River plan debated Residents concerned about MFLs

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff Writer

LECANTO — All the data in the world doesn't mean a thing to Chris Laughlin.

Laughlin lives on the Homosassa River and has seen its quality degrade over the years. Once sandy bottoms are now muck. Birds are disappearing. Barnacles — a sign of salt water intrusion — can be found in the main spring.

So she isn't swayed by the Southwest Florida Water Management District's reams of data that show proposed minimum flows for the river will be ecologically safe.

"I beg you to take your eyes off the data and look at the river!" she said. "Use good, logical common sense and actual observation of the river itself to see it cannot tolerate any further manmade reduction of flow."

Laughlin was among about 110 people attending the water district's public meeting Tuesday night at the Lecanto Government Center.

The water district, which attendees often referred to as

NEWS BRIEF

Presidential debate tonight

Domestic policy is the subject of Wednesday's debate between President Barack Obama and Republican challenger Mitt Romney. The 90-minute debate will be divided into six segments of approximately 15 minutes each. The first three segments will focus on the economy, and the last three on health care, the role of government and governing. Moderator Jim Lehrer will open each segment with a question, after which each candidate will have two minutes to respond. The moderator will use the balance of the time in the segment for a discussion of the topic.

The debate begins at 9 p.m. Find out more on Page A7.

Local man killed in Afghanistan

Civilian contractor was one of two Americans slain Saturday

NANCY KENNEDY

HERNANDO — Kevin O'Rourke died as he lived, serving others.

The 52-year-old O'Rourke was one of the two Americans killed in Afghanistan on Saturday. At the time of his death, he was a civilian contractor with NATO, working for Engility, a law enforcement professional firm based in Alexandria, Va.

He was also a resident of Terra Vista, a retired member of the New York Police Department, a father of two teenagers, a man of Christian faith, a patriot.

Wherever there was danger, O'Rourke was there, said his friend and former NYPD colleague John Moran.

"He was not only there, but he was usually the first man in," he said.

The two had been assigned to NYPD Emergency Services, a cross-trained unit that went out on SWAT details and also heavy rescue.

in high-risk, emotional situations — people barricading themselves or threatening to jump off a building or in front of a train," Moran said.

On Sept. 11, 2001, O'Rourke missed being killed in the World Trade Center disaster by 20 minutes and spent 22 hours helping dig out a friend who had been trapped in the rubble.

"It didn't surprise me that Kevin chose to go to Afghanistan," Moran said. "When we were working in New York, a lot of young soldiers would come up and ask us about what happened after the attacks of 9/11 and our experiences, and Kevin saw a great need to try and help the younger generation understand what we went through in

'We just ask for justice'

Dave Higgins, left, brother of Derrick Vaccianna who was shot and killed last Wednesday night, is consoled by his father, Derrick Vaccianna Sr., on Tuesday afternoon outside of the Old Courthouse in Inverness during a press conference. A lawyer from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) discussed the shooting and the fact he has been retained by the Vaccianna family.

Lawyer: Deputy-involved shooting stemmed from 'love triangle' gone awry — INVERNESS The family and friends of Derrick Vaccianna met on the Old Courthouse lawn Tuesday to plead for justice as Chuck Hobbs, attorney for the family of the young man who was shot and killed by Citrus County Sheriff's Deputy Gregory Entrekin last Wednesday, held a press conference.

Chuck Hobbs

According to earlier reports, Vaccianna, 28, had confronted Entrekin, who was off duty, and a then-unnamed woman at her residence on Eden Drive. Following a brief verbal confrontation and tussle, Entrekin fired a shot, striking Vaccianna in the chest.

Vaccianna was transported to Citrus Memorial Health System, where he later died.

Reading from a letter being sent to Gerald Bailey, Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) commissioner, Hobbs said, "The family would like to draw your personal attention to several news accounts reporting the Citrus County Sheriff's Office's suggestion that "... I came to the conclusion that there's more here than meets the eye. I called the state NAACP office and said, 'We've got an issue here, reminiscent of the Trevon Martin case.'

Mr. Vaccianna was a 'burglar.' We believe that the evidence will show that the decedent was involved in a long-term romantic relationship with a Miss Amanda Vance, who is apparently also in

Regulator OKs Citizens rate hikes

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida companies and homeowners doing business with the state-backed Citizens Property Insurance Corp. will see double-digit premium increases in most cases early next year.

The state's insurance regulators announced Tuesday they have approved the increases scheduled to take effect as early as Jan. 1.

The Office of Insurance Regulation said Tuesday it approved a 10.8 percent increase on multi-peril homeowners' policies and an 8.8 percent increase on dwelling fire rates. Homeowners with sinkhole coverage will see an increase of 21.4 percent on their bills and those with dwelling fire policies wanting sinkhole coverage will be increased by 44.8 percent. Most take effect Jan. 1. Rates for wind-only policies take effect Feb. 1.

"Our primary goal is to ensure Citizens policyholders are treated fairly and retain an opportunity to return back to a robust private insurance market," Florida Insurance Commissioner Kevin McCarty said.

Sen. Mike Fasano, R-New Port Richey, condemned the increases.

"They just don't get it in Tallahassee," Fasano said Tuesday. "We'd all like to see Citizens get depopulated, but not at the cost to a homeowner having to give up their home."

McCarty defended the newest rate hikes as a reasonable approach toward moving Citizens' customers closer to actuarially-supported rates. OIR is scheduled to announce its decision on rate increases on mobile home and commercial lines policies later this month.

Citizens' spokeswoman Christine Ashburn said Tuesday that the company is working with the state to develop more sound rates to help customers find private insurance coverage.

Citizens' has been boosting its rates in recent years to reach parity with private commercial carriers in consumer advocate and founder of the Policyholders of Florida. "Citizens is getting away with charging more for less and policyholders and our economy are worse off because of it."

Florida insurance regulators last month approved another 60,000 policies for removal from the state-backed insurer OIR had earlier approved 150,000 policies to be acquired by four Florida domestic companies beginning in November. Citizens' policyholders were to be notified of the take-out request Oct. 1, and will have 30 days to accept or reject the offer. If policyholders do not respond, they'll be "assumed" by a private-sector company.

Staff urges denial of zoning change

CHRIS VAN ORMER

County staff will recommend denial of a company's request to change a residential area on County Road 486 to commercial when the planning panel meets Thursday.

Genesis Group for C.R. 486 LLC will ask the Citrus County Planning and Development Commission to amend the county's comprehensive plan concerning a 61.75-acre parcel at 3499 W. Norwell Bryant Highway (C.R. 486) to allow for commercial development.

A planning staff report indicates the area is environmentally sensitive and not suited to an increase in density. Furthermore, the residential density allowable on the site would increase from four units per acre to 10 units per acre, which exceeds that of the surrounding residential areas.

If granted, according to the staff report, the application would result in the removal of a designation for office space along C.R. 486 that serves as a transitional buffer between the commercial uses area along County Road 491 and the residential land uses to the west.

For these reasons, according to the report, the application is inconsistent with the goals, objectives and policies of the comprehensive plan.

In another comprehensive plan amendment:

■ Approval will be recommended at the transmittal phase of a 10-year water supply facilities work plan that is required by

Florida statute. The deadline for the county to amend its comprehensive plan to adopt a work plan is Jan. 26, 2013. The purpose of the plan will be to identify and plan for the water supply sources and facilities needed to serve existing and new development within the county government's jurisdiction.

Third victim dies in VFW shooting

WINTER SPRINGS — All three members of a motorcycle club who were shot outside a Veterans of Foreign Wars post in central Florida have died.

Winter Springs police reported Dave Jakiela died Tuesday, two days after being hospitalized. He was shot Sunday morning as members of a chapter of the Warlocks motorcycle club were meeting at the VFW for a charity ride. Also killed in the gunfire were Harold Liddle and Peter Schlette.

The gunfire erupted after other bikers showed up, Winter Springs police reported. Police officers responded and confiscated multiple weapons.

Victor Amaro, Robert Eckert, David Maloney and Paul Smith were each charged with two counts of homicide and one count of attempted homicide. Police expect to upgrade the attempted homicide in light of the third death. All four men were being held without bail.

The Orlando Sentinel reported the Warlocks were founded in Orange County in the late 1960s by Navy veteran Tom "Grub" Freeland. The club now has chapters throughout the U.S., England and Germany.

Members of the Pennsylvania Warlocks motorcycle club came to Florida to establish a chapter in Seminole County earlier this year but are not associated with the Florida Warlocks. According to records, the four men who were charged in the shooting are associated with the Pennsylvania club.

Kite-flying man struck by lightning

VILANO BEACH — Authorities said a man who was flying a large kite is in stable condition after being struck by lightning on a northeast Florida beach.

The St. Johns County Sheriff's Office said Weltzien Falk of St. Augustine was flying the kite with his son Monday afternoon on Vilano Beach.

Deputies told The St. Augustine Record that Falk's son, Kai, said he saw a flash of lightning and felt a tingle. Then he saw that his father had fallen to the ground.

Falk had been wearing a harness with metal rings that attached strings to the kite.

A bystander performed CPR on Falk until rescue workers arrived. Authorities said Falk had burn marks on his left shoulder. His son was not injured.

Officials said the 19-year-old capuchin monkey named Mookie will be quarantined for 30 days to ensure he doesn't show any symptoms of rabies.

Brevard County Animal Services Capt. Bob Brown told Florida Today Mookie and its owner, Brad Berman, were approached Saturday on Merritt Island by a couple who wanted to pet the animal.

MERRITT ISLAND — A pet monkey has been quarantined in its owner's home after biting a man.

Officials said the 19-year-old capuchin monkey named Mookie will be quarantined for 30 days to ensure he doesn't show any symptoms of rabies.

Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission officers shot and killed the bear Sunday.

Commission spokesman Jorge Pino said the bear charged at an officer who tried to back away. Pino said the officer fired as a last resort.

'Red Dog' Rosie takes bad turn; medical bills mounting

Dog rescue mission soliciting donations

ERYN WORTHINGTON
Staff Writer

Many readers fell in love with 'Red Dog,' a female Border collie mix at Midway Animal Hospital in Homosassa that was featured in the Chronicle's Sept. 27 edition, and inquired about adopting her.

Ellen Pavlik, practice manager and president of Joshua's House for Golden Retriever Rescue Inc., said Rosie, Red Dog's new name, cannot be adopted until she is deemed healthy.

Sadly, Pavlik said Rosie has taken a turn for the worse.

Last week, Rosie was taken to an emergency care center in Ocala, where an orthopedic specialist found her hip was dislocated, her wounds were infected and she had a small seizure.

Because she was in critical condition and in need of hospitalization, Rosie has been transferred to Affiliate Veterinary Specialists in Maitland. She is receiving intravenous fluids and antibiotics.

An ultrasound showed she also has a hernia and swelling. Furthermore, doctors plan to do surgery to fix the breaks in her pelvis once she is medically stable.

"If she has her surgery, medical bills could exceed $7,000 to $8,000," Pavlik said.

Joshua's House has been taking responsibility for medical expenses. However, it is now finding itself in need of donations for Rosie's care.

Donations may be mailed to Joshua's House, P.O. Box 513 Lecanto, FL 34460 or taken to Midway Animal Hospital in Homosassa in care of Joshua's House at 1635 S. Suncoast Blvd.

For more information on how to donate to Rosie, call Joshua's House at 352-228-7573.

State BRIEFNew child abuse law in effect

TALLAHASSEE — A new law providing better protection for children across Florida went into effect Monday. The legislation, signed by Gov. Rick Scott earlier this year, requires any individual who suspects that a child has been abused by any person to report that to the Florida Abuse Hotline.

Any allegations a child was abused or neglected by a caregiver will be investigated by the Department of Children and Families, while allegations of child abuse by someone other than a caregiver will be accepted at the Hotline and immediately electronically transferred to the appropriate local law enforcement agency where the child lives.

New York. That's why he felt he really needed to bring this to them overseas."

As a "LEP," a law enforcement professional, O'Rourke was embedded with American troops, going out on patrol with them, doing forensics work and teaching it to the U.S. military as well as the Afghan army, explained John Brex, O'Rourke's neighbor and one of his dearest friends.

"The (Afghans) were using improvised rocket devices and what Kevin did was to determine where the steel they used came from, how they're making the bombs," Brex said. "They viewed this more as criminal activity rather than military activity."

The day O'Rourke was killed he was returning from a mission and had stopped at an Afghan army checkpoint just outside a joint

U.S.-Afghan base in Wardak province when an Afghan soldier turned his gun on O'Rourke and another American, according to an Associated Press report.

"He was like a son to me," Brex said. "He moved here around the same time we did, about nine years ago. I just spoke with him last week. He sounded exhausted and indicated he was in combat every day. He asked that we send him toilet paper, 40-watt light bulbs and sticky rodent traps. ... I can't believe he won't be sitting on my couch anymore, drinking Scotch."

Moran said O'Rourke was the reason he moved to Citrus County. They had served in New York together and then later as volunteers with a nonprofit disaster-response organization based out of New Jersey.

"We went to New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina and then to Haiti after the earthquake," he said.

Brex said he had tried to talk O'Rourke out of going to Afghanistan — he had previously been in Iraq — but O'Rourke told him, "I have to do this."

He had to serve. He had to be in the midst of action and chaos, doing his best to bring order and calm.

O'Rourke was a member of Seven Rivers Presbyterian Church in Lecanto. He rode a Harley, had a great sense of humor, loved NASCAR and scuba diving. He did trim work and curbing, was extremely handy around the house. He was good at figuring stuff out — and made the best Italian tomato sauce you ever tasted.

"He was always there for you," Brex said. "He was a generous man, would give you the shirt off his back. He had a warrior spirit. He loved our country and loved his kids deeply, and I miss him deeply already."

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Swiftmud, has proposed rules on well water withdrawals that could remove 3 percent of flow in the Homosassa River and 9 percent in the Chassahowitzka River. The water district governing board is expected to make a final decision at its Oct. 30 meeting in Brooksville.

District officials say state law requires minimum flows and levels for rivers and lakes. The law states the minimum flow cannot cause "significant harm" to habitat, but it doesn't define "significant harm."

The water district, using a panel of scientists, set that definition at 15 percent potential loss of habitat.

Doug Leeper, an environmental scientist with the water district, told the crowd that study after study shows the minimum levels recommended will not cause further degradation of either river.

Residents who live along the Chassahowitzka or Homosassa rivers say damage is already occurring from over-pumping of groundwater. The water withdrawals, they say, is lowering water levels and allowing saltwater intrusion further inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

John Zeto, who has lived 45 years in Chassahowitzka, predicted the situation will get worse with the water district plan.

"I'll have questions when my well water turns to salt," he said.

Homosassa resident

Ernest Bader said the fact that water district officials are unsure what's causing degradation in the rivers makes him wary of their assurances.

"I kind of feel really bad because I don't think Swiftmud is doing their job," he said. "If we don't know what's killing the fish, how are we supposed to trust this data?"

His wife, Kathy, noted they have seen much change in the river during the 18 years they've lived there.

"The change is amazing," she said. "It's obvious to anyone who lives near the water."

Katie Tripp, representing the Save the Manatee Club, told district officials that residents have a birds' eye view of the damage.

"They don't actually care what your model says," she said. "They care about what they see on the river."

Chassahowitzka resident Jack Calbeck agreed.

"We've lost way more than 15 percent of our habitat," he said. "Stop it. Cut it off. We've had it."

Hernando, "according to my preliminary investigations, Mr. Vaccianna had a key to the residence and often spent the night there with Miss Vance. Further, we believe the evidence will show that while the decedent and Miss Vance were in the process of breaking up their relationship, Miss Vance had contacted Mr. Vaccianna numerous times before and on the day of his death, asking for a reconciliation."

Hobbs called the circumstances of Vaccianna's death a "love triangle that clearly went awry that led to the killing of an unarmed man."

After Hobbs spoke, Paul Douglas, president of the Hernando County chapter of the NAACP, shared his concern that the incident might have a racial component.

"Two days ago, I was called to come to Inverness, Florida," Douglas said. "In talking with neighbors and friends I came to the conclusion that there's more here than meets the eye. I called the state NAACP office and said,

"We've got an issue here, reminiscent of the Trevor Martin case," referring to the shooting of the unarmed black 17-year-old in Sanford in February.

Hobbs said he has confidence that the FDLE investigation will be "fair and impartial" and urged everyone to be patient with the process.

"It hurts to hear that my son is being called a burglar," said Derrick Vaccianna Sr. "That's my son. Nobody can bring him back; now we just ask for justice."

After the press conference concluded, the friends of Derrick Vaccianna met to share their memories of their friend. He played soccer, loved wearing button-down shirts, fitted caps and neckties. Pink was one of his favorite colors. He was an amazing dancer. He was the life of the party, the center of attention.

He liked to cook and liked to feed his friends, especially "rasta pasta," made with marinara sauce and curry powder.

You didn't touch his face, nails or his clothes, but if you needed anything, he'd give it to you, friends said.

If you asked him for a dollar, he'd reach into his pocket and say, "All I've got is 57 cents, but you can have it," one friend said.

The shooting death remains under investigation by the FDLE. Deputy Entrekkin, who was hired by the CCSO on Aug. 6, was placed on paid administrative leave until further notice.

FIRE

good things this year and we can now serve the public better. We've moved forward."

One new process adopted by the fire service involves modified vehicles and small crews called squads.

Squads are in place at the Kensington and Beverly Hills stations and Morabito says the Inverness Highlands station has a modified vehicle that operates in a similar fashion.

The two-person response team leaves the station in a truck modified with various rescue equipment that allows the responders the ability to handle many fire scenes, medical calls as well as vehicle accidents. It provides advanced, basic-life support.

The squad truck, far more compact than a large fire engine, is equipped with a 400-gallon tank to fight fires.

Deputy Fire Chief Jim Goodworth, a 29-year veteran in emergency medical and fire services, says the new squad approach expends fewer resources, such as fuel and manpower.

"This is a quick-response vehicle," he said. "We're able to get on scene quicker now. We're not replacing a fire engine, this is just a tool in our tool box."

Goodworth also explained how fire services is using new technology known as "F-500 encapsulating agent" to combat fire.

"What that foam does is encapsulates the hydrocarbons. Hydrocarbons are the fuel of fire," he said. "What the foam does is goes and pulls those hydrocarbons out and without that fuel, you have the extinguishment of fire."

Traditional firefighting methods utilize water to put fire out, but Goodworth said water is not nearly as efficient as the foam.

"The difference between the two is that water cools the fire, however, a big fire takes big water," he said.

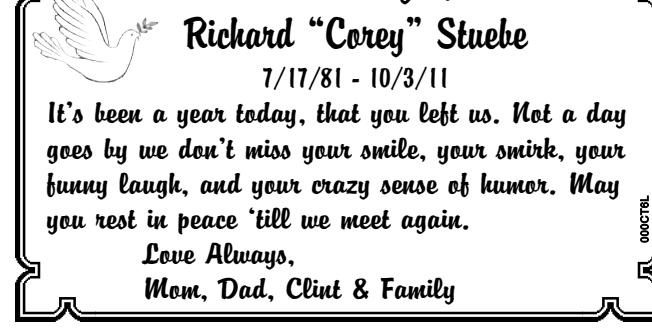

County Commissioner Joe Meek said public safety is a top priority. Meek sat on the Public Safety Task Force that was involved in examining the pros and cons of a merger, which faced some opposition.

"I think it's very important for the community to see that this is working," he said. "We faced a serious situation in Citrus County where we didn't have the revenue to hire additional firefighters, we had coverage areas lacking and our volunteer base was declining. We embarked upon a journey to make ourselves better and over the last year we have been able to address each of these issues."

Members of the Citrus County Sheriff's Office highlighted the openings of three new fire stations, in Floral City, Sugarmill Woods and DeRosa.

Dawsy was on hand to perform their duties during the demonstrations.

"The whole goal was to use all the resources we have, to combine them so that we give a better product to give the citizens," he said. "We're focused now. And that main focus is on the citizens."

A debate in three parts

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — There's more to Wednesday night's presidential debate than just the 90 minutes onstage. For the campaigns, it's a three-part performance:

Part I: Aw-shucks time

Setting low expectations can help a so-so performance seem like a success.

So in the days before their first meeting, President Barack Obama called Republican challenger Mitt Romney "a good debater" and deemed his own skills "just OK." His aides groused that Romney got more rehearsal time, while Obama was busy being president.

For his part, Romney praised Obama as "a very eloquent, gifted speaker." And, despite his numerous GOP primary match-ups, Romney noted, "I've never been in a presidential debate like this."

Part II: Tension city

The first of the three pres-

Associated Press

Stand-ins for moderator Jim Lehrer, center, Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney, left, and President Barack Obama, right, run through a rehearsal for a debate Tuesday at the University of Denver in Denver. President Barack Obama and Republican presidential candidate and former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney will have their first debate Wednesday.

idential debates — starting at 9 p.m. EDT in Denver — should bring the biggest audience of any campaign event. More than 52 million TV viewers watched Obama's initial match-up with John McCain in 2008. Despite all the rehearsal, something's bound to take the candidates by surprise, and they'll be judged by how they improvise on the fly. Talk about "tension city," as former President George H.W. Bush described it.

But maybe Romney and Obama should each take a deep breath.

After all, how likely is it that either one will commit a big enough blunder to overshadow months of campaigning? Studies find viewers tend to see the guy they preferred going into the debate as the winner when it's over.

"When is it that anybody performs so badly that you'd just say, 'Oh, my God, I would never vote for this person?'" said Rutgers University professor Richard Lau, who studies how voters decide.

"Someone would have to seem so incompetent. That's not going to happen."

Part III: The spin

It's not over when the candidates walk off stage.

Campaign aides and big political names will descend on the "spin room" to tell reporters and after-debate TV audiences that the other guy blew it, and why.

Viewers may feel they're judging what they saw and heard for themselves. But campaign strategists think getting the spin right goes a long way toward deciding who "won."

According to Tad Devine, who was a top adviser to Democratic candidates Al Gore and John Kerry, pre-debate expectations and post-debate spin "can take on more significance than what happened in the debate itself."

"Each one of those three is critically important," he said.

Obama on Hoover Dam: 'Spectacular'

BOULDER CITY, Nev. — Taking a break from debate prep, President Barack Obama made an unexpected stop Tuesday at the Hoover Dam, his first visit to a tourist spot considered one of the world's great engineering feats.

Asked why he came, Obama said: "Because it's spectacular and I've never seen it before."

The president has retreated to a desert resort in Nevada for three days of preparation for his debate Wednesday against Republican rival Mitt Romney.

Obama told reporters that he had not realized his debate camp in Henderson, Nev., was so close to the dam until aides informed him.

So, he said he responded by saying: "Well, we gotta go check it out."

The Hoover Dam is roughly a 30-minute drive from Henderson.

Obama's motorcade pulled in after routine travel and the president was soon seen peering out at the dam.

Obama mentioned the dam in his State of the Union address this year.

Ann Romney: Defender in chief

LITTLETON, Colo. — Ann Romney has stepped out into a new role for the final stretch of the campaign: Character witness and defender in chief.

She admonishes her husband's Republican critics. And she tries to convince women that Mitt Romney is on their side. She also counters the portrait her husband's opponent paints of a soul-less corporate raider.

Since her convention debut, she has become the center of a

HOSPITAL DEBACLE

Hopes high for end to an era of discord

It's been three long, nasty years of feuding for control of Citrus Memorial hospital.

With the gubernatorial rebuilding of the Citrus County Hospital Board, the era of bitterness appears to be history.

Three years and millions upon millions of dollars in tax-infused legal fees later, attention to running the county hospital and focusing on health care can once again be the priority.

While issues sparking litigation flew like arrows between the combative hospital board and the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation, at the heart of the battle has been control of the hospital. That is the sole issue of litigation yet to be resolved.

The board, whose members are appointed by the governor, is the taxing authority for the public hospital. That board leases the hospital to the foundation, which oversees day-to-day operations. Factors too numerous to recount ignited a power play in the hospital board's desire to gain the upper hand in how the hospital is run and how dollars are spent. The most significant battle tactic was the hospital board's withholding of tax dollars long relied upon by the foundation for, among other things, indigent care.

It's now a new day. Gov. Rick Scott has appointed Mike Bays, Gene Davis and Krista Joseph to serve as trustees. They join Bob Priselac and Debbie Ressler, with Priselac a recent appointee and Ressler the only surviving trustee from the previous board configuration. By all appearances, the new board has a depth of experience in health care-related fields that will serve the community well.

The one remaining lawsuit — the foundation's challenge of a 2011 law shifting control to the trustees — is to be ruled on by an appeals court in Tallahassee. The resolution to that issue can't come soon enough, as it will frame how the new spirit of cooperation between the hospital board and the foundation will proceed.

As long as there are two entities guiding Citrus Memorial, there will be a need to work through areas of disagreement and toward the goal of reestablishing the hospital's reputation and stability.

As foundation chairman Jim Sanders said, "It's time to get on with the business of this hospital."

That sums it up nicely.

Grants a boon

(To) all you Sounding Off callers in the Hot Corner about the grants: Will you people please give it a rest? Yes, grant money is tax money. What the editor was saying is that the tax money did not come directly from right here in Citrus County where it could have gone to use for homeless families, hungry children, blah-blah-blah. It came from the federal government; the same grants that pay for the textbooks, the same grants that pay for anything that the kids can get in the school. It is a good learning tool. You don't have kids? Great, you're still paying school taxes. But, hey, at least they're getting up to date with the times. These are fully customizable. They can do all their work on it. Get over it.

Ballot order

Chronicle, thanks for publishing the sample ballot in the paper. Can you tell me how the decision is made on the official ballot as to the placement of the names? It is an accepted fact that most uninformed voters tend to vote for the candidate whose name is first in each race. I noticed on the ballot, the Republican candidates were listed first in all the races.

Editor's note: Per Florida statute, the party whose candidate for governor received the most votes in the most recent gubernatorial election has its candidates listed first on general election ballots. Because Republican Gov. Rick Scott won the 2010 gubernatorial election, Republicans will be listed first on ballots in the general election.

Tremendous turnout

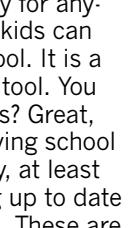

I'm calling in regards to yesterday's Sound Off of "Wasted effort." Whoever put that in there surely was misinformed or never showed up at all. Although we only sold 15 or 16 tickets in advance, we sold out by 4 o'clock all 50 meals that we had. So I want to thank all the members that came. A lot of them didn't buy previous tickets, but they sure showed up and they sure ate everything that we had. I was one of the cooks. My wife runs the kitchen. The post did not have anything to do with the purchase of the food. My wife and I purchased all the food and so I just want to make that clear. I don't know who put this in there, but they sure didn't know what they were talking about.

Absurd notion

This is in regard to (a Sound Off) titled "Rigged voting." "You only get to vote for the choices they give you," said some caller. The sample ballot shows 12 choices for president and a space for write-ins. These choices were not forced on you. The Republican Party had primary elections across the country to choose a candidate preferred by voters — Gingrich, Bachman, Romney, Cain, Paul, Perry, Johnson. The Democrats think their choice is deserving of another four-year term. If you fail to vote in primaries to have your candidate on the ticket and if you feel you're an independent voter, registered that way, you don't get to vote in the primary, which is as important as the general election. Rigged election? Not at all. Absurd.

TBILISI, Georgia — Defying expectations, President

Mikhail Saakashvili conceded Tuesday that his party had lost Georgia's parliamentary election and his opponent had the right to become prime minister, setting the stage for political turmoil in the final year of his presidency.

The new Georgian government will be led by billionaire businessman and philanthropist Bidzina Ivanishvili, who made his fortune in Russia and until recently was little known to the 4.5 million people in his homeland on the Black Sea.

Pope's butler pleads innocent

VATICAN CITY — Pope Benedict XVI's one-time butler declared Tuesday he was innocent of a charge of aggravated theft of the pope's pri-uate correspondence, but acknowledged he photocopied the papers and said he feels guilty he betrayed the trust of the pontiff he loves like a father.

Paolo Gabriele took the stand Tuesday in a Vatican courtroom to defend himself against accusations of his role in one of the most damaging scandals of Benedict's pontificate. Prosecutors say Gabriele stole the pope's letters and documents, alleging power struggles and corruption inside the Vatican and leaked them to a journalist in an unprecedented papal security breach.

US allows visa-free travel from Taiwan

WASHINGTON — The U.S. announced Tuesday visa-free travel for Taiwanese visiting America.

Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano described it as a "logical development in close security, economic and people-to-people" ties between the U.S. and Taiwan.

From Nov. 1, Taiwan joins 36 countries whose nationals can travel to the U.S. for tourism or business for 90 days without a visa.

It is not a privilege enjoyed by China.

Soldiers set up network to strike terrorist target

KIMBERLY DOZIER
AP Intelligence Writer

WASHINGTON — Small teams of special operations forces arrived at American embassies throughout North Africa in the months before militants launched the fiery attack that killed the U.S. ambassador in Libya. The soldiers' mission: Set up a network that could quickly strike a terrorist target or rescue a hostage.

But the teams had yet to do much counterterrorism work in Libya, though the White House signed off a year ago on the plan to build the new military task force in the region and the advance teams had been there six months, according to three U.S. counterterrorism officials and a former intelligence official. All spoke only on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the strategy publicly.

The counterterrorism effort indicates the administration has been worried for some time about a growing threat posed by al-Qaida and its offshoots in North Africa. But officials say the military organization was too new to respond to the attack in Benghazi, where the administration now believes armed al-Qaida-linked militants surrounded the lightly guarded U.S. compound, set it on fire and killed Ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans.

Republicans have questioned whether the Obama administration has been hiding key information or hasn't known what happened in the immediate aftermath of the attack. They are using those questions in the final weeks before the U.S. elections as an opportunity to assail President Barack Obama on foreign policy, an area where he has held clear leads in opinion polls.

Auto sales, home prices help buoy weak US economy

CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
AP Business Writers

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy is looking more resilient, thanks in part to encouraging signs for the two most expensive purchases most Americans make: cars and homes.

Cheap loans and a bounty of fuel-efficient models enticed people to buy new vehicles at a brisk pace last month. And the nation enjoyed another year-over-year surge in home prices in August — a sign the housing industry is making a sustained comeback.

Both trends reflect rising confidence in the economy. More families are replacing aging cars. And rising home prices are leading more would-be buyers to conclude a home is a good investment.

Two surveys last week also reported improving consumer confidence.

The apparent progress could benefit President Barack Obama, who faces off with Mitt Romney today in an economy-focused debate five weeks ahead of the election.

Despite the brightening auto and housing industries, the broader American economy is still struggling. It grew at a meager 1.3 percent annual rate in the April-June quarter. Most economists foresee little strengthening the rest of the year.

Hiring remains too sluggish to reduce high unemployment, which is at 8.1 percent. The manufacturing sector is struggling to grow consistently. Workers' pay is lagging inflation. A dismal European economy has cut demand for U.S. exports.

And the economy remains at risk of falling off a "fiscal cliff" early next year. That's when tax increases and deep spending cuts take effect unless Congress reaches a budget deal. If those measures do take effect, the economy could fall into recession.

Dress code bars girls from dance

TOOELE, Utah — A Utah public high school principal has apologized to dozens of teens who were turned away from their homecoming dance because their dresses were deemed too short, in what parents and students called a "homecoming spirit massacre."

Stansbury High principal Kendall Topham held four assemblies Monday, telling students the school's dress code policy was too vague to be properly enforced and vowed to hold a free dance to make up for Saturday's dress debacle.

As many as half of those who arrived at the dance ended up not going in after their dates and friends were barred from entering. Among those turned away: Homecoming Queen Erica Alvey.

US births down for fourth year

NEW YORK — U.S. births fell for the fourth year in a row, the government reported Wednesday, with experts calling it more proof the weak economy has continued to dampen enthusiasm for having children.

But there may be a silver lining: The decline in 2011 was just 1 percent — not as sharp a fall-off as the 2 to 3 percent drop seen in other recent years.

Judge halts Pa.'s new voter ID law

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A judge on Tuesday blocked Pennsylvania's divisive voter identification requirement from going into effect on Election Day, delivering a hard-fought victory to Democrats who said it was a ploy to defeat President Barack Obama and other opponents who said it would prevent the elderly and minorities from voting.

Commonwealth Court Judge Robert Simpson said in his ruling he was concerned by the state's stumbling efforts to create a photo ID that is easily accessible to voters and he could not rely on the assurances of government officials at this late date that every voter would be able to get a valid ID.

Intelligence program produces little

Report reveals big expenditures

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A multi-billion-dollar information-sharing program created in the aftermath of 9/11 has improperly collected information about innocent Americans and produced little valuable intelligence on terrorism, a U.S. Senate report concludes. It portrays an effort that ballooned far beyond anyone's ability to control.

What began as an attempt to put local, state and federal officials in the same room analyzing the same intelligence has instead cost huge amounts of money for data-mining software, flatscreen televisions and, in Arizona, two fully equipped Chevrolet Tahoes that are used for commuting, investigators found.

The lengthy, bipartisan report is a scathing evaluation of what the Department of Homeland Security has held up as a crown jewel of its security efforts. The report underscores a reality of post-9/11 Washington: National security programs tend to grow, never shrink, even when their money and manpower far surpass the actual subject of terrorism. Much of this money went for ordinary local crime-fighting.

Disagreeing with the critical conclusions of the report, Homeland Security said it is outdated, inaccurate and too focused on information produced by the program, ignoring benefits to local governments from their involvement with federal intelligence officials.

Because of a convoluted grants process set up by Congress, Homeland Security officials don't know how much they have spent in their decade-long effort to set up so-called fusion centers in every state. Government estimates range from less than $300 million to $1.4 billion in federal money, plus much more invested by state and local governments. Federal funding is pegged at about 20 percent to 30 percent.

C.R. turns back Eustis

CRYSTAL RIVER — In a heated rematch between co-district leaders Tuesday night, the Crystal River Lady Pirates volleyball team overcame one hiccup to defeat visiting Eustis in four games in convincing fashion. (25-18, 24-26, 25-15, 25-18).

The win sealed the Lady Pirates' capture of sole possession of first place in District 5A-7, as they had previously beaten the Lady Panthers in five sets on Eustis' home court. The battle on this night got intense toward the end, as a Eustis player was removed from the match by a yellow card and words were exchanged both ways.

Casidy Newcomer led the all-around Crystal River (10-4, 8-1) attack, finishing with 15 kills and eight aces, including six straight in a key stretch of the final game. Kylie Sisk had five kills, nine assists, 15 digs and four aces in a stellar performance as well, while Sabrina Scott helped anchor the offense with 18 assists to go along with 11 digs and three aces. INVERNESS — It was a three-game loss against a tough opponent, but the Citrus High School girls volleyball team might have found momentum for its season after losing Tuesday to West Port High School.

The Hurricanes (4-7 overall, 1-6 District 6A-6) came closer to a potential victory against the visiting Wolf Pack (11-3 overall, 6-0 district) than the 25-13, 25-16 and 25-18 scores indicate. The last two games had Citrus staying close until the end.

'Canes coach David Assumpcao credited West Port for being a solid squad while saying his team knows what it needs to do to turn things around when it faces Seven Rivers Christian School on Thursday: better blocking and setting.

"If we can stop those attacks, then we can play our game," he said.

Playing in front of a lively student section, the Hurricanes played their best in the final game, highlighted by their 10 service points and freshman Adriana Espinoza's 5 aces. Espinoza finished the night with 7 aces and an all-around strong supporting game for her team.

Citrus teammate Amy Abramowich had 4 kills, her sister Kelly Abramowich had 5 assists and libero Lindsay Conners had 12 digs to back up her front line.

West Port's Wilenie Rivera and Amanda Saunders were the Wolf Pack's dynamic duo, with Rivera dishing out 9 assists and 4 kills, and Saunders

HOMOSASSA — With the county meet just over the horizon, local boys high school golf teams begin to focus their minds toward the postseason, starting with every opportunity to meet county competitors during what remains of the regular season.

Tuesday afternoon's boys golf tri-meet at Southern Lecanto slid past a very competitive Hurricane team, winning the meet with 167 strokes to Citrus' 170. Hernando placed third with 183.

LECANTO — Little things made the difference.

When Lecanto's volleyball team visited Seven Rivers Christian on Tuesday, with bragging rights as Citrus County's best team at stake, it became apparent the Panthers would not be able to overpower the host Warriors. But they could make those small adjustments necessary to get a victory.

Which is what Lecanto did, edging Seven Rivers 25-20, 25-20, 14-25, 25-23.

The Panthers improved to 13-2 overall, their only losses to 6A-6 rival West Port, another team with more power than they have. The difference between their home-court loss last week to the Wolf Pack and this victory were the alterations Lecanto made to insure the triumph.

Seven Rivers slipped to 10-5 overall, but there were no heads hanging after the loss.

"I wanted to play that fifth set," said Seven Rivers coach Wanda Grey. "But I can't complain. Our team played well. Give Lecanto credit, they're a scrappy team. They never gave up on a ball."

Defense was a major factor in the Panthers' win, led by libero Savannah Weller's 24 digs, and at the net by middle hitter Amanda Pitre, outside hitter Morgan Christian and setter Courtney Rymer. Pitre collected eight blocks.

Texans top Pro32 rankings for second week

First team to hold top spot twice

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Houston Texans are on top of the AP Pro32 NFL power rankings again, and getting ready for the Monday night spotlight when they visit the New York Jets.

The Texans became the first team to retain the No. 1 spot after a resounding 38-14 rout of the Tennessee Titans to remain unbeaten in four games.

The other two unbeatens, Atlanta and Arizona, needed game-deciding field goals to stay perfect.

A week after becoming the fourth team in as many weeks to ascend to No. 1, Houston received 11 first-place votes and 382 points Tuesday from the 12-person panel of media members who regularly cover the NFL.

Atlanta remained second with 369 points, and Arizona was fifth with one first-place vote and 342 points.

All eyes will be on the Texans come Monday night, when quarterback Matt Schaub and defensive end J.J. Watt lead them against the Jets in New Jersey. The Jets dropped five places to 23rd after a 34-0 loss at home to San Francisco, which moved up a spot to fourth, just behind Baltimore.

MEDINAH, Ill. — The PGA Tour supplied the best tonic possible Tuesday to cure the Americans of a Ryder Cup hangover.

It staged a press conference to mark the official one-year countdown to the Presidents Cup, the one team event that Americans still seem capable of winning. Then again, it was held at Muirfield Village, where in 1987 they lost the Ryder Cup on home soil for the first time.

It hasn't been the same since.

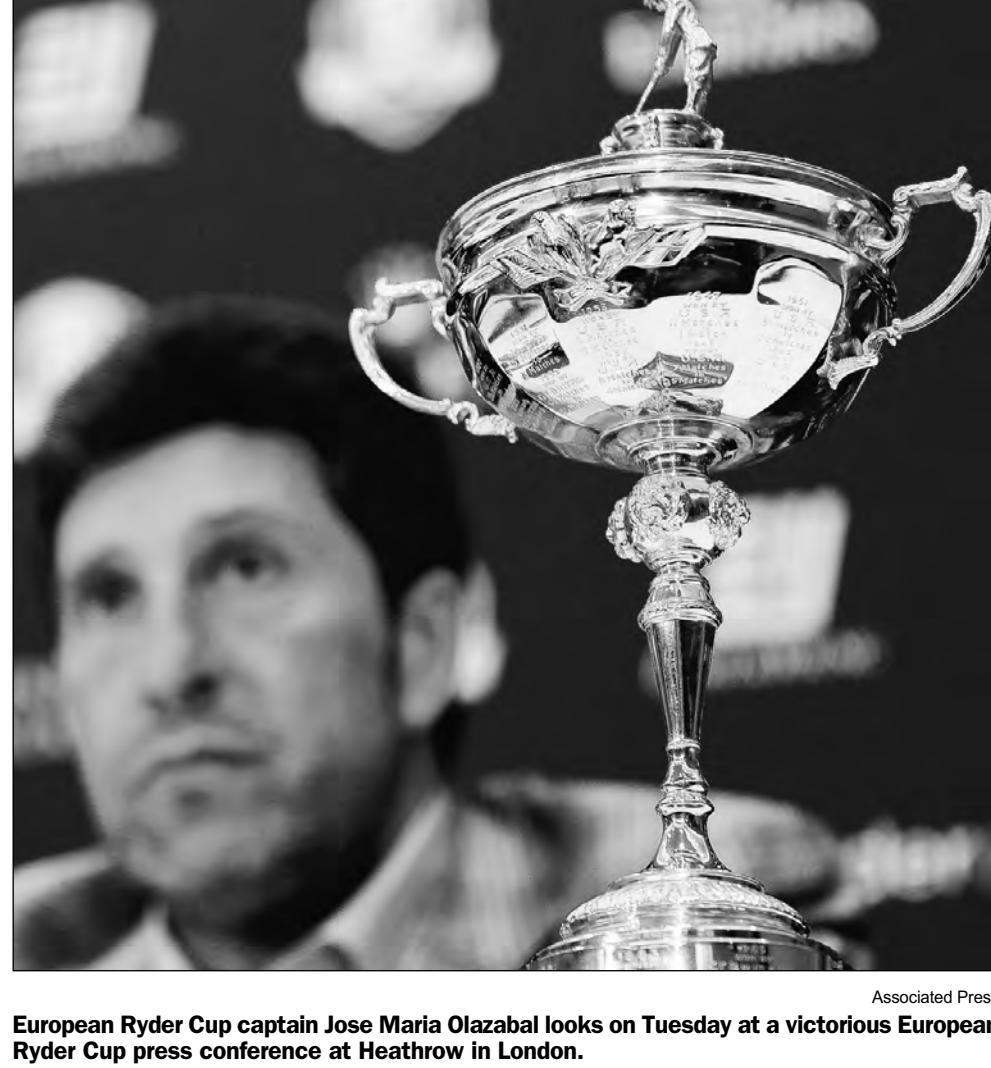

These days, the closest the Americans ever get to that 17-inch trophy is the emblem of it stitched on their team uniforms.

Europe now has won seven of the last nine times in the Ryder Cup, and the only reason the dominance isn't even greater is because Justin Leonard knocked in a 45-foot putt on the 17th hole at The Country Club. The other win was in 2008 at Valhalla, even though the Americans didn't have Tiger Woods. Or maybe they won because he didn't play.

The immediate question is who the PGA of America will select as the next captain, but that's assuming the decision will have a bearing on the outcome. In some corners, the captain's role is overrated — until a team loses, and the fans and media need someone to blame.

The next Ryder Cup will be in 2014 in Scotland, which officials referred to as the home of golf. That's true, although the bagpipes surely will sound a little different on a golf course at Gleneagles designed by Jack Nicklaus.

Before looking ahead, it's worth looking back with a few observations about one of the best Ryder Cup competitions ever:

European Ryder Cup captain Jose Maria Olazabal looks on Tuesday at a victorious European Ryder Cup press conference at Heathrow in London.

■ Was this really the "Miracle at Medinah?"

The best slogans are built around alliteration, and this could be called the "Melt-down at Medinah," depending on your colors. It was remarkable, no doubt, because six of the 12 singles matches could have gone either way. By the numbers, Europe matched a Ryder Cup record by rallying from a 10-6 deficit on the final day, same as the Americans at Brookline in 1999. The difference is that Europe did this on the road. And the American comeback was easier because Europe had three Ryder Cup rookies who did not hit a shot until Sunday singles.

This Ryder Cup had 24 of the top 35 players in the world. Throw in 18-hole matches, and there's no such thing as a sure thing. Remember, Europe had a three-point lead going into the final day at Wals before a home crowd and it came down to the last match. The lesson going forward is that no lead is safe.

The only "miracle" reference should be to Saturday afternoon, when the Americans had a 10-4 lead and were ahead in the final match. It looked as though they would have an 11-5 lead at worst until Ian Poulter birdied his last five holes and Europe picked up an invaluable point — and the momentum.

■ Rory McIlroy is a sure thing.

Boy Wonder might be the only guy who can roll out of a bed and win a singles match at the Ryder Cup. McIlroy didn't sleep in, he just got the time zones mixed up. But there was a feeling that whoever the Americans had facing him didn't stand a chance. Jim Furyk referred to McIlroy as the "present day Tiger Woods," and he might be right. Even with the match all square, there was never a sense that McIlroy was going to lose.

■ Man of the match.

Martin Kaymer holed the putt that clinched the Ryder Cup for Europe, but there was no mistaking its star. Ian Poulter became the first captain's pick to go 4-0, and he might have won them all if Jose Maria Olazabal had not held him out Friday afternoon. There were only four matches all week when a team or a player was behind at any point on the back nine and rallied to win. Poulter was involved in two of them.

His career record is now 12-3, the highest winning percentage of any European player in history. Poulter effectively locked up a spot on the team for the next several years, and Lee Westwood even went so far as to jokingly suggest a change to the qualifying process for Europe.

"It's nine spots, two picks, and Poulter," he said.

■ Tiger Woods as the anchor.

Curtis Strange was criticized in 2002 for sending out Woods in the 12th and final match Sunday at The Belfry for two reasons. His point might be irrelevant at that stage (it was) and he would not be able to contribute to any momentum from an earlier spot in the lineup. Davis Love III did the same at Medinah.

Woods actually was in the right spot. He just didn't deliver.

The Americans needed to see Woods take control of his match against Francesco Molinari, knowing they would be assured a point in that anchor match. Woods fell behind two holes early. He took the lead for the first time on the 13th hole, and the match was still square with two holes remaining. The last time Woods was in that spot, in 2002, he built a 2-up lead early against Jesper Parnevik, didn't put him away and actually trailed after 15 holes.

His half-point was irrelevant as far as who won the cup. It could have, and perhaps should have, meant something.

■ Rookies.

The PGA of America devotes an entire page to rookie records in the Ryder Cup. Love said all week, and the PGA of America should take note, that there really are no rookies in the Ryder Cup. Webb Simpson (U.S. Open) and Martin Kaymer (PGA Championship) had won majors the year they made their Ryder Cup debut. Yes, the pressure is more intense at the Ryder Cup than any tournament, but it's that way for the veterans, too.

The four American "rookies" went 9-6. Two of their best players were rookies — Jason Dufner and Keegan Bradley, both of whom were 3-1. Dufner might have won all four of his matches except for Poulter finishing a fourballs match with five straight birdies.

■ The next captain.

Paul McGinley is the leading candidate for Europe, a decision with strong influence by the players. Nothing is clear for the U.S. team, a decision by the PGA of America.

There seems to be a template for the U.S. team that captains be former major champions in their late 40s. That would point toward David Toms, who played on three losing teams. Fred Couples gets a lot of attention, but the Presidents Cup is far less stressful than the Ryder Cup, and he doesn't have a lot of support from within the PGA of America. Larry Nelson is a popular choice because he was overlooked. He'll be 67 in 2014. And there is some thought to let Paul Azinger be captain again.

The last American who was captain more than once was Jack Nicklaus. That was in 1987 at Muirfield Village, and that didn't turn out very well.

HOLES-IN-ONE

■ John Provost used a seven iron on the 17th hole at Southern Woods on Sept. 23 to shoot the first hole in one of his life.

His wife Teri not only witnessed the feat, but with Provost refusing to even go near the green, she also confirmed the ball was in the cup.

Provost is a member of a very exclusive KC Hole-In-One club, made up of six longtime golfers who have never had a hole in one.

Now John's role in the club is reduced to rewarding the next hole-in-one by one of the other members.

Bears roll over Cowboys 34-18

Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Charles Tillman had the ball thrown right into his hands. All the Chicago Bears cornerback had to do was grab it and run 25 yards untouched down the sideline for a touchdown.

Lance Briggs had to go three times farther and sidestep a few Dallas Cowboys on his way to the end zone.

The interception returns by Tillman and Briggs, who are among the five 30-something starters on Chicago's defense, came in a 34-18 win over the Cowboys on Monday night when Tony Romo matched his career high with five picks.

"I think Lance's was better. He juked a couple of people. His was longer, so by far I think he had the play of the game," Tillman said. "Mine was simple and bor-

Briggs' interception came in a wild two-play exchange of turnovers midway through the third quarter, and put the Bears up 24-7.

The first fumble of the season for Chicago (3-1) came when Jay Cutler was sacked by DeMarcus Ware to set Dallas up at the Bears 27. It was the third forced fumble already for Ware, the Pro Bowl linebacker who turned 30 during training camp.

On the very next play, Romo was trying to escape pressure when he was hit from behind by Henry Melton. The ball popped forward into the air to Briggs.

"Just outstanding play by our defense," Bears coach Lovie Smith said. "It seemed like everybody had a say in it. How about Lance Briggs? You guys didn't know he could run that fast."

Despite his fumble, Cutler was nearly flawless after halftime, completing 11 of 12 passes for 219 yards and two touchdowns. He was 18 of 24 overall for 275 yards. A 34-yard TD pass to Devin Hester started the half and there was later a 31-yarder to Brandon Marshall.

Magic's Vaughn aims for efficiency

Associated Press

ORLANDO — If there's one thing the Orlando Magic players learned during their first preseason practice, it's that new coach Jacque Vaughn will run his workouts efficiently.

The Magic wrapped up their initial, two-hour scheduled workout in 90 minutes Tuesday.

They took one water break and were moved in and out of drills by assistant coaches with little lag time.

Afterward, the new man in charge said it went exactly how he drew it up. So much so that it made Vaughn think of something former Utah Jazz teammate John Stockton used to say about practice.

"Stockton used to tell me, 'Work me hard, but don't work me long. Work me long, but don't work me hard. You have to pick one.' I never forgot that," Vaughn said.

Also on his mind was how Roy Williams, his former college coach at Kansas, ran his daily show.

"He was the most efficient coach I've been around," Vaughn said. "His practice plans were pretty much to the minute and I've taken that. It was a good session as far as efficiency today."

The reasoning behind Vaughn's early practice plans isn't all based on drawing from his mentors, though.

A bigger one is simply necessity.

The Magic are down three bodies right now as they begin the task of jelling together a team of seven returners and seven fresh faces.

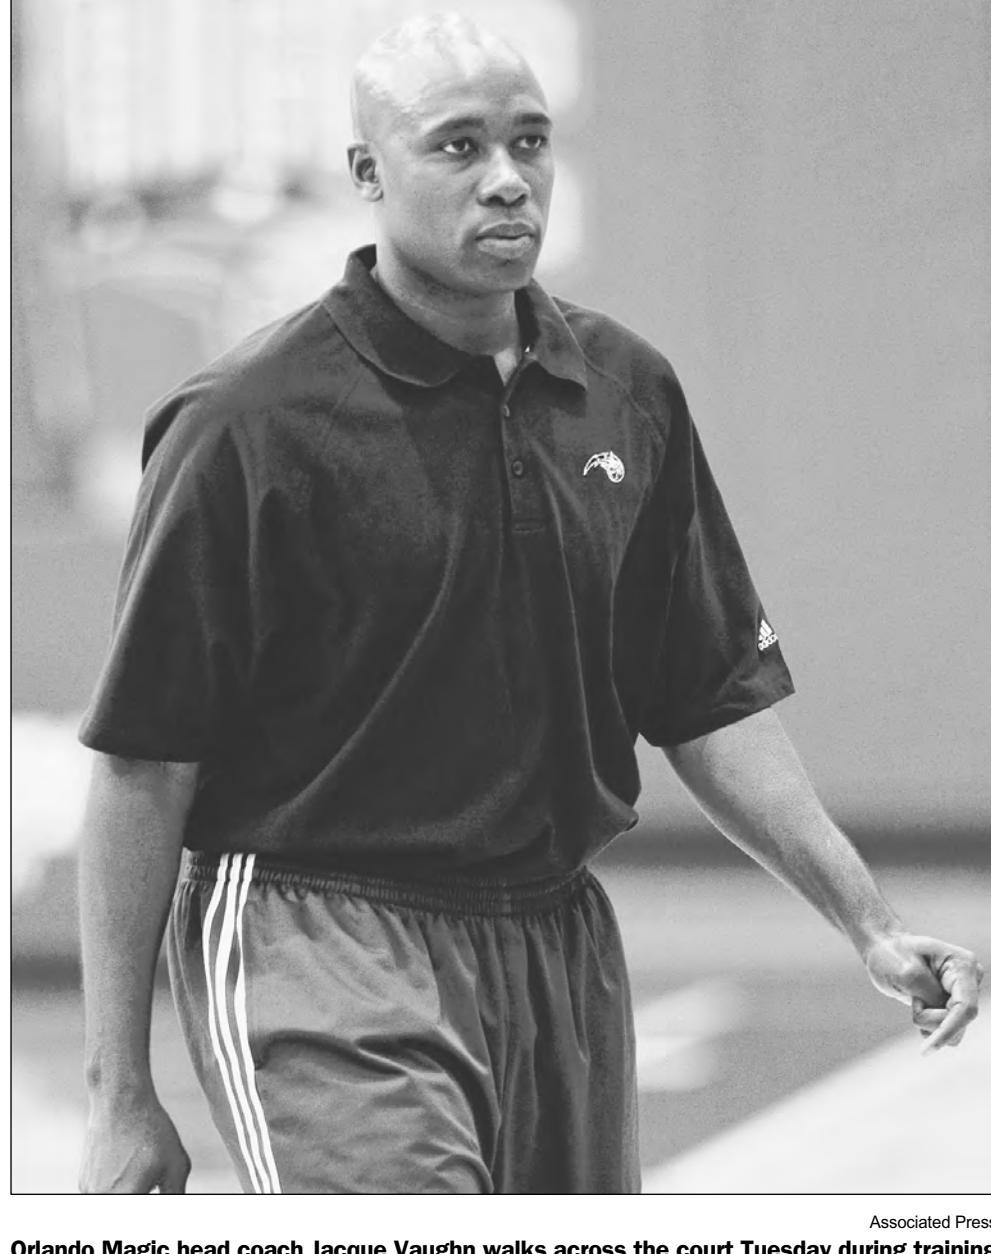

Rookie Maurice Harkless, a first-round draft pick by Philadelphia who was acquired in the Dwight Howard trade, had offseason surgery for a sports hernia.

Also, backup point guard Ish Smith is recovering from surgery for a torn labrum in his shoulder. And forward Al Harrington, another trade acquisition, is coming off knee surgery.

Both Smith and Harkless are out until at least mid-November.

Harrington is expected to miss at least part of camp.

Still, a pair of the Magic's

Associated Press

veterans said they liked what they saw overall out of the new-look Magic in their first true time together on the court.

Point guard Jameer Nelson said Vaughn — a former point guard himself — stressed that he didn't want to be a coach that dictated every single play call. That was refreshing to Nelson, who has thrived best when he's able to create on the fly while on the court.

"What we're gonna be doing is playing basketball and he's gonna give us a lot of freedom," Nelson said. "As much as this may sound bad, you don't want to think out there. You want to be as free as you can. ... If you can eliminate one thing, it helps you out and you can go do it."

The Magic have just four practice days before heading to Mexico City for their preseason opener Sunday against New Orleans.

J.J. Redick, who is expected to compete with Arron Afflalo at the shooting guard spot, said he isn't worried about what will be a loaded workout schedule this week.

"I think it's the way the NBA works," Redick said. "You spend so much time together, you practice so much in October and play all these preseason games. It might take a while, but our chemistry is gonna be fine.

"We just have to be really well at communicating. We're all learning new terms and learning new stuff. So communication is gonna be big."

CITRUS COUNTY CHRONICLE

ABOVE: Six men have donned the role of James Bond in five decades. They include Sean Connery, left, in "From Russia With Love" with Daniela Bianchi; Pierce Brosnan, center, in "Die Another Day," and Daniel Craig in "Casino Royale." BELLOW: Roger Moore starred in "The Spy Who Loved Me," with Barbara Bach. Moore portrayed Bond seven times, more than any other actor.

FIFTY YEARS OF 007

No mid-life crisis for super spy James Bond

Associated Press

It was a meeting of the two most famous British people on the planet: Queen Elizabeth II turned to her tuxedo-wearing guest and said, "Good evening, Mr. Bond."

The pairing of these icons, the English monarch and the king of spies — in a film for the opening ceremony of the London Olympics — was a thrilling moment. It scarcely mattered one of them was fictional. Agent 007 is real to millions of moviegoers, and once again they will flock to see Bond battle for queen and country when his 23rd official screen adventure, "Skyfall," opens this fall.

He's come a long way in the 50 years since the release — on Oct. 5, 1962 — of a modestly budgeted spy movie called "Dr. No." It introduced a dapper but deadly secret agent who wore Savile Row suits, drove an Aston Martin, liked his martinis shaken, not stirred, and announced himself as "Bond, James Bond."

What's the secret of his survival? Familiarity, said Roger Moore, who played Bond in seven films, more than any other actor.

"It's sort of like a bedtime story: As long as you don't go too far away from the original, the child is happy," Moore said. "The audience gets what it's expecting: beautiful girls, actions, gadgets — there's a formula."

Talented beginning

That fiendishly successful formula had modest beginnings. Two upstart producers, Canadian Harry Saltzman and American Albert "Cubby" Broccoli, acquired the rights to a series of novels by Ian Fleming, a former World War II intelligence officer who had created 007 as sort of a fantasy alter-ego.

Saltzman and Broccoli had a budget of $1 million, but through a blend of luck and design assembled an amazing team of on- and off-screen talent.

Sean Connery, a relatively unknown Scottish actor and former bodybuilder, was cast as Bond against the wishes of studio United Artists, which wanted an established star such as Cary Grant for the role.

"Everything or Nothing," a new documentary about the Bond films, said the final seal of approval came from Cubby Broccoli's wife. "Is he sexy?" Broccoli asked her.

Connery got the part.

Behind the scenes were artists like John Barry, composer of Bond's pulse-quickenning theme music; Maurice Binder, who created the famous gun-barrel title sequence; and designer Ken Adam, a German-born former RAF fighter pilot whose futuristic sets gave the films their look of modernist cool.

Cavalier atmosphere

In the documentary, which airs Friday on EPIX, Adam recalls feeling "crazy with courage" in those early days.

Others remember the same devil-may-care atmosphere.

"It was barnstorming days," said David M. Kay, whose company provided aircraft for filming and stunts on the early Bond films, including the helicopter-volcano sequence in "You Only Live Twice."

"We didn't have health and safety as we have now. Broccoli was an absolute cavalier and demanded things that were well-nigh impossible," Kay recalled.

It was also enormous fun, he said — "Men playing with boys' toys."

Perfect timing

That sense of playfulness spilled over to the screen. "Dr. No" arrived in movie theaters with perfect timing, as

Britain swapped postwar austerity

A LIST OF THE 007 FILMS AND THEIR STARS:

- "Dr No," 1962, Sean Connery.

Bond's world of cars, casinos and caviar was sexy, luxurious and colorful. Instead of a gray, shadowy figure, here was a spy as a glamorous jet-setter. The films turned Cold War anxiety into a thrill-ride from which the good guy always emerged triumphant.

"There had been nothing like it before," said Graham Rye, editor of 007 magazine, who remembers being blown away by the film as an 11-year-old. "A lot of British films at the time were austere, black-and-white, kitchen-sink dramas. When 'Dr. No' exploded onto the screen, it had a pretty visceral effect on everybody."

Today in HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 3, the 277th day of 2012. There are 89 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Oct. 3, 1962, astronaut Wally Schirra became the fifth American to fly in space as he blasted off from Cape Canaveral aboard the Sigma 7 on a 9-hour flight.

On this date:

In 1789, President George Washington declared Nov. 26, 1789, a day of Thanksgiving to express gratitude for the creation of the United States of America.

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November Thanksgiving Day.

In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt established the Office of Economic Stabilization.

In 1952, Britain conducted its first atomic test as it detonated a 25-kiloton device in the Monte Bello Islands off Australia.

In 1970, the National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) was established under the Department of Commerce.

In 1995, the jury in the O.J. Simpson murder trial found the former football star not guilty of the 1994 slayings of his former wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and Ronald Goldman (however, Simpson was later found liable in a civil trial).

In 2008, O.J. Simpson was found guilty of robbing two sports-memorabilia dealers at gunpoint in a Las Vegas hotel room. (Simpson was later sentenced to nine to 33 years in prison.)

Ten years ago: Five people were shot to death in the Washington, D.C. area within a 14-hour period, sparking the hunt for the "Beltway Sniper."

Five years ago: President George W. Bush quietly vetoed expansion of a children's health insurance program.

One year ago: An Italian appeals court freed Amanda Knox of Seattle after four years in prison, tossing murder convictions against Knox and an ex-boyfriend in the stabbing of their British roommate, Meredith Kercher.

Today's Birthdays: Basketball Hall of Famer Marques O. Haynes is 86. Composer Steve Reich is 76. Rock and roll star Chubby Checker is 71. Former astronaut Kathryn Sullivan is 61. Baseball Hall of Famer Dennis Eckersley is 58. Civil rights activist Rev. Al Sharpton is 58. Golfer Fred Couples is 53. Actor Jack Wagner is 53. Actor Clive Owen is 48. Actress Jane Moloney is 43. Singer Gwen Stefani (No Doubt) is 43. Actress Neve Campbell is 39.

Actor Seann William Scott is 36. Actor Erik Von Detten is 30. Actress-singer Ashlee Simpson-Wentz is 28.

Thought for Today: "The worst disease in the world is the plague of vengeance." — Dr. Karl Menninger, American psychiatrist (1893-1990).

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthday — It looks like you're about to make some critical changes in your life that will spill over and have a positive effect on your financial affairs. In doing so, there's a chance you'll be able to fulfill a long-standing desire.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Do your very best not to disrupt anything that is presently running smoothly, because you could be all thumbs and make matters worse. Let your motto be: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You're asking for all kinds of trouble if you deliberately play up to someone in order to make another person whom you don't like jealous. Don't play games.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Only if you are tenacious and consistent will success be within your reach. However, the odds are against you if you try to gamble your way to greener pastures.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Friends and associates aren't likely to have any respect for your ideas or opinions if they sense that you have little regard for theirs. Be sure to keep an open mind and avoid premature judgment.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Don't allow anybody who's notorious for being unable to manage his or her resources to handle your own. This error in judgment could turn out to be very expensive.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Things you envision can be brought into being, if you work at it. However, this does not mean you could succeed teaming up with another. Go it alone.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You won't mind going out of your way to assist a friend. However, it will really irk you if the recipient has a total lack of acknowledgement and appreciation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — If your old standbys aren't available to do something fun with you, it might be best to go it alone. Involvements with substitutes aren't likely to work out too well.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Once you successfully have achieved something, let it go and move on to something new. If you keep trying to improve it, you could unravel your own accomplishment.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Your keen imagination can be a very big plus, provided you remain positive and channel it constructively. Once you start to think negatively, it will be a different story.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Avoid any speculative involvements, especially those that require you have to dip into your savings in order to participate. Chances are what starts out wrong will end up wrong.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This might not be one of your better days for decision-making, but what could make it worse is that the persons to whom you go for counsel could be even more inept than you.

Colleges pledge to increase graduation rates

Schools want to regain lost global lead in attainment

Associated Press

Nearly 500 public colleges that account for three-quarters of all four-year college students pledged Tuesday to produce a combined 3.8 million additional graduates by 2025, an ambitious target that would help bring the United States closer to its goal of regaining its lost global lead in college attainment.

than 1 million graduates per year and, at current rates, would produce about 14.6 million degrees by 2025. Reaching the new target of 18.4 million will require institutions to improve by 3 percent annually beyond current trends, to about 1.6 million annually, said Association of Public and Land-Grant Universities President Peter McPherson.

"That's a big deal, particularly with this growing diversity in the high school graduating classes," said McPherson, whose organization is driving the effort along with the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The institutions are not committing to enrolling more students, though many probably will. But the focus will be on improving completion rates — long considered the weak link of American higher education. Though the United States is among the best in the world getting students into college, by some measures more than one-third of students fail to earn a degree, and it's fallen from first to 14th in the proportion of adults with a degree. As college completion rates

INVERNESS — Someone once said the downside of working in the Citrus County School District administrative offices versus a school is the lack of hugs.

But employees in the district service offices still see that connection at work because the walls are decorated with student art — from kindergarten through the 12th grade.

An open house last week celebrated this year's batch of 140 pieces, including watercolors, sculptures and photographs.

Children, parents and teachers wandered the hallways and offices of the two buildings that make up the district services center. From bookkeeping to food services, educational services and administration — artwork brightens up the workplace and keeps employees focused on their true purpose.

"I always have children's art in my office," said Linda Woythaler, a former Hernando Elementary School principal who is director of professional development and community services. "It reminds me why I'm here."

College plans take shape

Another month under my belt, and time is flying by fast.

I am proud to declare my college plans and have confidence knowing they are what I will be happy to do for the rest of my life. The College of Central Florida in Lecanto will be my first stop, so I can begin my bachelor's degree in mass communications.

Once I finish that, I hope to transfer to the University of South Florida in Tampa to complete my mass communications master's degree.

Earlier in the month, I completed my senior credit check and had to verify the spelling of my name for my diploma.

There is a very overwhelming feeling of nostalgia accompanied with the thought of going to college. I have had many amazing memories through high school already, and am sure as I continue through this year I'll have even more. Regardless, I am more than prepared and excited to move on to the next chapter of my life.

For now, however, my classes are going very well and I am maintaining an A average, which is exactly what I need to do at this point.

I am also completing videos for Bright House Sports Network; our school is now an official affiliate of the channel.

It is exciting to know I'll be able to see my sports packages being recognized online and possibly on demand, as well. It keeps me confident knowing my work is going to be viewed by a large group of people. My name will also be visible to future employers, which is a plus for me, going into a field with as much diversity and competition for jobs as the news business.

In November, members of our news program will attend the Florida Scholastic Press Association (FSPA) District 4 workshop. I will compete in a dual anchoring contest and enter a video sports package. Next month, you can look forward to hearing the results of the conference.

For now, it is still only the start of my final year.

New York university opens patent office

School aims to smooth path between research and business

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A new technology graduate school aimed at smoothing the path between research and entrepreneurship can boast a new distinction: the country's first on-campus patent officer, officials announced Monday.

A U.S. Patent and Trademark Office staffer already is working at the Cornell NYC Tech applied sciences school's temporary locale at Google's Manhattan office, where the school is set to enroll its first class next year.

The patent office has recently unveiled plans for satellite offices in places ranging from Detroit to California's Silicon Valley. But the "innovation and outreach coordinator" at Cornell NYC Tech is a novel effort to help innovators on campus — and in the city at large — get advice on capitalizing on their ideas, acting U.S. Commerce Secretary Rebecca Blank and patent office Director David Kappos said.

"For the first time, by stationing personnel on the ground of a major graduate research institution, the USPTO will tear down the walls between university research and the federal support that has the power to help move that research from the lab to the marketplace," Kappos said at a news conference.

The staffer may consult one-on-one and give classes on such topics as how to best to write a patent application, what financial help

Central figure in Miss. integration defies labels

Associated Press

JACKSON, Miss. — James Meredith is a civil-rights icon who hates the term "civil rights."

It's as if civil rights were somehow set apart from — well, rights.

"When it comes to my rights as an American citizen, and yours, I am a triumphalist and an absolutist. Anything less is an insult," said the black man who 50 years ago inflamed the anger of white Mississippi by quietly demanding admission to the state's segregated flagship university.

Now 79 and living in Jackson, Meredith sees himself as a messenger of God — a warrior who crippled the beast of white supremacy by integrating the University of Mississippi.

These days, he frequently wears an Ole Miss baseball hat in public. When the university's football team recently played the University of Texas in Oxford, Meredith was a guest in the chancellor's stadium skybox, and the crowd applauded when that was announced over the loudspeakers.

Yet he said he doesn't plan to participate in the university's commemoration of his history-making enrollment, which prompted a state-federal standoff, sparked deadly mob violence and

ART

Student art has livened up the district administrative offices for years. Art teachers in each school make the choices near the end of the school year. The art that was placed on the walls and shelves in May was celebrated during the open house.

It's definitely a point of pride for children and their parents.

This is Allie Harrell's second year displaying a drawing in the district center. Her watercolor is on the hallway wall just outside Woythaler's office.

"I think it's fun," said Allie, now a sixth grader at Citrus Springs Middle School. "I tell my friends they should try to do it."

Her mother, Arnitha, said she enjoys watching Allie's success.

"She's very artistic," Mrs. Harrell said. "She can draw and color and paint for hours."

Mykal Davis, Crystal Davis and Ashley Bane look at some of the other art after Ashley showed hers to the family. Ashley is a student at Lecanto Middle School.

Middle School sixth-grader received a coveted spot on the wall in the administrative wing.

While he enjoys drawing mythical beasts and dragons, this offering is a house in the valley, depicting trees and wind.

"My dad taught me to draw like that," he said.

His dad, James, agreed. "I've always encouraged him to draw," he said.

Forest Ridge Elementary art teacher Jinnie Zuniga said students are thrilled when their art is selected to appear in district offices.

"It's a big boost to their ego, a boost to their confidence," she said. "Art is a wonderful thing."

Bradly Laukshtain is only a 7-year-old Hernando Elementary pupil, but his drawing of a black cactus in the desert under a bright orange, yellow and red sky now hangs on a district services wall.

Asked his reaction, Bradly smiled and said:

"Amazing!"
Chronicle reporter Mike Wright can be reached at 352-563-3228 or mwright@chronicleonline.com.

Asked to clarify, Meredith said: "Did you find anything 50 years ago that I should be celebrating?"

Ole Miss administrators today don't shy away from the history of a half century ago. For the past year, Ole Miss has sponsored lectures and other events to commemorate Meredith's Oct. 1, 1962, enrollment and the ensuing changes that have made the university more diverse.

In a state with a 37 percent black population, Ole Miss now has a black enrollment of about 16.6 percent, and the current student body president, Kim Dandridge, is black—the fourth black person elected to the post.

University officials are careful to say the events are for commemoration, not celebration.

Mississippi's segregationist governor in 1962, Ross

Barnett, declared that no school would be integrated on his watch. He denounced the federal government as "evil and illegal forces of tyranny" for ordering Ole Miss to enroll Meredith, a 29-year-old Air Force veteran who had already taken classes at historically black Jackson State College.

In his new book, "A Mission from God: A Memoir and Challenge for America," Meredith and co-author William Doyle recall the court battle and mob violence.

"I chose as my target the University of Mississippi, which in 1960 was the holiest temple of white supremacy in America, next to the U.S. Capitol and the White House, both of which were under the control of segregationists and their collaborators," Meredith wrote.

have stagnated, the economic importance of higher education has increased, fueling inequality.

McPherson acknowledged the effort isn't a binding commitment, but said the organizations leading the effort would publish annual updates so the public can tell if targets are being met.

Public colleges "see this as an important, defining mission for us in the years ahead. We're not giving you the statement and hoping you don't call back,"

McPherson told reporters on a press call. "We're hoping you and the public hold us accountable and we will work together all these universities to get this done."

McPherson acknowledged it will fall to individual institutions, with help from the states that support them, to reach the collective target. But he expressed hope that setting a national goal would drive campus agendas and lead institutions to better share the lessons they've learned about the challenging work of keeping students on track toward a degree.

Several educators on the call Tuesday discussed efforts already bearing fruit.

Mary Evans Sias, president of historically black Kentucky State University, described efforts there such as 24-7 tutoring services, reducing inefficiency in credit policies, and revamping financial aid to better ensure students don't drop out for lack of money. Eastern Connecticut State University president Elsa Nunez said her institution has revamped remedial coursework to embed it in other classes, rather than offering stand-alone classes that often prove a big obstacle to students.

"We know we can get the students in and graduate them on time," said Nunez.

Beyond advice on navigating the nuts and bolts of entrepreneurship, the plan aims to foster discussion on one of tech's touchy subjects: the balance between protecting intellectual property and fostering the public benefits of innovation, such as making computer code publicly available for others to adapt and build on.

"That dialogue is something that the United States has to have," Cornell President David J. Skorton said. "This is a conduit for the U.S. government to be working directly with the innovation community ... to figure out: What's the right place for intellectual property in one of the areas of our economy that's growing like crazy right now?"

About 20 students are to be admitted to a master's degree program that starts in January in the current space, donated by Mountain View, Calif.-based Google Inc. The school's permanent home on Roosevelt Island, now a mostly residential enclave on the East River, is to open in 2017.

A Celebration!

¡Una Celebración!

If you live in the United States, you probably call yourself an American. But almost all Americans can trace their ancestors back to other countries. Through our history, many millions of people have immigrated, or moved, to the United States to live.

From Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, we celebrate National Hispanic Heritage Month. Sept. 15 is the anniversary of independence in five Latin American countries: Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. Mexico, Chile and Belize also celebrate independence in September.

This week in The Mini Page, we learn more about a few Latin American countries. Do some research to learn about other countries with Hispanic roots.

Who is Hispanic?

"Hispanic" refers to a person whose family or ancestors came from Mexico, Puerto Rico, Cuba, South or Central America, or another Spanish culture. "Latin America" means parts of the Americas where mostly Spanish is spoken. Sometimes people from these regions are called "Latinos."

Mexico

Mexico is the only Latin American country in North America. It is bordered by the United States to the north (Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California) and Central America to the south. To the east lies the Gulf of Mexico; to the west is the Pacific Ocean.

Before conquerors arrived in the 1500s from Spain, Mexico was home to Aztec and other civilizations. The Spanish brought their religion and language to the region and called it New Spain.

Mexico declared its independence from Spain on Sept. 16, 1810.

Imagine being a defensive back in the NFL and having to cover Detroit Lions wide receiver Calvin Johnson. With magnetic hands and breakaway speed, the Lions' "King" dazzles by making spectacular catches seem routine.

In his first five seasons, Johnson has 366 receptions totaling 5,872 yards and 49 touchdowns. He had 1,681 receiving yards and 16 TDs last fall.

Before going pro, Johnson was voted the nation's top receiver at Georgia Tech in 2006. In college he majored in building construction, and one summer he helped with building safe latrines for the poor in Bolivia.

Since then he's built an All-Pro football career, signed a new eight-year contract, and expects to keep Lions fans roaring for a long time.

Puerto Rico (it means "rich port") is a territory of the United States. This means that Puerto Ricans are citizens and can move freely to the continental United States. But while they live in Puerto Rico, they cannot vote in presidential elections, and they do not pay federal income taxes.

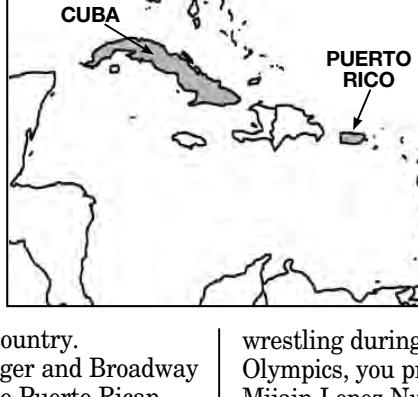

On Nov. 6, Election Day, Puerto Ricans will vote to decide whether their island would like to become the 51st U.S. state, remain a territory or be independent.

Lucy

Special to the Chronicle

Lucy is an approximately 8-year-old Pug mixed with possibly Min-Pin. She is an extremely sweet girl and a great little dog. She is such a love that she has been adopted twice, but returned through no fault of her own because of illness on the part of her owners. She gets along well with other dogs. Adopt A Rescued Pet Inc. does home visits prior to adoptions, so can only adopt to the Citrus County areas. Call 352-795-3550 and leave your name, number and pet's name for a return call. Visit www.adoptarescuedpet.com for other pets and the adoption calendar with locations, dates and times.

Calling all collectors

Wildlife State Park plans second Collectors' Day, appraisals

Special to the Chronicle

Ellie Schiller Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park invites collectors of all ages to attend its second Collectors' Day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, inside the Pepper Creek Terrace Room at the park Visitor Center on U.S. 19.

Collectors' displays will be set up starting at 10 a.m. This is an opportunity to display family-friendly collections of things such as antiques, spoons, trains, coins, books, maps, utensils, etc.

Exhibitors can share knowledge and enthusiasm with event visitors. There will be no fee to exhibit and there is no admission to attend the Collectors' Day event. Regular park admission will apply for entrance into the Wildlife Park.

To display a collection, stop into the park office or call Susan Strawbridge at 352-628-5445, ext. 1002, Monday through Friday. Applications and guidelines are available at the park office. Call soon to reserve a spot, as space will be limited. Return applications in person, by mail, fax or e-mail.

Dudley's Auction will have collectors, dealers, auctioneers and appraisers available to identify and place a value on treasures from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Their specialties include, but are not limited to, coins, military, jewelry, tools, postcards, signatures and other paper collectibles and string instruments. A $5 fee will be charged to appraise one item, or three will be appraised for $12.

Proceeds from appraisal fees will benefit the Friends of Homosassa Springs Wildlife Park.

Marine Corps League helps The Josh White Fund

Special to the Chronicle

The Marine Corps League, Citrus Detachment No. 819, made a $1,000 donation Monday to the upcoming Lance Cpl. Joshua Langston White Benefit Bass Tournament on Lake Rousseau. Lance Cpl. White, a Crystal River native and United States Marine, lost both legs in an improvised explosive device blast in August while on patrol in Afghanistan. He is currently in Walter Reed Army Hospital in Maryland, recovering. The bass tournament will be Oct. 28 on Lake Rousseau at the Inglis Dam Recreation Area off West Riverwood Drive north of Crystal River. One-hundred percent of each donation collected in the name of the tournament will be given to the family through The Josh White Fund. At left, Paul Pilny, Toys for Tots coordinator for the Marine Corps League, Citrus Detachment No. 819 and Marine Corps League, Citrus Detachment No. 819 Commandant Morgan Patterson, right, present their $1,000 donation to Matthew Beck, tournament director for the charity event. For more information about the tournament or how to make donations to The Josh White Fund, call Beck at 352-422-0888.

Poker run to raise money for children

Special to the Chronicle

ices will be Sunday, Oct. 7.

Registration will begin at 10:30 a.m. at Thunder Inn, 5210 N. Florida Ave., Hernando. The last bike (vehicle) out will be at noon. All vehicles are welcome and are to be back at the Thunder Inn by 4 p.m. The best poker hand will win the event.

There is a $5 entry fee per rider. All stops are mystery stops. Entry includes poker hand and a meal at the end of the run. There will be music, door prizes and drawings all day.

For additional information, call Gwen at 352-586-6913.

Historical Society keeps Citrus County hopping

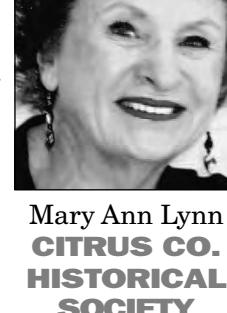

Drum roll, please ... on Sept. 11, the Floral City Friends of the Library presented a check for $10,000 to Eric Head, director of Citrus County Library System. This $10,000 will be used for books and materials for the Floral City Library. Job well done.

We have many events coming up this month:

■ From 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 4, meet local photographer Rebecca Pujals-Jones and enjoy her ongoing documentary — "Soul of Florida: Portraits of Faces Among Us." The storytelling images convey a broad range of cultural dynamics in the county and state. Call 352-341-6427. Light refreshments available. No charge.

■ Meet New York Times best-selling author Tim Dorsey will be at Lakes Region Library in Inverness from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5; from 3 to 4 p.m. at Central Ridge Library; and from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, at Homosassa Library. If you know his work, you know Serge Storms, his homicidal antihero main character. Be there.

■ From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, there will be a Mini-Book Sale at Floral City Library, offering volumes on cooking, barbecue, sports, collector books and more. This is in conjunction with the Floral City Merchants Association's Bikes & BBQ event. Good food, good times.

■ Jazz at the Museum begins Thursday, Oct. 18, featuring Joe Donato and Friends — all the way from Miami. Donato is a unique talent — whether singing, dancing, playing various instruments or conducting his great ensemble — he keeps his audience totally excited and entertained. Doors open at 6 p.m.; concert at 7.

Light refreshments, beer, wine and soft drinks available for sale. Tickets are $25. Call 352-341-6427. Season tickets are available for $80.

■ On Friday, Oct. 19, and Saturday, Oct. 20 is the annual Hernando Heritage Festival and Cracker Cattle Drive. Cattle drive starts in South Dunnellon on Friday and ends at the Historic Hernando School on Saturday, 2435 N. Florida Ave., Hernando. Live auction on Saturday with lots of horse-related items and "gee gaws" for the home.

Live music and food. Cattle usually arrive about noon to 2 p.m. (remember this is cattle time, not people time). For sponsorships and booth information, call Doug Naylor at 352-302-5565. Any donations welcome at the festival; all proceeds go to restoration of the Hernando School.

■ At 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25, J. D. Sutton returns to The Old Courthouse Museum. He will portray Thomas Jefferson this time; last year he portrayed William Bartram and the audience was mesmerized. No charge; seats limited. Call 352-341-6427.

Coming up later...

■ On Friday, Nov. 30, Floral City Heritage Days begins with Candles and Carols with horse-drawn wagon rides, Lions fish fry, country store and exhibits at the museum from 5:30 to 9 p.m.

■ From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, Folklife Living History Day includes a tour of historic homes. Watch for more details.

■ Love Your Library Night will be Friday, Feb. 15, 2013, at the Central Ridge Library. Only two of the five delectable desserts will be cheesecake bites and chocolate-dipped strawberries. Wine by Aspirations Winery in Tampa. Tickets are $20 and available at all library branches. A limited number of tickets are available. Call 352-637-6292 for more information.

■ ■ ■

The book "Back Home: The History of Citrus County" by Hampton Dunn is being reprinted by the Historical Society. This is the original "orange cover" version from 1976.

This soft-cover edition will be available about Nov. 1 and will cost $32, including tax. Only 100 copies are being printed; reserve a copy by calling 352-341-6427. It's a great gift idea.

That is it for now. When someone says there is nothing to do in our county, please show them this column!

HONORS

■ Crystal River High School students Jamie Waters and Clarissa Consol have been named the West Citrus Elks Lodge October students of the month.

Waters, 17, has pursued a rigorous college preparatory program during his high school career. These courses have included those at the honors level as well as advanced placement and dual enrollment. He has a cumulative grade point average of a 4.3, and has received awards for his achievements, including being named to the principal's honor roll.

Waters has been active in the Business Academy. He is also on the track and cross country teams. He is the treasurer of the National Honor Society and a member of the National Society of High School Scholars.

Waters has more than 75 hours of service in various projects, including many hours at the Key Training Center.

He plans to attend the University of South Florida and major in chemical engineering. Waters is the son of Kathy Caudill and Rick Waters.

Consol, 17, has a 4.6 weighted grade point average.

She has earned the AP Scholar with Honor Award and continued into her senior year taking four AP Classes. She has more than 200 community service hours, volunteering with her youth group at Cypress Cove nursing home and Homosassa Elementary.

She is an avid member of Gulf to Lake Church and the youth group. She has gone on mission trips to Columbia, S.C., New Orleans, Jacksonville and Odessa, Ukraine. Consol was also the president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes for two years.

Consol is a member of the National Honor Society, National Society of High School Scholars, Calculus Club and the Gifted R.E.A.C.H. program. In the spring, she will graduate at the top of her class.

She also excels in sports. She played junior varsity softball her freshman year. She lettered three times in soccer and track, and one time in cross country. In soccer, her team won the Citrus County Chronicle Gerry Mulligan Story of the Year Award in 2010 and in 2012 she won the Highest GPA Award. In track, she was the 2012 district champion in the 1600 meter run and the 4x800 meter relay, and also qualified for state in the 4x800 meter relay. In the same year, she won the Citrus County All-Chronicle girls track and field team for the 4x800 and the Track and Field Coaches Award in 2011 along with receiving the Rookie of the Year Award. In her first year of cross country, she broke the school record with a time of 19 minutes and 55 seconds.

Consol plays on the Ocala Lightning travel soccer team, which made the Elite Eight in the Florida State Cup in 2012. She finished runner-up at the Disney Labor Day qualifier.

She is the daughter of Keith and Danita Consol.

She plans to attend Stetson University on a soccer scholarship and pursue a law degree.

FUNDRAISERS

■ Crystal River Primary School will have its Fall Festival at 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 5, on the campus.

All are welcome to join in the fun of food, drinks, games, prizes, crafts, inflatable slides and Art by Annie face painting. Tickets for games are 25 cents each; wrist bands available for $5.

The event is hosted by the Parent Teacher Organization and all proceeds benefit CRPS students. For more information, call 352-795-2211.

■ Sign up now for the Inverness Primary School PTA's fourth annual "Mom to Mom Sale," which will be from 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Oct. 6, in the IPS café. Sell gently used toys, strollers, cribs, child furniture, books, maternity wear and babies' toddlers' children's and teens' clothing.

Moms, dads and grandparents from Citrus County are invited to rent space and shop at this popular and unique event. Space rental is $10. IPS receives 10 percent of the proceeds to benefit the school's PTA events.

For more information and to register for the sale, call V.

The program runs the entire school year. On scheduled early dismissal days, the hours will be 12:30 to 6 p.m. Bus transportation from Crystal River Primary and Middle schools is available to The Spot.

The scholarships are available to local families who qualify. Applications can be picked up at 405 S.E. Seventh Ave., Crystal River. Scholarships will be given to students on a first-come, first-served basis. Any family receiving free or reduced-price lunches automatically qualifies.

The scholarships will offer

Chalk Talk

Spaight at 352-419-4750 or email vmail@spaight.net.

■ The Rotary Club of Sugarmill Woods and the Rotary Interact Club of Lecanto High School have joined together to support the Box Tops for Education fundraiser for Lecanto Primary School. Box Tops for Education labels can be found on more than 300 products that families purchase and use on a daily basis.

There are two drop boxes — one in the lobby of the Sugarmill Woods Country Club and the other in the Military Outlet Store on West Citrus Avenue in Crystal River.

For a complete listing of the products, go to www.RotarySMW.com.

The labels can also be mailed to the Sugarmill Woods Rotary Club, P.O. Box 8, Homosassa Springs, FL 34447.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND CONTESTS

■ The Spot Family Center has received funding from Kids Central Inc. and the Department of Children and Families to offer scholarships to local students for the 2012-13 After School Enrichment Program. The program is from 2:45 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and serves students in kindergarten through seventh grade. The Spot has 20 scholarships remaining.

The scholarships are available to local families who qualify. Applications can be picked up at 405 S.E. Seventh Ave., Crystal River. Scholarships will be given to students on a first-come, first-served basis. Any family receiving free or reduced-price lunches automatically qualifies.

The scholarships will offer students free academic tutoring, nutritional education and homework assistance, outdoor recreational activities, arts and crafts, computer tech labs, reading teams, mentorship and leadership skills.

The program runs the entire school year. On scheduled early dismissal days, the hours will be 12:30 to 6 p.m. Bus transportation from Crystal River Primary and Middle schools is available to The Spot.

Registration is required. Call 352-794-3870 to apply. Space is limited.

■ The Harry F. Nesbitt VFW Post 10087 of Beverly Hills is sponsoring two national VFW scholarship programs.

The Patriot's Pen Essay Contest is open to sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade students, and gives them the prospect of winning cash awards at the local, regional and state levels, with the opportunity for a first-place scholarship at the national level and an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., for the winner and a parent/guardian. This year's essay theme is "What I Would Tell our Founding Fathers." A 300- to 400-word typed essay is required.

The Voice of Democracy Competition is for students in grades nine through 12. The program allows students to compete for more than $2.3 million in scholarships and incentives. First-place state winners will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., from March 2 through 6 to be honored and compete for $152,000 in scholarships. First place receives a $30,000 scholarship. A typed essay and a three- to five-minute standard cassette tape or audio CD of the essay is required. The theme is "Is our Constitution Still Relevant."

Students must be enrolled in public, private or parochial schools within the U.S.; home-school students are also eligible.

The deadline for submittal is Nov. 1 for judging at the local level, with winners advancing to regional, state and national levels. Application forms are available at VFW Post 10087, 2170 Vet Lane, behind Cadence Bank in Beverly Hills on County Road 491.

For more information, call the post at 352-746-0440.

■ The deadline for the Citrus Macintosh Users Group 2012 to 2013 school year scholarship applications is Tuesday, Jan. 15, 2013. This year, CMUG will award scholarships — a minimum of $500 each — to one graduating senior from Citrus, Lecanto and Crystal River high schools. Academy of Environmental Science seniors, including home-schooled students attending the academy, will compete with applicants from their home district.

Students interested in applying should get applications from their school guidance department.

For more information, call Buzz Fredrickson at 352-341-4392.

■ The Citrus Community Concert Choir, Inc. is now accepting applications for its 2013 scholarship award of $1500.

Application is open to graduating high school seniors or enrolled college students and residents of Citrus County or children of Citrus County residents. Past and present choir members and relatives of choir members are also eligible. Applicants may obtain scholarship qualifications and application forms from their school guidance counselors or online at www.citruschoir.com. Completed applications must be received no later than April 30, 2013.

■ The College of Central Florida is awarding dozens of scholarships to qualifying students interested in taking honors classes at the Citrus campus this fall semester. A major component of CF's Honors Institute, the Community of Scholars Honors Program offers incoming high school graduates two-year tuition scholarships, currently valued at $3,000 per academic year, while offering partial scholarships to those who are currently attending CF.

Students in the honors program are free to pursue the degree option of their choosing at CF, with the scholarship requirement being successful participation in a limited number of honors-level classes that also serve to fulfill degree requirements. Students may also take classes at any of the CF locations each term, and are not bound to enrolling only in classes offered at the Citrus campus. Besides financial benefits, the Community of Scholars offers members priority registration each term.

Students wishing to be considered for scholarships should call Dr. June Hall at 352-746-6721.
