Rural King coming to mall

Farm store should open by September

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff Writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — The Crystal River Mall is set to be home to Rural King, a fast-growing farm and home store based in the Midwest.

Millie Bresnahan, the mall manager, said Monday a deal has been reached with the retail giant and that Rural King will purchase the former Sears store.

Bresnahan would not reveal the terms of the deal, only adding that the "mall owner is happy with it." Rural King would not confirm that the deal is final, but company spokeswoman Susan Samuelson told the Chronicle she was aware of talks to move into the mall. She said she would be in a better position to comment later in the week.

"This is a game-changer for this mall. It is just absolutely fabulous," Bresnahan said.

She said Rural King expects to open its doors by September and hopes to hire about 60 people.

The mall site will become the fourth Florida store for the company based in Mattoon, Ill. The company has 64 retail stores and distribution centers, mainly in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Rural King stocks everything ranging from tractor supplies, guns and sporting goods to lawn and garden, pet feed and home repair supplies.

Traffic signal set for Kensington

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Workers Miguel Catalan, left, and Christian Belasic with Florida Safety Contractors Inc. carry a sign toward their foreman, Chris Cooney, on Sunday afternoon as the crew puts up signs at State Road 44 and South Kensington Avenue, between Inverness and Lecanto.

Residents' request spurs action

Citrus County's newest traffic signal resulted from a request by residents of a Citrus Hills community with backing by the county.

The signal at State Road 44 and Kensington Avenue should be operating in a month or two, Department of Transportation spokesman David Botello said.

The cost is about $400,000.

Residents of Kensington Estates requested the signal because of the difficulty in turning left onto 60-mph S.R. 44. According to the DOT, the intersection experienced 26 accidents from October 2005 to February 2014 and of those, a traffic signal could have prevented 11 of them.

Opposite Kensington Avenue is Trail 13, which heads into the Withlacoochee State Forest

Senators plan multi-year springs restoration

The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — A group of senators will move ahead with a plan to flood the state's natural springs with money.

But as the Legislature delves this week into the details of the budget, and as a separate large water issue draws attention, the senators say that money for their springs-restoration proposal might take years to get flowing.

"We look at this as a three-year process," said Sen. Andy Gardiner, an Orlando Republican who is slated to become Senate president after the November elections.

Gardiner and Rep. Steve Crisafulli, a Merritt Island Republican who is slated to become House speaker both politicians have declared water policy issues as a priority for the 2015-2016 legislative sessions.

In November, have declared water policy issues as a priority of the 2015 and 2016 sessions.

The springs proposal (SB 1576), which got its first committee approval Thursday, seeks $378.8 million.

Meanwhile, Appropriations Chairman Joe Negron, R-Stuart, is pushing for about $160 million this year for a variety of projects to reduce pollution runoff from Lake Okeechobee and clean the Florida Everglades.

The House budget matches some of Negron's proposal, which was spurred by outcries in his Treasure Coast district about the harmful impacts of the lake runoff last summer.

Asked about the springs last week before the budget numbers were out, Negron said lawmakers were still early in the budgeting process.

"I'd expect there will be some funding for springs in the Senate budget," he added.

Attorney: CMHS has to decide about YMCA plan

INVERNESS — A partnership that began a year ago to build a YMCA and wellness center on County Road 486 in Lecanto is facing significant challenges as Citrus Memorial Health System inches closer to a new leaseholder.

Attorney Clark Stillwell told the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation that it needed to decide soon whether to keep its commitment to provide $2 million if the YMCA raised $5 million by Sept. 18.

Chris Pool, director of marketing and philanthropy at Citrus Memorial, said YMCA organizers had cash and pledges totaling $2.2 million on March 18. The deadline to raise $5 million is Sept. 18, she said.

NANCY KENNEDY/Chronicle

On Feb. 15, Ray Jordan and his wife, Jeanie, were in a wreck while riding their motorcycle. Jordan believes one of the reasons for the crash was the "panic reaction" of the driver in front of him who mistook the traffic signal sensor for a red-light camera, put on the brakes while in the intersection and backed up.

Driver: Fear of red-light cameras causes wrecks

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

INVERNESS — For Ray Jordan, it's not so much about the $166 ticket he received for careless driving.

It's not even his hopes of finding witnesses to the accident he was in on Feb. 15 in front of Applebee's on State Road 44 in Inverness — although he would love to talk to the couple he met at the Hospice Thrift Store in Inverness who were buying a recumbent stationary bike and who told him they had seen the accident and they and their church prayed for Jordan and his wife, who were injured.

Even more than that, for Jordan, a lifelong motorcycle rider, his interest in telling his story is to let people know what to do and what not to do when the traffic light turns yellow, especially when motorcycles are present.

And it's also about the sensors attached to some traffic signals around Citrus County, what they are and aren't. (Hint: They're not cameras.)

"We were coming from Lowes down (State Road) 44, approaching the intersection by Applebee's," Jordan said. "I saw the light had changed to yellow and thought, 'We'll make this — no problem.'"

All of a sudden, as Jordan recalled, he saw the car in front of him that was already well into the intersection stop and then he saw its back-up lights come on.

"This is not going to be fun," he said, and leaned his motorcycle to the right, hitting a patch of grease on the road and then skidding into the back of the car in front of him.

Both he and his wife were injured and lost consciousness, and were transferred to Citrus Memorial hospital.

The next morning, a Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputy came to the Jordans' house and handed Jordan a citation for careless driving.

Jordan disagrees with that, insisting the driver of the white car that he hit had stopped and backed up.

He said he has seen this happen more and more, especially as communities have installed red-light cameras that take photos of people running red lights, triggering automatic, costly citations.

Jordan said the couple he met at the Hospice Thrift Store told him that the other driver thought she would get a ticket and that's why she backed up.

However, according to Jordan, she didn't tell that to the deputy at the accident scene, at least it wasn't in the traffic report, so Jordan has no corroborating witness.

"I was so concerned about my wife in the hospital that I didn't get the couple's names," Jordan said.

Regardless, what the other driver and many other drivers may think are red-light cameras located underneath local traffic lights are not cameras at all.

They are red-light confirmation devices, white lights that light up when the signal is red, allowing deputies to monitor intersections from any angle — watching for red-light violators.

In Citrus County, installation of the sensors began in 2004.

However, as Jordan explained, it's the red-light cameras, or the fear of them, that he believes causes some drivers to panic, and that's dangerous, especially for people on motorcycles.

Last July, Dunnellon did away with its three cameras, even though the city generated more than $500,000 in fines in the first six months after they were installed. Tampa is considering doing away with its, as well.

Nearby Brooksville, however, has a thriving red-light camera program, generating $2,348,196 in fiscal year 2013.

Citrus County is camera-free and there are currently no plans to install them.

As for what to do when approaching an intersection?

According to Florida law, once a vehicle passes the "stop" line in an intersection, the driver is required to go through and not stop — and definitely not back up, said Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputy Russ Howard.

"The lights are geared to the speed in the area," he said. "So, if the speed limit is 45 miles per hour, the lights cycle at a certain rate, allowing you adequate time to stop and not slam on the brakes. We obviously want the public to be safe when they go through these lights, and to pay attention."

Why you should only buy hearing aids from a hearing healthcare professional.

Thanks to modern medicine and many other contributing factors, people are living longer than ever before. While this increased longevity is great news, it does come with some side effects — like a pronounced increase in people with hearing loss.

Hearing loss is increasing.

Statistics show us that hearing loss already affects nearly one out of every five American adults. Statistics also tell us that the number increases along with age. Thus, it only makes sense that as more people live longer, more people with hearing loss are seeking help.

Hearing aids are a proven solution.

Where there is increased demand, there usually is increased supply. And sure enough, from the Internet to retail stores to local insurance providers, there are now more places than ever to purchase hearing aids.

Where you get hearing aids is important.

But buyer beware. There is no one-size-fits-all solution to hearing loss. Just as every person is unique, every hearing loss and hearing need is unique too. To ensure you get a hearing aid that's custom fit to your precise needs and lifestyle, it's always recommended that you consult a hearing healthcare professional. He or she may find other health-related issues that could be causing your hearing loss.

Always consult a hearing healthcare professional.

The Better Hearing Institute (BHI), a non-profit center for hearing advocacy, recently published a consumer warning about "do-it-yourself" hearing care, stating, hearing devices that are purchased over-the-counter or Internet without the consultation of a hearing healthcare professional may result in the devices not being accurately customized to the specific hearing needs of the individual.

Hearing healthcare professionals make a difference.

Only an experienced hearing healthcare professional has the training and state-of-the-art equipment needed to inspect your ear canal, accurately measure your hearing loss, assess your unique needs, and fit you with hearing aids that take all this important and unique information into account.

Did you know?

On average, people wait five to seven years between first experiencing hearing loss and actually getting help for it.

One size does NOT fit all.

Sergei Kochkin, Executive Director of the BHI reiterates this point, writing in his published warning. "The process requires a complete in-person hearing assessment in a sound booth, the training and skills of a credentialed hearing healthcare professional in order to prescriptively fit the hearing aids using sophisticated computer programs; and appropriate in-person follow-up and counseling. This is not possible when consumers purchase one-size-fits-all hearing aids over the Internet or elsewhere."

Get the most out of your investment.

Hearing aids purchased without the consultation or advice of a hearing healthcare professional risk doing more damage than good — to both your confidence and your wallet. That's because hearing aids purchased without help from an expert might not sound good, might not work well, and probably won't be hearing aids you'll want to wear.

Duke awarded spent nuke fuel costs

Lawsuit related to storage expenses was originally initiated by Progress Energy

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

A ruling by the United States Court of Federal Claims will allow Duke Energy to recover some of the money it had to invest for disposing spent nuclear fuel.

An amended judgment came down March 21, awarding the company approximately $103.7 million to settle a lawsuit initiated by the Florida Power Corp. and Carolina Power & Light Company as subsidiaries of Progress Energy.

Just over $21 million of the settlement applies to claims for the Crystal River nuclear plant. Three other Duke plants were also involved.

The government disputed all Crystal River costs, which included moving the 110 dry-storage casks from the reactor buildings to the dry storage site.

The lawsuit has its roots in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act passed by Congress in 1983. Under the act the Department of Energy charged fees based on electricity production in exchange for its obligation to dispose of spent nuclear fuel.

Through Dec. 31, 2010, Progress Energy paid approximately $820 million in fees for spent fuel that was never removed or stored. Subsequently, the utility maintained it would not have built a dry storage facility at Crystal River (CR3) if DOE had followed through on its obligation.

"The $21 million award will help reduce the amount customers will pay to construct the dry-cask storage facility at the Crystal River Nuclear Plant," explained Duke spokeswoman Heather Danenhower. "However, a portion of this money is allocated to our nine minority owners (8.22 percent, or $1.73 million) and wholesale portion (8.32 percent, or $1.60 million). That means $17.67 million will directly benefit retail customers."

She said the award will not affect the decommissioning plan or timeline at CR3.

"We are pleased the court recognized the validity of our claims regarding costs incurred for dry fuel storage between 2006 and 2010," Danenhower said. "We will continue to seek recovery of these costs from the federal government."

The Department of Energy has 60 days to appeal.

LECANTO — Big Mac and McCafé fans, mark your calendar for April 21.

Citrus County's newest free-standing McDonald's restaurant in more than 20 years is set to open at the corner of County Roads 486 and 491 in Lecanto, in front of Walmart.

It will include seating capacity both inside and outdoors for 80, and the McDonald's "Forever Young" interior design, "which aesthetically appeals to all age groups," said Jessica Fox, spokeswoman for McDonald's of Tampa Bay.

Fox said the restaurant, whose owner/operator is Juan Prado, features side-by-side drive-through lanes with a third "pull forward" window and digital menu boards.

The grand opening celebration is scheduled for Monday, May 12, through Saturday, May 17, with daily menu deals, a Ronald McDonald "meet and greet," face painting, door prizes and a grand prize drawing on Saturday.

zation is communicating with local school partners to possibly secure school band and/or cheerleader participation during the grand opening week," Fox said. "They believe in being a great community business partner and already have relationships with schools in the area."

Across the county in Inverness, fans of Panera Bread's soup in sourdough bread bowls and other goodies will have to wait a few more months. Although construction has begun on the bakery-café located in front of the new Publix on Main Street, the store won't be ready to open until fall 2014, according to Amanda Saxon, Panera Bread spokeswoman.

"Our space is 4,081 square feet and will offer seating for 91 inside and an additional 16 on the patio," Saxon said. "We will also offer drive-through service at this bakery-café."

Illness forces Allman Bros. to postpone

NEW YORK — The Allman Brothers have postponed the remainder of their Beacon Theatre run this week due to Gregg Allman's illness.

A Monday news release stated Allman is recovering from a case of bronchitis that already forced the postponement of concerts last Friday and Saturday.

The 66-year-old singer and multi-instrumentalist has generally been in good health despite previous issues, including a 2010 liver transplant.

New dates have not yet been announced.

'Good Wife' leaves viewers shocked

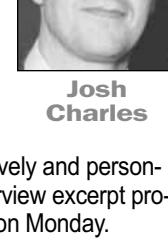

NEW YORK — The shocking death of dashing attorney Will Gardner on "The Good Wife" on Sunday's episode was driven by actor Josh Charles.

Charles' desire to leave the CBS drama in its fifth season.

Charles had told the show's producers that "I was ready for the next chapter of my life, both creatively and personally," in an interview excerpt provided by CBS on Monday.

In a true surprise for viewers of the show, Gardner was gunned down in a Chicago courtroom by his unhinged client. Gardner was one of the show's central characters as the former colleague and lover of Alicia Florrick, the "wife" played by series star Julianna Margulies.

The twist will force Margulies' character to examine all aspects of her life, producers said.

"She's going to miss the existence of Will," Margulies said of her character. "He was a powerful aphrodisiac in her life."

Once the episode had aired, Twitter lit up with astonished, sorrowful and even irate posts.

"I understand that there will be audience members who will be upset," Charles said. "I would just tell them that I guarantee it will continue to be an excellent show. I know I'm going to keep watching it."

GWAR frontman Brockie found dead

RICHMOND, Va. — Dave Brockie, who as "Oderus Urungus" fronted the alien-costumed heavy metal band GWAR during graphic and fake-blood-soaked stage shows for more than three decades, has died. He was 50.

Officers were called to Brockie's home Sunday evening and found the singer dead inside the home, Richmond police spokeswoman Dionne Waugh said Monday. Detectives don't suspect foul play at this time, and the medical examiner's office will determine cause of death, Waugh said.

The band founded in 1984 is known for its comically grotesque costumes, stage antics and vulgar lyrics. GWAR was nominated for a Grammy Award for best long-form music video in 1993 for "Phallus in Wonderland" but lost to "Diva" by Annie Lennox. It also was nominated for best metal performance for "S.F.W." in 1996 but lost to "Happiness In Slavery" by Nine Inch Nails.

GWAR released its latest album, "Battle Maximus," in September 2013 and recently toured Australia and Japan.

Over the summer, the band held its 4th annual GWAR-B-Q at a small water park in Richmond and released its own canned craft beer for the occasion made by Cigar City Brewing in Tampa.

America should be signed by then. He said the foundation should decide well before September whether to continue with the YMCA commitment, or create a separate philanthropic organization to carry donations forward.

None of Citrus Memorial's commitments comes from the hospital itself.

The hospital, through its advisory board, raised the $2 million from donors for a new wellness center, originally planned at the Allen Ridge medical complex. Citrus Memorial and the YMCA agreed instead to pool resources for the new YMCA and wellness center on C.R. 486.

Stillwell said he doesn't believe HCA has an interest in operating a wellness center. With that possibility in mind, if the hospital foundation chooses to continue with the partnership, it should ask the YMCA to commit to operating the wellness center, Stillwell said.

Stillwell said wishes of the philanthropic advisory board should be considered.

"We hold this money in trust for the people who raised it," he said.

Board members didn't say when they would decide the YMCA issue.

TIME WELL SPENT

Hurricane training beneficial

It has been a decade since Citrus County officials have had to deal with a hurricane or strong tropical storm striking the area, and many officials who would be called on to respond are either in new jobs or have never gone through a major storm.

Earlier this month, about 70 officials from the sheriff's office, county government, the city of Crystal River, the Southwest Florida Water Management District, Nature Coast EMS and the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce traveled to Maryland for an intensive one week course to give them the training needed for hurricane response.

The training was conducted on the campus of the Emergency Management Institute in Emmetsburg, Md. The institute is a part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the training, lodging and transportation was paid for by FEMA.

The week-long training was county specific, with the scenario of a major hurricane hitting the coast, flooding coastal homes, knocking out power and rendering Seven Rivers Regional Medical Center unable to treat patients. Participants were put through realistic training that forced them to think through how they would respond to these events and provide protection to the public.

This is valuable training for public officials, because many of them have never dealt with a hurricane, and many others are in different jobs than they were in the last time our county went through major storms. Running through realistic scenarios gives those charged with protecting public safety the experience they would need to adequately respond to the devastation that would accompany a major storm.

Hurricanes are a part of life in Florida, and while it has been several years since we have had to deal with one in the county, there is no guarantee that this good fortune will continue.

Should we have a major storm, citizens will expect county officials to take leadership in dealing with the storm and recovery activities. Training by top-flight instructors at a national emergency planning training facility will help them provide this leadership. This is time well spent that could make a major difference if we face a major storm in Citrus County.

and here it is 2014. Somebody in road maintenance better re-calculate how they're doing their roads. They need to be done.

Pave the money

Now that the county has given in to Duke Energy, taking a whole lot less than we should have got, maybe we can do away with that MSBU on those roads, you know? Less tax. We've got $7.5 million coming in. Going to be split up a couple ways, but sure is enough in there to cover roads. Don't slam it to the people. Get rid of those MSBUs and get rid of that fire one too.

Where's all the revenue?

County commissioners, tell us, where has all the road tax money gone? We pay a yearly transportation tax on our bill and gasoline tax which is supposed to be for road maintenance. Now you want an MSBU tax for roads. Money wasted on the Ottawa road and a port, plus all the consultant fees. This money could be used for roads. For over 25 years, paying taxes in our area, not one road has been resurfaced in Unit 8 in Beverly Hills, just patches, patches, patches.

Humiliation nation(s)

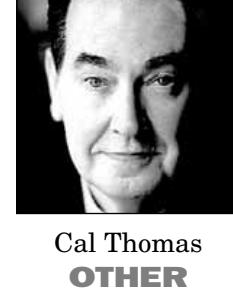

What is it about Western leaders from Neville Chamberlain to George W. Bush who want to find good in men of bad character?

Acting as if he were endowed by special insight bestowed upon no one else, President George W. Bush declared in 2001 that he had looked Vladimir Putin in the eye and "was able to get a sense of his soul."

According to the Daily Caller.com, in a 2010 interview with talk radio host Hugh Hewitt, Bush, who was promoting his book "Decision Points," was asked about his ability to see into the souls of men. The former president explained, "The reason why I said that is because I remembered him talking movingly about his mother and the cross that she gave him that she said she had blessed in Jerusalem."

Well, bless my soul, as the saying goes. No doubt several communist leaders in the former Soviet Union had mothers who went to church and took their sons with them — until faith became a drag on upward mobility in the Communist Party. It doesn't mean any one of them underwent some drastic religious transformation.

What Bush should have asked Putin is whether he shared his mother's faith and if so, what difference that had made on his thinking? Usually when people "convert" from one belief system to another they give a reason for the shift. Not so with Putin. He has not walked the sawdust trail of redemption and embraced pluralistic, democratic or capitalistic beliefs. Quite the opposite.

In a 2005 state of the nation speech, Putin declared: "Above all, we should acknowledge that the collapse of the Soviet Union was a major geopolitical disaster of the century. As for the Russian nation, it became a genuine drama. Tens of millions of our co-citizens and co-patriots found themselves outside Russian territory. Moreover, the epidemic of disintegration infected Russia itself."

In the Hewitt interview, Bush claimed that since that early meeting with Putin, the Russian leader had become a different person. The other possibility is that Putin has always been the same person, but lied and projected a different image to a gullible Bush who wanted to believe what he thought he saw.

Putin and his cronies are now openly mocking the United States. Under President Obama we are becoming a humiliation nation. Meaningless "sanctions," which amount to not even a slap on the wrist, are laughed at in Moscow. And the problem with sanctions is that Russia has options, too, like cutting off gas and oil supplies to Europe and making trouble in other former Soviet republics. Recently, Russian news anchor Dmitry Kiselyov took to the Rossiya 1 news channel to declare that Russia is the only country capable of turning the United States into "radioactive ashes." A picture of a mushroom cloud was projected on the screen behind him. Iran might see this bragging by Russia as a challenge to its own nuclear ambitions.

Understanding one's adversary is sometimes more important than defeating him, especially if one wishes to avoid armed conflict. The fall of the Berlin Wall was the symbolic collapse of the Soviet Union and occupied Eastern Europe. Putin clearly believes Russia was humiliated after the collapse and the American triumphalism that followed. But humiliation can cut two ways.

Russia feels slighted for not being recognized as a great power. In some sense — though the analogy is far from perfect — Russia reflects Germany's attitude after its defeat in World War I. The Treaty of Versailles forced Germany to disarm, concede territory and pay reparations. Hitler's rise to power two decades later was in large part due to his appeal to German nationalism and pride, which is precisely Vladimir Putin's appeal to the Russian people.

Putin has promised not to annex any territory beyond Crimea. We'll see if he keeps that promise. Meanwhile, it would be nice if President Obama led on this matter instead of making the United States the laughingstock of the world's dictators and to our detriment, perhaps some of our allies.

WHICH IS WORSE?

LETTERS to the Editor

Article assumes too much

The Associated Press article in today's (March 3), Citrus County Chronicle regarding Bowe Bergdahl's capture is the worst journalism I have ever read. How speculative does it get to assume someone's motive for being in a situation that gets you captured?

The only issue is that Bowe has been in captivity for going on five years, probably in the worst conditions a human can endure. Get off his back for God's sake and bring Bowe home. Why would AP publish such garbage and not expect uproar from those who have been dedicated and tireless in making this a top priority for our veterans and our country? AP should publish a retraction of this article as it is innuendo, unsubstantiated and bordering on slanderous.

Vote for medical marijuana

I believe a lot of Citrus County residents know of someone that suffers from a debilitating condition. Patients suffering from the pain and anxiety of numerous afflictions can find relief from their symptoms through the use of medical marijuana. Most medical professionals favor the use of medical marijuana (WebMD poll).

Since 1996, 20 states and Washington D.C. have approved the lawful use of doctor-prescribed medical marijuana. This year we have an opportunity to approve the use of medical marijuana to alleviate the pain and suffering of our family and friends. I urge everyone to vote yes on Proposition 2 this November.

Chicago train operator 'tired'

CHICAGO — The president of a Chicago transit union said there are indications the operator of a commuter train that derailed at O'Hare International Airport dozed off.

Amalgamated Transit Union Local 308 President Robert Kelly said the operator told him she had worked a lot of overtime recently and was "extremely tired."

The eight-car public transit train jumped the tracks early Monday, skidded across a platform and scaled an escalator leading to the airport. More than 30 people were injured.

The National Transportation Safety Board plans to interview the train operator, who was still hospitalized.

No one suffered life-threatening injuries.

Train kills teen who saved girl

MARYSVILLE, Calif. — Witnesses and family members said a Northern California teen pushed his girlfriend away from the path of an oncoming train before he was struck and killed.

The girlfriend, 16-year-old Mickayla Friend, was still grazed and critically injured, though her mother, Sandy, said at a vigil Sunday that she was breathing on her own and walking.

Mickayla and her boyfriend, 16-year-old Mateus Moore, were heading to a school dance Friday night in Marysville when they were struck by the Union Pacific freight train.

Police are looking into whether the teens were distracted.

5 bodies found in plane wreckage

DENVER — The bodies of five people were found inside the wreckage of a single-engine plane that crashed into a cold, murky reservoir in southwestern Colorado over the weekend, authorities said Monday.

The wreckage will have to be brought to shore before the bodies can be removed, Ouray County spokeswoman Marti Whittemore said. The plane is about 60 or 70 feet underwater and upside down in about 3 feet of silt, officials said.

A salvage team is expected to begin raising the wreckage Wednesday.

Authorities haven't released the identities of the victims, but said the flight originated in Gadsden, Ala.

The single-engine Socata TBM700 crashed at about 2 p.m. Saturday into Ridgeway Reservoir, about 25 miles south of Montrose and about 180 miles southwest of Denver.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — After 17 days of desperation and doubt over the missing Malaysia Airlines jet, the country's officials said an analysis of satellite data points to a "heartbreaking" conclusion: Flight 370 met its end in the southern reaches of the Indian Ocean, and none of those aboard survived.

The somber announcement late Monday by Prime Minister Najib Razak left unresolved many more troubling questions about what went wrong aboard the Boeing 777 to take it so far off-course.

It also unleashed a maelstrom of sorrow and anger among the families of the jet's 239 passengers and crew.

study of the jet's last-known signals to a satellite. That analysis showed that the missing plane, which took off from Kuala Lumpur for Beijing early on March 8, veered "to a remote location, far from any possible landing sites."

"It is therefore with deep sadness and regret that I must inform you that, according to this new data, Flight MH370 ended in the southern Indian Ocean," he said.

Officials said they concluded that the flight had been lost in the deep waters west of Perth, Australia, based on more thorough analysis of the brief signals the plane sent every hour to a satellite belonging to Inmarsat, a British company, even after other communication systems on the jetliner shut down.

The search is now considered a race against time because of the battery life of the "pinger" in the black boxes — the common name for the cockpit voice and data recorders normally attached to the fuselage — may run out in the next two weeks.

The search for the wreckage and the plane's recorders could take years because the ocean is up to 23,000 feet deep. It's also possible that what is left of the plane may never be found.

Egyptian court sentences death

CAIRO — An Egyptian court Monday sentenced to death nearly 530 suspected backers of ousted President Mohammed Morsi over a deadly attack on a police station, capping a swift, two-day mass trial in which defense attorneys were not allowed to present their case.

It was the largest single batch of death sentences in the world in recent years, Amnesty International said. The U.S. State Department said it "defies logic" that so many people could get a fair trial in just two sessions.

The verdicts by a court in the city of Minya are subject to appeal and are likely to be overturned.

But the outcome stunned human rights activists and raised fears that the rule of law is being swept away in the crackdown waged by the military-backed interim government against Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood since his overthrow last summer.

Pregnant woman, guardsman killed

CARACAS, Venezuela — A pregnant woman who was shot in the head and a National Guard member fired upon as he tried to clear a roadway are the latest casualties of violence tied to ongoing protests in Venezuela, authorities said Monday.

The woman, 28-year-old Adriana Urquiola, died Sunday night in Guaiacipuro, said the mayor of the municipality just outside the capital of Caracas.

Five months pregnant, Urquiola was killed after she left a bus that was stuck in traffic because of a barricade built by anti-government protesters. She had begun walking toward the road block, but didn't appear to have been participating in the protest.

With the latest casualties, at least 33 people have died in the subsequent violence.

Arabs to pressure Qatar at summit

14 dead in Washington mudslide; search continues

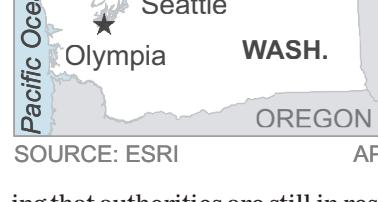

Associated Press

OSO, Wash. — The search for survivors of a deadly Washington state mudslide grew Monday to include scores of people who were still unaccounted for as the death toll from the wall of trees, rocks and debris that swept through a rural community rose to at least 14.

In the struggle to find loved ones, family members and neighbors used chain saws and their bare hands to dig through wreckage that was tangled by the mud into broken piles.

Authorities said they were looking for more than 100 people who had not been heard from since the disaster about 55 miles northeast of Seattle. They predicted that the number of missing would decline as more people are found safe. But the startling initial length of the list added to the anxieties two days after a mile-wide layer of soft earth crashed onto a cluster of homes at the bottom of a river valley.

"The situation is very grim," Snohomish County Fire District 21 Chief Travis Hots said, stressing ing that authorities are still in rescue mode and are holding out hope. But he noted: "We have not found anyone alive on this pile since Saturday."

Snohomish County sheriff's spokeswoman Shari Ireton said Monday afternoon that search and rescue crews discovered an additional six bodies, bringing the number of fatalities to at least 14. The slide critically injured several others.

About 30 houses were destroyed, and the debris blocked a mile-long stretch of state highway near Arlington.

The mudslide struck Saturday morning, a time when most people are at home. Of the 49 structures in the neighborhood, authorities believe at least 25 were full-time residences.

An overnight search of the debris field turned up no other bodies, Hots said. Monday's search included aircraft, dogs and heavy equipment.

Frustrations were growing as family members and neighbors waited for official word on the missing and the dead. Elaine Young and her neighbors uncovered several bodies Sunday and had to contact authorities to get them removed.

They also found a chocolate Labrador named Buddy alive, and helped pull the dog from the rubble, leading her to wonder if other survivors could be out there, desperate for help.

"If we found a dog alive yesterday afternoon that we cut out of a part of a house, doesn't that seem that maybe somebody could be stuck up under part of a house and be alive, too?" asked Young, whose home survived the slide but was on the edge of the devastation.

West seeks to isolate Russia over Ukraine dispute

Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Seeking to isolate Russia, the U.S. and Western allies declared Monday they are indefinitely cutting Moscow out of a major international coalition and warned they stand ready to order tougher economic penalties if Vladimir Putin presses further into Ukraine.

The moves came amid a flurry of diplomatic jockeying as the West grappled for ways to punish Russia for its annexation of the Crimean Peninsula and prevent the crisis from escalating.

President Barack Obama and the leaders of Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Canada and Japan met in the Netherlands for an emergency meeting of the Group of Seven. In a joint statement after their 90-minute meeting, the leaders said they were suspending their participation with Russia in the Group of Eight major industrial nations until Moscow "changes course."

The G-7 leaders instead plan to meet this summer in Brussels, symbolically gathering in the headquarters city of the European Union and NATO, two Western organizations that have sought to bolster ties with Ukraine.

"Today, we reaffirm that

Russia's actions will have significant consequences," the leaders' statement said. "This clear violation of international law is a serious challenge to the rule of law around the world and should be a concern for all nations."

In an unexpected development, Russia's foreign minister Sergey Lavrov met separately in The Hague with his Ukrainian counterpart, the highest level of contact between the two nations since Russia moved forces into Crimea nearly a month ago. U.S. officials said they welcomed the meeting but challenged Russia to take further steps to de-escalate the conflict.

THE 'DIRTY WORK GUY'

Yeguete a key player for top-seeded Florida Gators

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Will Yeguete is one valuable player for top-seeded Florida. You just have to dig a little deeper than statistics and box scores to see how much he means to the Gators.

The 6-foot-8 senior forward from Bordeaux, France, is what coach Billy Donovan calls a "dirty work guy," doing things in the press and the paint that rarely make headlines or highlight clips.

But his tenacity and toughness were on display in the third round of the NCAA tournament Saturday. Yeguete had eight points, four rebounds, an assist, a steal and a blocked shot in the 61-45 win against ninth-seeded Pittsburgh.

"He just does so many different things in the press. He's such a great cover guy with our defense. He's a great help defender," Donovan said. "He's the epitome of a guy that when you look down at the stat sheet it's hard to have a level of appreciation for him. ... He really impacts winning."

"He impacts the game in a very, very positive way for us, and what he does is really, really rare."

Yeguete and Florida (34-2) return to the court Thursday night against fourth-seeded UCLA (28-8) in the South Region semifinals in Memphis, Tenn. It's another chance for Yeguete to go mostly unnoticed — at least to outsiders.

Yeguete has the size and athleticism to play the front of the press, trap all over the court and defend anyone from a guard to a center. And he's regularly diving on the ground for loose balls, taking charges and willing to sacrifice offensive fame for defensive fortitude.

On Monday, he was fittingly wearing a white Gators T-shirt with "Intensity Counts" printed on the front.

His numbers — Yeguete is averaging 4.9 points and 5.1 rebounds — are far less telling.

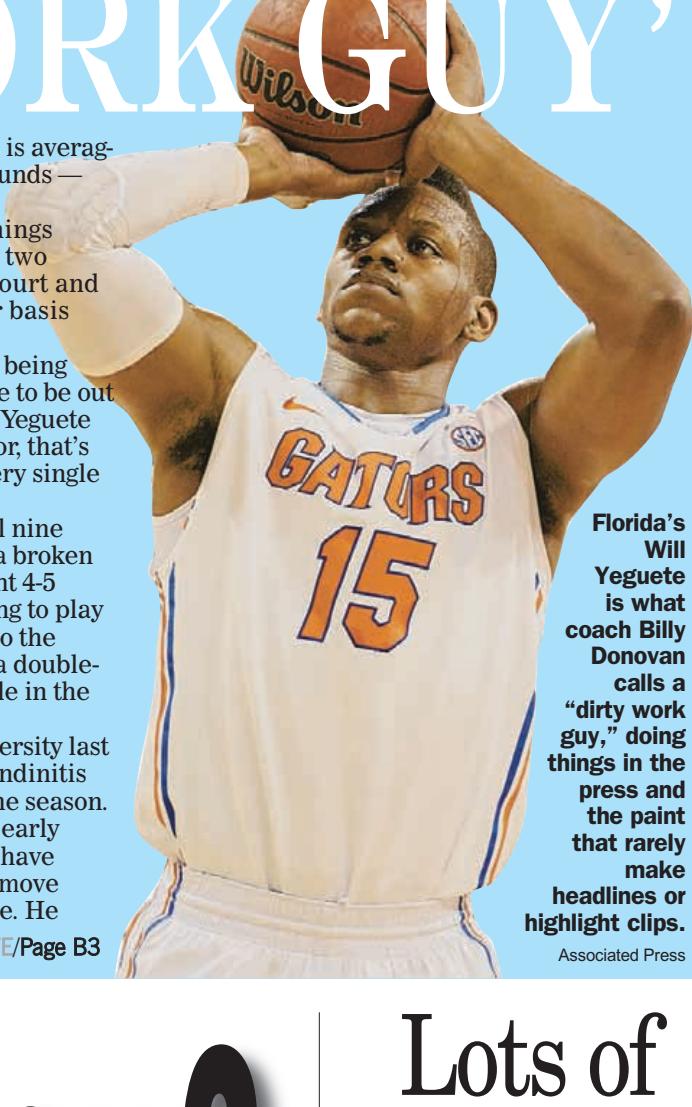

But considering how things went for Yeguete the last two years, just being on the court and contributing on a regular basis are accomplishments.

"It's exciting for me just being able to play, just being able to be out there for the postseason," Yeguete said. "That's what I fight for; that's why I've been working every single day."

Yeguete missed the final nine games in 2012 because of a broken right foot, and Florida went 4-5 without him. He was hoping to play had the Gators advanced to the Final Four, but they blew a double-digit lead against Louisville in the regional final.

Yeguete faced more adversity last year while dealing with tendinitis in his right knee most of the season. The pain got so intense in early February that he opted to have arthroscopic surgery to remove floating chips and cartilage. He

GAINESVILLE

It's hard to mock Southeastern Conference basketball right now.

Panned for early season losses and relatively weak non-conference schedules, the league has three teams still playing in the NCAA tournament. Florida, Kentucky and Tennessee — the only SEC squads to make the 68-team field — all advanced to the Sweet 16 over the weekend, giving the SEC a perfect 7-0 mark in college basketball's premier event.

"I'm sure some people are pretty surprised at three SEC teams, because all I heard all year was that the SEC was in a down year and it was a weak SEC," Florida guard Scottie Wilbekin said Monday. "It's pretty cool to see three SEC teams in the Sweet 16."

The Gators (34-2), the tournament's overall top seed, will play fourth-seeded UCLA in the South Region on Thursday night in Memphis, Tenn. No. 8 seed Kentucky (26-10), which handed Wichita State its only loss of the season Sunday, advanced to face fourth-seeded Louisville on Friday night in the Midwest Region. No. 11 Tennessee (24-12), which already has three tournament wins since opening play in the First Four, will join the Wildcats in Indianapolis and play Michigan.

Only two other conferences — the Pac-12 and the Big Ten — landed three teams in the round of 16. Both of those leagues were ranked in the top three in conference RPI.

The SEC, meanwhile, ranked seventh, just ahead of the American Athletic Conference.

Florida coach Billy Donovan blamed early season struggles for the widespread perception that the league was down.

"It's very, very unfair to pin a league based on what happens in November and December," Donovan said Monday. "In a lot of ways, maybe some of the losses that our league took in November and December prepared them to be better in our league. I think our league can play with any league in the country."

"But I would say this: Just because certain league teams get knocked out early doesn't mean the league is overrated. And because a league really, really advances in the tournament doesn't mean the league is great. I just get upset when all of a sudden everybody just throws out and makes assumptions or draws conclusions of a league being good or bad based on what's happened in the non-conference. That to me is, I think, somewhat unfair."

Tennessee's Antonio Barton celebrates Sunday during an NCAA third-round tournament game against Mercer in Raleigh. The Volunteers won to keep the Southeastern Conference undefeated in the tournament.

Lots of favorites alive in Sweet 16

Associated Press

The Billion Dollar Dream has been over for a while. Most bracket sheets are loaded with red X's. Still, there is plenty of March Madness ahead of us in the NCAA tournament's round of 16.

You want favorites? Three No. 1s — Florida, Arizona, Virginia — are alive and well after two rounds.

You want underdogs? How about three with double-digit seedings — Stanford, a 10, with 11s Dayton and Tennessee.

You want a rivalry? It's tough to beat Kentucky-Louisville.

You want rematches? Besides Kentucky-Louisville there is Arizona-San Diego State.

You get the point. Four days, 12 games. It's regional weekend when the Sweet 16 is cut to the Final Four. Enjoy.

SOUTH REGIONAL

The game that guarantees a winner with a double-digit seed, Stanford vs. Dayton, will be followed by the overall top seed, Florida, facing a familiar tournament opponent in UCLA.

Stanford gets to wear home whites after beating New Mexico and Kansas. The Cardinal are in the round of 16 for the first time since 2008, the last time they were in the tournament. They haven't given up more than 57 points and they have been great at the free throw line.

Dayton followed the win over Ohio State with a squeaker over Syracuse and the Flyers are in the round of 16 for the first time since 1984. They got here with two wins by a total of three points and they have yet to break 60, but they have done just enough. Coach Archie Miller couldn't meet his brother Sean and Arizona until the national semifinals.

Florida has lived up to its billing as the overall No. 1 seed. The Gators have increased their winning streak to 28 games with a couple of double-figure victories. This is their fourth straight year in the round of 16, the longest current streak.

UCLA won both its games by 17 points and the Bruins have won five straight and seven of eight, including an upset of Arizona. This is their first Sweet 16 appearance since 2008.

Florida beat UCLA in the national championship game in 2006 and in the national semifinals the following season. The Gators also eliminated the Bruins in the second round in 2011.

There were plenty of eye-opening losses early. Texas-El Paso upset Tennessee. Drexel beat Alabama. Northwestern State defeated Auburn. Davidson surprised Georgia. Massachusetts and Rhode Island topped LSU. Utah State knocked off Mississippi State. Missouri State stunned Texas A&M. And USC Upstate shocked South Carolina.

MIAMI — LeBron James scored 32 points, including a layup with 11.4 seconds left, and Chris Bosh capped his 30th birthday by blocking Damian Lillard's layup in the final moments as the Miami Heat escaped with a 93-91 win over the Portland Trail Blazers on Monday night.

Bosh finished with 15 points and Chris Andersen had 13 points and 11 rebounds for Miami, which won for just the fifth time in 12 games. Mario Chalmers added 11 points for the Heat.

Spurs 113, 76ers 91

Thaddeus Young and Michael Carter-Williams each scored 19 points, Byron Mullens added 15 and Elliot Williams had 14 for Philadelphia (15-56).

Rockets 100, Bobcats 89

Howard had missed the previous three games with an ankle injury, but Houston won all three without him by an average of 23 points. He finished with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Kemba Walker had 22 points and Al Jefferson had 20 points and 11 rebounds for Charlotte, which lost for only the second time in 11 games at home.

Suns 102, Hawks 95

ATLANTA — Eric Bledsoe scored 20 points to lead five Phoenix players in double figures and the Suns won their fourth in a row, beating the Atlanta Hawks 102-95 to pull even with Dallas for the final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

The Suns buried the Hawks from 3-point range, knocking down 12-of-24 beyond the arc. Bledsoe made all three of his long-range attempts, while Channing Frye was 4-of-9 to account for the bulk of his 18 points. Goran Dragic had 19 points, Markieff Morris 17 and Gerald Green 13.

Paul Millsap and DeMarre Carroll led the Hawks with 19 points apiece.

Ty Lawson scored 25 points for the Nuggets, who had won three of four.

Bulls 89, Pacers 77

CHICAGO — Taj Gibson led five players in double figures with 23 points and the Chicago Bulls brushed off a poor offensive first half to rally for an 89-77 victory over the Indiana Pacers.

Kirk Hinrich had 18 points on 7-for-13 shooting, Mike Dunleavy scored 13, Jimmy Butler 12 and Joakim Noah added 10 points, eight rebounds and eight assists.

The win prevented Indiana from clinching the Central Division title on Chicago's home court.

Pelicans 109, Nets 104, OT

NEW ORLEANS — Tyreke Evans scored a season-high 33 points and the short-handed New Orleans Pelicans rallied from 22 down in the third quarter, beating the Brooklyn Nets 109-104 in overtime.

Evans scored 14 as New Orleans closed the third period on a 29-10 run to get back in the game.

Morrow hit a 3-pointer to give New Orleans a 106-100 lead in overtime and sealed the victory with another 3 to make it 109-102 with 54.5 seconds left.

Oklahoma St. 73, Purdue 66

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Brittney Martin had 20 points and 20 rebounds, leading Oklahoma State past Purdue 73-66 and into the Notre Dame Regional semifinals.

TAMPA — Jason Spezza scored in regulation and had the only goal in a shootout, lifting the Ottawa Senators to a 4-3 victory against the Tampa Bay Lightning on Monday night.

Erik Karlsson had a goal and two assists to help the Senators snap a six-game losing streak. Karlsson, the top-scoring defenseman in the NHL with 68 points, opened the scoring 3:57 into the game with his career-high 20th goal.

Seventy seconds after Karlsson scored, Nikita Kucherov snapped a shot past goalie Robin Lehner to pull Tampa Bay even at 1.

Ottawa took a 3-1 lead midway through the second period, when Spezza and Kyle Turris scored 44 seconds apart against former Senators goalie Ben Bishop.

Kings 3, Flyers 2

PHILADELPHIA — Dwight King scored a tiebreaking goal midway through the third period, leading the Los Angeles Kings to a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

Jeff Carter and Justin Williams scored in the second for the Kings, who won their third straight and 11th in 14 games while remaining in third place in the Pacific Division.

Los Angeles had a 2-0 lead entering the final period, but Philadelphia tied it at 2 before King's winning score with 9:24 remaining.

Rangers 4, Coyotes 3, OT

NEW YORK — Ryan McDonagh scored off a rebound of Dan Girardi's shot 1:56 into overtime to complete the New York Rangers' stunning rally in a 4-3 victory over the Phoenix Coyotes.

McDonagh put the puck past backup goalie Thomas Greiss, who relieved injured starter Mike Smith in the third period and then gave up the tying and winning goals.

Brad Richards and Derick Brassard scored in the second period when New York erased a 2-0 deficit Phoenix built in the first. Henrik Lundqvist made 18 saves.

Canadiens 2, Bruins 1, SO

BOSTON — Alex Galchenyuk scored the only shootout goal, and the Montreal Canadiens stopped the Boston Bruins' 12-game winning streak with a 2-1 victory.

The Bruins fell one game short of their longest winning streak since 1970-71 and two shy of the club record set in 1929-30.

Boston tied it at 1 with just two seconds left on its sixth power play of the game. Dougie Hamilton's slap shot from the center of the blue line deflected off Patrice Bergeron and past goalie Peter Budaj with 5:26 left in the third period.

Tampa Bay's Victor Hedman, center, celebrates his goal Monday against Ottawa with teammate Steven Stamkos (91) during the second period in Tampa.

Bowlathon to help rescue animals/C8

POISON Prevention

Katie Hendrick
For the Chronicle

Anyone who has children likely remembers jerry rigging bathroom and kitchen cabinets to keep curious tots away from household cleaners.

But Ajax and Clorox aren't the only culprits for accidental poisoning.

In the Emergency Room at Citrus Memorial Health Systems, the poisoning cases Dr. Patrick Jean encounters most often involve medication: over the counter cold and cough meds for children, narcotics overdoses for adults.

"Most trivial ingestions require watching waiting only," he said. But if a person feels weak, has difficulty breathing or experiences an altered mental state, get them to the hospital immediately.

To avoid these accidents:

Follow directions and warnings on the label exactly as written every single time.

If you have questions, contact your doctor, pharmacist or poison center — not the Internet.

Realize: what you consume with medication matters. Some meds can be dangerous or ineffective when ingested with alcohol, other drugs or certain foods or drinks.

Tell your doctor everything you are taking, be it a prescription, an over-the-counter drug, a vitamin or herbal remedy.

Keep the lights on when you swallow a pill so you can be sure what you're taking.

Don't recycle containers to avoid confusing medications.

Dispose of old and outdated medicines as soon as you no longer need them. (For tips on doing so in a safe manner, visit http://www.deadiversion.usdoj.gov/drug_disposal/takeback/)

Never share a prescription.

Medications also hurt Fluffy and Fido. Veterinarian Dr. Richard Dunn named improper medication as one of the most common topics he deals with at Countryside Animal Clinic in Beverly Hills.

"People sometimes poison their pet giving them over the counter human medications, such as Naproxen and Ibuprofen," he said. "The margin of safety for these items is very low in dogs and cats, so it very easy to overdose them."

Cats, for instance, lack enzymes needed to metabolize Tylenol, "so it kills them unless an antidote is given," he said. "Most people seem to know about that one now, but what we do see is permethrin toxicity."

Permethrin toxicity occurs when people accidentally purchase topical flea medication that says "for dogs only" and apply them to cats, causing seizures and hypothermia.

"There is no antidote," Dr. Dunn said. "We just wash it off and treat the cat symptomatically — valium and muscle relaxers to control the seizures; IV fluids for dehydration."

Stop searching, just call

The American Association of Poison Control Centers, which reports an average of 10,380 calls to poison centers daily, launched a campaign to encourage people, particularly those between the ages of 18 and 24 (who may find themselves in new situations, especially in college) to seek expert advice instead of consulting the Internet. Embarrassed or afraid of potential legal trouble, many young people go online, where they feel comforted by anonymity. However, responders at the Poison Help hotline (1-800-222-1222) will answer questions (no matter how trivial they may seem) and direct them to appropriate treatment with confidentiality and immediacy.

Dubbed "Unquestionable Answers," the campaign includes e-posters for social media featuring questions such as, "How much vomit is too much vomit?"

"Chicken nugget overdose?" and "What happens if a guy takes The Pill?"

Colonoscopy can help to save your life

Colorectal cancer is the third most common cancer among both men and women in the United States. This year, it is estimated that 136,000 new patients will develop this cancer.

The risk of colorectal cancer increases as people get older. More than 90 percent of colorectal cancers occur in people older than 50. The average age of diagnosis in the United States is 72. Most colon cancers develop from a precancerous condition called polyps, particularly adenomatous polyps.

Polyps can often be completely removed using a tool during a colonoscopy. This is a test in which a doctor looks into the colon using a lighted tube

Sunil
Gandhi
CANCER
& BLOOD DISEASE

after the patient has been sedated. Polyp removal can prevent colon cancer. Those with adenomatous polyps have a greater risk of additional polyps and of colon cancer, and they should have follow-up screening tests regularly.

In other words, a colonoscopy not only can detect early cancer, but it can also prevent colon cancer. In the United States, one of the standard recommendations is to have a colonoscopy once every 10 years. I strongly believe in it and so both my wife and myself had screening colonoscopies done.

Overall, deaths from CRC have been falling at around 3 percent per year over the last decade (2001 to 2010). Overall rates of diagnosis of new colorectal cancer (incidence) have also been falling by an average of 3.4 percent per year, but there is a marked variation by age. Incidence is decreasing in adults over 50 years of age, with a particularly sharp drop in the people 65 years and older, attributed to colonoscopy, but it has increased slightly in younger adults under the age of 50.

This is prevention at its best.

The decline was much more in people over 65. In the last two years of the study, it declined by 7.2 percent a year. In 2010, 64 percent of adults 65 and older reported being current for colorectal cancer screening versus 55 percent of adults 50 to 64. Although there are several different tests available for CRC screening, the dramatic declines in incidence in recent years have been largely attributed to the uptick in colonoscopy.

I recommend screening colonoscopy to all my appropriate patients. For proper visualization of the colon, cleaning it is essential. The preparation is crucial. This is what patients hate most. I would say if a few hours of inconvenience can save your life, it is definitely worth it.

I strongly recommend screening colonoscopy to everyone above 50, and above 45 in African Americans (because they are more commonly diagnosed at a younger age).

Allergies a lesser-known cause for headaches

Headaches are a very common problem and have lots of different causes. One of the lesser known causes for headache includes nasal allergies. It is accurate to say that certain food allergies are known as being a causative factor for headaches, but people infrequently attribute headaches to nasal allergies and hayfever issues.

One of the more unique types of headaches related to allergy includes a migraine type of headache. There is a correlation of about 33 percent

Dr. Denis Grillo
EAR, NOSE & THROAT

between migraine sufferers and allergy sufferers and it is now becoming evident that there is a link and sometimes an increased frequency and intensity of headaches in people who are allergic.

The exact method cause or pathology of a migraine is not fully understood, but it is beginning to become more clear that there is a trigger that kick starts the headache just as there are things that initiate allergy symptoms and there may be some common denominators.

Among other things, there are two common denominators: vasal dilatation — a change in the size of the blood vessel that increases blood flow and swelling and histamine — which is a chemical substance released by the mast cells which are in the blood. Histamine creates many of the symptoms associated with allergy, as well as migraine. There are many types of headaches as well as migraine headaches, caused by many different reasons, but allergy, although not common, can definitely be a cause.

Not all migraine patients respond and get improvement with antihistamines but if that has ever been the case, you might want to consider getting allergy tested to see if control of your allergies will diminish your chance of having migraine headaches. It may be an option for you as drug treatment of migraine headaches varies greatly as does the response to medication. Because of the widely established variability and effectiveness of migraine treatments allergy testing might shed some light on your migraine headache problem.

Cigarette smoke exposure affects bone mineral density

When you hear someone discussing osteoporosis, thinning of the bones, most of us equate this diagnosis to women. While you can certainly see osteoporosis in men, it is much more common in women, and is related to activity, genetics, hormonal exposure during life, and the process of aging.

For years, we have known that some men who are treated for prostate cancer using medications to suppress their testosterone level were also at an increased risk of osteoporosis and bone fractures.

Now, researchers have also discovered a link between one of my favorite topics to discuss, tobacco use, and osteoporosis in men. And, an extra dose of bad news, this relates to inhalation of smoke both as the primary smoker and via secondhand smoke secondary to being surrounded by others who smoke.

In a recent study from South Korea, researchers found that exposure to cigarette smoke (passive or active, secondhand or firsthand) is associated with lower bone mineral density (BMD) in the long bone in our thigh, the femur, as well as the lower (lumbar) spine of men.

Dr. C.
Joseph
Bennett
NAVIGATING CANCER

This was recently published in the journal Spine.

In this study, researchers analyzed data from 770 males, all over the age of 30, participating in the cross-sectional Fifth Korea National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey.

Relationships between tobacco exposure, as determined by urine cotinine, a chemical found in the urine of smokers, and BMD in femoral neck and lumbar spine were evaluated. The researchers observed a significant decrease in the density of the femoral neck and the lumbar spine with increasing age. Education and income also correlated with femoral neck density, the higher the income and the more advanced the education level, the less likely a person was to smoke.

Active smokers, or those exposed to secondhand smoke on a regular basis who were found to have urine cotinine level equal or higher than those typically associated with smoking a pack of cigarettes a day, had lower femoral neck density than those with cotinine levels at a level below that expected in a regular smoker. Age, urine cotinine level and body mass index were statistically related to femoral neck and lumbar spine density as well in several statistical analysis.

These findings suggest that tobacco exposure by active or passive smoking seems to play a critical role in the density of the bones of the hip and lower back, and over time will lead to an increased rate of fractured hips and compression fractures of the lower spine. Just another reason to try to quit if you are a regular tobacco user.

Q&A: Who can shop online for health coverage?

CALVIN WOODWARD
Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The new health care law helps some people, hurts others and confuses almost everyone. Hoping to simplify things a bit, The Associated Press asked its Twitter, Facebook and Google Plus followers for their real-life questions about the program and the problems they're running into as the March 31 deadline approaches to sign up for coverage in new insurance markets.

Two of their questions and AP's answers:

THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE AND ME

Q: "Is it really true that the IRS can't do anything to you if you refuse to get insurance and also refuse to pay the penalty?" — David Myer, 46, a consulting geophysicist in Encinitas, Calif.

A: You could say the IRS has one hand tied behind its back here. But that still leaves the other hand. The tax collectors don't have nearly as many tools to go after insurance avoiders as it has to enforce tax laws. It can, however, dip into people's tax refunds to collect the penalty for those who don't get health insurance. Most filers qualify for a tax refund, so they would be exposed to that collection tactic. Beyond that, it can send insistent letters, and who wants to get those?

Elizabeth Maresca, a former IRS trial attorney, told the AP that an unfriendly letter about an outstanding health insurance penalty probably will have much the same effect as one about tax arrears. "Most people pay because they're scared, and I don't think that's going to change," she said.

That said, the IRS can't seize bank accounts, dock wages, charge interest on unpaid penalties or apply criminal or civil sanctions to force people to obtain health coverage.

CAN I JOIN THE EXCHANGE?

Q: "Why are there limits as to who can sign up? If someone has an employer plan that they don't like, they can't switch the plan to one of the new ones." — Duane E. Maddy, a graphic designer and digital artist in Dunbar, W.Va.

A: It's true, the new system is set up so people who get health insurance at work stay on it. For better or worse, the law aims to preserve employer-based insurance, not give everyone an easy bailout to the new individual markets.

That said, you can shop for coverage in the new state exchanges even if you have insurance at work. But it may not make financial sense to switch. It depends on whether your work insurance is considered affordable. If it's not, you may be able to get a subsidized plan on the exchange — and a better deal.

What's unaffordable? The government defines it this way: If you are paying more than 9.5 percent of your income for your health insurance premiums at work, you're paying too much. You can move to an exchange plan and possibly get subsidized premiums there.

So you'll have to do some math and wade through fine print to see what your options might be.

It's also possible to switch to an exchange if your workplace plan fails to meet certain other conditions, although most job-based coverage is expected to meet that test. To be sure, the government doesn't make any of this easy to understand.

New treasures

LYNNE BOELE/Special to the Chronicle

Sisters Darby Isrow, 8, and Emmaclaire, 4, have their hands filled with treasures they selected from the Children's Section at the recently completed Friends of the Citrus County Library System (FOCCLS) Mega Spring Book Sale. The Isrow family are repeat visitors to the semi-annual spring and fall events and were among the more than 1,000 book lovers who attended the five-day sale which raised $35,696 for FOCCLS partner libraries and the Citrus County Library System. This brings the sum of FOCCLS sale proceeds since 2001 to a grand total of $825,518. The Friends also collected $240 in donations for the newly established First Library sponsored by the Citrus County Education Foundation to provide six books a year to pre-kindergarten children. FOCCLS volunteers are preparing for the fall sale which begins Oct. 10. Gently used books, DVDs, CDs, games and puzzles may be dropped off at the checkout desks of Central Ridge, Coastal or Lakes Regional libraries.

Cooney cabaret brings bit of Ireland to Citrus

The audience was like a sea of green out at the Curtis Peterson Auditorium in Lecanto when Andy Cooney and his band brought his Irish cabaret to our community.

A near sell-out crowd welcomed his entourage, which included Noel Ginnity, Ireland's funniest comedian, Darrah Carr step dancers, Bugs Moran, musical director on keyboard, and the Guinness Irish Band.

It was a great St. Patrick's Day celebration, sponsored by the American Irish Club of West Citrus County and the Citrus County Chronicle.

Opening with "They Call Her the Irish Rover," we joined Cooney with "Tura Lura Lural," as Cooney encouraged us to clap along to the Irish beat of the band.

Multi-talented drummer Jimmy Kelly, from County Galway, is a vocalist and songwriter as well. He spent six years in Nashville in collaboration with songwriters and musicians and performed two years in Radio City Music Hall.

Colm Graham, guitarist, is from Tipperary. After touring in Ireland in the 1960s, he moved to New York in 1973 and he toured with Cooney for more than 20 years.

Mitch Riley, a professional musician for more than 40 years, plays sax, flute and whistles. From County Cavan, he has performed with numerous international entertainers, including Engelbert Humperdinck, as well as on television with the Oak Ridge Boys (and on the BBC, MTV and HBO).

Bugs Moran, the musical director, from Long Island, N.Y., has performed with Irish singer and songwriter Mike Carroll in New York and on Queen Elizabeth 2 cruises.

We swayed to the classic lyrics of "I wandered to the hills, Maggie, the creek and the old rusty mill, when you and I were young, Maggie."

my Kathleen."

Performing "I Remember" for the veterans, it was a story of a boy and a campfire, and thinking of home.

The artistry of drummer Kelly shone as he joined Cooney in a fabulous duet, "Dancin' the Dublin Reel" with step dancers, as Reilly continued with flute and we joined in on the chorus: "They were dancing all night long till the break of dawn."

Recalling Ellis Island days, Cooney performed the hauntingly beautiful "Immigrant Eyes," in the hopes of passing on the spirit of his grandparents with the line, "Don't take it for granted, my grandparents' immigrant eyes."

Kelly's performance of "The Home of Donegal," with accompaniment by Reilly on flute, was magnificent.

In honor of the first responders, the selection of "I Won't Turn my Back on You" included solos by each band member.

A classic Irish piece, "MacNamara's Band," included audience participation with our arms waving to the left, then to the right.

Slowing down the pace, Cooney sang "Danny Boy," a perennial Irish favorite, a father's lament to his son.

The final set included "The Town I Love So Well," by Coulter, which speaks of the Good Friday agreement bringing people together in peace in Ireland, and "Bright New Day," with lines such as: "The future is learning from the past. Step out of the darkness into the light. Sing it out so all the world can see and hear. May all our dreams take flight."

Thanks, West Citrus Irish Club, for bringing us a wee bit of Ireland year after year.

Fort Cooper Chapter DAR honors Cecylia Thibault

March is Women's History Month, which highlights the contributions of women to events in history and contemporary society. The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution's emphasis is on the role of women, past and present, in American history who have made a contribution or difference to their community. This year, Fort Cooper Chapter DAR honored Cecylia Ziobro Thibault. Born in Poland to a Polish father and an American mother, Thibault has traveled extensively, telling audiences about events of her childhood spent in Nazi slave-labor farms. She said what she lived through is difficult to tell, but she feels she must speak to help prevent another holocaust and to ensure no one can deny the enslavement and extermination of millions of people ever happened. Thibault is author of "Trapped in a Nightmare."
