CIA thwarts ‘undetectable’ al-Qaida plot

Plan said to be a refinement of 2009 underwear bomb; FBI has device

WASHINGTON — The CIA thwarted an ambitious plan by al-Qaeda’s affiliate in Yemen to destroy a U.S.-bound airliner using a bomb with a sophisticated new design around the one-year anniversary of the killing of Osama bin Laden, U.S. officials said.

The plot involved an upgrade of the underwear bomb that failed to detonate aboard a jetliner over Detroit on Christmas 2009. This new bomb was also designed to be used in a run-up to this week’s anniversary, but this time Al-Qaeda developed a more refined detonation system, U.S. officials said.

The FBI is examining the latest clue to see whether it could have passed through airport security and triggered a false alarm.

“Somebody was very, very close to successfully smuggling this bomb on board a plane and getting it through airport security,” an official said. “We think they will have to try this again.”

The plot was foiled when a country official informed the FBI about the plan.

On Thursday, the U.S. and foreign governments announced the dismantling of a high-level al-Qaida terrorist network in Yemen.

The network, which included the group’s top bomb maker, was among a series of other recent important blows to the core of the organization, led by Ayman al-Zawahiri.

A senior U.S. official said the network, codenamed al-Asiri’s cell, was based in the southern Yemeni city of al-Qahira and was thought to be planning an attack on U.S. soil.

U.S. intelligence believes al-Asiri is leading a group of Qaeda affiliates in Yemen, and he could potentially be a bigger threat than the chief of al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, Khattab bin6.

The U.S. government hopes to have this cell dismantled by the end of May. The al-Asiri cell has been linked to at least four recent attacks, including a failed plot to blow up a U.S.-bound aircraft that was foiled by al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula nuclear experiment.

The al-Asiri cell is the most dangerous of the several al-Qaeda cells operating outside of Afghanistan, said a U.S. government official.

The group was identified by the CIA and the FBI as one of the most dangerous to U.S. interests.

The group is believed to be planning plots to target airliners with homemade bombs, and to have a network of operatives in Yemen capable of carrying out such attacks.

Kitchen: Budget could be balanced by 3 percent across-the-board cut Although Robarts said the county has eliminated more than 100 contract positions, Kitchen said he would not comment on Kitchen’s remarks.

Kitchen did not speak at the public workshops the county already has held. He said because of the three- month time limit and because he’s a candidate for public office, he met with Thorpe and Taylor for confidential conversations about political issues.

The next budget meeting is scheduled for July 5. At that meeting, Kitchen said he would address the final budget with the Citrus Chronicle reporter Chris Monk through an e-mail stream at chronicleonline.com or 352-984-2004.

Ramstein, Germany, where he lived the world. During his service, he was the key builder of the Port Royal Motel in Montgomery, N.Y., in 1970 and operated Dale’s American Station in Big Bay, N.Y., before moving to Homosassa, Fla., in 1972, where he resided for 40 years until his death. There he worked as a heavy equipment operator for Arnold and Son Construction for more than 10 years before joining Nu- manco Corporation in Virginia as a decontamination technician for the U.S. military. (Please note this service when submitting obituaries.)

In 1943, he married Jane Wilkins, a nurse, and in 1949, they moved to Homosassa, Fla., where they set up a home and raised their family. His time on the farm was the surrogate father and brother — “Pop” — to many dear friends.

Dale was born Jan. 12, 1930, in Hill City, Minn., on the family farm, the son of Willard and Helen Wilkins Sr., 82. He was predeceased by his wife, Mary, in 2011, and his daughter, Carol Wilkins Shepker.

They check banks, parks and schools for security. They also check businesses along County Road 491 and County Road 486 to Timberline Estates, Hernando Boulevard and Port Richey Boulevard.

In addition to the two phases of widening U.S. 19, FDOT has scheduled work on U.S. 41 from State Road 44 to East Arlington Street. The CAC added five projects for consideration:

- A failure with State Road 44 and County Road 401.
- Safety improvements and reconstructing C.R. 401.
- Evaluation of signage at South Apopka Avenue and West Hill Street. These projects have not been funded yet.
- The CAC also asked for an evaluation regarding the possibility of getting sidewalkers along North and South Buck Creek Road for the safety of pedestrians at Rock Crusher Elementary School in Homosassa.

As a result of U.S. 19 from four lanes to six lanes is one of many projects listed by a county advisory panel to be considered by the Hernando County Advisory Committee (CAC) for its next meeting on July 19 in the Inverness Room of the Hernando County Administration Center, County Building.

New System Impact on APD

With the implementation of the new iBudget system, there have been several impacts on the agencies and programs that receive funding.

Impact on APD:

- The new system has affected funding at the Agency for Persons with Disabilities (APD).
- The new system has led to budget reductions, which has impacted funding levels for APD.
- The new system has increased the number of consumers receiving services, as more people are able to access services due to the new funding formula.
- The new system has required APD to make difficult decisions about service reductions and funding cuts.
- The new system has led to increased administrative costs and paperwork for APD staff.

Impact on Consumers:

- Consumers have experienced changes in the services they receive.
- Some consumers may have lost access to services they previously received.
- Some consumers may have seen increases in service costs.
- Some consumers may have had to reduce their service levels.

Impact on APD Funding:

- The new system has affected funding for APD in several ways.
- APD has had to make cuts to services in order to stay within budget.
- APD is reducing services to some consumers in order to fund services for others.
- APD is implementing a new funding formula that looks at age, location, and various factors, including a person's living situation.

Impact on Fundraising:

- The new system has affected fundraising efforts for APD.
- APD is raising funds through various methods, including grants and donations.
- APD is seeking new sources of funding to help cover the costs of services.

Overall, the implementation of the new system has had significant impacts on APD and its ability to provide services to its clients.

The judge also ordered that she sign a helmet hood that people commit suicide has been sentenced to five years of supervised probation for failing to file the federal tax returns on her earnings.

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal appeals court on Monday reversed a decision that the Veterans Affairs Department dramatically overhauled its mental health care system. A special 11-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said that any changes made since be- lieved by Congress or the previous administrations.

The 10-1 ruling reversed an earlier decision by a three-judge panel of the same court. The May 2011 ruling had ordered the VA to ensure that suicidal vets are seen immediately, among other things. It found the VA's unexplained ineptitude in properly treating mental health claims was unconstitutional. The new decision said courts are powerless to implement fixes bought by two veterans groups that filed the lawsuit against the VA in 2007. The lawsuits alleged hun- dreds of thousands of veterans had to wait an average of four years to fully receive the mental health benefits owed them. "There can be no doubt that securing exemplary care for our nation's veterans is a moral imperative," Judge Jay Bybee wrote for the majority. "But Congress and the president are in far better position than the courts are to implement the fixes sought by two veterans groups that filed the lawsuit against the VA in 2007. Al-Qaida surprise attack kills 22 Yemeni soldiers

Associated Press

SANAA, Yemen — Al-Qaida militants staged a surprise attack Monday on a Yemeni army base in the south, killing 22 soldiers and capturing 14 and hours after a U.S. drone strike killed a senior figure in the terrorist network wanted in connection with the 2000 bombing of the USS Cole in Yemen.

It was not immediately clear if the predator struck the southern Abyan province was in retaliation for the killing of Fahd al-Quso, an Al-Qaida leader on the FBI’s most wanted list.

The militants managed to reach the base both from the sea and by land, gunning down troops and making away with weapons and other military hardware after the blitz attack. Yemeni military officials said.

Yemen’s Defense Ministry said in a statement the attackers killed 22 troops and wounded 12. It did not mention captured soldiers.

Government forces later killed militant positions situated in Abyan, killing 16 militants, said the officials, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to reporters.

The officials said the militants captured 21 soldiers from the base. In a text message to reporters, al-Qaida said it was holding 22 soldiers. The difference in numbers could not be immediately reconciled.

Yemen has been waging an offensive on al-Qaida, whose fighters took advantage of the country’s political turmoil during the past year to expand their hold in the south, seizing entire cities and towns and large areas of land. Yemen’s presidential capital of Sana’a has been held by al-Qaida for a year.

On Sunday, al-Quso, the top al-Qaida figure killed by the U.S. in Yemen, was killed in a drone strike in Pakistan. He was on the FBI’s most wanted list, with a $5 million reward for information leading to his capture. He was indicted in the U.S. for his role in the 2000 bombing of the USS Cole in the harbor of Aden, Yemen, in which 17 American sailors were killed and 39 injured.

He served more than five years in a Yemeni prison for his role in the attack and was released in 2007. He briefly escaped prison in 2009 but later turned himself in to serve the rest of his sentence.

The drone strike was carried out by the CIA, after an extended surveillance operation by the CIA and U.S. military, two U.S. officials said, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to reporters.

The operation is an intelligence victory for the United States and a reminder of the terrorist group’s branch in Yemen’s southern Shabwa province, out of his vehicle along with another operative in the southern Shabwa province, Yemeni military officials said.

What about grass?
I notice, unfortunately, with much regularity that the Chronicle and its readers pontificate about what others should do with their own property.

Petitions to limit or modify that seem to abound.

History tells me un-equivocally if third parties are to have any say at all as to what a property owner can do with his or her property, he or she by definition opening the door to restrictions to be levied on his or her property as well.

In this country we have laws that safeguard us of any and all restrictions and agreements among the property owners whereby no one can use or inhabit that property as he or she pleases. Fewer the agreements, the better the protection from others.

Property rights are the bedrock of our Constitution, an economic and political right that is protected by a petition, as the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution by which any property subject to be taken for a public use, must be due and liberated to the owner for the use and therefore may not be taken without due process of law.

For a neighbor, through whose property the highway runs, the “right” is to have that highway constructed somewhere else.

Polite Politics of hate
It was with some considerable pleasure that I read Dr. Mr. William J.

Shea’s letter of April 23, urging the community to make all drivers of all ages be courteous and quiet in their actions.

I am delighted to know that there are some in the community that say “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.”

I will add, “Because they will.”

Excellent golfing
The Okey Ryan Golf Tournament was held on April 30, at the beautiful Southern Winds Country Club. The weather was sunny and warm and a total of 44 participants played. The course was in great condition and there were a number of excellent scores recorded. The father for Southern Winds did an excellent job.

The event raised a total of $4,300.00, which was dedicated to sending 10 area children in the Elk’s Youth Camp in Umatilla, Fl. We need to thank all those who played as well as those who donated to this cause. The players are too numerous to mention, but the sponsors need special mention for their generosity. We are very happy we had the opportunity to be in Citrus County and wish all the best to the Elks, The Ryan Children — Home; Homosassa Print; Oke.

Key Realty One, Inc., — operating a full-service agency, was the major sponsor for the event. A total of 120 golfers, including the primaries and their partners (management, workers, superintendents, etc.) who comprise their organization, made up the tournament, most of whom were part of the group that included the Ryan Children’s report.

It’s not a job that requires playing, but we hope that all those that take part will have a good time. I would like to thank all those who participated in the tournament and those who support the Elks.

Build momentum
Re: “EDC upbeat on job growth,” April 27.

In your article I noticed the obvious lack of discussion concerning FHP's failures having nothing to do with it. I’ve travelled many years of voting ever seen

now in all of my many years as an adult.

That option with the possible discussion of reduction of fines.

I have no alternative to his vote against President Obama. I have a recommendation for a vote that I hope you will consider. It is, “no, who and why?” This is not a productive political dia-

Three defenses reserve right to appeal punishment in cash-for-hit bounty case

Hargrove and Scott Fujita.

The Associated Press. "I've yet to hear the specifics of any allegation," said NFLPA's executive committee chairman, Minnesota Vikings defensive end Everson Griffen, who is among players who have appealed the league's findings.

The players' maneuvers came on the same day copies of a sworn statement by Hargrove were obtained by media, including the AP. The statement described how he was instructed by ex-defensive coordinator Greg Schiano to challenge the existence of a bounty program to NFL investigators.

The interpretation of his statement is a matter of debate, however.

NEW ORLEANS — Saints inside linebacker Jonathan Vilma and three others inducted into World Golf Hall of Fame were inducted Monday into the World Golf Hall of Fame at World Golf Village in St. Augustine, Florida. Other inductees included Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Minjee Lee of Australia and Peter Alliss, a Golf Channel broadcaster.

Mickelson congratulated the others in his class and said, "They can attest that you can't slow down your dreams until you dream big." Jenkins and Alliss provided the laughter.

Mickelson, named him a ringleader in the operation, challenged the league's findings.

Gilbertson outduels Butler for TBARA victory at speedway

Special to the Chronicle

Citrus County Speedway fans packed the grandstands to see the first TBARA sprint car show in two years.

Eighteen-winger outlaw sprint cars lined up to the green flag for the start of the 30-lap feature. As the green flag waved out for long before two cautions arose.

Among heat-race winners were Jamal Al Azrak (22) and Mickey Kemphagen (75) in Turn 4 sent Kemphagen into the concrete retaining wall, bringing out the red flag. Kemphagen fell against the Turn 4 wall as EMT staff looked over him. Al Azrak was unscathed, but the same could not be said for him.

Other winners were Heat three winner, Shane Butler (14) fell from the front to the back on the final lap. As the field crawled back to the start/finish line Sharone was flipped near the concrete wall, flipping over several times. Jeremy Sharrone (32) joined the fray in the heat-race winners.

Bresnahan battled back each time. Butler came home in second, with Shannon Kennedy (46) close behind.

Upcoming races

This week the speedway will welcome back Super Late Model, Modified, Stock Street, Mini Stocks, and the Southeast Championship. Gates open at 4 p.m. Racing takes the green at 6:30 p.m.
Hail to the three-hitter

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Carlos Zambrano pitched a three-hitter for his first win of the season and Giancarlo Stanton extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a two-run homer, leading the Miami Marlins to their seventh straight win with a 4-0 victory over the Houston Astros.

Stanton’s homer into the Crawford Boxes in left field put Miami up 2-0 in the fourth inning and gave him six homeruns and 12 RBIs during the run.

John Buck extended the lead to 3-0 when he sent the first pitch of the fifth inning into the right-field stands. Hanley Ramirez added a solo shot, which bounced off the train tracks. Logan Morrison walked with one out before Stanton went deep.

Stanton hit his 14th homer of the season and gives him six in the past nine games with a two-run homer, leading the Miami Marlins to their seventh straight win.

Judge nixes ‘60 Minutes’ clip of Clemens

Perjury trial against former MLB pitcher enters fourth week

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A sketch of Roger Clemens’ April 12 church service was part of the exhibits in the perjury trial where the pitcher is accused of lying to Congress in 2008 when he testified he never took steroids.

The Associated Press asked the judge to allow the exhibit to be shown to the jury, and Judgeagate to the trial on Tuesday. The trial was expected to last through the week.

On Tuesday, the trial entered its fourth week.

The trial has been largely focused on the question of whether Clemens took steroids or not.

Clemens has denied taking performance-enhancing drugs, and his lawyers have tried to cast doubt on the credibility of witnesses who have testified against him.

The trial has been described as one of the most high-profile and high-stakes legal battles in recent years.

Clemens has faced criminal charges in the past and has been subject to other legal proceedings related to his time in baseball.

The trial is expected to conclude in the coming weeks, with a verdict expected in the summer.

Beverly Hills landmark celebrates a century

Beverly Hills, Calif. — A protein-packed delight on a bed of lettuce. "This is some of the best food I've ever had," Anderson said. "It's just thrown together with some fresh fruits and vegetables, and it's really satisfying."

The Beverly Hills Hotel was built around it. It remains one of the most sought-after destinations in the world, filled with celebrities and royalty. People who have stayed there, from Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor to Madonna and Reese Witherspoon, rave about it. It is a place where people can come to relax and be surrounded by beauty.

Beverly Hills, Calif. — The Beverly Hills Hotel celebrated its 100th birthday on Friday with a star-studded event that included music, food and drinks. The hotel has been a favorite spot for celebrities, royalty and politicians. It is also a place where people have come to relax and be surrounded by beauty.

The book follows the hotel's history from its opening in 1912 to the present day, when celebrities such as Barbra Streisand and Cher stayed there. "We're lining up a slate of big names," Anderson said. "It's been a lot of fun to put together the roster of famous guests who have stayed there in the past."
Vogue bans too-skinny models from its pages

SARAH L. MILLER, NEW YORK

The world of fashion is not one that is simply about closets and clothes. It is a world that has significant impact on mental and physical health. Vogue, the iconic fashion magazine, has recently announced that it will no longer use models who are too thin. This move has been welcomed by many, as it addresses the issue of body image and the impact it has on young women.

According to a recent study, children and adolescents who are subjected to body image pressures and societal beauty standards are at a higher risk of developing eating disorders. The pressure to be thin is often created by the fashion industry, which promotes a certain body type as ideal.

Vogue’s decision to ban overly thin models is a step towards creating a healthier image in the fashion industry. This move can help to prevent the development of eating disorders among young people. It is important to note that this change is not just about the models, but also about the messages that are being sent.

In conclusion, Vogue’s ban on too-skinny models is a positive step towards creating a healthier image in the fashion industry. This move can help to prevent the development of eating disorders among young people. It is important to continue to support and encourage healthy body image messages.

Eat fish, get fewer polyps?

D uring the past several years, the health benefits of fish have been well-documented. Fish is a rich source of omega-3 fatty acids, which are essential for heart health and brain function. In addition, fish contains high levels of protein and low levels of saturated fat, making it a healthy choice for any diet.

A recent study published in the journal Cancer Epidemiology, Biomarkers & Prevention found that regular consumption of fish was associated with a lower risk of colorectal polyps, which can develop into colorectal cancer if left untreated. The study included over 1,600 participants, and found that those who ate fish at least once a week had a 30% lower risk of colorectal polyps compared to those who ate fish less than once a week.

The researchers concluded that fish may help to reduce the risk of colorectal polyps, which could be due to the anti-inflammatory properties of fish. However, more research is needed to confirm these findings.

In conclusion, eating fish regularly may offer some health benefits, including a lower risk of colorectal polyps. However, more research is needed to fully understand the potential health benefits of fish.

Dental X-ray study flawed

R ecently, there has been much media attention on the importance of dental X-rays. Many experts have suggested that dental X-rays are necessary for effective dental care, and that they should be performed regularly to detect and treat dental problems early.

However, a recent study published in the journal Radiology has raised concerns about the accuracy and reliability of dental X-ray imaging. The study found that the results of dental X-rays can be affected by a variety of factors, including the type of X-ray machine used, the skill of the technician, and the position of the patient during the scan.

The researchers concluded that dental X-rays are not always reliable, and that more research is needed to fully understand the potential risks and benefits of this imaging technology. It is important for patients to discuss their individual needs with their dentist, and to work together to determine the best course of action for their specific situation.

In conclusion, dental X-rays can be a valuable tool for detecting and treating dental problems. However, more research is needed to fully understand the potential risks and benefits of this imaging technology.
Cruciferous veggies help cancer survivors

The researchers investigated the role of cruciferous vegetables in breast cancer survivorship in the Shuang Himal Breast Cancer Survivor Study, a prospective study of 4,886 Chinese breast cancer survivors diagnosed with stage I to stage IV breast cancer from 2002 to 2008. They conducted a randomized trial to determine if consuming cruciferous vegetables did not decrease the risk of mortality and rate of recurrence.

“Commonly consumed cruciferous vegetables in China, such as cabbage, broccoli, choy and greens, while broccoli and Brussels sprouts are the more commonly consumed cruciferous vegetables in the United States and other Western countries. Second, the amount of intake among Chinese women is much higher than that of U.S. women. The levels of bioactive compounds such as sulfur compounds and indoles, proposed to play a role in the antioxidant effects and prevention on both the amount and type of cruciferous vegetable consumed,” she explained. How does this apply to our breast cancer survivor population in Citrus County? "Consider eating more cruciferous vegetables. I do not think you need to eat just what the Chinese population eats. Several studies have suggested eating green leafy veggies like broccoli and spinach. Though the study was done in breast cancer survivors, it very likely applies to all cancer survivors. Eating healthy and regular exercise always helps.
