Charges stack up in suspected sex case

More women come forward

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff writer

Charges against a man accused of sex crimes against minors and adults have mushroomed once again — this time after two more women came forward and said he abused them, too. One of the accusers said she was abused more than 500 times, according to the Citrus County Sheriff's Office reports.

Bruce McQuillen
charged with sexual battery.

Bruce Michael McQuillin, 49, of Inverness, who is in custody facing previous similar charges, was arrested again Monday on two counts of sexual battery on a person 12 years or older using force or a deadly weapon. The latest accusers are now 22 and 24 years old respectively. Four other women have already accused McQuillin of rape and other criminal sexual behavior while they were minors and, in some cases, as adults.

The 22-year-old alleges she was part of a group of young teens who congregated at his home and partied. McQuillin, she alleges, provided the girls with alcohol, marijuana and cocaine. She told investigators she was 13 and 14 when she would attend these parties with other girls. She recalls passing out during one of the parties and woke up to McQuillin holding her down and improperly touching and abusing her. She reportedly punched him and fought to free herself and fled.

The 24-year-old accuser told investigators she had been going to McQuillin's home since she was 6 because she was friends with his son.

However, she alleges when she was 13 years old the sexual abuse and assaults began and lasted into her late teens.

She alleges she always told him to stop and most of the assaults came after she passed out from alcohol or drug use. She alleges McQuillin threw her into walls and doors and even threw a knife at her at one time. She said she has been abused at least 500 times by McQuillin.

She reportedly told investigators she was afraid to report the incidents because McQuillin had threatened to harm her and her family and claimed to be a

NEWS BRIEF

Meeting tonight on CR projects

The Citrus County Chamber of Commerce is hosting a town hall meeting at 6 p.m. today to discuss Commissioner Dennis Damato's proposed partnership with the city of Crystal River.

The meeting is at the Plantation on Crystal River, formerly the Plantation Inn.

Damato, a former chairman of the city's Community Redevelopment Agency, is recommending the creation of three developments districts in the city.

He and county officials told city council members last week the county has recently located impact fee revenue that can be used for some city projects.

The town hall meeting will include a PowerPoint presentation of the proposal.

CRYSTAL RIVER — Sirens sounded, motorcycles thundered and Old Glory fluttered as Marine Lance Cpl. Joshua Langston White's motorcade bounded its way to the Crystal River National Guard Armory late Wednesday afternoon.

Inside the building, hundreds gave White, 22, a rousing welcome at a special event for the wounded warrior, sponsored by the Blanton-Thompson American Legion Post No. 155.

Various military, civic and veterans organizations paid the man of the hour regards and thanked him for his sacrifice and patriotism.

On Aug. 10, the Crystal River native was patrolling in the Kajaki District in the Helmand province of Afghanistan when he was severely injured by an improvised explosive device (IED).

White lost his legs in the attack and suffered extensive additional injuries. Since then, he has been at Walter Reed National Military Medical Center in Maryland for treatment.

White saluted and easily smiled with those who turned out to wish him well. He was surrounded by his mother, Heather, and father Bob White — himself a Marine veteran — and a host of other family members.

"He is a Crystal River kid who grew up and joined the Marines and went to Afghanistan and got badly hurt and now he is dealing with all this emotion and attention," Josh's father said.

"It is really awesome to see all these people come out to support him and as you can see, he smiles and handles it all. He handles everything a lot better than I ever would," Bob White said, fighting back tears.

"But he is the kind of kid — whatever challenge you put before him he will face it and conquer it," he said.

County Commission Chairman Joe Meek fulfilled a vow the board made to White's family in August and personally delivered and read

Family reeling following death

CRYSTAL RIVER — At 27, Brandon German had suffered from depression off and on for years, and Monday he ended it by taking his own life, leaving a wife and two young children to go on without him.

"I can't believe I lost him and my kids lost their dad, and now we're going to lose everything," said Tori German, 23.

They were having financial problems. For years, the couple worked together off and on, detailing cars. They lost what had been a good job about a month ago.

Then things started snowballing.

"He had been depressed before, but nothing like this," Tori said. "He was getting progressively worse. He couldn't look for work — he couldn't even come out of the house."

They fell behind on their bills. Tori's car, a 2005 Cadillac CTS, was repossessed two or three weeks ago and the electricity is about to be turned off.

And now she is faced with the cost of burying her husband, something she never imagined she would be doing.

On Wednesday, even before she told her children, 7-year-old Ellen and 3-year-old Bradley, what had happened to their dad, Tori was trying to find Christmas presents for them. She was desperate to maintain a tiny shred of normalcy amid their tragedy.

Obama sets gun proposal deadline

Shooting a 'wake-up call'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Spurred by a horrific elementary school shooting, President Barack Obama vowed to send Congress new policy proposals for reducing gun violence by January.

"This time, the words need to lead to action," Obama said Wednesday.

He tasked Vice President Joe Biden with leading an administration-wide effort to create the new recommendations and pledged to push for their implementation without delay.

The president, who exerted little political capital on gun control despite a series of mass shootings in his first term, bristled at suggestions he had been silent on the issue during his first four years in office. But he acknowledged Friday's deadly shooting had been "a wake-up call for all of us."

Twenty children and six adults were killed when a man carrying a military-style rifle stormed Sandy Hook Elementary in Newtown, Conn., on Friday morning.

The president also called on Congress Wednesday to reinstate an assault weapons ban that expired in 2004 and to pass legislation that would close the gun show "loophole," which allows people to purchase firearms from private dealers without a background check. Obama also said he wanted Congress to pursue the possibility of limiting high-capacity ammunition clips.

"The fact that this problem is complex can no longer be an excuse for doing nothing," Obama said. "The fact that we can't prevent every act of violence doesn't mean we can't steadily reduce the violence."

The president's announcement Wednesday underscores the urgency the White House sees in formulating a response to the Newtown shooting. The massacre has prompted several congressional gun rights supporters to consider new legislation to control firearms, and there is some concern that their willingness to engage could fade as the shock and sorrow over the Newtown shooting eases.

Obama said it was "encouraging" to see people of different backgrounds and political affiliations coming to an understanding the

Manatees aerial survey says: 321

Chronicle

Staff from the Crystal River National Wildlife Refuge conducted an aerial survey of manatees on Wednesday. In all, 321 manatees were counted along the survey route stretching from the Cross Florida Barge Canal near Inglis south to the Homosassa River. Included along the route are the Crystal River, King's Bay, the discharge canal of the Crystal River Power Plant, Salt River and the Homosassa River, which includes the Blue Waters.

- King's Bay — 208 adults and 26 calves.
- Crystal River — seven adults and one calf.
- Salt River — five adults.
- Power plant discharge canal — six adults and one calf.
- Cross Florida Barge Canal — none.
- Homosassa River (Blue Waters) — 53 adults and nine calves.
- Lower Homosassa River — three adults and two calves.
- Total: 282 adults and 39 calves: 321.

country has an obligation to prevent such violence.

Appealing to gun owners, Obama said he believes in the Second Amendment and the country's strong tradition of gun ownership. And he said "the vast majority of gun owners in America are responsible."

"I am also betting that the majority, the vast majority, of responsible, law-abiding gun owners would be some of the first to say that we should be able to keep an irresponsible, law-breaking few from buying a weapon of war," Obama said.

Obama also tasked the Biden-led team with considering ways to improve mental health resources and address ways to create a culture that doesn't promote violence. The departments of Justice, Education, Health and Human Services, and Homeland Security, along with outside groups and lawmakers, will all be part of the process.

Biden's prominent role in the process could be an asset for the White House in getting gun legislation through Congress. The vice president spent decades in the Senate and has been called on by Obama before to use his long-standing relationships with lawmakers to build support for White House measures.

The president challenged the National Rifle Association, the country's most powerful gun lobby and key backer of many Republican politicians, to join the broader effort to reduce gun violence as well.

"Hopefully they'll do some self-reflection," Obama said of the NRA.

The NRA made its first comments since the shooting on Tuesday, promising to offer "meaningful contributions to help make sure this never happens again."

Obama said that while taking the necessary steps to reduce gun violence would take commitment and compromise, he said it could be achieved if Washington summons "even one tiny iota of the courage of those teachers, that principal in Newtown summoned on Friday."

He is also facing a charge of sexual battery on someone 12 years or older without their consent or while incapacitated.

On Dec. 7, after two other women came forward to accuse him, he was charged with five additional counts sexual battery on a person 12 years or older without their consent or being helpless; lewd and lascivious molestation and unlawful sexual activity.

McQuillin reportedly declined to make a statement to investigators, saying he had an attorney.

COSMETIC PLASTIC SURGERY
BREAST AUGMENTATION

A Q&A WITH DR. JAMES ROGERS, D.M.D., M.D.

American Society for Aesthetic Plastic Surgery
Member AMERICAN SOCIETY OF PLASTIC SURGEONS

If I have implants, will I have to get them replaced every 10 years?

No. Breast implants do not have a fixed lifespan; although, like all medical devices, they should not be expected to last forever.
Generally speaking, if there is no implant failure (i.e. leakage) and a woman's breasts don't change, they can be left in indefinitely.

Does it matter how large an implant I choose, and are there limits as to how large they should be?

A number of factors determine how large an implant a patient should have. As a general rule, the more breast tissue and body fat covering an implant, the better. Many of the problems associated with implants, including implant visibility, rippling or wrinkling, tend to increase with the size of the implants.

Do breast implants increase the risk of getting breast cancer?

There is no evidence that suggests breast implants increase the risk of breast cancer or delay the detection of early breast cancer. All women 35 years or older should have a mammogram prior to having breast augmentation and practice routine self-examination as well as have annual exams by their physician.

Do I have to go to the hospital to have my surgery?

No. Most of our outpatient procedures are done in our own ambulatory surgery center, Paddock Park Surgery Center. The center is certified by the Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA) and is a fully staffed and equipped surgical facility.

Are silicone implants safe? Are they better than saline implants?

Both silicone and saline filled implants are safe. Which implant is better for a particular patient depends on a number of factors. Generally speaking, if a patient has very little breast tissue and body fat, silicone implants may be softer and less likely to "ripple" or "wrinkle." This advantage diminishes with increased breast tissue. Silicone implants are generally more expensive, and leakage may be more difficult to detect. In addition, silicone implants are not available to women under 21 years of age.

Student injured when pickup hits bus

One student suffered a possible head injury Wednesday after a pickup truck rear-ended a school bus on Grover Cleveland Boulevard in Homosassa.

The bus carrying home 39 Lecanto Middle School students was at a bus stop near South Link Terrace when the accident occurred, said Marilyn Farmer, director of transportation for the Citrus County School District.

None of the students reported any injury. One seventh-grade girl, however, was taken by ambulance to Seven Rivers Regional Medical Center after she said she bumped her head.

There were no other injuries on the bus. The pickup truck's driver was also transported by ambulance to the hospital; her name and medical condition were unknown Wednesday evening.

The accident occurred shortly before 3 p.m. Farmer said she didn't know whether the bus driver had activated her red bus-stop lights, but that her yellow lights had been activated.

Farmer said the school bus had slight damage. The driver still drove her students home — in another bus, she said.

National Homeless Persons Memorial Day

National Homeless Persons Memorial Day will be observed at 6 p.m. Friday at the Crystal River Mall, in front of the Hospice of Citrus County's Tree of Remembrance.

The community is invited to come and remember homeless individuals who died this year or in previous years.

Pastor Eugene Reuman of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church will lead in prayer.

Attendees are asked to bring a flashlight to shine during the ceremony (no candles this year).

Call Barbara Wheeler of Mid Florida Homeless Coalition Inc. at 352-860-2308 for more information.

Community steps up to fill Christmas void

MARK SCOHIER
Chiefland Citizen

Citrus Countian Paul Pilny just happened to make a stop in Levy County when something caught his eye: bold black letters across the top of a November issue of the Chiefland Citizen that read "No Toys for Tots this year."

"It killed me to see that headline. I said, 'Oh, no, this is not good.' I read it and was really disturbed," Pilny said last week.

So Pilny, Citrus County's Toys for Tots coordinator, got involved by sending an email to Chiefland Citizen Editor Lou Elliott Jones offering to give surplus toys from the previous year if she could arrange to get the toys to Levy County and then later find a way to distribute them.

"This man was just offering us toys," Jones said. "I kind of thought it might have been a joke. His offer just kind of floored me. It was so out of the blue."

But it wasn't a joke, as Jones found out when a truck from the Citrus County Chronicle pulled into the Citizen's parking lot with 20 cases of Hess trucks, five cases of batteries for the trucks, 36 Zhu Zhu Pet puppies and 12 Snow Flake Plush Ponies, all valued at about $10,000.

Pilny, with the Marine Corps League Detachment 819, has been the Toys for Tots coordinator for Citrus County for about 10 years. He said Levy County missed out on about $15,000 worth of toys from the organization this year by not having a coordinator.

"It kills me to know Toys for Tots is not in Levy County," he said.

The late-coming news that Toys for Tots would not be offered in Levy County this year after seven-year organizers Pat and Vince Arcadi bowed out because of illness caught many others off-guard, as well.

Karen Driggers, owner of Second Impressions Consignment, started a Facebook drive for toys after hearing the news. On Saturday, she posted that so far toys have been collected for 89 children, with three to four gifts going to each child.

"It makes me feel awesome," she said recently. "I think so many people wanted to help, but they didn't know where to start."

Driggers said the Skinny Wallet, in Chiefland, and Second Times a Chance, in Bronson, have also helped in the Levy drive, working as drop-off points for people wishing to donate toys. All three organizations are distributing the toys from Citrus County, as well as the many donations from people in the community.

"If everybody would do a little something, it makes a big difference."

Hernando man all dolled up

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

HERNANDO — It started innocently enough.

In 1966, Ben Edney's now-late wife wanted only one old doll to put on their bed.

That's all it took for one to become 500 — and counting.

"After she got that one doll she found out that her grandmother's bridge partner was a doll collector," Edney said. "So we took that one old doll to her to see what it was and she loaned us a book. The book is what hooked me. I found out there's research and history involved, and that's what I like.

"It started out as my wife's hobby," he said, "and it wound up as our hobby. When she died a few years ago, I continued it."

When you enter Edney's Hernando home, you see dolls everywhere.

And then you enter the doll room, filled with glass cabinets with shelves upon shelves of dolls of every size — baby dolls and kid dolls, dolls from the late 19th century and most of the 20th century.

They're made from china, rubber, wood, cloth, plastic and wax. They're Shirley Temple dolls, Bye-Lo Babies, Dionne Quintuplets, Victorian dolls, boys, girls, realistic "Barefoot Children," dolls in cradles, in high chairs, dolls sitting at a table having a tea party — but no Barbies.

"My wife hated Barbies," Edney said.

One doll, made by a man in Philadelphia named Ludwig Greiner, is like a doll that's in the Confederate Museum in Richmond, Va.

"They call it a 'drug doll,'" Edney said. "During the Civil War a lady and her little girl used to go back and forth across enemy lines visiting family. When she went North, she'd put drugs (medicine) in the doll's body and nobody checked."

The biggest doll is a life-size boy doll that wears size 4 clothes. Edney said when they bought the doll in Bethesda, Md., it wasn't wearing any clothes, and as he carried it around, people were staring. So, he and his wife stopped at a store to buy and outfit so the doll wouldn't be naked.

The oldest doll is from 1830. The "queen" of the collection is a French doll from the late 1800s made by Leon Casimir Bru. The smallest doll is about 1 inch tall and belonged to Edney's father.

Besides dolls, Edney's house is filled with pictures of dolls, doll plates, doll puzzles, calendars, even salt and pepper shakers.

He said his favorite dolls are the ones made from wax, although wax is not a good material for paint, he said.

Sometimes groups come by for a tour of his collection. Edney loves to tell stories about the history and origin of the dolls, who made them, where he found a particular doll. Each one is numbered, tagged and cataloged. He continually buys and sells, and adds to his collection.

"I love it," he said. "Every doll has a story behind it."

Chronicle reporter Nancy Kennedy can be reached at nkennedy@chronicleonline.com or 352-564-2927.

Go ahead, take a peek at these holiday lights

Chronicle

Homeowners who have gone all out to decorate the exterior of their home for the holidays and aren't opposed to motorists taking a spin by their homes to see their handiwork include the following:

■ Winter Wonderland is how I would explain this block!

On North DeLeon Avenue in Beverly Hills — five blocks west of Forest Ridge Boulevard (Beverly Hills Library is the landmark) and Roosevelt Avenue.

Multiple homes in a row decorated, looks like one big house.

■ This is a single residence home decorated beautifully that is at 7776 E. Fort Cooper Road. (Take) Old Floral City Road to Fort Cooper to the end on the right. Worth seeing!

■ House and yard decorated with Christmas lights and figures. Located at: 8154 W. Pine Bluff St., Crystal River — Citronelle area. Pine Bluff Street is located off of Citrus Ave (C.R. 495), approximately six miles north of U.S. 19; or, a half-mile south of Dunklin Street. Street is on the west side of Citrus Avenue, first house on the left.

■ Our family has worked really hard on our Christmas light display. A lot of time, effort, and creativity has gone into it. It has a computer-controlled tree with thousands of lights that blink to music, all kinds of lighted animated reindeer on a teeter-totter, a slide, and a merry-go-round, a Santa train with spinning wheels and a moving grid of lights on the ground, a full nativity scene, and an inflated Santa, Frosty the Snowman, and penguins …. We would love to spread a little holiday cheer with others in Citrus County that enjoy Christmas lights almost as much as we do. Our address is: 8483 W. Highland St., Homosassa. We are located off of U.S. 19 south of the airport and Home Depot. We are the road right next to the Nissan dealership on U.S. 19 across the street from the Key Training Thrift Store. We are the fifth house on the left before the hill. Our Christmas light display comes on every evening from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

■ In response to your article in today's paper, I would like to suggest our house has lights and has dressed up for Christmas as does others on our street. The address is: 8039 N. Golfview Drive, Citrus Springs. Golfview is the road that turns off the main road (Elkcam), which is the road that the golf and country club is located on.

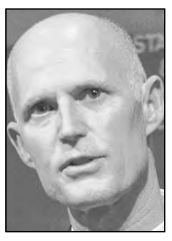
■ My home is in Hunter's Ridge in Crystal Oaks. Access to our community is off Crystal Oaks drive. The community is gated and visitors need to select 41 and enter on the access pad. My phone rings and I can open the gate. Enter, turn left and left again into the cul-de-sac at the bottom of the hill. My light show lasts about 10 minutes and can be heard on your car radio at the FM station shown in front of the home.

■ Holiday Light Display at S. Springbreeze Way, Homosassa Springs. Take County Road 491, turn on to Grover Cleveland Boulevard, drive approximately 3 miles then turn right on to Springbreeze Way — ninth house on right; or, from U.S. 19, turn on to Grover Cleveland Boulevard, drive approximately 3 miles then turn left on to Springbreeze Way — ninth house on right. Nice display on both sides of drive in the front, and lots of lights all around the house.

Scott says state needs to look at early voting days

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — After declining to use his emergency powers to expand early voting to ease hours-long waits last month, Gov. Rick Scott on Wednesday said Florida should look at changing the new law he signed that reduced the opportunity to cast in-person ballots before Election Day.



Gov. Rick Scott wants voting law changed.

But some critics said Scott must share the blame.

Testifying before a U.S. Senate committee, former Republican Gov. Charlie Crist, a newly minted Democrat, criticized Scott for signing the law and failing to extend early voting when he had the chance.

The law passed by the Republican-controlled Legislature reduced the number of early voting days from 14 to eight. The days cut included the Sunday before Election Day, which typically drew large numbers of Democratic-leaning black voters to early balloting sites after church, a convergence dubbed "souls to the polls."

"We've got to look back at the number of days of early voting we had," Scott said during a separate appearance, on CNN's "Starting Point" with Soledad O'Brien. "We need to have a bipartisan group come together, Republicans and Democrats, and say we have to improve this, restore the confidence of all Americans in the election process in Florida."

The Republican governor also said Florida should look at limiting the length of its ballot and giving local election officials more flexibility in determining the size of polling sites.

Thousands of Florida voters faced long lines and waited for hours to cast ballots during early voting and on Election Day. Among the factors blamed for the delays: The reduction in early voting days, a long ballot weighed down by 11 constitutional amendments proposed by the Legislature and an insufficient number of voting booths.

In defending his refusal to allow early voting on the last Sunday before the election, Scott told O'Brien that he was simply complying with the law, but he added, "We do need change."

Crist, meanwhile, told the Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington, D.C., that Florida's voting problems were the result of decisions by Scott and lawmakers.

"Florida, which four years earlier was a model for efficiency, became once again a late-night TV joke," he said.

Gov't: Wood storks no longer endangered

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — Federal officials said the population of wood storks has rebounded to the point they can be classified as threatened instead of endangered, but some environmentalists object to the proposed new status.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service plans to list its proposal for wood storks in the federal registry next week, pointing to marked improvement since the species was listed as endangered in 1984.

"This is a good day for the wood stork, and a good day for conservation," Dan Ashe, director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, said in a written statement.

Changing the storks' status to threatened is largely a symbolic move. No conservation or protection measures for the species would be removed. But opponents of the change, who will be able to offer comments and data to support their case, said it is a step toward a full delisting.

No one doubts that biologists' counts of wood storks mean there has been a resurgence of the birds. In 1984, an estimated 4,742 pairs of the birds were counted; today the population range is believed to be 7,086 to 8,996 pairs. But much of the return of the birds has come from outside South Florida.

"We're not diminishing the gains that are made in north Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. Storks are nesting there in greater numbers than in the past," said Jason Lauritsen, director of Audubon's Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary. "But there is a reverse side to the coin, that they're not mating in South Florida like they were in the past."

Fight over Bork's nomination forever altered judicial selection

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Conservatives wanted Robert H. Bork on the Supreme Court. They wound up with Anthony Kennedy, the key vote in reaffirming a woman's right to an abortion.

The fight over Bork's failed Supreme Court nomination redefined the Senate confirmation process and made him a symbol of the nation's culture wars. The political battle that erupted over Bork has now, years later, expanded to stall nominees for far lesser judicial posts, and nominees themselves have curbed their responses to questioning to avoid his fate.

Had Bork, who died Wednesday at age 85, prevailed and become a justice, his vote would have dramatically changed the court.

President Ronald Reagan's choice of Bork in 1987 to replace Justice Lewis Powell was intended to cement conservative control of the court for decades. And Bork gave both his supporters and opponents every reason to believe, through scholarly writings and judicial decisions, that he would be a consistent conservative vote on a range of key issues. That would include, perhaps most importantly, one day delivering the decisive blow to undo the 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling that declared a woman's right to an abortion.

By the time of Powell's retirement, a year later, control of the Senate had shifted to the Democrats and control of the court was at stake. On the same day Reagan said he would nominate Bork, Sen. Edward Kennedy rushed to the Senate floor to paint a vivid picture of Bork that signaled the coming confirmation battle.

The Senate hearings were in one sense a televised civics lesson: Bork, a burly man with a heavy beard, repeatedly defended — in dry scholarly terms — his view that judges should play a limited role in American life. He faced sustained Democratic attacks on his writings in academia and on the federal bench.

Among the topics up for discussion were Bork's views on civil rights. In 1963, he had written disapprovingly of the pending Civil Rights Act and called the government's effort to stop discrimination in restaurants, hotels and other areas of public accommodation "a principle of unsurpassed ugliness." Ten years later, in a hearing on his nomination to be Nixon's solicitor general, he said had been wrong about the civil rights legislation.

The wrangling over nominees, once confined to the Supreme Court, now affects even candidates for district court judgeships. And nominees, looking back at Bork's performance, now routinely duck questions intended to elicit politically damaging responses that might provide a reason for senators of one party or the other, to cast "no" votes.

The Senate eventually rejected Bork's nomination 58-42, with the help of a half-dozen Republicans who joined all but two Democrats in voting against him.

In later years, Bork joked that he achieved a measure of immortality anyway, because his name became a verb signifying the vilification of a nominee on political grounds, as in, to Bork a nominee.

Noted nominee Robert Bork dead at 85

Associated Press

MCLEAN, Va. — Robert H. Bork, who stepped in to fire the Watergate prosecutor at Richard Nixon's behest and whose failed 1987 nomination to the Supreme Court helped draw the modern boundaries of cultural fights over abortion, civil rights and other issues, has died. He was 85.

Robert H. Bork Jr. confirmed his father died Wednesday at Virginia Hospital Center in Arlington, Va. The son said Bork died from complications of heart ailments.

Brilliant, blunt and piercingly witty, Robert Heron Bork had a long career in the law that took him from respected academic to a totem of conservative grievance.

Along the way, Bork was accused of being a partisan hatchet man for Nixon when, as the third-ranking official at the Justice Department, he fired Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox in the Saturday Night Massacre of 1973. Attorney General Elliot Richardson had resigned rather than fire Cox. The next in line, William Ruckelshaus, refused to fire Cox and was himself fired.

Associated Press

U.S. Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork testifies before the Senate Judiciary Committee on Sept. 16, 1987, during his confirmation hearings on Capitol Hill.

Bork's drubbing during his Senate nomination hearings made him a hero to the right and a rallying cry for younger conservatives.

The Senate experience embittered Bork and hardened many of his conservative positions, even as it gave him prominence as an author.

Conservative legal scholars lauded Bork as an intellectual leader of the move toward originalism, which calls for the Constitution to be interpreted as it was envisioned by the Founding Fathers. Eugene Meyer, president of The Federalist Society, where Bork co-chaired the board of visitors, described Bork as "a truly kind and decent man" who helped mentor a generation of conservative law professors and practitioners.

Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia called his former appeals court colleague "one of the most influential legal scholars of the past 50 years. His impact on legal thinking in the fields of antitrust and constitutional law was profound and lasting."

Earlier, Bork had been a private attorney, Yale Law School professor and a Republican political appointee.

At Yale, two of his constitutional law students were Bill Clinton and Hillary Rodham.

"I no longer say they were students," Bork joked long afterward. "I say they were in the room."

Stocks fall as sides snipe in 'cliff' talks

Associated Press

Stocks dipped Wednesday, recording their first loss of the week. President Barack Obama and Republicans in Congress sniped at each other, and a deadline to avoid sweeping tax increases and government spending cuts drew closer.

General Motors stock surged after the government announced plans to sell its ownership stake in the company.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 98.99 points, or 0.7 percent, at 13,251.97. The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 10.98 points, or 0.8 percent, to 1,435.81. The Nasdaq composite index fell 10.17, or 0.3 percent, to 3,044.36.

Obama said that he and House Speaker John Boehner were "pretty close" to a deal to avoid the tax increases and spending cuts, a combination known as the "fiscal cliff." The two sides have exchanged proposals this week.

But the president also said congressional Republicans keep finding "ways to say no as opposed to finding ways to say yes." He said the nation deserves compromise in the aftermath of the Connecticut school shooting.

Boehner, speaking to reporters for less than a minute and in a defiant tone, called on Obama to offer a deficit-cutting plan balanced between spending cuts and tax increases.

He predicted -the House would pass his backup plan, which calls for extending decade-old tax cuts for Americans making less than $1 million per year. The White House has rejected that plan.

The S&P 500 index had gained more than 2 percent over the previous two days in part because of optimism about a deal taking shape. The optimism seemed to melt on Wednesday, and stocks finished near their lows for the day.

GM soared $1.69, or 6.6 percent, to $27.18 after the company said it would spend $5.5 billion to buy 200 million shares of its own stock back from the federal government.

The government pledged to sell the other 300 million GM shares it owns on the open market and shed its entire ownership stake in 12 to 15 months. The government got GM stock as part of a 2009 bailout.

U.S. builders broke ground on fewer homes in November after starting work in October at the fastest pace in four years. Superstorm Sandy probably distorted the totals in the Northeast.

Business HIGHLIGHTS

Discounts abound as stores try to salvage season

NEW YORK — When it comes to fat holiday discounts, better late than never.

This holiday shopping season, many stores haven't been offering the same blockbuster deals as they did last year. Instead, they've dangled offers of free shipping and no-fee layaways to lure shoppers.

But during the final weekend before Christmas, shoppers should expect to see more "70 percent off" and "buy one, get one free" signs as stores try to salvage a season that so far has been disappointing.

Government issues new online child privacy rules

WASHINGTON — New online child privacy rules will keep anonymous advertisers and marketers from siphoning personal information about preteens but won't restrain innovation among technology companies and businesses that rely on the Internet to reach consumers, government officials said Wednesday.

But those assurances failed to win over software developers who said the cost of complying with the new regulations and the risk of violating them will cause many responsible businesses to abandon the children's marketplace.

Information about children that cannot be collected unless a parent first gives permission now includes the location data a cellphone generates, as well as photos, videos, and audio files containing a human image or voice, according to the rules announced Wednesday. Data known as "persistent identifiers" that allow a person to be tracked over time and across various websites are also considered personal data and covered by the rules, the agency said.

Obama: He and house speaker 'pretty close' to a deal

WASHINGTON — Optimistic despite a tightening deadline, President Barack Obama said Wednesday he and House Speaker John Boehner are "pretty close" to a grand fiscal deal to avoid a first-of-the-year shock to the economy, but that congressional Republicans "keep on finding ways to say no as opposed to finding ways to say yes."

Obama cast a resolution to the "fiscal cliff" as a matter of political will. He said in the aftermath of the massacre of school children in Connecticut, the nation deserves a compromise by its political leaders.

Obama spoke to reporters at the White House after announcing an administration-wide response to Friday's shooting at an elementary school in Newtown that killed 20 first-graders and six adults.

US seeks 'balanced' trade relationship with China

WASHINGTON — The U.S. is seeking a more balanced trade relationship with China at talks Wednesday that could set the tone for cooperation after political transitions in the world's two largest economies.

The annual joint commission on commerce and trade meeting comes weeks after President Barack Obama's re-election and the elevation of new leaders of China's ruling Communist Party.

US housing starts slowed to 861,000 in November

WASHINGTON — U.S. builders broke ground on fewer homes in November after starting work in October at the fastest pace in four years. Superstorm Sandy likely slowed starts in the Northeast.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday that builders began construction of houses and apartments at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 861,000. That was 3 percent less than October's annual rate of 888,000, the fastest since July 2008.

QUALITY EDUCATORS

Evaluation a positive reflection

Teachers in Citrus County scored well on Florida's new statewide evaluation test, reflecting generally positive results from teachers across the state on the evaluation system that uses student test scores to rate effectiveness.

THE ISSUE:
Citrus teachers score well on first round of evaluations.

OUR OPINION:
Good to see positive results, but instrument needs refinement.

In Citrus County, 97 percent of teachers were rated as "effective" or "highly effective" based on the performance of their students during the 2011-12 school year.

The testing program is part of the Race to the Top (RTTT) initiative that is part of the federal Student Success Act. Florida received a $700 million federal grant as part of its involvement in RTTT.

It is encouraging most teachers scored well in this new evaluation instrument, which is better than the previous evaluation of "satisfactory/unsatisfactory," but it is still largely a one-dimensional look at teacher performance, which has historically been hard to evaluate.

While the initial evaluation program is for informational purposes only, it is clear officials are moving toward some type of statewide evaluation program for teachers that will eventually impact salaries, retention and other aspects of employment.

For this reason, while we support the idea of teacher evaluations, we do not support a program that uses a single source of input, such as student performance. As most large businesses have learned over the years, multiple sources of input give a better total picture of employee performance.

One way companies gain this input is called a 360-degree evaluation, in which information is gained from an employee's supervisor, from peers and from customers and/or employees the individual supervises. We believe the teacher evaluation system would be stronger and fairer if multiple inputs were obtained in evaluating individual teachers.

Evaluations can be a valuable tool in identifying the best teachers and in helping teachers improve their effectiveness. But to be both effective and accepted by the teachers being evaluated, any system must be perceived as fair and unbiased. Obtaining multiple inputs helps create such an instrument, and we encourage this approach as a way to have a tool that is both fair and effective.

United Way needs your help

The United Way of Citrus County needs your help this holiday season. The Chronicle is asking readers to join in and support the countywide nonprofit agency by making a contribution of $31.12 (or whatever you can afford). The United Way helps fund 19 nonprofit agencies in the community and is leading the effort to impact important community concerns. Not voting a statement

— WASHINGTON The poet Carl Sandburg supposedly was asked by a young playwright to attend a rehearsal. Sandburg did, but fell asleep. The playwright exclaimed, "How could you sleep when you knew I wanted your opinion?" Sandburg replied, "Sleep is an opinion."

OTHER VOICES

So is nonvoting. Remember this as the Obama administration mounts a drive to federalize voter registration, a step toward making voting mandatory.

Attorney General Eric Holder considers it self-evidently alarming that 60 million adult citizens were not registered in 2008. He wants Washington to register everyone automatically. "The arc of American history," he said, "has bent towards expanding the franchise." But the fact many people do not register to vote is not evidence that the franchise is restricted other than by voters' inertia.

Holder's argument for trusting Washington, which does so many things badly, to superintend elections capably should be judged against this loopy statement by him: "We should rethink this whole notion that voting only occurs on Tuesday." This year, voting began in some states in September; as much as 40 percent of votes were cast before Election Day; 12 states allow online registration.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas Perez, head of Holder's civil rights division, rightly said voting too often is "an endurance contest" involving a long wait in line, frequently because of questions about voters' registrations. But the Heritage Foundation's Hans von Spakovsky, a former member of the Federal Election Commission, said:

"One of the reasons that state voter registration rolls are in such poor shape today — with large numbers of voters who are dead, have moved or are noncitizens — is because of the restrictive standards imposed by the federal government in 1993 by the National Voter Registration Act. That law made it very difficult to remove ineligible voters. Local jurisdictions were sued so often by the Justice Department when they tried to remove ineligible voters, many stopped trying to clean up their lists at all. That is why there are many places around the country where the number of registered voters is greater than the Census says there are individuals of voting age."

Notice the perverse dialectic by which Washington aggrandizes its power: It promises to ameliorate problems exacerbated by its supposedly ameliorative policies. Notice, too, the logic of Perez's thesis that "our democracy is stronger when more people have a say in electing their leaders." Therefore the public good would be served by penalizing nonvoting, as Australia, Belgium and at least 10 other countries do. Liberals love mandates (e.g., health insurance). Why not mandatory voting?

In 1960, 62.8 percent of age-eligible citizens voted. In the 13 subsequent presidential elections, lower turnouts than this have coincided with the removal of impediments to voting (poll taxes, literacy tests, burdensome registration and residency requirements). Turnout has not increased as the electorate has become more educated and affluent and as government has become more involved in Americans' lives. There are four obvious reasons for nonvoting.

One is contentment. Americans are voluble complainers but are mostly comfortable. Second, the stakes of politics are agreeably low because constitutional rights and other essential elements of happiness are not menaced by elections. Those who think high voter turnout indicates civic health should note that in three German elections, 1932-33, turnout averaged more than 86 percent, reflecting the terrible stakes: The elections decided which mobs would rule the streets and who would inhabit concentration camps.

Third, the winner-take-all allocation of electoral votes in 48 states — an excellent idea, for many reasons — means many state races without suspense. (After their conventions, Barack Obama and Mitt Romney campaigned in just eight and 10 battleground states, respectively.) Fourth, gerrymandered federal and state legislative districts reduce competitive races.

Because the likelihood of any individual's vote mattering is infinitesimal, and because the effort required to be an informed voter can be substantial, ignorance and abstention are rational, unless voting is cathartic or otherwise satisfying. A small voting requirement such as registration, which calls for the individual voter's initiative, acts to filter potential voters with the weakest motivations. They are apt to invest minimal effort in civic competence. As indifferent or reluctant voters are nagged to the polls — or someday prodded there by a monetary penalty for nonvoting — the caliber of the electorate must decline.

It has been said that for every complex problem there is a solution that is clear, simple and wrong. Washington soon may seek a complex "solution" — preemption of states' responsibilities; federal micromanagement of elections; eventual coercion of lackadaisical citizens — to the non-problem of people choosing not to vote.

LETTERS to the Editor

Thanks to volunteers

Having recently become residents to Citrus County, it was nice to see how well the Salvation Army is supported. The best example was the other day; we stopped at Publix in Crystal River and a young man was manning the bucket with his two young children. They were ringing the bells, with smiles from ear to ear. No better time to teach them the joy of giving than at a young age. Thanks to all who take the time to volunteer.

Post office glitches

A warning to anyone mailing packages believing priority mail means special attention is paid to their package: In the past five weeks, the priority mail packages I paid twice as much to send have taken the same length of time as the ones I sent parcel post. And if you want to check the tracking as it moves from location to location, you're at the mercy of the clerk, who many times never bothers to scan your package. There is absolutely no accountability at the U.S. Postal Service.

Citrus has lots of crime

I'd like to know what dream world Sheriff Dawsy is in. I read the Chronicle faithfully every day. I see all the breaking and entering and what's going on in Citrus County. I don't know what world he is in, but he better wake up and let's make Citrus County a safe place to live.

No coyotes here

I just read a good article from "Get your facts straight" in your paper, and thanks to the serviceman for his service. And next, to the person that wrote how coyotes attack the people and such — what a biggie. I say get hold of yourself. Get your magnifying glass changed. You are seeing squirrels, not coyotes. Neither will attack. Only squirrels will eat your car wiring up. Coyotes — aren't any in my neighborhood.

Learn from tragedy

First and foremost, my prayers and thoughts are with the families of the innocent victims of the Dec. 14 killings in Newtown, Conn. It is hard to imagine such loss and I hope that perhaps, just perhaps, we might listen to the voices of those little children and those who taught them. Listen to the voices their parents, siblings and friends give us and to the voices of those who survived the day but are also innocent victims.

We, as a country, support the personal freedom of our citizens to purchase and own assault-type weapons, semi automatics and high-capacity magazines.

Perhaps it is time to look at the greater good of society. Specifically, in this case, telling our children we cannot build high enough walls, big enough fences and strong enough locks to keep out people who might wish to do us harm but we can, and will, ban the weapons that give almost no one the chance to survive such an attack. We have to start somewhere. These children were the most innocent of the innocents.

I am not arguing the basic right to bear arms. I'm saying, "Does anyone really need weapons that are capable of such horrific damage?" If a person feels more protected by owning a firearm it is their right to own one. It is a right to hunt for game, to target practice. Should it be a right to own weapons that kill with such urgency and firepower? Do you really believe that Thomas Jefferson had assault and high-powered weapons in mind when penning our Constitution?

One of the inscriptions at The Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C., gives us a glimpse of his thoughts on our changing country. The idea is that we do not attempt to live in the same clothing we wore as a child and that as a nation we are aware of the changing times and adjust our laws accordingly.

Do we build higher walls, bigger fences and stronger locks? That is the path we have taken in the past, and perhaps it's time to listen to tiny voices that were silenced well before their time and consider whether there is a lesson to be learned.

Our children are speaking to us. Perhaps we should listen and try, at the very least to, make one very important change for all of our dear children.

As a retired Fairfax County, Va., teacher, I can tell you there is much to learn from children. Please, listen.

Shooting renews video-game violence argument

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the days since the massacre at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn., a shell-shocked nation has looked for reasons. The list of culprits include easy access to guns, a strained mental-health system and the "culture of violence" — the entertainment industry's embrace of violence in movies, TV shows and, especially, video games.

"The violence in the entertainment culture — particularly, with the extraordinary realism to video games, movies now, et cetera — does cause vulnerable young men to be more violent," Sen. Joe Lieberman, I-Conn., said.

"There might well be some direct connection between people who have some mental instability and when they go over the edge — they transport themselves, they become part of one of those video games," said Gov. John Hickenlooper of Colorado, where 12 people were killed in a movie theater shooting in July.

White House adviser David Axelrod tweeted, "But shouldn't we also quit marketing murder as a game?"

And Donald Trump weighed in, tweeting, "Video game violence & glorification must be stopped — it is creating monsters!"

There have been unconfirmed media reports that 20-year-old Newtown shooter Adam Lanza enjoyed a range of video games, from the bloody "Call of Duty" series to the innocuous "Dance Dance Revolution." But the same could be said for about 80 percent of Americans in Lanza's age group, according to the Pew Internet and American Life Project. Law enforcement officials haven't made any connection between Lanza's possible motives and his interest in games.

The video game industry has been mostly silent since Friday's attack, in which 20 children and six adults were killed. The Entertainment Software Association, which represents game publishers in Washington, has yet to respond to politicians' criticisms. Hal Halpin, president of the nonprofit Entertainment Consumers Association, said, "I'd simply and respectfully point to the lack of evidence to support any causal link."

It's unlikely that lawmakers will pursue legislation to regulate the sales of video games; such efforts were rejected again and again in a series of court cases over the last decade. Indeed, the industry seemed to have moved beyond the entire issue last year, when the Supreme Court revoked a California law criminalizing the sale of violent games to minors.

The Supreme Court decision focused on First Amendment concerns; in the majority opinion, Justice Antonin Scalia wrote that games "are as much entitled to the protection of free speech as the best of literature." Scalia also agreed with the ESA's argument that researchers haven't established a link between media violence and real-life violence.

DEATH

"He was trying to sell the rims off his truck to get Ellen a Kindle Fire and to get my car from the impound yard," Tori said. "He kept lowering the price, lower than what they were worth. We hadn't gotten the kids one thing for Christmas, and that was eating us both up. But, with his depression, he couldn't handle the stress."

On Monday, Tori had gone out with her daughter for a few hours and when they returned to their Crystal River apartment, the doors were locked.

"His truck was out front, and I started thinking something bad happened," Tori said, trembling. "He had threatened (suicide) before, and a couple of years ago he actually tried it, but thankfully didn't succeed and had to be air-lifted."

Tori took Ellen to her mother-in-law's nearby apartment and the two women went back and banged on the door. When Tori finally got the back door open, she was afraid to go in.

Brandon's mother, Cheryl German, found her son's body, and they called 911. As of Wednesday, Brandon's body was still at the Medical Examiner's Office, waiting to be released to a funeral home.

Tori said her mother-in-law sold some of her jewelry to help pay for part of the burial costs.

Diane Lee, Tori's stepgrandmother, said the couple had struggled, but they loved each other.

"They did a lot of things together as a family," Lee said.

The family recently had a combined birthday party for the kids at a park. Lee said she'll always remember Brandon trying to hit the SpongeBob piñata.

"Now that she's alone, I want Tori to get some kind of an education, something so she can stand on her own two feet and be a good role model for her kids," Lee said. "I want that more than anything. I just don't know where the resources are or how to do it."

She also doesn't know if Tori will ever be able to go back into the apartment. Right now everything is too raw, too terrible.

The one ray of light so far has been support from the community. Right away, High Octane Saloon put out two donation jars and owner Doug Doty has pledged to do whatever they can to see that the kids have presents for Christmas and food to eat.

"We're all in," Doty said Wednesday.

Also, a bank account has been set up at TD Bank (offices in Crystal River and Inverness), "Brandon German Fund," for burial expenses and to help the family.

"Right now, I need to get a job. I can't sit here and just think, and I need to take care of my kids," she said. "It's so unreal. I still can't believe I've lost him."

Death sought

Staff Sgt. Robert Bales, 1st platoon sergeant, Blackhorse Company, 2nd Battalion, 3rd Infantry Regiment, 3rd Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 2nd Infantry Division participates in an exercise Aug. 23, 2011, at the National Training Center at Fort Irwin, Calif. The Army said it will seek the death penalty against Bales, accused of massacring 16 Afghan villagers during predawn raids in March. The announcement Wednesday followed a pretrial hearing for Bales last month.

FBI offers reward in jail escape

CHICAGO — A manhunt for two bank robbers who used a makeshift rope to pull off a daring escape from a high-rise Chicago lockup pushed into a second day Wednesday, with authorities offering a $50,000 reward for information leading to the men's apprehension.

The former cellmates apparently broke a cell window, pulled out the bars then descended almost 20 stories to escape the downtown Metropolitan Correctional Center early Tuesday.

Joseph "Jose" Banks, 37, and Kenneth Conley, 38, were unaccounted for during a 5 a.m. headcount, according to the U.S. Marshals Service.

Snowstorm heads to Midwest

DENVER — A storm that has dumped more than a foot of snow in the Rocky Mountains is causing problems for travelers as it spreads across the Plains.

The main east-west route across Colorado, Interstate 70, was closed from east of Denver to the Kansas state line because of poor visibility due to blowing snow Wednesday. Smaller highways were also closed in eastern Colorado.

Drivers in Iowa and Nebraska were told to be careful or stop driving altogether on Wednesday evening as the Plains gets its first major winter storm of the season.

Light snow is also expected at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport Thursday and strong winds could make visibility poor. National Weather Service forecaster Jamie Enderlen said the storm, combined with low clouds, could cause delays at the nation's second-busiest airport.

Amid tragedy, scammers creep in

NEWTOWN, Conn. — Scam artists have started to prey on the memories of those who were killed in the school massacre in Newtown, Conn.

Family members of Noah Pozner were grieving for the 6-year-old when they learned that someone was soliciting donations in the boy's memory. A website had been set up with his name, even including petitions on gun control. It was a scam.

Noah's uncle, Alexis Haller, called it an outrage and reported the action to police.

Consumer groups and government officials called for caution about unsolicited requests for donations, by phone or email. They are telling people to be wary of callers who don't want to answer questions about their organization, who won't take "no" for an answer, or who convey what seems to be an unreasonable sense of urgency.

Benghazi report spurs resignations

Associated Press

The resignations came as lawmakers expressed anger and frustration over the findings of an independent review panel.

WASHINGTON — Three State Department officials resigned under pressure Wednesday, less than a day after a damning report blamed management failures for a lack of security at the U.S. diplomatic mission in Benghazi, Libya, where militants killed the U.S. ambassador and three other Americans on Sept. 11.

The resignations came as lawmakers expressed anger and frustration over the findings of an independent review panel, and the State Department struggled to find a balance between protecting its diplomats while allowing them to do their jobs connecting with people in high-risk posts.

Obama administration officials said those who had stepped down were Eric Boswell, the assistant secretary of state for diplomatic security, Charlene Lamb, the deputy assistant secretary responsible for embassy security, and Raymond Maxwell, the deputy assistant secretary of state who oversees the Maghreb nations of Libya, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they weren't authorized to discuss personnel matters publicly.

Some of the three may have the option of being reassigned to other duties, the officials said.

The department declined immediate comment on the resignation of the officials whose decisions had been criticized in the unclassified version of the Accountability Review Board's report that was released late Tuesday.

The board's co-chairman, retired Adm. Mike Mullen, told reporters that the board had not determined that any officials had "engaged in willful misconduct or knowingly ignored his or her responsibilities."

But Mullen, a former Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, added, "We did conclude that certain State Department bureau-level senior officials in critical levels of authority and responsibility in Washington demonstrated a lack of leadership and management ability appropriate for senior ranks in their responses to security concerns posed by the special mission."

Christmas stockings with the names of shooting victims hang from railing near a makeshift memorial near the town Christmas tree Wednesday in the Sandy Hook village of Newtown, Conn. The memorial, which was put up in the aftermath of the elementary school shooting that shocked the small town, is increasing in size as the days go on. More funerals took place Wednesday, as the town continues to mourn its victims.

Shattered Newtown, Conn., tries to make sense of tragedy

Associated Press

NEWTOWN, Conn. — For a third straight day Wednesday, funeral processions rolled through a grieving Connecticut town trying to make sense of the massacre of 20 first-graders and six adults in an elementary school less than two weeks before Christmas.

A 7-year-old boy who had dreamed of being a firefighter and a heroic first-grade teacher who died while trying to shield students from the carnage were among the victims laid to rest in what has become an unrelenting cycle of sorrow and loss.

"The first few days, all you heard was helicopters. Now at my office all I hear is the rumble of motorcycle escorts and funeral processions going back and forth throughout the day," said Dr. Joseph Young, an optometrist who said he had already been to one funeral and would be going to several more.

Students in Newtown returned to school Tuesday, except those from Sandy Hook Elementary, where a gunman armed with a military-style assault rifle slaughtered the children and six teachers and administrators last Friday.

He also killed his mother at her home.

Students at Sandy Hook, which serves kindergarten through fourth grade, will resume classes in a formerly shuttered school in a neighboring community in January.

President Barack Obama pressed Congress on Wednesday to reinstate an assault weapons ban that expired in 2004, and called for stricter background checks for people who seek to purchase weapons as well as a limit on high-capacity ammunition clips.

"This time, the words need to lead to action," said Obama, who set a January deadline for the recommendations.

In Newtown, Education Secretary Arne Duncan held a closed meeting with Sandy Hook Elementary staff, and also planned to attend the wake of slain principal Dawn Hochsprung.

In what has become a dark rite of passage in America, survivors of Minnesota's 2005 school shooting on the Red Lake Indian Reservation that killed 10, including the gunman, traveled to Connecticut to offer comfort to the community. They said they sought to repay the support they received nearly eight years ago from survivors of the Columbine High School killings in Colorado.

Armored backpacks and a rush on guns follow shooting

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Anxious parents are driving up sales of armored backpacks for children in the wake of the Connecticut school shooting.

Sales on assault rifles and high-capacity magazines, like the ones used by the shooter last week to kill 26 people at an elementary school, are also flying off gun store shelves. Firearms enthusiasts are stocking up because they fear potential gun control measures.

President Barack Obama tasked his administration Wednesday with creating concrete proposals to reduce gun violence.

Colorado set a single-day record for gun background check requests the day after the Connecticut mass shootings, and some online retailers are removing assault rifles from websites in part because of diminishing supplies.

In Utah, a manufacturer reports a spike in sales of armored backpacks designed to shield children caught in a shooting.

Doctor's arrest highlights unrest in Dagestan

Associated Press

MOSCOW — The anesthesiologist was performing surgery when masked police burst into the hospital and arrested him, still wearing his medical clothes, leaving the patient lying unconscious on the operating table. Now Marat Gunashev faces charges of helping organize an attack by Islamic militants three years ago that killed the police chief in Makhachkala, their hometown in Russia's restive Caucasus region.

His brother-in-law, fellow doctor Shamil Gasanov, was arrested in the same case. Gasanov's decapitated body was returned to his relatives, who said they suspect police blew off his head with a grenade launcher.

The doctors' case is part of an increasingly grim picture of violence and lawlessness in Dagestan province, the epicenter of an Islamic insurgency destabilizing Russia's North Caucasus region following two separatist wars in neighboring Chechnya. Human rights groups accuse police and security agencies of fueling the violence through extrajudicial killings, abductions and other abuses as they carry out operations aimed at squashing the insurgency.

Poll: Latin Americans happiest

MEXICO CITY — The world's happiest people aren't in Qatar, the richest country by most measures. They aren't in Japan, the nation with the highest life expectancy. Canada, with its chart-topping percentage of college graduates, doesn't make the top 10.

A poll of nearly 150,000 people around the world found seven of the 10 countries with the most positive attitudes are in Latin America.

Many of the seven do poorly in traditional measures of well-being, like Guatemala, a country torn by decades of civil war followed by waves of criminality that give it one of the highest homicide rates in the world.

SEOUL, South Korea — Conservative Park Geun-hye has become South Korea's first female president.

The liberal Moon Jae-in conceded late Wednesday to the daughter of late dictator Park Chung-hee after a close race.

Park Geun-hye elected president of South Korea.

Her victory came despite analysts' speculation that high voter turnout could favor Moon. Moon is the son of North Korean refugees and a former human rights lawyer.

Park said she's open to dialogue with North Korea, but calls on Pyongyang to show progress in nuclear dismantlement.

Lawmakers get bullets in mail

DUBLIN — Five Northern Ireland politicians received letters containing bullets Wednesday as an extremist Protestant campaign of death threats and illegal street protests escalated over Belfast City Council's decision to stop flying the British flag year-round.

Hours later, an off-duty police officer narrowly avoided being shot when confronted by a gunman outside his home in the mainly Protestant town of Bangor. No group claimed responsibility.

Russia gives initial OK to adoption ban

MOSCOW — Russia's parliament on Wednesday gave overwhelming preliminary approval to a measure banning Americans from adopting Russian children, a harsh retaliatory move against U.S. human rights legislation.

But the proposal appears to be too extreme for some senior Russian officials. The foreign minister and the education minister spoke out flatly against an adoption ban.

Florida fleeces Southeastern Louisiana

Gator guard scores season-high 20 points against Lions defense

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Mike Rosario scored a season-high 20 points to go along with six rebounds and four assists, and No. 8 Florida routed Southeastern Louisiana 82-43 on Wednesday night.

The Gators (8-1) bounced back from a loss at No. 4 Arizona four days earlier, winning their only home game over a 40-day span.

Rosario made 8 of 13 shots, including 4 of 8 from 3-point range, and enjoyed his best game since transferring to Florida from Rutgers after the 2009-10 season. It came on the heels of a 16-point night against the Wildcats.

It's a big swing for the senior guard, who coach Billy Donovan criticized earlier in the season. Donovan called Rosario soft before the season, and then ripped him for turnovers and a lack of defensive effort last month.

Rosario has responded well.

He was no match for the Lions (1-8), who have lost five straight.

Rosario hit consecutive 3-pointers late in the first half, turning an eight-point game into a double-digit lead. He followed with two more baskets, giving him 10 consecutive points. Maybe his most impressive play came in the closing minute of the first half, when he grabbed a rebound and made an athletic move toward the basket.

He could have flirted with a triple-double, but Donovan played reserves for the final 5 minutes of the lopsided game.

While Citrus High School easily handled South Sumter in a 61-47 defeat last Thursday to win its fourth game in a row, juniors Devin Pryor and Mitchell Ellis provided the highlight of the young season two minutes into the third period.

With the Hurricanes leading 54-21, Ellis stole the ball from the Raiders for the second time in the quarter and found Pryor heading to the basket where Ellis served an alley-oop pass, allowing the junior point guard to slam-dunk his team to a 35-point lead.

The play needed several circumstances to align for its success, but the pair said they were prepared for the opportunity.

"Yeah, we do that all the time in practice," Ellis said after the game. "We connect on it every time, basically. We talked about it in the locker room. I said, 'The first time I steal the ball, I'm going to lob it up to you.'"

Citrus girls atop team standings, but C.R. a potenital challenger

Mid-term grades for the county's four girls basketball programs are in.

There are surprises, both good and bad. More importantly, it needs be understood there's still plenty of time for reversals of fortune — in either direction.

Maybe it isn't too surprising Citrus High School is once again atop the county standings. The Lady Hurricanes, unbeaten a season ago going into the district tournament, lost two frontcourt starters to graduation. So even with a potent returning nucleus, nothing was certain.

So far, Citrus has not disappointed. Against some strong county opposition, the 'Canes — built around the play of Liz Lynch, Shenelle Toxen, Lindsay Connors and a deep bench — are unbeaten. Their lopsided win against Lecanto on Tuesday made them 4-0, with perhaps one game remaining in county play (unless they meet the Panthers again in the District 6A-6 tournament).

That one game is certainly an interesting one. Citrus travels Friday to Crystal River, a team the 'Canes beat by 22 points in their season opener. Such an outcome isn't likely this time around.

Magic reserves lead to victory

Orlando's bench scores big points

Associated Press

ORLANDO — J.J. Redick scored 17 points and fellow reserve E'Twaun Moore had 15 on Wednesday night, leading the Orlando Magic to a 90-83 win over the Washington Wizards.

Redick had four 3-pointers in leading Orlando to its fourth straight win. Arron Afflalo had 15 points for the Magic.

Nene had 20 points off the bench for the Wizards, who lost their fifth in a row. Jordan Crawford added 19 points and six assists.

The Magic took a 76-63 lead into the fourth quarter, but started the period shooting 3 for 15, giving the Wizards an opening they failed to capitalize on.

Cartier Martin hit back-to-back 3-pointers and Emeka Okafor scored on a layup to pull Washington to 85-81 with 4:02 left in the game.

The Wizards had three more possessions to cut the lead further, but Okafor missed two shots from five feet and Crawford turned the ball over to stop the rally.

Redick was 3 for 3 from beyond the 3-point line in the first half, but those were the only shots he took as the Magic spread the offense around. Nine Magic players scored at least three or more points and the team shot 51.3 percent for the half, but it only got them a 52-50 halftime lead.

Orlando was up 48-35 with 4:34 left in the second quarter when the shots stopped falling and the defense faltered. Washington scored 11 straight points, the last three coming off a long-range shot by Martin that

Niners, Seahawks game a late-season classic

Coaches, teams square off on primetime TV

Barry Wilner
AP Pro Football Writer

Under normal circumstances, Seattle's CenturyLink Field rocks from the noise of the 12th Man.

Imagine how far across Puget Sound the crowd's cheers will reverberate when the Seahawks host the 49ers on Sunday night.

The NFL flexed this one to prime time, and it was a wise choice. Although the 49ers (10-3-1) still can win the NFC West even if they fall to Seattle — a win in the finale against Arizona would do it — there's no way they'll take Pete Carroll's Seahawks lightly.

Niners coach Jim Harbaugh and Carroll had a bit of a feud going when they were college coaches, Harbaugh at Stanford and Carroll at Southern Cal. That hasn't diminished much in the pros.

"It's a big division finish for us and we'll see how it goes," said Carroll, whose team is 6-0 at home and hosts St. Louis in its last game. "All we can do is focus on this game right here. We'll have no trouble focusing. They're a great team, and coming home and all that it will be exciting to get ready."

Seattle (No. 7 in the AP Pro32) is on quite a roll, winning three in a row and five of six. Its defense has allowed 219 points, second only to the 218 yielded by the 49ers (No. 2, AP Pro32). And all the offense has done is put up 58 and 50 points the last two weeks. Seattle (9-5) is the first team since 1950 to score 50 or more points in consecutive weeks, impressing the oddsmakers enough to make the Seahawks 2 1/2-point favorites.

But the 49ers also have done something rare, going into New England and, after blowing a 28-point lead, beating the Patriots 41-34. They have lost only one of their last eight games.

"I think the thing that the players were feeling and probably anybody that was watching it was feeling was that there were two teams — two very good teams, two hard-hitting teams, two teams that have a lot of pride in how they play — really came out to see who's better," Harbaugh said of the Patriots game. "And wanted to be better and wanted to win that game, and it showed.

"This game will be the same, I really believe that."

So do we, but without the scoreboard being overworked.

Kelly coach of the year

Notre Dame leader deemed best by AP in college football

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — After two seasons as Notre Dame coach, Brian Kelly decided he wasn't spending enough time doing the best part of his job: coaching players.

Kelly changed that in 2012, and shuffled his staff. Then, with Kelly more in tune to his team and the assistants in sync with the head coach, Notre Dame went from unranked to top-ranked.

For leading the Fighting Irish to the BCS championship for the first time, Kelly was voted Associated Press college football coach of the year.

"When you're talking about the coach of the year, there's so many things that go into it," Kelly said. "I know it's an individual award and it goes to one guy, but the feelings that I get from it is you're building the right staff, that you've got the right players and to me that is a validation of the program. That you put together the right business plan."

Kelly received 25 votes from the AP college football poll panel. Penn State's Bill O'Brien was second with 14 votes. Stanford's David Shaw (four), Texas A&M's Kevin Sumlin (three), Kansas State's Bill Snyder (two) and Alabama's Nick Saban (one) also received votes.

Kelly is the first Notre Dame coach to win the AP award, which started in 1998.

Of course, the Irish haven't played for a national championship since 1988 and spent much of the past two decades trying to find a coach who could restore a program that was becoming a relic of its proud past.

It turns out Kelly was the answer.

He arrived in 2010 after two decades spent climbing the coaching ladder and winning big everywhere he worked. But in the world of college football, Notre Dame is a long way from Grand Valley State — where Kelly won Division II national titles — and Cincinnati, his previous stop, for that matter.

"I think the job tends to distract you," Kelly said earlier this week. "There are a lot of things that pull you away from the primary reason why you want to be head coach of Notre Dame, and that is graduate your players and play for a national championship.

Associated Press

Notre Dame coach Brian Kelly leads his team onto the field for a game in South Bend, Ind. For leading the Fighting Irish to the BCS championship game for the first time, Kelly was voted Associated Press college football coach of the year Wednesday.

"Now, to do that you have to have the pulse of your football team and you've got to have relationships with your players. If you're already going around the country doing other things other than working with your football team, it's hard to have the pulse of your team."

Kelly said he made a point of spending more time with the team this year.

"That's why I got into this. I want to develop 18- to 21-year-olds. My development as the head coach at Notre Dame this year has been about getting back to why you would want to coach college players. You want to learn about them; you want to know their strengths and weaknesses; you want to help them with leadership skills; you want to help them when they're not feeling confident in their ability.

"For me, that is why it's been the most enjoyable year as the head coach at Notre Dame, is that I got a chance to spend more time with my team."

The first step, though, toward a successful 2012 season for Notre Dame can be traced to Feb. 10. On that day Kelly announced his coaching staff. The most notable change was moving Chuck Martin from defensive backs coach to offensive coordinator to fill the hole left when Charley Molnar became the coach of Massachusetts.

Martin was defensive coordinator for Kelly at Grand Valley State, then replaced his boss as head coach of the Division II power when Kelly was hired by Central Michigan after the 2003 season.

The move might have seemed odd to some, but Kelly, who built his reputation on offensive acumen, wanted a right-hand man who understood exactly what he wanted.

To replace Martin on the defensive side, Bob Elliot was hired from Iowa State to coach safeties. Harry Hiestand was hired away from Tennessee to replace offensive line coach Ed Warinner, and co-defensive coordinator Bob Diaco, who had been with Kelly at Central Michigan and Cincinnati, was promoted to assistant head coach.

"The voice of your coordinators has got to be in lock step with the head coach," Kelly said. "Now both of these guys have been with me a long time.

"Chuck Martin on offense, I wanted a voice that went back with me to Grand Valley State. And with Bob Diaco someone that goes back to Central Michigan with me. So yeah, it was important to get that voice right."

The last change Kelly needed to make involved Xs and Os. Kelly wanted to win now, but with a first-year starter and redshirt freshmen at quarterback. He had to adjust his style.

Out went the push-the-pace offense that had helped him reach two BCS games at Cincinnati. In came a more deliberate approach.

"We conduct the game differently," Martin said. "We set out how we thought this team could win with the personnel we had and with the young quarterback. Most people say 'OK, you're going to play the young guy, you're playing for the future.' We just went 12-0 with the young guy and he got yanked four times.

"The rest of the world wants 12-0 with no warts. We have plenty of warts. Somehow we're 12-0. Just goes to show the job (Kelly) did that we made it work week in and week out with what we have."

Kelly's ability and willingness to adapt have been his greatest strengths.

"He made some of his biggest changes ever in the last year. Going away from some things that really were his bread and butter, and 12-0 later, the guy did it again," Martin said.

"He saw what Notre Dame football needed in 2012 and he got to know this university."

Krzyzewski, Auriemma win US coaching honors

Mike Krzyzewski and Geno Auriemma have been chosen USA basketball coaches of the year after leading the U.S. teams to Olympic gold medals.

Krzyzewski guided the U.S. men to a second straight gold and was honored for the fifth time by USA Basketball. He also shared the award with Auriemma in 2010, after the Americans won gold in the men's and women's world basketball championships.

Krzyzewski, who coaches the Duke men, also won the award in 2006, 2007 and 2008.

Auriemma, the Connecticut women's coach, led the U.S. women to their fifth straight Olympic gold medal, most ever in a traditional women's team sport.

Both coaches have said they don't expect to return.

Penn State voted AP sports story of year again

NEW YORK — The Penn State child sex abuse scandal was selected as the sports story of the year by U.S. editors and news directors in an annual vote conducted by The Associated Press.

For the first time since the AP began announcing a sports story of the year in 1990, the same issue was selected twice in a row.

The AP announced the vote results Wednesday.

There were 157 ballots submitted from U.S. news organizations. The voters were asked to rank the top 10 sports stories of the year, with the first-place story getting 10 points, the second-place story receiving nine points, and so on.

The Penn State saga received 1,420 points and 109 first-place votes. The No. 2 sports story, Lance Armstrong stripped of his seven Tour de France titles, had 10 first-place votes and 1,008 points.

Andersen changes directions, heads to Wisconsin

Gary Andersen publicly pledged his allegiance to Utah State not long ago. Now he's on the verge of becoming Wisconsin's coach.

Wisconsin reportedly will hire Andersen to replace Bret Bielema, who left the Badgers earlier this month to take the Arkansas job.

The news about Andersen broke Tuesday night and neither Utah State nor Wisconsin had anything official to announce about Andersen on Wednesday. The delay is at least in part tied to laws in Wisconsin that require a state job to be posted for at least two weeks before it can be filled. The two-week posting was up at the end of business on Wednesday.

The school was expected to introduce Andersen at a news conference Thursday, but a snowstorm might change those plans.

Just two years after a botched review of an apparent fumble tainted what appeared to be the final game between the schools, the Cougars (7-5) and Aztecs (9-3) will meet in the Poinsettia Bowl on Thursday night at San Diego State's home stadium, Qualcomm.

As much as SDSU fans loved to hate the Cougars during their rivalry in the Western Athletic Conference and then the Mountain West Conference, they really howled in 2010.

In an episode known as "Replaygate," BYU running back JJ Di Luigi fumbled against the Aztecs in Provo and San Diego State coach Brady Hoke asked for a review. Officials ruled there was not enough evidence to rule it a fumble. BYU scored five plays later en route to a 24-21 victory.

Six days later, Mountain West Conference athletic directors decided to ban employees or alumni of the host school from serving in the communicator position in the instant replay booth. The three replay officials reportedly were suspended for one game.

Brigham Young (7-5) vs. San Diego State (9-3), 8 p.m. EST (ESPN)

- Line: BYU by 3 1/2
- Series Record: BYU leads 27-7-1
- What's at stake: BYU looks to continue domination it enjoyed when teams were in Western Athletic Conference and then Mountain West Conference. Cougars have won five straight against Aztecs. In the overall series, BYU has outscored SDSU an average of 33.5-19.3. BYU left Mountain West Conference to go independent in football after 2010 season while Aztecs will leave for Big East next season.

SDSU fans didn't get over it, even though BYU bailed from the MWC to become independent in football. SDSU, which has won seven straight games, will leave the league after this season for the Big East in football only.

Still, Long and Mendenhall — who worked together on New Mexico's staff for five seasons — aren't interested in rehashing it.

"Oh yeah, it's ancient history," said Long, who was SDSU's defensive coordinator that day and was elevated to head coach after Hoke left for Michigan following that season. "I don't worry about the fans. I only worry about the 100 guys we've got on the team."

Said Mendenhall: "I've already been asked that a number of times, with people saying this is a giant rivalry game and there's a vendetta, etc. Again, being at BYU I've learned there are a lot of axes to grind. I don't even remember the game, to be honest with you. I know Rocky's team will be ready to play. Hopefully, I can get our team ready as well. That's really what my focus is on."

New Christmas experience

Matthew Beck
FISH TALES

The upcoming week is one of my favorites. Christmas and all associated with it is simply the best time of the year.

My son Jackson, for the first time in his young life, has somewhat of a grasp of what's coming. He will tell you its Jesus' birthday if you ask him, and that's what mom and dad want him to know. But there's something else he's keenly aware of — Santa is coming soon.

As presents have started to pile up around the tree, his curious hands have fondled each package over and over again. And thanks to him, our Christmas tree has been redecorated daily.

It's just fun to see him experiencing Christmas with such fresh eyes.

Earlier this fall, he learned to cast a rod and reel. I have been amazed at how quickly he picked it up. And while I may be biased, I think he's a pretty good caster, especially for a 3-year-old.

His mother won't be happy, but now that he and I can fish together, it gives us another reason to go to Bass Pro Shops. Sorry, honey.

Speaking of Bass Pro Shops, some good news is coming soon. Construction on a new Bass Pro Shop "mega store" in Hillsborough County is set to begin. The store will be at Interstate 75 and Adamo Drive, and is targeted to open in 2014.

I have always been a procrastinator when it comes to Christmas shopping, but I have done a little this year for Jackson. You know, a 3-year-old can't have enough soft plastic lures.

Christmas shopping is different for a little boy than what I've been used to, and easier. I have a 14-year-old daughter, so over the years I've done my fair share of shopping for her. But with high school on the horizon, the days of coloring books, puzzles and Game Boy video games are all but gone. That presents a problem for Dad — and the last time I checked, Hollister and Aeropostle haven't unveiled their 2013 line of outdoor clothing, so I'm out of luck there.

Older kids are really hard to buy for. Jackson would be thrilled with a bag of Mann's Jelly Worms. Jenna — not so much.

Keeping the children in mind, Capt. Dan Clymer of Racin' Mullet Charters in Crystal River has some thoughts on how to keep young anglers happy and the new rods and reels they will receive for Christmas bent.

Clymer, a Crystal River native, has been guiding off the Nature Coast for decades and has a firm grasp on what is productive. He said the Gulf temperature has been hovering in the mid-60s, keeping fish happy and feeding.

"The weather is so mild this winter that it has kept the fishing fantastic," he said Monday. "We've been catching good numbers of flounder, trout, some Spanish mackerel, grunts and some really nice sea bass. The sea bass fishing is really easy action for the kids and it keeps them happy and their rods doubled over."

Clymer recommended fishing the area known generically as the Foul Area for the bass. He targets the rocky bottom areas 3 to 10 miles offshore between Crystal River and Homosassa.

Clymer said a little bit of homework is needed to locate the best rocky areas, but the hard bottom is attracting numbers of sea bass.

"Anchor up-current and cast a small jig. I use a one-eighth ounce, tipped with a live shrimp," he said.

He recommended letting the bait slowly fall to the bottom and let the fish find the shrimp.

"We're fishing in 5 to 10 feet of water," he said.

While there is no daily bag limit on the tasty sea bass, according to the captain, they must be at least 10 inches to keep.

"This type of fishing is really fun and easy for kids," he said.

In addition to the steady sea bass bite, he said the speckled trout bite is red hot as of late.

Clymer said anglers leaving Crystal River need to travel no further than the many oyster bars on the north and south side of the Crystal River channel. For those not familiar with them, wait for a low tide and proceed west from Shell Island. They're hard to miss.

"Fish the cuts in the oyster bars," he said.

While there are many ways to catch trout, Clymer recommended utilizing a rattling or popping cork rigged with a D.O.A. Lures one-eighth ounce, C.A.L. jig head in the chartreuse color. Rigged to the jig head, he incorporates a Mirrolure Little John soft plastic jerkbait, watermelon/red flake in color. He said the root-beer color is an excellent choice as well, but they are hard to find on store shelves.

Popping or rattling corks can be an easy, fun way to fish. Novice anglers as well as experienced anglers find success with this presentation. Experiment with the retrieve as you begin fishing with the cork. Some days the fish will want a loud, fast presentation, while other times a slower, quieter retrieve will produce strikes.

On slow days or days with changing light conditions, consider modifying the color you employ. Some days, natural colors like root beer or watermelon red will be what you need. Other days, lures with a hot-colored tail such as pink or chartreuse will be productive.

"Keeper" trout must fall within a 15- to 20-inch slot to posses. One of the "keepers" may measurer longer than 20 inches. Five fish is the maximum number of trout each angler may keep.

Clymer said the redfish bite is good in the back country, and few fish are on the outside. So shallow draft boats are required to navigate the hard bottoms of the many shallow creeks and bays inside.

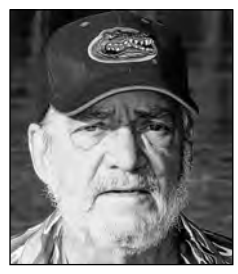
Knowledge, foresight lead to fishing success



R.G. Schmidt
TIGHT LINES

If you've been fishing for any appreciable amount of time, you have no doubt noticed some anglers are more successful than others.

A number of reasons explain why some people consistently catch more fish than others, not least of which is plain old-fashioned luck. Luck, however, will take one only so far in fishing. As is true in most human endeavors, there is more to success than just happening to be in the right place at the right time. The best anglers don't "just happen" to be. They are in the right place at the right time because of foresight, knowledge of their quarry and its habits and planning.

A case in point can be seen in a series of notes from a regular reader and correspondent, who shall remain anonymous. I will call him "Zebulon Pike," because that peak is in Colorado, and he's from Virginia.

Don't try to figure that out. It makes no sense, but one of the words, at least, does rhyme with his real name.

Ol' Zebulon is based in the Nature Coast area, but from time to time he zips off to Mississippi, Virginia or other places around the Sunshine State, pursuing various species that provide finny fun.

Here are some excerpts from a recent week or so of his notes. These are from Keaton Beach.

"First day yesterday … limit (note, he's talking about spotted seatrout), biggest at 21 inches, smallest 17. Today … 25 to 30 knots from the NNE, overcast …48 degrees at 5 a.m., still same at 3:30 p.m. … could not get out of channel this morning, negative 1.3 low tide at 8 a.m. … new moon."

From the next day: "… started out with 42 this a.m. and 10 to 15 knots, NNE again .. now 1 p.m. and 48 degrees …bottom of ebb 8:53 a.m., negative 1.2 feet …1 p.m. and tide just starting in …high tops at 3:15 … two-hour window, max, before we start to have trouble getting back in the channel."

Later: " … three-trout day was Wednesday before cold front with 30-plus knots blew in … dropped temps into low 40s …did not try Friday, with 25-knot winds, misty, rain … temp never hit 50. Today (note, Saturday) started out 8:30 …ebb tide at negative 1 foot … bottom out at 9:30 …overcast, 40 degrees …NE wind light at 8 or so knots … water at 52 in three feet … some in john boats did well in warmer shallow water … two short trout and bunch of black fish (note, black sea bass) … decided to move 10 miles south … 4.5 feet of water, temps in mid-50s, heavy grass … 1:50 p.m. put first legal trout in cooler … by 3:10 p.m. caught and released two limits … traded out of live well, kept one under 17, gut-hooked … left on incoming tide, fish still tearing it up."

On his last day there, Mike — I mean Pike — fished with a local out of a tunnel drive. In three hours, they caught about 30 slot or over-slot trout, the largest 24 inches, in less than 2 feet of water. The local was catching mostly shorts until he switched to the D.O.A. 5 1/2-inch shad tail in night glow that Zeb was using — then it was all slot or larger.

You can see why Pike is one of the more successful anglers; not just the time of a tide, but the amount of water lost/gained; exact water temperature; attention to the wind direction and speed. Foresight, knowledge, planning.

Tight Lines to you.

Outdoors BRIEF

Rainbow Springs field trip slated

Citrus County Audubon Society has scheduled a birding field trip at Rainbow Springs State Park in Dunnellon for Thursday, Dec. 27. The public is welcome to attend. Preregistration is not necessary.

This field trip is led by CCAS members Fred Hileman and Tom Gulley. The group will meet at 8 a.m. in the parking lot. There is a fee of $2 to be paid at the entrance to the park. Wear comfortable walking shoes, as it will involve some moderate walking, and will last about three hours. Bring binoculars if you have them; if not, several pairs will be available. Exploring Rainbow Springs will take participants into the butterfly garden and to the nature trail leading to the meadow and pine forest areas.

Visit CitrusCountyAudubon.com for details.

double figures. Young had 10 points and five rebounds; Frazier had 12 and six.

Scottie Wilbekin added nine points, six rebounds and four assists for Florida. Casey Prather and Will Yeguete chipped in eight points each. Leading scorer Kenny Boynton had seven points while struggling for the third consecutive game. He was 1-of-7 shooting, making him 7 of 29 in the last three games. He has hit just 3 of his last 22 shots from behind the arc.

Brandon Fortenberry led Southeastern Louisiana with 15 points.

The Gators shot 57 percent in the first half and led 43-26. Things really got ugly after the break.

The Lions went 7 minutes without a point in the second half, falling behind 50-26 before Fortenberry's driving layup.

About the only thing Southeastern Louisiana did well was handle Florida's press. The Lions had two turnovers at halftime and 13 for the game. They shot 29 percent for the game and made just 3 of 21 from behind the arc.

DEFENSE

strongly supported by sophomores Lauryn Cole and Danyelle Uolla. Along with junior's Ashlynne Van Cleef and Taylor Christian — these four formidable defensive obstacles hold up an impressive wall of defense against any would be striker.

"Our defense has done an excellent job maintaining composure and controlling the field," Lecanto head coach Roselle Lattin said. "We are a defensive minded team and defense always comes first."

Christian is what one might call a "complete" player; moved from playing solely as a forward, Christian has found some life in her game in the backfield. With five goals and one assist this season, Christian is making waves up front with her foot speed and is virtually impossible to steal from with her quick touch on the ball while playing defense.

"Taylor has always been a great defender," Lattin said. "When she played striker, she forced many turnovers. When we needed to fill the void in the back, she was our only choice. Her speed, confidence and defensive skills have made her an asset.

"This position has allowed her to showcase all of her skills and she's playing more confident than ever," Lattin said.

Key defenders for the Crystal River Pirates include freshman Kyla Dyakon and sophomore Morgan Heckman. Dyakon will fearlessly charge any breakaway and more often than not come away with the ball or settle for a blast past midfield. Never mind the collision that just knocked her to the ground.

Heckman may not look it, because of her slight frame, but she is relentless as she constantly muscles her way to the ball when an opponent dribbles into her zone.

Citrus Hurricane standouts include sophomore Cassie Bolling and junior Alicia Harper. Both players have matched up well this season when it comes to rerouting opponents who try for good angles on goal.

Martin back on the field

Lecanto junior Breanna Martin has been reinstated to her team after a red card in a Nov. 20 game against District 4A-4 rival Springstead.

Panther coaches had appealed the ruling in November hoping it could be overturned. They found out Dec. 12 it was.

Her presence in Tuesday's rematch victory over the Eagles cannot be overstated as she is a key player in Lecanto's offensive and defensive strategies.

Breast Cancer Awareness game a success

The fifth annual Breast Cancer Awareness game Dec. 14 between county rivals Citrus and Crystal River was a rousing success.

Raising several hundred dollars for the American Cancer Society, the game took place, per custom, at Hurricane Stadium. The whole stadium was covered in pink balloons and white streamers. Fans and players were all decked out in pink, showing their solidarity and support for a great cause.

Despite a tied game at the half, the traveling Pirates upended the Hurricanes 2-1 for the win.

separate districts. There is uncertainty as the FHSAA looks to redistrict again next year.

When the local teams have faced each other for non-district play this season, games have been competitive and exciting. Within the past week, Crystal River and Citrus played to a 3-3 draw Tuesday, Lecanto beat Crystal River 2-1 Monday, and Citrus beat Crystal River 2-1 last Friday.

Despite the recent frustrating losses, Crystal River coach Bobby Verlato likes facing cross-town rivals. Though such games don't affect playoff seeds, he said they are always hard-fought and a different style of play.

"It's going to be more of the bragging-right emotions," he said.

Lecanto coach Doug Warren agrees.

"A lot of those games come down to how bad someone wants it — the heart …the desire," he said.

Injuries everywhere

Coaches don't necessarily like the holiday break from a momentum standpoint, hoping winning streaks and goal-scoring don't cool off. However, it does provide some time for injuries to heal.

The Pirates have dealt with injuries all season, including goalkeeper Kyle Kidd (hip), midfielder Omam Valdivia (ankle) and striker Travis Swanson (thumb). Swanson said recently the team is a little banged up.

"The break will really help us out … get us ready for the districts," he said.

But even team members not part of the roster aren't safe from injury. Citrus coach Phil Journey missed the Hurricanes-Pirates game this week after having surgery on his left Achilles tendon, which ruptured during a recent team practice. He will be back to coach for the district playoffs, where the 'Canes are the No. 1 seed.

Leaderboard

As the teams rest up, here's individual leader stats this season:

While Citrus, 10-4 overall and 4-1 in 6A-6, has been stellar, Crystal River has surpassed expectations. The Pirates returned everyone from last year's 12-10 team and have done well enough to emerge as a threat to capture the 5A-7 title. They have won eight of nine games since their opening setback, with impressive victories against Lecanto and West Port.

Citrus and Crystal River have stumbled once in their respective districts. The Pirates loss was somewhat surprising at Brooksville Nature Coast, while the 'Canes fell at Ocala West Port. Despite its setback, Crystal River has shown it has talent and, more importantlt, the experience to use it.

After suffering that 5A-7 defeat, the Pirates bounced back against Lecanto and built a 14-point lead early in the third quarter. More impressive was their response to a strong Lecanto comeback as the Panthers regained the lead and took it into the final quarter. A 16-2 Crystal River run put that to rest, leading to an 11-point triumph.

The Citrus district loss at West Port wasn't so surprising. The Wolf Pack have been a 6A-6 powerhouse for the past decade; they have talent and are well-coached, which probably means Brian Lattin's Citrus team will be tested twice more by them — in a regular-season rematch in January and likely in the 6A-6 tournament. In fact, West Port ended Citrus' state tournament hopes last season.

Crystal River's path actually presents no such singular obstacle. The Pirates should be considered 5A-7 favorites; their future is in their hands. They must, however, avoid taking any of their district foes for granted. If they continue to improve and maintain the resolve displayed against a hot-shooting Lecanto team, Jason Rodgers' squad could go far.

All of which makes Friday's Citrus-at-Crystal River contest much more intriguing. It won't, however, be the only major game of the day.

St. John Lutheran visits Seven Rivers Christian in what should be a clash between the two favorites in 2A-3. While the other three county schools have reached the midpoint of their district seasons, Seven Rivers is just beginning its district play.

And what a starting point. Thus far, the Warriors are 6-2 with losses against Citrus and powerhouse Academy at the Lakes. With their size and ability, Seven Rivers should recapture the 2A-3 crown and maybe even make the Elite Eight, its goal after going to the Sweet 16 last season.

But first things first, and that means getting past St. John Lutheran. Coach Gary Dreyer has some major weapons to build around in the Zachar sisters, but utilizing their size to its greatest potential has not been easy. If Dreyer can get the Warriors to do that, to force opponents to slow down and play a half-court game, they could be dominant.

Last season, all four county teams posted winning records, although only Seven Rivers survived the district tournament. Lecanto had a solid core of returnees to build around in 2012-13, with enough size and outside shooting to make the Panthers a 6A-6 threat.

They've been anything but so far this season. Enigma might be the best way to describe the Panthers, a team that lost by a point at West Port but got blown out twice by Citrus and lost again by 11 to Crystal River. Lecanto is 4-10, with a 1-4 6A-6 mark.

After Tuesday's 37-point debacle against Citrus, Panthers' coach Brittany Szunko said the team's goals would be altered, with emphasis on the district tournament. She also said she believed her team could still be a power in 6A-6.

Maybe. But the Panthers haven't shown it thus far.

"I was kind of expecting it when he looked up at me, and I said, 'OK, I'm going for it,'" Pryor said.

Peaking

As district play has begun, the 'Canes have peaked at the right time, notching their fifth victory in a row with last Friday's 76-74 triumph at Central to improve to 6-3 after a 1-3 start and move to 3-0 in District 6A-6, heading into the holiday following wins against Lecanto and Springstead.

Pryor, who is averaging close to 25 points a game, was 14 of 16 at the foul line en route to 32 points, while Ellis added 18 points. Junior center Ben Janicki, who has helped Citrus bolster its post play after losing four starters from a season ago, scored 17 points.

Streaking

With a scorching 10-0 start, Lecanto has had the county's longest winning streak of the season. But the Panthers have experienced a setback with the temporary loss of senior Richie Rizzolo, who was averaging 14 points and six rebounds a game before injuring his knee in the Citrus loss.

Lecanto (10-2, 2-2) was beaten 88-52 by district rival West Port last Friday, but can revive its district standing with games against all of its district opponents, including home contests against Citrus and West Port, remaining.

Playing big

In the absence of Rizzolo, the Panthers are even more dependent on the production of Panthers senior guard Mikey Makros, who averages more than 15 points and four steals a game. Makros lacks the height of the county's other elite players, but makes up for it with his outside-shooting range.

This season, Makros has shown his game is more than 3-point shooting by driving to the basket more frequently.

"I'm trying to get away from just shooting 3s, because a lot of people just see me as that type of player," the senior said after his team's 67-47 rout of Dunnellon, in which Makros followed up five 3-pointers in the previous night's win against Seven Rivers with a game high of 16 points without a single 3-pointer.

District showdown

The county's home district matchup of the week will be at Seven Rivers Christian School on Friday when the Warriors take on St. John Lutheran.

Last Friday, Seven Rivers (4-3, 1-0 in District 2A-4) got 34 points from returning Chronicle Player of the Year Adam Gage to convincingly defeat previously unbeaten First Academy, 63-51, in the Warriors' district-opener last Friday.

St. John (6-2, 2-1 in District 2A-4) crushed Meadowbrook 67-20 last Friday for its second district win and figures to be the most talented team Seven Rivers will face in the district.

Do-it-all point guard

The ability of Crystal River point guard Ty Reynolds (22 points per game) to shoot and play defense is well known by area basketball fans. But just as impressive is Reynolds' rebounding prowess, which has netted him 8.4 boards a night this season.

Those rebounds are especially crucial as the Pirates await the return of Sam Franklin, who averaged nine rebounds a game as a freshman last year. But he won't return until next month after serving a suspension from football.

Crystal River (4-5, 1-4) won three in a row, which included a victory over district opponent Tavares, to begin its December schedule, but suffered a difficult 55-50 loss at Dunnellon after tying the game with three minutes remaining in last Friday's 5A-7 meeting.

Once a 'Cane

This season marks Citrus head coach Tom Densmore's 25th year as a coach at the school. Densmore helmed the JV squad for 16 years and is in his ninth as the varsity head man.

As a CHS grad, Densmore sees coaching as an additional perk to working at his alma mater.

"I went to Citrus High School, so if anything, I'd still be here working," he said early this season. "I wasn't going to go somewhere else to coach. I wanted to work at Citrus, and it's just worked out that I was able to coach basketball."

Top-ranked Duke cruises past Cornell

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Seth Curry scored 20 points, Mason Plumlee added 18 and No. 1 Duke reeled off 23 straight points in an 88-47 rout of Cornell on Wednesday night.

Freshman Rasheed Sulaimon had 16 points and Quinn Cook had a career-high 12 assists while showing up all over the box score for the Blue Devils (10-0).

Playing as a top-ranked team for the first since February 2011, they posted two key season highs, shooting 56.7 percent and forcing 26 turnovers.

No. 5 Louisville 79, Fla. International 55

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Peyton Siva's career highs of five 3-pointers and 12 assists helped No. 5 Louisville roll past Florida International 79-55.

It was the first meeting between Cardinals coach Rick Pitino and Richard Pitino, his son and Panthers counterpart. The younger Pitino, 30, served two stints as a Louisville assistant before taking over for Isiah Thomas at FIU this season.

Siva finished with 15 points in posting his first double-double.

No. 6 Indiana 93, Mount St. Mary's 54

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Cody Zeller finished with 16 points and six rebounds, and Christian Watford added 15 points and eight rebounds, leading No. 6 Indiana to a 93-54 rout of Mount St. Mary's.

The Hoosiers (10-1) looked like a team ready to make amends four days after its first loss of the season.

Five players scored in double figures for Indiana, which had a huge rebounding edge over the Mountaineers (4-5). The Hoosiers shot 70.6 percent — the fourth-best mark in school history.

No. 11 Cincinnati 60, Xavier 45

CINCINNATI — Sean Kilpatrick scored 25 points and led a second-half surge that carried No. 11 Cincinnati to a 60-45 victory over Xavier, renewing their crosstown rivalry amicably one year after it was marred by a brawl.

Cincinnati (11-0) won its 18th straight game at a downtown arena that has become the rivalry's stage for the next two years, an attempt to take the nasty edge off the annual game.

No technical fouls, no showing off, no on-court dust-ups. It was back to being a good old rivalry.

No. 22 Notre Dame 85, Kennesaw St. 57

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Jack Cooley scored 14 points and pulled down 13 rebounds to lead No. 22 Notre Dame to an 85-57 victory over Kennesaw State.

It was Cooley's fifth double-double in the past seven games, and he is tied for second nationally in that statistic.

Notre Dame's Jerian Grant also scored 14 points in a game that got away from the Owls early in the second half.

No. 24 Okla. St. 69, Texas-Arlington 44

STILLWATER, Okla. — Markel Brown scored 17 points and Phil Forte added 13 to lead No. 24 Oklahoma State to a 69-44 victory over Texas-Arlington.

Le'Bryan Nash and Marcus Smart both had 10 points and Philip Jurick pulled down 10 rebounds for the Cowboys (9-1).

Reserve Jamel Outler had 14 points and Kevin Butler added 11 for the Mavericks (5-3), who committed 31 turnovers.

Texas-Arlington committed 20 turnovers in the first half, four in the first 4 minutes, and Oklahoma State built a 13-3 advantage on the way to a 36-17 halftime lead.

Knicks nix Nets

Anthony returns to floor, cleans up in New York City

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Carmelo Anthony scored 31 points in his return to the lineup and the New York Knicks beat the Brooklyn Nets 100-86 on Wednesday night in the third meeting this season between the city rivals.

After two tight games in Brooklyn, the Knicks turned the first one at Madison Square Garden into a rout by dominating the second half. Anthony, who missed two games with a sprained left ankle, moved fine and shot well, though his scoring average against the Nets this season actually dropped to 37 points per game.

J.R. Smith added 19 points and Tyson Chandler had 16 points and 12 rebounds for the Knicks, who bounced back from their first home loss Monday against Houston, improving to 11-1 at MSG.

Joe Johnson scored 17 points for the Nets, who have lost three straight and eight of 10. What once was a deadlock for the Atlantic Division lead after the first meeting is now a six-game advantage for the Knicks.

Deron Williams and Brook Lopez each had 16 points for Brooklyn.

Thunder 100, Hawks 92

ATLANTA — Kevin Durant set a season high with 41 points and had 13 rebounds as Oklahoma City held off Atlanta for its 12th straight win.

Russell Westbrook added 27 points — 21 in the first half — and 11 assists for the Thunder.

The Thunder (21-4) improved the NBA's best record and atoned for a 104-95 home loss to the Hawks on Nov. 4. Oklahoma City is 20-2 since that loss.

The 12 straight wins matches the longest streak for the franchise since 1996, when it had a 14-game winning streak as the Seattle SuperSonics.

Jeff Teague scored 19 points to lead the Hawks.

Celtics 103, Cavaliers 91

BOSTON — Paul Pierce scored 25 of his season-high 40 points in the second half, hitting 10 of his 11 shots after halftime, and Boston beat Cleveland to snap a three-game skid.

Pierce made his first eight shots coming out of the break, including three 3-pointers. He finished 13 of 16 from the field.

Rajon Rondo added 20 points and eight assists for the Celtics. Jason Terry added 15 points.

Kyrie Irving scored 22 points for the Cavs, who played without Anderson Varejao, the NBA's leading rebounder who sat out with a bruised knee. Rookie Tyler Zeller got his first career start in Varejao's place and scored 20 points as Cleveland fell to 2-14 on the road.

Pacers 104, Jazz 84

INDIANAPOLIS — Reserve guard Gerald Green scored a season-high 21 points, and Paul George had 20 points, 11 rebounds and four blocks to help Indiana beat Utah.

Associated Press

The New York Knicks' Carmelo Anthony shoots against the Brooklyn Nets' Gerald Wallace during the first half of Wednesday's game at Madison Square Garden in New York.

George Hill also scored 20 and had five assists for the Pacers, who matched their largest victory margin of the season and won for the fourth time in five games.

Derrick Favors scored 16 points, Alec Burks had 12 and Mo Williams 11 for the Jazz, who lost their third in the last four games.

Indiana scored more than 100 points for just the fourth time this season — and the Pacers have won all those games. The Pacers shot 51.2 percent from the field.

Rockets 125, 76ers 103

HOUSTON — James Harden had 33 points and seven assists to lead Houston to a victory over Philadelphia.

Harden topped 20 points for the seventh straight game to send the 76ers to their fifth straight loss. He made 17 of 18 free throws, including six in the fourth quarter, as Houston improved to 9-2 in its last 11 home games.

Toney Douglas hit five 3-pointers and scored all 17 of his points in the fourth for Houston.

Nick Young scored 21 points for Philadelphia, which matched its most lopsided loss of the season. The 76ers also lost by 22 points against the New York Knicks on Nov. 5.

Raptors 97, Pistons 91

TORONTO — DeMar DeRozan had 23 points, Alan Anderson scored 12 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter and Toronto beat Detroit to extend its winning streak to four games.

Jose Calderon had 17 assists, one shy of his season high, and Jonas Valanciunas scored 12 points for the Raptors, who last won four straight from Nov. 17 to 24, 2010. Ed Davis added 11 points and nine rebounds for the Raptors, who had lost six of their previous seven meetings with the Pistons.

Anderson helped seal it for Toronto with a trio of 3-pointers in the final quarter.

Greg Monroe scored a career-high 35 points and Rodney Stuckey had 13 for the Pistons, who lost their sixth straight and dropped to 2-13 on the road.

FSU women rout Mercer at home

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Natasha Howard led five players in double figures with 17 points and 12 rebounds as No. 23 Florida State defeated Mercer 94-42 Wednesday night.

Chelsea Davis had 17, Alexa Deluzio added 15, Chasity Clayton tallied 13, and Leonor Rodriguez chipped in 10 for Florida State, which is the only team in the country with five players averaging double figures in scoring.

Davis and Clayton both went 6 of 10 from the field and grabbed seven boards apiece for Florida State (9-1), which outrebounded Mercer 59-46 — the Seminoles' highest total of the season.

No. 1 Stanford 53, No. 21 South Carolina 49

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Chiney Ogwumike had 21 points and 15 rebounds, Mikaela Ruef had a tiebreaking basket with 53 seconds left and No. 1 Stanford held on to beat No. 21 South Carolina 53-49.

The Cardinal (10-0) came cross-country to face the rising Gamecocks (10-1) and found themselves in a tough matchup. The game was tied at 45-all with 1:14 to go after Aleighsa Welch's foul shot. That's when Ruef drove left and put up a shot that barely caught the rim and fell in for the lead.

South Carolina had a chance to tie on its next possession, but Ieasia Walker made just one of two foul shots. Walker's 3-pointer with 3 seconds left drew the Gamecocks within 51-49 but that was as close as things got.

No. 2 Connecticut 97, Oakland 25

HARTFORD, Conn. — Bria Hartley and Breanna Stewart each scored 21 points and Brianna Banks had 18 to lead the No. 2 Connecticut in a 97-25 rout of Oakland.

Kaleena Mosqueda-Lewis had 14 points and nine rebounds for UConn (9-0). Stewart had 13 rebounds, eight on the offensive end, and the Huskies had a 56-26 edge on the boards.

Elizabeth Hamlet led Oakland (5-6) with 14 points.

No. 5 Notre Dame 100, Alabama A&M 39

LAS VEGAS — Kayla McBride scored 16 points to lead four teammates in double figures as No. 5 Notre Dame cruised to a 100-39 victory over Alabama A&M in the first round of the World Vision Classic.

Skylar Diggins and Whitney Holloway had 15 points each for the Fighting Irish (7-1). Ariel Braker added 12 points and Madison Cable 11.

No. 6 Georgia 72, TCU 59

FORT WORTH, Texas — Erika Ford scored 10 points in a span of just over 6 1/2 minutes midway through the first half and sixth-ranked Georgia stayed undefeated with a 72-59 victory at TCU.

The Lady Bulldogs (12-0) were up only 10-9 before Ford, the sophomore guard who had checked in on the previous timeout, made a 3-pointer with 15:04 left in the first half. By the time Ford had a steal and breakaway layup with 8:21 left, she had scored 10 points in a 15-3 run that stretched the lead to 25-12.

No. 22 Texas A&M 83, Kansas State 60

LAS VEGAS — Kelsey Bone scored 22 points, hitting 11 of her 13 shots, to lift No. 22 Texas A&M to an 83-60 victory over Kansas State.

Courtney Walker added 16 points, nine rebounds, and five steals for the Aggies (7-3), who have won their last seven games.

MAGIC

cut the Wizards deficit to 48-46 with 2:03 left in the half.

Crawford and Nene had carried the Wizards offense to the point. Crawford had three 3-pointers and 15 points while Nene came off the bench and hit 5 of 6 shots for 10 points. The Wizards bench nearly outscored the starters with Nene, Martin, Chris Singleton and Kevin Seraphin accounting for 23 of the 50 points.

The Magic bench was just as effective, particularly at the end of the third period. Moore had a pair of 3-pointers and Redick made his fourth trey of the game as Orlando opened up a 76-63 lead. Redick, Moore and fellow sub Josh McRoberts were a combined 8 for 11 from on 3-pointers in the first three quarters.

Star has ties to Victor Hugo

LOS ANGELES — Helena Bonham Carter apparently shares more with Victor Hugo than just a role in the film based on his novel.

Helena Bonham Carter

A study by genealogy website Ancestry.com reveals Victor Hugo was a political colleague of a cousin of the 46-year-old actress. Carter stars as Madame Thenardier in the upcoming musical "Les Miserables." The film is an adaptation of the stage musical based on Hugo's 1862 book.

Ancestry.com says French financier and politician Achille Fould was Carter's first cousin five times removed. He served with Hugo in the post-revolutionary French government in the 1840s. Fould was minister of finance; Hugo was in the constitutional and legislative assembly.

Fould was a staunch supporter of Louis Napoleon III when he seized power of the French empire in 1851, while Hugo declared him a traitor.

Guilty pleasure

Barbara Streisand, Seth Rogen bond on set of 'Guilt Trip'

Associated Press

— LOS ANGELES Barbra Streisand would really rather relax than star in a movie.

"I like not to be bothered," she said during a recent interview. "I like to look at the ocean and swim in my pool and play with my dog and see my son."

But for the director and writer of "The Guilt Trip," in theaters Wednesday, Streisand was the only choice to play Joyce Brewster, a loving but meddling mom who sees the bonding opportunity of a lifetime when her only son, Andy (Seth Rogen), invites her on a cross-country road trip. Streisand declined the role for a year. Then her real-life son, Jason Gould, joined the chorus of voices urging her to do it, so the legendary 70-year-old entertainer made a few "requests" of producers.

Could they promise weekends off and no call times before 8:30 a.m.? Would they consider renting a warehouse closer to Streisand's Malibu home rather than shooting on a proper sound stage?

"I get a little carsick sometimes, so I didn't want to schlep to Paramount, which is an hour and a half to two hours that time of the morning," Streisand said. "So if you rent a warehouse and built the sets — it's ridiculous what I was asking."

Yet the filmmakers obliged her every demand, and in the end, Streisand and Rogen shared one of the most pleasant, fun and creatively comfortable acting experiences they've ever had. The two approach work similarly, they said, and they really became like mother and son on set.

"Aw, you were proud of your mommy?" Streisand asked Rogen sweetly, laying her head on his shoulder playfully after he complimented her performance in the film.

Rogen, 30, said Streisand reminds him of his own mother.

"I think there's a whole generation of mothers who kind of model themselves off of Barbra. She's the patient zero of Jewish mothers," he said. "A lot of people see the movie from all races and nationalities and they're like, 'Oh man, she reminds me so much of my mother,' and I think it's because, it's probably because your mother is a fan of hers and acts like her."

Rogen and Streisand also bonded as filmmakers. As multi-hyphenates who work on both sides of the camera, they brought a broad understanding of the moviemaking process and resulting openness to their roles. For example, during one scene where Streisand's character tries to eat a four-pound steak to win a free meal, the actress in her didn't want to do it, but the director in her knew she had to.

"Because, as a filmmaker, I don't care what the actress has to go through," she said.

"Some actors are like that," Rogen said. "Ones who've made movies are like that. You can see that even though they don't want to be doing that, they know that they have to because it's the best thing for the movie."

Though their characters may seem Jewish (like the actors that play them), both said they tried to make them more generic.

"But then your natural instincts come out," Streisand said.

"And you go Jewish," Rogen added with a laugh.

Streisand then reminded him, "There are a lot of very famous Jewish entertainers," echoing every Jewish mother ever.

The mutual respect between the two was evident when they discussed their upcoming projects. Rogen just finished his co-directorial debut, "The End of the World," which he also wrote and produced.

"How did you find dealing with your actors?" Streisand asked. "Because your actors were all your friends, right? So you could say anything to them."

Rogen said it made it easier in some ways and more difficult in others. The actors all play themselves, he said, and he and Streisand shared a laugh about potential character discussions on set between actor and director.

"You hired me for me, and this is what I want to do!" Streisand laughed.

When she revealed that she's having trouble finding financing for her next directorial project, Rogen commiserated. "It's tough to get a movie going," he said.

Though Streisand's reputation as a legendary talent and reported diva precedes her, Rogen said he was impressed by the Oscar-winner's approach to her work and demeanor on set.

"If anything, it showed me that I should maintain sanity," he said. "There's no excuse to be crazy. Because Barbra's not crazy. She acts very reasonably and she can get away with a lot of (stuff) that she doesn't pull. I've seen people with much less power than her get away with crazier (things) than she's ever pulled.... She could go bonkers and she doesn't do anything."

"I'm like this nice person," Streisand said. "Why do I have this strange reputation?"

"I'm saying you could," Rogen said. "I think people project what they would maybe do if they had as much power as you."

All she did was move "The Guilt Trip" sets a little closer to her house.

Today's HOROSCOPE

Birthday — In coming months, Lady Luck will be doing as much as she can to help you in areas where you plant seeds of progress. However, you must make sure you continue to do your part in keeping the weeds out of your garden of hope.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Although you'll be able to adequately fend for yourself, your more notable benefits are likely to come from a partnership. You could actually be involved in two of them, with happy results.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — When you need something the most, your chart indicates life will be trending in your favor. Be both patient and hopeful, and see what you've started through to its conclusion.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Do not be a capricious risk-taker, but also don't be afraid to take a chance if doing so might serve your best interests. You must not let unfounded fear stop you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — When it comes to your financial affairs, you might not do everything letter- perfect, but your good moves should outrank many of your bad ones and put you in the plus column.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — It behooves you to be positive in all that you do. Instead of worrying about what may or may not happen, go out into the world, enjoying what your heart and head tell you to do.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — A pleasant surprise might be in store for you, when something that hasn't looked too profitable suddenly makes a big change for the better.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Trust that things have a way of balancing themselves out, and you'll quickly find out that if you're not being treated too well in one case, something else will make up for it.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — You've heard the old saying: "The harder your work, the luckier you get." This could be true in your case, when you achieve more than you expected through a lot of strong effort.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Although you're presently in a rather good cycle where your general interests are concerned, material rewards will require more arduous work. However, it'll be worth it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't depend on luck to provide what you want. However, an ambitious aim can be realized if you give it top priority and are willing to work hard to achieve it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — If you have to make an important judgment call that would affect others as well as yourself, make it from a noble perspective. Good intentions will produce big advantages.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — By being willing to work hard and playing your cards well, you could generate great financial benefits through a valuable and unusual source.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Dec. 20, the 355th day of 2012. There are 11 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Dec. 20, 1812, German authors Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm published the first volume of the first edition of their collection of folk stories, titled "Children's and Household Tales."

On this date:

In 1790, the first successful cotton mill in the United States began operating at Pawtucket, R.I.

In 1803, the Louisiana Purchase was completed as ownership of the territory was formally transferred from France to the United States.

In 1860, South Carolina became the first state to secede from the Union as all 169 delegates to a special convention in Charleston voted in favor of separation.

In 1864, Confederate forces evacuated Savannah, Ga., as Union Gen. William T. Sherman continued his "March to the Sea."

In 1912, the play "Peg O' My Heart," a "comedy of youth" by John Hartley Manners starring his wife, actress Laurette Taylor, opened on Broadway.

Ten years ago: Trent Lott resigned as Senate Republican leader two weeks after igniting a political firestorm with racially charged remarks. The nation's ten biggest brokerages agreed to pay $1.44 billion and fundamentally change the way they did business to settle allegations they'd misled investors by hyping certain companies' stocks.

Five years ago: Police used chemical spray and stun guns on protesters outside a New Orleans City Council meeting where members unanimously supported demolition of 4,500 public housing units for redevelopment.

One year ago: Lori Berenson, an American paroled after 15 years behind bars in Peru for aiding leftist guerrillas, arrived at Newark Liberty International Airport for her first visit home since her arrest in 1995. (After a 17-day visit, Berenson returned to Peru to serve out the rest of her parole.)

Today's Birthdays: Actress Audrey Totter is 95. Actor John Hillerman is 80. Rock musician-music producer Bobby Colomby is 68.

Thought for Today: "Fairy tales are more than true; not because they tell us that dragons exist, but because they tell us that dragons can be beaten." — G.K. Chesterton, English poet-essayist (1874-1936).

Modern Floridians rediscovering Old Florida Christmas staples

JULIANNE MUNN

Chances are that early residents along the Nature Coast celebrated the holiday season with outdoor feasts of raw and roasted oysters, crab-picking and seafood chowders simmering in cast-iron pots.

It was an era when modest homes proliferated among gulf hammocks and sawgrass meadows and on the shores of inland lakes and creeks.

Seafood was plentiful and accessible. It didn't take long for visitors to the Sunshine State, as well as part-time residents, to figure out what natives were taking for granted — there was an abundance of shell- and fin-fish that were amazingly delicious.

Today, many native Floridians choose to incorporate seafood into their winter holiday meals and parties, and snowbirds and those just visiting often follow suit.

Luckily, the area has a fair share of wholesale and retail fish houses where all sorts of fresh-from-the-sea stuff is available, including the seasonal stone crab, oysters from Apalachicola, shrimp and blue crab.

Ideas for holiday meals and buffets in today's Flair for Food include wine-baked oysters and crab; Southern-fried grouper (properly prepared with a light cornmeal coating); and shrimp tortilla towers.

See YULETIDE/Page C2

Tired of the everyday, boring shrimp cocktail? Olives, onions, lettuce and tortillas add a little Navidad to a perennial pedestrian party favor.

Don't worry: There's no seafood in this simple dessert preparation — but it does make use of Florida strawberries, paired with brie, balsamic vinegar and fresh mint.

This season, put dates on your plate

OVER EASY

Christmas is just five days away, followed oh-so closely by New Year's celebrations. It's a busy time of year, but a time when family get-togethers are always highlighted by good food and good cheer.

If you're stuck on presenting perfect appetizer trays for your guests on those holidays, fret no more. Over Easy has some appealing, unique and easy-to-prepare items to wow even the most blasé partygoers.

Two fruits associated with the holiday season worldwide are dates and pomegranates, though they are not as commonly found on American party buffets.

Both fruits were always on hand in our home when I was growing up in Indiana. My dad believed that pomegranates should be part of the holiday menu simply for eating the tiny jewel-like arils (seeds) out of hand or sprinkled atop other dishes.

My mother was a great fan of dates. Raisins weren't part of our pantry stock, but oh my! My mother's date-nut bars with chopped walnuts, dredged in powdered sugar after baking, were holiday delights.

Three cheers for the two chives

Many people are familiar with the practice of combining a baked potato with sour cream and chives. Fewer people are aware that two kinds of chives make an excellent addition to a Citrus County edible landscape.

Chives (Allium schoenoprasum), also known as onion chives, are perennials and the smallest species of the edible onions. Chives are the only species of the genus Allium native to both the Old World and the New World. The grass-green leaves growing from small bulbs are slender, tubular, and hollow. The beautiful, lavender flowers are used both in dried flower arrangements and as culinary garnishes. Bees frequent chive flowers for nectar.

Randy Hobson
EDIBLE LANDSCAPE

The fibrous bulbs of chives are not eaten, but the tender leaves can be harvested at any time during the growing season. Many years ago, when my parents lived in the Panhandle, we worked together and planted half a whisky barrel with a variety of herbs. Mom and dad harvested the herbs with scissors, and giving the chives a "haircut" was part of the fun.

The leaves are used fresh or dry-frozen. Dehydrating damages the flavor of chives. According to the University of Florida IFAS website, chives are best grown from seeds or sets planted August through March. Division of existing plants is the best method for quickly propagating chives. I prefer container-growing chives; moving the container allows accommodations for extremes of weather. Chives have a reputation for repelling insects and are often used in companion planting.

Garlic chives (Allium tuberosum), also known as Chinese chives, are native to Southeastern Asia. Garlic chive leaves are flat, not tubular, and blue-green in color. The flowers, found on 1- to 2-foot stalks are star-shaped and white. The edible flowers also attract bees.

Garlic chives are hardy and can be established directly into your edible landscape. In a garden where I grew herbs to harvest for restaurants, I lined the paths with garlic chives. The leaves were harvested, along with the flowers for garnish. Garlic chives will spread in a garden, even serving as a ground cover, but liberal use in the kitchen will keep them corralled.

While onion chives are grown and used in small quantities, garlic chives have been described as more vegetable than herb. Used freely in recipes, the leaves and flower stems of garlic chives grace meals from around the world including China, Vietnam, Japan, Korea, India, the Phillipines and others. Some recipes call for garlic chives to be chopped finely. In others, the leaves are cut into 1- to 2-inch pieces and gently simmered. The cooking mellows the flavor.

Choosing between positive alternatives can sometimes be difficult, but in the case of onion chives and garlic chives, you can grow them both and eat them, too. Happy landscaping and happy eating!

Monks give this, their yearly fruitcake

Associated Press

AVA, Mo. — Once the bane of pot-luck parties, the fruitcake has been turned into a sought-after treat by Trappist monks secluded in the Missouri Ozarks who some say bake a cake that's nothing short of heavenly.

■ To see video of the monks at work, visit http://bit.ly/TXxEkQ

Between February and mid-December, monks at the Assumption Abbey in Ava, Mo., produce about 25,000 fruitcakes. The monks have gained a national reputation for carefully controlling the production. They marinate the fruit, age the cakes and even package and ship the product from their foothills monastery.

Before each two-pound cake leaves the abbey, it gets a special prayer from the monks aimed at all those who eat the cake.

At $31 apiece, the cakes allow the monks to live out solitary lives of work and prayer on their compound southeast of Springfield.

Add an avocado and prosciutto crostini appetizer and for dessert, luscious Florida strawberries and brie and you have colorful red and green party fare.

Not only is seafood a natural choice for Christmas dinner and New Year's Day in the South, Florida also boasts plenty of other indigenous foods to complement any feast, such as citrus and exotic fruits, winter strawberries, avocados and hearts of palm.

In places now called "Old Florida," residents once designated separate small buildings they called "carrying-on" houses to host oyster-shucking parties. Nowadays such events are held on patios, decks and in family rooms.

Holiday picnics were and are often crowded affairs, with family and friends eager to dine leisurely on freshly boiled blue crab and stone crab claws dumped unceremoniously on spread-out newspapers. Nothing much more is needed unless you like melted butter for dipping.

Fish fries with favorites such as grouper, flounder, tilapia and mullet are always popular crowd-pleasers, too.

And almost everyone likes shrimp: deep fried, sautéed, skewered, scampied or just boiled quickly in seafood-seasoned broth, served with shells on for the most flavor.

Florida ranks among the top states in fresh seafood production, providing most of the nation's supply of grouper, pompano, mullet, stone crab, pink shrimp, spiny lobsters and Spanish mackerel, according to the state agriculture department.

And with Florida's long growing season, you can pair your seafood specials with a myriad of vegetables and fruits for sides and desserts.

Today's recipes are courtesy of the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services:

WINE BAKED OYSTERS AND CRAB

- 36 oysters in the shell
- 1 pound crab meat
- 1/4 cup onion, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons white wine or sherry
- 10 ounces low-fat Swiss cheese, grated

Wash oysters thoroughly. Shuck and place oysters on deep half of shell, removing any remaining particles of shell. Arrange oysters on baking sheet and set aside. Combine crab meat with remaining ingredients; mix well. Top each oyster with 1 teaspoon of mixture and bake in a preheated oven at 450 degrees for 10 minutes or until edges begin to curl. Makes 6 servings.

SOUTHERN-FRIED GROUPER

- 2 large eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 4 6-ounce grouper fillets
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil for deep-frying

Beat eggs, salt and cayenne together in a shallow dish. Place flour mixture and cornmeal in separate shallow dishes. Dredge each fillet in flour mixture and dip in egg wash. Dredge again in cornmeal. In a deep fry pan, heat 1 inch of the oil to 375 degrees on a deep-fat thermometer. Fry the fillets in batches for 2 to 4 minutes on each side, or until browned and fish flakes easily with a fork. Transfer fillets to paper towels to drain; serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

SHRIMP TORTILLA TOWERS

- 3 10-inch soft tortilla shells
- 1 cup chopped Florida parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped black olives
- 1/2 cup chopped green olives
- 1/2 cup chopped Florida green onions
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 2 cups chopped lettuce hearts
- 1 1/2 pounds large shrimp, cooked with tails on

Cut tortilla shells in half. Then cut 1/2 inch off of the rounded side of the half shell. Roll each half shell around an oven-proof glass or tin cup and secure with string. Bake at 300 degrees until the shells are firm and will hold their shape. Remove from oven and let cool. Cut string away from shells and slide shells off the cup; set aside.

Combine parsley, olives, onions, olive oil and garlic; mix well and chill. Place shells on individual serving plates and fill halfway with lettuce. Finish filling the shells with the parsley mixture. Arrange the cooked shrimp on the edge of the shells and serve with your favorite dressing. Makes 6 servings.

AVOCADO AND PROSCIUTTO CROSTINI

- 4 ounces thinly sliced prosciutto, torn into 3-inch pieces
- 1 medium baguette, sliced into 1/2 inch-thick rounds
- extra virgin olive oil for brushing
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 Florida avocados, halved, pitted, and peeled
- Salt
- Freshly ground pepper

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Arrange prosciutto in a single layer on a baking sheet. Bake until crisp; let cool. Arrange baguette slices on a baking sheet and brush with oil. Bake until light golden brown around edges. Rub bread with garlic cloves. Mash avocados with a fork and season with salt and pepper. Spread avocado on baguette slices. Top each with a piece of prosciutto and serve. Makes 24 servings.

FLORIDA STRAWBERRIES & BRIE

- 1 6-inch wheel brie cheese
- 3 tablespoons strawberry jam or preserves
- 2 teaspoons balsamic vinegar
- 1 cup strawberries, chopped
- 1/2 cup pecans, chopped
- 1/2 cup fresh mint leaves, chopped

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. In a small sauce pot, cook jam and vinegar over medium heat until bubbly. Place brie on an oven-safe serving platter or dish. Place chopped strawberries and pecans on top of brie wheel. Cover with jam mixture. Bake brie wheel until it is warm and soft, about 15 minutes. Garnish with chopped mint leaves. Serve immediately with crackers or crusty bread. Makes 12 servings.

She also substituted whole and chopped dates in any and all recipes that called for raisins, and it was fine with us.

Dates and pomegranates stir my Christmas memories like no other foods.

Here are two sumptuous date appetizer recipes courtesy of Bard Valley Medjool Date Growers Association, followed by a tasty pomegranate hors d'oeuvre recipe:

NUTTY MEDJOOL DATE CHEESE BALL

- 8 ounces fresh Medjool dates (pitted and minced)
- 8 ounces mascarpone or softened cream cheese
- 2 ounces minced pecans (preferably toasted)
- 2 tablespoons minced fresh rosemary, mint and/or cherry

Combine cream cheese or Mascarpone cheese with half of the minced pecans and all of the Medjool dates. For a more savory flavor, add rosemary as well.

Mix well and form into a ball. Roll in remaining pecans and chill well. Garnish with mint/cherry and serve with baby carrots, celery sticks and your favorite crackers. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

BACON-WRAPPED DATES

- 1 pound fresh Medjool dates
- 1 pound sliced bacon
- 6 ounce minced nuts (optional)

Split one side of Medjool date lengthwise and remove pit. Stuff with one teaspoon minced nuts. (Optional). Wrap bacon strip around date and secure with toothpick. Place under oven broiler. Turn once to ensure even cooking. Drain well. Serve warm. Makes 4 servings.

PUFF PASTRY POMEGRANATE BITES

- 1 (8-ounce) piece of blue or brie cheese, chilled
- 1 1/2 packages frozen puff pastry sheets, thawed
- 1/3 cup pomegranate syrup (recipe below)
- 1/4 cup arils (seeds) from 1 large pomegranate

Cut cheese into 24 cubes, and set aside. Roll pastry into a 15-inch-by-10-inch rectangle on a lightly floured surface; cut into 24 squares. Fit squares into miniature muffin pans, extending corners slightly above cup rims.

Bake pastry at 425 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes or until it begins to brown. Remove from oven, and gently press handle of a wooden spoon into center of each pastry, forming a shell.

Spoon 1/2 teaspoon pomegranate syrup into each shell; top with a piece of blue cheese. Bake for five more minutes or until cheese melts. Top with the fresh pomegranate arils (seeds) and serve immediately.

POMEGRANATE SYRUP

- 4 cups fresh pomegranate juice
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice

In a saucepan, combine pomegranate juice, sugar and lemon juice over medium heat. Stir until sugar has completely dissolved. Allow to cook over medium high heat for 20 to 25 minutes, or until juice is the consistency of syrup. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Store in airtight container in the refrigerator for up to two weeks.

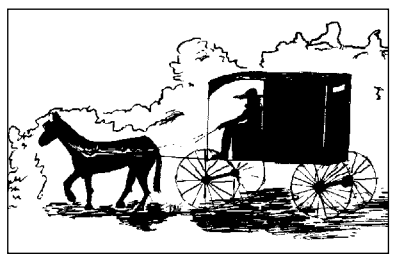
As Christmas approaches, so much left to sew



Lovina Eicher
THE AMISH COOK

Nice and sunny but cold day. After a few cloudy days, we welcome the sun even more. When the batteries on our solar-powered freezer start blinking low, we are even more happy to see the sun. It seems like one sunny day always recharges it for a while. We are still glad we invested in the solar-powered freezer. Since having it installed, we haven't had to pay a cent to keep it going. With the propane prices high, it is good to not be buying for the freezer yet. Our refrigerator, stove, lights and water heater run off of propane. Also, our water is powered by a propane motor. Last week we had a problem with the motor not kicking in when the water supply in the house was low. Susan and I wanted to do the laundry and there wasn't any water. We decided to see if we could start it manually and it worked until the next time.

My husband Joe checked it out and called the man who installed it and asked if it could be the starter batteries. We bought a new battery and it fixed the problem. It has been almost six years, so that battery lasted its money's worth. I told Joe I guess we are spoiled now thinking we always have hot and cold water in the house. Before our move to Michigan almost nine years ago, we always had to pump and carry our water. If we wanted hot water, we had to heat it.

Our motor for the water is in an outside building and the water runs to the house underground. We had two storage tanks, and when the pressure got low, the motor automatically kicked in.

Joe also installed a new gas light in the boys' bedroom on Saturday. They haven't had a light in their bedroom since the fire in May, so they were happy. At this time of the year, it works as a heater as well. I think now except for a few doors we have to paint, we have everything normal from the fire we had — although since getting more coats out for the cold weather, we are starting to see how many of our extra coats were burned. It was our extra coat storage closet, too. We are thankful that it was all replaceable things we lost.

I am trying to sew new outfits to give to the children for Christmas. It is getting closer and I am not sure if I will get them done. Daughter Elizabeth helps me sew when she gets home from the factory. Daughter Susan is doing most of the housework and laundry the past few days so I can keep sewing. Today Susan is baking two batches of outrageous chocolate chip cookies to take along to church services on Sunday. Elizabeth leaves on Friday evening with Timothy's family to attend his family's Christmas gathering.

The gathering will be at Timothy sister Miriam's near Maysville, Ky. It is a seven-hour drive one way, so she won't be home until Sunday sometime. The house will seem empty with her not around.

If you have heard of shoofly pie, try this recipe for shoofly cake.

SHOOFLY CAKE

- 2 cups flour
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 1 teaspoon baking soda

Combine flour, sugar, and butter by hand to make fine crumbs. Reserve 3/4 cup crumbs to put on top of the cake. Mix together water, molasses and baking soda. Add to the crumb mixture and combine. Put in a 9x13 greased pan and sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes or until done.

Family dog on holiday guest list

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The most prized holiday guests are those that eat with gusto, express their appreciation and lick their plates clean.

So what if some of them eat off the floor, get a little sloppy and never help with the dishes?

At Nancy Guberti's house, Flower, a 6-year-old black-and-white shih tzu, will eat the same organic turkey and spinach as Guberti's own sons.

"She's part of the family and she's such a good dog," Guberti said. "We treat her with the utmost respect, like you'd want to be treated."

Plenty of people cook for their dogs year-round, but the holidays might be the easiest time because human menus can be so easily adapted to their needs, said Sarah Zorn, a New York pet columnist for the magazine Everyday with Rachael Ray.

So how would you fix a traditional holiday dinner of appetizers, turkey, mashed potatoes and gravy, candied sweet potatoes, green bean casserole, cranberry sauce, biscuits and dessert to serve dogs and humans? No matter how spicy the human food is, the dog's has to be bland and low-fat, Zorn said.

When it comes to preparing the turkey, go saltless, she said. Eliminate onions and garlic, white flour, refined sugars and processed foods.

Zorn drew up a quick nice-naughty dog food list.

Bad: Chocolate, coffee, alcohol, raisins and grapes, onions and garlic, milk, avocado, macadamia nuts and yeast. Cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower can cause gas but are OK in small doses. Tomatoes, eggplant and peppers aren't dangerous but add nothing positive to a dog's diet.

Good: Lean meats, fish, tuna, olive oil, eggs, egg shells, yogurt, carrots, green beans, peas, sweet potatoes and pumpkin.

Champagne: Not just any bubbly

"The night they invented Champagne ... they thought of you and me. ... No woman or a man has ever been as happy as we are tonight."

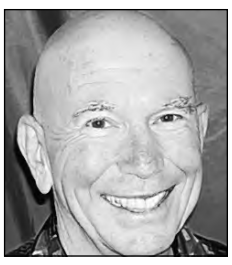
— From 1958's "Gigi," starring Leslie Caron.

However, for your information, all that bubbles is not Champagne. Effervescent wines are made all over the world, but authentic Champagnes, spelled with a capital "C," come only from a designated area 90 miles northeast of Paris. It is France's nethermost wine-growing region, consisting of some 75,000 acres cultivating three principal grapes: chardonnay, pinot noir, and meunier.

So Ron, if the rest of those sparkling wines are not made in France, what are they called? Dear reader, you answered your own question: They are "sparkling wines." The delightful tiny bubbles are the result of a second fermentation that takes place within the bottle.

Remember the simple formula for making wine: yeast + sugar = carbon dioxide and alcohol. Anecdotal history relates how a Benedictine monk named Dom Pérignon discovered quite by accident the secret of making still wine sparkle, and is reputed to have exclaimed at the moment of tasting, "I think I am drinking stars."

The way winemakers get the wine to fizz begins with a process called "riddling." The bottles of still wines are put into a framework and ever-so-slowly turned while positioned upside down. This allows the suspended yeasts to accumulate at the bottom of the thick glass containers. Riddling can be done by hand, but today most Champagne makers use machines.



Ron Drinkhouse
WINES & SUCH

At long last, when the accumulated yeasts ("lees") have finally settled, the bottles are dipped into a freezing brine solution — a process called "disgorging." The bottle is then quickly held upright, blowing out the remaining plug of solids. Immediately it is topped off with a mixture of more wine and sugar, capped with an expanding cork, and caged with a bit of wire to prevent explosions. The amount of sugar added to this final mixture (the "dosage") will determine the level of sweetness of the Champagne or sparkling wine.

After all this effort, Champagnes are classified by the degree of sweetness (residual sugar) starting with the driest, brut, on to extra-dry (actually a tad sweeter.) There are sweeter Champagnes, but we don't see them here. A small percentage of Champagnes today are labeled "sauvage" or ultra-brut, all of which are bone dry. Zero sugar is added. When I can find them, they are my preference — clean, crisp and enjoyable.

The orthodox technique of making Champagne or sparkling wine is called "Methode Champenoise," even for those fizzy wines made in the United States. It is a laborious process, and one of the reasons the stuff is so expensive. There are other ways to make wine sparkle, but they do not concern us here.

Champagne is not simply one wine, but actually comes in a range of flavors, from light (Lanson), light to medium (Taittenger), medium (Piper-Heidsick), medium to full (Veuve-Cliquot) and full (Louis Roederer).

All of these will run from about $25 to $50, and are NV or non-vintage. Vintage Champagne with the harvest date listed on the label will average about $50 and up, and I have never found them to be worth the extra price. Finally, there is the top-seeded premium or "prestige cuvée," such as Krug, Dom Pérignon, and Cristal, which run into hundreds of dollars.

I mentioned above that Champagne is made using three types of grapes, and 90 percent are this sort. "Blanc de blancs" Champaign is made entirely from white Chardonnay grapes. "Blanc de noir" is created from red grapes such as pinot noir (remember, the juice is a neutral color), and finally we move on to find the aristocratic rosés, considered by connoisseurs to be the "crème de la crème," fashioned from blends of red and white grapes employing the skins to provide color and added flavor.

All this said, if you do not have a craving for the real McCoy, there is first-rate sparkling wine from California — dozens of them, in fact — and well as cava from Spain, and Italian spumante. Just ask the wine consultants to help. These good folks are happy to assist.

Bev and I wish a happy, healthy and prosperous New Year to you and yours. Bottoms up!

Decorate Hospice Tree of Life

HPH Hospice's largest fundraiser, the annual Tree of Life, runs through Monday, Dec. 24.

Make a donation ranging from $5 to $1,000 or more in memory or in honor of someone and an ornament corresponding to that amount will be placed on HPH's Tree of Life at the Citrus Hospice House at Emeritus at Barrington Place, 2341 W. Norvell Bryant Highway, Lecanto. If you wish, a tag with that individual's name will be attached.

Donations are accepted at the HPH Hospice House from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Contributions can be made online at www.HPH-Hospice.org or by downloading a donation form at that website. Donations for the Tree of Life using a major credit card can be made by calling the HPH Foundation at 800-486-8784.

Animal Shelter ADOPTABLES

Griffin

Special to the Chronicle

Griffin is a beautiful brown and white, male pit bull mix. He's pretty young at less than 2 years old, and a trim and healthy 54 pounds of love. He's housebroken, good with other dogs, good with people and very sociable. He is attentive and learns quickly. He knows how to heel, come, sit, down, turn left, turn right and do a figure eight. We feel that Griffin would probably do best in a family environment (with older children), or with a man or woman who is active (walking, jogging, etc.). Come meet this special boy at Citrus County Animal Services, 4030 S. Airport Road Inverness, behind the fairgrounds. View Griffin and all our adoptable pets at www.citruscritters.com. Call 352-746-8400.

Filling Santa's sleigh

Help needed for homeless animals at Citrus County shelter

Special to the Chronicle

If you love animals and want to do something good for your community this holiday season, why not help the homeless dogs, cats and other animals at the county animal shelter?

The Friends of Citrus County Animal Services (FOCCAS) invite all animal lovers to play Santa and fill up the sleigh inside Citrus County Animal Services at 4030 S. Airport Road, Inverness (near the fairgrounds and airport). The sleigh will be parked in the front office through Christmas, but donations are welcome at any time of the year.

The following items are always needed and much appreciated: bleach, bath towels, blankets and sheets, canned cat food with pop-top lids, cat litter, dishwashing soap, hard rubber dog balls, newspapers, paper towels, pet shampoo, throw rugs without backing and toys.

New volunteers are always welcome and needed for a variety of tasks, including walking dogs and spending time with cats. In addition, pet food is needed to help local residents who can't afford to provide food for their dogs and cats.

To help these citizens feed their pets and avoid having them surrendered to the shelter, dog and cat food, both dry and canned, is needed. Pet food donations can be dropped off at the shelter or local food banks.

Cash donations can also be made to FOCCAS, an all-volunteer organization dedicated to helping shelter animals. Donations go directly toward helping the animals and often cover medical care for conditions or injuries beyond the scope of shelter medicine.

Donations can also be made as Christmas gifts. For each gift donation, donors will receive a card acknowledging the contribution made in the recipient's name.

For details, visit www.friendsofccas.org. The 2013 FOCCAS fundraiser calendars are also available for purchase as Christmas gifts from numerous businesses around the county. Visit the website for locations.

The best gift anyone can give to a shelter animal is a home — either a temporary foster home or a forever home. For information, visit www.citruscritters.com or call the shelter at 352-746-8400.

Moose donates 'Tommy'

Special to the Chronicle

The Citrus County Sheriff's Office received a donation of 72 "Tommy Moose" stuffed animals from the Inverness Moose Lodge. The "Tommy Moose" program is used to help aid children during times of stress and traumatic situations to personify happiness, safety and security. The moose were to be distributed during the Shop With A Cop events. From left are: Moose Legion Assistant Secretary Glenn Hansen, Membership Chairman Fred Csaszar, Gov. Dennis Galinski, CCSO Capt. Doug Dodd, Senior Regent Tonya Griffith, Junior Regent JoAnn Csaszar and Moose Legion Activity Chairman Ken Dryden.

Sign up now for weight management

Focus on exercise, better lifestyle

Special to the Chronicle

The Citrus County Extension office is offering a Weight Management Program based on the Dietary Guidelines of 2010.

The Dietary Guidelines emphasize slow, long-term weight loss based on healthy eating and regular physical activity. In addition, risk for chronic diseases like diabetes and heart disease are reduced when people are physically active most days of the week. Even those who already have chronic diseases like high blood pressure and diabetes may control them better by eating healthy foods and becoming active.

The Citrus County Extension's Weight Management Program will begin Wednesday, Jan. 9, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Citrus County Extension office in Lecanto (3650 W. Sovereign Path, Suite 1). Classes will meet weekly for eight weeks through Wednesday, Feb. 27.

A portion of each session will focus on participants exercising. There will also be presentations on such topics as cutting extra calories, reducing fat intake, proper portion sizes, understanding nutrition labels and maintaining weight loss. Participants will also be encouraged to meet informally between weekly sessions, and walk together.

The cost of the class is $15 (check or money order, no cash) per participant and is limited to 40 people. Prepaid registration is required and no refunds or transfers to other classes will be given. Medical releases and liability forms plus payments must be turned in by Dec. 28.

To register, call Monica Payne at 352-527-5713. Registration for the class is going on now, but it will end at 5 p.m. Dec. 28.

Progress 'E-Giving' Day of Caring

Special to the Chronicle

Daystar Life Center of Citrus County benefitted from Progress Energy's "E-Giving" Day of Caring recently. Each year, the employees of Progress Energy offer their different talents helping nonprofit agencies throughout their service area. Agencies selected through United Way can be placed on the list for needed assistance in "clean-up, paint-up, fix-up" activities. Progress Energy employees worked hard to seal and paint the exterior of the Daystar building. From left are: Shirley Bornemeier, Jacqueline Hurst, Lee Marshall, Mary Bennett, Ken Rass, Brian Afshar and Val Munn.

News NOTES

Auxiliary to host New Year's party

Allen Rawls American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77 will host a New Year's Eve party on Dec. 31.

Nashville Artist John Thomas and the Ramblin' Fever Band will provide music for dancing and listening pleasure from 8 p.m. to midnight. Food will be served all evening and a light breakfast after midnight. Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 at the door. Table reservations for six or more people can be made with advance ticket sales.

The event will be in the new home of Post 77, the former Inverness Highlands S & W Civic Association building at 4375 Little Al Point, off Arbor Street. For advance tickets or to reserve tickets, call Alice at 352-860-2981; if no answer, leave a message for a return call.

Celebrate new year at center

Everyone is invited to a New Year's Eve Ball from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Monday, Dec. 31, at the Citrus Springs Community Center, 1570 W. Citrus Springs Blvd., Citrus Springs.

The ball will feature the Dancing Melodies for entertainment and dancing, and a formal dinner catered by Gruff's Elite Banquet & Catering. There will be a cash bar.

Cost is $35 per person.

For information and tickets, call 352-465-7007 or 352-527-7540.

Have some fun with snowbirds

The American Canadian Snowbirds Club will be active again this season with a weekly golf scramble, euchre, bridge and shuffleboard, as well as dinners for Christmas and Valentine's Day, a picnic and annual meeting.

Whether you are new to the area, a snowbird or have lived here for years, all are welcome for a good time. For more detailed information regarding your area of interest(s), email citrussnowbirds@gmail.com, or call Tony at 352-341-4407.

Rainbow Springs field trip slated

Citrus County Audubon Society has scheduled a birding field trip at Rainbow Springs State Park in Dunnellon for Thursday, Dec. 27. The public is welcome to attend. Preregistration is not necessary and participants with all levels of birding skills are welcome.

This field trip is led by CCAS members Fred Hileman and Tom Gulley. The group will meet at 8 a.m. in the parking lot. There is a fee of $2 to be paid at the entrance to the park. Wear comfortable walking shoes, as it will involve some moderate walking, and will last about three hours. Bring binoculars if you have them; if not, several pairs will be available. Exploring Rainbow Springs will take participants into the butterfly garden and to the nature trail leading to the meadow and pine forest areas.

Visit CitrusCounty Audubon.com for details.

Novel group to gather Jan. 5

The Florida Chapter of the Historical Novel Society will have a members-only meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 5, in the Community Room of the Central Ridge Library, 425 W. Roosevelt Blvd., in Beverly Hills.

Election of officers for 2013 will take place during the business meeting. The rest of the meeting will be devoted to in-house critique sessions.

For more information, visit www.fchns.org, or call Marian Fox, 352-726-0162.

- Submit information at least two weeks before the event.
- Early submission of timely material is appreciated, but multiple publications cannot be guaranteed.
- Submit material at Chronicle offices in Inverness or Crystal River; by fax at 352-563-3280; or email to community@chronicleonline.com.
- Notes tend to run one week prior to the date of an event. Publication on a special day can't be guaranteed.
- Expect notes to run no more than once.

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

David Letterman said, "Traffic signals in New York are just rough guidelines."

Bridge signals are also rough guidelines; however, most of the time, as when driving a car in New York or elsewhere, it is best to follow the signals. However, sometimes you will know what to do only if partner sends you the right signal.

South is in three no-trump. West leads the heart jack. East takes dummy's king with his ace and cashes the heart queen. What should East lead next?

When the heart king lost, South thought he was doomed. With hearts 6-2, though, suddenly he was reprieved.

East, who had diamonds under control, wondered how to get his partner on lead. West could have one of two useful cards, the spade king or club ace — but which one?

Since East expected that declarer could not take nine tricks without establishing dummy's diamonds, East first assumed that his partner had the spade king. If that proved not to be the case, East knew that he could shift to a club when in with the diamond queen. But which spade did East lead?

He carefully selected the queen. This Deschapelles Coup defeated the contract. South took the trick with dummy's ace, cashed the diamond ace, crossed to his hand with a club, and led a diamond to get the bad news. He could not do better than cash out for down two.

Even though the spade switch was correct, West helped at trick two by signaling with a suit-preference heart 10 under his partner's queen. (With the club ace, West would have played the heart two.)

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

Dear Annie: My 50-something male cousin has brought a 20-something female cousin to live with him. He calls it "mentoring." The poor girl is learning disabled.

They are the only two people living in the house, and the arrangement has caused concern for his parents and children. Is this normal? What's your take on the situation? — Just Wondering

Dear Just: We don't know what kind of learning disability would require that a 20-year-old live with her older cousin — or anyone. If you mean that the girl is mentally disabled, then someone needs to check on the situation and intervene should the older cousin be taking advantage of her. Because the girl is over 18, it may require legal intervention. If, however, the 20-year-old is perfectly capable of managing her own life and chooses to live with this cousin, there's not much you can do. We hope her family is keeping an eye on things.

Dear Annie: We recently lost our dear pet dog, "Buster," and are considering getting another dog. I want to find one who is the same breed and color, call him "Buster" and go on as if his predecessor had not died, but rather had a stroke and needed to be retrained. My wife thinks I'm crazy. What do you think? — RH

Dear RH: We don't think you're crazy, but you do seem to be in denial. You should properly grieve for Buster. Pretending another dog is still the same one after a stroke doesn't do justice to your feelings. It also doesn't allow you to love your new dog for his own sake.

Even with "retraining," you will continue to expect him to respond to you and behave as Buster did. Please take a little time to mourn the original Buster before you make any decisions about a new dog.

Dear Annie: You printed a lot of responses to "Looking for a Relationship, Too," who asked where to meet men. What a waste of time to read all of those suggestions. If you are serious about finding someone, the Internet is the best place to look.

Just find a reliable dating service online. Be sure to have a pleasant picture of yourself, and if you can't figure out how to get online, ask any sixth-grader to do it for you.

Don't be too picky about your preferences, and then go out and have fun meeting all sorts of people. Brief first-time meetings for coffee in a public place are best, so neither has to stay long or incur expensive meals. Quit wasting your valuable time looking in all the wrong places. — Content in California on Match.com

Dear Content: The Internet is one way to meet people, but it isn't the only way (or necessarily the best way), and it is only a preliminary step. Here's another take on the subject from a reader:

Dear Annie: The various suggestions for where to go to meet someone all sound extremely dangerous to me. Whatever happened to single people letting their married friends know they would like to meet someone? I would never take seriously a potential date who didn't come "prescreened" for suitability and safety.

As a single woman, I cannot imagine getting into the car of a man I had met on a hike, in a class or even at church. I've been at the same church for more than 30 years, and I know plenty of single men and women there. Believe me, I wouldn't introduce any one of them to a friend as a potential mate. — Cautious in Los Angeles

Attention Consumers! Please make sure you are using a licensed and insured service professional. Many service advertisers are required by state law to include their state license number in all advertisements. If you don't see a license number in the ad, you should inquire about it and be suspicious that you may be contacting an unlicensed business. The Citrus County Chronicle wants to ensure that our ads meet the requirements of the law. Beware of any service advertiser that can not provide proof that they are licensed to do business. For questions about business licensing, please call your city or county government offices.

WORDY GURDY®

BY TRICKY RICKY KANE

1. "This belongs to Barack's rival" (1)
2. Actor Bridges' Broadway musicals (1)
3. Watched a surfer guy (1)
4. Noiseless Wild West lawman Earp (2)
5. Sullies the name of singer Britney (1)
6. Less concave serving dish (2)
7. Wine-glass toasting sound reasoning (2)

Every answer is a rhyming pair of words (like FAT CAT and DOUBLE TROUBLE), and they will fit in the letter squares. The number after the definition tells you how many syllables in each word.

MING

Ming is an approximately 1 y.o. female terrier mix who is currently at the shelter. She is very intelligent and understands down/sit/stay. Has no food aggression and gets along with other dogs. She is very friendly and cooperative and gets along with adults and kids. Would be best with a young, active family. She is a beautiful dark brindle in color with a regal stance and learns very quickly. Walks well on a leash. Will be spayed, microchipped and up to date with shots upon adoption. Call Cheryl @ 352-419-5275.

PEACHES

Peaches is a 10+ year-old black lab retriever female who came to the shelter as a stray. She is housebroken, Heartworm-negative, and spayed. She is a very calm, gentle, affectionate older girl. However, she has just been diagnosed with mammary cancer. Her prognosis is unknown at this time, although she does not appear to be in any pain and is fairly active for her age. With good care she could still have a relatively good life. We volunteers at the shelter are hoping with all our hearts to find a compassionate, caring individual or family who would be willing to share their home with Peaches, which would most likely be her last home. When her time comes she would be euthanized at the shelter free of charge. She is a very gentle girl who causes no trouble whatsoever. She gets along with other dogs and with children, and is completely not interested in cats. She would fit into just about any home situation and be very happy there. We truly don't want the shelter to be the last home she knows. Is there any who would be able to open their heart and their home for this sweet older dog? Please call Joanne at 352-795-1288.
