flexible, and regular stretching will help mobility and balance. This helps to slow down the onset of common degenerative conditions, such as osteoarthritis. Stretching increases physical and mental relaxation and reduces the risk of joint sprain, muscle strain or back problems. Low-impact exercises can improve health and fitness without harming weight-bearing joints. Research suggests that moderate-intensity, low-impact activity is just as effective as high-impact activity in lowering the risk of heart disease.

For more information, visit www.citruscountyparks.com and click on instructional classes, or call (352) 465-7007.

Swim instructor classes to begin

Do you like kids? Do you like to swim? Earn money next year doing both.

Instructor classes will be offered at Whispering Pines Park pool from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, Oct. 11 through Oct. 29.

The course is $150, plus $59 for books and Red Cross fees. A pre-test must be passed by all participants to take the course: 25 yards of backstroke, breaststroke, free style and sidestroke; 15 yards of butterfly also. These strokes are to be performed at the skill level 4, according to American Red Cross standards.

Preregistration and payment are required. Call instructor Dave Christensen at (352) 603-0584 or Whispering Pines Administration at (352) 726-3913.

Jazzercise at community center

Citrus County Parks & Recreation will offer Jazzercise at West Citrus Community Center. The 60-minute class includes a warm-up, high-energy aerobic routines, muscle toning and cool-down stretch segment.

One-hour classes are offered at 5:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. Unlimited monthly ticket is $25.

Call (352) 465-7007 or visit www.citruscountyparks.com.

Club offers Zumba lessons

Yankeetown/Inglis Woman's Club is offering Zumba classes in air-conditioned comfort from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. Everyone is welcome. For information, call (352) 447-2057.

Flotilla invites new members

Put your time and talents to good use while making friends and providing a valuable service to the community.

Flotilla 15-01 of Crystal River invites everyone to become a member of the unit of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary. Flotilla 15-01 is comprised of men and women from all walks of life and all age groups. Meetings are at 6:30 p.m. the first Monday of each month at 148 N.E. Fifth St. in Crystal River.

In addition to offering safe boating classes, providing safety patrols and radio communication on the Crystal River and the Gulf, Flotilla 15-01 members participate in numerous festivals, boat shows, parades — both on the street and in the water. Members work hand in hand with the U.S. Coast Guard, as well as the other flotillas in the area.

For information, call Vince Maida at (917) 597-6961.

Dragon boat team practice

Nature Coast Dragon Boat Racing Team practices each Wednesday at 7:30 a.m. at Riverside Resort in Homosassa.

The boat will leave promptly at 8. Practice will be between 60 and 90 minutes. Call Ed at (352) 364-1882 with any questions or for directions.

Paddlesports America program

Canoeists and kayakers are boaters, too, so now there is a program available to address the unique needs of this audience. Homosassa Flotilla 15-4 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary offers Paddlesports America, a safety program designed to attract novice paddle enthusiasts.

The four-hour program presents five chapters of safety information. Topics include:

- Know Your Paddlecraft.
- Before You Get Under Way.

Operating Your Boat Safely.

■ The Legal Requirements of Boating.

■ Boating Emergencies: What to Do.

The program will be from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 8, at West Citrus Community Center, 8940 W. Veterans Drive, Homosassa. A fee of $20 for materials will be charged. For more information, call Elaine Miranda at (352) 564-2521, or Al Hepner at (352) 795-9875.

Join the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets Corps

The Manatee Division of the U.S. Naval Sea Cadets Corps drills at Coast Guard Station Yankeetown the second week-end of each month. The Sea Cadets are for youths ages 13 through 17. We also have a Navy League Cadet unit for youths ages 10 through 13.

We provide a fun and challenging environment that is free of drugs, alcohol, tobacco and gangs. Also, develop leadership abilities and broaden Cadets' horizons using hands-on and self-paced training. They are guided to become mature young adults whether they decide to join the military or not.

Visit us at our drill and online at www.manateediv.org. Contact Commanding Officer LTJG Todd Dunn at (352) 212-5473 or tdunn@manateediv.org.

Head outdoors with Ramblers

Nature Coast Ramblers is an outdoor activity club of people of all ages who enjoy self-paced hiking or walking, biking and kayaking activities in the Citrus County area. The club is associated with the American Volkssport Association (AVA), a national walking association.

Walking or hiking, biking or kayaking with the club promotes fitness. Our goal is to provide events that can challenge participants to keep active and are fun. Bicycle outings are generally the second Friday each month; hiking or walking is generally the third Saturday of each month; kayaking is usually the last Tuesday of each month.

Nature Coast Ramblers also maintains three designated year-round 10K trails or walking routes, which can be walked for AVA credit in the two state parks in Citrus County.

Visit the website at www.naturecoastramblers.org or call Karl at (352) 344-1531.

Pine Ridge Fishing Club gathers

Pine Ridge Fishing Club meets at 7 p.m. the second Tuesday each month at 5690 W. Pine Ridge Blvd. All fishermen and boaters are welcome.

EMS slates Robby Brown tourney

From 2006 until his death from cancer Oct. 10, 2009, Robby Brown was administrative chief with Nature Coast EMS, and a dedicated emergency medicine education advocate. The second annual Robby Brown Memorial Golf Tournament, presented by Nature Coast EMS and sponsored by the Citrus County Chronicle, is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 15, at Twisted Oaks Golf Club.

The cost is $50 per player and $175 per foursome for the best ball scramble tourney. Cost includes green fees, cart, lunch and gifts. Hole sponsorships are $100 and the tournament is limited to 144 players. Proper dress is required.

Phillies 3, Marlins 1, (1) Phillies 2, Marlins 1 (2)

PHILADELPHIA — Logan Morrison is doing his best to work through a difficult situation.

Shortly after it was learned he filed a grievance against his own team, Morrison hit his 20th homer of the season in the Florida Marlins' 3-1 loss to the Philadelphia Phillies in the opener of a day-night doubleheader Thursday.

Things didn't get better for the Marlins in the nightcap, even though Jose Lopez spoiled Cliff Lee's shutout bid when he hit a tying home run on an 0-2 pitch in the ninth.

Ryan Howard hit an RBI double in the 10th inning soon after Lee fell one strike short of his seventh shutout, and the Phillies beat Florida 2-1 to complete the sweep.

"We keep getting one run a game," Marlins manager Jack McKeon said. "We've got to up our quota a little bit."

Morrison was sent to the minors on Aug. 13, several hours after he skipped a team meet-and-greet with season-ticket holders. Morrison was batting just .249 at the time, but he was second on the team with 17 homers and third with 60 RBIs. He filed the grievance because he believes it was a wrongful demotion.

"I want to put it behind me and it's not about money," Morrison said. "I want to stand for what's right. The players' association agreed I should apply for a grievance. It's not an easy decision or a decision I took lightly. It's about protecting rights. Guys who have been here for a long time want to make sure their rights won't be stepped on."

Morrison filed the grievance Aug. 25, two days after he was recalled from Triple-A New Orleans. The team had no comment.

"There's no strain on me," Morrison said. "I just want to keep playing hard." The Phillies reduced their magic number for clinching a fifth straight NL East title to two.

Lee struck out 12 and allowed five hits in nine innings, failing to earn his 17th win.

John Mayberry Jr. gave the Phillies a 1-0 lead when he lined a homer just inside the left-field foul pole in the sixth. It seemed that would be enough for Lee, who now has fallen one out shy of a shutout in two of his last four starts.

Michael Schwimer (1-0) tossed a scoreless 10th for his first career win.

Michael Martinez walked to lead off the 10th against Burke Badenhop (2-2). Howard then lined a 3-1 pitch deep to left-center and the speedy Martinez scored easily.

In the opener, Kyle Kendrick threw five sharp innings for the Phillies.

Morrison provided all the offense the Marlins could muster against Kendrick (8-6) and four relievers. Kendrick didn't allow a hit until Morrison homered to lead off the fifth. He gave up one run and one hit, striking out six.

Lee, the 2008 AL Cy Young Award winner, lowered his ERA to 2.38. His latest gem came a day after Roy Halladay beat Houston 1-0. Halladay, the reigning NL Cy Young Award winner, Lee and the Dodgers' Clayton Kershaw are the top three candidates for the award this season.

Lee has twice been the NL Pitcher of the Month this year. He was 5-0 with a 0.21 ERA in June and 5-0 with a 0.45 ERA in August.

The major league-leading Phillies (97-51) moved within five wins of setting a single-season franchise record.

Alex Sanabia allowed one run and six hits in six innings in Game 2. Anibal Sanchez (8-8) pitched six strong innings, but was the hard-luck loser in the opener. He gave up two runs and four hits, striking out seven.

"Having success against a team like that helps your confidence," Sanabia said.

Kendrick's reward for a strong start could be meaningful work as a reliever in the postseason. With four aces and Vance Worley ahead of him on the depth chart, Kendrick will be back in the bullpen in October.

"Whatever they need me to do," Kendrick said. "Obviously with the stars we have here, hopefully they go deep in the playoffs."

But if the Phillies need a guy to get a tough right-handed hitter out late in a game, Kendrick is working his way into the mix.

"I could consider him," manager Charlie Manuel said.

Michael Stutes tossed two scoreless innings, Antonio Bastardo and Brad Lidge worked the eighth, and Ryan Madson finished for his 31st save in 33 chances.

Madson pitched out of a second- and third, one-out jam by striking out Emilio Bonifacio and getting Omar Infante to foul out.

LSU topples Mississippi State

Associated Press

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Jarrett Lee completed 21 of 27 passes for 213 yards and a touchdown and No. 3 LSU defeated No. 25 Mississippi State 19-6 on Thursday night. Lee was the unexpected star, firing conservative, but nearly perfect passes all over the field. His 19-yard touchdown pass to Rueben Randle with 11:56 left in the fourth quarter gave LSU a 16-6 lead. His only mistake was an interception minutes later, but as it had all game, LSU's defense stuffed Mississippi State with little trouble. LSU (3-0, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) had 14 tackles for a loss and held the Bulldogs (1-2, 0-2) to 193 total yards and two field goals. Despite Mississippi State's cowbells providing an ever-present backdrop, LSU won its 12th straight game in the series dating to 1999. Lee's success is quickly making LSU fans forget about expected starter Jordan Jefferson, who has been suspended all season after being arrested for his alleged role in a bar fight in August. Lee wasn't spectacular, but he didn't have to be, calmly managing the game and hitting open receivers downfield. LSU's Spencer Ware rushed for 107 yards on 22 carries. LSU was its own worst enemy much of the game before its late-game breakout. In a particularly brutal stretch in the third quarter, the Tigers committed five penalties in less than nine minutes, losing 67 yards in the process. Lee's interception gave Mississippi State newfound life after falling behind 16-6. But LSU's defense was good enough to make up for all those transgressions, constantly putting pressure on Mississippi State quarterback Chris Relf and disrupting the Bulldogs' vaunted running game.

like we could have won those games if we had better ball security. "They were difficult losses." Besides the turnovers, Greene is also concerned with his squad's porous run defense against the Wolf Pack, which has troubling implications for tonight. Even though the Rattlers (0-2) have been outscored 69-7 in two contests, their size and ground attack present potential matchup disadvantages for Citrus. "West Port pushed us around a lot up front," Greene said. "They had a big night running between the tackles, so I'm not really confident right now that we'll be able to slow down Bellevue's run game at this point. They're very big up front, and sophomore running back Craig Richie looks good on film. "I'm concerned with anybody that's big up front and can run the football," he added. "I think our kids have a lot to prove in that area until they can show me they can do it in a big game." Greene is curious to see how his team will address its challenges. "The kids are always going to work hard," he said. "They came back and worked very hard in practice. We've been trying to develop some poise and instill some composure, but I don't know how they're going to respond Friday night." Citrus will be looking to other course, and there he is again. "Luckily, I was able to keep the momentum in the good stretch I had in Boston going into today," Simpson said. "We got off to a really good start and made a few really good saves there in the middle of the round and finished with a couple birdies coming in. It was a good day for the tough course and tough conditions we were facing." Simpson made it sound simple, which is how golf can feel when a player is winning. It wasn't that way for everyone. Dustin Johnson, the defending champion at Cog Hill, sputtered at the start and then stumbled at the turn, making five bogeys for a 40 on his back nine for a 76. Jason Day had a 77, while Bubba Watson was wild off the tee and didn't make a single birdie in his round of 78. Phil Mickelson nearly joined them. He took double bogey on the par-3 second hole when his flop shot from the other side of the green only went one-third of the way toward the hole and stayed in the collar of the rough. Another towering flop shot wound up 12 feet by the hole. Lefty was 4 over through five holes, but ran off four birdies and salvaged a 72. The measure of Rose's good round was that his 63 was nearly nine shots better than the average score in the opening round, and only 16 other players managed to break 70. K.J. Choi opened with a 67, while the group at 68 featured Jim Furyk and Camilo Villegas, both of whom need a big week to advance to the Tour Championship. Villegas narrowly got into the FedEx Cup playoffs, starting at No. 109, and two touchdowns on just 14 carries against the Wolf Pack, while Presnick added 37 rushing yards and a score. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. and now has the Tour Championship in his sights. "Who cares where you are right now," Villegas said. "It's all about just playing good golf from here the next three days and hopefully advancing." Rose said he cleaned up his swing with coach Sean Foley during a practice session Tuesday, making sure the club was not laid off at the top of his swing. He found a simple swing though, stuck with it, and watched it pay off in a big way. As for his position in the FedEx Cup? Rose didn't even bother to do the math. "I've got nothing to lose this week," he said. "That's my strategy. That's my attitude. Right now, I'm not going to Atlanta. I've got everything to gain this week. That's really the way I'm seeing it. Guys who are 26, 27, 28, 29, who have played well all year, they might be pretty tense this week because they feel they deserve to be in Atlanta."

Wide open Chase

Associated Press

Kyle Busch does a burnout Sept. 9 as he celebrates winning the NASCAR Nationwide auto race at Richmond International Raceway in Richmond, Va. This year's Chase field is arguably the deepest to date, and this year's championship is actually up for grabs. "It's not somebody's race," said Busch this week, "it's anybody's race."

This year's championship up for grabs

JENNA FRYER
Associated Press

CHICAGO — This could finally be the year Kyle Busch, he of all that raw talent and ability, will win NASCAR's highest honor.

Of course, everybody said the same thing in 2008, when he won eight races and opened the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship as the top seed in the 10-race series. Busch instead opened that Chase with back-to-back clunkers and never contended.

Here he is again, though, headed into Round 1 of the Chase as the top seed and the early favorite to claim the Sprint Cup title.

It's not that simple, though.

This year's Chase field is arguably the deepest to date, and this year's championship is actually up for grabs.

"It's not somebody's race," said Busch this week, "it's anybody's race."

If that wasn't already evident, it was made crystal clear last week at Richmond in the final Chase qualifying race. Busch had the strongest car until a tire problem took him out of contention. Then it became Jeff Gordon's race to lose, which he did on a late restart when Kevin Harvick seized the victory with Carl Edwards right behind him.

Harvick's win tied him with Busch for a series-best four victories, and proved that every time Busch tries to pull away from the competition, his rivals find a way to even it up.

And the most overlooked guy in this Chase? Well, that's Jimmie Johnson. The five-time defending champion, who, by the way, doesn't plan on handing his title over without a fight. Nobody has figured out how to beat Johnson since Kurt Busch and Tony Stewart took the first two Chase titles. Since then, Johnson has collected five championships, including last year when he rallied late to withstand Denny Hamlin's challenge.

Johnson has 19 Chase victories in eight appearances, and an average finish of 8.1 — much better, by a lot, than any driver. He knows how to turn it up when everything is on the line, and he shouldn't be dismissed because he's got just one victory this season.

He believes he's a contender.

"We're certainly hopeful for a sixth," he said. "We are obviously in a good spot right now. We've proven to ourselves time and time again what we are capable of and looking forward to this year's challenge."

Right there with him is Hendrick Motorsports teammate Gordon, who waged the most incredible title race to date against Johnson in 2007. Gordon was almost perfect that season, but still couldn't keep pace when Johnson switched it to a higher gear.

Gordon has been trying to add a fifth championship to his resume since collecting No. 4 in 2001, and he thinks his chances are better than they were in 2007. A three-time winner this season, he probably could have five or six wins had things gone differently at Indianapolis, Bristol and Richmond.

"I feel like we've got more momentum going into the Chase," Gordon said. "I feel like our team is really, really strong. I feel like in '07, while we gave Jimmie a great run and a great battle, I still feel like they had the momentum. And were outrunning us just by a little bit on a regular basis.

"We're competing with everybody out there right now, and lately I feel like we've been better than most on a lot of different types of race tracks."

There's also Edwards and Harvick, who at different times this season seemed to be the favorites. Harvick won three early races, then struggled through the summer and took charge late last month in a lengthy (and mandatory) Sunday meeting after an abysmal run at Bristol. He lit a fire at Richard Childress Racing, and stormed back into championship contention with the Richmond win that sent a statement to the competition.

Edwards, winner of one race and the All-Star race, also dropped off a bit as the year went on. He led the standings for 14 weeks, faded to fourth in points, but has rallied with three consecutive top-10 finishes. His contract negotiations with Roush Fenway Racing were wrapped up six weeks ago, and there are no distractions standing in his way.

His teammate, Matt Kenseth, should not be discounted. The last champion under the old points system, he's only contended for a championship once under the Chase format, in 2006 when he finished a not-so-close second to Johnson. Then came a string of lean years, but Kenseth bounced back this season with two victories.

Kenseth may not win a Chase race this year, but his style of staying steady and collecting top-10 finishes could just give him the title.

gate crasher and ex-reality star Michaela Salahi is glad that she's OK but heartbroken that she's apparently left home to be with rock band Journey's lead guitarist. Tareq Salahi had reported his wife missing Tuesday night. He told authorities in Virginia he feared she had been kidnapped.

Authorities, however, say Michaela Salahi told them she was fine and didn't want to return home.

Then celebrity website TMZ reported that a representative for Journey said she was safe and with guitarist Neal Schon.

David Silek told ABC's "Good Morning America" on Thursday that Tareq is "devastated" that his wife seems to have left him.

Brad Paisley to release first book

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country superstar Brad Paisley is set to release his first book on Nov. 1.

It's called "Diary of a Player" and shows how the guitar gods of country, blues and rock 'n' roll have shaped his life.

Paisley tells The Associated Press he can't imagine his life if he never learned to play the guitar. His grandfather gave him his first six-string at age 8.

Paisley is the reigning Country Music Association entertainer of the year. He has sold over 11 million albums and charted 20 No. 1 singles, including his most recent duet with Carrie Underwood, "Remind Me."

The book is co-written with Rolling Stone contributing editor David Wild and published by Howard Books, an imprint of Simon & Schuster.

Polanski work recognized

GENEVA — Organizers say director Roman Polanski will attend this month's Zurich Film Festival to accept the lifetime achievement award intended for him two years ago.

Festival spokesperson Claudia Wintsch confirmed Thursday he will be present at the Sept. 27 tribute ceremony but would provide no more details.

The Oscar-winning director was freed in July 2010 from house arrest when Switzerland's government refused to extradite him to the United States where he faces charges of having sex with a 13-year-old girl in 1977.

Detroit's decline inspires Flogging Molly's latest

Associated Press

DETROIT — Flogging Molly lead singer and lyricist Dave King took the saying "write what you know" to heart on his band's latest album.

"Speed of Darkness" was written primarily in Detroit, a city hit harder than most by the economic downturn of the past few years.

All seven members of the group squeezed into the basement of the home King shares with his wife and fellow band member, Bridget Regan. They fine-tuned and rehearsed the songs that ultimately would make up the record, which focuses on the recession and its harsh impact on the working class.

While not a concept album, "Speed" was clearly influenced by the band's surroundings.

"We walk around here with him every day," King said during a recent interview at the house, pointing to his panting dog, an Irish wolfhound. "And you'll walk by six, seven, eight, nine houses that are just abandoned."

One day, driving in the city, King spotted a burned-out factory on which someone had spray-painted the words: "Shut 'em down."

All of this "really started to affect" his songwriting, King said.

Regan said "the city started to become almost a muse for the album," which is the first put out on Flogging Molly's own record label, Borstal Beat.

The result was another hit record — 2008's "Float" debuted at No. 4 on the Billboard chart — and a sense of satisfaction knowing they'd successfully taken what King calls "a big step" forward.

"Speed" marks the fifth album for the genre-defying band that's perfectly at home in front of fans of any number of musical types.

Flogging Molly headlined a punk music festival in England one night two summers ago and played at a folk event in Belgium the next. The day after that they were in Germany — this time thrashing out at a heavy metal fest.

"We don't label ourselves," Regan said. "Because we can't."

Flogging Molly may be masters of eschewing simple musical classification, but they haven't been able to avoid success.

"Speed of Darkness" opened at No. 9 earlier this year; not bad for an oversized band that has never had a major-label record deal and whose members play instruments not typically associated with rock music — tin whistle, accordion, concertina and uilleann pipes.

"We were told by people in the music industry that we were nothing and would never amount to anything more than a bar band," Regan said.

"We were like, 'Screw that. We'll show them.'"

And they did.

King and Regan met in 1997 at a Los Angeles bar called Molly Malone's. After forming the band, they agreed to play Monday nights there for $40 per person and two drink tickets each. They played the bar so often and for so long — a year and a half — they decided on the name Flogging Molly for the band. During that time, they also perfected their unique sound, which infuses punk rock with Celtic instruments.

They eventually branched out to other venues and garnered a rabid following of fans who continue to come out in droves to see the band during its aggressive and wide-ranging touring schedule. They're set to play a trio of dates this weekend on the East Coast before embarking on a three-week tour of Canada. Then they're off to Europe.

"We're growing as people and maturing, and I'm sorry, but we'd be bored to tears if we kept" making the same kinds of records, Regan said. "It's not that big of a stretch what we're doing. It always seemed like a natural progression to us."

De Kooning retrospective opens at MoMA

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Six years in the making, the Willem de Kooning retrospective at the Museum of Modern Art is surely one of the not-to-be-missed shows of the fall season.

Occupying the museum's entire sixth-floor gallery space, the exhibition brings together nearly 200 paintings, drawings, prints and sculptures that illuminate de Kooning's restless journey between abstraction and representation during nearly seven decades of work.

The show, opening to the public on Sunday, begins with two charming still lifes that reflect the Dutch-born artist's strong academic training and background in commercial art, including one painting he made as a boy of 12.

From there, the clearly organized exhibition tracks his early forays into modernism, including 1920s-era canvases bearing a striking resemblance to the work of Henri Matisse and Giorgio de Chirico.

Gradually, de Kooning discovers his own distinctive style, earning a reputation by age 40 as one of his generation's artistic greats. His fame was cemented with his first solo show in 1948, comprised of a series of abstract, black-and-white compositions. Yet during that same decade, he embarked on the first of several series of paintings of women, some inspired by his girlfriend Elaine Fried, whom he married in 1943 and who would become a noted artist in her own right.

It is the Woman paintings that are most unmistakably de Kooning, featuring an extraordinarily vivid cast of hulking, ferocious women with enormous breasts, wild eyes and deranged grins, painted in luscious swaths of lurid pink, orange and green. No wonder he once famously said, "Flesh was the reason why oil painting was invented."

When the six canvases of the third Woman series were shown together in 1953, they caused a sensation. De Kooning was accused of hating women and reviled by modern art purists for abandoning abstraction.

By reassembling five of the six paintings, MoMA has pulled off something of a coup. Seeing them together makes it clear how silly it is to brand de Kooning a misogynist.

For the paintings are as much about the relationship between figure and field as they are about female archetypes. He builds both subject and background from the same bold, biomorphic and geometric shapes, obscuring any sharp division between the two.

"The landscape is in the Woman and there is Woman in the landscapes," he said of one painting from that era. And right about this time, he moved back into abstraction, this time focusing on features of the urban landscape, including the garbage-strewn sidewalks of downtown Manhattan, where he first rose to prominence as an artist.

The exhibition ends with de Kooning's spare abstract paintings of the 1980s, which feature smooth surfaces and brilliant ribbons of color and are quite unlike anything that came before. These late paintings are controversial, dismissed by some as largely the work of studio assistants due to his decline into dementia.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Friday, Sept. 16, the 259th day of 2011. There are 106 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 16, 1810, Mexicans were inspired to begin their ultimately successful revolt against Spanish rule by Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla and his "Grito de Dolores (Cry of Dolores)."

On this date:

In 1498, Tomas de Torquemada, notorious for his role in the Spanish Inquisition, died in Avila, Spain.

In 1908, General Motors was founded in Flint, Mich., by William C. Durant.

In 1910, Bessica Medlar Raiche of Mineola, N.Y., made the first accredited solo airplane flight by a woman in the United States.

In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed into law the Selective Training and Service Act.

In 1953, "The Robe," the first movie presented in the widescreen process CinemaScope, had its world premiere at the Roxy Theater in New York.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush, speaking on the South Lawn of the White House, said there was "no question" Osama bin Laden and his followers were the prime suspects in the Sept. 11 attacks; Bush pledged the government would "find them, get them running and hunt them down."

Five years ago: The Vatican said Pope Benedict XVI "sincerely" regretted offending Muslims with his reference to an obscure medieval text characterizing some of the teachings of Islam's founder as "evil and inhuman," but the statement stopped short of the apology demanded by Islamic leaders.

One year ago: The Seattle Storm completed their undefeated march through the postseason, beating the Atlanta Dream 87-84 for a three-game sweep in the WNBA finals.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Lauren Bacall is 87. Blues singer B.B. King is 86. Clergyman-author Rev. Robert H. Schuller is 85. Actor George Chakiris is 79. Rock singer Nick Jonas (The Jonas Brothers) is 19.

Thought for Today: "As a matter of fact" is an expression that precedes many an expression that isn't." — Lawrence J. Peter, Canadian writer (born this date in 1919, died 1990).

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthdays: Conditions look extremely favorable for you in the year ahead, involving several major constructive changes that need to be made. Even if it isn't you who precipitates them, they will turn out to be to your liking.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Seek out a friend who has had similar experiences to what you're going through right now. This person can provide you with the solution to a problem that is plaguing you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Lady Luck is with you regarding an area that has provided you with a second source of income. She is telling you that it might be worthwhile to give it your undivided attention.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — If you go out of your way to be warm, friendly and generous, your associates will imitate your behavior. Needless to say, it'll be worth it.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Rewards for work well done are likely to be far grander than usual, not just in the material sense, but in personal ways as well. It's imperative that you do your best.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your popularity with your peers is much stronger than usual. Even those whom you suspect dislike you are apt to be saying nice things.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Successful conclusions can be achieved in several endeavors that you feel are critical to your well-being. Give them top priority while you are on a roll.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — You are likely to be extremely lucky in reaching persons whom you couldn't get in touch with previously. Give matters of strategic communication the attention they deserve.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Certain people in your field of endeavor are looking out for each other. One in particular has some valuable information to share with you that will help to strengthen your position.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — As long as you maintain control over an operation in which you're involved, you will generate desirable results. Think twice about delegating matters of importance to a surrogate.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Although something with far-reaching positive effects could develop, you're not likely to be aware of all it can offer you. Stay on top of matters.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Without explanation, you might be pleasantly received by someone who has treated you with indifference up until now. Accept the results when you get them, without resurrecting the past.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Lady Luck could help further your aims if you adopt a more positive mode of operation. Set your sights higher than usual and have faith in your talents and abilities.

Ryan Gosling portrays the character simply known as the driver in the film "Drive," which opens today.

Ryan Gosling oozes stoic cool in action film

'DRIVE'

Serious character actors offer big supporting roles

CHRISTY LEMIRE
AP Movie Critic

Like Clint Eastwood's Man With No Name, Ryan Gosling is simply known as the Driver in "Drive." Actually, he's barely even known as that, because the few people he comes into contact with don't really call him anything.

He's a stoic loner who does exactly what the title suggests. By day, he's a stunt driver, flipping cop cars for Hollywood productions. By night, he evades the police as a getaway driver for armed robberies, as he does in the film's tense, nearly wordless opening sequence.

No identity, no backstory. The Driver simply exists, moving from one job to the next without making any pesky emotional attachments.

That he is such a cipher might seem frustrating, but Gosling's masculine, minimalist approach makes him mysteriously compelling. Yes, there's the fact he's gorgeous. But he also does so much with just a subtle glance, by just holding a moment a beat or two longer than you might expect. He's defined not so much by who he is, but rather by what he does — how he responds in an increasingly dangerous series of confrontations.

His demeanor is the perfect fit for the overall approach from Danish director Nicolas Winding Refn ("Bronson"); cool and detached. "Drive" feels like an homage to early Michael Mann. It oozes sleek '80s style, from its hot-pink titles to its electronic soundtrack to the silk racing jacket with a scorpion on the back the Driver wears everywhere. Its neo-noir vision of contemporary Los Angeles is an anonymous sprawl of mini malls and Chinese restaurants, run-down garages and cheap apartments, where most people are bad and the ones who are good are screwed. Film critics like to use the word "dystopian" at times like this. It's appropriate.

But then Refn punctuates his dreamlike, almost hypnotic pacing with sudden, bloody blasts of violence. You're lulled in by the quiet seaminess of it all, and then bam — someone gets a fork in the eye. It's the kind of brutality that's so quick, creative and extreme, it'll provoke bursts of nervous laughter. You couldn't possibly have seen that, right? Everything's going to be OK, right? Even the Driver doesn't really want any trouble. He wants to get in, get out and be on his way. Once trouble finds him, though, he follows his own rigid code of honor, as so many reticent badasses are wont to do.

He gets involved with his neighbor down the hall, Irene (Carey Mulligan), a sweet, beautiful young woman with a sweet, beautiful young son. Then the kid's father (Oscar Isaac) gets out of prison, and the Driver gets dragged into a scheme to help steal $1 million from a pawn shop to pay back his old debts. But Mulligan, with her effortlessly sweet presence, seems miscast here; she simply isn't damaged enough. Similarly, Christina Hendricks goes to waste in just a couple of scenes as a mob moll who has the misfortune of going along for the ride on the big heist.

But then "Drive" offers some serious character actors in big, showy supporting performances, which offers the same sort of appealing, startling contrast as the film's violent streak. Bryan Cranston plays a garage owner and father figure to the Driver; Ron Perlman is a volatile gangster who operates out of a drab pizza parlor; and best of all is Albert Brooks, functioning smoothly against type as a former movie producer who's now a player in this shadowy underworld of cars and cash.

Thinking back, there isn't really all that much driving in "Drive" — a couple of chase scenes here and there, staged efficiently, thrillingly. It's more about the questionable choices that drive people — and, ultimately, the ones that drive them away.

"Drive," a FilmDistrict release, is rated R for strong, brutal, bloody violence, language and some nudity. Running time: 100 minutes. Three stars out of four.

'The Debt' deals with depth of storyline

Wrought with psychological duress, "The Debt" is not exactly entertainment, but something dark and deep.

Sensational curveballs and self-imposed tragedy exposes "The Debt's" fictive roots. Still, the terrific stress the protagonists experience in their professional and personal lives is emotionally taxing. Rather than titillating audiences with melodrama, "The Debt" feels like a concentration of real-world trauma.

Seasoned Israeli agents Rachel Singer (Helen Mirren), Stephan Gold (Tom Wilkinson) and David Peretz (Ciaran Hinds) are renowned for kidnapping the Nazi war criminal Dr. Bernhardt (Jesper Christensen). In the '90s, Rachel and Stephan's grown-up daughter writes a book about her parents' mission. Strangely, this triumphant moment makes Rachel uneasy. A flashback follows young Rachel (Jessica Chastain), Stephan (Martin Csokas) and David (Sam Worthington) in Berlin on a very different take in their 1960s mission.

Despite some confusing nonlinear elements, "The Debt" is gripping from the start. While the scars on the matured Rachel's face physically imply violence, each character's demeanor pulses with history. Mirren's empty gaze and terseness immediately signal something is wrong. Equally efficient, Wilkinson puts across uneasiness with profuse flattering and false chuckles.

While their superiors suppress tensions, the younger actors — Chastain, Csokas and Worthington — allow them to fester and explode. Wailing, roaring, groping, fighting, ripping hair and collapsing out of exhaustion, the trio distills pure hysteria.

"The Debt's" intensity makes the film more than worthwhile. The hard-hitting justice premise is gratifying, and the storyline's twists, mystery and suspense are solid.

But that is not what struck me. More than most horror movies, "The Debt" is distressing. The characters feel so real, and their universe is historically based. Given such a tight, intense look into these Mossad agents' world, one cannot help but plunge into mindboggling empathy.

By and large, "The Debt" is not something to watch and rewatch, it is just too potent. For that I give it an A.

With a running time of 113 minutes, "The Debt" is rated R for some violence and language.

'Contagion' begins with bang, ends with thud

CASHMONEY MOVIES

When I first saw the trailer for this germ-apocalypse apocalyptic mystery film, "Contagion," this was the conversation I was having in my head:

"Oh, Gwyneth Paltrow and Matt Damon and there's Laurence Fishburne with Marion Cotillard. Wow it has Bryan Cranston too? This film has a lot of famous — Jude Law, Kate Winslet. Wow!"

Yes, wow is the best word to describe my thoughts. In front of me, I saw a cast of award winners/nominees who are trying to prevent a worldwide epidemic. Sounds pretty interesting to me. But do the A-lister's star power hold together the film?

"Contagion" begins with Day 2, just 24 hours after the unknown virus' birth. Beth Emhoff (Paltrow) isn't feeling too well on the plane ride back from Japan. And neither are the people she has come into contact with. Whether it's a waiter who has taken her glass, or a person who has shaken her hand, whoever has picked up Beth's DNA is getting sick... very sick.

Soon after Beth arrives home to her husband Mitch (Damon) and son, she has a seizure, is taken to the hospital and dies the next morning.

Mitch arrives only to find his son dead and is taken into custody to quarantine him and diagnose the virus that is spreading through his family and throughout the world.

On the other side of things, we have three doctors. Dr. Cheever (Fishburne) is a doctor at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention who is approached by the Department of Homeland Security. They believe the worldwide disease is a bio weapon designed to put the world in a state of shock on Thanksgiving week. Dr. Cheever sends Dr. Mears (Winslet) to Minneapolis where Mitch lives to investigate the virus and attempt to quarantine the city. The third, Dr. Orantes (Cotillard), travels to Japan to find the source of the virus. Oh yeah and Jude Law plays a journalist who says to "not trust the system."

As you can see, there are a lot of things going on in this film, and that is one of the flaws. The story is too big. Instead of focusing on a concrete story, the film focuses on several. There are several consequences to this.

First, because the film focuses on seven different characters and stories, it is hard to remember what is going on and in some cases, the "main characters" can be forgotten.

Second, it's like the filmmakers decided to finish the stories of some characters and leave the fate of others up in the air. Several questions and plot points were never addressed.

And the final and greatest problem is because of the giant storyline, "Contagion" is void of emotion. How can I connect with a character and their story when they only take up one-seventh of the film? Answer: I can't.

As with many "crisis is wiping out humanity" movies, "Contagion" starts off with a bang. It's quick, it's intense and lots of people are dying. For the first hour, I was very into the film... the second hour, not so much. The film's second half drags and the terrible thing is the ending is nothing special and quite anticlimactic.

The star power "Contagion" packs can't save the film from a bloated plot line and an unemotional ending and characters. And while the film may have tried to push messages of "don't trust the government" and "deforestation is bad," the only effect the film had on me was the slight hesitance to touch my face and even that won't last long.

I give the film 1 1/2 stars out of four.

"Contagion" has a running time of 106 minutes and is rated PG-13 for disturbing content and some language.

Humanitarians OF FLORIDA

Patrick Jane

Special to the Chronicle

Patrick Jane is a real sweetie, friendly and likes to talk. He is 2 years old with a short white coat and light green eyes. Patrick was recently abandoned and is just one of the many kittens and cats that remain at the Hardin Haven while waiting for a forever home. Visitors are welcome from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday at the Humanitarians of Florida's Manchester House on the corner of State Road 44 and Conant Avenue, east of Crystal River. Call (352) 613-1629 for adoptions, or view most of the Hardin Haven's felines online at www.hofspha.org.

Locals earn national awards

Mills, Dawsy honored for their efforts

Special to the Chronicle

The National organization of the 40 & 8, the Honor Society of American Veterans, is staging its annual convention through Sept. 17 in Vancouver, Wash.

Citrus County has two residents receiving national awards.

Barbara Mills is receiving the National Americanism Award for her work within the community to help veterans and currently enlisted personnel.

Sheriff Jeff Dawsy is receiving the National Law Officer Award for his work in law enforcement.

Many members of Voiture and Cabane 1219, the Citrus County chapter of the 40 & 8, traveled to Vancouver to be present at these awards.

For more information about the 40 & 8, visit www.fortyandeight.org.

To view an article about the nominees, visit the home page and select News and Notes, then the summer issue of the Forty and Eighter.

Trail talk

Friends of Fort Cooper State Park representatives Kate and Ken Hughes visited the Rotary Club of Central Citrus on Sept. 14 to talk about the 3/4-mile Seminole Heritage Trail being installed at the park. This was the national hub of Indian resistance in the 1800s; with grants from the Friends of Florida State Parks, Friends of Fort Cooper State Park, Seminole Wars Foundation and private funding, the first of seven interpretive kiosks along the trail is nearing completion. Pictured with Kate Hughes, left, and Ken Hughes is Rotary of Central Citrus President Hazel Carlson. For more information about Fort Cooper, call the park office at (352) 726-0315. The Rotary Club of Central Citrus meets most Wednesdays at Black Diamond. For more information about the club, call Karen Stephenson at (352) 746-4355.

Special to the Chronicle

'Walk-A-Weigh' weight with Extension

Special to the Chronicle

"Walk-A-Weigh," an award-winning weight-control program emphasizing the importance of physical activity and healthy eating, will be offered by the University of Florida/IFAS, Citrus County Extension office.

The program will begin from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 26, at the Citrus County Extension office in Lecanto (3650 W. Sovereign Path, Suite 1). Classes will meet weekly for eight weeks through Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Although the majority of each session will focus on participants actually exercising, there will also be brief presentations on such topics as cutting extra calories, reducing fat intake, substituting herbs and spices for salt, understanding nutrition labels and maintaining weight loss.

In the event of bad weather, there will be indoor physical activities. Participants will also be encouraged to meet informally between the weekly sessions and walk together.

Cost of the class is $15 (check or money order, no cash) per participant and is limited to 40 people. Pre-paid registration is required and no refunds or transfers to other classes will be given.

Medical releases and liability forms plus payments must be turned in by Monday, Oct. 17. To register, call Monica Bonsett at (352) 527-5713. Registration for the class has begun, but will end at 5 p.m. on Oct. 17.

U.S. Coast Guard Flotilla 15-01 courts new members

Special to the Chronicle

Put your time and talents to good use while making friends and providing a valuable service. Flotilla 15-01 of Crystal River invites everyone to become a member of the unit of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary. Flotilla 15-01 is comprised of men and women from all walks of life and all age groups. Meetings are at 6:30 p.m. the first Monday of each month.

In addition to safe boating classes, providing safety patrols and radio communications, members work with the U.S. Coast Guard, as well as the other flotillas in the area. For information, call Vince Maida at (917) 597-6961.

Worth NOTING

'Share the Beat' at Eagles Aerie 4272

Give blood at the "Share the Beat Blood Drive" from noon to 6:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 19, at Eagles Aerie 4272, 5340 W. Grover Cleveland Blvd.

Never forget our heroes. All donors will receive a free canteen drink.

Knights to co-host blood drive

Knights of Columbus Council 14485 will co-host St. Scholastica church's blood drive beginning at 8 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 18, offering a free breakfast to all donors that day.

The breakfast will consist of sausage and eggs, hash browns, pancakes, french toast, orange juice and a bottomless cup of coffee. Non-donors can eat breakfast for $5.

Platelets can be donated any time prior to donating blood. Platelets are also in great demand for cancer patients, open-heart surgery patients and burn victims. Blood will last up to 42 days, while platelets will only last for 14 days. Platelets can be given every 14 days. To donate platelets, contact the local LifeSouth Center. Donors must be 17 years of age or older, weigh at least 110 pounds and have a picture ID. Call LifeSouth at (352) 537-3061.

Sugarmill drive hits close to home

Blood donors know they're helping somebody, and at a blood drive from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sept. 22, many of those stopping by Sugarmill Woods Golf and Country Club will be thinking of one specific somebody — Wendy Deans.

Deans, 38, grew up in Sugarmill Woods. Since July 18, she's been battling leukemia, traveling between Shands at the University of Florida in Gainesville and her folks' home, where she recovers between rounds of chemotherapy. She also makes regular trips to Citrus Memorial Health System, where she's regularly receiving units of red blood cells and platelets, which keep her going as she battles the disease.

LifeSouth will have a special blood drive by the Sugarmill Woods golf course clubhouse in Deans' honor (on Douglas Street in Homosassa). Photo identification is required.

Call LifeSouth toll-free at (888) 795-2707 for more information.

Congregation Beth Sholom

Come home for the holidays to Congregation Beth Sholom. High Holiday services are open at no charge to the entire community. Call for the schedule of services.

The fall semester of the Etz Hayim Institute-Adult Education Program continues Monday.

"Medieval Jewish History" will cover 1,300 years as students gain an insight into how the Dark Ages in European history was a period of "light" for Jewish history with creation of great literary works, development of Jewish religious practices, expansion of diaspora communities and Judaism's interaction with Christianity and Islam. Time is 7 to 8 p.m.; 20 sessions.

"Hebrew Alphabet — Beginning Hebrew Reading" is an intensive class to learn the Hebrew alphabet. At its completion, students will be able to follow the reading (phonetically) from the Bible and prayers in a standard prayer book. The cursive alphabet will also be taught. Time is 8:15 to 9:15 p.m.; six sessions.

Each class is $5 per session plus textbook. Register at mkamlot2@gmail.com or call (352) 643-0995.

S'lihot Service is 8 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 24. Inaugurate the High Holiday season with a brief, but meaningful service as we recite the penitential liturgy to prepare ourselves spiritually at this time of soul-searching and renewal. Service at 8:30 p.m. will be preceded at 8 by coffee and cake.

Congregation Beth Sholom with Hazzan Mordecai Kamlot as cantor/spiritual leader, is the only synagogue in Citrus County and offers spirited and participatory-style weekly Friday evening and Saturday morning Shabbat services, along with social and cultural activities.

The address is 102 Civic Circle, Beverly Hills. Call (352) 643-0995 or (352) 746-5303.
