Hunt on for bomber

Official: Video footage shows suspect

Associated Press

BOSTON — In what could be a major break in the Boston Marathon case, investigators are on the hunt for a man seen in a department-store surveillance video dropping off a bag at the site of the bombings, a Boston politician said Wednesday.

Separately, a law enforcement official confirmed that authorities have found an image of a potential suspect but don't know his name.

The development — less than 48 hours after the attack that left three people dead and more than 170 wounded — marked a possible turning point in a case that has investigators analyzing photos and videos frame by frame for clues to who carried out the twin bombings and why.

City Council President Stephen Murphy, who said he was briefed by Boston police, said investigators saw the image on surveillance footage they got from a department store near the finish line, and

Leadership Citrus class helps restore pioneer home

FLORAL CITY — The good bones of the Duval House are beginning to show, through the sweat of Leadership Citrus.

"Our job today is to remove the modern additions to the Duval House," said Melissa Benefield, team leader for the 2013 Leadership class, on Sunday as most of the 23 members of the class and friends and family pitched in tearing out siding, linoleum and drywall — 20th-century embellishments to a 19th-century classic vernacular structure.

"It's nice to know that we have people of this generation, with the responsibilities in the business community, coming in and working to learn more about our community and to work on a project like this, giving back to the community," said Frank Peters, chairman of the Floral City Heritage Council. "It's just a wonderful concept."

Leadership Citrus, an annual community leadership program, chooses a project each year, and this year's class decided to work on the Duval House, so-called for its builder, John Paul Formy-Duval, who sited the two-up-two-down structure at the corner of Old Floral City Road and East Orange Avenue around 1866.

H.D. Bassett, a Formy-Duval descendant and Floral City resident, set up the Duval Preservation Trust to buy the house and restore it to its original condition of 147 years ago because it is possibly the oldest surviving residential structure in the county. Restoration will include removing the modernizing veneer of dropped ceilings, carpeting and other floor and wall coverings and also demolishing a bedroom and a bathroom added in the 1960s.

"We're doing a reveal," Peters explained. "It's already occurred here. We've taken off the aluminum siding that you saw on the other side of the house."

Tax bill error corrected

New tag renewals mailed

Staff

The Citrus County Tax Collector's Office was deluged with calls and walk-ins from customers with June birthdays on Wednesday about a mailing mix-up regarding their vehicle tag renewals.

About 8,000 county residents received information in the mail about vehicles that weren't theirs.

According to Assistant Tax Collector Barbara Good, the state generates the information, but it is the mailing company's responsibility to make sure it goes to the right people.

"They said it was their error and they regret the error," Good said. "They said they will be sending out corrected mailings within 24 hours. Tomorrow (Thursday) the corrected mailings will be going out."

She said the mailing company has agreed to this without any additional cost to the taxpayers of the county.

Good said those who received the wrong mailings can, if they wish, drop them off at one of the tag offices and the papers will be shredded.

She said the error was restricted to Citrus County and residents' information was not sent all over the state.

She also noted in the unfortunate event someone should try to use other people's information for illicit activity, they would be easily identified because the mailing company is aware of where the information went.

Good said this is the first time something like this has happened during her career, which spans more than two decades.

Homosassa man facing drug, firearms charges

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff writer

A Homosassa man is facing gun and drug charges after his arrest early Wednesday morning, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office report.

Bashon Bilial Lewis, 22, is charged with possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, possession of a controlled substance (crack cocaine) and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana. His bond is $12,500.

According to his arrest affidavit, an alleged victim reported Lewis went to his friend's house as a passenger in a white vehicle and asked to speak to him.

As the two spoke, Lewis was sitting in the car and pulled out from his waistband what a witness described as a small-caliber, semi-automatic handgun. The gun had a black barrel and brown grip, the witness told investigators.

Lewis reportedly brandished the weapon and pointed it at the witness and said, "I will handle it my way." He then placed the gun back in his waistband.

The witness told investigators Lewis, as a passenger in the same vehicle, drove past his friend's residence several more times Tuesday. And, each time, he said Lewis would hang out of the window, brandishing

Memory Mobile rolls through the county

Eryn Worthington
Staff writer

LECANTO — The traveling office — known as Memory Mobile — spent the past three days camped out at Superior Residences of Lecanto.

An RV in appearance, the Memory Mobile serves as a prevention and educational service unit that provides free memory and Alzheimer's screenings in 17 counties throughout the west coast of Florida.

Lately it offered mobile support, outreach education, care consultations, memory screenings and caregiver education to Citrus County residents. The resource also offered information about Alzheimer's disease, referrals to community resources and Alzheimer's care training schedules.

"The No. 1 risk factor with Alzheimer's disease, believe it or not, is age," said program specialist Jerry Fisher. "The older we get, the larger the possibility is for us to get Alzheimer's disease. Because women live longer than men, we can see that women are more likely to get Alzheimer's disease. But if that were not the case, we would probably see an equal chance of getting the disease."

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Memory Mobile, which spent the past three days at Superior Residences of Lecanto offering free Alzheimer screenings, will head to Hernando County next week.

Fisher said Alzheimer's is a progressive and degenerative disease that attacks and destroys cells in the brain. Dementia is often confused as being similar to or the same as Alzheimer's.

"Dementia is something that happens to our brain that stops us from being able to complete our daily activities — like turning off the alarm clock or brushing our teeth," Fisher said. "There is about a 133 different things that could cause it. Some of those things are reversible and some of them are not. That is why we encourage people to get tested to see if they can find the cause."

Through the resources the Memory Mobile offers, the Alzheimer's Association aims to assist individuals and their caregivers as they approach the life-changing disease.

"We are here for the people in the community," Fisher said. "We don't currently charge the public for a majority of the services that are offered. Our goal is to keep the loved one at home as long as possible."

Florida Gulf Coast Chapter serves Charlotte, Citrus, Collier, DeSoto, Glades, Hardy, Hendry, Hernando, Highlands, Hillsborough, Lee, Manatee, Polk, Pasco, Pinellas, Sarasota and Sumter counties. The Memory Mobile is sponsored by Alzheimer's Association Florida Gulf Coast Chapter, Florida State Department of Elder Affairs and Senior Choices of Southwest Florida Inc.

Local Philly Cheesesteak Gets National Attention

Food Critics and Visitors from All Over The U.S.A. (including Phila., Pa) Say Eyepoppin' Cheesesteaks are the Real Deal

Inverness, FL

For the owners of Eyepoppin' Cheees Steaks it must be hard not to get a big head these days. John and Claudine's famous line is - "IT"S ALL ABOUT THE MEAT - BABY"! That's because the award winning steak sub they brought to Citrus County down from South Jersey (just outside of Phila., Pa), are now receiving rave reviews from visitors all over the country who are tasting the cheesesteaks and hoagies for the very first time.

They're learning what the Philly people have known for years now: That real Amoroso Rolls and Real Home Sliced Steak Meat are the foundation of what food critics agree is a great Cheesesteak. A local food critic wrote: "The ribeye is tender and juicy, sliced in house daily (no chemicals, mystery meat). The onions are cooked to sweetness, the cheese melted until it becomes one with the meat. It's then stuffed into bread till it overflows - but not just any bread - it's Amoroso's (trucked all the way from Philly, along with the Birch Beer and BlackCherry Soda to insure authenticity).

The Eyepoppin Cheesesteak is quickly becoming the standard by which all other subs are judged. All you have to do is try one of Eyepoppin's subs and you will taste why.

Bill would block use of foreign laws

House Democrats are raising concerns a bill preventing state judges from applying foreign laws would block the application of divorces granted in Israel.

Democrats questioned Wednesday whether the bill would hurt the state's Jewish population by banning Florida courts from recognizing divorces granted in Israel to Jewish couples.

The measure (HB 351) is aimed at preventing the application of Islamic and other foreign laws in divorce and child custody cases if doing so would violate a person's rights guaranteed under the U.S. and Florida constitutions.

Miami

Court: Priest abuse suit filed too late

A Florida appeals court has ruled that a former altar boy who claimed he was sexually abused by a Roman Catholic priest filed his lawsuit decades too late.

The 3rd District Court of Appeal on Wednesday upheld a lower court's ruling in favor of the Archdiocese of Miami. The archdiocese was sued by Jorge Rubio, who accused them of negligence for not protecting him from the priest's abuse when he was 10 years old.

Rubio filed his lawsuit in May 2011, about 35 years after the alleged abuse took place.

20 charged with posing as Cubans

Federal authorities have charged 20 people with trying to claim immigration benefits by posing as Cuban nationals.

The indictments were made as part of Operation Havana Gateway. The law enforcement probe seeks to crack down on what authorities describe as a rising trend of immigrant fraud based on false claims to Cuban birth and citizenship.

Ocala

Archaeological poachers vex officials

Marion County officials are working to stop archaeological poachers.

The Star-Banner reported the County Commission is debating whether to create an ordinance that would outlaw the unauthorized removal of historical artifacts from county parks.

State laws forbid the unlawful taking of artifacts from state lands, while the city of Ocala has an ordinance banning the practice on city-owned property.

But the great expanse between the two, where roughly 40 parks and recreation sites can be found, is apparently in legal limbo.

Jacksonville

Student banned from district for bullying

A Florida judge is banning a middle school student from all public schools in Jacksonville after she severely beat another student.

Circuit Judge Henry Davis inserted the ban of the 14-year-old girl from Duval County public schools into a protective injunction he made earlier this month at the request of the beaten student.

The 14-year-old victim said the banned student viciously attacked her after two other students lured her off the campus of Oceanway Middle School. The victim's attorney said another student videotaped the attack with a plan to post it on social media.

SECO offers new payment system

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

Members of the Sumter Electric Cooperative can change the way they pay their power bills and eliminate the need for a deposit.

The cooperative, known as SECO, announced a new option that hands control over the electric payment process to its member/customers, plus eliminates deposits on member accounts.

The program is called the Myway Prepay, and SECO expects it will appeal to many members.

"There are a number of benefits to the program. Enrollment means for new member/customers there is no deposit requirement of hundreds of dollars. If you are an existing SECO member, we will either refund your current deposit or apply it to your new prepay account — the choice is yours," Barry Bowman, SECO director of corporate communications, said.

"In addition, as a prepay member, late fees don't apply to your account," Bowman continued. "You have total control over the amount of power you purchase and when you actually pay the bill. There is no pre-set due date."

When prepay account funds get low, SECO will advise the member to avoid disruption in service. Members may choose to be notified by telephone, text or email.

"We recognize the economy is not the best right now," Bowman said. "All electric companies require a security deposit that covers roughly two months of electric bills. The reason is that a significant number of people each year leave the various electric utilities around the country owing about that much money to the power companies. That has a negative impact on the rest of the customer base who are honest folks. So deposits continue to be a necessary measure unless you are enrolled in a program like Myway Prepay."

He pointed out another benefit: Members can access their account status at any time. They can see the fund balance in their account; look at the power consumption history of their particular account and more.

"For people who want to better manage their energy dollars, this is a great tool," he said. "It all boils down to personal member flexibility. The member controls when they pay, how often they pay and how much they pay."

Any member who wants this option can call SECO or visit www.secoenergy.com.

Road reconstruction

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Construction continues Tuesday to Cutler Spur Boulevard between Paradise Point Road and King's Bay Drive. Improvements to the road include the complete reconstruction of the road. The goal is to improve the vertical alignment, add drainage retention areas, improve the drainage collection system, replace utilities, widen the roadway and add a 10-foot wide walking and biking path. Construction on the $2.6 million project was initially slated to begin March 25, but because the contractor wanted to complete the work on the culvert area of the project before the rains came, it was moved up to near the middle of March.

Inverness a step closer to being debt-free

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

INVERNESS — It was smiles all around at Tuesday's Inverness city council meeting as the city came one step closer to becoming debt-free.

A public hearing was held and council members voted unanimously to use reserve funds to retire bond debt.

"These bonds were issued in 2005 when the Inverness Government Center was being built," said Inverness City Manager Frank DiGiovanni. "We are right now positioned to … retire all debt of the city. Once that occurs, you will have saved between $2.5 and $2.6 million in interest payments. This means operating capital will no longer be conditioned on debt payment in any way, shape or form."

The amount required to pay off the bond debt is $5,038,825.

DiGiovanni said the fiscal impact of this decision is huge. It means that the scheduled interest payment of $109,550 for this year alone will be available to "meet the shortfall by county government's vote to not fund the cost to provide services to county residents at Whispering Pines Park."

He added, "Each year thereafter the annual fund availability will be approximately $345,000."

Councilman Ken Hinkle commended the foresight of previous city council members who created a reserve fund.

"The reserves we have today didn't happen overnight," he said.

DiGiovanni said the city plans to replenish reserve funds.

Council president Linda Bega said, "This says we're putting our money where our mouth is and that we're solid financially and very well managed."

Protective hawks divebomb residents in Bradenton

Birds apparently guarding nest

Associated Press

BRADENTON — Like a scene out of Alfred Hitchcock's classic movie "The Birds," two red-shouldered hawks have been divebombing residents of a retirement community along Florida's Gulf Coast.

The Bradenton Herald reported some residents of Cortez Villas are using umbrellas to protect their heads from a pair of hawks that are nesting a fledgling in a 40-foot tree.

One woman received a four-inch scratch on her scalp. Another had to go to the hospital and get a rabies shot. A third was attacked when she went to her mailbox.

"I was bending down to pick up my paper and something hit me on the head," said Bev Brasgalla, whose scalp was scratched. "I looked up and saw the hawk fly away. I bent down again and it came back."

Marti Clark, an officer of the Cortez Villas Condominium Owners Association, said something has to be done to protect residents.

"One lady down the street had to go to the hospital," Clark said. "She was given rabies shots and antibiotics."

Residents are also worried about their dogs, she said.

"I talked on the phone to a biologist with (the Florida Fish and Wildlife Commission), and she said they would attack small dogs and could carry away one weighing around 3 pounds," Clark said.

Residents, however, are just going to have to live with the hawks until the fledgling leaves the nest.

The birds are a protected species and it's a federal penalty to destroy the nest.

Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission spokesman Gary Morse said that this kind of behavior is common for hawks at this time of year.

Senate panel OKs two insurance proposals

Issue could determine billions in federal funds

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A Senate panel on Wednesday passed two very different proposals to expand health insurance for low-income Floridians under the federal health law, leaving billions of federal dollars at stake.

With less than three weeks left in the Legislative session, lawmakers in the House and Senate are still worlds apart on whether to accept an estimated $55 billion dollars from the feds over the next decade to offer health coverage to roughly 1.1 million residents or to rely on state funds to cover only about 115,000 residents.

House leaders have adamantly spoken out against accepting federal money tied to the Affordable Care Act, leaving Senate lawmakers scrambling to craft a proposal they will agree to. Both chambers voted against a straight Medicaid expansion early in the session.

But so far instead of endorsing just one plan the Senate is keeping alive two different options depending on how negotiations go in the final days of the session. That irritated some senators.

"I'm concerned we may send a mixed message if we send two bills out of here. It's like trying to take two dates to the prom...I think we need to be very careful that we don't show any reluctance with that and we need a total resolve to move forward with that plan....and I'd hate to send the wrong message that we might be having second thoughts," said Sen. Bill Montford, D-Tallahassee.

But Sen. Aaron Bean, whose less comprehensive plan would pass up federal dollars, urged committee members to support both proposals to give lawmakers options, arguing his bill may be the only path the House is willing to consider.

A plan by Sen. Joe Negron unanimously passed the committee and received rare support from the business community, labor advocates and health care providers during public testimony. Gov. Rick Scott has also expressed support for Negron's proposal, warning that bypassing federal dollars and paying for health coverage with state funds would put a double burden on Florida taxpayers. Negron's plan would give the federal money to recipients in the form of vouchers that would allow them to choose a private insurance plan.

A bill that mirrors Bean's passed a House committee on Monday, while that same committee shot down a plan similar to Negron's.

The House plan would use $237 million in state funds to give recipients $2,000 a year to choose their own private insurance plans through the Florida Health Choices program.

Superman's 75th anniversary spotlights Cleveland roots

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Superman's 75th anniversary is giving his creators' blue-collar hometown a renewed chance to claim the superhero as its own.

Fans hope Thursday's anniversary, including lighting city hall with Superman's colors, will raise the profile of co-creators Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster.

The city is making a start with a Superman day proclaimed by the mayor and giving out birthday cake at the airport's Superman display.

The June release of Hollywood's latest Superman tale, "Man of Steel," also should renew fan interest. The film offers a fresh start for the kid from Krypton, with Henry Cavill as the boy who falls to Earth and becomes its protector.

Siegel and Shuster labored on their creation for years in the throttling grip of the Great Depression before finally selling Superman to a publisher.

The Man of Steel became a Depression-era bootstrap strategy for the Siegel/Shuster team, according to Brad Ricca, a professor at nearby Case Western Reserve University who uses Superman in his classes.

"They really just saw it as a way out," he said.

In his upcoming book "Super Boys," Ricca says the story of Superman's creation is mostly about their friendship: two boys in the city's Glenville neighborhood dreaming of "fame, riches and girls" in a time when such dreams are all the easier to imagine because of the crushing economic misery.

Ricca said Siegel and Shuster reflected Cleveland's ethnic mix: both were sons of Jewish immigrants, struggled during the Depression and hustled to make something of themselves.

Associated Press

A red "S" sits on a fence outside the home of Jerry Siegel in Cleveland. Superman collaborators Siegel and Joe Shuster lived several blocks apart in the Glenville neighborhood, which shaped their imagery of the Man of Steel.

Superman's first appearance, in Action Comics No. 1, was April 18, 1938.

The first and greatest superhero has gone on to appear in nearly 1,000 Action Comics and has evolved with the times, including a 1940s radio serial, a 1950s TV series and as a reliable staple for Hollywood. Pop culture expert Charles Coletta at Bowling Green State University said Superman ranks globally with George Washington and the Super Bowl as American icons.

But it wasn't just hard-scrabble circumstances that tempered the Man of Steel, Siegel's daughter said.

Laura Siegel Larson said Cleveland's public library, comic pages and high school mentors all nurtured her father's creativity.

Research: Your fussy baby may have a headache

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The distressing nonstop crying in babies with colic is often blamed on tummy trouble, but a new study says the problem could be linked with migraine headaches in at least some infants.

Children and teens treated for migraine headaches at three hospitals in Italy and France were much more likely than other kids to have had colic in infancy. The link has been suggested in other research, and if it can be proven, it could offer new hope for treating colic, the researchers said.

"Infantile colic causes pain in babies and high levels of stress in parents. Preventive therapies for migraine could therefore be an option in the future," said study co-author Dr. Luigi Titomanlio, chief of a pediatric migraine clinic at Robert Debre Hospital in Paris.

More research is needed to prove any link between colic and migraines, and Titomanlio said studies would need to be done before anyone would recommend using migraine treatments for babies' colic.

The study appears in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Among about 200 children and teens who got emergency treatment for migraines in the study, 73 percent had colic as infants, versus 27 percent of children in a control group. That group — 471 kids — got emergency treatment for minor trauma and had no history of recurrent headaches.

An editorial in JAMA calls it important research and says if colic really is an early form of migraines that might explain why digestive treatments typically don't help colic.

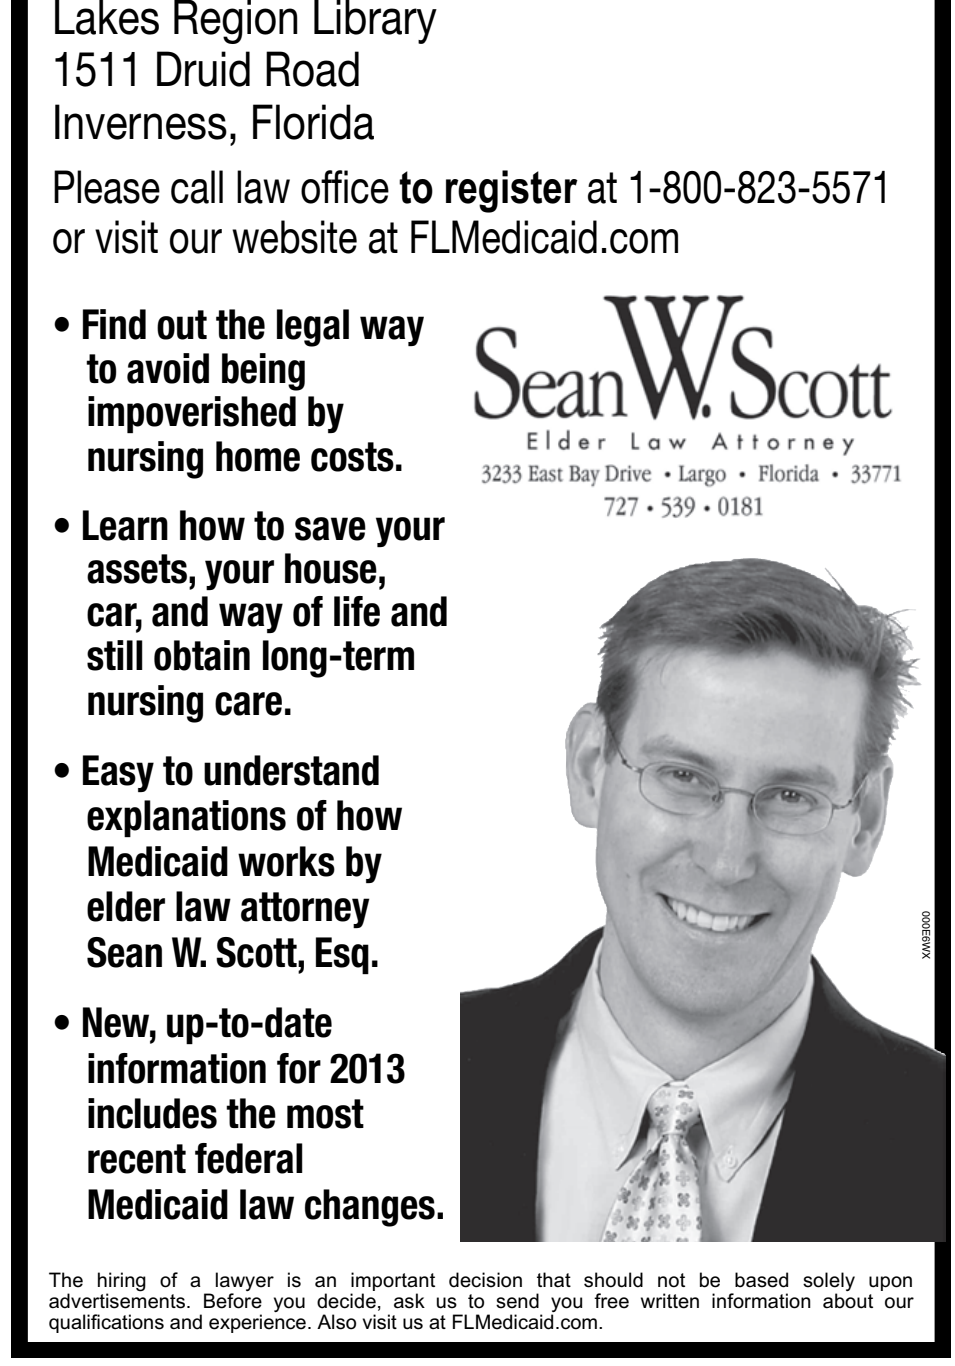
Associated Press

Janelle Valore holds her daughter Alena Valore, 5 months, who has colic, Monday at their home in Mount Joy, Pa. The distressing nonstop crying of colic in babies is often blamed on tummy trouble, but a study released Tuesday claims the problem could be linked to migraine headaches.

Definitive causes are uncertain for both colic and migraines.

Roughly 20 percent of U.S. infants have colic — intense crying spells lasting more than three hours a day, at least three days a week, for more than three weeks in an otherwise healthy baby. It usually starts a few weeks after birth. The symptoms are sometimes blamed on digestive problems including gas, but experts say the true cause is unknown.

The throbbing headaches are thought to be inherited and may be caused by some sort of irritation in nerve cells in the brain interacting with brain blood vessels.



David Bellman, from Leadership Citrus, pulls down old wood Sunday during the restoration on the Duval House in Floral City. Built around 1866, the Duval House is perhaps the oldest residential building in Citrus County.

RESTORE

Governors, explained the class was at the Floral City Heritage Hall Museum on the day the project was to be decided. The class had just toured the Duval House across the street. Spinka asked Peters to tell the class what they could do at the Duval House.

"Something that is really important about this is that this isn't just for Floral City, this is for the whole county," Peters said he told the class. "We want to turn it into a venue the county can use."

Many household items and furniture that belong to the house were left behind ...

"The group was so excited that it was just unanimous to become the project," Spinka said. "We want to do projects that leave a mark behind that says Leadership was here and this was one where labor was what was needed."

While bringing back a pioneer home, the class gets to learn what life was like a century and a half ago in Floral City. They are tearing off coverings back to bare wood held together with hand-forged square nails. They are opening up old fireplaces that Peters said he learned from another resident were called French style and the wood had to be pointed into a cone to draw up the smoke.

Many household items and furniture that belong to the house were left behind, including an old kerosene cook stove that was used in the summer, because the iron wood stove made the kitchen too hot to work in. It has a history with the house. Old iron-frame beds hold antique bed springs, wire coils that would be slept on covered with a thick padding. One single bed was built low for a woman resident who had difficulty moving her joints. People who lived in Duval House have left their stories behind.

Once the decades get stripped from the house, Peters would like to have sponsorships, such as the big box stores, to make it an asset to the county. The Floral City Heritage Council is a nonprofit organization.

"Home Depot and Lowe's that can provide the materials or a work day like we're having today," Peters said. "It would be a tremendous help."

Donations, sponsorships and labor would be appreciated from any source, he said. Call Bassett at 352-341-0064 or the council at 352-860-0101.

ARREST

what appeared to be the same weapon shown earlier.

Early Wednesday, a deputy noticed a vehicle at an intersection that fit the description of the alleged victim and in the vehicle was a man who fit the description of the witness.

When the vehicle was stopped and searched a handgun fitting the description given by the witness was found and the driver said it belonged to Lewis.

While searching Lewis, an officer found a clear plastic baggie between the cheeks of his buttocks. The baggie contained marijuana and in another clear baggie in the marijuana baggie was found the crack cocaine.

Lewis was arrested and transported to the Citrus County Detention Center.

State BRIEFS

Bill will keep guns from mentally ill

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida House has passed a bill aimed at blocking the mentally ill from purchasing weapons.

The bill clearing the House on a 117-1 vote Wednesday is meant to plug a loophole to guard against mentally unstable people from getting firearms.

The measure (HB 1355) is aimed at situations in which people with mental illnesses voluntarily commit themselves for treatment to avoid involuntary commitment, then check themselves out of the facilities. At that point, they can obtain weapons.

Under the bill, someone who is mentally ill could be prohibited from purchasing firearms if the examining physician found the person posed a danger to himself or others.

Man scheduled to die for killing girl

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Rick Scott signed a death warrant for a man convicted of raping and suffocating a 10-year-old girl after breaking into her home almost 23 years ago.

The warrant for 56-year-old Elmer Leon Carroll was issued Wednesday.

Carroll is scheduled to die at 6 p.m. on May 28. He was sentenced to death in the killing of Christine McGowan in her Orange County home.

BOMBING

matched the findings with witness descriptions of someone leaving the scene.

"I know it's very active and very fluid right now — that they are on the chase," Murphy told The Associated Press. He added: "They may be on the verge of arresting someone, and that's good."

The bombs were crudely fashioned from ordinary kitchen pressure cookers packed with explosives, nails and ball bearings, investigators and others close to the case said. Investigators suspect the devices were then hidden in black duffel bags and left on the ground.

As a result, they were looking for images of someone lugging a dark, heavy bag.

One department store video "has confirmed that a suspect is seen dropping a bag near the point of the second explosion and heading off," Murphy said.

A law enforcement official who spoke to AP on condition of anonymity and was not authorized to discuss the case publicly confirmed only that investigators had an image of a potential suspect whose name was not known to them and who had not been questioned.

The turn of events came with Boston in a state of high excitement over conflicting reports of a breakthrough.

A law enforcement official briefed on the investigation told the AP around midday that a suspect was in custody. The official, who was not authorized to divulge details of the investigation and spoke on condition of anonymity, said the suspect was expected in federal court. But the FBI and the U.S. attorney's office in Boston said no arrests had been made.

By nightfall, there was no evidence anyone was in custody. No one was brought to court. The law enforcement official, who had affirmed there was a suspect in custody even after federal officials denied it, was unable to obtain any further information or explanation.

At least 14 patients remained in critical condition. Dozens of patients have been released from hospitals around the Boston area, and officials at three hospitals that treated some of the most seriously injured said they expect all their remaining patients to survive.

On Wednesday, investigators in white jumpsuits fanned out across the streets, rooftops and awnings around the blast site in search of clues. They picked through trash cans, plastic cup sleeves and discarded sports drink dispensers

Boston remained under a heavy security presence, and some people admitted they were nervous about moving about in public spaces.

Tyler King, a personal trainer from Attleboro who works in Boston, said four of five clients canceled on him a day earlier because they were worried about venturing into the city. He took the train in, but "I kind of kept my head on a swivel."

Kenya Nadry, a website designer, took her 5-year-old nephew to a playground. "There's still some sense of fear, but I feel like Boston's resilient," she said. "The fine men in blue will take care of a lot of it."

Police were stationed on street corners across downtown Boston, while National Guardsmen set up tents on the Boston Common and stationed tactical vehicles.

Dr. Horacio Hojman, associate chief of trauma at Tufts Medical Center, said patients were in surprisingly good spirits when they were brought in.

"Despite what they witnessed, despite what they suffered, despite many of them having life-threatening injuries, their spirits were not broken," he said. "And I think that should probably be the message for all of us — that this horrible act of terror will not bring us down."

President Barack Obama planned to visit Boston on Thursday to attend a service honoring the victims.

The blasts killed 8-year-old Martin Richard of Boston and 29-year-old Krystle Campbell of Medford, Mass. The Shenyang Evening News, a state-run Chinese newspaper, identified the third victim as Lu Lingzi, a graduate student at Boston University.

Defiance, tenderness reign after bombing

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Virginia woman makes a point to get out and go jogging. A Texas mom stays in and snuggles her toddler a little closer. A nurse from Massachusetts looks over her shoulder more often while touring D.C.

Strains of defiance, tenderness and wariness are interwoven as Americans are forced to do some post-9/11 rebalancing in the aftermath of the Boston bombings, figuring out how to move forward with life while remaining vigilant against the threat of terrorism.

The discovery of tainted letters sent to the Capitol and the White House only added a new source of jitters to the week's events, evoking eerie parallels to the anthrax attacks that followed the life-altering events of Sept. 11, 2001.

For Simone Rinaldi, playing tourist in Washington this week with her family, the twin bombings at the marathon quickly revived thoughts of the collapse of the Twin Towers in New York as she wondered anew if there would be other attacks and whether loved ones in Boston were safe.

"I've definitely been more cautious as we walk around," said Rinaldi, a nurse practitioner from Cape Cod, Mass.

Cautious, yes. But not cowed.

"The world is a really scary place, yet we have a life to live," she said from a park across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. "The challenge is to take precautions, but again to not let our lives get small and live in fear."

Similar sentiment echoed around the country — from a Starbucks table in Los Angeles to a smoker's bench in Billings, Mont. — as people grappled with the balancing act involved in putting the week's events in perspective.

"Caution is always important, but so is life," said MacKenzie Edwins, a receptionist catching lunch at the Starbucks in LA.

Jennifer Miller, a hospitality industry manager smoking a cigarette on that bench in Montana, said the marathon bombing made her think this: "It's at home in America. It happened here." But also this: "I refuse to live in fear of going anywhere or doing anything."

Stocks drop on fresh signs of slowdown

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks fell sharply Wednesday for the second time this week as investors continued to worry about how much the global economy is slowing.

Commodities such as oil and copper fared even worse than stocks. Government bonds were a big winner as money flowed in from investors seeking safety. That drove prices higher, and the yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to its low for the year at one point.

Technology, energy and bank stocks led the market lower. Apple dropped as traders worried about iPhone sales, Bank of America slid after its earnings failed to meet up to Wall Street's forecasts and energy stocks fell as crude oil continued a weeklong drop.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 22 points, or 1.4 percent, to 1,553. Just one week ago the index hit an all-time high of 1,593. It's down 2.5 percent since then.

Small-company and technology stocks did worse than the overall market.

The Nasdaq composite fell the most of the major indexes, 1.8 percent. It lost 59.96 points to 3,204.67. Apple, which makes up 8 percent of the index, slumped 5.5 percent to $402.80, after a supplier hinted at a slowdown in iPhone and iPad production.

The Russell 2000 of small-company stocks also fell 1.8 percent, to 906.

The Dow Jones Industrial average of 30 large stocks fell 138 points, or 0.9 percent, to 14,618.59 Wednesday, wiping out most of the gain it made Tuesday. The Dow, which hit its own record of 14,865 last Thursday, is down 1.7 percent this week after slumping 265 points on Monday.

The price of crude oil dropped for the fourth day in five, falling $2.04, or 2.3 percent, to $86.68 per barrel, based on expectations that global demand will fall. Copper fell 11.8 cents to an 18-month low of $3.19 a pound.

As stock prices sank, the yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 1.70 percent from 1.73 percent. It went as low as 1.68 percent, matching its lowest level of the year.

The stock market had its worst day in five months on Monday after China reported economic growth that was slower than economists had expected. Metals, energy and other commodities have been hit hard this week and that has dragged down the stocks of miners and drillers and companies that provide services to them. Gold fell the most in 30 years on Monday.

Despite the big drops this week, the Dow is still 11.6 percent higher this year, the S&P 500 8.8 percent. And while falling energy prices may hurt energy stocks now, in the long run they are good for most companies and will put more money into the pockets of consumers and drive spending.

Stocks surged during the first three months of the year on optimism that a recovery in the housing market would boost the economy. But the stock market has struggled this month. Reports of weak hiring and retail sales suggested the economy may be cooling off.

"You've had numerous economic data points that have been, not really disastrous, but, not really as robust as people might like," said Cam Albright, director of asset allocation at Wilmington Trust Investment Advisors. "When you have a market as extended as this, you almost need perfect information to make it continue to go up."

On Tuesday, the International Monetary Fund lowered its outlook for global growth this year to 3.3 percent from 3.5 percent, saying government spending cuts will slow the U.S. and European economies. And on Monday China said its economic growth slowed in the first three months of the year to 7.7 percent, below the 8 percent level anticipated by markets.

American Airlines resumes most flights

DALLAS — American Airlines resumed most flights Wednesday, a day after a massive technology failure forced the nation's third-largest carrier to ground all planes from coast to coast.

Some lingering problems remained. At midday, American and regional offshoot American Eagle had canceled more than 200 flights, according to flight-tracking service FlightAware.com. But that was a huge improvement over Tuesday, when American and Eagle cancelled nearly 1,000 flights and delayed another 1,100.

Some of Wednesday's cancellations were because of bad weather in Chicago and a lack of crews and planes in the right places. The airline added five unscheduled flights to accommodate passengers stranded in Chicago, Dallas and Los Angeles, Huguely said.

Amazon nears debut of original TV shows

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Amazon is letting viewers help choose its new lineup of TV shows, scuttling a secretive, wasteful process once reserved for Hollywood taste-makers.

The online retailing giant will let visitors from the U.S, U.K. and Germany watch, rate and critique 14 pilot episodes the company has bankrolled. Viewer comments will help the company decide which shows — if any — get the green light.

Amazon's foray into TV production is unique in the way it saves money. Every spring, traditional TV networks like ABC, NBC, CBS and Fox order dozens of pilots and show them to focus groups. Executives pick just a handful to make into series. Then, they commission 13 episodes of each promising show, with each one potentially costing a few million dollars. Many episodes won't ever air if the first few don't attract big audiences.

European car sales plummet, even in solid Germany

MILAN — Europe's auto market is in freefall. Once the motor for Europe's economy, the car industry has fallen victim to the region's widening recession and soaring unemployment. Carmakers have suffered 18 straight months of declining sales as people worried that they might soon be out of a job put off making big purchases.

New car sales across Europe slid 10 percent in the first quarter of 2013 to 2.9 million, down from 3.3 million in 2012, the European automakers association ACEA reported from Brussels on Wednesday. Even in Germany, one of Europe's strongest economies, new car sales plunged 13 percent during the first three months of the year.

Across the rest of Europe, the figures were just as disappointing. Most major markets saw double-digit contractions: down 11.5 percent in Spain, 13 percent in Italy and 14.6 percent in France.

BofA closes one mortgage lawsuit, another lingers

NEW YORK — As soon as Bank of America puts one mortgage-related lawsuit behind it, another always seems to rear its head.

The bank announced Wednesday it would pay $500 million to settle a class-action lawsuit led by pension funds and other investors who say they were misled about $350 billion worth of mortgage-backed investments they bought from Countrywide, a mortgage lender Bank of America bought in 2008. The bank portrayed the settlement as good news because it resolved the bulk of securities claims related to residential mortgage-backed securities.

But financial analysts, in a conference call to discuss the bank's first-quarter results, peppered bank executives with questions about another pending settlement. Bank of America is still waiting for court approval for a similar settlement it made with Bank of New York Mellon almost two years ago. If it doesn't get the go-ahead, Bank of America could have to spend more to resolve the claims.

IMF urges Fed, central banks to monitor stimulus

WASHINGTON — The International Monetary Fund is urging the Federal Reserve and other central banks to closely monitor their extraordinary efforts to jump-start economic growth, warning that the policies could inflate asset bubbles and destabilize financial markets.

The global lending organization said in a global stability report released Wednesday that the low interest rate policies, which are intended to spur borrowing, spending and investing, are providing "essential support" for economic growth and should continue. But it noted that the policies could have "adverse side effects," including excessive corporate debt, a stock market bubble and risky investments by pension funds.

The fund said there are few signs of asset price bubbles yet.

Lew calls on Europe to pursue more growth policies

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew called on Europe's leaders to pursue pro-growth policies in the short term rather than trim their budget deficits, noting that the U.S. economy is "inextricably tied" to the health of its global partners.

Lew's comments were delivered in a speech at Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies previewing this week's global finance meetings in Washington.

Earlier this week, the International Monetary Fund lowered its outlook for the world economy this year, predicting that government spending cuts will slow U.S. growth and keep the euro currency alliance in recession.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Arsenic in water must be addressed

For almost a decade, a problem with high arsenic levels in multiple wells in northwest Citrus County has been known, and for several years now the state has provided special filters to remove arsenic from about 200 wells.

THE ISSUE:
Many wells in northwest Citrus have high arsenic levels.

OUR OPINION:
An issue that needs final resolution.

In a recent commission meeting, county water resources director Ken Cheek explained the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is footing the cost of a study to determine the cost of the filtration program compared with providing county water to the area.

The source of the arsenic contamination is unknown. Theories range from the presence of former cattle dip tanks where arsenic was used to control ticks and fleas to industrial contamination to naturally occurring deposits of the heavy metal.

The problem was identified about 2005 when a woman living in the area was found to have high levels of arsenic in her hair, indicating a long-time consumption of the metal. This led to investigation of more than 700 wells in the area and arsenic filters being provided for about 200 of them.

The current study will determine whether it makes sense to continue this program or for the county to provide water to the area. The county can then determine if it is willing to commit to expansion of county water into this more sparsely-populated part of the county.

If the county is interested, it can pursue a combination of grant funding and assessments to fund the expansion, but it is likely to be another year before the study is complete and the county has information for making this decision.

We understand and appreciate that with water and sewer being enterprise funds paid for by users rather than tax dollars there would be some hesitance about expanding into areas where population density may not justify the cost.

At the same time, the presence of arsenic in some county wells is a public health issue that needs to be addressed, and the best long-term solution is for county water to be expanded into this area. We encourage the commission to seek funding for expansion of the water system and to make plans to bring county water to the affected area.

Hot Corner: INTERNET CAFES

Come to our church

I would like to make a comment on the "Hot Corner — Internet cafés." The caller said "Sounds hypocritical," and said, "I know every church in this county has bingo games." That's not true, sir, madam. I go to Fort Cooper Baptist Church. There's no gambling, no bring your own bottle. It's just good preaching, good singing, good fellowship, good eating. Come on down. We'd love to see you. Have a good day.

Election reminder

What a shame that the Florida politicians and Gov. Scott closed the entertainment Internet cafés in less than a month. Could it be they also were taking money from the illegal café and (that's) why they're all squashed quickly? Now many people across the state lose their jobs, storefronts become vacant and honest local business merchants lose out. Another of our freedoms taken away. Seniors and others will remember this when Gov. Scott goes for re-election.

Double standard

I see the state has closed all the Internet cafés. Unbelievable. These poor, little old ladies and men had nothing else to do but go there and spend a couple of hours and enjoy themselves. Now stores are empty and people worked there are unemployed. This is real good going. There's only one problem: there's bingo halls still ... and also churches have bingo. Isn't that gambling, too?

Freedom taken away

Gambling is a game of choice. It becomes illegal when the state doesn't profit. Gambling in the casino, you need to pay taxes if you win (more than) $1,200. Lotteries and Powerball, taxes are collected. Bingos are gambling in a church café. All I've got to say, our freedoms are being taken away. Thanks, Gov. Scott. Watch the next voting.

Leave us alone

I'm sick of this. I live here in Sugarmill Woods and I'm sick and tired of you people coming around like hawks if somebody's pipe breaks. You do nothing else for the people in here...I like to keep my yard nice too. But when I have a leak, I don't appreciate the fact that you're out here like a bunch of hawks ready to throw a $100 fine on somebody. Give people a break and let them live their lives, would you? You know, it's just terrible. Such a reputation we have here.

Hospital board welcomes public input

DEBBIE RESSLER
Special to the Chronicle

Other VOICES

WHO'S WHO?

- Citrus Memorial Health Foundation is a private, not-for-profit foundation that leases Citrus Memorial Health System and is charged with the operation of the hospital and its satellite facilities. Seven unpaid community volunteers and the hospital's chief of medical staff serve as members of the board of directors.
- Citrus County Hospital Board of Trustees was created as an independent special district of the State of Florida for the purposes of operating public hospitals and related facilities within Citrus County. The CCHB has five members (trustees) appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Florida Senate. The trustees are authorized to borrow money to fund building maintenance and operation of hospitals, nursing homes and convalescent homes in Citrus County by ad valorem taxation.

After reading Mr. Collins' "Special to the Chronicle" on Wednesday, April 17, I feel compelled to respond. First, the Citrus County Hospital Board (CCHB) has attempted to maintain a position of not debating the issues in the local media, but at the table.

The issues are many and varied, with the majority being responsive in nature. Prior to 2009, some of the CCHB trustees began to express concerns regarding transparency, accountability, and use of the taxpayers' money — your money. The concerns can be summarized as "how are the taxpayers' dollars being spent?" Such continues to be the root of the dispute.

Taxpayers, you have been asked for years to be supportive of assisting with the "costs" of providing care to the less-fortunate of our community. It is the belief of the CCHB that the taxpayers should not be used to enhance administrative or management salaries, provide salary and other compensation to physicians in hopes of garnering support, investing in ventures which questionably benefit a few and purchase medical business entities which have been identified as "antiquated." These and more have occurred while staff level positions have been eliminated, staff benefits have been eliminated or reduced, emergency room wait times are incredible in length, and the like. Shout out to those who are actually involved in the "hands on" care for you, the patient. They have continued to provide quality care to the best of their ability with the constraints they continually endure.

Mr. Collins is not correct when he states the CCHB changed the definition of charity care. Actually, the CCHB enforced the charity care agreement between the parties, since the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation (CMHF) was seeking reimbursement for the "gross" charges instead of the "actual" costs of care. The CCHB is not of the belief that you, the taxpayer, should be financially supporting health care for an individual, identified as charity, who has income and assets which indicate that the individual is not "indigent."

Mr. Collins clearly identified some characteristics of both CMHF and the CCHB. He failed to share that the CCHB is comprised of individuals who, while fulfilling their defined role as trustees, do so on a volunteer basis. No member of either board should receive any compensation for their volunteer efforts while serving in the capacity of being a board member.

In January 2010, the CCHB and the CMHF board member representatives participated in a 16-hour mediation process, with an experienced mediator. The two-day session generated a listing of agreed-upon solutions. The board representatives presented to their respective boards the suggested listings for conflict resolutions.

It seems once the CMHF met with their legal team, the CMHF "voiced" agreement of acceptance changed. The lawsuits soon began, when the CMHF initiated them by suing the CCHB.

I wholeheartedly agree the amount of lawsuit expenditures could possibly have been used for other purposes.

Mr. Collins omits that primarily over the past two years, the CMHF has chosen to:

- Enhance administration/management salaries and compensated benefits while reducing staffing levels and benefits;
- Purchase outlying business entities while not investing in hospital infrastructure;
- Delay the paying of bills to ensure specific bond covenants are within acceptable status, thus minimizing the "calling of the bonds";
- Minimize opportunities to share with local hospitals in providing service lines, thus reducing overhead costs of services;
- Suffer "loss" of medical community talent (skilled physicians moved out of area or to other hospitals), since physicians would not agree to the CMHF philosophy of health care delivery and/or be "hired" by CMHF.

Yes, CCHB also welcomes each of you to attend the meeting on April 24, and every open meeting of the CCHB. The future of your hospital is before all of us. We want to hear from you. Contrary to Mr. Collins' representations, all options are "on the table." Mr. Collins suggested a decision regarding the hospital's future has been decided. I can unequivocally say this is not the case. Nothing could be further from the truth. We recently engaged Mr. Josh Nemzoff to assist with the process of reviewing all options. Mr. Nemzoff is a man with outstanding credentials in guiding others along the path of what is in the "best interest" of the community, not any individual(s).

The CCHB once again, after multiple attempts over the past several years, asks the CMHF to join with us in this decision planning for the future of the hospital. Mr. Collins extended an invitation request for you to attend the next CCHB meeting on April 24. You are most welcome, and it would be beneficial if you also attended the CMHF meeting at 5:45 p.m. Monday, April 22, in the hospital board room, and request that the CMHF unite with the CCHB in the planning discussions regarding the future of CMHS.

Ultimately, the plan is for quality health care with fiscal stability for you, the Citrus community.

Debbie Ressler is chairperson for the Citrus County Hospital Board.

Time has come to eliminate toll roads

It's been reported that secretary of FDOT Ananth Prasad wants to re-energize the Suncoast Parkway 2 project and extend the road 27 miles north as an economic boom and to relieve congestion on I-75. The Suncoast Parkway will never realize its full potential as long as it's a toll road.

The first American turnpike toll road was a state enterprise, authorized by a Virginia act of 1785. American turnpikes thrived from roughly 1800 to 1840, as did the passenger stagecoach and the Conestoga wagon. It may have been a great way to pay for roads 200 years ago, but not today.

Toll roads are grossly inefficient. They require vehicles to stop or slow down, causing traffic backups, accidents, delays and frustration. Toll collection wastes time and fuel, raises vehicle operating costs, and increases pollution. Collection costs for infrastructure and employees, etc., can absorb up to one-third of revenues. That's a waste of money that should be going into roads and bridges. Where the tolled roads are less congested than the parallel free roads, the traffic diversion resulting from the tolls increases congestion on the free road system and reduce its usefulness.

Whenever I travel to the Tampa area, I take I-75 to avoid the Suncoast tolls. I never use the Florida Turnpike for the same reason. Between registration, insurance and gas; driving in Florida is expensive enough. I'm not exacerbating my costs by paying unnecessary tolls.

OPINIONS INVITED

- The opinions expressed in Chronicle editorials are the opinions of the newspaper's editorial board.
- Viewpoints depicted in political cartoons, columns or letters do not necessarily represent the opinion of the editorial board.

Toll roads are still in use in only 26 states. Tolls are bad for the environment, they are bad for business, and they are not safe for drivers. Tolls should be eliminated altogether. The gas tax is the easiest and fairest way to collect revenues.

Resignation saddens head of hospital

I was recently saddened to hear the news that Gene Davis resigned his position on the Citrus County Hospital Board of Trustees. If ever there was a "good guy" in the dispute between the Trustees and Citrus Memorial Foundation, it was him.

Gene focused on putting the health of our community ahead of political agendas and egos. He was determined to bring an end to a long-running feud, ensuring stability for the hospital's employees and finances. And he was genuinely invested in the mission and vision of Citrus Memorial.

With Gene on the Citrus County Hospital Board there was real hope for the future of Citrus Memorial. But, based on comments made in the Citrus County Chronicle, it has become apparent that appointees to this board must play politics first and care for our community's health care needs second. This intentional divisiveness from our elected officials does nothing to enhance health care in Citrus County; it simply furthers individual agendas.

Gene Davis is the epitome of a dedicated public servant and a man for all seasons. Elected and appointed officials throughout the state could take a page from his book.

Emergency?

Sound Off, April 8, someone complained about a nine-hour wait at Citrus Memorial hospital, in the emergency department. What is it that people don't understand about the words "emergency room?" An emergency calls for immediate, urgent medical action, according to Merriam-Webster.

The caller apparently took a grandchild to the ER for a routine "checkup because he's complaining about an earache." This would not be considered an emergency and should be addressed by a pediatrician or family doctor. I can only assume the long wait was due to actual emergency cases, which would and should take priority, or other mundane cases which aren't emergency ailments in the first place.

Earaches are painful and I do not take a child's pain lightly. However, there are medications and treatments a qualified pharmacist would recommend to ease discomfort until the family doctor could be seen.

Personally, after a four-hour ER wait a few years ago, I too, walked out and went to my personal doctor, Beena Stanley. She immediately sent me to Shands, at Gainesville, where diagnosis was made for which I remain under treatment today. I had a real emergency, doubled over in excruciating pain. I should have been readily examined but there were ingrown toenails, rashes and inflamed moles ahead of me.

There should be policy to keep the ER able to run smoothly and more efficiently. This means turning away headaches, earaches, constipation, splinters and all other miserable but not emergency ailments. Please find a family doctor and let the ER treat emergencies in a timely manner. You may actually have an emergency one day, and every minute counts.

Cultural war

The liberals, progressives, politicians, press, academics, judges and Hollywood elites are waging a war on the culture as defined by traditional moral values, which have served society since its inception.

Their purpose is to undermine these traditional values because they impede their liberal thinking of what is right in their eyes for a progressive society. They do not need to collaborate in meetings or conferences because they are all focused on the same goal of diminishing the impact of traditional moral values on the culture.

The founders were very outspoken on the importance of a moral society to maintain the government system they developed.

The current attacks on the traditional values pertaining to sexual activity are the prime example of moral redefinition to the detriment of all of society, especially the poor.

These attacks are hollow and empty until the government makes laws supporting what used to be immoral behavior, at which point, they have violated the free exercise clause of the Constitution by imposing laws on religious people whose faith commands them not to engage in immoral behavior. They can no longer freely exercise their religion in that area without being arrested or fined by the government.

The government's anti-discrimination laws include people engaged in sexually immoral lifestyles, forcing a religious employer to violate their religious faith or be fined by the government.

So what, you say? Well, unless you live in a video game room, you know that sexually immoral activity outside the God-ordained marriage relationship is the single most destructive force in our modern society.

It results in sexually transmitted diseases at epidemic proportions; threatens future childbearing; hits the same-sex community hardest with additional gastrointestinal diseases and AIDS; increases medical costs for treatment; causes unwanted pregnancies, resulting in abortions; results in children born out of wedlock, children born into poverty and susceptible to drug use and crime.

Why would any society with any compassion towards its fellow man encourage, promote and legalize such activities that impact the poor so severely?

Wife said husband shot DA

KAUFMAN, Texas — Court records show the wife of a former North Texas justice of the peace has implicated her husband in the shooting deaths of a local district attorney, his wife and an assistant prosecutor.

An affidavit filed Wednesday reveals Kim Williams told investigators a day earlier that husband Eric Williams was the triggerman in the slayings of Kaufman County District Attorney Mike McLelland and his wife Cynthia last month, and assistant prosecutor Mark Hasse.

Kim Williams was arrested early Wednesday and charged with capital murder. Eric Williams has been in custody, charged with making terroristic threats. He has not yet been charged in the slayings.

McLelland and Hasse prosecuted Eric Williams last year for theft of three computer monitors. Williams was convicted and sentenced to probation.

Man identified in WTC remains

NEW YORK — Authorities retesting human remains recovered from the World Trade Center site have identified those of a 55-year-old man.

A spokeswoman for the New York City medical examiner's office said Wednesday the man's name won't be released at his family's request.

Some 2,750 people died at the World Trade Center in the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. Wednesday's announcement brings the number of identified victims up to 1,635.

The identification was made from remains collected before May 2002. The last time a person was identified from the original remains recovered at the site was in October.

Test rocket launch scrubbed

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. — A commercial company contracted by NASA to make supply runs to the International Space Station scrubbed a planned test rocket launch Wednesday.

The unmanned Antares rocket had been scheduled for liftoff Wednesday afternoon from Wallops Island on Virginia's Eastern Shore. Plans were paused minutes before a 5 p.m. window for liftoff was to open.

The planned launch by Dulles-based Orbital Sciences Corp. was designed to test whether a practice payload could reach orbit and safely separate from the rocket.

Orbital, based near Washinton, D.C., is one of two private companies contracted to restock the space station by NASA, which ended its shuttle program in 2011. California-based SpaceX completed its third supply run to the station last month.

Expanded background checks blocked

Associated Press

Associated Press

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif. uses a poster of weapons Wednesday as she speaks about gun legislation on the floor of the Senate on Capitol Hill in Washington. Legislation for stronger gun control was voted down.

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans backed by a small band of rural-state Democrats scuttled the most far-reaching gun control legislation in two decades Wednesday, rejecting tighter background checks for buyers and a ban on assault weapons as they spurned pleas from families of victims of last winter's school massacre in Newtown, Conn.

"This effort isn't over," President Barack Obama vowed at the White House moments after the defeat on one of his top domestic priorities. Surrounded by Newtown relatives, he said opponents of the legislation in both parties "caved to the pressure" of special interests.

A ban on high-capacity ammunition magazines also fell in a series of showdown votes four months after a gunman killed 20 elementary school children and six staff members at Sandy Hook Elementary.

A bid to loosen restrictions on concealed weapons carried across state lines was rejected, as well.

That last vote marked a rare defeat for the National Rifle Association on a day it generally triumphed over Obama, gun control advocates and many of the individuals whose lives have been affected by mass shootings in Connecticut and elsewhere.

Some of them watched from the spectator galleries above the Senate floor. "Shame on you," shouted one, Patricia Maisch, who was present two years ago when a gunman in Tucson, Ariz., killed six and wounded 13 others, including former Rep. Gabrielle Giffords.

Vice President Joe Biden gaveled the Senate back into order after the breach of decorum.

Gun control advocates, including Obama, had voiced high hopes for significant action after the Newtown shootings. But the lineup of possible legislation gradually dwindled to a focus on background checks, and in the end even that could not win Senate passage. Chances in the Republican-controlled House had seemed even slimmer.

By agreement of Senate leaders, a 60-vote majority was required for approval of any of the provisions brought to a vote.

The vote on the background check was 54-46, well short of the 60 votes needed to advance. Forty-one Republicans and five Democrats voted to reject the plan.

The proposed ban on assault weapons commanded 40 votes; the bid to block sales of high capacity ammunition clips drew 46.

The NRA-backed proposal on concealed carry permits got 57.

Obama said at the White House public opinion was strongly behind expanded background checks. Despite that, opponents of the legislation were "worried that the gun lobby would spend a lot of money" at the next election, he said.

"So all in all this was a pretty shameful day for Washington," he added.

Grand goodbye

Britain's Iron Lady laid to rest with full pomp

Associated Press

Associated Press

A Union flag-draped coffin bearing the body of former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is carried Wednesday on a gun carriage drawn by the King's Troop Royal Artillery during her ceremonial funeral procession in London.

LONDON — Margaret Thatcher was laid to rest Wednesday with prayers and ceremony, plus cheers and occasional jeers, as Britain paused to remember a leader who transformed the country — for the better according to many, but in some eyes for the worse.

Soaring hymns, Biblical verse and fond remembrances echoed under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral as 2,300 relatives, friends, colleagues and dignitaries attended a ceremonial funeral for Britain's only female prime minister.

Queen Elizabeth II, current and former prime ministers and representatives from 170 countries were among the mourners packing the cathedral, where Bishop of London Richard Chartres spoke of the strong feelings Thatcher still evokes 23 years after leaving office.

"The storm of conflicting opinions centers on the Mrs. Thatcher who became a symbolic figure — even an -ism," he said. "It must be very difficult for those members of her family and those closely associated with her to recognize the wife, the mother and the grandmother in the mythological figure."

"There is an important place for debating policies and legacy ... but here and today is neither the time nor the place," he added.

Before the service, Thatcher's coffin was driven from the Houses of Parliament to the church of St. Clement Danes, about half a mile from the cathedral, for prayers.

From there the coffin — draped in a Union flag and topped with white roses and a note from her children Mark and Carol reading "Beloved mother, always in our hearts" — was borne to the cathedral on a gun carriage drawn by six black horses.

Spectators lining the route broke into applause as the carriage passed by, escorted by young soldiers, sailors and airmen. A few demonstrators staged silent protests by turning their backs on Thatcher's coffin, and one man held a banner declaring "rest in shame."

Guests inside the cathedral included Thatcher's political colleagues, rivals and her successors as prime minister: John Major, Tony Blair, Gordon Brown and David Cameron.

Former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and former Vice President Dick Cheney were among the American dignitaries.

The woman nicknamed the Iron Lady died April 8 at age 87.

Thatcher was given a ceremonial funeral with military honors — not officially a state funeral, which requires a vote in Parliament — but proceedings that featured the same level of pomp and honor afforded Princess Diana in 1997, and Queen Mother Elizabeth in 2002.

That raised the ire of some Britons who believe her legacy is a socially and economically unequal nation.

Miss. man arrested, accused in ricin letters

Associated Press

OXFORD, Miss. — The FBI has identified a Mississippi man suspected of mailing letters containing poisonous ricin as 45-year-old Paul Kevin Curtis.

FBI Special Agent in Charge Daniel McMullen said Curtis was arrested Wednesday afternoon at his apartment in Corinth, near the Tennessee state line, about 100 miles east of Memphis.

Authorities still waited for definitive tests on the letters to President Barack Obama and Sen. Roger Wicker, R-Miss. An FBI intelligence bulletin obtained by The Associated Press said those two letters were postmarked Memphis, Tenn.

Both letters said: "To see a wrong and not expose it, is to become a silent partner to its continuance." Both were signed, "I am KC and I approve this message."

The letters were intercepted before reaching the White House or Senate. The FBI said Wednesday that more testing was underway. Preliminary field tests can often show false positives for ricin.

As authorities scurried to investigate three questionable packages discovered in Senate office buildings, reports of suspicious items also came in from at least three senators' offices in their home states.

Sen. Carl Levin said a staff member at his Saginaw, Mich., office would spend the night in a hospital as a precaution after discovering a suspicious letter. The staff member had no symptoms, Levin said in a statement. He expected to learn preliminary results of tests on the letter by Thursday.

Sen. Jeff Flake, R-Ariz., said suspicious letters at his Phoenix office had been cleared with nothing dangerous found. A package at Sen. John Cornyn's Dallas-area office also was declared harmless, a fire department spokesman said.

All three packages in the Capitol complex turned out to be safe, Capitol police spokeswoman Makema Turner said late Wednesday. But a man was still being questioned after being stopped in connection with the packages, she said.

20 migrant strawberry pickers wounded in Greece

ATHENS, Greece — Police in southern Greece said at least 20 migrant strawberry pickers have been shot and wounded in a pay dispute after a foreman opened fire on them with a shotgun.

The incident occurred Wednesday near the village of Manolada about 160 miles west of Athens.

Police Capt. Haralambos Sfetsos said most of the wounded workers were from Bangladesh. He said the shooting occurred when about 200 workers at the strawberry field demanded six months' unpaid wages and "moved threateningly" toward three foremen, at least one of whom opened fire.

Lecanto's Atkinson will attend Indian River

C.J. RISAK
Correspondent

LECANTO — Adjustment was a key element for Amber Atkinson when colleges beckoned.

"I had a chance to practice with them and they all welcomed me," Lecanto's standout softball catcher said. "And they have smaller class sizes, so I'll have a chance to get adjusted."

The school she was speaking of was Indian River State College, the two-year college Atkinson has decided to attend. Of course there were other reasons she chose IRSC — its location in Fort Pierce, for instance — not the least of which was an opportunity to play immediately, and at the position she currently plays.

"Oh yeah, I like that," she said. "That's where I want to play."

Dale Atkinson, the IRSC softball coach who, it was discovered after the recruiting process began, happens to be a second cousin, confirmed that Amber would get every shot at starting immediately.

Special to the Chronicle

Lecanto senior Amber Atkinson (sitting) committed to Indian River State College, a two-year school in Ft. Pierce on Wednesday at Lecanto High School. Back row, from left, is Panthers assistants Chris Grimes and Butch Miller, Lecanto head coach Robert Dupler and Indian River head coach Dale Atkinson.

"Absolutely," he said. "I wish she were (at IRSC) now."

What he believes Atkinson can bring into a program that has experienced plenty of success — the Pioneers were 39-15 this past sesason, finishing first in the Southern Conference and qualifying for the Florida Community College Athletic Association regionals — is a strong arm and an equally strong attitude.

"We want our pitchers not to be panicked about walking a batter," he explained. "She's got a strong arm, and we've missed that the last couple of years. I think Amber's going to get that back into our team.

"We like her intensity a lot. She worked out with us and stepped right in. Oh yeah, I think she'll be a big part of what we're doing next year."

The best news for IRSC might be what Lecanto coach Robert Dupler noted.

"I don't think she's reached her peak yet," Dupler said. "She doesn't know how good she can be. You don't replace her."

Asked what Atkinson does best, Dupler replied, "Everything. Her entire play. I can't say it's her batting, even though she holds (a lot) of our records, but on defense she allowed one stolen base all season, and that was because we didn't cover the bag.

"She's a better player than she knows."

Atkinson's ability has earned her all sorts of accolades. She was the Chronicle's softball player of the year in 2012 after batting .488 with six home runs and 34 runs batted in. She should be in the running again this season,

Defending the Bat

Lecanto wins fourth straight Bat Game over rival Crystal River

LECANTO — The names have changed, but the outcome was the same as the previous three years in Wednesday's 20th annual Bat Game, a memorial for former Lecanto player Joe D. Rigney.

Lecanto junior Levi O'Steen effectively mixed up his pitches to keep Crystal River batters out of sync while his Panthers got key hits from senior shortstop Joey Spell, junior first baseman Jacob Schenck and sophomore right fielder Caleb Southey to help Lecanto reclaim the game's signature 5-foot-6 bat for the fourth consecutive season in a 2-0 triumph at LHS.

O'Steen fanned five and allowed one walk and three hits in his complete-game performance as the Panthers (9-13 overall) committed one error. His counterpart, Pirates junior Kameron Pennington, also allowed just three hits while striking out four Panthers and yielding two walks and a hit batter in front of an error-free defense in six innings.

O'Steen complimented his team's defense as a significant factor in his success on the mound.

"When we played Crystal River earlier in the year, we couldn't catch pop-ups," O'Steen said "But it was a big improvement, and Joey (Spell) had two nice plays on slow rollers one inning. Anybody else and those are probably base hits.

"I had to work a lot harder to try to get (Crystal River hitters) to chase," the junior ace added. "They liked the high ones a lot more than the low ones. I was just making pitches, hitting my spots and changing speeds. It was good pitch-calling by our coaches, never throwing the same pitch twice in a row."

Spell drove a double to right field in the first inning before advancing on a wild pitch and scoring on an RBI grounder by senior center fielder Scott Stearns to put Lecanto up 1-0 early. The Panthers' other run came in the fifth after Schenck blasted a triple to the far reaches of the left-field corner and scored on a two-out single up the middle by Southey.

"I can't say enough about our guys," Lecanto head coach Dave Logue said. "Joey (Spell) came through and played good baseball and Scott (Stearns) had a smart groundball in the first. You always play better with the lead, that's for sure.

"Schenck's been working hard at practice to get better and he came through. His hit would have been gone at almost any other park."

Crystal River (7-14 overall) appeared on the verge of breaking open the game in the third when it loaded the bases with one out following back-to-back singles by senior left fielder Dallas Baldner and freshman shortstop Zach Pattison. But a pair of infield pop-outs from the meat of the order spoiled the Pirates' best opportunity.

"It could have went downhill for us that inning," Lecanto head coach Dave Logue said. "Levi (O'Steen) kept his composure and bowed his neck. If you can keep two of their three top hitters down, you've got a good chance."

The Pirates came back in the fourth with a leadoff double by sophomore third baseman Jordan Humphreys before a groundout to Spell and consecutive strikeouts stunted a potential rally. Crystal River reached base just once — on a base hit by Humphreys — in the remaining three innings.

"We had a bunch of hits (Tuesday night against Leesburg) and looked good at the plate, but we've got a team where we don't know what we're going to get from day to day," Crystal River head coach Bobby Stack said. "Some of our main hitters were missing balls and getting jammed. At this point in the season, we should be hitting balls well.

"It'd be different if we played well and lost," Stack added. "But we didn't play well. I was very disappointed."

Lecanto (No. 4 seed) plays host to West Port (No. 5) to open the District 6A-6 tournament on Monday at 7 p.m. Crystal River finishes its regular season at home Friday against Springstead at 7 p.m.

Forest squeezes Citrus

Wildcats hold 'Canes to 3 hits in 13-1 defeat

DAVID PIEKLIK

INVERNESS — The lead-off home run was an omen for the Citrus baseball team during an eventual 13-1 home loss to Ocala Forest on Wednesday night.

Days before district playoffs begin, the struggles continued for the Hurricanes (12-12) against a strong Wildcats team (20-3). Forest's Joshua Greene hit the third pitch he saw in the first inning about 312 feet to right field and over the fence for an early 1-0 lead.

The Wildcats continued to roar from there — including a seven-run second inning — with the 'Canes struggling to hit the ball and make defensive plays. As he wet down the pitching mound after the game, head coach Brady Bogart expressed disappointment in his team's efforts.

"Our biggest opponent is us," he said. "Every aspect of the game, we've gotten worse. Fielding, hitting, approach ..."

Forest's Anthony Mazzurco struck out six batters and walked one, fooling Hurricane batters with his off-speed pitch that Bogart said his team didn't adjust to. The 'Canes could only muster three hits, with catcher Wesley Bradshaw hitting an RBI double in the second inning.

The Wildcats combined for 12 hits, including Ben Ellzey's 3 for 4, 3 RBIs performance. Forest's Sam Armstrong also knocked in three runs on a second-inning double.

Though Citrus has secured the No. 1 seed in next week's District 6A-6 tournament, Bogart said the team is not playing like one right now and needs to improve a lot before then.

Bradshaw agreed the team did not play to its potential against Forest.

"We just need to forget about it ... play hard and go into districts with (our) head up."

Rays end four-game skid 6-2

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Kelly Johnson and Shelley Duncan homered, James Loney had three RBIs and the Tampa Bay Rays beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-2 Wednesday night to snap a four-game skid.

Matt Moore (3-0) gave up two runs and five hits in 6 2/3 innings. Although his streak of scoreless starts ended at two, the left-hander has accounted for three of the Rays' five wins this season.

The six runs were the most the Rays scored in a game since a 6-0 win over Cleveland on April 6. Following that victory, Tampa Bay lost seven of eight before turning it around against the Orioles.

After going 1 for 34 with runners in scoring position in their previous five games, the Rays went 4 for 11 in those situations, including a two-run double in the fourth by Loney that put Tampa Bay ahead for good.

Loney went 3 for 3 to raise his batting average from .167 to .242. Johnson (2 for 5) went from .200 to .229, and Duncan got two hits to boost his average 44 points to .258.

Adam Jones homered for the Orioles, who had five hits.

Baltimore starter Chris Tillman (0-1) allowed four runs and six hits in four innings to fall to 1-4 against the Rays.

Tampa Bay manager Joe Maddon missed a portion of his team's first win in a week. He was ejected from the game in the fifth inning by umpire Brian Knight, who called Johnson out on a stolen base attempt. Maddon argued that Johnson beat the tag.

Cleveland catcher Carlos Santana tags out Boston's Mike Napoli trying to score from third on Wednesday in the first inning in Cleveland.

Red Sox win fifth straight

Detwiler, Harper lead Nationals past Marlins 6-1

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Converted closer Alfredo Aceves coasted through five innings, Mike Napoli and Daniel Nava drove in two runs apiece and the Red Sox, bonded by the tragedy in Boston, struck quickly against Justin Masterson and beat the Cleveland Indians 6-3 on Wednesday night for their fifth straight win.

Aceves (1-0), who began the season in Boston's bullpen, took a shutout into the sixth before giving up three runs. Andrew Bailey, filling for injured closer Joel Hanrahan, worked the ninth for his first save.

Napoli had an RBI single in the first when the Red Sox scored three off Masterson (3-1), who has already beaten two Cy Young winners this season and came in without allowing a run in 19 straight innings.

Nick Swisher and Jason Giambi homered for the Indians, who dropped their third in a row.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 0

TORONTO — Tyler Flowers hit a three-run homer and Jose Quintana pitched 6 2/3 innings to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 7-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Alex Rios also homered to back Quintana (1-0), who held the Blue Jays to five hits with two walks while striking out seven in his third start of the season.

J.A. Happ (2-1) allowed six hits, including two homers, and five runs in 5 2/3 innings to end a string of four consecutive quality starts by the Blue Jays' rotation.

Athletics 7, Astros 5

OAKLAND, Calif. — Bartolo Colon pitched six crisp innings, Josh Reddick doubled in two runs during a six-run first and the Oakland Athletics beat the Houston Astros 7-5 to complete another three-game sweep.

The Athletics swept a three-game series at Houston during the first week of the season.

Seth Smith had three hits and Jed Lowrie added two for the A's, who improved to an AL-best 12-4.

The A's sent 11 batters to the plate and chased Astros starter Bud Norris in the first inning.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Nationals 6, Marlins 1

MIAMI — Ross Detwiler departed with a lead for the third start in a row, and this time the bullpen held on as Bryce Harper and the Washington Nationals beat the Miami Marlins 6-1.

Harper, back in the Nationals' lineup after missing one game with the flu, hiked his average to .364 with four hits and improved to 9 for 20 against Ricky Nolasco. Harper hit two solo homers off Nolasco on opening day.

Detwiler (1-0) allowed one run in seven innings, which increased his ERA to 0.90. He left his first two starts with the Nationals ahead 5-1 and 4-1, but both times received no decision.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 0

PITTSBURGH — A.J. Burnett took a no-hitter into the seventh inning nearly 12 years after throwing the only one of his career, pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Burnett (1-2) lost his bid with two outs in the seventh on Carlos Beltran's double to right-center. That was the lone hit given up by the 36-year-old right-hander in seven dominant innings.

The only other runner he allowed came when he hit Daniel Descalso with a 2-2 pitch with one out in the sixth to end his shot at a perfect game. Burnett struck out eight to raise his season total to 35 in 24 innings.

His bid for a no-hitter came on a night when he recorded the 2,000th strikeout of his 15-year career. Burnett reached the milestone when he caught Beltran looking to lead off the second.

Brewers 4, Giants 3

MILWAUKEE — Pinch-hitter Blake Lalli lifted a long single in the bottom of the ninth inning that sent the Milwaukee Brewers over the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

With the score tied, one out and the outfielders playing in, Lalli stepped to the plate for just the sixth time this season.

Lalli lofted a deep fly ball well over the head of left fielder Gregor Blanco for his first hit of 2013. Milwaukee extended its longest winning streak this year to three.

Brewers starter Kyle Lohse did not allow a hit through the first five innings as Milwaukee built a 3-0 lead.

Reds 11, Phillies 2

CINCINNATI — Jay Bruce's pair of bases-loaded singles led the Cincinnati Reds to a couple of wins, 1-0 over the Philadelphia Phillies in the conclusion of a suspended game and 11-2 in the later one.

The Reds completed their first sweep of the Phillies since 1996.

First, they finished their game suspended overnight by rain. Phillippe Aumont (1-2) picked the game up in the bottom of the ninth and gave up Bruce's bases-loaded single only four batters later.

Bruce's other bases-loaded single — also to right field — highlighted a five-run second inning off left-hander John Lannan (0-1) in the regularly scheduled game. Reds starter Mike Leake (1-2) drove in a run with his first career triple during the decisive 10-batter rally and finished with three hits.

INTERLEAGUE

Royals 1, Braves 0

ATLANTA — Wade Davis pitched five-hit ball for seven innings, Jeff Francoeur had a fourth-inning RBI single, and the Kansas City Royals stopped Atlanta's 10-game winning streak with a 1-0 victory.

The Braves were seeking their first 13-1 start since 1994, but the powerful Atlanta offense — which homered five times off the Royals the previous night — finally was stifled.

Davis (2-0) didn't walk anyone and struck out seven, and the Braves couldn't get a runner past first base until Jason Heyward's two-out double in the sixth.

Yankees 4, Diamondbacks 3

NEW YORK — Travis Hafner had a pinch-hit homer in the eighth inning to make a winner of CC Sabathia, who settled down after a shaky start and helped the New York Yankees beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 4-3.

Brett Gardner had a tying, two-run single in the seventh for New York, which broke through after being stymied by Wade Miley for six innings.

Sabathia (3-1) gave up an opposite-field, two-run homer to Paul Goldschmidt in the first — one of three hits in the opening inning — then only three more hits and a sacrifice fly to A.J. Pollock through the eighth.

Hafner batted for Ben Francisco with two outs in the eighth. He sent the first pitch he saw from reliever David Hernandez (0-1) into the stands in right-center for his fourth home run.

MLB postponements

- The game between the New York Mets and the Colorado Rockies was postponed as another spring snow storm passed through the Mile High City. No makeup date has been announced for Wednesday's game.
- The game between the Texas Rangers and Chicago Cubs scheduled for Wednesday night was rained out. No makeup date was announced. The teams are set to play today.
- The Los Angeles Angels and Minnesota Twins have had their series finale at Target Field postponed by rain. The Twins said the makeup date has yet to be determined. Both teams have off days on Thursday, but the forecast in Minnesota was calling for cold and snow.

Heat win 66th, top Magic 105-93

Associated Press

MIAMI — Dwyane Wade scored 21 points and handed out 10 assists, Mike Miller added 21 points and the Miami Heat wrapped up the regular season with a 105-93 win over the Orlando Magic on Wednesday night.

The Heat (66-16) became the 14th team in NBA history to finish with a winning percentage over .800.

Orlando finished with the NBA's worst record, 20-62.

The Heat have home-court advantage throughout the playoffs, and will open against Milwaukee on Sunday.

Nik Vucevic had 20 points and 13 rebounds for Orlando.

Grizzlies 86, Jazz 70

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Zach Randolph had 25 points and 19 rebounds and the Memphis Grizzlies ended Utah's playoff hopes with an 86-70 victory over the Jazz.

The Grizzlies' victory means the Los Angeles Lakers are assured of making the playoffs even before their late game against the Houston Rockets.

Meanwhile, Memphis, the Western Conference's fifth seed, still held out hopes for home-court advantage if the Los Angeles Clippers lost at Sacramento in another late game.

Bucks 95, Thunder 89

OKLAHOMA CITY — Rookie John Henson scored a career-high 28 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, Brandon Jennings had 17 points and the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Oklahoma City Thunder 95-89 in a regular-season finale lacking any postseason implications.

Nuggets 118, Suns 98

DENVER — The Denver Nuggets secured the third seed in the Western Conference playoffs by routing the Phoenix Suns 118-98 behind 21 points from Wilson Chandler and 20 from Andre Iguodala.

Their opponent in the first round wasn't determined until the late games on the West Coast wrapped up.

Bobcats 105, Cavaliers 98

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kemba Walker had 24 points and seven assists, and the Charlotte Bobcats defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 105-98 to avoid finishing in the NBA cellar for a second consecutive season.

The Bobcats (21-61) finished one game ahead of the Orlando Magic.

Raptors 114, Celtics 90

TORONTO — DeMar DeRozan scored 24 points, Rudy Gay had 19 points and nine rebounds, and the Toronto Raptors routed the Boston Celtics 114-90, finishing their season with five straight wins.

Jordan Crawford scored 16 points, Terrence Williams had 12 and Avery Bradley 11 for the Celtics, who played for the first time since Monday's bomb attack near the finish line of the Boston Marathon.

Knicks 98, Hawks 92

NEW YORK — Chris Copeland scored 33 points on a night that belonged to the benches, and the New York Knicks wrapped up their winningest season in 16 years by beating the Hawks 98-92.

New York is the No. 2 seed in the Eastern Conference and will host the No. 7 Boston Celtics on Saturday.

Timberwolves 108, Spurs 95

SAN ANTONIO — Derrick Williams had 21 points to help the Minnesota Timberwolves beat the Spurs 108-95, ending a 16-game losing streak at San Antonio.

Gary Neal had 17 points, Tim Duncan had 17 points and 14 rebounds, Tony Parker had 15 points and eight assists for the Spurs, who had previously clinched the Western Conference's second seed.

Mavericks 99, Hornets 87

DALLAS — Darren Collison scored 25 points, Dirk Nowitzki added 16 and the Dallas Mavericks finished their worst season in 13 years on a winning note, beating New Orleans 99-87 in its final game as the Hornets.

The Mavericks (41-41) avoided their first losing record since going 40-42 in 1999-2000 — also the last time they missed the playoffs.

Al-Farouq Amini had 16 points and a career-high 20 rebounds for New Orleans, which will become the Pelicans next season.

Bulls 95, Wizards 92

CHICAGO — Carlos Boozer had 19 points and 15 rebounds to help the Chicago Bulls clinch the fifth seed in the Eastern Conference with a 95-92 win over the Washington Wizards in the regular-season finale.

The Bulls will face the Brooklyn Nets in the opening round of the playoffs.

Nets 103, Pistons 99

NEW YORK — Brook Lopez scored 20 points and reserve Andray Blatche added 15 as the playoff-bound Brooklyn Nets held off the Detroit Pistons 103-99.

The Nets will open their first playoff series in six years at home against the Chicago Bulls on Saturday.

76ers 105, Pacers 95

INDIANAPOLIS — Dorell Wright scored 23 points, leading Philadelphia to a 105-95 victory over short-handed Indiana.

Indiana was already locked into the third seed in the Eastern Conference and will now face sixth-seeded Atlanta in the first round.

NHL BRIEFS

Penguins 6, Canadiens 4

PITTSBURGH — Brenden Morrow scored two goals for the second straight game and the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Montreal Canadiens 6-4 on Wednesday night to move closer to clinching the top seed in the Eastern Conference playoffs.

Brandon Sutter added two goals for Pittsburgh, and newly acquired Jarome Iginla and Doug Murray also scored for the Penguins, who had little trouble with the Canadiens despite playing without injured stars Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin.

Marc-Andre Fleury stopped 31 shots and Pittsburgh dominated in racing to a quick 4-0 lead.

Sabres 3, Bruins 2, SO

BOSTON — Drew Stafford scored the only shootout goal after Buffalo tied the game in the final minute of regulation, and the Sabres beat the Bruins 3-2 in the first pro game in Boston since the marathon bombings on Monday.

The Sabres forced overtime with 26.6 seconds left when Cody Hodgson scored his 14th goal of the season, tipping in Thomas Vanek's pass during a power play.

Boston still clinched a playoff berth by gaining one point. The Bruins are tied in points with Montreal atop the Northeast Division, but have one game in hand on the Canadiens.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Florida State QB Clint Trickett to transfer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State quarterback Clint Trickett has been released from his scholarship and will transfer.

The junior is on target to graduate in May. Trickett had been competing for the starting job during spring practice, which wrapped up Saturday.

He completed 22 of 32 for 259 yards during the spring game, but redshirt freshman Jameis Winston was the star and seemed to establish himself as the front-runner to start this season. Sophomore Jacob Coker is also in the mix.

Trickett played eight games last season as EJ Manuel's backup and went 22 of 34 for 272 yards. In 2011, he started games against Wake Forest and Clemson. He passed for 336 yards and three touchdowns at Clemson.

Because Trickett is graduating, he can transfer and be eligible to play next season.

considering her .429 batting average, nine homers and 43 RBI.

Her talent in influencing a game was evident in Lecanto's 6-4 win over top-seeded Brooksville Central in the District 6A-6 tournament semifinals Tuesday. Atkinson wasn't ready to let her high school softball career come to an end — she legged out an inside-the-park home run in the fifth inning, then knocked one over the left-center field fence in the seventh.

She already holds the Lecanto career record for home runs (17) and for grand slams (3), including one feat that will be difficult to match. Against The Villages on Feb. 19, Atkinson slugged a pair of grand slam home runs in the Panthers' 17-15 victory. She's hit three grand slams this season.

Atkinson also holds Lecanto career records for runs (106), hits (135) and RBI (103), and she's tied for top honors in doubles (24).

Another reason Atkinson, who also leads Lecanto in stolen bases this season with 24, was attracted to the IRSC program was its intensity.

"His coaching style is like coach Dupler's," she said.

Tubing down the Rainbow River

PATH LESS TRAVELED

Folks, the mercury is on the rise — wander outside for just a couple of minutes and you'll wonder what happened to spring. I'm afraid it's more than likely long gone, and we are in for a scorcher of a summer.

No worries, though. We've got easy access to some of the (literally) coolest places in the state to fend off the heat. One of those places, Rainbow Springs State Park, is already running weekend tubing trips that last about two hours. Don't be surprised if you want to jump back on the tram for another float when you are done, though.

Starting Memorial Day and continuing through Labor Day, tubing is available daily at Rainbow Springs State Park. KP Hole, a Marion County park, is now offering four-hour floats daily through September 30.

If you've been in Florida for any length of time, you know that a tube trip is almost a rite of passage. It's part of the Florida experience. I think that jumping out of a Cypress tree (just once) into a river might get you immediate membership as a Floridian, too — but that's kind of frowned upon these days and not exactly safe. Just stick to the tube trip.

KEVIN MIMS/For the Chronicle

Tubers start a trip on the Rainbow River in Dunnellon.

Here's a tip if you decide to go: Arrive early. Extra early.

If you've done a tube trip before, you know what I'm talking about. The park will fill up, and you'll either be turned away at the entrance, or you'll have to wait until some folks come off the river.

Another thing that comes to mind: Let's leave all the disposable water bottles, packaging and other items that may find their way into the river at home. Bring a reusable water bottle and just bring a light snack in a Tupperware type of container, and make sure they are properly secured. It takes all of us to keep the Rainbow River beautiful for future generations to enjoy.

The Rainbow River trips are operated by Nature Quest, the state park's official concessionaire. The tram ride upriver and a tube rental costs $10.60 a person. For more information, check out www.rainbowspringspark.com. For information on KP Hole, visit http://www.marioncountyfl.org/Parks/Pr_Directory/Park_KPHole.aspx.

TIGHT LINES

Delores Belanger, founder of the Nature Coast Lady Anglers (fishinchick@live.com), and her husband, Ty, are serious about their fishing. Last Sunday, they waited for a bait shop to open at 6 a.m., and beat daybreak by a good half-hour at the Yankeetown ramp, the only ones there. One would think such diligence and dedication would bring rewards from Zara, Goddess of Fishing, but Zara is known to be fickle.

They worked the area around Bird Island, where Ty picked up a 17-inch trout and a 23-inch redfish before running out of water; then moved out to three to six feet, but a stiff breeze handicapped them, and they finally trekked out to the Trout Stake after playing with "lots of baby trout."

Finally, about 11 a.m., the wind laid down enough and they started catching trout, including a 19-inch beauty that ate a shrimp on a circle hook Delores was fishing on the bottom with just a split shot to keep it down.

Up until now, Zara has been reasonable. Delores and Ty had put in the work and been rewarded with a few nice fish, if not nonstop action. At this point, Zara felt there was a lesson to be taught, aided by a Spanish mackerel that ate a shrimp Ty was working under a popping cork.

"He got it within two feet of the boat," Delores said, "but I couldn't position the net under it in time … and it cut his line."

A little while later, the second part of the lesson made its appearance when a bluefish ate a shrimp Delores had under her own popping cork.

"He let go twice," she said (unusual, as she was using a circle hook), "and was making all kinds of boils and splashes around my shrimp, and got it for the third time, but this time he was hooked. I got him to the boat, and this time Ty didn't get the net in position fast enough, and it cut my line …but it was at the surface long enough for us to know it was a nice bluefish. It just reminded me," she concluded, "of your advice during class about always having one rod set up with a wire leader."

I'll tell you, that Zara is a tough taskmaster … um taskmistress.

Actually, the advice I gave to the class, and give from time to time in this space, wouldn't have helped the Belangers, as both cutoffs came from rogue fish; that is, loners that weren't with others, which is quite unusual for blues and mackerel, as they're both schooling fish. My advice would have applied if they had, indeed, run into a school of toothy critters. After the first cutoff, you switch to the rod with the wire leader.

As if to soothe the loss of two fish, Zara did reward the Belangers with a sighting of two horseshoe crabs mating. Delores snapped a couple of photos, and had the presence of mind to note the GPS coordinates, later reporting the sighting to FWC. Regular readers will recall a column a few weeks back, in which I asked readers to be on the lookout for horseshoes, and to pass the info to FWC for a data-gathering program. Prior to the sighting last week, there had been only two in Citrus County waters, one in 2009, and one last year, so I'm sure the FWC folks were glad to get the data.

That's Zara for you, give a little, take a little. They didn't put much of a dent in local finny populations, but the Belangers advanced an FWC program.

Tight Lines to you.

Preparing to prepare? You have to start somewhere

Julianne Munn
OVER EASY

I don't consider myself a prepper, mostly because I don't have the space or energy to accumulate provisions for months at a time to have in case of a dire natural or manmade emergency.

But diligent preppers probably have the right idea, especially those in the Gulf and Atlantic states, where the threat of hurricanes is all too real. We are getting closer to the 2013 hurricane season, and prepping — even on a limited basis — is a good idea.

That means extra supplies of water, nonperishable foods, weather radio, batteries, flashlights and other items to help you make it through lengthy power outages or fuel shortages.

The season begins June 1 and runs through Nov. 30, though the peak of the tropical storm season is around mid-September. A good link to advice and assistance online is the Citrus County Sheriff's Office's Emergency Management department page at www.sheriffcitrus.org/EM/.

The site advises the following:

■ Have at least 1 gallon of water per person, per day. Maintain a five-day supply.

■ Stock at least enough food for three days. Keep nonperishable, packaged or canned foods and juices in your kit. Make sure to include food for infants or the elderly, if needed. Snack foods, a manual can opener, cooking tools and fuel will be needed, as will paper plates and plastic utensils.

You will also find updated information about investigations and alerts from the National Department of Homeland Security and a lot of helpful suggestions from local and state authorities about surviving any type of disaster.

Several of Chef Anthony's most popular dishes include a Blue Cheese Delight salad that includes a 5-ounce chicken breast, bacon, red onion, blue cheese crumbles, tomato and a balsamic vinaigrette. Garlic knots tossed in garlic sauce and baked chicken wings are also favorites.

Familial flavors

At Chef Anthony's Pizza Cafe, Italian comfort and something secret

JULIANNE MUNN
Chronicle food writer

You won't find a Chef Anthony presiding in the kitchen at Chef Anthony's Pizza Cafe in Hernando, but that's OK, because everything on the menu lives up to the Italian name of the popular eatery.

Owner and chef Kevin Paige said when he opened the cafe nearly 10 years ago, every name proposed was already taken: "So we decided on Chef Anthony because it sounds about as Italian as you can get."

The 52-seat restaurant specializes in not only pizza, but also calzones, wings and, as Paige described it "crispy eggplant Parmesan." He said "all our marinara sauce is homemade and our calzone and garlic knots are absolutely the best in the county."

Paige said the many salads and pasta entrees are always made to order, including the lasagna prepared especially for the cafe by Paige's wife Teresa.

Teresa Paige manages another family restaurant venue, Paige's Root Beer on County Road 486, a place that boasts root beer made on the premises the old-fashioned way.

Though Paige said he enjoys experimenting, he wants to "stay focused on pizza," the best-selling item on the menu and a natural with the beer and wine available at the cafe.

A pizza "experiment" that has caught on, he said, is the cheeseburger bacon pizza, complete with ketchup, mustard and pickles. Though it isn't listed on the menu, folks can request it any time. Paige acknowledged the combination sounds odd, but has proven to be a taste favorite.

The Chef Anthony's Special pizza includes pepperoni, green peppers, sausage, red onions and black olives. The homemade crust is brushed with a garlic butter sauce and sprinkled with parmesan cheese.

Another innovation that has customers asking for more is the bread boule, a cream of potato and bacon soup served in a warm, crusty 10-ounce bread bowl for $6.95. This is a huge portion, and a definitely a meal in itself.

The antipasto platter is welcoming, too, with lettuce, black olives, mild banana peppers, pepperoni, ham, salami, provolone cheese and smothered in oil and vinegar, $5.75 or $8.95 depending on the size.

Pizzas are hand-tossed or thin and crispy in 12-inch, 14-inch and 16-inch sizes, with a variety of toppings. Prices range from $8.95 for just cheese to $23.95 for the Chef Anthony Special.

Calzones comes in the same sizes as pizza, priced similarly. There are Buffalo-style baked chicken wings at $7.75; a chicken tenders basket for $8.25; fried mushrooms for $6.35, and many typical hot and cold sub sandwiches and wraps are available.

For pasta lovers, in addition to the aforementioned lasagna, there is spaghetti three ways, $5.95 to $7.95; eggplant Parmesan, $10.95; and fettuccini Alfredo, $9.95 or $3 extra with chicken and $2 more with broccoli.

Unique to the cafe is the points guide on the menu corresponding with Weight Watchers' points system and covering every item.

THE AMISH COOK

Back to school, back to baking

The children went back to school after a week here at home for spring break. My husband Joe went back to work on Tuesday. The house seems empty during the day. Daughter Susan is working four days this week, but is home today. I am glad for her help. She is going to bake chocolate-chip and monster cookies, as our cookie jar has been empty too long. Our friend Barb from Bristol, Ind., came for a visit recently and brought two big bags of M&Ms. The children asked if we could make monster cookies with some of the M&Ms.

A lot was accomplished last week while everyone was home. Joe managed to get the 100 pounds of summer sausage smoked. It turned out very good, and everyone seems to like it. We were relieved that it turned out OK. This is a rainy and cold week. I am so glad last week was nicer and warmer when everyone was home. Those warm sunny days made it nice to hang the laundry outside to dry. It could be brought in, folded and put away all on the same day.

The highlight of our week is the miniature pony Minnie giving birth to a foal on April 9. It is so cute and small. Daughter Lovina, 8, was with Minnie and the pony cart earlier that evening. Susan went to check on her after supper and she came running in all excited to tell us Minnie had her foal. Needless to say, the whole family ended up in the barn to meet this foal that we so anxiously waited for. The children have run back and forth many times already to keep an eye on this precious foal. So far we haven't figured out what his name will be. Too many different suggestions, so we might have to draw names. The filly has a colorful coat of fur and resembles its father, which is our pony Tiger.

At dinner, pairing is caring — but it isn't everything

The topic most overdone by wine writers is the business of matching food with a proper wine. No question, the two are meant for each other — wine somehow does taste better at mealtimes.

But first and foremost, forget anything you have ever heard about pairing. The only rule is simple, no matter what the pundits say: Drink whatever wine pleases your particular fancy, and that is that. Chardonnay with roast prime ribs? Why not? Cabernet with codfish? You bet.

This said, consider flavor synergy. When wine and food are consumed together, they both seem to taste better. When you squeeze lemon on your tilapia or sprinkle Parmesan over the pasta Bolognese, it's the combination of flavors that perks up the dish. Synergy is the key.

So for the moment, throw out the old saw about red with meat and white with fish. Let's take a look at what really matters when it comes to pairing food with wine.

There is no "perfect" food and wine combination that is just right for everybody, but here are several of the most important principles, in my view, to develop an understanding of pairing.

■ Texture: Food and wines both have texture, defined here as how they feel in the mouth. Goose liver pate has a rich texture, while poached filet of sole served with a salad dressed with oil and vinegar is a quite lightly textured dish. Wine, too, has texture. Oak-flavored Chardonnay from French Burgundy will coat the palate, while a dry chenin blanc from California fermented in stainless steel vats will be tart and light in the mouth, finishing quickly. The most important guideline for matching food and wine is combining power with power. You do not want to drink a light Riesling with your Marinara pasta. Ugh.

■ Sauces and garnishes: London

of luck throughout the years in dodging the worst the tropics can deliver, but as experts say, it only takes one big one to be a painful reminder that readiness is vital. Think Andrew, Charlie and Katrina.

A number of times I've made a list, determined to shop for supplies that will ensure we will have water and food in the pantry for emergencies. Somehow I keep ending up with just an overabundance of canned tuna and chili, various soups, a couple jars of instant coffee (only to be used in a drastic situation), a few boxes of assorted crackers, some peanut butter and jelly and maybe some butterscotch candies.

That's all well and good, but during this prelude to disaster season, I intend to make a better effort to stock the pantry with a more choices. Though a three-day supply is the rule, a bit more sure wouldn't hurt anything.

Watch for sales on canned goods and other items you actually like to eat and which keep well, and buy a little extra each week when you can.

Remember, we do live on the Gulf of Mexico, and some of the strongest hurricanes have strengthened in those waters over the years. Even without a direct hit, the loss of utilities for days and maybe weeks is always a possibility — and you don't want to be caught short.

broil, a fairly lean cut of beef, served with its own juices from grilling along with fried potatoes and sliced mushrooms, will be fine with a medium-bodied wine such as pinot noir or merlot. Peppercorn steak and scalloped potatoes calls for wine with tannins — think cabernet sauvignon or Syrah.

■ Power with power: This maxim sums it all up. Grilled lamb needs to be met with strength. Drink a German spatlese if white wine is your preference, or a California zinfandel (the McCoy, not the pink stuff) to stand up to lamb's significant flavors. Tilapia with butter sauce will work with Italian soave or pinot grigio from anywhere.

A few other guidelines: If you plan to serve more than one wine with a nice dinner, the rule is dry before sweet, lower alcohol before higher, sparkling wines before still, (Champagne or a Spanish sparkler is a great way to start off your party), and younger before older. A lack of complexity or quality must precede the drama of an aged or powerful Bordeaux. To oversimplify this idea, Beaujolais first with cabernet sauvignon as the finisher.

One more time: Drink what tastes best to you personally while trying to pair good food and good wine. Let some of the benchmarks above be your guide.

Ron's "sweet spot" recommendations of the week: Chateau St. Jean pinot noir, great value; G. Bertrand Chateau L'Hospitalet Rouge, a blend of Syrah, Grenache and Mourvedre from the south of France, an elegant wine with medium tannins; and Beringer Founders' Estate Cabernet Sauvignon, oak-barrel aged, with lush black fruits. All are $12 or under.

Loquat a peachy, hardy beauty

While living in Beverly Hills, the most beautiful tree on our two lots was a large loquat tree (Eriobotrya japonica). This stunning specimen was approximately 30 feet tall and 30 feet in diameter. The glossy, lance-shaped evergreen leaves formed a rich, green canopy with a decidedly tropical look. In a good year, the tree was covered with delicious, golden fruit.

Randy Hobson
EDIBLE LANDSCAPE

Native to southeastern and central China, loquats are also known as Japanese plums or Japanese medlar. Introduced to Florida in the late 1800s, loquats are not related to kumquats, which are a type of citrus. Loquats are related to peaches, apples and nectarines. Loquat fruit, while not crisp, does share qualities with apples. Both have sweet, acidic flesh rich in pectin.

Unlike other fruit trees, loquats bloom in the fall. The fruit ripen in the late winter to early spring. In late March, while taking care of some business at the Citrus County School Board offices, I enjoyed a handful of fruit from the beautiful loquats that accent the parking lot landscape. I stood on the truck to reach the fruit. Many times my daughter Veronica and her friends and I climbed the Beverly Hills tree to reach the fruit. We learned it is best to climb barefoot — the bark is so tender that shoes tear it easily.

Loquat trees are very tolerant of cold, capable of withstanding temperatures down to 10 degrees Fahrenheit. The flowers and fruit, though, die if the temperature falls below 27 degrees.

Loquat trees are best introduced to landscapes as established, nursery-grown trees. Cultivars include orange-fleshed and white-fleshed varieties. Loquats can be grown from seed, but typically require seven to eight years to begin bearing fruit. In addition, trees grown from seed exhibit variable qualities. Grafted trees begin to bear fruit in two to three years.

Loquat trees grow best in full sun and well-drained soil. Keep mulch around the trunk so weed eaters will not damage the tender bark. Prune trees to a height of nine to 10 feet.

Loquat trees are prone to develop a disease called fire blight, so called because the dead, blackened limbs caused by this condition look like fire damage. Pruning affected limbs back to green wood and disposing of the dead wood is recommended.

Eating a loquat reminds me of a small peach with the thin, slightly fuzzy skin. The flavor has best been described as a mix of mango, citrus and peach. Recipes abound for loquats. Many begin by blanching the fruit in hot water, then removing the skin and seeds. Like apples and peaches, loquat seeds contain a substance that decomposes into a small amount of cyanide in the human digestive system.

Loquatworld.com, the website of a loquat grower and shipper in California, features great recipes for loquats including salsa, jam, jelly, wine ice cream sauce and more. Citrus County is one of the special places worldwide where loquats will grow and fruit, so choose an open spot and grow your own delicious loquats.

Happy landscaping and happy eating!

Our family, along with Timothy and Mose, attended baptismal services in Hersey, Mich., for our nephew Joseph. This was the first time we were to Hersey to see where Joe's sister Christine and family live. It's an almost three-hour drive from here. We spent the afternoon at Jake and Christine's house visiting and enjoying popcorn. We appreciated all the hospitality from the church members. Son Kevin and Jake and Christine's son Matthew are like two peas in a pod. To think that they don't often see each other they enjoy playing together so much.

They are both 7 years old. Kevin is already looking forward to the next time they will see each other, but being so far apart doesn't make it easy. Jakes sent us home a taste of their maple syrup and venison sausage. Mose has also brought us several jars of the maple syrup his family makes.

The rhubarbs should be up before too long, so give this cake a try.

RHUBARB COFFEECAKE

- 1/ 2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Citrus County Habitat for Humanity seeks female volunteers

Special to the Chronicle

Bring a smile and a can-do attitude to register for the annual Habitat for Humanity of Citrus County's Women Build. This year's event is scheduled to run from 8 a.m. to noon May 11 at 8741 Discalfani Loop in Crystal River. Pre-registration is required to participate.

This marks the fifth consecutive year Habitat has partnered with Lowes home improvement centers on the Women Build project. In 2012, some 90 women (and men) from across Citrus County teamed up for a few hours to build a home. It was the first time many of them had ever taken part in the construction process.

"Women want to make a difference in their community," said Lowes commercial sales specialist Fran Zimmerman. "I live and work in Citrus County. I care about local residents here."

Habitat's Women Build project in Crystal River is one of some 275 other homes being built around the country. The Mother's Day timeframe was selected for its significance because a majority of Habitat home recipients are women with children, much like C.D. Perez.

"Habitat for Humanity has literally changed the course of my life. I started out as a volunteer some years ago, and now my family has a roof and a safe place to call home — my Habitat home. I could not have done it without the many volunteers that made it possible," Perez said.

Recruits need not worry about construction experience. Habitat representatives offer on-site, hands-on direction to volunteer groups throughout the day.

Tools and training are also provided; however, participants must wear comfortable, closed-toe shoes. The first 35 to register will receive a free Women Build T-shirt to be distributed upon arrival at the job location.

Interested volunteers may contact the Habitat for Humanity Citrus County office at 352-563-2744 or visit the webpage at www.habitatcc.org. (Para español, llame a C.D. Perez à 352-601-6582.)

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Alija Izetbegovic, the first president of Bosnia and Herzegovina, said, "We play an active role and try to influence our destiny; we have our own trump cards and we use them."

So far this week, we have been looking at defenses in no-trump contracts aided by placing declarer's high-card points based on the bidding and play. Suitably assisted, one defender has known which suit to attack to gain sufficient tricks to defeat the contract. Now let's move to trump contracts.

South is in four spades. West leads the heart ace. How should East plan the defense?

The auction given is using Standard. If you have adopted two-over-one game-forcing, North would rebid three spades because the opener's hand strength is undefined. Then South would bid four spades to indicate a minimum.

East does not want his partner to shift, so should signal with his heart nine at trick one. West cashes the heart king and plays his third heart. After East wins with his queen, what does he do next?

East should count the points. South showed 12 to 14, the dummy has 13, West has already produced seven, and East has seven. Since all four jacks are on view, West cannot have another honor card. The only chance for a fourth trick lies in the trump suit.

East must lead his last heart. Here, when West ruffs with the spade nine, it uppercuts dummy's queen and promotes a spade trick for East.

When you have taken every possible side-suit trick, give a ruff-and-sluff. It might result in a trump promotion or an uppercut.

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

Dear Annie: My husband's parents are in their mid 70s. They are both in good health and financially stable. The problem is, my mother-in-law has a bit of hypochondria along with some anxiety. She has self-diagnosed herself with many "syndromes" (such as fibromyalgia, restless leg, irritable bowel), and she refuses to exercise. Her syndromes, which are exacerbated by her anxiety, keep her from getting out of the house, unless it involves an activity that she truly enjoys, like shopping.

My in-laws don't have a wide social circle, and Mom refuses to try to make new friends. You can't have a conversation with her without the topic turning to her various maladies. I believe this is causing her some depression. Our town has many great programs for seniors, and I know both of my in-laws would benefit from them. I have repeatedly suggested to my mother-in-law that she get outside more, get some exercise, volunteer, take classes at the senior center, etc., but she refuses.

Annie, I understand that Mom may have some physical ailments, but being home all day and inactive surely can't be making her better. It's so important to remain physically and mentally active, and it's frustrating to see a wonderful couple, a wonderful woman, throw her "golden years" away. — Frustrated Daughter-in-Law

Dear Daughter-in-Law: Your heart is in the right place, but please don't pressure your mother-in-law to take care of herself the way you would. While exercise would be great, it only works if she's willing to do it. To some extent, she likes her various maladies and isn't ready to get rid of them. The best you can do right now is suggest that she see her doctor to be properly tested, evaluated and treated. And if you find a program at the senior center that you think she would like, offer to pick her up and go with her.

Dear Annie: I'm in love with a girl who said she loved me, too. We dated for a while last summer, and we're still best friends. But "Lucy" has another boyfriend now, and he is a good guy. We all get along, but I'm extremely jealous that he has her. I'm pretty sure he knows how I feel. I'm still heartbroken about the breakup. I think about it all the time. I'm considering talking to Lucy to see whether there is any chance of us getting back together someday. Should I? — Lover Boy

Dear Lover Boy: Not unless you are absolutely certain that Lucy wants the same thing. Otherwise, you will only be hurt again. We assume the reasons for the original breakup still exist. Also, she has someone else in her life now, and it is not appropriate to make a play for his girl. If he is aware that you are still interested in Lucy, rest assured, she is, too. If she wanted to get back together, she would let you know. We recommend you spend a lot less time in her company so you can learn to get over her.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Rocky Mount, Va.," about allowing dogs at funerals.

When my sister was in hospice for four months, we told the staff how her dog, "Abby," was searching the house and waiting at the door of her home every day. The wonderful staff suggested we bring Abby in. The dog would check on my sister first, then greet everyone else and finally lie down on the floor beside my sister's bed. She did this every day we brought her. Toward the very end, Abby seemed to know that her wonderful master was dying. Now, she is a happy well-adjusted companion to another sister.

If at all possible, I recommend people let pets be with their masters at the end. Instinct seems to ease their minds, and even though the animals grieve, they are no longer waiting for them at the door. — Getting Better

The perfect mashed potato: No fat required

Scott Heimendinger
Associated Press

Associated Press

For the silkiest of mashed potatoes, try heating your spuds in warm water for a half hour before boiling. The technique gelatinizes the starches, leading to a creamier mouthfeel.

When made just right, mashed potatoes are the ultimate comfort food: smooth, creamy, warm and filling — not to mention a perfect vehicle for gravy.

But how to get them perfectly smooth and creamy? Too often ridding mashed potatoes of those pesky lumps forces you to overwork the spuds into a gummy, grainy mess. Or you end up adding so much cream and butter that the dairy drowns out the flavor of the potatoes.

If you like your mashed potatoes fluffy, the answer is fairly straightforward. Choose a floury variety of potato, such as Maris Piper or russet, pass the peeled, boiled potatoes through a ricer, then mix in just enough butter and milk or cream to moisten.

But if you're after a silkier texture — more like what the French call pommes puree — stick with waxy potatoes, such as Yukon gold or fingerlings. You also should try a modernist technique pioneered by food writer Jeffrey Steingarten and refined by the British chef Heston Blumenthal. It adds a step, but it is well worth it.

Steingarten discovered that gently heating the potatoes for a half hour or so in warm water before they are boiled profoundly improves the result. This is because as the potatoes soak in water at about 160 F (70 C), the starch in them gelatinizes, producing a smoother puree on the tongue. The granules that contain the starch also firm up, making it harder to rupture them during mashing.

Recently our research chefs perfected yet another modernist method that yields an amazingly smooth and slightly sweet potato puree, and all without adding any butter, milk or cream. The secret is to deploy a little trick of biochemistry that converts the starch in the potatoes into sugar.

The key to this culinary alchemy is an enzyme known as diastase. Don't let the fancy name put you off; this ingredient is quite natural (it is derived from malted grain), and you can buy it online or at stores that sell brewing and baking ingredients. The enzyme typically is sold in in a ready-to-use form called diastatic malt powder.

Like other enzymes, diastase is a protein whose complex molecular shape allows it to accelerate chemical transformations with amazing speed and specificity. When you eat a starchy food like bread or potatoes, enzymes in your gut help break down the starch into simpler carbohydrates (such as sugars) that your body can burn or store for energy. By adding diastase to our mashed potatoes, we're simply getting a jump on the process.

The trickiest part about using diastatic malt powder is measuring the right amount. It's potent stuff, so you really should measure ingredients by weight. After you have peeled and cubed the potatoes, weigh them. For every 100 grams of potatoes, measure out 1 gram of diastatic malt powder. So 1,100 grams of peeled, cubed potatoes calls for 11 grams of malt powder.

Now fill a pot with water and add 2 grams of sugar and 3 grams of salt for every 100 milliliters of water. Simmer the potato cubes until they are tender, 30 to 40 minutes, then drain. Stir the diastatic malt powder into the potatoes, then pass the mixture through a ricer.

The riced potatoes next get sealed in a zip-close plastic bag, which is set in a pot of hot tap water (about 125 F) for a half hour. The warmth activates the enzyme and starts it gobbling up the potato starch. When the 30 minutes is up, empty the bag into a pot, then heat the puree to at least 167 F to halt the enzymatic activity.

That's it. Even with no butter or cream, the result is sweet and amazingly smooth. If you are avoiding dairy or limiting your intake of fats, this technique may just renew your love affair with the potato.

MODERNIST POTATO PUREE

As with most modernist recipes, accuracy is key. We've provided volume equivalents of most ingredients, but for best results use a digital scale and weigh things out. Diastatic malt powder is the secret to making these dairy-free pureed potatoes smooth and creamy. It is widely available online, as well as at brewing supply shops.

Start to finish: Two hours

Makes 4 cups

- 2 1/2 pounds Yukon gold potatoes
- 30 grams (2 tablespoons) salt, plus additional for seasoning
- 20 grams (1 1/3 tablespoons) sugar
- 10 grams (1 tablespoon) diastatic malt powder

Fill a large pot halfway with hot tap water. Set the pot over very low heat. Maintain the water temperature at 125 F. To hold this temperature, you may need to turn the heat on and off occasionally.

Meanwhile, peel the potatoes and cut them into 1-inch cubes. Measure out 1 kilogram (2.2 pounds or about 7 1/3 cups) of the potato cubes. Reserve any excess for another use. Place the potatoes in a second large pot with 2 liters (about 2 quarts) of water. Add the salt and sugar, then bring to a boil. Reduce the heat to maintain a simmer and cook until the potatoes are very tender, 30 to 40 minutes.

Drain the potatoes, then transfer them to a food processor. Add the malt powder, then process until smooth and sticky. Transfer to a large zip-close plastic bag, pressing out as much air as possible before closing. Place the bag of potatoes in the pot of 125 F water and cook in this manner for 30 minutes.

Empty the potatoes from the bag into a clean pot, then heat gently to at least 167 F. Season with salt and serve immediately.

Scott Heimendinger is the director of applied research for The Cooking Lab, the culinary research team led by Nathan Myhrvold that produced the cookbooks "Modernist Cuisine: The Art and Science of Cooking" and "Modernist Cuisine at Home."
