Appeals court favors Olsen

CHRIS VAN ORMER Staff Writer

A federal court of appeals has affirmed the decision of a district court in a long and complex case filed against the developer of the Black Diamond community in Lecanto.

The decision Wednesday by the Eleventh Circuit Court favored the developer, Stan Olsen, in a case dismissed in 2010 when a U.S. magistrate judge ruled that plaintiffs had not proven claims that Olsen raised the price of Black Diamond Club equity memberships to keep ownership of the golf courses out of members' hands.

The appeal was filed by two Black Diamond residents, who had sought a jury trial. However, all parties consented to a trial before the magistrate judge, who held a fourday bench trial, and then entered a final judgment in favor of Olsen as to all the plaintiffs' claims.

On review, the court of appeals found all issues without merit, but addressed an issue of federal right to a jury, as the plaintiffs argued that the district court erred in denying their federal right to a jury.

The court of appeals found that assuming the plaintiffs had the right to a jury on their claim for punitive damages in this case, the question of damages would not have reached the jury because the magistrate judge correctly ruled against the plaintiffs on all their claims as a matter of law. Any possible error in denying a jury was harmless, according to the ruling.

Associated Press

MIAMI — Sun-drenched

Now, some big-money backers are touting a new attraction that promises to boost jobs: casinos.

They argue Miami can become a shimmering East Coast version of Las Vegas, generating a spark for the state's stalled economy. Miami's selling points, they argue, could help the area transform itself into a serious rival to Vegas.

Malaysia-based Genting Group, which runs a massive casino in Singapore, is so sure about the possibility that it has already spent nearly a half-billion dollars to acquire property in downtown Miami. The group has ambitious plans to alter the Miami skyline with a sprawling $3.8 billion complex designed to look like coral.

That sounds good to people like Michael Ferrarelli, who right now just has a part-time job at the Miami Dolphins stadium.

"With the economy the way it is and so many people out of work right now, it's the best way to boost the economy," Ferrarelli said. 'You're going to bring thousands of jobs into each location."

The serious amount of money already spent by Genting has sparked the interest of other Las Vegas casino operators, not to mention those who already own sports facilities in South Florida.

This new vision for Miami, however, will require approval from the Republican-led Legislature and Gov. Rick Scott. Casino backers have already begun a full-tilt lobbying effort, and it appears the debate over gambling will be one of the biggest issues lawmakers deal with during the session that starts next month.

It would be tempting to think lawmakers are eager to go along, as Florida grapples with a 10 percent unemployment rate.

But that's not the case.

The initial bill filed by two South Florida legislators calls for each company wanting a casino to spend a minimum of $2 billion. It has won the backing of builders and contractors as well as one of the state's big business lobbying outfits.

But a diverse coalition ranging from Disney World, the Florida Chamber of Commerce and existing dog and horse track owners worried about their future — want lawmakers to reject the concept.

They contend such a massive proposal will harm the businesses already here because the promises of luring thousands of tourists from across the country and world won't pan out. They point to Nevada's struggling economy as proof that gambling is not what's needed to turn around the state.

Genting officials contend that adding three new mega-casinos could generate anywhere from $4.5 billion to $7 billion more, double what is happening in the state now.

Colin Au, head of Genting Americas, stood recently before a state Senate committee and made elaborate promises to back that figure up. He said his company would make sure to lure travelers from as far away as Asia by guaranteeing to purchase half the seats on nonstop flights across the Pacific. He tried to assuage fears that his resort would compete with Disney World by saying his hotel would sell tens of thousands of tickets to the theme park.

Au also disputed claims his resort would harm existing restaurants and hotels.

"We are spreading the cake all over the place," Au

But this optimistic take on casinos isn't shared by some who follow the gambling industry.

Janet Brashear, a Wall Street analyst, has concluded that South Florida casinos could succeed in attracting tourists, possibly to the detriment of both Atlantic City and Las Vegas.

But Brashear, of Bernstein Research, doubts that the state can support what is now envisioned. She warns that Florida is not a "clean slate," and that it would have to become larger than Las Vegas to The reason these billion support a return on the dated by the legislation.

Fla. has third-largest population growth

Florida had the nation's third-largest population growth in the past year.

The U.S. Census reported Wednesday that Florida grew by 256,000 residents from April 2010 to July 2011.

Texas and California were the only states with larger growth.

Florida now has 19.1 million residents, making it the nation's fourth most populous state.

Florida is within striking distance of surpassing New York in population size. All it would take is an additional 400,000 residents.

If current growth trends continue, Florida could pass New York in population size in two years.

The $99 million project by Coca-Cola Refreshments is expected to add 60 permanent jobs.

Gov. Rick Scott on Wednesday hailed the expansion as a testament to Florida's pro-business environment.

The plant, though, is also in close proximity to Floridagrown fruit that goes into the Simply Orange products it produces. The facility also uses juice from Brazil.

Simply Orange is a chilled product made entirely from fresh juice rather than frozen concentrate.

The state paved the way for the project by granting Polk County $400,000 for road infrastructure serving the plant. Coca-Cola is also getting up to $180,000 in state and local tax rebates.

The plant currently has 361 full-time employees.

LECANTO — Like a kid on Christmas morning, Lurline Brooks quickly tore through the Christmas-themed wrapping paper to unveil a green-and-white department store box.

Lifting the top ever so slightly, she peeked to see what was inside before completely removing the lid. Her eyes lit up with delight as she examined her new bathroom

"You know, I've been wanting a new rug," she said, running her hands over the soft tan bathmat.

It was a need fulfilled, Brooks said. Since she can't get around to shop for herself, getting a gift as simple as towels, washcloths and a new rug means the world to her.

"It's just good to get anything .. and it's the right color," she said with a bright smile.

Brooks is just one of the many local homebound seniors who received gifts through the "Be a Santa to a Senior" program this year. The program, sponsored by Lecanto Levi's 4-H Club, Rotary Club of Crystal River, Ease's Rough Riders 4-H Club and Home Instead Senior Care, collected more than 2,000 gifts for more than 450 seniors this year.

Tuesday morning, Cece Douglas, a case manager with senior services, loaded up the back of her SUV with a few gifts and food baskets. which were provided by Citrus United Basket in Inverness.

Douglas has been a case manager since 2009, and it is obvious just from chatting with her that helping people is her passion.

"It's been the joy of my life," she said. "It's a job that gives back everyday."

Starting in August, Douglas began collecting the names of seniors she knew could use gifts come Christmastime. Making sure each senior receives the perfect gift, she said, is as easy as just listening to what someone might say they need.

In Jennifer Jensen's case, she had mentioned in passing how she had trouble opening a can of food for her cat, Sparkles.

Sitting comfortably in her black leather recliner Tuesday morning, Jensen became overwhelmed with gratitude as she pulled the electric can opener from its gift bag.

"Oh gosh, I could use one of those," she said placing her hand over her mouth in surprise.

But she wasn't prepared for her next gifts: an oven glove and dish towels for her kitchen and a beautiful white shirt with light blue embroidery.

'Oh, this is nice," Jensen said holding the shirt up as tears welled in her eyes. "This is really nice."

Seven lawmen killed in 2011

LAKELAND — A central Florida police officer who was shot in the head earlier this week died Wednesday, making him the seventh officer in the state to be killed by gun violence in 2011.

Rookie Lakeland Officer Arnulfo Crispin, 25, was shot Sunday night after responding to a complaint of some suspicious males in a park, a police report said. An officer who arrived as backup found Crispin unresponsive. Crispin apparently was shot after asking permission from the men to pat them down for weapons and Authorities have arrested the suspect, 19-year-old Kyle Williams, who surrendered Monday morning at the urging of his mother. He is being held without bail and is scheduled to be arraigned Jan. 24.

On Tuesday, police found a semiautomatic handgun in a crawlspace outside the apartment complex where Crispin was shot. The gun is being sent to a crime lab for testing to determine if it was used to shoot the officer.

Crispin grew up in nearby Mulberry and had been a Lakeland officer for just 18 months. Funeral services are scheduled for Tuesday.

"He served the community well," police Chief Lisa Womack said Tuesday night in announcing that Crispin was not expected to survive. "He will be sorely missed from this day forward."

The seven gun deaths of Florida officers this year ties 2007 for the third most in the state since 1900, according to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, which tracks officer deaths nationwide. The most was 10 in 1987, and there were eight recorded in 1988.

This deadly year for Florida officers began on Jan. 20 when detectives Roger Castillo and Amanda Haworth were fatally shot trying to arrest a fugitive in a notoriously crime-ridden section of Miami. Another officer shot and killed the suspect.

Four days later, St. Petersofficers Thomas burg and Baitinger Jeffrey Yaslowitz were killed trying to arrest a suspect hiding in an attic. A U.S. marshal was wounded. The shooter was later killed by officers. On Feb. 2, Greg Malloy, a correctional officer at the Holmes County Correctional Facility in the Panhandle, was killed in a shootout while assisting local officers in tracking a murder suspect. The suspect also was killed.

Lawyer claims partners involved in Ponzi scam

Associated Press

MIAMI — The former Florida lawyer convicted of running a $1.2 billion Ponzi scheme claims both his partners at a now-defunct Fort Lauderdale law firm knew about and profited from the illegal activity, according to transcripts of testimony released Wednesday.

The disbarred attorney, Scott Rothstein, said in a sworn deposition that expartners Russell Adler and Stuart Rosenfeldt knew about and benefited financially from the Ponzi scam that collapsed in fall 2009. The scam involved investments in fake legal settlements.

"If you're asking me if they knew that there were illegal activities going on in the law firm, the answer is yes," Rothstein said. "They knew that we were moving money illegally in and out Rosenfeldt's of the law firm."

Rothstein, 49, is testifying behind closed doors through Friday in several civil lawsuits arising from the implosion of his Ponzi scheme and bankruptcy of the once high-flying law firm Rothstein Rosenfeldt Adler. The transcript released Wednesday was from the first day of his unusual two-week deposition, which began Dec. 12.

Rothstein is serving a 50year prison sentence after pleading guilty to operating the scheme, a sentence he hopes to get reduced by cooperating in the ongoing criminal probe and civil lawsuits. Both Adler and Rosenfeldt are under criminal investigation, and attorneys representing them denied Rothstein's claims.

"Mr. Rosenfeldt knew nothing of the illegal activ-

Bruce Lehr.

Added Adler lawyer Fred Haddad: "We would expect Mr. Rothstein to say whatever he has to say to get out of prison in his lifetime."

Haddad also said a document connected to the scheme that appears to contain Adler's signature is a forgery. Rothstein has admitted forging the signatures of at least two federal judges on other documents.

Rothstein, however, said in his deposition he has nothing to gain by lying.

"I would be a fool to lie. I risk dying in prison if I lie. Okay? I have no intention of dying in prison," he said.

Rothstein named other people at his former firm who were supposedly involved in various aspects of the Ponzi scheme, while many others were not. So far, counting Rothstein, ities by Mr. Rothstein," said eight people have been attorney, indicted.

EPA: Dirty plants should clean up

New rules applied to oldest coaland oil-fired units first

WASHINGTON — The largest remaining source of uncontrolled toxic air pollution in the United States, the nation's coal- and oilfired power plants, will be forced to reduce their emissions or shut down under a federal regulation released Wednesday.

The long-overdue national standards for mercury and other toxic pollutants are the first to be applied to nation's oldest and dirtiest power plants.

About half of the 1,300 coal- and oil-fired units nationwide still lack modern pollution controls, despite the Environmental Protection Agency in 1990 getting the authority from Congress to control toxic air pollution from power plant smokestacks. A decade later, in 2000, the agency concluded it was necessary to clamp down on the emissions to protect public health.

Decades of litigation and changing political winds have allowed power plants to keep running without addressing their full environmental and public health

EPA administrator Lisa Jackson said in a statement that the standards "will protect millions of families and children from harmful and costly air pollution and provide the American people with health benefits that far outweigh the costs.

The rule ranks as one of the most expensive in the EPA's history, with an estimated $9.6 billion price tag.

Its release comes after intense lobbying from power producers and criticism from Republicans, who said the rule would threaten jobs and electric reliability and raise electricity prices.

To ease those concerns, the administration will encourage states to make "broadly available" an additional fourth year to comply with the rule, as allowed by the law. Caseby-case extensions could also be granted to address local reliability issues, according to a presidential memorandum to Jackson.

In the memorandum, President Barack Obama said the new standards "will promote the transition to a cleaner and more efficient U.S. electric power system." He directed the EPA to ensure

Some in the industry wanted an automatic and longer delay, to ensure that the combination of power plants retiring and those shutting down temporarily to install pollution control equipment would not affect reliability. But even the chair of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the independent body that ensures electric reliability, did not see evidence for a blanket extension.

An AP survey of 55 power plant producers found that more than 32 mostly coalfired power plants in a dozen states would retire because of the regulation issued Wednesday, and an-

Associated Press NAV Chg Technology stocks fell Wednesday, dragged down by a weak earnings report +.01 from the business software maker Oracle Corp.

Broad market indexes were flat. The Dow Jones industrial average eked out a gain of 4 points after having been down 104 points at middav.

Technology stocks in the Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 2 percent. Oracle plunged 12 percent after the business software company said it was struggling to close deals.

The rare earnings miss by Oracle seemed to reinforce worries that businesses and the government may cut back on technology spending. Especially worrying was a weak 2 percent gain in new software licenses, a key sign of demand from other businesses. Oracle had predicted gains of as much as 16 percent. Those worries hurt other big technology companies. IBM Corp. was by far the biggest loser in the Dow, falling 3.1 percent to $181.47. A bright spot was the BlackBerry maker Research In Motion Ltd., which jumped 10 percent to $13.78 on rumors that it might be a takeover target. Market watch to worry about from Europe. New data showed extensive lending from the European Central Bank to European banks. The initial reaction to the $639 billion in lending by the ECB was positive, but then worry set needed so much help in the first place.

'Long-term, people were a little bit concerned that ight be a takeover target. banks needed more money than we thought they did,"

said Joe Bell, a senior equity analyst with Schaeffer's Investment Research.

The Dow edged up 4.16 points, less than 0.1 percent, to close at 12,107.74. On Tuesday the Dow jumped 337 — its biggest gain this month — on a strong bond sale in Spain and a surge in new home construction in the U.S.

The Standard & Poor's 500 rose 2.42 points, or 0.2 percent, to 1,243.72. Outside of the 2 percent decline for technology companies, prices rose or were flat in the rest of the S&P 500's 10 sectors.

The Nasdaq composite fell 25.76 points, or 1 percent, to 2,577.97.

Consumer staples rose with help from a 1.7 percent increase by Coca-Cola Co. and a gain of 1.2 percent at Kraft. Nike Inc. rose 2.9 percent after reporting strong demand and higher prices for its shoes and clothing. Volume was much lower than usual at 3.5 billion shares, which can make prices more volatile.

Many investors are on the in that Europe's banks sidelines because they're worried that a recession in Europe would hurt U.S. companies, said Bernie Kavanagh, vice president for portfolio management at

OUR OPINION:

This is not the role

Michael Smallridge offered a proposal for issuing identification cards to lowincome residents who have no insurance and yet do not qualify for Medicare Medicaid.

Under Smallridge's concept, CCHB would contract with Citrus Memorial Health

Too much demand

I see where California now has a minimum wage of $10.24 an hour. No wonder the manufacturers are using China workers and we are jobless. Can't blame the manufacturers. When the demanders make too many demands, the demandees move on.

Happy everything

Wishing me happy holidays is just fine with me. It's all inclusive — Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, Hanukah, Kwanza or whatever. People cannot tell by looking at you what your religion is. This is a country of many religions, so we're tolerant. Happy holidays is OK with me.

Breathing dirt

Once again the Republicans in Congress have voted against the environmental protection for the people that live here. I don't know. One of these days we'll probably be breathing dirt, if they have anything to do with it. The only thing they know is, give money to the 1 percent rich.

Demand a 'no' vote

Wake up, seniors. We have had a COLA freeze for the past two years while Obama has given the workers a 2 percent reduction in Social Security trust fund from 6.2 percent to 4.2 percent. And in 2012, Obama wants to reduce the workers' contribution into the Social Security trust fund to 3.1 percent. Social Security is insolvent and this will reduce funds going into the Social Security trust fund. The fact is, this $1,000 savings Obama is claiming is a tax increase, is false. It is a reduction of the contribution to the Social Security trust fund. Take action and call your senators and your congressmen to vote no on Obama's job bill.

Celebrate!

Armistice Day, now called Veterans Day, is supposed to be a day of celebration. In this county, it is considered a second Memorial Day. Why? Are we so ignorant?

Of meatheads and Muslims mudgeon of the hit sitcom "All in the Family" was one of key cultural touchstones of the 1970s. A buffoon, to be sure, Archie was also a readily identifiable American type, the self-pitying white man ill at ease with recent changes in the social order. But because Archie was also portrayed with depth and sympathy, the laughs at his expense helped the audience come to grips with the turmoil they felt wrestling with their own biases and those of family members.

Perhaps an updated version of that character could illuminate the trend of bashing American Muslims, most recently on view in the activism of the Florida Family Association. This evangelical Christian group is riled that a new television show, "All-American Muslim," portrays its subjects a little too benignly. "Where are jihadists?" the association demands to know. Why hasn't the program featured terrorists, bomb-throwers or violence against women?

"All-American Muslim," which airs on TLC, chronicles the lives of five families in Arab-American communities in Dearborn, Mich., a Detroit suburb with a generations-long history as a home to Arabs, both Muslim and Christian. It's a reality show — and not a particularly entertaining one in the Snooki/Kardashian/toddlersin-tiaras kind of way. The pace is slow and very, very explanatory. Zzzzzz.

Perhaps that is because "All-American Muslim" is portraying reality, and TLC (formerly known as The Learning Channel) recognizes some value in Americans, well, learning something on TV. ceeds, the more it fails. Ask that are as mundane and ordinary as their own. Lives filled with work, faith and home. The episodes aired so far have been unapologetic about highlighting that fact.

The Florida Family Association calls this 'propaganda." It complains that the show profiles only Muslims that appear to be ordinary folks."

How deplorable. Imagine, a reality show highlighting a broad reality.

OTHER

There is a Muslim sheriff's deputy, a head football coach at the local high school, a single mom and an adult daughter living with her somewhat overprotective mother.

Some of the characters are traditional, very focused on their faith, such as the couple who are new parents. Others are less so, like the ultra-hip mom who wants to open a nightclub. Some of the women wear the hijab and many do not. And they — gasp! — speak Midwestern English.

In an effort to protect innocent Americans from this shocking truth, the Florida Family Association has pressured advertisers, most notably the hardware company Lowe's, to withdraw their advertising.

We've seen this kind of thing before. Right-wing Christian groups love to target TV shows and movies that portray gays and lesbians in a positive light. Right now, the Florida Family Association is also fretting that a new "Spider-Man" character is going to turn out to be gay. They're campaigning against Marvel and Disney to keep him in the closet.

The more this activism suc-

the middle of this. The company has pulled a thread from its Facebook page on it decision to pull advertising from "All-American Muslim." The company became alarmed at the rising hatred posted in comments.

That's all the more evidence that shows like "All-American Muslim" are needed. Recall what "The Cosby Show" did for Americans' perception of race — yes, blacks can be affluent and uppermiddle class and funny. Then there was "Ellen" for gay Americans, which laid the groundwork for the portrayal of gay parenting in ABC's "Modern Family." The show doesn't shy from the often effeminate characteristics of its popular co-stars. Most viewers get the humor, and are willing to live and let live.

In a sense, such programs don't change opinions on a given social issue so much as reflect the ways in which American opinions have already changed. In the 1970s, the time was ripe for a character like Archie Bunker. America was ready to acknowledge and laugh at the ignorance that lived on in his resentful heart. Such a character wouldn't have been possible a generation earlier, when the struggle for civil rights was still very much a matter of life and death.

These days, anti-Muslim activism in America is a fringe phenomenon, the province of opportunists on the right. Yet the fears it appeals to cannot be denied. A healthy dose of perspective is needed, and, strange as it is to say, a sitcom or a reality show might just be the ticket.

King's Bay dispute

The dispute over King's Bay is about the opposition of a federal agency seizing a waterway that belongs to the State of Florida. The rule is like an octopus, with its long arms affecting everything. It will affect homeowners and their property values, whether you live on the waterfront or not. It will affect businesses; many will be forced to close because this rule will negatively affect tourism. It will affect families coming here for recreation; if you can't anchor your boat, then you can't let your kids jump in for a swim. It will affect crabbers and fishermen; if you have to use special mooring lines and anchors, which are not available, then you can't stop and are forced to go elsewhere. It will affect business that service docks and boats, as well as hotels and restaurants and gift shops and gas stations. In these tough economic times, do we want to make it so difficult for people to visit because of the threat of massive fines if any rule is violated? This rule is bad, plain and simple. Watch Progress

Our elected officials and the public need to watch this carefully as the Progress Energy plant is obsolete by today's standards and has been plagued with problems.

A failure at this plant would have catastrophic effects. Wouldn't the money Progress Energy intends to spend be better used to construct a modern facility to replace this plant? Why put our immediate area at great risk to repair a faulty plant that would not begin to provide power right away anyway?

We don't need the aftermath that was caused by the Japanese facility in our region.

Officials from the Health Ministry are meeting Friday to decide what to recommend for women who have silicone implants made by French company Poly Implant Prothese, or PIP.

Some doctors say the implants pose a risk of rupture. A French cancer institute is also studying whether there are links between the implants and eight women who developed cancer after receiving them

Some 40,000 women in Britain are believed to have the PIP implants as well. Britain's Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency said its own testing had found no evidence of toxicity in the PIP implants and no evidence to suggest women should have them removed.

Fear, threats drive N. Korean grief

BEIJING — The scenes North Korea — people falling to the ground weeping and cries of anguish amid somber crowds look forced.

More than theatrical, the mass mourning over the death of dictator Kim Jong Il is being driven by a mix of forces. Loss and fear of an uncertain future — the same emotions that many feel at the death of a loved one become crowds. Added to that are the perils of crossing a police state. Obama to Boehner: Twomonth tax cut only option

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Careening toward a politically toxic tax hike, President Barack Obama implored Speaker House Boehner on Wednesday to get behind a two-month stopgap until a longer deal could be struck early next year, calling it the only real way out of a mess that is threatening the paychecks of 160 million workers and isolating House Republicans.

In a weary Washington, the outreach accomplished little. All sides seemed to end the day where they began, with heavy political economic consequences at stake.

Boehner remained insistent on a full-year extension of the existing payroll tax cut before Jan. 1, urging Obama to haul Senate Democrats back to town to talk to his chosen negotiators. "Let's get this done today," Boehner told Obama, according to a speaker's aide, who required anonymity to characterize a private conversation.

But the Capitol was emptying out fast, and the Senate showed no inclination to return, having already passed a bipartisan twomonth tax cut it thought had settled the matter.

For taxpayers, and for an economy starting to show some life again, the standoff was all holiday gloom.

Barring any action by Congress, Social Security payroll taxes will go up almost $20 a week for a worker making a $50,000 salary — that's $40 less for a typical paycheck or $1,000 over the whole year. Almost 2 million people would lose unemployment benefits as well.

political The risks seemed only to deepen, too, particularly for House Republicans. They appeared poised to take the biggest blame for a tax increase even while pushing for a deeper one.

The reliably conservative editorial page of The Wall Street Journal blasted both Boehner and Sen. Mitch Mc-Connell, the GOP leader, for how they handled the matter. "The GOP leaders have somehow managed the remarkable feat of being blamed for opposing a oneyear extension of a tax holiday that they are surely going to pass," the paper's editorial said.

In a year of legislative brinksmanship remarkable even by Washington standards, the latest fight spilled into the lap of Republican candidates running for president.

Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich chastised Congress, particularly the Senate, for failing to extend the 2 percentage point tax cut for a full year.

"They can't figure out how to pass a one-year extension, so the Senate leaves town?" Gingrich remarked while campaigning in Iowa. "It's an absurd dereliction of duty.'

Rival Mitt Romney refused to take a position, again steering clear of Washington's hot policy

"I'm not going to get into the back-and-forth on the congressional sausage-making process," the former Massachusetts governor told reporters after events in New Hampshire. "I hope they're able to sit down and work out a solution that works for the American people."

Griffin picked Player of the Year

Baylor QB keeps rolling up accolades with latest award

Associated Press

WACO, Texas — Robert Griffin III played football for years simply because he was good at it.

Then Baylor's exciting dual-threat quarterback tore the ACL in his right knee and missed the last nine games of the 2009 season. While stuck on the sideline watching, he realized just how much he loved the game.

"After a knee injury like that, a lot of times you see guys come back and it's not the same," Griffin said. "So I didn't want that to be attached to me, great player, got hurt, never was the same. ... My goal was to come back better, not only for myself, but for my teammates."

Goal accomplished for Griffin, who exceled while raising Baylor out of the Big 12 basement.

Already the winner of the Heisman Trophy and Davey O'Brien Award, Griffin won AP Player of the Year on Wednesday.

The aspiring lawyer, who arrived at Baylor nearly four years ago as a 17-year-kid after graduating high school early, is the nation's most efficient passer this season, throwing for 3,998 yards with a Big 12-leading 36 touchdowns and only six interceptions. He also ran for 644 yards and nine more scores.

Baylor (9-3) has a five-game winning streak, its longest in 20 years, going into the Alamo Bowl next week. With a win over Washington, the 15th-ranked Bears would match the school record of 10 wins set during Mike Singletary's senior season in 1980.

Citrus freshman Weber excelled on biggest stage

LARRY BUGG Correspondent

Alyssa Weber was an unknown quantity when she ran her first cross country race for Citrus High School in the fall.

Weber turned out to be a surprisingly good runner.

At the ultimate gut check, the freshman ran a 19:48 at the state meet November at Little Everglades Ranch. She not only finished 32nd on the demanding course but had the best finish of any Citrus County female runner.

And she has three more years to get better.

Because she ran her best at the state and had the best time there, she earned the title of Chronicle Girls Cross Country Runner of the Year.

Her coach, Brian Lattin, had a feeling he had unearthed a distance-running gem early in the season.

"I had a gut feeling after the first race that she had the chance to be special," Lattin said. "She was seconds behind Chloe (Benoist of Lecanto) in her first race.

"I thought she had the potential. She ran a 21:25 in her first race," Lattin continued. "That was the first time she ever ran a 5K."

Lattin became excited over her potential.

"I thought she had a real good shot at getting to state," he said. "The competition in our region was brutal. For her to get out of it shows how special of an athlete she is."

Weber also set the school record with a time of 19:28 at the regional meet in Lake City. That run was good enough to finish 14th in the race.

Magic slip by Heat in preseason finale

ORLANDO — Glen Davis had 18 points, Dwight Howard and Jason Richardson each added 15 and the Orlando Magic overcame a 14-point halftime deficit to beat the Miami Heat 104-100 on Wednesday night in the preseason finale for both teams.

Davis had a 13-point third quarter to help ignite the comeback and Orlando got a late lift from its reserves to secure the win, including strong fourth-quarter efforts by veteran Larry Hughes and rookie Justin Harper.

LeBron James had 27 points and Dwyane Wade added 21 for the Heat. Reserve Norris Cole chipped in 11 points.

Both teams open the regular season as part of the NBA's four-game Christmas Day schedule. Miami travels to defending champion Dallas for a finals rematch and Oklahoma City hosts the Magic.

Both teams entered Wednesday night's game dealing with some training camp injury issues. The Magic played without Hedo Turkoglu, who sat with a bruised left hip. Quentin Richardson took his place in the starting lineup. The Heat also were tender, with Mike Miller (hernia), Shane Battier (quadriceps), Eddy Curry (hip) and Eddie House (knee) all resting.

Whether it was just the injury bug or something else, the rust definitely showed for both sides early on.

James badly missed on a pair of free throws in the opening minutes, including an air ball on one attempt.

Both James and his teammates were able to settle down, however, with James and Wade each scoring to push the lead to as many as 23 en route to the halftime advantage.

Orlando missed its first 12 shots from the field overall and its first 13 3-point attempts. The Magic regrouped to make 8 of its final 14 shots from beyond the arc.

The matchup of division rivals did have a small dust-up late in the third quarter when Richardson was called for a technical after he was caught delivering a shoulder into James' chest. The contact came after the pair collided while running down the court.

Penske hires Allmendinger to drive

MOORESVILLE, N.C. — AJ Allmendinger hit the jackpot Wednesday.

After losing his primary sponsor

After losing his primary sponsor with Richard Petty's team, Roger Penske quickly hired the improving Sprint Cup driver to replace Kurt Busch in the No. 22 car.

To Allmendinger, it's a perfect pairing. To the Penske team, it was a move that simply made sense.

"I guess the word 'potential' is what continues to come up," Penske Racing president Tim Cindric said on a conference call. "We looked at everybody, we did our due diligence. AJ is somebody we've talked to over the years, but he wasn't somebody we considered until really the 11th hour when there was noise that they (Petty's team) might not be able to make things work over there. But nobody has had a better progression than he has."

Cindric would not divulge details of the contract, though it is believed to be a one-year deal. He also acknowledged that the team's short list of candidates was actually quite long and included many of the rumored names — Brian Vickers, David Ragan and David Reutimann among them.

New York, New York. If you can make it there, you can make it anywhere.

Unless that anywhere is the playoffs, in which case the loser of the Big Apple showdown Saturday between the Giants and Jets will need loads of help to get in. Even the winner will be guaranteed virtually nothing.

It's not exactly a battle of the elite of the NFL; more like grounded airplanes hosting Lilliputians.

But they're excited in the five boroughs, Westchester, Rockland, Long Island and, of course, New Jersey, where both teams actually live and work.

We're playing for our playoff lives here and they are too," Jets guard Brandon Moore said. "(It) definitely will be that kind of atmosphere coming up, so I think, to us, that's the biggest focus. Whatever rivalry there is, that'll be taken care of with all of the other type of things that come into play." The Jets are 3-point favorites, and don't anyone dare say that's for home-field advantage. Somehow, Pro Picks thinks the Giants will be comfortable at Met Life Stadium on Christmas Eve.

Aaron Rodgers is 2011 AP Male Athlete of Year

Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — When Aaron Rodgers needs to rekindle the feelings that drove his rise from a junior college quarterback to Super Bowl MVP, he doesn't have to look too far.

Rodgers held on to the many rejection letters he received from marquee college programs as he was coming out of high school. Even today, he leaves a few of them sitting out at his house.

"I chose the couple that I thought were most demeaning to display in a space in my house that really no-body is able to see but myself," Rodgers said. "It's something that I think is important to keep fresh on your mind. Maybe not every day, but once a week your eyes might pan across it and you have a little laugh about the journey you've been on at the same time, remembering that there still are people out there that you can prove something to.'

Good luck finding those doubters

Rodgers is the 2011 Male Athlete of the Year, chosen by members of The Associated Press, after he turned in an MVP performance in the Green Bay Packers' Super Bowl victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in February and then went on to lead his team on a long unbeaten run this season.

Rodgers received 112 votes out of the 212 ballots submitted from U.S. news organizations that make up the AP's membership. Detroit Tigers pitcher Justin Verlander finished second with 50 votes, followed by tennis standout Novak Djokovic (21), Carolina Panthers rookie quarterback Cam Newton (6) and NASCAR champion Tony Stewart (5).

Rodgers is one of three quarterbacks to receive the honor in the past five years. The New Orleans Saints' Drew Brees won in 2010 and the New England Patriots' Tom Brady won in 2007.

Rodgers says it still feels "surreal at times" to be considered among the biggest names in sports.

"Those guys are household names, the best of the best," Rodgers said. "(It's) special to win the award, and something I'll remember."

Through 14 games this season, Rodgers has completed 68.1 percent of his passes for 4,360 yards with 40 touchdowns and six interceptions. The Packers are 13-1, and Rodgers' play is leaving people speechless even his coach, Mike McCarthy.

the New York Giants.

Green Bay's 19-game winning streak came to an end at Kansas City on Sunday, but the Packers remain a strong favorite to repeat as champions. That's thanks in large part to Rodgers' knack for making big plays without major mistakes.

It has been a long and challenging journey out of obscurity for Rodgers, who wasn't offered a big-time scholarship out of high school and had to play a year in junior college. Then came his agonizing wait on draft day, three seasons on the bench behind Brett Favre and a tumultuous first year as a starter.

If Rodgers' path to stardom had been smoother, he says he wouldn't be the player — or person — he is

"It's something that gives me perspective all the time, knowing that the road I took was difficult. But it of Chico. His play there eventually supported Favre. He even was "I'm running out of things to say did shape my character and it got the attention of Cal coach Jeff booed at the team's "Family Night" about him," McCarthy said earlier shaped my game as well," Rodgers Tedford, and Rodgers transferred. scrimmage. a lot to get to where I am now and it's he didn't hear his name called until going to take a lot to stay where I'm

Strangely, earning widespread respect throughout the sports world could become a challenge in and of itself for Rodgers, who draws motivation from proving himself to his doubters and critics. Is that becoming more difficult?

"It would only be tougher if you stopped remembering or drawing or thinking about those things, Rodgers said. "And I think a great competitor has to have at least some sort of chip on their shoulder, or at least the attitude that you have something to prove every time you take the (field)."

the Packers chose him with the 24th overall pick.

Once in Green Bay, Rodgers found himself backing up Favre, a revered Packer who didn't necessarily like the idea that the team had put his eventual successor in place. Favre kept fans and the franchise on their toes every offseason, flirting with the idea of retiring but always coming back.

Then came the summer of 2008, when tension between Favre and the Packers' front office finally snapped after Favre retired, changed his mind and asked for his job back — or a chance to play elsewhere. Favre was traded to the New York Jets and Rodgers finally had WACO, Texas — Brittney Griner had 15 points, 13 rebounds and four blocks in just 24 minutes to help topranked Baylor beat Mc-Neese State 90-50 on Wednesday night.

Freshman Sune Agbuke also had a double-double with 10 points and 15 rebounds for Baylor (12-0), which had six players score in double figures.

Odyssey Sims had 16, Kimetria Hayden 15, Destiny Williams 13 points and Ashley Field scored 10.

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Bria Hartley scored 15 points and Kaleena Mosqueda-Lewis added 13 as No. 2 Connecticut bounced back from a rare regular season loss with a 72-24 victory over the College of Charleston on Wednesday night.

The Huskies' defense befuddled Charleston (2-8). The Cougars made just seven of their 49 shots (14 percent) and turned the ball over 24 times. Charleston's 24 points were just four away from the best defensive effort ever by the Huskies (10-1).

No. 17 Georgetown 71, No. 7 Miami 46

WASHINGTON — Sugar Rodgers scored 24 points and No. 17 Georgetown held seventh-ranked Miami to 21 percent shooting in a 71-46 rout Wednesday night.

The Hoyas (10-2) limited the nation's highest-scoring team to its smallest output of the season. They stifled the Hurricanes (9-2) from the start, going ahead 34-21 at halftime while holding Miami to just one field goal in the last six minutes, and maintained a double-digit lead the rest of the way.

With just over seven minutes remaining, Suriya McGuire hit a 3-pointer to bring Miami within 15. But the Hoyas answered with a 12-0 run, highlighted by Tia Magee's three-point play.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Harrison Barnes scored a season-high 26 points to help No. 5 North Carolina beat Texas 82-63 on Wednesday night.

John Henson added 14 points for the Tar Heels (11-2), who won their fifth straight and avenged last season's last-second loss to the Longhorns.

North Carolina went on a 13-1 run to build a doubledigit lead midway through the first half and never looked back, turning a 39-23 halftime lead into a 24-point margin late in the game.

If all you have, for example, is a copy of a bill of sale with the purchaser's name and signature on it, and that person subsequently abandons the vessel, you will be responsible for all costs of removing said vessel, and possibly subject to a fine. When an abandoned vessel is found, the only thing that matters is the name on the title.

While we're on the subject, if you happen to find an abandoned vessel, forget about simple salvage. You can't just recover the vessel and say it's now yours. In the state of Florida, there are no "Vessel Salvage Rights," and in order to claim title to an abandoned vessel, you must follow the "Statutes for Found Property." You must report said found property, in this case a boat, to law enforcement authorities. Once you've done that, you can begin the process of claiming it, not before.

Before you buy or sell a whether the title had been boat from or to a private individual, it would pay to make a visit to MyFWC.com, where you'll find some useful links for vessel buyers and sellers, describing exactly what's required. ABC's new sitcom 'Work It' gets detractors all worked up

NEW YORK — Viewers may find ABC's new sitcom "Work It" to be cringingly awful from an entertainment standpoint.

But the show, which depicts two out-of-work chaps who dress as women to land jobs in a tough economy, has drawn fire from groups with a different complaint: They say "Work It" mocks the transgender community.

"Though the show is not about transgender people, it's about the notion that men presenting as Graddick of the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation.

"It re-enforces inaccurate and tired stereotypes that are injurious to transgender Americans," said Fred Sainz of the Human Rights Campaign, a civil rights organization working on behalf of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender Americans.

HRC is joining GLAAD in urging supporters to ask ABC not to air the series, which is scheduled to premiere Jan. 3.

On Wednesday, the two organizations placed a full-page ad in Daily Variety whose headline declares: "Work It' will harm transgender people." The ad continues, "By encouraging the audience to laugh at the characters' attempts at womanhood, the show gives license to similar treatment of transgender

But is the campaign that targets "Work It" also, by extension, a broad cession," says a commiserating denunciation of one of entertain- friend. "Women are taking over the ment's most enduring devices: cross-dressing for comic effect?

This is a tradition that includes the late actor-drag queen Divine appearing in outrageous female roles in "Hairspray" and other John Waters films. Robin Williams played a man who adopted a persona as a Scottish nanny in the 1993 comedy "Mrs. Doubtfire." In 1982, "Tootsie" starred Dustin Hoffman as an outof-work actor who dresses up as a soft-spoken actress to land a woman's role on a soap opera.

The 1959 film classic "Some Like women is funny," said Herndon It Hot" starred Jack Lemmon and Tony Curtis as two straight guys who disguise themselves as women to seek refuge in an all-girl band after witnessing a mob hit.

The play, films and Broadway musical "La Cage aux Folles" depict the zany domestic life of a nightclub manager and his romantic partner, the star attraction in the club's drag performance. And on TV, Tom Hanks appeared with Peter Scolari in the 1980s sitcom "Bosom entry to a budget-priced apartment it. building which admitted only fe-

"It's not a recession, it's a man-work force."

Soon, Lee (Ben Koldyke) hears of openings for sales reps at a pharmaceutical company. But the company is looking for women, not men, to fill the slots.

The company has hired guys in the past, Lee learns, but they didn't work out: "The doctors seem to want to nail them less.'

Lee knows what he must do: He dresses up as a woman, however preposterously, and wins a job from the unsuspecting firm. So does his buddy, Angel (Amaury Nolasco), who is similarly costumed.

With their linebacker physiques, squeaky voices and amateurish makeup, neither man would fool a 5-year-old, which is meant to be part of the joke — whereupon laughs ensue (at least, from the show's high-decibel laugh track).

But while painfully unfunny, is Work It" poised to inflict real damage on the transgender community?

"If the net result of this show is that it makes it easier to laugh at transgender people or negates their experience in our society, it's something that's not continuing.

JULIANNE MUNN Chronicle food writer

ust a Cupcake Bakery and Café is the new specialty shop in Heritage Village in Crystal River and right now, it's flush with Christmas treats both for sale and made to order.

Lynn Coker is the owner at the bakery and café on Citrus Avenue, but this longtime baker offers much more than cupcakes. This week she has plenty of holiday three-layer cakes, cupcakes and cheesecakes, as well as soups and sandwiches.

Today in Flair for Food, she shares her unique recipes for Christmas pomegranate cupcakes and Boston cream cupcakes, two desserts that won't last long when you bring them home or share them at parties.

Coker, who lives in Citrus Springs with husband Ron and 19-year-old son Clinton said her experience spanned years of working in the bakery and deli at Kash 'n Karry Supermarket in Dunnellon, plus years of baking specialties for her family.

The couple also has two adult daughters, Shauna and Stacey, and two granddaughters, Haylea and McKenzey.

"Baking is my passion," she said, noting her retail baking venture started at the monthly Saturday Market Days on Citrus Avenue with a booth offering her cupcakes. "The first time out, I sold 40, and after that I could hardly keep up with the orders."

That's when she decided to move into her own shop, which once housed the Highlander Café (now two doors down the block).

Coker continues to support Market Day in a big way. She recently offered $5 pancake and sausage and a biscuit and gravy Heritage Village Shoppes. It day.

Baby boy blessing to family ur family Christmas gift came a bit early this year when the first great-grandson made his appearance among a virtual sea of great-granddaughters. And there is no doubt he will be the star of our holiday gettogether Dec. 25.

Stacey Joseph Daigneau IV will join his sisters, Anastassia DeMarie and Kristina Leigh, and cousin, Julia Belle, around the tree on Christmas morning. He will be with cousin Maya Lani in California in spirit.

Baby Stacey's sister, Anastassia, 15, was especially touched this week by the magic of the Christmas season and the miracle of birth. She wrote the following tribute to her new brother. She calls him "The Triple B."

"Baby, burden, blessing. It is a baby. They can be a burden, but they are a blessing. Just recently, I became aware of the fact that the little man who inhabits my house is absolutely a blessing from

"Every day I wake up, and am given the opportunity to stare into the face of complete innocence. But with every passing hour, I see intelligence and experience in his eyes. Those very things I also see shaping his overall look.

"No doubt, late at night when he is making the same repetitive loud cry, he seems to be a burden. Because then, you have to drag yourself out of bed to assess the situation, make sure everything is all right and possibly succeed in calming him down back into a slumber where he ought to be.

"Then I walk up to cribside (mildly grumpy) and can't help but automatically want to kiss him. Because that little baby has come to recognize me, proof from the evergrowing smile on his face. Babies are too innocent to be biased; they love and trust whoever loves them. I love my little brother so much.

"The real truth is that many people aren't expecting a baby, and maybe don't really want a baby. When they find out they are going to have one, the usual feeling of shock overtakes them. Although they think a burden has been delivered unto them, more often than not, they come to find it was nothing short of an unexpected blessing.

"I thank God every day for the miracle who is in the next room to me. I get to watch him grow and help to teach him. At the same time, he is teaching me and giving me things that only a Triple B can give.'

We feel so blessed to have our amazing children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. They are all the gifts we need or want.

From our home to yours, we hope you have the merriest Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year 2012!

Rotary collects for special auction

Rotary Club of Inverness will have an online and live television auction fundraising event Feb. 4, with proceeds benefitting the Rotary Club of Inverness Charitable Foundation.

This auction is a major fundraiser for scholarships, which last year provided $7,000 for Citrus High School and Withlacoochee Technical Institute students.

The club needs donations of items, a tax-deductible contribution, to help the foundation continue to help make life better for individuals in

Donor companies will also benefit with exposure of the company's name to those who attend and watch the event.

Businesses that donate items for the auction will also get exposure in the newspaper, online and in email marketing, as well as during the televised auction itself.

For more information or to make a donation, call Ron Lundberg at 352-746-9502, or email him at rjlundberg@ embargmail.com.

David Viscott, a psychiatrist and author who died in 1996, said: "To fail is a natural consequence of trying. To succeed takes time and prolonged effort in the face of unfriendly odds. To think it will be any other way, no matter what you do, is to invite yourself to be hurt and to limit your enthusiasm for trying again.'

I wonder if he was also a bridge player. In today's deal, declarer seems doomed to defeat after the defenders start well. However, if South spends some time looking for a line that will work, he will succeed in the face of unfavorable odds.

South is in four spades. West leads the diamond queen. East overtakes with his king, cashes the ace, and shifts to the heart jack. How should declarer continue?

Bridge North made a game-invitational limit raise. South went for the vulnerable game, hoping for the best. 12-22-11

If East held the heart king, he would not have captured both diamond tricks; he would have overtaken at trick one and returned a low diamond at trick two for a heart shift through dummy's ace. So there is no point in South's playing his queen.

However, although it looks as if declarer is destined to lose one heart, two diamonds and one club, he has one chance: West has fewer than three clubs.

South should take trick three with dummy's heart ace, draw trumps, cash his top clubs, and trump his last diamond before casting adrift with a heart. Here, West takes that trick but must concede a ruff-and-sluff. Declarer ruffs in the dummy and sluffs his remaining club.

Two years ago, my daughter was murdered by her abusive husband at the young age of 26. They had been separated for six months, and two days before he killed her, she had asked for a divorce.

My daughter was in this abusive relationship for eight years. We begged her to go to the Domestic Violence Service Center, but she never did. She was over the age of 18, but in hindsight, I wish I had forcibly driven her to the center myself.

All women in abusive relationships need to get help ASAP before they are murdered. We need to have mandatory education in our high schools about abusive dating, as well as bullying. — Mournful Dad in Wilkes Barre, Penn

Dear Dad: We send our heartfelt condolences and hope your letter will encourage others to get out of these abusive relationships before it's too late.

Strolling down Christmas memory lane resterday, after church services, we had our annual Christmas potluck dinner. As always there was way too much food

Casseroles, ham and cheese sandwiches, salads, vegetables, dip, puddings, cakes, pie, and so forth were on the menu. I took a big bowl of homemade potato

Our church district has a lot of little children, so there are plenty of people to feed on a day like that. More than 100 children are under the age of 16 in our church.

The potluck was held in the basement of the home where the services were. We set up the meal buffet-style. The men and boys filed through on one end and the girls and women on the other. The two serving lines helped things move faster.

to our house after the potluck and we played games. The girls popped popcorn and we had peanuts in shells to enjoy. It's a family tradition for us to have the peanuts in shells around Christmastime. My grandparents always had peanuts in shells and an orange in our bag of candy each Christmas.

Lovina Eicher THE AMISH COOK

mas at Grandpa Graber's on New Year's Day. They lived down the road from us. So my aunts, uncles and cousins gathered at our house early in the morning. We then all went over to grandpa's together. It was still dark when we got there early in the morning. Everyone gathered around their door and we sang the traditional New Year's song. Grandpa and Grandma came to the door Jacob. Emma and family came and while everyone kept singing we gathered into their house. Their house was attached to Uncle Henry and Aunt Barbara's that day.

Grandpa and Grandma sat on grandchildren lined up to take year to have our annual Christour turns to wish them a happy New Year. We were 88 grandchil-We always celebrated Christ- dren in all by the time I was a gatherings it is sometimes hard

NO AMISH COLUMN NEXT WEEK

■ Lovina Eicher is taking next week off from writing the column. She will, however, submit a recipe for readers to young girl, so it took awhile for everyone to greet them.

The years go so fast. Now my grandparents, mother, father, aunts and uncles have passed away. Four out of the eight of mother's siblings have passed

It was nice to receive a letter this past week from Aunt Lovina who lives in Ohio. I was named after her. I also happened to run into two of my cousins, who are Lovina's daughters, in town last week. We reminisced about growing up and all the good times we had together. It was nice to see them all again.

We are still planning to have house, which was also used for Joe's family here for Christmas on Jan. 7.

> My sister Leah and her husmas gathering. The Christmas season is filled with so many to find a day which suits everybody. Leah and Paul last had the Christmas gathering in 2004. It is hard to believe seven years have passed already.

We all take turns holding the annual gathering. There are eight siblings, but sister Susan and Verena take their turns together since they are both single.

The family has grown in the past seven years. None of my nieces and nephews were married seven years ago. Now eight of them are married and my parents have grandchildren.

On Thursday, Dec. 22, my husband Joe will have his 43rd birthday. That will be his last day of work this year. They will have two weeks off from the factory and go back to work Jan. 9.

Children will be home from school the same days Joe will. Kevin, 6, reminded me today we only have to sleep one more time before their Christmas school program. Joseph, 9, reminded us there are only six days until Christmas.

We wish each of our readers a their rockers while all of us band Paul will wait until next blessed Christmas. May you enjoy the holidays with friends and loved ones.

> Here is a different snack for Christmas:

FRUITY POPCORN BALLS

- 6 quarts plain popped popcorn
- 3 cups large marshmallows (about 36)
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons fruit-flavored gelatin

Place popcorn in a large bowl. In a medium saucepan over low heat, cook marshmallows, butter and gelatin until smoothly blended. Remove from heat and pour the marshmallow mixture over the popcorn and mix well. Form the popcorn mixture into 3-inch balls and let set until firm on lightly buttered cookie sheets. Makes 2 dozen.

Lovina Eicher and her husband, Joe, are raising eight children on their rural Michigan homestead. Lovina inherited the Amish Cook column from her mother, Elizabeth Coblentz. For information about the Amish Cook, or to ask a question, write The Amish Cook. P.O. BOX 157. Middletown, OH 45042 or visit amishcookonline.com.
