3 stabbed at pharmacy

INVERNESS — Three pharmacy employees were injured early Sunday morning in an armed robbery attempt involving a knife, according to the Citrus County Sheriff's Office.

The suspect, Jacob C. Kleintank, 31, of Alexandria, Va., was visiting family members in Inverness, according to Lindsay Blair, sheriff's office spokeswoman. Kleintank entered CVS Pharmacy at 602 W. Main St. between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Saturday, trying to get a prescription filled, but had been refused because it was an out-of-state order, according to the arrest report.

Later, Kleintank returned to CVS at about 12:55 a.m. Sunday, the report stated.

"When he came back in, the pharmacist met him at the counter and he jumped over the counter and had a knife and tried to stab the pharmacist," Blair said on Sunday.

According to the arrest report, Kleintank demanded drugs while holding a two-inch-blade knife in his right hand.

The pharmacist put out his hands in defense and received multiple wounds to his hands, Blair said. Two other men employed in the store responded to the pharmacist's call for help.

According to the arrest report, one of

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Contribute! Like us at facebook.com/citruscountychronicle and respond to our Question of the Week.

What are your thoughts about the possible legalization/decriminalization of medical marijuana in Florida?

Wendy Kalivoda
It shouldn't even be a legit question. God put it here for a reason and it helps many sufferers in multiple ways. Man-made meds have multiple side effects including death. It should be treated like tobacco, only in certain places, age limit, etc. ...

Tiffany Schultz
Support it. There are way too many cases where it's shown to be immediately helpful with several medical conditions. And in comparison to pain pills, the side effects are less scary!

Mary Jo O. Tevlin
Many ailments can benefit from marijuana. If a person needs it, I feel it should be available to them. Drugs like Valium and OxyContin are prescribed yet marijuana is banned?

Skip Brady
Actually, after reading our arrest record in the local newspaper, our prison population would be significantly reduced if pot were legalized. I cannot believe there are that many cases needing medicinal pot, and they should have the option of using it, but all my thoughts go up in smoke!

Cassie Durham
Marijuana has many uses, beyond medical and recreational, used in human civilizations throughout time. If the public only realized the potential of this naturally abundant plant! Medicine, food, good clean fun (let's be honest...there are worse things people could be doing), various products can be made using hemp versus plastics. Seems perfect for a small agricultural community. ...

Waste not, want not

NANCY KENNEDY/Chronicle

Debbie Lattin, chairwoman of Citrus County Harvest and director of Citrus County Blessings, feels called to help ease the problem of hunger in Citrus County. Spotted and black bananas epitomize her passion — food that some throw away is still perfectly good and food that someone else may welcome.

Much to the chagrin of her family, Debbie Lattin loves spotted or black bananas. Their intense flavor makes the best banana bread or cake. Plus, she's not shy about packing them in her husband's lunch — and he's not shy about showing people what she has packed. In the Lattin house, you do NOT throw out black bananas.

But it's not just bananas. Lattin cannot stand the thought of throwing out any food.

Alternate budget styles urged for BOCC

INVERNESS — A consultant will address county government's financial future on Tuesday, specifically looking at the shortage in projected revenue from Duke Energy, the continued decreases in fund balances and different approaches to budgeting.

Government Services Group will present a five-year strategic plan and summary at 2:45 p.m. at a regular meeting of the Citrus County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC).

Regarding Duke Energy, GSG reported the utility planned to make a good faith payment of $500,000 higher than last year's tax payment. But GSG said Duke likely would modify the amount with the millage rate increase, so GSG "elected not to budget this amount at this time because of the uncertainty."

For the five-year strategic plan, GSG will recommend an annual cash flow analysis be prepared to insure sufficient cash is available to meet obligations, especially considering the

Class action suit targets tax service

A Citrus County law firm is handling a class-action lawsuit involving fair labor practices against a Jackson Hewitt Tax Service franchisee.

The lawsuit was filed in federal court last week by attorney Lindsay Ruiz Bash with the law office of Grant and Dozier.

It initially involves about 86 tax preparation locations in Central and West Florida.

But attorney Bill Grant said it could grow to include Jackson Hewitt's nationwide operations.

The action was initiated by tax service office managers — one from Citrus County and

Veterans sought for classroom program

The Veterans Appreciation Week Ad Hoc Coordinating Committee will conduct its annual Veterans in the Classroom program Nov. 1 to 12 as part of its 21st annual Veterans Appreciation Week activities.

Coordinated by the Citrus County Chapter of the Military Officers Association of America (MOAA), the Veterans in the Classroom program brings living history to the classrooms of the county's public and private schools, as well as home school groups. Veterans share with students their firsthand military experiences and travels while serving our country.

All interested veterans are encouraged to contact Mac McLeod at 352-746-1384, cmcleod670@earthlink.net; or Bob Crawford at 352-270-9025, baddogusmc@tampabay.rr.com.

Prescribed burns ongoing

The Land Management Section of the Southwest Florida Water Management District will be conducting prescribed burns through September on lands acquired by the district known as the Chassahowitzka River and Coastal Swamps property. The location of this tract of land is approximately 1.5 miles west of U.S. 19 in southwest Citrus County. Close to 100 acres will be burned, in small, manageable units.

Cinnamon Ridge home among county's greenest

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

From the street, it looks like any other new home almost ready for occupancy.

But the single-family home on a tree-shaded site in Cinnamon Ridge is probably one of the most energy-efficient homes ever built in Citrus County, and the first to use a new construction technology.

Instead of stick framing or concrete block construction, the home was built using a wall system made of structural insulated panels, known as SIPs. Fred Kelley of Tampa Bay Builders explained they are 30 percent stronger than block and far exceed basic qualifications.

Using a plate system, the panels are bolted to the foundation. They are pre-drilled for electrical wiring and get drywall or stucco like other types of construction.

"We can do any house any style," he said. The home is about 2,600 square feet and situated to take advantage of the natural shade.

Inside, the energy-saving touches include no air ducts in attic and air return lines. In this house, the ductwork becomes interior shelf space and pass-through vents handle the air return. He explained it keeps the air ducts in the space being cooled, instead of running through a hot attic.

The system also reduces overhead square footage — space that would not be used anyway, but would have to be chilled or heated.

Other features keeping with green design are the floor tile, double-pane windows, wall coatings and a more efficient air conditioner.

"Every product here has been rated green," he said. "Even the mud on the walls has no chemicals and the stucco and cement have no fly ash."

These measures and filtered air help alleviate indoor pollution, a problem with a tight house. The house also has natural-gas service.

"It's been a learning curve," said Kelley, who will soon be breaking ground on 10 smaller, unattached single homes taking advantage of the same technology.

The energy-saving home is owned by Al and Julie Crislo, who have been visiting the site, eagerly following the construction process. It is expected to be complete by the end of September.

"The sooner the better," Al Cislo said. His wife, Julie, agreed.

Contact Chronicle reporter Pat Faherty at 352-564-2924 or pfaherty@chronicleonline.com.

Residents view flood maps

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Staff writer

LECANTO — Residents from lower-lying neighborhoods of Homosassa were invited Thursday to an open house by the Southwest Florida Water Management District to learn the latest updated information about the risk of flooding to their properties that will set future insurance rates.

Current data is 10 to 30 years old, according to the water district, which has been researching areas in Homosassa River North, Homosassa River South and Homosassa South Fork watersheds.

Water district staff met residents individually to show them new maps, help them find their properties and take anecdotal information about the properties.

"The blue areas on the maps show parts considered prone to flooding," said Mark Fulkerson, an engineer with the water district.

Fulkerson pointed out flood risk areas had changed.

"The maps will be available for the public and the county to use," said Gene Altman, senior professional engineer.

Altman said the county would take the updated maps to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for its future use in insurance rate maps. He said it would be as accurate as the technology could make it.

County accepting applications for fire assessment vacancy adjustments

Special to the Chronicle

Each owner of mobile home or recreational vehicle (RV) park property in Citrus County will be given the opportunity to demonstrate the vacancy rate in space occupancy within such property and receive a vacancy adjustment to the Fire Protection Assessments that was approved July 23.

Applications are now available and can be submitted to county government and a determination will be based on evidence of a vacancy rate provided by the property owner. The vacancy rate shall be defined as the percentage of available spaces within a mobile home or RV park that were vacant between Jan. 1, 2012, through and including Dec. 21, 2012.

The following information must be given to be considered eligible for a vacancy adjustment:

■ Applicant must be the owner of the property.

■ Applicant shall complete the application in full, including the vacancy rate calculation (formula provided on application).

Applications and supporting documentation must be submitted in person or by mail. No applications submitted by email will be considered. The property owner must be able to provide the Tax Parcel ID number when completing the application and signature is required.

The application form is available at Citrus County Housing Services, Lecanto Government Building, Citrus County Courthouse Administration Office, second floor, and on the following websites: www.bocc.citrus.fl.us and www.sheriffcitrus.org.

Send completed application together with supporting documentation to: Citrus County Fire Protection Assessment, 1 Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Ave., Inverness, FL 34450.

For any questions, call Citrus County Fire Rescue at 352-726-4488.

Broadway star Harris dies at 87

NEW YORK — Julie Harris, one of Broadway's most honored performers, whose roles ranged from the flamboyant Sally Bowles in "I Am a Camera" to the reclusive Emily Dickinson in "The Belle of Amherst," died Saturday. She was 87.

Julie Harris

Harris died at her West Chatham, Mass., home of congestive heart failure, actress and family friend Francesca James said.

Harris won five Tony Awards for best actress in a play, displaying a virtuosity that enabled her to portray an astonishing gallery of women during a theater career that spanned almost 60 years and included such plays as "The Member of the Wedding" (1950), "The Lark" (1955), "Forty Carats" (1968) and "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln" (1972).

She was honored again with a sixth Tony, a special lifetime achievement award in 2002. Her record is up against Audra McDonald, with five competitive Tonys, and Angela Lansbury with four Tonys in the best actress-musical category and one for best supporting actress in a play.

Television viewers knew Harris as the free-spirited Lilimae Clements on the prime-time soap opera "Knots Landing."

Harris was married three times, to lawyer Jay I. Julian, stage manager Manning Gurian and writer William Erwin Carroll. She had one son, Peter Alston Gurian.

Associated Press

American actor Ashton Kutcher, who portrays Apple's Steve Jobs in the film "Jobs," smiles Sunday at a promotional event hosted by the Macworld iWorld expo in Beijing, China.

'The Butler' stays on top with $17M

NEW YORK — "Lee Daniels' The Butler" served up a second helping at the box office, topping the weekend with $17 million according to studio estimates Sunday.

That was enough to lead all films on a late August weekend known as a dumping ground for studios following their summer blockbusters and before the start of the fall movie-going season. Daniels' historical drama about a long-serving White House butler, starring Forest Whitaker and Oprah Winfrey, last weekend opened with $24.6 million for the Weinstein Co.

Three new releases failed to catch on. The teen fantasy "Mortal Instruments: City of Bones," adapted from the popular young-adult book series, opened tepidly in third with $9.3 million on the weekend and $14 million since opening Wednesday. With franchise hopes, Sony Screen Gems has already started production on a sequel, again starring Lily Collins as a New York teenager who discovers she has mystical powers.

Edgar Wright's pub-crawl-gone-wrong comedy "The World's End" opened with $8.9 million for Focus Features. That was a better start for "The World's End," which stars Simon Pegg, than Wright's last film with the actor: 2007's "Hot Fuzz." It opened with $5.8 million. Playing in 1,549 theaters, "The World's End" did its business in less than half the theaters of "The Butler" or "Mortal Instruments."

Despite good reviews, Lionsgate's home-invasion horror flick "You're Next" opened weakly with $7.1 million.

With a cumulative total of $52.3 million, "The Butler" is headed for a domestic haul of $100 million. It has followed the release pattern of another movie about race and domestic service: the 2011 drama "The Help," also released in August. The Weinstein Co. hopes that "The Butler" will similarly lead to Oscar nominations.

SUIT

The lawsuit intends to represent all similarly situated employees of the defendant regardless of location.

one from Sumter County — to recover unpaid wages.

Grant explained it goes back between three and seven years. The action alleges the plaintiffs were required to work in excess of 40 hours of a week for a salaried amount, performing non-managerial functions without overtime compensation.

It claims the vast majority of their hours were spent performing non-managerial job duties. And during the time period covered by the complaint, they were employed in the capacity of managerial employees.

"They were doing tax returns," said Grant. "They were making less than minimum wage working 60-70-80 hours a week — in violation of the Federal Labor Standards Act."

The Florida defendant is TaxPrep1 Inc., based in Orange County, which owns and operates tax preparation services and does business as Jackson Hewitt Tax Service. The lawsuit intends to represent all similarly situated employees of the defendant regardless of location.

He said those individuals will be notified by letters and will have to "opt in" if they want to be part of the class-action lawsuit.

The company had 21 days to respond. Grant expects to find out during the discovery stage whether the action will extend beyond Florida.

Hewitt Jackson did not respond to email requests for comment through its media information site.

According its website, Jackson Hewitt, one of the nation's largest income tax services, has 6,800 franchised and company-owned locations throughout the United States, including 2,800 inside Walmart stores.

WATERING FINES

- Citrus County issues citations that carry with them a fine of $100 for first offenders of local watering rules. Second violations cost $250, third or more cost $500.

Chronicle to talk about hunger in Citrus County and what she feels is her calling to help ease the hunger pains until the deeper problem is solved.

CHRONICLE: For you, this is more than just bananas. You have a real passion for leftovers and surplus food. Where did that come from?

LATTIN: Growing up in a family of seven — my dad grew up in a family of 13 and my mom in a family of seven — we learned to appreciate leftovers. We also learned that what you put on your plate, you will eat before you leave the table. So, we were very conscious of the food you take and the food you eat and the food you waste, and it became ingrained in me.

Even today, food waste is intolerable to me, especially with all the people in America who are hungry all the time. Food waste should never, ever be. There's a place for food that you may not want but someone else may want and need.

CHRONICLE: That evolved into Citrus County Harvest — when did you start that?

LATTIN: We started Citrus County Harvest, a food recovery program, in 1999. We started with a small board of nine people ... all who had shown compassion for somebody else. We found food that was still good — one of the first donors, and they're still a donor today, is Citrus Memorial hospital. They save their food (from the cafeteria) and package it, label it, freeze it until our volunteers go by and pick it up on a weekly basis ... and deliver it to soup kitchens around the county.

Harvest is still responsible for organizing and facilitating the two (semi-annual) post office food drives; however, this year we're going to turn those drives over to the Community Food Bank of Citrus County, because that's why we started the food bank.

We now have 15 people on our board, because in 2009 we introduced our program, Blessings in a Backpack. That program has kicked our bums. We work 'round the clock, and when I say "we" I'm talking about a team of 200 volunteers who make up the duties of this program.

CHRONICLE: Is it in every elementary school now?

LATTIN: It will be, at least we hope it will be. Just this year we filled out a United Way request for proposal under the health (category) and applied for $15,000. If we get approved, we'll bring on the last elementary school, Rock Crusher Elementary.

CHRONICLE: How did the Blessings in a Backpack start?

LATTIN: It started as a request from Stan Curtis, the founder and CEO of USA Harvest. He called and asked us to support this program that he was starting in Kentucky. We met him in Orlando and talked to him about all the nuts and bolts of getting the program started here. It took us two years to put it all together, because we were so overwhelmed by everything that had to take place — we had to raise our own money to fund it.

CHRONICLE: For those who aren't familiar with this backpack program, explain it.

LATTIN: Typically, we provide three meals a day for Saturdays and Sundays when children aren't in school. These children qualify for this program by being on the federally funded meal program, either the free or reduced (-price) breakfast and lunch program.

Often, when these children go home on the weekend, they don't have food and they don't eat again until they come back to school on Monday. You're shaking your head — we did, too. We couldn't believe there was that kind of hunger and food insecurity in this county, but it exists.

So, we decided we're going to start this program, and we're going to make it happen. We started out filling backpacks that would go to the schools for the schools to disperse to the children on Fridays.

CHRONICLE: What kind of food?

LATTIN: Individual, pop-top, ready-to-eat foods. That costs a little more, but the reason for that: Oftentimes these children are home alone, home without electricity, without running water, etc. So, the types of food we give them are bottled water and another drink, entrées, fruits like applesauce or raisins, snacks such as crackers, Jell-O or pudding, canned meat or beans, breakfast items — we get a lot of food donations from the community to support the program. This support offsets our cost for food by about $5,000 to $7,000.

CHRONICLE: How much does it cost per child?

LATTIN: We've kept the cost per child per year at $100. When we did our homework this summer, we realized $100 per student doesn't cover the cost of food anymore. It did in 2009 — it doesn't in 2013. A more realistic cost is $140 or $150.

CHRONICLE: How many children are in the program?

LATTIN: We will support up to 100 kids at each school, and we're in 10 schools, so we can service up to 1,000 kids this school year every weekend for 35 weeks. That's a lot of money. It's a lot of work. It's $10,000 per school if we hang with the $100 cost per student. That cost per student includes any school-age siblings in the household as well. Last year, we served over 900 kids.

As a board, we're seeking other revenue sources, like grant applications to Publix, which is our main retailer for food. We spent over $120,000 at Publix over the last three years. We've sought funding from the United Way ... and Bank of America, which has been a partner with us every year since we started. Suncoast Schools Federal Credit Union has been an enormous partner with us every single year. We're looking for more avenues and more resources.

CHRONICLE: You mentioned it's no longer a backpack program — last year you changed the name to Citrus County Blessings.

LATTIN: Yes. Last year, two of our schools said they didn't want to use backpacks; they just wanted to use plastic bags. We know why, too. We clean and disinfect the backpacks every week when we receive them. The way it works: Teams of volunteers fill the backpacks with food every Wednesday or Thursday and they're brought to the schools where they're dispersed to the kids on Fridays. The backpacks come back to school on Monday and our volunteers pick them up on Wednesday.

These two schools said even before we get them, the backpacks — oftentimes a cat or dog has gotten into them, food is left in them, things are crawling out of them, they don't smell very good.

It became hard to keep them disinfected — to a point where it wasn't safe to send food home. ... We used double plastic bags provided for us by Publix, and it was an overwhelming success. Now, beginning Friday, Sept. 6, every school will be using plastic bags. They don't have to bring them back, there's no disinfecting, and we are thrilled. So, we are no longer a backpack program.

CHRONICLE: What's next for Debbie Lattin?

LATTIN: To try and find a replacement for me. I would like to be retired. I retired from banking in 2005 and didn't want to do anything else but follow my passion, which is service to the community in Citrus County. I don't want to lead anything any more. I just want to be a hands-on helper in many areas.

CHRONICLE: Are you a natural leader or a reluctant leader — or both?

LATTIN: I don't know how to answer that. I just do what I do because I love to help others.

the responders was stabbed beneath his left armpit, while a second employee sustained an abdominal wound.

Although three pharmacy employees were injured, Blair said they were able to push the suspect to the floor and keep him there until a deputy arrived. According to the arrest report, the deputy removed the knife from the suspect's right hand, handcuffed him and took him into custody. The deputy called for emergency medical services to treat the three employees.

The pharmacist with injured hands was transported to Citrus Memorial hospital for further treatment. The employee with the abdominal injury was flown by Shands helicopter to Ocala Regional Medical Center. The employee with a puncture wound below his left armpit was treated by EMS and remained on scene until the store manager arrived.

According to the arrest report, Kleintank was considered to be under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

It was recommended that Kleintank not be allowed bond because he was considered a flight risk. He was arrested at 3:05 a.m. Sunday and charged with one count of armed robbery and three counts of aggravated battery with intent to kill.

decrease in fund balances during past years.

GSG also observed the traditional approach to budgeting is incremental — spending based on anticipated revenue. But the incremental style "is not up to the financial challenges posed by the new normal of flat or declining revenues, upward cost pressures from health care, pensions and service demands and persistent structural imbalances."

GSG will recommend the county consider a priority-driven budgeting, a target-based budgeting or a zero-base budget approach. In priority-driven budgeting, resources would be allocated by goal achievement. In target-based budgeting, the board would identify strategic priorities and rank them for funding. Zero-based budgeting would require setting the service needs and the supporting resources annually.

■ At 2:15 p.m., the board will conduct a public hearing to adopt fees and assessment rates for 2013-14 for Solid Waste Management. The business plan forecast states that the county has no need to increase fees and cash reserves are adequate.

■ At 3:45 p.m., Larry Williams of Larry Williams Consulting Inc. will make a presentation about the Florida PACE Funding Agency. PACE is an acronym for property assessed clean energy. Qualifying improvements include clean energy, renewable energy and wind resistant improvements of all kinds. The board will be asked to make an agreement with the agency for financing opportunities for all county property owners.

■ County Administrator Brad Thorpe will introduce a discussion of a request for additional funds for the Duke Energy litigation and appraisal for the fourth quarter.

■ Commissioner Dennis Damato will introduce a discussion of the status of Crystal River development projects.

■ Commissioner J.J. Kenney will announce that Citrus County Transit was presented the "Outstanding Rural Transit" award for 2013 by the Florida Commission for the Transportation Disadvantaged.

■ On the consent agenda, the board will be asked to approve the start of energy efficiency upgrades to the following buildings: Courthouse, Courthouse Annex, Lecanto Government Building, Emergency Operations Center, Central Ridge Library, Citrus County Resource Center and the Homosassa Library.

Also on the consent agenda, the board will be asked to set a public hearing at 3 p.m. Sept. 10 regarding local option gas taxes to amend the expiration date to Dec. 31, 2034.

DOUBLE DUTY

Sheriff considers air ambulance

Anyone suffering serious traumatic injuries in Citrus County has a good chance of going by helicopter to a trauma center in Tampa or Gainesville. This happens about 25 to 30 times a month.

And then there is an even better chance the individual will get a shockingly high bill for that transport — as much as $20,000 or more.

This fact has led Citrus County Sheriff Jeff Dawsy and Nature Coast EMS to discuss whether there is a way the medical expertise of EMS personnel and the helicopter owned by the sheriff's department could be put together to provide this service at a better price to Citrus County residents. Air ambulance in Citrus County is currently provided by a for-profit company.

Both the sheriff's office and EMS emphasize that the conversations are in the preliminary stages, and there is still much research to be done before any decisions are made.

However, Dawsy is serious enough about the idea that he and other county officials recently went to Broward County to look at their medical flight program, and a trip is planned to look at a similar program in Volusia County.

According to the sheriff's office, the key questions that need to be answered are (a) does this fit with the mission of the department, (b) can the sheriff's office provide the service at the level it is being supplied now, and (c) can it be done cost-effectively?

Cost is of course a key issue, because helicopters are expensive to own and to operate, and a medical helicopter does not fly all of the time. Much of the time it is on standby, but even when it is not flying, it must be ready to fly and a crew must be ready to leave at a moment's notice.

THE ISSUE:

Sheriff evaluating air ambulance service.

OUR OPINION:

Option worth considering, but do the math.

While the sheriff's helicopter now has to be ready at all times, having it serve as an air ambulance would require not only that the machine and pilots be available, but that the qualified medical personnel to staff it also be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Another question is whether the current helicopter could be modified to become an air ambulance, and if so, at what cost.

These are answerable questions, and worth asking. Citizens of the county are already paying for owning and maintaining a helicopter and its flight crews. If these resources can be used for additional services, this could be a benefit, provided using the sheriff's office helicopter as an air ambulance does not negatively impact public safety.

We encourage the sheriff and EMS to continue this dialogue — and to do the math on whether the idea makes financial sense for Citrus County residents.

Cokie and Steven Roberts
OTHER VOICES

Rep. Steve King is a flag-waving, card-carrying, all-American jerk. In a recent interview with the conservative website Newsmax, the Iowa Republican was discussing the "Dreamers," young people brought to this country as small children by undocumented parents.

"For every one who's a valedictorian," he snarled, "there's another 100 out there that weigh 130 pounds and they've got calves the size of cantaloupes because they're hauling 75 pounds of marijuana across the desert."

King's remarks were immediately condemned by fellow Republican and House Speaker John Boehner as "hateful" and "ignorant." But let's be honest. The Congressman represents an uncomfortable and undeniable streak in our history and our culture.

We are a nation built by immigrants. We are also a nation that has resisted and resented each wave of newcomers as unworthy and un-American.

If the blazing torch of the Statue of Liberty is a national symbol, so are the burning crosses of the Ku Klux Klan. And King's reference to overdeveloped leg muscles is hardly new. Xenophobes have long used distorted body parts to disparage foreigners — big noses, small brains, oily hair.

Electing a black president whose father emigrated from Kenya is an important blow to our nativist impulses. But his opponents have repeatedly tried to discredit Barack Obama as an alien, a Muslim socialist with a funny name and floppy ears who wasn't even born in the United States.

During his first campaign, a woman in Minnesota blurted out what others only whispered: "I don't trust Obama. I have read about him. He's an Arab." Four years later, the Pew Research Center reported that only 49 percent of respondents could correctly identify the president as a Christian, while 17 percent thought he was a Muslim. And they did not mean that as a compliment.

Political Research Associates, a progressive think tank, summed up this tawdry tradition: "This country has a long history of distrust, persecution and exclusion of those seen as having foreign ties and questionable allegiances. Major social movements have been based on the belief that certain ethnic, racial or political groups are by definition disloyal."

History teaches, however, that those social movements are always wrong. America is enriched, every day, by the vigor and vitality of its immigrants. Obama was right when he said in his first inaugural, "We know that our patchwork heritage is a strength, not a weakness."

That's why it's so important for people of courage to stand up to the haters, to dress them down and call them out. People like Ralph L. Carr.

Carr was born in 1887, the son of a miner, and grew up in small Colorado towns like Cripple Creek. He became a lawyer and in 1938 was elected governor. Two months after Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt ordered the forcible internment of more than 120,000 Japanese-Americans, many of them native-born citizens.

Gov. Carr condemned the order and said at the time: "The Japanese are protected by the same constitution that protects us. They have the same rights as we have. ... If you harm them, you must harm me. I was brought up in a small town where I knew the shame and dishonor of race hatred. I grew to despise it because it threatened the happiness of you and you and you."

Carr suffered for his stance, losing a race for the Senate later that year and disappearing from public life. But today he is hailed as a hero.

Last May, Colorado dedicated a new judicial center named for Carr and a plaque in the state capitol lauds him "as a wise, humane man, not influenced by the hysteria and bigotry directed against the Japanese Americans during World War II."

Last year, the Japanese American Citizens League created the Gov. Ralph L. Carr Award for Courage. In July, the award went to three men who were instrumental in passing a 1988 bill that awarded $1.6 billion in reparations to those unfairly detained during the war: President Ronald Reagan, a Republican, who signed the legislation; Speaker Jim Wright, a Democrat, the lead sponsor; and Glenn Roberts, the Congressional staffer who drafted the measure.

We were at the awards ceremony because Glenn is Steve's brother. We watched with great pride as dozens of Japanese-Americans shook his hand, sought his autograph and introduced their children.

If American history is an enduring struggle between light and darkness, between the Ralph Carrs and the Steve Kings, the Carrs will win. They have to win, if America is to live up to its own ideals.

Steve and Cokie Roberts can be contacted by email at stevecokie@gmail.com.

Look at the applicants

It's amazing after reading the paper that Brad Thorpe now has decided he will stay a county administrator. ... Always remember Brad Thorpe had no county administration experience when he was hired. At least analyze the applicants.

Yay for teacher!

"Former student now teacher." I was just reading the article Aug. 8 on the front page about the teachers returning to school. Former (student) at CHS returns to school, Craig Augustine. Wow, what a great encouragement, a great story. This young man went to school at Citrus High School and now he's a teacher. He just sounds so motivated and it's just a great story. Have a good year, Mr. Augustine.

Why didn't Marco Wilson from TOO FAR list Swiftmud as a regulatory roadblock and destructive force against best water management practices? Bare-minimum flows are a crime against Citrus County rivers that are dying.

Stop the tailgating

What I'm calling about is these tailgaters, OK? They're always tailgating everywhere you go. It can't be that hard to devise some way to start giving these people tickets.

Hey, this is where the revenue should be coming from. The safety is just not right. They try to push you through red lights. They try to make you go faster in residential zones. They get right on your tail when you're doing 40 in a 35.

There's double lines, there's people in front of you and there's no where for them to pass, but they're tailgating.

This is where the revenue should come from. That road belongs to all of us.

People get too brave inside their cars. That's why you have the road rage.

County board misrepresents citizens

This citizen-voter endured two days (July 23 and 24) observing the performance of the Citrus County Board of Commissioners. In short, it was appalling.

Our county government is out of control despite vigorous citizen opposition the likes of which I have never before witnessed. Both tax-increase issues got the board's approval for final action in the fall, including a millage increase of 30 percent, which is something far and beyond anything I have heretofore witnessed or heard of — anywhere!

Our county government has now totally disgraced itself at the expense of working folks, while layering an additional economic burden on the backs of the underemployed. One can only hope that grassroots citizen opposition turns this around before final passage. Should it not, it will hasten my decision to seek more decent government elsewhere.

This battle is not over. I await the citizen outrage to blossom. In the interim, the board members are reminded that it was our votes that appointed them to serve us. They serve at our pleasure. And it will be our votes that will remove them from their apparently imagined lofty stations — at our displeasure.

Be reminded: That's how actual democracy works.

Missing word changes meaning

Missing word to add to the editorial: Should stand your ground be repealed?

The sentence as published is located near the end of the third paragraph and read as follows: (Note: I inserted a pair of parentheses where the word if should have been.)

"As this concept grew it was expanded to include the concept that ( ) you had a right to be where you were, you were not obligated to turn your back on a deadly threat and run for your life, you had a right to defend your existence then and there."

When published, the word that was left out was if. Then the sentence would have read: "... if you had a right to be where you were ..."

For example, if you were invited to a gathering you have a right to be there. If you were not invited or are asked to leave, you may no longer have a right to be there. In which case, if something undesirable happens you may no longer receive any benefit from that concept. That is why the word if is critically important to the understanding of that sentence and the concept itself.

Missed opportunities in sheriff's budget

During the July 24 BOCC budget hearing, Cmdr. (Buddy) Grant was given the privilege of making the sheriff's budget presentation. While we saw a new face making this presentation, sadly we got the same old shell game.

Grant spoke of budget reductions by providing a list of seven examples of positions re-classified. Unfortunately, most of these reductions took place over the past couple of years, and the 2008 mass promotion of four lieutenants to nonexistent captain's positions, resulted in three captains in command of the patrol division. He also failed to mention the two massive rounds of promotions made earlier this year after the retirements of the two bureau commanders. He concluded this list by claiming savings from the retirement of their public information officer and how they reduced that position to a media relations specialist. While this is correct, this reclassification did not result in any savings to the budget. The former PIO was earning $80,000 in salary and benefits. She was also the only non-sworn administrative employee who did not have a take-home car. In fact, for the bulk of her career with CCSO she handled the media alone without a car.

Approximately six years ago, the sheriff added a media relations specialist who assisted her in her duties, and was given a take-home car to do so. With the retirement of the PIO, this person was promoted to media relations manager, earning the same salary and benefits as the now-retired PIO with a take-home car. The county's PIO was then hired to fill the vacant media relations specialist position, earning $70,000 salary and benefits, with a take-home car. So actually, the budget for the now revamped media information and relations unit has increased with the addition of a second take-home car.

By contrast, the city of Clearwater uses one PIO for both police and fire, with a take-home car, salary of $62,000, plus benefits.

Grant also stated the BOCC had asked the sheriff to reduce his budget by $400,000, which he claimed they did by once again "banking our holiday pay." Once again we have government leader(s) not understanding what a budget reduction is. As Grant pointed out, this action will be a liability for following fiscal years. This is not a reduction, as it is merely "kicking the can" down the budget road. This is no small matter, as it will literally gut the intended effect of the 3 percent COLA. If there is any doubt, just look at the total figures. The COLA will cost $538,047, while the banking of holiday pay will take $401,000 from the pockets of their employees, for a net gain of $137,046 shared between 376 employees. In effect the banking of holiday pay is a forced loan from the employees to the sheriff without interest.

There were other savings opportunities that could have been used. The sheriff could have reduced discretionary flight time of the helicopters by 20 hours, which would have saved between $200,000 and $300,000. He could have parked the take-home cars for non-sworn administrative personnel, for fuel, maintenance, and insurance savings of between $60,000 and 100,000. He had the chance to eliminate a bureau commander's position and save close to $150,000 in salary, benefits and vehicle costs. Finally, he could have saved close to $90,000 by not filling the media relations specialist position (salary, benefits, and vehicle costs). These are just some of the savings opportunities that could have been made to cut the budget without taking the holiday pay of line employees.

Utopian wish list

I read the article by Dennis Damato regarding the extension and all the benefits it will bring to Citrus County. Early on the extension was touted as a relief to traffic on (Interstate) 75, but I guess someone realized that was not going to be a big plus. I can really laugh at the thought of semis paying the tolls, stopping how many times for lights in Chiefland, Perry, etc. Now we are asking for an interchange at County Road 495.

His entire position is based on a utopian wish list. Tourism and eco-tourism might bring a few to the county, but until you have beaches you won't attract the hordes of tourists Damato indicates will come if we just build a $500 or $600 million highway. Why not use that state monies to expand I-75?

I sure would like some proof of the "economic trigger" he envisions; or are we looking at another political boondoggle, spending money we do not have and probably will not have for a long time? Scott Adams' principles for the counties future make a lot more sense.

Mom: Pa. girl off oxygen after two lung transplants

PHILADELPHIA — The mother of a 10-year-old Pennsylvania girl recovering from two double lung transplants said the girl has been taken off oxygen and is doing well.

Janet Murnaghan told The Associated Press on Sunday that her daughter Sarah was taken off oxygen but still gets support from a machine that helps her breathe.

Murnaghan said that in the last few days Sarah has started to walk around the hospital with the aid of a walker and has even gone outside briefly.

The Newtown Square girl with end-stage cystic fibrosis received the transplants at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia after a federal judge intervened in her parents' lawsuit challenging national transplant rules.

Sarah's first set of adult lungs failed after a transplant June 12. A second set was transplanted three days later.

68 dogs found after fire at NYC home

NEW YORK — Sixty-eight dogs have been rescued from a blaze in a New York City home.

Fire officials said the fire in the two-story house in Staten Island was reported on Friday evening. It was extinguished in about a half hour.

No injuries were reported.

Officials said the owner of the single-family home was a hoarder who collected small-breed dogs as well as trash. Some of the animals were kept in a yard next to the house.

Richard Gentles of Animal Care & Control of NYC said the dogs were removed to a shelter. He said a medical team is evaluating them and caring for them.

Fire marshals are investigating the cause of the blaze.

Pa. county to study trail link to Flight 93 site

SHANKSVILLE, Pa. — A western Pennsylvania county is exploring the possibility of extending a public trail system to the Flight 93 National Memorial.

The Daily American reported Sunday that Somerset County will seek proposals for a feasibility study on the best way to extend the Great Allegheny Passage bike trail north to the Flight 93 National Memorial.

The memorial honors the passengers and crew members killed when the plane crashed into a field Sept. 11, 2001, after they fought back against hijackers.

Somerset County has obtained more than $100,000 in grants and donations for the project. Officials expect to hire a firm to conduct the study sometime this fall.

Yosemite fire poses challenges

Gusting winds add problems

Associated Press

Associated Press

A firefighter watches for spot fires Sunday during a burnout operation while battling the Rim Fire near Yosemite National Park, Calif. Fire crews are clearing brush and setting sprinklers to protect two groves of giant sequoias as a massive week-old wildfire rages along the remote northwest edge of Yosemite National Park.

GROVELAND, Calif. — For 30 years, Ike Bunney has run a dude ranch amid the tall pines and steep canyons along the North Fork of the Tuolumne River in California's Sierra Nevada. Now his 15 horses are safe in distant pastures as wildfire on the northern edge of Yosemite National Park threatens his mountain community.

"We've already evacuated the horses," said Bunney, who was maintaining vigil Sunday at his Slide Mountain Guest Ranch. "I think they're worried about the fire sparking over these hills."

At the nearby Black Oak Casino in Tuolumne City, the slot machines were quiet as emergency workers took over nearly all of the resort's 148 hotel rooms.

"The casino is empty," said casino employee Jessie Dean. "Technically, the casino is open but there's nobody there."

As thick smoke portends the fire's fast approach, the area has been cleared of everyone but locals and emergency workers. Dean lives on the reservation of the Tuolumne Band of Me-Wuk Indians and left her four children at relatives' homes in the Central Valley.

With winds gusting to 50 mph on Sierra mountain ridges and flames jumping from treetop to treetop, hundreds of firefighters have been deployed to protect this and other communities in the path of the Rim Fire raging north of Yosemite National Park.

Eight fire trucks and four bulldozers were deployed to work near Bunney's ranch on the west side of Mount Baldy.

Overnight the fire grew 7 square miles as firefighters gained little ground in slowing the now 207 square-mile blaze, said Daniel Berlant of the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

"Today, unfortunately, we are expecting strong winds out of the south," he said. "It's going to allow the fire to advance to the northeast."

Fire officials are using bulldozers to clear contingency lines on the Rim Fire's north side to protect the towns of Tuolumne City, Ponderosa Hills and Twain Hart. The lines are being cut a mile ahead of the fire in locations where fire officials hope they will help protect the communities should the fire jump containment lines.

The high winds and movement of the fire from bone-dry brush on the ground to 100-foot oak and pine treetops have created dire conditions.

Officials estimate containment at just 7 percent.

Syria agrees to UN probe of purported attacks

Associated Press

Associated Press

Black columns of smoke rise from heavy shelling Sunday in the Jobar neighborhood, east of Damascus, Syria. Syria reached an agreement with the United Nations on Sunday to allow a U.N. team of experts to visit the site of alleged chemical weapons attacks last week outside Damascus, state media said.

DAMASCUS, Syria — Syria reached an agreement with the United Nations on Sunday to allow a team of international experts to visit the site of alleged chemical weapons attacks last week outside Damascus, state media and the U.N. said.

A statement on Syrian state television said Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem and U.N. disarmament chief Angela Kane struck the deal during talks in Damascus, and that the two sides are working to finalize the date and time of the visit.

The world body said that a team of U.N. experts already in Syria has been instructed to focus on investigating the purported attack on Wednesday. The mission "is preparing to conduct on-site fact-finding activities"' on Monday, U.N. spokesman Martin Nesirky said in a statement.

Anti-government activists and Doctors Without Borders say that more than 300 people were killed in the alleged toxic gas attack on the eastern suburbs of the Syrian capital. Images purporting to show the aftermath of the attack are filled with people gasping for breath and dead children unmarked by any wounds.

The eastern Ghouta area where the attack took place is under opposition control, which makes arranging a trip across the front lines difficult. Rebels and the main Western-backed opposition group have said they would guarantee access and the safety of a U.N. team to facilitate an investigation.

Nesirky said the Syrian government "affirmed that it will provide the necessary cooperation, including the observance of the cessation of hostilities at the locations related to the incident."

He added that U.N. chief Ban Ki-moon "would like to reiterate that all relevant parties equally share the responsibility of cooperating in urgently generating a safe environment for the mission to do its job efficiently and providing all necessary information."

The deal appears to meet the demands of the world powers, including the U.S., Britain, France and Russia, all of whom called on the Syrian government to cooperate with the U.N. and grant inspectors access to the sites.

Confirming whether chemical weapons were indeed used carries enormous stakes, and could play a large role in determining the future course of Syria's civil war. It has reinvigorated debate about the possible use of foreign military action in the conflict.

Last week, France said that if an independent investigation confirms that chemical weapons were indeed employed, then military force could be used in Syria.

The U.S. Navy has sent a fourth warship armed with ballistic missiles into the eastern Mediterranean Sea, closer to Syria, as President Barack Obama considers a military response.

A senior administration official said Sunday that the U.S. has "very little doubt" that chemical weapons were used in Wednesday's attack. The official said the U.S. intelligence community based its assessment, which was given to the White House, on "the reported number of victims, reported symptoms of those who were killed or injured" and witness accounts.

That appeared to align with French assessments, as well.

The U.S. official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to discuss the matter.

In Paris, French President Francois Hollande said a "body of evidence" suggests that chemical weapons were used during Wednesday's attacks, and that Syrian President Bashar Assad's regime was most likely behind it. According to a statement Sunday from his office, Hollande said "everything" leads France to believe the regime was behind the attack. It didn't elaborate.

The U.N. team that will carry out the investigation arrived in Syria last week to look into three earlier purported chemical attacks. The mission is led by Swedish expert Ake Sellstrom.

Mexico migrant train derails; at least 5 dead

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico — An infamous cargo train carrying at least 250 Central American migrants heading to the U.S. derailed in a remote region of southern Mexico on Sunday, killing five and injuring 16, authorities said.

The train company and rescue workers were bringing in two cranes to help search for more victims among the eight derailed cars of the train known as "The Beast," officials said. Thousands of migrants ride its roof on their way north each year, braving brutal conditions for a chance at crossing into the U.S.

The Tabasco state government said at least 250 Honduran migrants were on the train heading north from the Guatemala border. Heavy rains had loosened the earth beneath the tracks and shifted the rails, officials said.

The locomotive and first car did not derail and were used to move victims to the nearest hospital, which was in the neighboring state of Veracruz. Tabasco state Civil Protection chief Cesar Burelo Burelo said the accident took place at 3 a.m. Sunday in a marshy area surrounded by lakes and forest that is out of cellphone range.

The Red Cross said dozens of soldiers, marines and civilian emergency workers rushed to the area, which ambulances couldn't reach. Officials were trying to establish air or water links to the scene.

Mario Bustillos Borge, the Red Cross chief in Tabasco, described the rescue as "a complex situation" that was making it difficult to get rapid confirmation of the true number of dead and injured.

"There are some very high estimates, and others that are more conservative," he told a local radio station, without providing details.

Insurgent attacks in Iraq kill at least 41

BAGHDAD — Authorities said a spate of attacks across Iraq has killed at least 41 people, extending a wave of bloodshed roiling the country.

Police and hospital officials said the attacks Sunday included two evening bombings in the city of Baqouba, about 35 miles northeast of Baghdad. One blast in a residential area there killed seven and wounded 34, while another next to a wedding party convoy killed four and wounded 17.

Authorities said another bomb exploded inside a coffee shop in Baghdad's Shaab neighborhood, killing three and wounding 16 others.

Officials said another hit a group of youth playing football in Madain, killing four and wounding 13.

Hospital officials confirmed the casualty figures. All officials spoke on condition of anonymity as they were not authorized to release the information.

Granderson hits key sac fly, Yanks beat Rays

NY avoids sweep with 2-1 win

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Curtis Granderson hit a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning and the New York Yankees avoided a three-game sweep by defeating the Tampa Bay Rays 3-2 on Sunday.

Alfonso Soriano started the winning rally with a one-out double off Jamey Wright (2-2). He stole third and came home on Granderson's fly ball to center.

Mariano Rivera, making his last regular-season appearance at Tropicana Field, received a standing ovation before getting the final three outs for his 38th save. The closer is planning to retire after this season.

Pinch hitter Alex Rodriguez opened the 10th with a single to center off Wright and went to second on Brett Gardner's sacrifice. Rodriguez then was doubled off second after Wright grabbed a line drive by Ichiro Suzuki that appeared headed toward center field.

Rodriguez, who is appealing his 211-game suspension by Major League Baseball, was booed every time he came to the plate during the series. He went 2 for 9 with two strikeouts.

New York manager Joe Girardi had the third baseman on the bench at the start of the series finale, due to a day game after a night game. Rodriguez didn't make his season debut until Aug. 5 after having offseason hip surgery.

Evan Longoria homered and drove in two runs for the Rays.

New York got a homer and two RBIs from Robinson Cano.

The Yankees took a 2-1 lead in the sixth on Cano's RBI double off Alex Cobb. He was easily thrown out attempting to stretch the hit into a triple.

Longoria responded with his 28th homer in the bottom half.

Cano had an opposite-field homer to left during the fourth. Rays second baseman Ben Zobrist took away an RBI single from Lyle Overbay later in the inning when he drove to his left and then make an accurate throw to first for the inning-ending out.

Longoria put the Rays up 1-0 with an RBI single in the first. Yankees starter Ivan Nova avoided further damage by getting an inning-ending double play from James Loney with the bases loaded.

Nova allowed six hits and tied a career high with six walks in 6 2/3 innings.

Cobb gave up seven hits over 5 2/3 innings. It was the right-hander's third start after missing two months after being struck in the head by a liner hit by Kansas City's Eric Hosmer on June 15.

Errorless Adam Scott opens FedEx Cup playoffs with a win

Associated Press

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — Masters champion Adam Scott won The Barclays on Sunday after everyone around him did their best to lose it.

Scott played bogey-free at Liberty National, making only two birdies on the back nine for a 5-under 66 that put him in the mix of a crowded leaderboard at the top. Turns out he was the only one who stayed there.

"I can't believe it, to be honest," Scott said after winning the FedEx Cup playoffs opener. "I just played a good round today and I came in and really didn't think it had a chance. But obviously, things went my way a lot out there."

Justin Rose had a 25-foot birdie putt for the lead, ran it 5 feet by the cup and three-putted for a bogey for a 68. Kevin Chappell had a two-shot lead through 10 holes, only to play the next seven holes in 7-over par to close with a 76.

Tiger Woods suffered a back spasm on the par-5 13th hole and hooked a fairway metal so far left that it landed in a swamp on the other side of the 15th fairway, leading to bogey. He dropped another shot on the 15th, and then gamely birdied the 16th and 17th holes to pull within one shot of Scott. Woods' putt from the back of the 18th green was one turn short of falling to force a playoff.

The last challenge came from Gary Woodland, who fell out of the lead when he hit driver on the 13th that ran into the water, leading to bogey. Woodland had birdie chances from inside 10 feet on the final three holes, and missed them all. He closed with a 73.

"I found a way to hang in there and grind it out and gave myself a chance on the back nine on Sunday, which is everything you can ask for," Woodland said.

Scott finished at 11-under 273 and moved to a career-best No. 2 in the world.

It was the second time Woods has missed a playoff by one shot at Liberty National.

Woods, Woodland and Rose shared second place with Graham DeLaet of Canada, whose 65 matched the low score of the final round. DeLaet will move up to No. 9 in the Presidents Cup standings, and with one week before qualifying ends, is in good shape to make the International team.

Woods had all four rounds in the 60s for the first time in a year on the PGA Tour, though it wasn't enough. He battled stiffness in his lower back all week, which he attributed to a soft bed in his hotel room — the second straight year he has had back issues from a mattress at this event.

In a brief interview with CBS Sports, he said it was "hypothetical" when asked if he would compete in the Deutsche Bank Championship, the next playoff event that starts Friday on the TPC Boston. The tournament gives its

Nadal surging, knee a question

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ask Rafael Nadal how his famously troublesome left knee is feeling on the eve of the U.S. Open, and he'll balk a bit while formulating a response.

Rafael Nadal

"I am ..." the 12-time major title winner began, haltingly, during an interview with The Associated Press.

"You know ..." he resumed, before smiling sheepishly and pausing again.

Eventually, Nadal offered something of a complicated answer.

"I have to say that I am very well, because the results have been amazing since I came back," he said. "If I say something else, (it) will sound strange."

That's because when the year's last Grand Slam tournament begins today, none of the players setting foot on the blue hard courts of Flushing Meadows possesses as much momentum — or is in as fine form — as the No. 2-seeded Nadal. He's won his past 10 matches heading into the first round against the 97th-ranked Ryan Harrison of the United States.

Another past U.S. Open champion on this afternoon's schedule is 2000-01 winner Venus Williams, a former No. 1 now ranked 60th who will be taking on recent Wimbledon semifinalist and 12th-seeded Kirsten Flipkens of Belgium. At night, Williams' younger sister Serena, the defending champion, plays 2010 French Open winner Francesca Schiavone of Italy, while 17-time major champion Roger Federer faces 62nd-ranked Grega Zemlja of Slovenia.

The biggest curiosity when it comes to Nadal these days is how his knees will hold up. They've presented recurring problems for him over the years, particularly the left one, which kept him out of action from late June 2012 until February 2013. He missed

Japan wins ninth LLWS title

Associated Press

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Ryusei Hirooka lined a decisive two-run double in the bottom of the fifth inning, Shunpei Takagi hit two solo home runs, and Tokyo beat Chula Vista, Calif., 6-4 on Sunday to win the Little League World Series.

It was the 14th championship game for Japan, which was making its fourth straight appearance in the title game, and ninth championship. California, making its 23rd championship-game appearance, has won seven World Series titles.

Giancarlo Cortez had a two-run single and Grant Holman an RBI single for Chula Vista.

Trailing 4-3 after Cortez's clutch single in the fourth, Japan tied it on Takagi's second homer and won it when Hirooka lined a 2-2 pitch down the left-field line for a double.

California beat Westport, Conn., 12-1 in the U.S. championship game Saturday, while Japan beat Mexico 3-2 for the international title.

Japan finished the tournament undefeated but had to rally to beat the Americans, who left 12 runners on base in a game that was there for the taking.

Facing one last threat in the sixth, the Japanese players erupted in glee, tossing manager Masumi Omae in the air near the mound after his slick fielders had turned a game-ending double play.

SNOQUALMIE, Wash. — John Riegger won the Boeing Classic on Sunday in his fifth Champions Tour start, holding off John Cook and Fred Couples at TPC Snoqualmie Ridge.

The 50-year-old Riegger birdied three of the final four holes — holing a 20-footer for birdie on the par-5 18th — for a 4-under 68 and a two-stroke victory over Cook. Riegger finished at 15-under 201.

Cook closed with a 65. Couples, from Seattle, was third at 11 under after a 66.

charity money to Woods' foundation. Woods already missed the AT&T National this year, which also benefits his foundation.

"I just got off and I'm not feeling my best right now," he said.

Rose was feeling that great, either. He was in position to win the tournament with a birdie putt, and the U.S. Open champion did not want to leave it short. Instead, he knocked it by farther than he imagined, the ball stayed on the high side of the cup the whole way.

"I got too aggressive," Rose said. "I thought it was a putt to win the tournament. It's tough to take."

Scott won for the second time this year, and at least put himself into the conversation for PGA Tour player of the year if he were to go on to win the FedEx Cup. He is No. 2 in the standings behind Woods, though the $10 million prize does not come into view until the Tour Championship.

The first playoff event was packed with plenty of energy on a spectacular day across from the Statue of Liberty and the Manhattan skyline. Five players had at least a share of the lead at some point in the final round. Woods put up a great fight despite his back injury. Scott played the final 24 holes without a bogey.

Sunday also had some of the emotions found at Q-school for players whose season came to an abrupt end. And it was just as wild at the bottom.

Only the top 100 players in the FedEx Cup advance to the second playoff event next week outside Boston. Geoff Ogilvy could have joined them except for missing a 2 1/2-foot par putt on the final hole that ultimately knocked him out of the top 100.

Camilo Villegas, at No. 110, thought he needed a 6-foot par putt on the last hole to advance. He missed it and was visibly angry. More than an hour later, Aaron Baddeley appeared to be a lock to advance to Boston despite being at No. 119. Baddeley, however, bogeyed his last three holes, missing a 5-foot par putt on the 18th. That knocked him out and put Villegas back in at No. 100.

Scott didn't miss anything. He made three straight birdies on the front nine, got into the mix with a 10-foot birdie on the 14th, and then chose to lay up with an iron on the 16th hole, which played about 290 yards. He holed a 15-foot birdie putt to tie for the lead, never realizing he would be there by himself when it was over.

He was on the practice range, looking at a video board of Woodland's last birdie attempt, when he saw the miss.

"It was a good charge, but obviously I got a lot of luck, the guys struggled coming in," Scott said. "I've been in their position, too. It's hard getting it done and I was playing from a position of nothing to lose today."

Teen star Lydia Ko wins again in Canada

EDMONTON, Alberta — Teen star Lydia Ko ran away with the Canadian Women's Open — again.

The 16-year-old New Zealand amateur successfully defend her title Sunday, closing with a 6-under 64 on Sunday at Royal Mayfair for a five-stroke victory and her fourth win in professional events.

Last year at Vancouver Golf Club in British Columbia, the South Korean-born Ko became the youngest winner in LPGA Tour history at 15 years, 4 months, 2 days. She also was the fifth amateur winner in tour history and the first since JoAnne Carner in the 1969 Burdine's Invitational.

Ko's other victories in professional events came last year in the Australian tour's New South Wales Open and this year in the Ladies European Tour's New Zealand Women's Open.

Ko had a 15-under 265 total after opening with rounds of 65, 69 and 67. She's projected to jump from 19th to seventh in the world ranking.

A stroke behind Caroline Hedwall entering the final round, Ko birdied five of the first eight holes and reached 15 under with a birdie on the par-4 12th. She dropped a stroke on the par-4 13th, parred the next four and closed with a birdie on the par-4 18th.

France's Karine Icher was second after a 67.

Hedwall, the Swede coming off a record 5-0 performance last week in Colorado in the Solheim Cup in Europe's blowout victory over the United States, had a 71 to tie for third at 9 under with Brittany Lincicome (69).

Ko has played 14 LPGA Tour events the last two seasons, making the cut in every tournament. She also won the U.S. Women's Amateur last summer.

Fleetwood wins Johnnie Walker Championship

GLENEAGLES, Scotland — Tommy Fleetwood of England birdied the first playoff hole Sunday at the Johnnie Walker Championship to earn his first European Tour victory.

Fleetwood also birdied the 18th to finish his round with a 70 and set up a three-way playoff with Scotland's Stephen Gallacher (67) and Argentina's Ricardo Gonzalez (70) after all three finished at 18-under 270 on the PGA Centenary course.

Playing the par-5 18th again, Fleetwood narrowly missed an eagle putt from the fringe and then rolled in a three-footer for the win. Gallacher and Gonzalez both made par.

Gallacher overcame a triple-bogey 7 on the 11th hole with a round that included five birdies and two eagles — including one on the 18th to make the playoff.

"It's just unbelievable as it's been a lifetime goal to win on the European Tour," Fleetwood said. "I'm sure there will be bigger and better goals in my career but this feels absolutely amazing right now."

Fleetwood went into the final round of his 50th Tour event sharing the lead on 16-under with Gonzalez but slipped well off the pace to be 1 over for his round through 15 holes.

However, he then eagled the 16th and birdied the last.

Fleetwood was watched by his parents and ailing 14-year old dog, Maisy.

"She was diagnosed with cancer a couple of weeks ago," Fleetwood said. "So given her condition, this week is pretty special."

Gallacher made a triple bogey at the 11th hole but then made up four shots in his closing five holes, including grabbing an eagle at the last.

The 43-year old Gonzalo was looking to end a four-year winless drought.

New Orleans Saints quarterback Drew Brees scrambles to pass Sunday as Houston Texans linebacker Willie Jefferson moves in during the first half of a preseason game in Houston.

Saints rally for 31-23 victory over Texans

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston's Andre Johnson had 131 yards receiving before halftime in his first extended work of the preseason Sunday against the New Orleans Saints.

But the New Orleans backups scored two touchdowns in the second half to help the Saints to a 31-23 victory.

Johnson didn't play in the preseason opener and had less than a quarter of work last week. On Sunday, he grabbed seven of the eight passes thrown to him, highlighted by a 39-yard reception.

Matt Schaub threw for 213 yards for Houston (2-1), and Ben Tate had 74 yards rushing and a score filling in for Arian Foster.

Drew Brees threw for 104 yards and a touchdown for New Orleans (3-0).

49ers 34, Vikings 14

SAN FRANCISCO — After a slow start, Colin Kaepernick completed six straight passes in his third series of the game and connected on a 5-yard-touchdown toss to Quinton Patton, and Lavelle Hawkins returned a kickoff 105 yards for a score late in the second quarter in San Francisco's 34-14 preseason victory over Minnesota

Kaepernick began the game 1 for 7, then converted his next six pass attempts — including four in a row of 10 or more yards — and finished 7 for 13 for 72 yards.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Jaguars cut veteran Cain, part ways with others

JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Jaguars have released veteran long snapper Jeremy Cain, who played in every game the last four seasons.

The Jaguars went with undrafted rookie long snapper Carson Tinker, a move that will save the club more than $500,000 against the salary cap.

Jacksonville also placed rookie cornerback Jeremy Harris, a seventh-round draft pick, on injured reserve with a back injury.

The Jags waived guard Mark Asper, punter Ken Parrish, cornerback Lionel Smith, linebacker Maalik Bomar, linebacker Jeremiah Green, defensive end J.D. Griggs, defensive end Paul Hazel, long snapper Luke Ingram, receiver Jamal Miles, safety Ray Polk and offensive tackle Roderick Tomlin.

The moves get the team to the NFL-mandated roster limit of 75.

General manager Dave Caldwell said "this is never an easy day."

Jets say Sanchez day-to-day with shoulder injury

NEW YORK — The New York Jets say quarterback Mark Sanchez is "day-to-day" with an injured right shoulder that will sideline him for the preseason finale against Philadelphia on Thursday night.

The team did not announce the nature or severity of the injury, suffered in the Jets' 24-21 overtime victory over the Giants on Saturday night. Sanchez had an X-ray after the game on the shoulder, which apparently revealed no fractures, and an MRI exam Sunday to determine if there's any damage. The Jets' announcement indicated that Sanchez likely does not have a season-ending injury.

Former Brazil goalkeeper Neves dies at 83

SAO PAULO — Gylmar dos Santos Neves, the Brazilian goalkeeper who helped the country win World Cup titles in 1958 and 1962, has died after a heart attack. He was 83.

The Brazilian soccer federation said Sunday that Neves had been hospitalized since last week after complications from the heart attack.

Neves also was on Brazil's team during the 1966 World Cup, but it was in the two previous tournaments that his career peaked. He was Pele's teammate at Santos and also played for Brazilian club Corinthians. His health had weakened after sustaining a stroke in 2000.

NADAL

the London Olympics, last year's U.S. Open and this year's Australian Open.

"I feel more comfortable now than six months ago, that's for sure," Nadal said, then quickly added: "But I still have pain some days."

He was asked whether he thinks that might be the case for the rest of his career.

"Hopefully not," the 27-year-old Nadal said. "Hopefully not."

Hard courts could exacerbate the matter because of the pounding legs take on the unforgiving surface. Nadal himself maintains that there should be more tournaments played on other kinds of courts.

Yet he's been successful everywhere, winning the Australian Open and U.S. Open once each, along with Wimbledon twice, to go along with his record eight championships on the slower red clay of the French Open. Nadal is 15-0 on hard courts in 2013, with his current run of victories built en route to titles at Montreal and Cincinnati.

"He's on a great streak right now. He's playing fantastic tennis. He's playing as well as anyone in the world right now," said the 21-year-old Harrison, who will be making his Arthur Ashe Stadium debut against the tournament's 2010 champion. "So I'm going to have to bring a really high level out."

Nadal's rivals at the top of the game have taken note, too, of course.

Summed up defending champion Andy Murray: "He's going to be very difficult to beat here."

Top-seeded Novak Djokovic, who won the 2011 U.S. Open, said: "Nadal is definitely back, and he's playing maybe the best tennis that he ever has played on hard courts. ... He seems like he changed a little bit the game. He stepped in a little bit more. He knows that now he has to be a bit more aggressive than he usually is because of, I guess, his knees and everything and because hard court is not clay. It's not his favorite surface; it's faster. I'm sure he worked on that."

Nadal agreed with that assessment: He is making an effort to hit balls earlier than he used to. He is trying to be more aggressive.

"I'm clearly very impressed, especially seeing him play really well on the quicker hard courts. ... He's someone to be reckoned with. There were a lot of question marks when he came back. Especially, people thought he was just going to play on the clay courts, or most of it, and just some hard courts," said Federer, the champion in New York every year from 2004-08.

"He's playing a full schedule," Federer said, "and he's had an incredible season so far."

All told, Nadal is 53-3 with a tour-leading nine titles, more than twice as many as any other man. He reached the final at 11 of the 12 tournaments he entered.

Baltimore's Chris Davis and home plate umpire Jordan Baker look at Davis' foul ball Sunday during the fourth inning against the Oakland Athletics in Baltimore. The Orioles won 10-3.

Orioles hammer Athletics

Halladay strong in return to mound

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Chris Davis had two hits and collected his 118th RBI, and the Baltimore Orioles hit three home runs in a 10-3 rout of the Oakland Athletics on Sunday.

J.J. Hardy, Nick Markakis and Nate McLouth connected for the Orioles, who took two of three from Oakland to move within two games of the Athletics in the race for the second AL wild-card slot.

Oakland had gone 105 straight games since April 25 without allowing 10 runs. Rookie Sonny Gray (1-2) absorbed the brunt of the damage, yielding six runs and eight hits in 3 1/3 innings.

Scott Feldman (4-3) gave up one run in five innings for the Orioles.

American League
Blue Jays 2, Astros 1

HOUSTON — Mark Buehrle allowed one run over eight innings and the Toronto Blue Jays rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to snap a seven-game losing streak with a 2-1 win over the Houston Astros.

Buehrle (10-7) allowed seven hits and struck out seven in winning his fifth straight. Casey Janssen pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

White Sox 5, Rangers 2

CHICAGO — Jordan Danks homered after replacing the injured Avisail Garcia, backing a solid start by his brother John and helping the surging Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 5-2.

The White Sox took two of three from the AL West leaders, giving them eight victories in their last nine games.

Josh Phegley went deep after hitting the winning single in the ninth inning the previous night. John Danks (4-10) outpitched Matt Garza (3-2), allowing two runs over six innings for his second straight win.

Indians 3, Twins 1

CLEVELAND — Drew Stubbs hit a tiebreaking, two-out homer in the eighth inning and the Cleveland Indians overcame four errors to beat the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Stubbs homered to dead center on a 0-1 pitch from Jared Burton (2-7) to snap a 1-all tie and lift the Indians to a crucial win in their quest a spot in the American League playoffs. Joe Smith (5-1) pitched a scoreless eighth and Chris Perez worked the ninth for his 21st save.

Angels 7, Mariners 1

SEATTLE — Jered Weaver gave up just three hits in eight strong innings, Kole Calhoun added a two-run homer and the Los Angeles Angels completed a three-game sweep with a 7-1 win over the Seattle Mariners.

Weaver (8-7) continued the Angels pitching dominance in the three-game series, where they allowed two runs.

National League
Braves 5, Cardinals 2

ST. LOUIS — Mike Minor bounced back from the shortest outing of his career with seven strong innings and Andrelton Simmons homered to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 5-2 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Atlanta, which has the best record in the NL, broke a three-game losing streak and salvaged the final game of the four-game set.

St. Louis had a four-game winning streak snapped.

Minor (13-5) gave up one run on six hits. He struck out two and walked one.

Simmons hit his 12th homer of the season, a solo shot in the seventh that gave the Braves a 4-1 lead.

Rockies 4, Marlins 3

MIAMI — Nolan Arenado hit a tiebreaking RBI double in the sixth and the Colorado Rockies held on for a 4-3 win over the Miami Marlins.

Jorge De La Rosa (14-6) won his fourth consecutive decision, allowing three runs in five innings. De La Rosa improved to 7-0 with a 1.92 ERA in day games.

Miami's Justin Ruggiano homered and drove in two runs.

Phillies 9, Diamondbacks 5

PHILADELPHIA — Roy Halladay pitched six strong innings in his return from the disabled list and John Mayberry Jr. homered to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-5 victory over the Arizona Diamondbacks.

Cody Asche had two hits with a double and two RBIs and Roger Bernadina had two RBIs for the Phillies, who have won six of their last eight games.

A.J. Pollock had three hits, including a three-run homer, for Arizona, which has lost four of five.

Brewers 3, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Caleb Gindl homered for the second straight game, and rejuvenated Marco Estrada held Cincinnati's lineup to one single over seven shutout innings, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 3-1 victory over the Reds.

The Brewers took two of three from the Reds, who remain right behind Pittsburgh and St. Louis in the NL Central race.

Estrada (6-4) gave up Shin-Soo Choo's leadoff single in the first inning, and then left the Reds swinging at nothing. He walked two, fanned a season-high nine and retired 10 batters on popups or fly balls — usually a risky thing in homer-friendly Great American Ball Park.

Giants 4, Pirates 0

SAN FRANCISCO — Ryan Vogelsong threw eight sharp innings for his first victory in three months, helping the San Francisco Giants beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0.

Pablo Sandoval had two RBIs as the Giants won their second straight to split the series with the Pirates. Buster Posey and Joaquin Arias each drove in a run.

Vogelsong (3-4) allowed two hits, struck out five and walked one in his first win since May 20 against Washington. The right-hander used his longest outing of the season to lower his ERA to 2.55 in four starts since coming off the disabled list on Aug. 9.

A.J. Burnett (6-9) pitched 7 1/3 innings for Pittsburgh, giving up four runs and eight hits. He fell to 2-3 in 10 starts since returning from the DL.

Padres 3, Cubs 2, 15 innings

SAN DIEGO — Nick Hundley hit a game-ending RBI single in the 15th inning to lift the San Diego Padres to a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Logan Forsythe set up the winning hit with a one-out single against Hector Rondon (2-1). He moved up on a groundout before Alexi Amarista was intentionally walked.

Hundley then lined a clean single into center field and Forsythe scored easily, giving San Diego its third win in the last four games. Dale Thayer (2-3) wiggled out of a jam in the top half to get the victory.

Interleague
Red Sox 8, Dodgers 1

LOS ANGELES — Jake Peavy pitched a complete-game three-hitter and the Boston Red Sox beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1, becoming the first team to win a series from the NL West leaders in 2 1/2 months.

Jarrod Saltalamacchia, Shane Victorino and Mike Napoli homered for the Red Sox on the anniversary of the blockbuster nine-player trade in which the Dodgers acquired Adrian Gonzalez, Carl Crawford, Josh Beckett and Nick Punto from Boston.

The victory enabled the Red Sox to regain sole position of first place in the AL East and put them a game ahead of the Tampa Bay Rays.

Tigers 11, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Miguel Cabrera hit a mammoth homer, Rick Porcello enjoyed a happy homecoming and the Detroit Tigers polished off a three-game sweep of the New York Mets with an 11-3 victory.

Porcello (10-7) pitched seven innings of four-hit ball before the Tigers broke it open with a seven-run ninth.

Travis d'Arnaud hit his first major league homer for the Mets, who have scored five runs during a four-game slide. They were outhit 33-7 in the final two games of the series.

Royals 6, Nationals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Salvador Perez drove in the tiebreaking run in the eighth and the Kansas City Royals ended their seven-games losing streak, rebounding for a 6-4 victory after blowing a 4-0 lead against Washington.

Kelvin Herrera (5-6) pitched 1 1/3 innings of relief for only the Royals' third victory in 13 games. Craig Stammen (7-6) took the loss and was part of a shaky defense that led to the Nationals' first loss in six road outings.

Greg Holland pitched the ninth for his 35th save in 37 opportunities.

Bridge

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Jack Benny said, "It's not so much knowing when to speak, as when to pause."

At the bridge table, it's often not so much knowing when to play, as when to pause for thought. That applies in particular at trick one. The more thinking at trick one, the better you will play, whether you are the declarer or a defender.

In today's deal, how should South play in five hearts after West leads the diamond king?

The bidding was short but exciting. East's four-spade opening bid would have usually been based on an eight-card suit, but was understandable since he was nonvulnerable. However, South had an easy five-heart overcall. West wondered about six diamonds, but knew it would be a wild action. (Six diamonds doubled can be defeated by seven tricks, minus 1,700.)

Now to this difficult declarer-play problem. Given the opening lead, South has only 10 top tricks: seven hearts, one diamond and two clubs. Yes, the club jack might drop singleton or doubleton, but that is unlikely. And assuming it does not appear, how can declarer possibly get home?

There is one chance: South must find West with the club jack. And, even harder to realize, declarer must not win the first trick.

Let's assume West continues with the diamond queen. South ruffs in his hand, draws trumps, cashes the club ace, and overtakes the club queen with dummy's king. Then he continues with the club 10, pitching a spade from his hand. West takes the trick, but must give the lead back to the dummy and allow declarer to discard his last two spades.

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

Dear Annie: My husband has a brother, "Bart," who is several years younger. They are not particularly close, but we socialize on holidays. Bart has two daughters, a 20-year-old and a 7-year-old, both living at home in their small town. The family has lived a fairly isolated life. Bart is a pessimistic, rather unhappy and very self-absorbed guy. His wife is quiet and antisocial. My mother-in-law helps them financially and has always been available as a babysitter.

My husband and I are concerned about the older daughter, "Laurie." She has written very specific narratives on Facebook that have caused alarm. Laurie says she was constantly bullied as a child and recounted times when her father slapped her so hard, her nose bled and she urinated on herself. She says her ex-boyfriend was abusive, and she has attempted suicide eight times.

Knowing that a minister lives next door to them, we called and asked for advice. Sadly, he stated that he is afraid to confront Bart because of his quick temper and fear of further reprisals against Laurie. He said the family is quite isolated, no one visits, and they don't see other people socially. My daughter contacted Facebook, and they left resources and the number of a suicide hotline for Laurie. She attends college, and I'm sure there are counseling services there. What else can we do? — Worried Aunt

Dear Aunt: Laurie is fortunate to have family members who care so much about her welfare. It is difficult to assess what is true in a Facebook narrative. Laurie can post whatever she likes, and there is no way to confirm it. However, based on the minister's comments and Laurie's isolated family life, it is better to err on the side of protecting her.

She has been given resources through Facebook. She has counselors available at college. You also could contact her privately and let her know she can come to you if she needs help. If you believe there is ongoing physical abuse, urge her to call the Domestic Violence Hotline (thehotline.org) at 1-800-799-SAFE.

Dear Annie: I often babysit my 3-year-old granddaughter. She recently has developed allergies, and they suspect one trigger is my dog. Her family has a dog that stays outside. Mine is an indoor pet. My granddaughter loves the dogs.

Before my granddaughter visits, I vacuum, clean, dust and put my dog in a separate room. I do not have any carpeting. The allergic reaction doesn't occur every time she visits, but I'm getting the impression that her parents want me to get rid of my dog. My dog is part of the family, and I cannot see doing this. But I also don't like seeing my granddaughter suffer. What should I do? — Torn Grandma

Dear Torn: We know you are doing your best to keep your home dander-free for your grandchild, but it's difficult to achieve that goal. Ask the parents whether you can go with them to the girl's next pediatrician appointment and discuss your options. The doctor may offer alternatives that will allow you to keep your beloved animal.

Dear Annie: I felt the need to respond to "Disgusted Parent," whose son's teacher accused him of plagiarism.

I am a middle school language arts teacher. As part of our curriculum, especially now that we have adopted the Common Core Standards, I teach my seventh graders the difference between what is and is not plagiarism. I teach them to remember that "when in doubt, cite it!"

In spite of what "Disgusted Parent" said, the majority of teachers do indeed teach their students how to think, read and write. I also require them to support their thinking in their writing. If this young man used someone else's information, even if he put it in his own words, he still must cite the source — Nash County, N.C.

Kenseth soaring into Chase after Bristol victory

Associated Press

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Matt Kenseth had old tires, a sputtering gas tank and Kasey Kahne in his rearview mirror in the closing laps of a race for the third time this season.

The result was the same as it was in Las Vegas, same as it was in Kansas.

Kenseth won again.

He held off Kahne on Saturday night at Bristol Motor Speedway — the third time this season the two have gone 1-2 — to reclaim some of the momentum that had escaped Kenseth of late. A strong start to the season had given Kenseth three wins in his first 11 races with Joe Gibbs Racing, and win number four came six weeks later. But he'd been in a slump of sorts heading into Bristol, with four finishes in the last six weeks of 15th or worse.

The strong start followed by a mini-slump has made the year feel very choppy for Kenseth, who now has a Sprint Cup Series best five victories.

"I think if you look at the beginning of the season, I think it was better than I ever could have dreamed of," Kenseth said. "We were qualifying up front every week, we were leading tons of laps in position to win races. Sitting here in August, it feels like the year has been two years long with all the different things we've had happen to our race team.

"The last month and a half, two months has been, I hate to say reality check because I hope this is reality all the time, but we've struggled just a little bit more, haven't quite had the speed. It's been a little bit more of a struggle."

It didn't seem like a struggle Saturday night as Kenseth led a race-high 149 laps then held off Kahne over a white-knuckled push to the checkered flag.

Kahne first chased down Juan Pablo Montoya for second place, passing him with 17 laps to go before setting his sights on Kenseth. Although Kahne, winner of the spring race at Bristol, has two wins on the season, his place in the 12-driver Chase for the Sprint Cup championship field isn't a lock and a win Saturday night would have cemented his berth.

So he stalked Kenseth, who inadvertently wrecked him at Watkins Glen earlier this month to send Kahne over the edge. It was the fourth time this season a JGR driver had wrecked Kahne — Kyle Busch was the villain three previous times — and Kahne posted on Twitter he was headed to JGR headquarters to speak to whomever would come outside.

Now with a chance to right all those wrongs in front of him, he stalked Kenseth for at least a dozen laps around Bristol.

Whatever happened was out of Kenseth's control.

"It was all about the windshield. I never even looked back," he said. "The thing is, you can't race any different. If someone decides to run into the back of you or whatever, it's going to happen. There wasn't really anything I could do differently to guard against anything or change my line or take his away because there was only one lane where my car ran good, so I just really had to look out the windshield and try to hit the marks the best I could.

"There wasn't a lot of extra room there, it was an intense race. Kasey has got a great reputation. He's a really hard racer, really talented, and he's also a really fair racer, as well. I was expecting it to be about like it was, but I really thought he was going to pass me. I thought he had a good enough car to get around me there and we had just enough to hang on."

Associated Press

Matt Kenseth celebrates Saturday after winning the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series auto race at Bristol Motor Speedway in Bristol, Tenn.

In the end, Kahne raced by the book, did nothing dirty and wound up second. He wasn't very happy with himself, either.

"I was trying to get there," said Kahne. "I would have wrecked probably both of us. It would have just been a wreck. I just tried to pass him as clean as I could, and race him as hard as I could. I thought I had him at one point. I had a good run. I tried to slide across him, but he just kept position. We were rubbing all the way down turn four. I just didn't clear him. I just didn't get it done and I'm upset with myself for not figuring out how to win because I clearly had a better car at the end of the race."

It was Kenseth who got the win, plus the bonus points for Chase seeding, and as it stands now he'd be the top seed over five-time champion Jimmie Johnson when the Chase begins Sept. 15 at Chicago. Even if Kahne had pulled out the win, Kenseth still would have felt pretty good about his championship chances based on his Bristol performance.

"I'm not always a huge believer in momentum as far as just looking at paper and looking at finishes, but I am a believer in momentum as far as performance," he said. "I think this weekend was huge for us. Even if we would have ran second and got beat at the end, I think it would have been a very encouraging weekend. It would have been a shot in our arm, like man, we had all our speed back. We led some laps. The next 12 weeks are the most important 12 weeks of the season."

Attention Consumers! Please make sure you are using a licensed and insured service professional. Many service advertisers are required by state law to include their state license number in all advertisements. If you don't see a license number in the ad, you should inquire about it and be suspicious that you may be contacting an unlicensed business. The Citrus County Chronicle wants to ensure that our ads meet the requirements of the law. Beware of any service advertiser that can not provide proof that they are licensed to do business. For questions about business licensing, please call your city or county government offices.

PUBLIC NOTICE
IN THE JUVENILE COURT OF LAURENS COUNTY
CITATION STATE OF GEORGIA
FILE#34. 13920.1233
CASE # 2013-J-0443

IN THE INTEREST OF:
MORAIS, Damian
SEX: Male DOB: 12/24/11
A Child Under Eighteen (18) Yea rs of Age

ORDER FOR SERVICE BY PUBLICATION

The State Department of Human Resources, acting through the Laurens County Department of Family and Child ren Services, having filed a Petition before this Court for termination of parental rights of the following parties with respect to the child named above, and any other person having a parental interest in said child and named as follows: RACHEL EAVES AND LEONARD MORAIS

It appearing to this Court that the whereabouts of the parent is unknown to Petitioner and Petitioner having therefore requested an Order directing service to be made upon said party by publication of summons as by law provided; and

It further appearing upon Affidavit made by the Caseworker with the Laurens County Department of Family and Child ren Services, that said party cannot be found with due diligence within the State of Georgia;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that service of process be made upon the following pa rty by publication as by law provided; RACHEL EAVES AND LEONARD MORAIS, and any other person having a parental interest in said child.
SO ORDERED, this 5TH day of AUGUST, 2013.
/S/SAMUEL A. HILBUN, JUDGE
LAURENS COUNTY JU VENILE COU RT
DUBLIN JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

NOTICE OF SUMMONS

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, RACHEL EAVES AND LEONARD MORAIS, and anyone claiming to have a parental interest in the minor child named above.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that the above styled action seeking the termination of the parental rights of the parent of the named child was filed against you in said Court on the 5TH day of August, 2013, and that by reason of an Order for Service by Publication entered by the Court on the 5TH day of August, 2013;

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED AND REQUIRED to appea r before the Juvenile Court of Laurens County, Georgia, in Dublin, Georgia, on the, 23 day of October, 2013, at 9:00 o'clock A.M. The hearing is for the purpose of determining whether or not said parental rights should be terminated. The affect of an order terminating parental rights under O.C.G.A. Title 15, Chapter 11, Article 2, is without limit as to duration and terminates all the parent's rights and obl igations with respect to the child and all right and obligations of the child to the parent arising from the parental relationship, including rights of inheritance. The parent whose rights are terminated is not thereaf ter entitled to notice of proceedings for the adoption of the child by another, nor has the parent any right to object to the adoption or otherwise to participate in the proceedings.

A copy of the petition may be obtained from the Clerk of the Juvenile Court at Dublin, Georgia, during regular business hours, Monday through Friday, 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. exclusive of holidays. A free copy shall be available to the parents. Upon request, the copy will be mailed to the requester. The child is in the present physical custody of the Laurens County Department of Family and Children Services.

The general nature of the allegations are that said child is in need of proper care, custod y and control, and it would be in the best interest of the child and the public that said child be placed in the permanent custody of the Petitioner and that the parental rights be terminated as requested so that said child may be placed for adoption.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that while responsive pleadings are not mandatory, they are permissible and you are encouraged to file with the Clerk of this Court and serve upon Petitioner's Attorney, Charles C. Butler, P.O. Drawer 4430, Dublin, Georgia 31040, an answer or other responsive pleading within sixty (60) days of the date of the Order for Service by Publication. All concerned parties are informed that they are entitled to have an attorney represent them, and if a party is entitled to counsel during the proceedings, the Court will appoint counsel, at no cost if the party is unable, without undue financial hardship to employ counsel.
WITNESS THE HONORABLE Samuel A. Hilbun, Judge of said Court, this 5TH day of AUGUST, 2013.
Presented by:Charles C. Butler, Attorney for Laurens County Department of Family and Children Services PO Drawer 4430, Dublin, Ga 31040-4430, State Bar No. 099517
