

State releases 'Obamacare' rates

Residents making less than $48,000 will get federal voucher to offset insurance premium cost

Associated Press

MIAMI — Florida residents are finally getting to see what so-called "Obamacare" means for them as state insurance officials released rate details late Wednesday showing how much some health plans may cost under the new federal health law and how many providers will be participating in the state exchange.

The details come one day after Florida Health Commissioner Kevin McCarty said rates will rise an average of 5 to 20 percent for small businesses and 30 to 40 percent in the individual market. But he countered that those increases are partly due to the fact that consumers will receive more benefits, and the higher costs will be offset by federal subsidies in many cases.

Most of the state's roughly 3.5 million uninsured residents will not see extreme price hikes, McCarty said.

Officials said the new insurance plans will be more comprehensive, making direct comparisons to existing plans impossible, but the Florida Office of Insurance Regulation based its comparison on the average cost of premiums for midlevel

Principals poised for school start

District has nine new leaders

ERYN WORTHINGTON
 Staff writer

When Citrus County students return to classes on Aug. 7, many will be greeted by a fresh face behind the principal's desk.

Nine new principals are taking the helm for the upcoming 2013-14 school year.

The previous principals at those schools either retired or opted for other positions in the district, which set the stage for a domino effect of internal reassignments. Each new principal has a unique vision for the future of their schools.

New assignments, alphabetized by principals' last names, are:

Linda Connors is the new principal of Crystal River High School, coming from the assistant principal position at Citrus High School.

"Over the past 29 years, I have served as a teacher and administrator in the Citrus County School System," Connors said in an email. "As a graduate of Crystal River High School, I am honored to return to my alma mater and serve as principal. Although the buildings are different, the supportive family atmosphere and rich Pirate traditions are still the same.

"My vision for Crystal River High School centers on the goal that everyone will work together to enrich the lives of our students and prepare them for their future," Connors continued. "I am committed to providing outstanding customer service and open lines of communication with our parents, students, and community members, and I welcome any opportunity that ensures the continued success of our students."

Danita Eatman is the new principal at Lecanto Middle School, coming from the principal position at the Renaissance Center.

"As an instructional leader, I plan to support the LMS community as we continue to strive for academic excellence in our pursuit of establishing ourselves as the highest performing middle school..." Eatman said. "We are developing systems that will promote collaboration, unity and teamwork; all components that foster student success. Thanks to the vision of our school board, superintendent and executive staff we are well on our way to leading the nation in the infusion of technology into everyday lesson plans. We are determined to equip our students for this global world that we live in so that they have the ability to compete and compete well with their counterparts around the world. I am truly excited about this opportunity to serve the wonderful LMS community and I look forward to great achievement for all of our students."

Rich Hilgert is the new principal at Citrus High School, coming from the principal position at Citrus Resource of Exceptional Students in Transition (CREST).

"I am very excited to be a Hurricane," Hilgert said. "I have learned that Citrus High School has a long, successful rich tradition that promotes challenging curriculum which provides the foundation for student success. My hope or vision is to continue and promote new innovative instructional practices and also play an important role or partnership

Attorney: Grant looked for excuse to fire Nemzoff

MIKE WRIGHT

The Citrus County Hospital Board fired transaction consultant Josh Nemzoff to avoid paying him for a job already performed, Nemzoff's attorney claimed in a letter to CCHB attorney Bill Grant.

The letter from West Palm Beach attorney Amy Rubin puts the CCHB on notice that Nemzoff plans to sue the hospital board, Grant and three trustees.

Clifford Shepard, one of the board's outside attorneys, responded Wednesday by threatening to ask a judge to sanction Nemzoff's attorneys if they did not withdraw their claims.

the time, personal computers and computer accessories.

There are some restrictions and limitations. The tax break does not apply to any item of clothing selling for more than $75 or any school supply item costing more than $15.

Computers and related accessories are limited to $750. According to the Department of Revenue, it covers any electronic book reader, laptop, desktop, handheld, tablet or tower computer. It does not include cellphones, video games, consoles or devices not primarily designed to process data.

The exemption also covers wallets, backpacks, fanny packs and diaper bags, caps and hats, and a host of other accessories.

Will Wilson, owner of Citrus Sports and Apparel, is expecting a busy weekend at their new location.

SALES TAX HOLIDAY AUG. 2 to 4.

- No tax is due on certain clothing, footwear and accessories selling for $75 or less.
- No tax is due on certain school supplies selling for $15 or less.
- Books are not tax exempt.
- No tax is due on computers and certain related accessories selling for $750 or less per item, when purchased for noncommercial home or personal use.

His family business is a longtime local fixture, but has only been located in the Crystal River Mall since May.

Wilson said he is really happy with the mall location and said retail sales have been strong coming off their best month ever. The new location provides a large retail sales and display area with plenty of back shop space for custom silk screening, embroidery and graphic design.

With a wide variety of "wearables," he views the tax holiday as a good opportunity for customers to save. On top of the tax break, he is offering various in-house 10 percent discounts.

The store carries all kinds of school-themed apparel for the three area high schools and is branching out to middle schools. It also carries the popular local clothing line, Crazy On Outdoors, which they manufacture. Wilson said it has become one of their biggest sellers.

"I've got a lot people wanting to come in and buy things this weekend, so they can save that," he said. "I think people are waiting on the higher ticket items — such as letterman jackets — for the tax holiday so they can save a lot." "It's for adults and kids," he said. "It doesn't have to be back-to-school clothes for your kids, you can save money on things for yourself."

The store is open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday and closed on Sundays.

With personal computers, tablets and related computer accessories on the list, Radio Shack at the Crystal River Mall is poised for a busy weekend.

"People can save a lot of money," store manager Jacob Leave said. "We have iPads and the Nexus tablets, e-readers and all the accessories."

He said no one had inquired about the tax holiday yet, but he was sure they will see some customers because of it.

Belk has posted reminder signs about the holiday. Mall manager Millie Bresnahan said there are plenty of opportunities in the mall for shoppers to take advantage of the sales tax break.

Man dead after SWAT standoff

PINELLAS PARK — A man is dead following a police standoff at a Pinellas Park house.

Police said the standoff began following a domestic disturbance Tuesday evening. The woman left the home, but three male relatives arrived a short time later to confront 43-year-old Paul Adjutor Doyon Jr. Police say Doyon pulled a gun and all four men began to fight. The gun fired at some point, prompting the call to police.

Witnesses reported that Doyon had retreated into the house with the gun. SWAT responded and made several attempts to contact Doyon. SWAT eventually sent a surveillance camera into the home and saw Doyon was not moving. After SWAT entered the home, paramedics confirmed he was dead.

Inmate goes for deputy's gun court

TAMPA — An inmate faces more charges after authorities said he tried to grab a deputy's gun while waiting for a hearing to start in a Hillsborough County courtroom.

Hillsborough County Sheriff's officials said 24-year-old Robert Lewis Bridges was clad in shackles, handcuffs and a waist chain as he waited for his case to be called on Tuesday morning. They said Bridges lunged forward and grabbed Sgt. Tracey Wallace's holstered gun.

Wallace kept Bridges from taking the gun and as the two struggled, two other deputies restrained the inmate and took him out of the courtroom. No one was injured.

EMS offers Citizens Academy

Nature Coast EMS has announced that its next Citizens Academy will begin Aug. 13. The Citizen's Academy is a hands-on opportunity for community members to see and learn what Nature Coast EMS paramedics and EMT's do every day.

Graduates learn skills they can use in actual emergencies because the academy is focused on hands-on training, showing and teaching the skills that an EMS crew may use. Participants will get to practice starting IVs, intubations (placing a breathing tube), defibrillations, reading heart rhythms, and doing a full "code" on a SimMan mannequin. In the final session participants will take care of a simulated patient in a mock patient-care scenario and have the opportunity to ride along with paramedics and EMTs and go on actual emergencies.

The Nature Coast EMS Citizens Academy is free and meets from 6 to 9 p.m. every Tuesday for eight weeks. For more information call 352-249-4700 or at www.naturecoastems.org. Click on "Community."

License, safety
 checks announced

In an effort to reduce violations of Florida's motor vehicle laws, sheriff's deputies will be conducting a comprehensive roadside driver's license and safety equipment checkpoint near 1785 S. Suncoast Blvd. (U.S. 19) in Homosassa. This checkpoint will begin Friday, Aug. 16, at about 8 p.m. and will continue until Aug. 17 until about 2 a.m. Vehicles will be selected at random.

Conducting checkpoints not only helps ensure motorists' are compliant with Florida's vehicular equipment and driver's license laws, but also contributes favorably to the agency's overall highway safety objective.

Voters group

Woman bilked out of $105,660 in scam

An 86-year-old north Florida woman lost $105,660 in a lottery scam.

The Marion County Sheriff's Office has received multiple reports this year from people — most of them senior citizens — who've fallen victim to similar scams.

The Ocala Star-Banner reported the woman was told a year ago that she won $1.8 million in the lottery. She told deputies that a man she identified as Kevin Thomas told her she needed to send him money to cover taxes on the prize before she could collect her winnings.

The sheriff's office learned about the situation when someone from the woman's bank contacted a Sumter County Sheriff's deputy about the case.

According to deputies, the woman sent wire transfers to Canada beginning in mid-June 2012, but she never collected her earnings. Instead she kept getting calls for more money from Thomas.

Deputies are looking for a man they said robbed a convenience store clerk at knife-point.

The Citrus County Sheriff's Office said at 11:51 p.m. on Monday, the suspect entered the Circle K convenience store at 1224 N. U.S. 41 in Inverness, threatened the clerk with a knife and demanded he open the cash register.

The suspect reportedly took an undisclosed sum of money and then fled the store on foot.

He's described as a white male, 5-foot-8 to 6-foot-2 in height, with a medium build, shaved head and a goatee. He was also wearing glasses.

At the time of the incident he was dressed in a long-sleeved grey shirt and tan or khaki shorts, according to the CCSO. The store clerk was not injured.

The sheriff's office is asking the public to review the surveillance photos of the man and to call Crime Stoppers of Citrus County immediately if having any information. Callers can remain anonymous and be eligible for a cash reward.

LECANTO — School supplies were requested, and the community responded.

Residents were invited to stuff the bus last weekend during the Citrus County School District's annual "Stuff the Bus" campaign. This campaign affords local residents the opportunity to make a difference in a needy child's life by donating new school supplies.

Five yellow district school buses were parked Saturday at Publix stores in Inverness, Citrus Hills, Homosassa and Crystal River and at Walmart in Homosassa, where numerous shoppers provided contributions.

Unloading the supplies at the district office in Inverness on Wednesday revealed that good Samaritans heard the plea and donated hundreds of packages of school supplies for students who will benefit from the contributions.

"This is always an exciting time of year going back to school," said Superintendent of Schools Sandra "Sam" Himmel.

School supplies needed

- Pencils, pens, spiral notebooks, rulers, book bags, loose-leaf three-hole paper, lunch boxes, crayons, markers, three-ring binders (1-inch and 2-inch), glue sticks and small assignment notebooks.

"When they do our 'Stuff the Bus' program, it's amazing the amount of items that we receive. We have an amazing and giving community."

Supplies will be sorted and divided based on school enrollment and requests before school begins on Aug. 7. Guidance counselors will then disperse items based on the specific needs of disadvantaged students.

"It means a lot to these kids who don't have anything and their parents can't afford school supplies," she said. "It is one less thing that they have to worry about the first day of school when they know that they are going to get things they need."

"It makes our hearts so happy to know that these children are going to have their books and pencils and just fit in with everyone else," added Bernadette Salmaggi, educational services district secretary. "They are so worried that they don't have books or binders. We make it happen for them."

While the "Stuff the Bus" campaign has ended, Sheffield said donations are needed throughout the school year. He praised seniors for their over-the-top response.

"We are getting a lot of donations from people who don't even have children anymore," Sheffield said. "Our retirement population has stepped up and donated quite a bit. They know what it was like when their kids were in school. They are stepping up to make donations to those in need and are making a difference."

Donations can be made at the district office, 1007 W. Main St., Inverness.

Man being held in forgery case

Allegedly swindled elderly man

A.B. SIDIBE

A Hernando man is being held on claims he repaid an elderly man's kindness by using the man's checkbook as his own.

Shawn Kile Mattox, 26, of N. Megan Point, is charged with uttering forged checks, exploitation of the elderly and violation of probation for a felony case in Volusia County.

Mattox, who also is currently in jail on other charges, is being denied bond.

According to the Citrus County Sheriff's Office, Mattox was homeless and sleeping in his car when the apparent victim allowed him to move in with him.

Soon after moving in, Mattox reportedly proceeded to use the man's checkbook, writing checks to himself in amounts ranging from $50 to a $1,000.

When investigators contacted Mattox, he admitted in a sworn, taped testimony that he indeed cashed the checks. Bond was set at $19,000.

Four badly injured in two-car crash

A. B. SIDIBE
Staff writer

Four people were badly hurt last Friday night in a two-car crash on Independence Highway in Inverness, according to a preliminary report from the Florida Highway Patrol.

And, because of the severity of the crash, officials performed a blood draw on one of the drivers for further investigation.

Jennifer Louise Wilber, 28, of Lecanto, was traveling north on Independence and the driver of the second car, a 16-year-old from Bushnell, was traveling south on the same roadway. The 16-year-old had two 17-year-old passengers from Inverness.

According to the FHP, for an unexplained reason Wilber veered into the path of the second vehicle, struck the front of the vehicle and pushed it back some 15 feet from the point of impact. Wilber, who was driving a Ford F-150 pickup, was reportedly going 45 mph, the speed limit. The teens were in a Jeep Wrangler.

Wilber was not wearing her seat belt, but all the teens were belted. No one was ejected from the vehicles.

Wilber suffered incapacitating injuries and was transported to Ocala Regional hospital.

The teen driver also suffered incapacitating injuries and was transported to Shands Hospital. The injuries of the passengers also were characterized as incapacitating and they were transported for hospitalization in Ocala.

The results of Wilber's blood draw are pending and investigation of the case continues, according to FHP.

Today's HOROSCOPES

Birthdays — A great emphasis will be placed on your leadership qualities in the year ahead. Whereas in the past you didn't mind taking orders, you'll now want to be the person who issues all the directives. Make sure you're ready for the job. Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Financial conditions could be rather testy, so it behooves you to manage your resources as wisely as you can. Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If you fail to establish some realistic objectives for yourself, you could burn out striving for an unattainable goal. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't do anything that could cause you problems today. You're in a cycle where you need to pay strict attention to your inner judgment. If you stray, you'll regret it. Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — A domineering companion might attempt to involve you in something that you want no part of. Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — To underestimate your competition would be a grievous error. You'll have to bring your "A" game and go at it with everything you've got. Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Review your tasks and/or assignments first thing, especially those that are distasteful to you. If your heart isn't in your work, you could make things worse. Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Hard feelings will result if you expect too much from a joint endeavor. Of course, the same might be true if your partner expects too much from you as well. Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Before you start finding fault with your mate, keep in mind not to blow things out of proportion. Aries (March 21-April 19) — Because you have acute critical faculties, it is sometimes easy for you to spot flaws in others. However, should you see a disturbance in someone today, you'd be wise to keep it to yourself. Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Your extravagant urges could demand your attention, making it possible for you to do something financially foolish. Gemini (May 21-June 20) — The consequences of your behavior could deleteriously affect your colleagues. Make doubly certain that your motives are constructive and noble. Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Under most conditions, you're not prone to holding grudges, yet today some old complaints might rear their heads. Try to forgive and forget.

Rihanna wins case against UK retailer

LONDON — Pop singer Rihanna has won a court case in Britain against retailer Topshop, which was selling T-shirts bearing her image without permission. High Court Justice Colin Birss ruled in favor of the singer on Wednesday, saying buyers were likely deceived by believing Rihanna had authorized its sale. "I am quite satisfied that many fans of Rihanna regard her endorsement as important," the judge said in his ruling. "She is their style icon. Many will buy a product because they think she has approved of it. Others will wish to buy it because of the value of the perceived authorization itself. In both cases they will have been deceived."

Birss also said the sales caused a loss of control over Rihanna's reputation in the fashion realm, where the singer has been trying to carve out a name as a designer. She has a clothing line in her name at a rival store. The shirts were first sold as the "Rihanna Tank." After her complaints, they were sold as being the "Headscarf Girl Tank" and the "Icon Tank."

Topshop's owner, Arcadia Group Brands Ltd., had argued that Rihanna was seeking legal recognition for a flawed assumption that only a celebrity could market a product bearing his or her image. The judge did not make an assessment of damages in his ruling.

Greene archive sells for $1.8M

NEW YORK — Tens of thousands of black-and-white and color negatives by celebrity photographer Milton Greene have sold at auction for $1.8 million.

The archive includes 3,700 negatives and slides of Marilyn Monroe. All the material was sold with copyright.

Profiles in History auction house said the highlights included a collection of color transparencies of the Hollywood siren with Laurence Olivier from the movie "The Prince and the Showgirl." It sold for $42,000.

A group of transparencies of Monroe from the movie "Bus Stop" fetched $39,000.

The buyers were not identified. The seller is an unidentified American photography collector. —From wire reports

"My burger gets better with every bite and I just don't want it to end."

HOME OF THE Little Big Burger

ICONIC TASTE OF OLD-FASHIONED GOODNESS

Paige's Root beer was established Feb. 2012 by Kevin & Teresa Paige. Paige's started with a simple premise: Make a Great Hamburger! The fresh marinated patties are all cooked the same way, without exception.

Add an order of fries, remember when McDonalds first opened and had really good tasty fries? That's what we have, or onion rings and a cold frosted mug of Paige's homemade root beer. The signature root beer is made in kegs on the premises from an old family recipe that "was a big Christmas treat growing up." Paige's also features milkshakes. Thick & creamy hand dipped ice cream blended with half & half. Flavors include banana, orange, Tootsie Roll, chocolate and vanilla. Things are going great.

Marinated Grade A beef smashed flat and fried hard on a butter toasted bun. The texture of the crispy edges of the beef and the toasted bun make your mouth anticipate the burst of incredible flavor when you bite into a little big burger.

"When you have something that taste this good, why would you mess with it?"

To The Owners & Staff of Chef Anthony's Pizza Café:

I think it is important to let people know when they are doing something right; you are definitely doing it right.

My family has operated a pizzeria in Queens for the past 32 years so I think I know something about pizza.

My parents now live in Citrus Hills and I visit them a few times a year. We have patronized many restaurants in Citrus County and have found them wanting. My parents called me several weeks ago to tell me they had found a good pizzeria in Florida. Needless to say I thought "Yeah right." Over the years we have tried every pizza place in Citrus County and they were all bad (Frozen dough balls, canned sauce, poor service & bad décor)

When we pulled into the parking lot I thought, "Here we go again". However, being a former Marine I did like the Marine flag proudly displayed out front. I walked in the door I thought wow, what a shock. The outside is absolutely deceiving when compared to the open clean interior dining area. The color scheme & wallpaper were inviting the overhead lattes work, paintings and lighting created an ambiance nicer than expected.

A friendly server that knew my parents by name greeted us with a smile, followed by the owners that made us feel very welcome.

We had Garlic Knots that were outstanding & a Bleu cheese delight salad with a nice glass of wine.

The pizza was true New York style with a flavored crust and just the right amount of olive oil needed to blend the flavors of the pizza toppings. Everything was so good I made my parents take me back the next night.

The waitress recommended the Chef Anthony's special Calzone. I can say that it was truly the best Calzone I ever had.

Keep up the Good Work

Marian 'Betty' Lattin, 88

INVERNESS

Marian Elizabeth (Betty) Lattin, age 88, of Inverness, FL died Tuesday, July 30, 2013 in Inverness. Mrs. Lattin was born on May 20, 1925 in Noxen Township, PA. She was an active member of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church where she was a member of the Daughters of the King. Her devotion to her Church was an important part of her life. Mrs. Lattin moved to Inverness in 1957 with her husband, Edwin, and their two children, Deborah and Edwin, Jr. She first worked at the local credit union located in Inverness. In 1966 she was hired by the City of Inverness as Deputy Clerk. Mrs. Lattin was then promoted to City Clerk in 1974 and eventually retired from the City in 1981. She did not remain retired for long, however, as she took over bookkeeping duties for her son's company, Educational Tours, in 1985. There she continued to work for the next twenty years. Mrs. Lattin was very active and enjoyed a number of hobbies and interests. These included travel, reading, music, dining out with friends and most of all spending time with her family.

She is survived by: brother, Glenn, (A.J.); daughter, Deborah (Pete); son, Edwin Jr. (Debbie) and two grandsons, Brad and Brian (Roselle). Mrs. Lattin is preceded in death by her husband, Edwin, Sr., and Grandson, Michael.

The family will receive friends from 5:30 - 7:00 pm on Friday, August 2, 2013 at the Inverness Chapel of Hooper Funeral Homes. A Memorial Service for Mrs.

Lattin will be held 11:00 am, Saturday, August 3, 2013 at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church in Inverness. The family requests expressions of sympathy take the form of memorial donations to her beloved St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, 114 N. Osceola Avenue, Inverness, FL 34450 or to Hospice of Citrus County, PO Box 641270, Beverly Hills, FL 34464.

Death

ELSEWHERE

Berthold Beitz, 99

GERMAN INDUSTRIALIST

BERLIN — Berthold Beitz, who was honored for saving hundreds of Jews in occupied Poland during World War II and became one of postwar West Germany's leading industrialists, has died at 99.

Steelmaker Thyssen-Krupp AG, where he was the honorary chairman of the supervisory board, announced Beitz's death on Wednesday. It said in a statement that he died Tuesday and gave no further details.

Beitz and his wife, Else, were honored by Germany's main Jewish group in 2000 for saving hundreds of Jewish workers at an oil field he managed in occupied Poland from deportation to Nazi death camps.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel called Beitz one of the country's most distinguished and successful businessmen and stressed his "brave and exemplary support for Jewish workers during World War II."

Beitz was born on Sept. 26, 1913, in Zemmin in eastern Germany. He studied to become a banker and took a position at an oil field in occupied Poland in 1939.

He saved many of the Jewish workers there from the Nazis' death camps, sometimes by even hiding them together with his wife at his home. The couple had three daughters.

The Organic Transit's ELF bike is pictured July 24 in a parking lot in Reston, Va. It's the closest thing yet to Fred Flintstone's footmobile — only with solar panels and a futuristic shape. It's an "Organic Transit Vehicle," a car-bicycle blend also known as an ELF bike, and 65-year-old family therapist Mark Stewart is taking it on a 1,200-mile journey along the East Coast Greenway, a bike and pedestrian trail that runs from Florida to Canada.

Associated Press

Not a car or bike, but a blend

'ELF bike' traveling from Canada to Key West

Associated Press

RESTON, Va. — Mark Stewart turns quite a few heads as he zips through the streets on his neon green ELF bike. With each pedal, his feet take turns sticking out from the bottom while a gentle motor hums in the background.

What he's driving looks like a cross between a bicycle and a car, the closest thing yet to Fred Flintstone's footmobile, only with solar panels and a futuristic shape.

It's a "green" option for today's commuters.

Stewart, a 65-year-old family therapist and school psychologist from Cambridge, Mass., took the summer off in order to drive his new ELF bike more than 1,200 miles on trails and roads using the East Coast Greenway, a bike and pedestrian trail that runs from Canada to Key West.

He began his journey by flying down to Durham, N.C., on July 15, and estimates that the entire trip will take about a month. He covered the first leg, from Durham, N.C. to Reston, Va., over roughly five days, 60 miles at a time.

Needless to say, he's getting lots of questions along the way.

"It reminds me of when I saw a Smart car the first time," said Joanne Bury as she emerged from her Reston condominium building to take a look at the vehicle. "This is incredible. What is it?"

The ELF, or "Organic Transit Vehicle," can go for 1,800 miles on the energy equivalent of a gallon of gasoline. It does not require the insurance, repair and car maintenance costs of the average vehicle. Besides the cost of the occasional new tire, the ELF runs completely off what it costs to charge its battery.

Stewart bought the ELF from Durham-based Organic Transit, which sells them for a base price of $5,000. He said he wanted to avoid the almost $1,000 delivery charge, so he decided to fly down to pick up the bike in person and learn how to operate it before taking the long trip back home.

"I spent three days in the shop hanging with the guys there and learning the vehicle," Stewart said. "This is just an unsupported solo trip up here in a vehicle that nobody else really knows."

Stewart's ELF is only about the 40th to come off the production line. While few bike shop workers have seen the contraption, the materials, such as the tires and pedals, are items on your average bicycle.

Organic Transit CEO Rob Cotter took technology from aircrafts, boats and bicycles and incorporated them into a "green" 130-pound vehicle.

He was consulting on bike-sharing technologies being considered for New York City's proposed program when he saw a market for his vehicle.

"A combination of environmental catastrophes, high fuel costs, climate change and a migration of people moving to the cities all combined for a trend of people looking for an automotive alternative. But not everyone can fit a bicycle into their daily life," Cotter said.

Scott demands apology from Jackson

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Gov. Rick Scott on Wednesday demanded an apology from longtime civil rights activist Jesse Jackson for comparing the state's struggle with the Trayvon Martin case to the civil rights clashes with police during the 1960s in Selma, Ala.

Jackson spent the night with protesters upset that George Zimmerman was found not guilty of second-degree murder in the shooting death of Martin. They've refused to leave the Capitol until Scott calls a special session to have legislators overhaul the state's self-defense laws.

Jackson called Florida the "Selma of our time" and even compared Scott to former Alabama Gov. George Wallace. While he was governor, Wallace famously stood in the door at the University of Alabama to try to block the entry of two black students.

Scott so far has refused the request and the protest has dragged on for more than two weeks. The protesters have gotten national media attention and won support from celebrities such as entertainer Harry Belafonte and others who have urged people to boycott Florida.

Scott in a release blasted Jackson's comments as "reckless" and "divisive" and said that he should apologize to residents.

Little restraint in military giveaways

Associated Press

MORVEN, Ga. — Small-town police departments across the country have been gobbling up tons of equipment discarded by a downsizing military — bicycles, bed sheets, bowling pins, French horns, dog collars, even a colonoscopy machine — regardless of whether the items are needed or will ever be used.

In the tiny farming community of Morven, Ga., the police chief has grabbed three boats, scuba gear, rescue rafts and a couple of dozen life preservers. The town's deepest body of water: an ankle-deep creek.

An Associated Press investigation of the Defense Department program, originally aimed at helping local law enforcement fight terrorism and drug trafficking, found that a disproportionate share of the $4.2 billion worth of property distributed since 1990 has been obtained by police departments and sheriff's offices in rural areas with few officers and little crime.

The national giveaway program operates with scant oversight, and the surplus military gear often sits in storage, the AP found.

Using a series of public records requests, the AP obtained thousands of pages of emails and other documents related to the program locally and nationally. The documents, along with interviews with participants and regulators, reveal that staffing shortages and budget constraints have made it difficult for federal and state program officials to keep track of all of the property and to prevent police forces from obtaining excessive amounts of used military equipment and other Defense Department-transferred property.

Program officials often have to trust recipients to follow the rules and take only what they can utilize; requests for equipment are reviewed, but the process hasn't stopped many overly aggressive departments from grabbing property that could be better used by other commu-

Police Chief Lynwood Yates stands next to a government surplus boat in Morven, Ga. For the 835-resident farming community, he has acquired three boats, scuba gear, rescue rafts and a couple of dozen life preservers. The town's deepest body of water: an ankle-deep creek. He said he plans to use the boats and scuba gear to form a dive team because the county doesn't have its own.

nities with a greater need.

For many, the opportunity to amass a vast array of gear with few strings attached has proven to be too tempting to pass up, leading to a belly-up-to-the-open-bar mentality.

Morven Police Chief Lynwood Yates, for example, has acquired a decontamination machine originally worth $200,000 for his community of about 700 residents, and two additional full-time officers. The high-tech gadget is missing most of its parts and would need $100,000 worth of repairs.

He also received a shipment of bayonets, which have never made it out of storage in his 1.7-square-mile city.

"That was one of those things in the old days you got it because you thought it was cool," Yates said of his bayonets. "Then, after you get it, you're like, 'What the hell am I going to do with this?'"

Morven isn't the only example of a giveaway program gone wild: Before his firing earlier this year for an unrelated matter, the police chief in Rising Star, Texas — the only full-time officer in the town of 835 residents — acquired more than $3.2 million worth of property within 14 months. According to an inventory obtained by the AP, the hundreds of items included nine televisions, 11 computers, three deep-fat fryers, two meat slicers, 22 large space heaters valued at $55,000 when new, a pool table, 25 sleeping bags and playground equipment.

Federal officials suspended Rising Star from the program in March after investigators discovered that many items — including 12 pairs of binoculars — were missing from police department facilities.

"He was getting any kind of equipment he wanted," Rising Star city attorney Pat Chesser said. "I don't understand why any one city would get that amount."

Nearly 13,000 agencies in all 50 states and four U.S. territories participate in what's commonly called the 1033 Program, after a section of the National Defense Authorization Act that permits the transfer to law enforcement agencies of military property no longer needed. The program has grown drastically in recent years, due in large part to the scaling down of the military from two wars, tight local-government operating budgets and eligibility expansion in 1996 to include all state and local law enforcement work. In fiscal year 2012, a record $546 million worth of property was transferred.

Property is accepted on an as-is, where-is and first-come, first-serve basis. The receiving law enforcement entity bears all transportation and maintenance costs. None of the gifted property can be sold or leased without permission, or stockpiled. Personal use is barred.

Nemzoff's New York City attorney, said Nemzoff is due $775,000 for bringing four bidders to the table in the Citrus Memorial hospital transaction.

However, Badway said in an interview Wednesday that a lawsuit likely would seek much more than the contract required.

"Our claim is going to be in the millions," he said.

Grant said Wednesday the claims are without merit.

"We're not going to be intimidated," he said. "That's why we have a court system."

The hospital board hired Nemzoff, of New Hope, Pa., in mid-April to broker the sale, lease or merger of Citrus Memorial hospital. Nemzoff, whose expertise is joining struggling nonprofit hospitals with large for-profit health care companies, angered trustees with brash emails that accused them and Grant of meddling in his role.

Nemzoff took an offer to the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation, which leases the hospital from the CCHB, to end a three year legal dispute. He then made that offer public to the county commission against the wishes of trustees Krista Joseph and Chairwoman Debbie Ressler.

Both trustees were unsuccessful in having Nemzoff fired during the same July 10 meeting when bidders made their presentations.

A week later, the board then voted 3-1, with new trustee Dr. Mark Fallows joining the majority, to fire Nemzoff on the grounds of him refusing to comply with a public records request. Nemzoff, who did not attend the meeting, immediately vowed to sue for breach of contract.

Rubin's letter targets Grant, Ressler, Joseph and Fallows. Trustee Bob Priselac, who voted to keep Nemzoff on board, is not named.

The letter states the CCHB improperly dismissed Nemzoff without giving him due process. It also said the public records issue, which Badway called a "ruse," was contrived by Grant as an excuse to fire Nemzoff.

A citizen requested the CCHB provide Nemzoff's emails to and from hospital bidders. Nemzoff at first asked for time to comply, and then responded with his attorney's belief that he was not required to following the Sunshine Law because he is an independent contractor of the CCHB.

Nevertheless, Nemzoff offered to research his email for the records at a fee — $12,000. He did not meet Grant's demand to produce the emails within five days.

Rubin's letter said even if Nemzoff is required to abide by the Sunshine

Law, Grant did not give him reasonable time to gather the records.

Shepard's response categorically denies each of Rubin's allegations.

"While I appreciate the detail provided, it is clear that you have been misinformed regarding the facts and law regarding your clients' prior relationship with CCHB," the response states.

Badway did not say when he expects to file the Nemzoff lawsuit.

plans from 11 insurers.

The smallest increase was an HMO plan from Humana that bumped up 7 percent from $293 to $315. The largest was 59 percent from a Sunshine State Health plan that jumped from $293 to $464.

Some of the state's largest health insurers, including Florida Blue, Cigna, Humana and Aetna, will be among 11 plans competing through the state's new health exchange in the individual market in all 67 counties. Many counties will be able to choose from six or seven carriers. But Bay, Franklin, Glades, Jefferson and Madison were among the 20 counties where consumers will only have one option.

Lack of competition from insurers under the health care law has raised concerns in some states. President Barack Obama told Democrats administration is working to fix the problem.

Residents in Miami-Dade and Broward counties will be able to choose from nine plans. Aside from where a person lives, insurers are limited in their ability to charge consumers different prices for health care.

So how will the new federal health law change insurance benefits and prices for average consumers?

As of Jan. 1, insurers can no longer turn away the more than 7.8 million non-elderly Floridians with pre-existing medical conditions, according to federal health officials. Insurers will be limited in what they can charge to older policy holders and out-of-pocket expenses will have an annual cap. Insurers are also required to offer beefed up benefits under the plans, so while prices may increase, consumers will get an upgraded product. Some Florida insurers currently offer skimpy benefit plans at cheap rates for catastrophic coverage, but those types of plans will no longer be allowed under the federal health law.

Additionally, residents making less than $48,000 a year will receive a federal voucher to help offset premium costs. The less a person makes, the more the government will pay.

The new marketplaces, which are open for enrollment Oct. 1, will have the feel of an online travel site where individuals, families and small businesses can compare different private insurance plans. Consumers will be able to choose from bronze, silver, gold, platinum and catastrophic plans that offer a range of premiums, deductibles and co-pays depending on variables such as how many doctors you want included in your network. Insurers are offering 308 plans through the exchange in Florida, according to state insurance officials.

Individuals will have to have health insurance from their employer or purchase it, and will pay a roughly $100 penalty next year if they don't. Anyone making below the poverty line won't be eligible to buy insurance through the online marketplace. Federal health officials anticipate roughly 1 million Floridians will fall into a gap where they can't get health insurance because the state rejected Medicaid expansion.

Federal health officials said the health care law will provide better options, better value, better health and a stronger Medicare program for Floridians. In many states, they said rates have turned out to be lower than previous estimates.

Educating Americans about the Affordable Care Act will be paramount for the federal government and insurers as 78 percent of uninsured adults don't know about opportunities that will be available to them in 2014 under the new health laws, according to Enroll America, a nonprofit group sponsoring a national marketing campaign.

The insurance commission warned that enticing young healthy adults to buy insurance was also a significant concern. Many experts predict rates will rise for these so-called "young invincibles" and if too many young adults avoid the new insurance marketplace, it could throw off the entire equilibrium of the Affordable Care Act.

"I'm deeply concerned on many levels as to how this thing will roll out," McCarty said.

Dow, S&P notch best months since January

Associated Press

NEW YORK — After a day of stalled rallies, the stock market closed out July with its best monthly gain since January.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index ended the month 4.95 percent higher. That's the biggest increase since January, when it rose 5.04 percent. The Dow Jones industrial average also had its best month since January.

Markets surged in July after Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke assured investors that the central bank wouldn't pull back on its stimulus program until the economy was strong enough. The central bank is buying $85 billion of bonds a month to keep down interest rates to encourage borrowing and hiring.

On Wednesday, the Fed reaffirmed its commitment to support the economy in a statement released after the end of a two-day meeting. The central bank dropped hints that it might need to maintain its stimulus, and slightly downgraded its assessment of U.S. economic growth from "moderate" to "modest."

That initially gave stocks a boost, pushing the S&P 500 within two points of breaching the 1,700 level for the first time in afternoon trading. But the rally faded in the final hour, leaving the S&P flat at the end of the day.

Given the market's big gains in July, stocks may struggle to climb further in the coming months, said Phil Orlando, chief equity market strategist at Federated Investors.

"I would not be the least bit surprised to see some modest consolidation," he said.

Stocks started higher Wednesday after the government said that the economy grew at a faster pace in the second quarter than economists had forecast.

The gain was mostly gone by the time the Fed statement came out at 2 p.m. The market staged another rally for about an hour after the Fed's announcement, then ended little changed.

The U.S. grew at an annual rate of 1.7 percent from April through June as businesses spent more and the federal government cut less spending, the Commerce Department said Wednesday. Economists had expected growth of 1 percent, according to the data provider FactSet.

There was also an encouraging report on hiring ahead of the government's monthly jobs survey due out Friday.

U.S. businesses created a healthy 200,000 jobs this month, payroll company ADP said, as companies hired at the fastest pace since December. ADP also raised its estimate of the number of jobs the private sector created in June.

62M test strips recalled

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration is warning patients with diabetes about a recall of up to 62 million glucose test strips used to measure blood sugar levels that can show incorrect, abnormally high blood sugar readings.

Nova Diabetes Care announced the recall Friday. An incorrect reading could potentially lead to dangerous medication errors for patients.

The strips covered by the recall are marketed under the brand names Nova Max Blood Glucose Test Strips and Nova Max Plus Glucose Meter Kits. The recall affects certain lots of the strips distributed in the U.S., Canada, Chile, Peru, Argentina, the Dominican Republic, Jamaica and a half-dozen other countries. Nova Diabetes Care sells them through retail stores and websites.

The FDA said Wednesday that the strips are contaminated with a chemical used in the manufacturing process, which interferes with readings. FDA regulators are working with the company to investigate the problem and make sure it is corrected.

Patients can visit a company website to check if their glucose test strips are affected by the recall: www.novacares.com/news/nova-max-recall.php. They can also call a company hotline at 1-800-681-7390. Customers can return the strips and receive replacements at no charge.

Doctors and patients should pay attention for signs and symptoms of high or low blood sugar levels, including excessive thirst, nausea, weakness, headaches and trembling.

MasterCard Q2 earnings climb as revenue grows

Associated Press

NEW YORK — MasterCard, the payments processing company, reported a 19 percent increase in its second-quarter profit as more people worldwide used its debit and credit cards to make payments.

The results topped Wall Street expectations, and its shares finished the day modestly higher.

The company's business is growing most strongly in emerging markets. The dollar value of transactions made using debit and credit cards bearing the MasterCard logo rose 17 percent in Latin America and 21 percent in the combined Middle East, Africa and Asia Pacific region. The value of transactions in the U.S. increased 6.5 percent.

The company, based in Purchase, N.Y., earned $848 million, or $6.96 a share, in the second quarter, which ended June 30. That's up from $700 million, or $5.56 a share, a year ago.

Revenue rose 15 percent to $2.1 billion from $1.8 billion. Analysts surveyed by FactSet expected earnings of $6.31 a share on revenue of $2 billion.

MasterCard also gave an update of its share buyback program for the current quarter. Through July 25 the company repurchased 296,000 of its own shares, at a cost of $174 million, leaving $1.1 billion under the current program. In the second quarter, the company bought 1.1 million of its own stock at a cost of $581 million. MasterCard shares rose $9.19, or 1.5 percent, to $610.61 in trading Wednesday after rising as high as $626.23 earlier in the session. That was its all-time high, according to FactSet.

The early gain was tempered by a federal judge's ruling disclosed at midday that struck down a rule setting a cap on the fees that banks can charge merchants for handling debit card purchases.

But the rebound could be bad news for banks and credit card processing companies, such as Visa and MasterCard, which draw a significant amount of revenue from the fees.

Dell board deals blow to buyout bid

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Dell's board rejected CEO Michael Dell's attempt to change the voting rules for his bid to buy the slumping personal computer maker, a decision that is likely to doom the deal.

But the endangered buyout could still get a reprieve if Michael Dell and his allies accept a counterproposal that would extend the voting period for a third time and allow a bigger pool of shareholders to cast ballots.

The rebuff announced Wednesday marks the latest blow that Michael Dell and his main backer, Silver Lake Partners, have absorbed since reaching an agreement with Dell Inc.'s board nearly six months ago to buy the Round Rock, Texas, company for $24.4 billion, or $13.65 per share.

A vote on Michael Dell's offer is scheduled to be held Friday. He had proposed a change designed to make it easier for that bid to win shareholder approval: In exchange for an extra $150 million, Michael Dell wanted to exclude shareholders who didn't vote from being counted as in the opposition column.

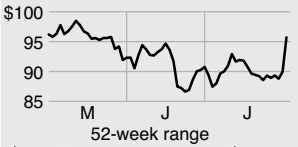

Dell's board turned down that demand, but said it's willing to postpone Friday's vote and give shareholders several more weeks to consider the buyout proposal if Michael Dell and Silver Lake don't withdraw the slightly higher offer of $24.6 billion, or $13.75 per share, dangled before the company last week.

QUALITY CHALLENGE

Group resolves to protect county's water resources

Some important community issues suffer from being so wrapped in regulatory doublespeak and arcane science that only a handful of citizens actively focus on them.

Water quality is one of them. Fortunately, several local citizen groups work hard to inform the rest of us about critical water quality issues and the regulatory initiatives that affect them.

There's a new coalition of water-interest groups, called Save Our Springs — NOW. The coalition includes the Save the Homosassa River Alliance, the Chassahowitzka River Restoration Committee, the Rainbow River Conservation, Inc., the Withlacoochee Area Residents, and the Save the Manatee Club.

This coalition is mounting a legal challenge to Southwest Florida Water Management District (SWFWMD). Here's the issue, according to a coalition member: "(T)he Homosassa, Chassahowitzka, Crystal and Withlacoochee rivers are designated as Outstanding Florida Waters (OFW) by law and as such have special restrictions on any activities that lower water quality or otherwise degrade the body of water. But SWFWMD set the OFW law aside in the Minimum Flows and Levels Program in order to maximize the consumptive withdrawal target."

This is a new kind of water war, and we need to pay attention.

State-designated Outstanding Florida Waters are worthy of special protection according to the law. They are of exceptional recreational or ecological significance and provide environmental, social and economic benefits, the law states. Their water quality must be protected.

Well, it's too late for that already. In a 2010 watershed assessment report, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency declared all four of our OFWs to be impaired — which means that due to certain tracked pollutants, the waters do not meet standards that protect human health and aquatic life. The EPA requires that measures be developed, adopted and implemented to clean them up.

At the same time, though, SWFWMD is establishing "minimum flows and levels" — which are the limits at which further water withdrawals would be significantly harmful to the water resources or ecology of the area.

Here's the flash point: SWFWMD says that a certain additional amount of degradation of our river waters is acceptable; the citizen group says absolutely not; It's gone too far already. Save Our Springs — NOW contends that the OFW law should prevail, which will support the goal of recovery and restoration of the local rivers and springs.

What's next?

The Florida Department of Environmental Protection has set a hearing for Sept. 10 at the water district office in Brooksville to consider this legal challenge. The full-day session begins at 8:30 a.m. The citizen group gets two hours, the water district gets two hours, and after lunch, public presentations are accepted.

Can't make it to the full-day session? You still can be involved. The comment period will remain open for two weeks. Send comments to ChassHomosassaMFL@dep.state.fl.us.

This is important. Make your voice heard to support the protection and restoration of our most precious natural resource, our waters.

THE ISSUE:

Water management district plan ignores Outstanding Florida Waters law.

OUR OPINION:

Support the springs interest groups mounting a legal challenge.

Morally right and good economics

A little more than six months into his second term, President Obama returned to the theme of his presidency and perhaps his entire political career: carrying out the promise made in the preamble to the Constitution. The president wants to refocus our attention on the economy and helping middle-class families because that's the moral imperative of our founders: to promote the general welfare.

From the day he took office, Obama's goal has been economic restoration, the foundation of social stability. But certain segments of Congress don't understand that the equation "We the people" means policies that strengthen opportunity for the most people and support those most in need. "We the people" does not refer to an oligarchy of the increasingly super-rich amassing more and more of the country's wealth for themselves.

Despite some media whining, Obama's ideas are not new ideas. He is proposing well-thought-out programs to restore economic progress for the working and middle classes, based on fundamental principles.

"This country offered you a basic bargain," he said this week at Knox College. It offered "a sense that your hard work would be rewarded with fair wages and benefits, the chance to buy a home, to save for retirement and, above all, to hand down a better life for your kids."

Unfortunately, we've come to expect congressional Republicans to obstruct progress and undermine efforts "to provide for the general welfare." Thus it was not surprising that Republican leaders announced their intention to stonewall the president's plans to better the economy, and also to reverse all the public benefits from laws already enacted.

The Republican chairman of House Appropriations, Rep.

Harold Rogers, announced bills to shoot down Obama's major economic initiatives. They slash the budgets for various departments from 30 to 50 percent.

"These are tough bills," Rogers said. "His priorities are going nowhere."

Republicans have pledged to shut down the government come October, unless Obama agrees to completely defund Obamacare.

"This is as serious a challenge on fiscal matters as I've ever seen," Democratic House Whip Steny Hoyer said.

But what we are seeing that we haven't expected is support for what may be called privatized financial oligarchy at the local level.

For example, Obama wants to increase the minimum wage, which hasn't been touched for four years (making him the first president in decades in whose term there's been no increase). This disregard — even disdain — for the working poor reflects what Obama calls a "winner-take-all economy where a few do better and better, while everybody else just treads water."

The nation's single largest employer, Walmart has courted the Washington, D.C. city council for months, helped by a prestigious local lobbyist, David W. Wilmot, who receives a retainer of $10,000 a month. Walmart wants to build six stores in the District, which major retailers, preferring the wealthier suburbs, have shunned for years.

That would seem to be good news. Except Walmart underpays its employees. A study by the state of Ohio found that "15,484 Walmart workers and dependents received Medicaid benefits in June 2009, and 12,872 Walmart workers and dependents got food stamps." The state representative who commissioned the study, Youngstown Democrat Robert Hagan, extrapolated that Ohio taxpayers shelled out $67 million for Walmart employees.

It gets worse. Walmart publicly supported Obamacare, then this year kicked thousands of its employees off its health plans by demoting them to part-time employees. All employees hired after January 2012 who work less than 30 hours a week, will lose Walmart's health plan. For many, that means the state will pick up the tab.

Enter the D.C. Council, which saw a need to provide for its citizens who have no union representation. The council passed a "living wage" bill that will apply to large corporations without unions, like Walmart. Businesses with more than $1 billion in income yearly, and more than 75,000 square feet of retail space, must pay their employees $12.50 per hour.

Walmart threatened to cancel three of its planned stores not yet in development, and might pull the other three under construction, if the living wage bill passes. The council refused to be intimidated, and passed the bill 8 to 5.

But the bill is opposed by Mayor Vincent C. Gray. To override a veto — if Gray vetoes the bill — requires nine votes. Two of the council members who opposed the bill are running for mayor, and likely have no desire to alienate the big corporations and developers who bankroll campaigns. It's going to be a tough sell to convert one of the other three.

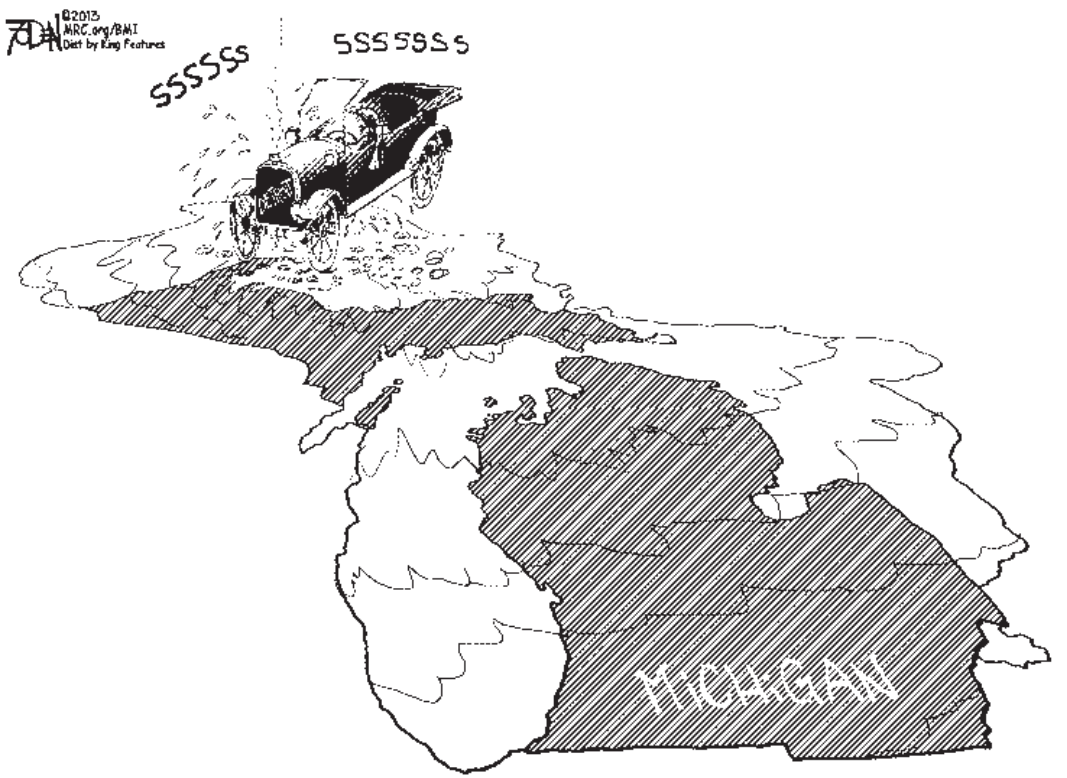

Obama said at Knox College: "This growing inequality isn't just morally wrong; it's bad economics. When middle-class families have less to spend, businesses have fewer customers. When wealth concentrates at the very top, it can inflate unstable bubbles that threaten the economy. When the rungs on the ladder of opportunity grow farther apart, it undermines the very essence of this country."

Unfortunately, it seems that for now Washington's mayor is not sure what side he might end up fighting for.

Loved cat tale

I can't express how much I enjoyed your "Tail of one Crazy Kitty." Mr. Chips sounds like one great feline, and the picture of him peering out from under his hiding place is a great shot.

My wife and I are both cat people. A few years ago we went to the shelter in Crystal River in hopes of finding a kitten to bring into our home. We were lucky to find a family, two kittens and a mommie cat in one of the cages. Needless to say we took both kittens (you can't take only one!), an adorable girl cat and a tabby boy cat. They quickly made themselves at home in our house.

A few weeks later my wife said she had been thinking about the mommie, now alone in her cage. "Do you think she's still there?"

So off we went and found mommie in her cage and she joined her kids at our place and now the whole family spends their days (and nights) doing all the things Mr. Chips does, keeping us entertained with their antics.

We were blessed in finding these three furry felines and enjoy them thoroughly, as you do with Mr. Chips.

Thanks again for your wonderful column.

Hot Corner: REBECCA BAYS

Not fooling anyone

Who does Commissioner Bays think she is fooling by voting "no" with Commissioner Adams on the tax increase? She very well knew that the vote would be three in favor and (is) just trying to look favorable for the people in her next election.

The wrong side

As far as I'm concerned, (Bays) is on the wrong side of the issues on the port authority and the mining by the cemetery.

It was her idea

Good articles, Chronicle. My hat's off to you, buddy. You're doing fantastic, honest journalism, especially on the fire tax. But if I'm not mistaken, the people are saying that Rebecca Bays voted against the fire tax. Well, if I'm not mistaken, the fire tax was her idea...

Editor's note: Commissioner Bays said she supported the fire fee if the fire tax was eliminated. With the tax still in place, she voted against the new fee.

Thanks

A huge thank you goes out to Commissioner Scott Adams and Commissioner Rebecca Bays for voting "no" on this ridiculous 30 percent increased budget in addition to voting against the fire tax. Both Adams and Bays will be re-elected by the citizens of Citrus County by a huge majority. I am so proud of both of you.

Senate approves nominee for ATF

WASHINGTON — The Senate has voted in dramatic fashion to approve one of President Barack Obama's nominees. It took one senator to switch her vote, another to fly back from North Dakota and an afternoon roll call that stretched into the evening.

Five hours after the vote started, the Senate voted Wednesday to end Republican delaying tactics against B. Todd Jones, Obama's pick to head the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

To win that crucial showdown, Democrats had to persuade Alaska Republican Sen. Lisa Murkowski to switch her vote. They also had to wait for Democratic North Dakota Sen. Heidi Heitkamp to fly back to Washington.

Senators then gave final approval to Jones' nomination on a 53 to 42 vote.

O.J. Simpson wins small victory

CARSON CITY, Nev. — O.J. Simpson won a small victory Wednesday in his bid for freedom as Nevada granted him parole on some of his 2008 convictions for kidnapping and armed robbery involving the holdup of two sports memorabilia dealers at a Las Vegas hotel room.

But the decision doesn't mean Simpson will be leaving prison anytime soon. The former NFL star was convicted on multiple charges and still faces at least four more years behind bars on sentences that were ordered to run consecutively.

The Nevada Board of Parole Commissioners released its decision Wednesday.

The parole becomes effective Oct. 2. Then, Simpson will begin serving the minimum term on four concurrent sentences imposed for using a weapon during the 2007 robbery. He will have another parole hearing on those sentences.

Man pleads not guilty to killings

CLEVELAND — A man pleaded not guilty Wednesday to kidnapping and killing three women whose bodies were found wrapped in trash bags earlier this month.

Michael Madison, 35, appeared via a video feed from jail for his arraignment, for which he was handcuffed and wearing orange jail scrubs. When the judge asked him how he was, Madison answered, "I've been better."

The judge continued his $6 million bond and said she would appoint two attorneys to represent him. A pretrial hearing was set for Tuesday morning.

Madison is facing six charges of aggravated murder, two for each victim under different killing theories. He's also charged with three counts of kidnapping, three counts of gross abuse of a corpse, one count of rape and one count of weapon possession by an ex-convict.

Bracing for changes to NSA powers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama's national security team argued Wednesday to keep its sweeping domestic surveillance powers intact, even as it acknowledged some limitations appear inevitable.

Facing unexpectedly harsh opposition from both parties over a once-secret program that sweeps up the phone records of every American, the Obama administration said it wanted to work with lawmakers who seemed intent on putting limits on that authority.

"We are open to re-evaluating this program in ways that can perhaps provide greater confidence and public trust that this is in fact a program that achieves both privacy protections and national security," Robert Litt, counsel to the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, told skeptical members of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The hearing came one week after a surprisingly close vote in the House that would have killed the government contract systems analyst Edward Snowden leaked classified documents exposing National Security Agency programs that store years of phone records on every American. That revelation prompted the most significant reconsideration yet of the vast surveillance powers Congress granted the president after 9/11.

The administration intended to keep the telephone program a secret forever and, for more than a decade, few in Congress showed any interest in reining in the surveillance. Snowden's leaks abruptly changed the calculus on Capitol Hill.

"We have a lot of good information out there that helps the American public understand these programs, but it all came out late," Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse, D-R.I., said in a rebuke of government secrecy. "It all came out in response to a leaker. There was no organized plan for how we rationally declassify this so that the American people can participate in the debate."

The telephone program is authorized under a provision of the USA Patriot Act, which Congress hurriedly passed after 9/11.

On Wednesday, the national security establishment sought to reassure Congress that its surveillance powers were rigorously monitored and narrowly crafted while simultaneously leaving open the possibility of some new limitations.

To that end, the administration declassified documents about the telephone program. But the documents revealed no legal analysis that underpinned the widespread surveillance. And the redacted documents show only in broad strokes how NSA officials use the data.

Raiders of 'Hitler's gas station' reunite

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — All these years later, some surviving veterans still think the raid on "Hitler's gas station" was a great plan. However, not all worked out as expected, and the result was a fierce World War II battle marked by bravery and sacrifice.

The 70th anniversary Ploesti Raid reunion this week at the National Museum of the U.S. Air Force commemorates an Aug. 1, 1943, assault by waves of B-24 bombers on oil refineries in Romania that provided much of the fuel for the Nazi war machine. Five Medals of Honor were among the many awards given for what U.S. military histories call the most decorated action of the war.

U.S. commanders "emphasized the importance of completing the mission; in their estimate, it would shorten the war in Europe by six months," Dale Hulsey, 91, of Fort Worth, Texas, recalled Wednesday, after reunion participants viewed a restored B-24 at the museum near Dayton.

"They tried to knock the thing out in one mission, but everything went wrong," said Bob Rans, a Chicago native who lives near Tampa at age 92, with vivid memories of being bathed in gasoline as a wall of flame roared toward him.

The raid inflicted heavy but not devastating damage, and nearly a third of the 177 planes and their 1,726 men failed to make it back to their North Africa bases more than 1,000 miles away.

The Allies had tried bombing the oil fields before from high levels; Operation Tidal Wave was to be a surprise assault by a flying armada coming in under radar and methodically knocking out assigned targets. But navigational problems disrupted plans, and defenders on the ground were ready for them.

Sweeping in just above cornstalks — "we were so close to the ground it was like driving at high speed in an automobile," Hulsey said — the bombers were met with a barrage of firepower: Hulsey, a radio operator, remembers a continuous line of bright flashes from gunfire on the ground. Rans said anti-aircraft guns mounted on rail cars provided mobile defense against the bombers.

An auxiliary fuel tank near Rans was hit, showering him with gasoline. Fire engulfing his plane, he parachuted out. He was captured, treated in a hospital for burns, then put in a prison camp. Hulsey said his plane knocked out its target and was headed home when shot down by fighter planes. The crew was found and protected by Yugoslav resistance fighters until a British rescue operation got them out nearly a year later.

Rans and Hulsey were among 11 raid veterans at the reunion, with nearly 100 family members and friends. Air Force history enthusiasts Mark Copeland of Lakeville, Minn., and Blaine Duxbury of Indianapolis helped organize it. Copeland said after a 60th anniversary reunion in Salt Lake City, there was interest in coming together again for what likely will be the last reunion. About 70 of the mission participants are still alive, he said.

Scott Stewart came from Lincoln, Neb., to pay tribute to the mission his late father, Carroll Stewart, wrote about in a 1962 book co-authored with James Dugan. Stewart said his father spent years chronicling the stories of veterans of the battle, including Germans and Romanians.

Rans said the reunion, which will include a public memorial service today, brought back memories, some tears and a sense of pride for the veterans about their place in military annals.

"When you stop to think about it, you were part of an action that nobody else could ever be in again, the most highly decorated action of the war," Rans said. "History is history."

MLB's trade deadline mostly quiet

Houston sends Norris to Orioles

Associated Press

In the playoff mix for a second straight year, the Baltimore Orioles made the biggest move on a quiet trade-deadline day, acquiring Bud Norris from Houston to keep pace with the Boston Red Sox.

Hoping to catch the NL West-leading Dodgers, the Arizona Diamondbacks filled a hole in their bullpen Wednesday by sending struggling 20-game winner Ian Kennedy to San Diego for lefty reliever Joe Thatcher.

Boston put the pressure on Baltimore by picking up 2007 NL Cy Young Award winner Jake Peavy from the Chicago White Sox less than 24 hours earlier in a three-team trade. The deal was finalized quickly in part because the Detroit Tigers were eager to protect themselves in case shortstop Jhonny Peralta is suspended for his involvement in the Biogenesis performance-enhancing drugs scandal.

"The frank reality is that I do not know what is going to happen with Jhonny, but with this move, we now feel well protected if there is a long suspension," Tigers general manager David Dombrowski said.

With all eyes on the Yankees because of Alex Rodriguez's likely suspension by Major League Baseball for his role in the wide-ranging drug case, New York never could work out a deal with the Phillies for corner infielder Michael Young, who is staying — for now — with Philadelphia.

San Francisco also held onto left-hander Javier Lopez and the Los Angeles Angels kept second baseman Howie Kendrick after sending Alberto Callaspo to Oakland late Monday.

Other than a few other minor swaps Wednesday, baseball's executives did much of their work in the weeks leading up to the 4 p.m. non-waiver trade cutoff.

Eagles' Cooper apologizes for racial slur

PHILADELPHIA — Saying he was "ashamed and disgusted" with himself, Eagles and former University of Florida wide receiver Riley Cooper apologized repeatedly for making a racial slur at a Kenny Chesney concert that was caught on video and led to him getting fined.

The video of Cooper using the N-word surfaced Wednesday on the Internet. Cooper issued a statement of apology then met with reporters outside the team's practice facility.

"This is the lowest of lows," Cooper said. "This is not the type of person I want to be portrayed as. This isn't the type of person I am. I'm extremely sorry."

Cooper said he was drinking when he directed the slur at an African-American security guard at the concert in June.

"That's no excuse for what I said. I don't use that term," he said. "I was raised better than that. I have a great mom and dad and they're disgusted with my actions."

Cooper said he was fined a significant amount of money by the Eagles.

"We are shocked and appalled by Riley Cooper's words," Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie said. "This sort of behavior or attitude from anyone has no role in a civil society. He has accepted responsibility for his words and his actions. He has been fined for this incident."

Buccaneers sign 3, waive 2 others in roster moves

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers have signed offensive linemen Roger Allen and Howard Barbieri, as well as linebacker Dom DeCicco.

To make room on the roster, cornerback Mason Robinson and tackle Jason Weaver were waived Wednesday.

Allen and Barbieri are guards. Allen appeared in four games with the Bucs last season, while Barbieri entered the NFL as an undrafted free agent in 2011 and spent the 2012 offseason with the Baltimore Ravens.

DeCicco appeared in 20 games over the past two seasons with the Chicago Bears.

ST. PETERSBURG — Wade Miley pitched two-hit ball into the seventh inning and Eric Chavez drove in three runs Wednesday night, leading the Arizona Diamondbacks to a 7-0 victory over the Tampa Bay Rays.

Paul Goldschmidt hit his 24th homer, scored three runs and reached base four times. Cody Ross had three straight hits and drove in two runs as Arizona broke a three-game losing streak.

Arizona outthit the Rays 14-3. Ben Zobrist got two hits for the Tampa Bay, which despite the loss finished its best month ever at 21-5.

Miley (8-8) won for the fourth time in five starts. He struck out eight in 6 1-3 innings and walked five.

Miley has made 11 straight starts of giving up three earned runs or fewer.

Jeremy Hellickson (10-4) gave up four runs and seven hits in 4 1-3 innings, the shortest Rays start since Alex Colome also went 4 1/3 innings on June 22.

Chavez homered for the second straight day, a two-run shot that gave the Diamondbacks a 4-0 lead in the second.

Hits by Martin Prado, Aaron Hill and Ross had produced two runs in the first.

Arizona added single runs in the seventh, eighth and ninth against three different relievers.

AP Source: MLB threatening A-Rod with lifetime ban

NEW YORK — Major League Baseball is threatening to kick Alex Rodriguez out of the game for life unless the New York Yankees star agrees not to fight a lengthy suspension for his role in baseball's latest drug scandal, according to a person familiar with the discussions.

The person spoke to The Associated Press on Wednesday on condition of anonymity because no statements were authorized as the investigation pushes to a conclusion.

Whether Commissioner Bud Selig would actually issue a lifetime ban was unclear, and baseball officials know a permanent ban could be shortened by arbitrator Fredric Horowitz, the person said.

Based on past cases, people involved believe Horowitz might cut a lifetime ban to about 200 games.

The Yankees expected Rodriguez to be accused of recruiting other athletes for the clinic, attempting to obstruct MLB's investigation, and not being truthful with MLB in the past.

Even if he is banned from baseball, there is precedent for a shortened penalty: When pitcher Steve Howe was given a lifetime ban in 1992 in his seventh suspension for drug or alcohol use, an arbitrator reduced the penalty to 119 days.

Tampa Bay starter Moore placed on 15-day DL

Tampa Bay Rays starting pitcher Matt Moore was placed on the 15-day disabled list Wednesday with a sore left (pitching) elbow.

Pitcher has sore left elbow

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Matt Moore's changeup has caused a lot of trouble for hitters this season.

Now it's even a problem for Moore, Tampa Bay's All-Star pitcher who was put on the 15-day disabled list Wednesday with a sore left elbow.

Moore will miss one or two starts. The Rays are calling the move precautionary.

Moore is 14-3 with a 3.41 ERA in 21 starts. The Rays made the move while leading the AL East, and called up infielder Ryan Roberts from Triple-A Durham.

"If this was the playoffs or some situation that called for me to be out there, I think without doubt that I could do it," Moore said. "But there's just no reason for us to push things right now."

Manager Joe Maddon said the injury "wasn't anything awful, certainly a little more sore than he's accustomed to."

"I think the second inning is when I started to feel it. But only on changeups, which is part of the reason why I stayed in the game as long as I did, just mostly with fastballs and curve-balls," he said.

Said Maddon: "That'll happen where guys will get sore on a certain pitch, and then if they don't throw it they stop being sore."

"But the changeup's a big pitch for him, so we wanted him to get that back," he said.

The 24-year-old left-hander is tied for second in the American League in wins and winning percentage (.824) and third in opposing batting average (.212).

"Anytime you're dealing with a pitcher and his arm, you're going to have some degree of concern, but everyone feels really good about it. So does Matt," Rays executive vice president of baseball operations Andrew Friedman said.

A wake-up call for a skeptic

Captain “Red Ed” Brennan has been too busy with scallops clients to go after grouper lately, but said they’re being taken in water between 26 and 36 feet deep. So if you want gags, that’s your starting point.

He told me of one trip that yielded not only limits of gags, but a nice 26-inch red grouper. As for the scallops, he said they have indeed moved into deeper water, as expected, but added, “...with an extreme low tide, we had no problem getting our limit in just over an hour in three feet of water outside of St. Martins Keys.”

Doesn’t get any easier than three feet of water.

Redfish are still widely scattered (more on this in an upcoming column), but the trout have been cooperating in water six to 10 feet deep, and the Barge Canal is currently on fire.

Mike O’Feild, who fishes the Canal regularly, has been kept ashore lately by the nasty weather, but got out last Monday, and the catching was good once he figured out what the trout wanted and where the catfish were not.

Normally, the best way to fish the Canal for sand and silver trout is to drift, bouncing a small jig head tipped with a piece of shrimp along the bottom, but, he reported, “...for some reason the sugars (sand trout) didn’t want the bait moving laterally along the bottom on a drift. What worked instead was anchoring and bouncing the jig off the bottom in place.”

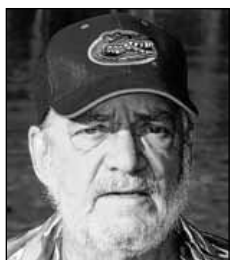

O’Feild started at Marker 32, but the bottom was paved with catfish, mostly gafftopsails, with a few hardheads thrown in. Water temperature was 82 degrees, with about the usual stain to the water for the Canal. The tide was going out, but so weakly he could barely make out water movement around the channel markers.

Total catch for the day was 35 fish, including a few whiting and one exceptionally large sand trout O’Feild estimated at about 16 or 17 inches before a shark ate nearly a foot of it.

There were plenty of sharks around, and they landed eight of them; two bonnetheads, four black tips and two spinners. Most ran just under two feet or so in length, but a two-foot shark will definitely test your trout tackle. Most of the fish came after they anchored at Marker 28, where the trout were plentiful and the catfish missing in action.

I’m a born skeptic and dealing with bureaucrats and politicians for a political column I used to write enhanced it, although I stopped short of misanthropy. Still, it’s nice to be reminded there are people who see good all around them, and BJ Schueneman is apparently one of them. Here are pieces of what she had to say about the return from a recent scallop trip.

“The trip back was a sight to see...on the street it would be called ‘bumper to bumper,’ but this was bow to stern...Boats as far as the eye could see, the horizon dotted with specks...We didn’t see one boater who didn’t stay in line politely, and when slower boats had to be passed, it was done respectfully. Some were towing boats that for some reason couldn’t make it in; how nice is that?

“It gives you that warm, fuzzy feeling to know the place you’ve chosen to live is populated with polite, family-oriented, helpful, happy people. A beautiful waterway, plenty of seafood — it can’t get any better. Truly the name ‘Nature Coast’ is well deserved.”

Thanks for the wake-up call, BJ.

Caution a must

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

The Withlacochee River and Lake Rousseau provide anglers a wealth of opportunity when it comes to fishing. Caution should be exercised when navigating the fertile waters due to the many underwater hazards.

Withlacochee, Lake Rousseau fun for fishing, but caution must be exercised

From time to time, I receive emails asking questions about outdoor-related items. Since Fishtales is primarily a fishing column most of these questions involve that topic.

Recently, a handful of the emails I’ve received involve Lake Rousseau and the Withlacochee River. This week, Fishtales will cover an overview of the river and lake and — in two weeks — we will discuss some boating and fishing options for the areas.

The Withlacochee River is a primary source for most of the freshwater that flows through our county via the Tsala Apopka Chain of Lakes. As the Withlacochee goes, so do our chain of lakes.

Water that isn’t temporarily diverted through the chain makes its way along the river, eventually creating Lake Rousseau, a.k.a. The Backwaters.

The Withlacochee begins in northern Polk County’s Green Swamp and flows generally northwest more than 155 miles before discharging into the Gulf of Mexico in the Yankeetown area.

The Withlacochee enters Citrus County on the southern border of the county south of Floral City. As it flows northwestward it carves out the county’s eastern boundary separating Citrus from Sumter, Marion and Levy counties from south to north respectively.

From this southern portion of the river northwest, almost to the community of Dunnellon, the river is primarily shallow with ample aquatic vegetation and a rock bottom better suited for a parking lot. Caution is strongly advised for boaters here. Small jon boats and airboats are the norm on this stretch.

Traveling westward past Inverness and Hernando in the direction of Dunnellon, the Withlacochee narrows and deepens significantly making navigation much less hazardous, although you’re never completely in the clear on this river.

Soon one of the Withlacochee’s tributaries, the Rainbow River, appears.

The Department of Environmental Protection says the Rainbow River is Florida’s fourth largest freshwater spring and the 10th largest freshwater spring in the world. The 5.7 mile river, a system of 18 springs, is exceptionally clear. If you’ve never visited the Rainbow, make sure to — it should be on your bucket list.

Once the Rainbow’s gin-clear water blends with the Withlacochee’s tannic-colored waters, the river make a serpentine path toward Lake Rousseau.

A popular boat ramp located near Dunnellon City Hall provides access but limited parking can create headaches at times.

Further along the river, boaters will find the lower stretches of the Withlacochee dotted with channel markers equipped with green and red numbered panels beginning near the Goldendale area where another small boat ramp is present.

When navigating westward, make sure to keep the red channel markers on your left, green on your right. Conversely, when returning or heading easterly, keep the red markers on your right—red, right, return.

One of the things that keeps many boaters away from Lake Rousseau is the fact there are thousands of trees and stumps in the water. The marked channel is clear from stumps and safe to operate a boat within its narrow confines. But remember that even a momentary diversion outside of the markers can meet with severe consequences.

A few weeks ago I watched a young man operating his brand new Triton bass boat along the channel only to become momentarily confused or distracted. At 55 miles per hour, his boat’s engine and a 100-year-old stump collided underwater. The stump was the victor. As I watched the sickened boater limp back to the boat ramp with a broken boat and thought there was no doubt a hefty repair bill was forthcoming. Worse yet, I’ve known men who have been ejected from their boat after hitting these stumps. Lake Rousseau is no joke. Extreme caution should be taken when operating a vessel there.

But the lake can be navigated safely. If asked, I would caution a boater unfamiliar with Lake Rousseau to remain alert and not to get ahead of one’s self. It’s easy to become confused when trying to run the channel markers down the lake. The key is to concentrate on the very next set of markers when navigating. The channel twists and turns back upon itself and the markers can appear jumbled, creating confusion if you’re not careful. Another helpful tip is to use the numbers on the markers in ascending or descending order to assist in navigation.

Another word of caution — use a life jacket. That’s critical! And make sure your boat’s kill switch is attached to it. That way, if you do become dislodged from your seat your engine will stop and not turn back and run over you.

It literally takes one second to make a mistake on Lake Rousseau and that can have serious consequences to your body and boat.

In two weeks we’ll look at some tips on navigating outside of the channel and some of the high-percentage areas for popular species that live in the lake.

Jordan may see special teams time

Miami’s top pick set to debut Sunday

Associated Press

DAVIE — The Miami Dolphins are so eager to see rookie Dion Jordan in Sunday’s exhibition opener that they might put him in the game on the first play.

The kickoff, that is.

Jordan wants to play special teams, and the Dolphins are inclined to let him, although they must weigh risk versus reward in using the No. 3 overall draft pick on kick coverage.

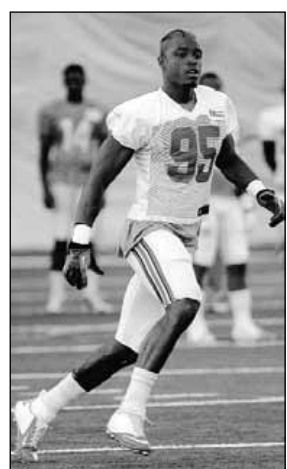

The spectacle of the speedy, 6-foot-6, 260-pound Jordan running downfield under kicks could be breathtaking, and the Dolphins would be holding their breath. But Jordan’s not worried about getting hurt, even though he’s recovering from shoulder surgery in February.

“Every play is dangerous in football,” he said. “You’ve just got to play the right way.”

Miami has an enormous investment in Jordan, who played special teams at Oregon but was drafted primarily for his pass-rushing skills. The Dolphins traded up nine spots to select him, then gave him a $20.6 million, four-year contract that included a $13.3 million signing bonus.

Coach Joe Philbin said his contract does not make him too valuable for special teams.

“That’s a huge part of our team,” Philbin said. “We have the potential to be very, very good on special teams this year. Dion’s had an outstanding attitude toward special teams. To say he’s too valuable, absolutely not.”

DETROIT — Alex Avila and Torii Hunter hit homers in a five-run second inning and the Detroit Tigers scored five more runs Wednesday in the fourth inning of an 11-1 rout of the Washington Nationals.

The AL Central-leading Tigers took the two-game series. They have won five straight and nine of 10 to move 16 games over .500 for the first time this season, but they're not in the mood to celebrate.

Justin Verlander (11-8) shook off a shaky start by giving up one run, four hits and five walks while striking out six over six innings.

Gio Gonzalez (7-4) gave up 10 runs — one short of his career high — and 11 hits over 3 1/3 innings.

National League

Braves 9, Rockies 0

ATLANTA — Mike Minor allowed only two hits in seven scoreless innings, Brian McCann hit a three-run homer in Atlanta's seven-run third, and the Braves beat the Colorado Rockies 9-0 for their sixth straight win.

Freddie Freeman drove in two runs with four hits as the Braves continued their offensive surge with 15 hits. The Braves have scored 29 runs while winning the first three games of the four-game series.

The Braves lead second-place Washington by 11 games in the NL East, their biggest advantage in nine years.

Minor (11-5) didn't walk a batter and didn't allow a Colorado baserunner to reach second base.

Marlins 3, Mets 2

MIAMI — Jake Marisnick hit his first major league home run, Henderson Alvarez pitched into the eighth inning, and the Miami Marlins beat the New York Mets 3-2.

Giancarlo Stanton and Placido Polanco also drove in a run each for the Marlins, who dropped the first two games of the four-game series with the Mets.

Mike Dunn pitched the ninth for his second save in place of Steve Cishek, who pitched two innings and took the loss in Tuesday's 4-2 loss to New York.

Dunn issued a lead-off single to John Buck before retiring the next three batters to end the game.

Alvarez (2-1) allowed two runs and six hits in 7 1-3 innings. He is 2-0 with a 1.33 ERA in his last four starts.

Reds 4, Padres 1

SAN DIEGO — Homer Bailey came within two outs of a five-hit shutout to end his four-start losing streak and the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Diego Padres 4-1 to snap a five-game skid.

Brandon Phillips homered and Joey Votto hit a two-run double for the Reds, who avoided a three-game sweep and ended San Diego's four-game winning streak.

Neither team made a move as the non-waiver trade deadline passed, a surprise considering both clubs are going nowhere.

The defending World Series champion Giants are last in the NL West. The Phillies entered 11 1/2 games out of first place and fell to nine back in the wild-card standings.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jose Bautista hit a go-ahead double in the top of the 10th inning, and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Oakland Athletics 5-2 for a series win.

Bautista lined a double to right against Jesse Chavez (2-3). Rookie catcher Stephen Vogt's second costly passed ball of the game allowed Jose Reyes to advance after a leadoff infield single, and Reyes scored on Bautista's hit.

Casey Janssen (4-0) pitched a 1-2-3 ninth for the win, while Brett Cecil finished for his first major league save in two opportunities.

Indians 6, White Sox 5, 10 innings

CLEVELAND — Carlos Santana's leadoff home run in the 10th inning gave the Cleveland Indians their seventh straight win, a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Santana hit a 3-2 pitch from Dylan Axelrod (3-7) into the right field seats for Cleveland's ninth walkoff win of the season. The crowd of 22,258 roared when the ball reached the seats and Santana threw his helmet in the air as he reached home plate and was mobbed by his teammates.

Chris Perez (4-1) hit Adam Dunn with a pitch with two outs in the 10th, but struck out Paul Konerko to end the inning as Chicago lost its sixth straight game.

Astros 11, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE — Rookie left-hander Brett Oberholzer allowed three hits over seven innings to earn his first major league win, Jason Castro hit a grand slam and the Houston Astros beat the Baltimore Orioles 11-0.

Matt Dominguez homered and had a career-high four hits for the Astros, who built a 9-0 lead in the fourth inning and coasted to their most lopsided victory of the season.

Oberholzer (1-0) was thrust into the starter's role after Erik Bedard was scratched with a sore shoulder. Making his fourth appearance and first start in the big leagues, Oberholzer struck out six, walked none and did not let a runner get past first base.

Rangers 2, Angels 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — Adrian Beltre led off the bottom of the ninth for Texas with a home run to beat the Los Angeles Angels 2-1, completing a three-game series sweep in which the Rangers won each on game-ending homers.

There was no doubt about another dramatic victory for the Rangers when Michael Kohn (1-1) left a 2-2 pitch over the middle of the plate and Beltre hit it deep into the left-field seats for his 23rd homer.

Nelson Cruz also homered for Texas, his 25th putting the Rangers up 1-0 in the second before Josh Hamilton's tying homer in the seventh for the Angels.

BACK TO SCHOOL

No one would argue that proper nutrition for kids isn't important. Yet it can be difficult, especially for busy parents, to make sure their children are getting all the vitamins and nutrients they need, as well as enough whole grains, carbohydrates, protein, and all the other crucial components of a good meal and a productive day.

CARLY ZERVIS
Chronicle intern

The Citrus County school district's Food Services department, headed by director Roy Pistone, is working to ease that burden. By providing balanced, nutritious and tasty food in schools for breakfast and lunch, Pistone and nutritionist Kelly Niblett hope to help keep kids both healthier and happier.

"Here in this district ... we're proud of the lunches that we serve students," Pistone said. In his five years as director, Pistone has worked to make dining in school cafeterias a more pleasant experience for students, which in turn bolsters enthusiasm for eating healthy — and not just at school.

Niblett and Pistone hope that when kids see and eat things at school that they like, they'll ask their parent or guardian to get some to eat at home, too. And since school lunches are planned and analyzed to ensure proper nutrition, kids eating more of the same at home — like carrots and low-fat ranch dressing, apples, celery and peanut butter, and other such healthy snacks — is a good thing.

To this end, Pistone and Niblett have worked to increase variety in school lunch rooms across the county. There are now stations reminiscent of those in college dining halls, with a permanent spot for Italian food, another for burgers and chicken sandwiches, and things like salads, yogurt parfaits and potato wedges available every day. They hope that providing lots of healthy options will entice kids to eat

'Boneless' and 'skinless' don't have to mean 'flavorless'

Associated Press

Boneless, skinless chicken breasts are literally THE white meat of the meat world. They are a great lean protein, quick and easy to prepare, freeze well, and take to just about any flavor or cuisine you care for. But they also can be rather dull. So we've come up with three ways to jazz up this week-night staple:

Spice-rubbed chicken breasts

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (about 1 pound)
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/2 teaspoon sweet paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice

DIRECTIONS:

Set the chicken breasts on a cutting board and slice horizontally across the piece to create 2 thinner halves. One at a time, cover each half with plastic wrap, then use a meat mallet to pound to an even thickness. Drizzle the pounded halves with the olive oil and rub all over.

In a small bowl, combine the brown sugar, cumin, garlic powder, onion powder, paprika, thyme, salt, pepper and allspice. Rub the mixture over both sides of each of the 4 pieces of meat.

If cooking on the grill, heat to medium heat. Cook for 2 minutes per side. If cooking on the stovetop, in a large skillet heat 1 tablespoon of canola oil over medium-high. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes per side, or until the chicken reaches an internal temperature of 160 degrees. Let rest for 5 minutes.

Orange-cilantro smothered chicken

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (about 1 pound), cut into 2-inch chunks
- 1/2 cup low-sodium chicken broth
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro

DIRECTIONS:

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. In a large, oven-safe skillet, mix together the chicken broth, marmalade, brown sugar, red pepper flakes, salt, black pepper and cilantro. Bring to a boil and cook until reduced by half. Add the chicken, turning to coat, then place the skillet in the oven and cook for 20 to 25 minutes, or until chicken reaches 160 degrees.

Miso-lime marinated chicken strips

Prep them in the morning, then just cook off when you get home from work. They can be cooked on the grill, on the stove, or in the oven.

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 tablespoons white miso
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- Zest of 1 lime
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper

- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon chili-garlic paste
- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (about 1 pound), cut into strips

DIRECTIONS:

In a zip-close plastic bag, combine the miso, lime juice, lime zest, black pepper, honey and chili-garlic paste. Squish around in the bag until well combined. Place the chicken strips into the bag and squeeze out any air. Refrigerate for 6 to 8 hours.

When ready to cook, heat the oven to 450 degrees or heat the grill to medium-high. If using the oven, place a wire rack over a baking sheet and mist with cooking spray.

Drain the chicken, discarding the marinade. Arrange the chicken strips over the rack-baking sheet or on the grates of the heated grill. Grill for 2 minutes or roast for 4 to 5 minutes, or until the chicken reaches an internal temperature of 160 degrees. Let rest for 5 minutes.

servicing up SMILES

FAMILY FEATURES

Gathering the entire family around the table for meals or snack time is a great way to stay connected and enjoy time together. You can keep that family time fun by mixing up the menu and preparing quick and tasty meals together.

Here are some easy ways to bring smiles to the table every day:

- Make breakfast together. Whether it's PB & J French Toast on a weekend morning or topping everyone's favorite cereal with fruit before school, there are plenty of delicious ways for the entire family to rise and smile. And working together to put some breakfast magic on the table makes it even more special. Kids can spread peanut butter and jelly, wash fruit, set the table or help pour milk and juice.
- Serve something unexpected. Use familiar ingredients in unexpected ways. These recipes, for example, take Honey Bunches of Oats Greek Honey Crunch cereal out of the bowl and into some tasty treats like Creamy Orange-Vanilla Squares or Rainforest Chewy Bars. Made with whole grains, and two unique granolas with real Greek yogurt, it adds a crispy, tangy element the entire family will love. Cereal can also be used in meatloaf and casseroles, and as breading on baked chicken fingers or mozzarella sticks.
- Get creative with snack time. Change up the usual snacks for something different. Chocolate-dipped frozen bananas, yogurt parfaits, or these Caramel Balls are all kid-friendly snacks that little hands can help make.

You can find more smile-worthy recipes at www.honeybunchesofoats.com.

PB & J French Toast

Total Time: 25 minutes
Makes: 4 servings

- 8 slices whole wheat, white or cinnamon raisin bread
- 1/4 cup peanut butter
- 3 tablespoons strawberry jam
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons milk
- 2 1/2 cups Honey Bunches of Oats cereal, crushed
- 2 cups sliced fresh fruit, such as strawberries and/or bananas
- 1 tablespoon sifted powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup maple syrup

Preheat oven to 350°F.

Spread each of 4 bread slices with 1 tablespoon peanut butter and about 2 teaspoons of jam. Cover with remaining bread slices to make 4 sandwiches.

Break eggs into shallow dish. Add milk and beat with wire whisk for 30 seconds. Place crushed cereal in pie plate. Dip each sandwich into egg mixture, then into cereal, turning to evenly coat both sides. Press cereal gently into bread to secure. Place on lightly greased baking sheet.

Bake 20 minutes or until golden brown. Cut each sandwich diagonally in half; top with fruit. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve with syrup.

Creamy Orange-Vanilla Squares

Total Time: 3 hours, 45 minutes
Makes: 16 servings

- 2 cups Honey Bunches of Oats Greek Honey Crunch cereal, divided
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine, melted
- 1 8-ounce package Neufchatel cheese, softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1/4 cup fresh orange juice

Preheat oven to 350°F.

Spray 8-inch square baking pan with cooking spray; set aside. Place 1 3/4 cups cereal in food processor; process until finely crushed. Mix with margarine; press onto bottom of prepared pan. Set aside.

Beat Neufchatel cheese and sugar with electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in flour, baking powder, orange peel and juice; pour over crust.

Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until center is set. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cereal; press gently into top of dessert to secure. Cool completely. Cover and refrigerate several hours or until chilled. Cut into squares to serve. Store leftovers in refrigerator.

Special Extra: Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons powdered sugar just before serving.

Caramel Balls

Total Time: 15 minutes
Makes: 7 servings

- 20 caramels
- 1 tablespoon water
- 2 cups Honey Bunches of Oats Greek Honey Crunch cereal, divided

Microwave caramels and water in medium microwavable bowl on high 1 1/2 to 2 minutes or until caramels are completely melted.

Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the cereal. With hands slightly moistened with cold water, shape cereal mixture into 21 small balls, each about 1 inch in diameter.

Crush remaining 1/2 cup cereal; place in shallow dish. Roll cereal balls in cereal until evenly coated.

Tip: If kids help out in the kitchen, teach them about food safety. In addition to washing hands thoroughly before starting, make sure long hair is pulled back. When shaping food by hand, caution children not to lick their fingers or put their hands in their mouths during preparation.

Rainforest Chewy Bars

Total Time: 10 minutes
Makes: 24 servings

- 1/4 cup honey
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 10-ounce package marshmallows (about 36 marshmallows)
- 6 cups Honey Bunches of Oats Greek Honey Crunch cereal
- 1 cup dried apricots, raisins or dried cranberries chopped
- 1 cup almonds, chopped
- 1/2 cup sunflower kernels

Microwave honey and butter in large microwavable bowl on high 1 minute; stir until well blended. Add marshmallows; toss to coat. Microwave 1 1/2 minutes or until marshmallows are puffed; stir until well blended.

Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Press cereal mixture firmly into greased 13x9-inch pan. Cool. Cut into 24 bars.

A long day, but a birthday, and one to relish

3:15 a.m. —

The alarm goes off. Time to start another day. I pack my husband Joe's lunch. We close the windows that were open during the night. It's 50 degrees and the house feels cold. After all the hot weather last week, this is a quite a difference. It makes for nice sleeping weather.

3:45 a.m. — Joe leaves for work. I go back to bed.

4:50 a.m. — I get up again. Daughter Elizabeth is packing her lunch.

5:15 a.m. — Elizabeth leaves for work. It's difficult to believe next week she will have worked there a year already.

5:30 a.m. — Daughter Susan and son Benjamin wake up. Susan packs her lunch while I help Benjamin with his. They like meat and cheese roll-ups instead of sandwiches for their lunch. The bread gets soggy, so the roll-ups taste better. We take a burrito shell, put ranch dressing on it and then either bologna or ham. Next we put cheese on it and then roll up. Some of us will add tomatoes, green peppers or lettuce to ours. Son Kevin likes peanut butter and jelly rollups.

6:15 a.m. — Susan and Benjamin leave for detasseling. They wear coats this morning. Usually they wear a poncho in the mornings until the dew dries off of the corn. Verena is staying home. She hasn't been feeling well.

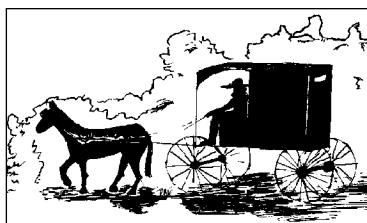

7 a.m. — Time for the rest to wake up. Joseph is bright awake. He has looked forward to this day for a long time. It's his 11th birthday and he is having some school friends over tonight. He does the morning chores and fills the horses' tank with water.

8 a.m. — Breakfast is oatmeal and coffee soup.

9 a.m. — Joseph and I leave for town.

Noon — We are back from town. After the groceries are put away, we make roll-ups for our lunch.

1 p.m. — Verena is mopping the floors. She says she can't relax to rest if she knows we have work to do. Loretta is cleaning the bathroom. I can 11 quarts of dill pickles. Earlier this week I made 16 quarts of freezer pickles. I pack them in ice cream buckets for the freezer. They will be used for our next church services. We also canned 14 quarts of green beans this week. Next week, it looks like it will be tomatoes to can.

2 p.m. — Joe came home a few minutes ago. Now Susan and Benjamin are home, too. It's easy for them to be home at this time. Now Susan and Benjamin are home too. It's early for them to be home at this time.

3:50 p.m. — Elizabeth is home from work. I am making meatloaf to put in the oven. Verena is making cupcakes, as Joseph wants cupcakes instead of a cake. The boys are doing chores. Joe is picking cucumbers and tomatoes in the garden.

5 p.m. — Joseph's friends come, and also nephews Jacob Jr., Benjamin and Steven come with their pony and cart.

6:30 p.m. — We all eat supper, which is mashed potatoes, gravy, meatloaf, green beans, cucumber salad, tomatoes, cheese, ice cream, strawberries, cupcakes and cereal bars. We put 11 candles on the cupcakes for Joseph to blow out.

7:30 p.m. — Joe and all the boys go outside to play croquet while the girls and I clean away supper dishes.

8:30 p.m. — Joseph's friends left for home. They all had a nice time. Jacob, Benjamin and Steven will stay for the night and drive their pony home tomorrow morning.

For those of you who do your own canning, try this recipe:

Pickle relish

- 1 gallon ground cucumbers
 - 1 pint ground onions
 - 1/2 cup salt
 - 6 cups sugar
 - 3 cups vinegar
 - 1 cup water
 - 3 teaspoons celery seed (optional)
 - 3 teaspoons dry mustard (optional)
 - 3 teaspoons turmeric
- Take ground cucumbers and onions, add salt and mix well. Let set three hours, then drain well. Boil together water, vinegar, and sugar. Add celery seed, dry mustard, and turmeric. Pour this over drained pickles and onions. Put in pint jars and cold pack.

Building an empire, from the ground up

A new paperback, "The Barefoot Spirit," is not a story eulogizing the American pioneer character. Rather it is a fun read about "how hardship, hustle and heart built America's No. 1 wine brand." Surely anyone who has visited the shelves of a favorite wine boutique or supermarket has noticed the attractive pastel bottles with the funny-looking imprint of what looks very much like someone's bare foot stamped into a sandy beach.

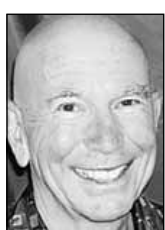

"Barefoot" wines are the quintessential consumer-friendly, everyday wines in a broad variety of flavors, something for everyone, at an appealing price point of about $5. The book chronicles the remarkable saga of how two hardworking wine novices created from scratch a No. 1 American brand, who took it from zero sales to a half-million cases per year in fewer than 20 years.

This duo of Michael Houlihan and Bonnie Harvey created the company in the early 1980s and sold out to the giant Gallo wines just 20 years later. The brand actually began at the home of California winemaker Davis Bynum, a guy with a sense of humor and a marketing sense who called his product "Chateau La Feet," a send-up, for folks who may not know, of the ultra-famous first-growth superstar French Bordeaux Chateau Lafite Rothschild.

Bynum abandoned the "cutesy" name in 1974 when he moved his operation to Sonoma. Enter Bonnie, who lived nearby Bynum Winery and was a pal of Bynum's son Michael.

Bonnie, like so many people of her era, was apprehensive about wine. She knew nothing about it, could not pronounce the grape names, and generally figured wine was encased in some mysterious code — certainly not her cup of tea. Still, one has to make a living, so Bonnie went to work in the back office of Davis Bynum's business.

Michael Houlihan was working at the fringes of the California wine business as well, negotiating on contracts, consulting with government agencies and helping with financials, yet he didn't know any more than Bonnie about actual wine. One day, working with the Soverain wine people, who were in debt to a friend of theirs Mark Lyon, Houlihan concocted a deal to bottle and sell about 18,000 cases of wine just sitting in Soverain tanks.

Ron Drinkhouse

WINES 'N' SUCH

This was a way to pay back their debt to Mike. How hard could it be? Step one for Michael and Bonnie was a name and a label, one easy to identify. To accomplish this job, they went around and talked with a lot of people in the business, as well as some big supermarket chains.

The buyer of wine for the Lucky supermarket chain was a tough old bird who was flabbergasted by anyone asking his personal opinion regarding labels. He told them, "Don't make it a hill or a valley or a creek, I got enough of those. Don't put flowers on it, don't call it 'Chateau,' but do make it big, so anybody can read it from four feet away pushing a cart."

Suffice to say, the original comical variation on Lafite suddenly evolved for them in one of those thunderbolt-of-inspiration moments. Bonnie got Michael to draw a foot, a big one, tilted to the right with plenty of arch.

"Now write 'Barefoot' next to it," she said.

Michael, while traveling in France, had found "vin de pays," or local country wine. There was nothing fancy about these country selections, and both partners decided that what America needed was a really good bottle of wine for about $5.

They wanted the flavors to be varietally correct, with enough fruit in the reds to show through, ripe and consistent year after year. The wine was made for the mass market, so it should hold no surprises for consumers who want to buy again and again.

For gentle readers who are interested in old-fashioned American entrepreneurship and who enjoy a glass of decent table wine now and then, this is surely a fun book to read, as well as a decent inexpensive wine choice to sip.

Oak Ridge resident Ron Drinkhouse was a buyer and seller of wines in his native Connecticut. He welcomes inquiries, and can be reached via email at ronoct9@aol.com or via telephone at 352-445-0328.

LUNCHES

school lunches, and therefore eat healthier than they might otherwise.

After all, Pistone said, "Proper nutrition is very, very important. It helps with getting them through the day." The balanced energy provided by school breakfasts, as well as lunches, is intended to have "staying power," Pistone said. What look like doughnuts, cinnamon buns, and cookies that are served at breakfast are actually packed with nutrients, fiber, whole grains and protein.

Pistone and Niblett also stress the importance of fresh fruits and vegetables in kids' diets. They get as much fruit and other produce from Florida as possible, and utilize seasonal fruits and vegetables in temporary offerings like salads with Florida blueberries and strawberries. These are also easy foods for kids to have at home. Even if parents aren't home when they are, foods like those make for easy, healthy snacks.

The county's Food and Nutrition Services

web page (<http://cafe.citrus.k12.fl.us/Home.aspx>) offers many valuable resources, including menus, district wellness policies, "Tips for Eating Right," ideas for activities to promote healthy eating, interactive games, and special dietary needs/food allergy information. The site also provides resources for free and reduced-price breakfast and lunch programs.

Low-cal, low-fat mashed potatoes

INGREDIENTS:

- 8 to 10 garlic cloves
- 2 pounds of potatoes, quartered
- 1/3 cup light sour cream
- 1/4 cup fat-free milk
- 1 tablespoon fresh oregano or rosemary
- 1/2 teaspoon sea salt
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper

DIRECTIONS:

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. To roast garlic, wrap unpeeled cloves in foil. Bake 25 to 35 minutes or until cloves feel soft. Once cool enough to handle, squeeze garlic from peels into bowl.

Meanwhile, put potatoes in a large saucepan with enough cold water to cover. Bring to a boil over high heat. Lower heat to maintain a simmer and cook until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain potatoes, and return to saucepan.

Mash potatoes and softened garlic with a potato masher or an electric mixer on low speed. Add sour cream, milk, oregano, rosemary, salt, and pepper. Beat until light and fluffy.

Senior Prom royalty

Special to the Chronicle

The Elks Lodge No. 2522 in Hernando hosted a Senior Prom for residents of Arbor Trail, Woodland Terrace of Citrus County and New Horizons recently. The lodge members decorated, sang, cooked, danced and played games with seniors from 11:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., when Citrus County Transit helped transport them all back to their homes. Host Mike Orndoff welcomed seniors to the lodge. Pictured are Prom King Gene Pairgin of Arbor Trail and Prom Queen Charlotte Grimes of Woodland Terrace.

Celebrate Citrus County's rich history

Our Cinema in the Sunshine Exhibit is still open through Aug. 31. Did you know that Florida once rivaled California in film production? Come and enjoy.

The Citrus County Historical Society and the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum staff are proud to announce the arrival of the "Journey Stories" exhibit by the Smithsonian Institution and the Florida State Humanities Council. The exhibit will be on display at the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum in Inverness from Sept. 2 to Oct. 12. If you have a group that enjoys a day of fun, consider coming out and seeing this exhibit and enjoying lunch downtown.

The exhibit features photographs, paintings and written accounts from colonial times through the westward expansion and beyond. It captures the immigrant experience and how ever-changing forms of transportation contributed to American history. The collection guides visitors from the arrival of immigrants on ships to wagon trains rolling westward; from the start of the railroads to the exodus of Oklahoma farmers in rickety trucks during the 1930s dust bowl era. Americans are the most mobile people in the world, and everyone has a story to tell.

On Friday, Sept. 6, there will be a special grand opening of the exhibit 50-year golden anniversary celebration of the Citrus County Historical Society from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Courthouse. Members pay $15, which includes appetizers plus two glasses of wine; non-members pay $15 for the above plus a one year individual membership in the society. Our quarterly newsletter is outstanding in content and interest and is sent to all members. We are seeking 50 new members for this event.

The Descendant's Day Celebration Luncheon will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 28, at the Old Courthouse Museum. We are looking for any descendants of pioneer families living in Citrus County prior to 1925.

Special recognition will be given to the oldest and youngest descendants present; families with most descendants present; largest number of descendants present; families with most generations present; and descendants of the earliest pioneer family present.

Entrees and beverages will be provided by the society; bring a dessert and side dish.

The Hernando Heritage Council farmers' market/flea market/small animals market will be from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Historic Hernando School Community Center, 2415 N. Florida Ave. Booths are $10 each; call Doug at 352-302-5565.

The Hernando Council is also collecting recipes and pictures for its Cracker Cafe Cookbook. If you have a story about church suppers on the ground; family picnics; shelling peas or anything else, call Susan Shipp at 352-476-2453.

Crystal River Heritage Council Coastal Heritage Museum at 352-795-1755 has a new exhibit called Kiddies Korner. This features photos and articles of children living in and around Crystal River during the 1960s. Bill Dyer of the Suncoast Sentinel would photograph local children each week and write a short article about them. This collection is in scrapbook form and is part of the museum. Copies are available for review. Many still live in the area and we are happy to check to see if you are in the book. Call 352-795-1755.

Floral City Heritage Council has a unique 1848 first-edition book "The Florida War" by John T. Sprague. This is the first of two editions released in 1848. Raffle tickets are $5 each or five for $20 and are available at the museum, which is open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays. You do not need to be present to win.

The big Fall Friends of the Library Book Sale at the Civic Auditorium starts at 5 p.m. Friday, Sept. 27, and ends Tuesday, Oct. 1. We have a record number of banana boxes full of books — more than 1,200 — with lot of books of all kinds.

The annual Love Your Library Gala is set for Friday, Feb. 21, 2014. The committee for this major event is already hard at work. Our goal this year is to raise $28,000 — double what we did last year. Sponsorships are available from $50 to $2,500. For information, call Mary Ann Lynn at 352-344-2159.

Mary Ann Lynn is corresponding secretary for the Citrus County Historical Society. She can be reached at 352-344-2159.

State DAR taps local grads

Special to the Chronicle

Sue Camillo, regent of the local Fort Cooper Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, recently announced that two Citrus County young women received scholarships from the Florida State Society DAR.

FSSDAR Scholarship Chairman Janet Zengel Messer advised Camillo that Alexandra Mundreanu and Elizabeth Lynch, both June graduates from Citrus High School, each received $500 scholarships from the state DAR organization.

Mundreanu lives in Floral City and is enrolled at the University of Florida, where she will study pre-law and international studies in preparation for a career as an immigration attorney.

Lynch resides in Inverness and will attend Florida Southern College, pursuing a major in athletic training and a minor in psychology in order to become an occupational therapist.

The two Citrus County recipients were chosen for the state awards from the more than 100 chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution active throughout Florida.

For information about the scholarships or the Fort Cooper DAR chapter, call Camillo at 352-382-7383 or email her at prusue33@tampabay.rr.com.

News NOTE

'Two Good Soles' drive ongoing

This year marks the 12th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks, and a National Day of Service and Remembrance has been designated.

In tribute to those who were lost and the tens of thousands who rose in service, the Nature Coast Volunteer Center (NCVC) of Citrus County and Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) are sponsoring the "Two Good Soles" drive, collecting new shoes and socks for children in need through Sept. 11.

Come for the tax-free holiday weekend from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday through Sunday at the Crystal River Mall (Kmart and Payless Shoe Source) and Walmart, Kmart and Payless Shoe Source in Inverness. Participate in the remembrance of 9/11 by making a donation at one of these collection sites.

Collection items will benefit local agencies — Citrus Abuse Shelter, Citrus County District Student Services, Citrus County Family Resource Center, Citrus United Basket, Daystar Life Center, SPOT Family Center, The Path of Citrus County, and Mission in Citrus Shelter.

Businesses and civic organizations that would like to participate in "Two Good Soles" may call 352-249-1275.

■ Submit information at least two weeks before the event.

■ Multiple publications cannot be guaranteed.

■ Submit material at Chronicle offices in Inverness or Crystal River; by fax at 352-563-3280; or email to community@chronicleonline.com.

■ Notes tend to run one week prior to the date of an event. Publication on a special day can't be guaranteed.

Bridge PHILLIP ALDER Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Groucho Marx said, "I'm not feeling very well — I need a doctor immediately. Ring the nearest golf course."

Before we get to the relevance of that, look at the full deal and auction. What do you think about the various calls?

Here is a good guideline: If your hand is not strong but has a long suit, show it immediately. In this case, East should have opened four hearts. Similarly, after the one-heart opening, South should have overcalled with three spades.

West was right to make a negative double, promising length in both minors. Then, if East, with scant defensive values, was going to bid four hearts over three spades, she should have bid it over two diamonds. Do not give the opponents a fielder's choice — to double or to bid higher. And South should have passed four hearts around to North, who would have been happy to double.

Four hearts should go down two. South leads the spade ace, then shifts to her singleton diamond. North takes two tricks in the suit and leads the diamond three, suit-preference for clubs. South ruffs and switches to a club. North wins with the ace and plays another diamond. East can ruff high, but must lose one more trick to North's heart king.

Four spades can be made. West leads his singleton. East takes two heart tricks, then does best to lead her trump (but would probably play another heart). South wins with her ace and cashes the king. Eventually, South must guess to lead the club queen from her hand to pin East's jack.

Dear Annie: I'm a senior in college and live at home. My parents, especially my father, are controlling and overly attached to me. I've had enough and am planning on moving away the second I graduate, but my family doesn't seem to get this. They tell me about graduate schools and full-time job opportunities in or near our town. They've offered to let me live rent-free in the house if I stay in the area after college.

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

These "suggestions" are starting to pile up, and graduation seems so far away. I can't let myself fall into the same trap that got me to stay with them at the start of college. How do I say I'm leaving for good? — Nobody's Baby Boy
Dear Nobody: Your parents don't "get it" because they see no indication that you are leaving anytime soon. They'll believe it when it happens. While many kids would not appreciate their parents' offer to stay rent-free, we agree that you should strike out on your own. Loving parents guide their children to be independent. You don't need to keep saying you are moving out. Simply save your money and find a place you can afford, in whatever city you prefer. Research job and educational opportunities. What you cannot do is expect your parents to cover your expenses when you no longer live at home. Good luck.

Dear Annie: I'm a married female in my early 50s and haven't had a real friend in more than 20 years. It's not a question of meeting people. They just don't seem to gravitate toward me. I'm considerate and clean and have a good sense of humor. I'm a bit on the shy and quiet side, but I'm friendly and a sympathetic listener. I have often made the first move and invited someone to join me for lunch. They accept and seem to enjoy our time together, but they never reciprocate.

At work, everyone seems to buddy up with someone else, and though everyone appears to like me, I have no buddy of my own. I've been to counseling twice and have read books on making friends, and neither has helped. I appreciate that I have a good marriage, a good job, great kids and a nice home, but the absence of just one good friend saddens me greatly. Do you have any advice? — Lonely for Friends
Dear Lonely: It can take a long time to get to know someone in middle age, when friendships are already entrenched from work, church and community. You would need to make a greater effort, inviting someone for lunch several times, before the comfort level promotes a closer friendship. In the meantime, please look into the Red Hat Society (redhat-society.org) and meetup.com for people in your area who are actively looking to make new friends.

Dear Annie: Your answer to "Loved the Show, Disliked the Seat," the person whose seat at a Broadway show was partially taken over by a "rather large" woman, was totally off the mark. You said to show tolerance. That's absurd. The person whose personal seating space is being invaded needs to go to an usher or, better yet, to management and request another seat. Chair arms at performance spaces are there for a reason. If someone feels that he or she needs more space than the establishment has allotted, he or she should make arrangements for special seating. Obese people are required to buy two seats on airplanes. Why not do the same for theaters and sports stadiums? — Been Sat On at a Performance, Too

Dear Sat On: Going to an usher or management is a perfectly valid way to address this. Unfortunately, it usually necessitates missing part of the show to locate someone in authority and finding equally desirable, unoccupied seats elsewhere. Charging double for theater seats is an argument we don't have space for here.

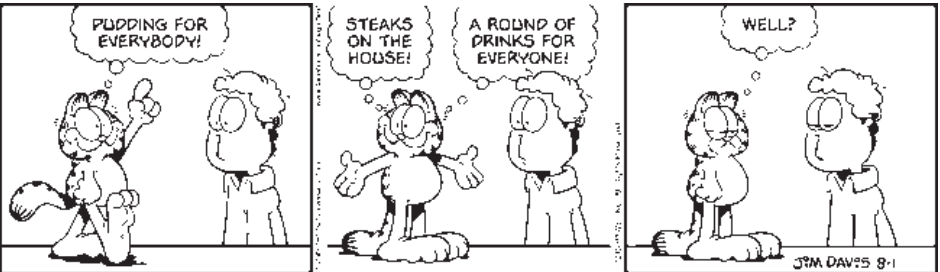

Annie's Mailbox is written by Phillip Alder and Marcy Sugar, longtime editors of the Ann Landers column. Please email your questions to anniesmailbox@comcast.net, or write to: Annie's Mailbox, c/o Creators Syndicate, 737 3rd Street, Hermosa Beach, CA 90254. To find out more visit www.creators.com.

ii. All of the Mortgagor's right, title and interest in and to any and all payments, proceeds, profits, fees, deposits, membership agreements, customer and membership lists, income, dues, green fees, vendor agreements, sponsorship agreements, tournament agreements, professional service agreements, settlements or other compensation heretofore or hereafter made, including any interest thereon, and the right to receive the same from any and all insurance policies covering the Property or any portion thereof, or any of the other property described herein.

iii. The interest of the Mortgagor in and to all of the rents, royalties, mineral, oil and gas rights and profits, water, water rights and water stock appurtenant to the Property, issued, profits, revenues, income, tenant assistance payments, if any, and other benefits of the Property, or arising from the use or enjoyment of all or any portion thereof, or from any lease, agreement or tenant assistance payment contract, if any, pertaining thereto, and all right, title and interest of the Mortgagor in and to, and remedies under, all contract rights, all utility service agreements, all development agreements, all ground leases, all cable and broadband service agreements and easements, all accounts receivable and general intangibles arising out of or in connection with any and all leases and subleases of the Property, or any part thereof, and of the other property described herein, or any part thereof, both now in existence or hereafter entered into, together with all proceeds (cash and non-cash) thereof, and including, without limitation, to the extent permitted by law, all cash or securities deposited thereunder to secure performance by the lessees of their obligations thereunder.

iv. All of the Mortgagor's rights, options, powers and privileges in and to (but not the Mortgagor's obligations and burdens under) any construction contract, architectural or engineering agreements and management contract pertaining to the construction, development, ownership, equipping and management of the Property and all of the Mortgagor's right, title and interest in and to (but not the Mortgagor's obligations and burdens under) all architectural, engineering and similar plans, specifications, drawings, reports, surveys, plats, permits and the like, contracts for construction, operation and maintenance of the other property described herein, and all sewer taps and allocations, agreements for utilities, bonds and the like, all relating to the Property.

v. The interest of the Mortgagor in and to any cash escrow fund and in and to any and all funds, securities, instruments, documents and other property which are or any time paid to, deposited with, under the control of, or in the possession of the Mortgagor, or any of its agents, branches, affiliates, correspondents or others acting on its behalf, which rights shall be in addition to any right of set-off or right of lien that the Mortgagee may otherwise enjoy under applicable law, regardless of whether the same arose out of or relate in any way, whether directly or indirectly, to the Property.

vi. Any of the above which may become fixtures by virtue of attachment to the Property.

vii. All agreements for the sale of condominium units and all earnest money deposits paid thereunder to the extent that an interest in such earnest money deposits may be assigned and all proceeds of sale and all contract rights and contracts.

viii. All names now or hereafter used in connection with the Property and the goodwill associated therewith.

ix. All of the Mortgagor's right, title, ownership and interest in: Accounts; Approved Contract Deposits; As-extracted Collateral; Chattel Paper; Commodity Accounts; Commodity Contracts; Deposited Accounts; Documents; Equipment; Farm Products; Fixtures; General Intangibles; Goods; and all accessions thereto and goods with which the goods are commingled; Health-Care Insurance Receivables; Instruments; Inventory; Investment Property; Letter-of-Credit Rights; Payment Intangibles; Promissory Note; Software.

x. Any of the above arising or acquired by the Mortgagor or to which the Mortgagor may have a legal or beneficial interest in on the date hereof and at any time in the future.

xi. Proceeds and products of collateral, and all options, rights, conversion, subscription and other privileges now and hereafter arising with respect to collateral are covered hereunder.

xii. Mortgagor hereby grants to Mortgagee a security interest in all of the above items of collateral and all other chattel and fixture items of every type now or hereafter occurred by Mortgagor and used or use able in conjunction with the Property, and thus this Mortgage shall also constitute a security agreement between Mortgagor and Mortgagee, as to both chattel and fixture items of every type now or hereafter owned by Mortgagor and used or useable in conjunction with the Property, and the proceeds thereof, including but not limited to those types of items herein above itemized as constituting Equipment.
