INVERNESS — Three county commissioners pushed the idea forward on Tuesday to buy the building that houses the West Citrus Government Center.

By a 3-2 vote, the Citrus County Board of County Commissioners instructed county staff to provide formal property appraisals and other information to make a decision about the purchase.

Two commissioners who voted "no" supported continuing to lease the office space for the remaining seven years of the county's 10-year lease agreement instead.

Suncoast 3 would connect to I-75

PAT FAHERTY Staff writer

TALLAHASSEE — The future of Suncoast Parkway 2, an extension of the existing Suncoast Parkway, could depend on Suncoast 3.

That was the message a delegation from Citrus County heard last week from Bob Romig, deputy assistant secretary of planning with the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT).

Suncoast 2 has been a legislative priority with the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce and the Economic Development Council. And last year the Tampa Bay Partnership listed it as a regional priority.

The project started in 1998, when FDOT decided to build the expansion, allowing it to move forward. Preliminary work took place during the next several years, until it was derailed by the recession with 60 percent of the planning complete.

Suncoast 2 would extend the parkway approximately 27 miles from its present terminus at U.S. 98 near the Hernando/Citrus County line northward to U.S. 19 in northwestern Citrus County. An environmental study has been completed on the proposed route along with some right-of-way acquisition.

"I share your passion about this," said Romig, citing congestion on Interstate 75 as a driving factor. "Suncoast 2 will be looked at as more of a reliever for I-75. We really need to connect Suncoast 2 back to I-75 somewhere near Gainesville."

preventive care plans.

Peppering attorneys with questions in a 90-minute argument, the justices weighed the rights of for-profit companies against the rights of female employees. The discussion ranged to abortion, too, and even whether a female worker could be forced to wear an all-covering burka.

The outcome could turn on the views of Justice Anthony Kennedy, often the decisive vote, as his colleagues appeared otherwise to divide along liberal and conservative lines.

As the court heard the challenge brought by the Hobby Lobby chain of stores and others, demonstrators on both sides of the issue chanted outside in an early spring snow.

The justices upheld the overall health care law two years ago in a 5-4 ruling in which Chief Justice John Roberts cast the deciding vote in favor of Obama's signature domestic

Group wants lawmakers to study family issues

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Family Policy Council released a report Tuesday that details the declining rate of two-parent homes while calling for the Legislature to study how government can help keep families intact. Council President John Stemberger said he wants legislative leaders to approach the issue from an economic point of view, saying that the deterioration of families has a large cost to the state. The report looked at divorce rates, children affected by divorce and the rise in single parent families. It said births to unwed mothers in Florida have increased from 9.5 percent in 1960 to 48 percent in 2012. Likewise, single-parent families make up 36 percent of the state's families.

"We're looking at trying to find a way to move forward with Suncoast 2," he said. "We have $26.5 million for early acquisition (right-of-way) over the next four years and have kicked off a study for traffic and revenue."

The money is budgeted through Fiscal Year 2019, with approximately $18.4 million for Citrus County and $7.2 million for Hernando County

"What happens if you can feed Suncoast 3 30,000 trips a day?" he asked. "We're looking at a lot of different options; we hope it will move forward very quickly."

Romig explained Suncoast 3 evolved from the Nature Coast Parkway initiative, based on a study done in 1992. He said with a new study looking forward, they understand the importance of Suncoast 3.

One option has Suncoast 3 connecting I-75 to U.S. 19, which would connect to Suncoast 2.

He concluded that while Suncoast 2 stands alone as a much-needed project, putting it in the bigger context of Suncoast 3, to connect to points north, might actually improve the financial feasibility of the proposed extension.

Bid hanging on by a thread

CR panel not buying chamber property purchase plan; issue tabled

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — The bid to have the city's Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA) purchase the soon-to-be vacant chamber of commerce building and raze it to create more parking for the downtown area is hanging by a thread.

Monday the city council, in its capacity as the CRA board, voted 3-2 to table the issue until April 7 pending more information. Mayor Jim Farley, vice mayor Ken Brown and council member Mike Gudis said they wanted to give city staff more time to come up with more information about such things as the cost of an adjoining parcel of land and how purchase of the property will fit into the long-term development of the downtown waterfront area. Council members Paula Wheeler and Robert Holmes were opposed to the plan. Brown said he is on the fence and was willing to give it more thought.

Josh Wooten, the CEO of the chamber, told the panel they are not obligated to purchase the property and that he offered it as courtesy.

The chamber building is located at 28 NW U.S. 19 and has an appraised value of $150,000.

The Chamber is finalizing arrangements to relocate to a facility at 915 N. Suncoast Blvd., where they will share space with the Tourist Development Council (TDC) and the Economic Development Council (EDC). That move is expected to occur sometime during the summer.

City Manager Andy Houston said the purchase of property would support efforts under way to work with merchants and property owners along South Citrus Avenue to upgrade the area behind the South Citrus businesses. Houston also wants to possibly raze the building currently at the site and link with another parking property the city currently owns.

However, there is another piece of property between the city-owned parcel and the chamber property and officials are unsure how much that land is going to cost.

At the regular city council meeting, council members shot down most of the ideas presented by Houston to potentially alter the city's building codes and advance efforts to qualify for discounts under the new and very expensive premiums proposed for the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) in flood-prone areas.

Participation in the Community Rating System (CRS) program is designed to reduce flood insurance premiums, but communities would have to first adopt more stringent building code requirements to minimize future flood losses.

Houston told the council many homes in the city have suffered multiple flood losses and that he thought he would bring up some of the more controversial potential alterations to the codes before them. He said the city's CRS application is due in May.

The proposals included: alternative means of elevating structures; additional freeboard. Freeboard is additional height above base flood elevation (BFE); cumulative substantial improvement and cumulative substantial damage. The cumulative plan says if the value of proposed improvements exceeds 50 percent of the value of the existing structure, the homeowner has to rebuild structure according to current codes; and the prohibition of mobile homes.

But the panel rejected the proposals and Houston said he will come back with less controversial plans in an effort to perhaps qualify for the minimum discount.

April 7 observance recognizes victims of violent crime, supporters

INVERNESS — As a victim of crime, Judith Edlund said the reckoning came after the man who robbed her fled the scene.

Edlund said she thought about her three boys, two of whom were across the street from the dry cleaners where she worked, at a daycare center.

"At first when he told 'give me all the money' I laughed and thought this kid must be joking," Edlund recalled of the night some seven years ago.

However, it quickly dawned on Edlund that she was a victim of a brazen robbery during which the man, Timothy Gartner, 29, brandished a weapon. Gartner would later be convicted of armed robbery. He also was tagged a habitual offender and sentenced to life in prison.

For Edlund, the jolt of being robbed at the barrel of a gun caused her to reassess her priorities.

She quit her job, packed her three boys and moved, first to Georgia and now to the Ozarks in northern Arkansas.

"It is so peaceful here and the kids get to be kids and I don't have to worry as much," Edlund said.

Edlund is far from alone in having to persevere after being victimized by a violent criminal. At 11:30 a.m. Monday, April 7, both victims of violent crimes and those who support them will be recognized and help bring awareness to services available to targets of such acts. The observance will be in the commission chambers of the Citrus County Courthouse.

The upheaval to Edlund's otherwise decent life as a former resident of Homosassa is sadly the norm for many victims of crime, said Shannon Boles, victim witness counselor at the State Attorney's Office.

But Boles said help is always available to victims.

"What we do at our office is to try to keep them comfortable and serve as a liaison between the victim and other agencies as they go through the trial process," Boles said.

"But even before they get to us, there is a lot of help out there," she said.

Boles said organizations such as Citrus Abuse Shelter Association (CASA) work really hard to separate a purported abuser from the abused and the sheriff's office's victim advocates are often first on the scene of a crime, helping provide comfort to victims and direct them to the right organizations for help.

"We also have the Red Cross and local churches helping when someone is a victim of a fire. Children get great help from Jessie's Place," Boles noted.

"I think, the Guardian Ad Litem are the unsung heroes of this process. It is a volunteer program, but those guys do a great job standing up for children."

ADC hosts event exploring myths related to drugs

Special to the Chronicle

As part of Children's Month, on Thursday, April 10, the Anti Drug Coalition of Citrus County (ADC) is hosting an informative and fun evening about myths related to drugs. There will be door prizes and giveaways, along with free pizza.

What myths surround drinking alcohol, smoking marijuana and e-cigarettes? How can parents and teens communicate about these difficult issues and others that will also be discussed?

Did you know that in Citrus County, middle and high school students drink at a rate that is higher than the state average?

Did you know that the age a child takes their first drink can be a predictor of becoming an alcoholic later in life?

Even more importantly, did you know that you, as a parent, a student or a concerned citizen can help to lower the incidence of teen drinking and other drug use by being an active member of the Anti-Drug Coalition of Citrus County?

To find out more about the ADC and the myths surrounding substance use, plan to attend the Myth Busters Town Hall meeting. The event, at the Renaissance Center, 3620 Educational Path, Lecanto, opens at 4:30 p.m. with information sharing including a locally produced video with presentations starting at 5:15 p.m.

For more information, call 352-584-6500.

Rolling Stones to play in Israel

JERUSALEM — Israeli fans of the Rolling Stones have complained for years that they can't get no satisfaction. Until now. Promoter Shuki Weiss said Tuesday the legendary band will play its first concert in Israel — in Tel Aviv on June 4. Israeli rock fans often get the blues as their favorite bands skip the country on their world tours. Some musicians stay away due to politics, while for others it's a matter of logistics. Whenever a major band comes, it's big news. The Stones recently postponed their tour of Australia and New Zealand after the suicide of singer Mick Jagger's girlfriend. Other bands playing Israel this year include Neil Young, the Prodigy, Justin Timberlake and the Pixies, who canceled an earlier visit in 2010 apparently for political reasons.

Nature Coast Clinical Research, LLC.

Nature Coast Clinical Research (NCCR) was established by a group of Citrus County physicians in 1998 to help in the development and advancement of new medications.

What is pharmaceutical research?

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires pharmaceutical companies to conduct three phases of studies on all investigational (new) medications and devices prior to their approval for use in the United States. This process usually takes between 7-10 years before submission to the FDA.

How safe are these programs?

Each study has a written plan, or protocol, which is first submitted to the FDA for review. All phases of research are conducted in a well-controlled environment with qualified personnel monitoring each patient. Patients are questioned and evaluated extensively prior to enrollment in any program and prior to using any new medication or devices. Qualified physicians and study nurses monitor patients throughout the course of the project.

Behind every new medicine are the volunteers who take part in clinical research studies.

Coast Guard begins surprise cruise inspections

Associated Press

MIAMI — The Coast Guard has begun unannounced inspections of cruise ships at U.S. ports, targeting those with patterns of safety problems, officials told the National Transportation Safety Board at its first-ever forum on safety on board the vessels.

Capt. Eric Christensen, who oversees ship inspection policy for the Coast Guard, also said that regular twice-a-year inspections of 140 cruise ships based at U.S. ports in 2013 found 351 deficiencies, most frequently problems with fire doors and lifeboats.

The inspection program began this month.

"There was a population of cruise ships that had the lion's share of deficiency. You want to focus your ef-orts on those vessels," Christensen told the board, without identifying which ships or cruise lines were involved.

"They don't know you are coming, but this is how you can summarize they would normally operate," he added. "The bottom line is, we hold standard vessels accountable."

Cruise ships must address any safety problems identified by the Coast Guard before they can allow passengers to board at U.S. ports.

The NTSB hearing, held in Washington and webcast around the world, follows last year's fire aboard the Carnival Triumph that left the ship adrift for days in the Gulf of Mexico, subjecting some 3,000 passengers to squalid conditions. A fire also knocked out power in 2010 to the Carnival Splendor at sea in the Pacific Ocean, also stranding passengers at sea and requiring that it be towed to port.

In 2012, the Costa Concordia ship capsized off Italy, killing 32 people.

NTSB chairwoman Debbie Hersman cited those recent accidents and others aboard increasingly gigantic ships — some of which can carry 6,000 passengers and 2,000 crew members — to underscore the need to ensure the safety of every voyage. She said more than 22 million people will take a cruise worldwide this year.

"When a passenger steps onto a cruise ship, they have the right to expect the safest vessel possible," said Hersman, whose agency has limited authority to investigate only those cruise ship accidents within 12 miles of U.S. coasts.

in January. According to Damato, the potential purchase would protect the county's $1.8 million investment in upgrades it made when it moved into the building. Damato also considered the building as the only suitable facility for satellite offices with an ideal location.

At the previous government center on U.S. 19, the county's investment had not been protected.

"The thing that the public has to keep in mind is that the boards before that went ahead and had a temporary location at what we call the old Revco drugstore for 18 years, and that cost you, the taxpayer, over $1 million in rent and $500,000 in repairs for a building that we don't own," Damato said.

Damato said the county could lease five units within the building and the rents could offset the debt service and maintenance. The county also would have extra space for its own future needs.

Commissioner Joe Meek urged the board to seek appraisals to aid the decision.

Commissioner Rebecca Bays, however, did not want to pursue considering the purchase. Bays said she thought it wiser to continue with the current lease as the county could need less space in the future rather than more space as more county transactions can be handled over the internet.

Commissioner Scott Adams also opposed going forward with appraisals.

"We have the first right of refusal even at the end of the lease," Adams said, referring to the question of buying the building having been triggered by a provision in the lease agreement that the county could pay $4,050,000 before May 31 if it wanted to own it. "We've got another seven years and this county could change so much," Adams said.

Adams also said a new facility could be built for $7.5 million, which would be a better investment than the 30-year-old Meadowcrest facility.

Commission Chairman John "JJ" Kenney said he would like to find out what the building was worth and what it would cost to build a 30,000 square foot facility.

Damato responded that the tax collector would need another 7,000 square feet if the office develops a call center. He also told Adams he would like to see his plans for a new building.

Few members of the public supported continuing consideration of the purchase. Charles Knecht of Citrus Springs said the county should not buy investment property, it should pay down debt.

John Wade, president of the Citrus County Council, went through a detailed building evaluation conducted by county staff that reported many damages needing repairs and replacements. Wade recommended the county build its satellite office on property it owns at the Lecanto government campus or along County Road 491.

County Administrator Brad Thorpe responded that the county can't build anything else at the Lecanto campus and the satellite office had to be on the west side of the county.

Scott Carnahan, a candidate for County Commission District 4, said the county did not need to be in the landlord business.

Theodora Rusnak of Citrus Hills presented research on comparable pieces of real estate that would indicate the price under consideration for the building was too high.

Josh Wooten, president and CEO of the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce, said the county could amortize its $1.8 million investment with the purchase and should stay at that location where it has served 150,000 county residents.

Winn Webb, former commissioner and a current candidate for District 4, said that the property owner could raise the rent at the end of the lease in seven years if the county did not buy it.

The purchase will be considered at a future meeting with appraisals and additional requested information.

SHINING LIGHT

Burden of transparency is on the government

Each year in mid-March we celebrate Sunshine Week. This sunshine is about information transparency and open government, not about whether to take a raincoat when you leave the house.

You may have seen the feature story run by the Citrus County Chronicle to kick off Sunshine Week, this year from March 16 to 22. We didn't fare very well in this year's survey of government websites by the Tallahassee-based First Amendment Foundation (FAF).

Overall, counties averaged 50 points out of a possible 100 and cities averaged 46 points in the FAF's transparency survey—but Citrus County and the City of Crystal River didn't even hit that benchmark. (Note: while all Florida's counties were included, only 47 cities were surveyed; Inverness was not among them.) Citrus County scored 45, and Crystal River scored 36.

Some background: Sunshine Sunday in Florida was launched in 2002 by the Florida Society of Newspaper Editors; it expanded nationwide in 2005 to Sunshine Week through the efforts of the American Society of News Editors. Now the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press also co-sponsors Sunshine Week.

The FAF survey was conducted this year by university journalism students from Tampa, Gainesville and Miami, who were asked to find specific information through a reasonable website search.

Categories of information included financial, accountability, public meetings, contact information, public records, ease of use and other features.

Although it may sound like just a journalism thing, it's really about the public's right to know what the government is doing, and how, and why. The resulting report showed that while most websites surveyed offered convenient links to everyday functions, few made it easy for citizens to request public records, and most didn't include links to records critical to understanding how a government operates—from financial analyses to databases of vendors to financial disclosure forms.

No one has suggested that any local governments are trying to hide anything by these omissions. The problem, local government folks will tell you, is that there's no standard template to follow in developing their websites, no guidance about what to include and how, or where to place links for logical access.

That's no excuse. We strongly urge our local government leaders to bring this issue to Florida's professional organization of practicing public administrators, the Florida City and County Management Association. A working group in that organization, whose members include entities on both sides of the transparency scorecard, should create a guide for developing convenient, transparent local government websites. The public is watching.

THE ISSUE:

Local governments don't make the grade in First Amendment Foundation transparency survey.

OUR OPINION:

Work together on website templates to meet the spirit of the law.

To read about the First Amendment foundation's survey of government websites and a description of the categories see this website: <http://floridafaf.org/latest-news/sunshine-week/faf-report-card-local-government-website-transparency/> There also are links to detailed score sheets and summaries.

In Sunday's paper, March 16, the Florida Natural Wonders Springs in West Central Florida, that piece was great. A lot of information. But they need to check their facts next time because the Chassahowitzka River Campground and Recreation Area is not operated by the Citrus County Parks and Recreation Department. Lap of luxury

As you talk about our taxes in this county, go to other counties. As you ride through them, check out their county vehicles and you'll see they're older, rusting, such things like that. As you ride around in Citrus County, everything we have is brand new here.

Ryan misrepresents his Irish roots

Reflections upon the recent holiday: The first time my wife saw tears in my eyes was in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, at the tomb of Jonathan Swift. The brilliant 18th-century Irish satirist was my first and most enduring literary hero, a towering figure who Yeats thought "slept under the greatest epitaph in history"—composed by Swift himself.

Gene Lyons
OTHER VOICES

I knew the Latin by heart, but seeing it engraved in stone moved me, although Swift had been dead since 1745. "It is almost finer in English," Yeats wrote, "than in Latin: 'He has gone where fierce indignation can lacerate his heart no more.'"

Reading Swift taught me more about Ireland and my Irish-Catholic ancestors than I ever learned at my alcoholic grandfather's knee, I can tell you that. An Anglo-Irish churchman who considered himself exiled from London to the city of his birth, Swift condemned British misrule of Ireland in the most memorable satires written in English or any other language.

His 1729 pamphlet, "A Modest Proposal for Preventing the Children of Poor People from Being a Burden to Their Parents," retains the capacity to shock after almost 300 years. Impersonating the ever-so-reasonable voice of a public-spirited reformer of the sort who might today issue proposals from the Heritage Foundation, the narrator advocated genteel cannibalism.

"I rather recommend buying the children alive and dressing them hot from the knife," he suggested, "as we do roasting pigs."

It's the laconic "rather" that chills to the marrow, precisely revealing the pamphleteer's inhumanity.

Swift was certainly no Irish nationalist. A Tory by temperament and conviction, he'd have been appalled by the idea that the island's Roman Catholic majority could govern itself. Even so, professor Leo Damrosch's terrific new biography makes a compelling case that both his voice and his personal example were instrumental to an evolving Irish national consciousness.

I thought of Swift's "Modest Proposal" the other day listening to the ever-so-reasonable Rep. Paul Ryan explain that America's poor have only themselves to blame.

"We have got this tailspin of culture, in our inner cities in particular," Ryan explained, "of men not working and just generations of men not even thinking about working or learning the value and the culture of work."

Any question who he was talking about? As several commentators have noted, this business about "inner city" men not working isn't so much Republican "dog whistle" as GOP air-raid siren.

Ryan has since alibied that he'd been "inarticulate" and wasn't trying to implicate "the culture of one community." This came soon after a speech in which he'd told a heartfelt tale of a small boy who didn't want a "free lunch from a government program," but a Mommy-made lunch in a brown paper bag that showed somebody cared about him.

Coming from a guy busily trying to cut funding for school lunch programs and food stamps, this was pretty rich. Also, apparently, apocryphal. The witness who'd told Ryan the tale in a congressional hearing had not only swiped it from a book called "The Invisible Thread," but reversed its meaning. Which wasn't so much that government assistance, as Ryan warned, threatens to leave children with "a full stomach and an empty soul," but that sermons mean very little to hungry children.

Delivered just before St. Patrick's Day, Ryan's disquisition upon the undeserving poor earned him the scorn of the New York Times' Timothy Egan. Taking note of Ryan's great-great-grandfather, who emigrated to the United States during the catastrophic Irish famine of the 1840s, Egan pointed out that Ryan's words echoed the rhetoric of Victorian Englishmen content to let his ancestors die lest they become dependent upon charity.

It's not always understood in this country that the mass starvation of Irish peasants—more than a million died, and another million emigrated—resulted not from the failure of the potato crop but English government policy. Ireland remained a net exporter of food throughout, with British soldiers guarding shipments of foodstuffs as they were loaded.

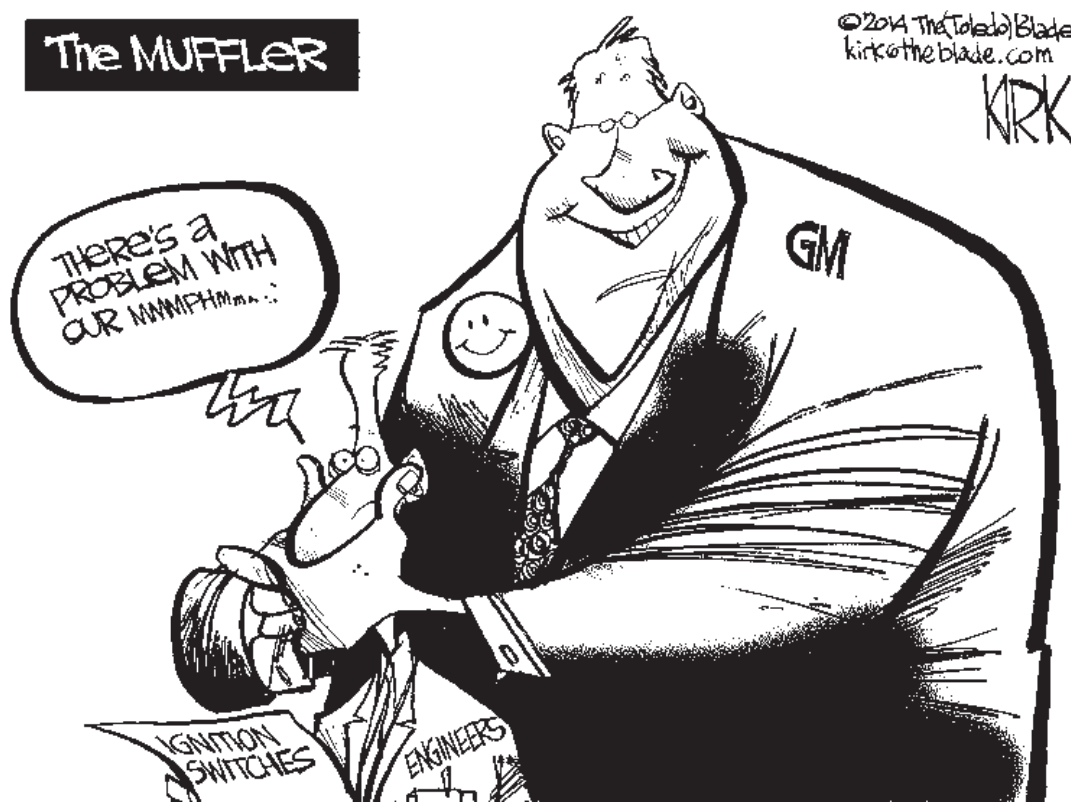

Rhetoric, see, has consequences. From Swift's time onward, the native Irish had been depicted in terms justifying their subjugation. Virtually every negative stereotype applied to our "inner city" brethren today was first applied to Paul Ryan's (and my own) ancestors. Irish peasants were called shiftless, drunken, sexually promiscuous, donkey-strong but mentally deficient. They smelled bad.

Understanding that history is exactly what makes Irish-Americans like Timothy Egan, Charles P. Pierce and me—if I may include myself in their company—so impatient with a tinhorn like Ryan. If he wanted to understand his own ancestry, it's authors like Swift, Yeats and James Joyce that Ryan ought to be reading, instead of that dismal ideologue Ayn Rand.

Nobody should let ethnic groupthink determine his politics. But if a politician like Paul Ryan hopes to be respected, it would help if he showed some sign of understanding the past.

Looking for more recent data

My husband and I are new to Florida, having moved here from Washington state in the past five years. I have been following the nutrient load issue in local waters/springs with concern and interest as well as water issues in Florida as a whole to become an informed and proactive citizen.

In reading Mr. Rimbey's column "State must address nutrient levels" (March 4, Page A10) I was curious why the facts for primary sources of nitrate pollution for Chassahowitzka's springs was from 1997—data that is nearly 20 years old.

Certainly the balance between agriculture and residential use have changed significantly since 1997. Is current data—or at least data from

Unpaved streets in the town

Many residents of Hernando live on unpaved streets and pay real estate taxes on their property. It would be nice if the county were to assess the conditions of these roads and possibly consider improving the streets. I realize the county does not own the streets and it is up to residents to petition and apply to the county to get these streets paved. However, many residents cannot afford this enormous burden, but still have to travel these streets daily and put increased stress on their vehicles, not to mention the uncomfortable daily ride on these streets.

Can't the county come up with a suitable solution to get these streets paved? When you see the county paving roads that don't need it, it seems the asphalt could be used to help residents who live on unpaved streets.

legislation. The latest case focuses on a sliver of the law dealing with preventive services, including contraception, that must be offered in a company's plan at no extra charge.

The family-owned companies that are challenging the provision provide health insurance to their employees but object to covering certain methods of birth control that they say can work after conception, in violation of their religious beliefs.

The justices have never declared that for-profit corporations, as opposed to individuals, can hold religious beliefs. The companies in this case, and their backers, argue that a 1993 federal law on religious freedom extends to businesses.

Among the groups opposing the administration is the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. As it happens, Obama is to meet this week with Pope Francis.

The Obama administration says it's not just about birth control, that a Supreme Court ruling in favor of the businesses also could undermine laws governing immunizations, Social Security taxes and minimum wages.

Kennedy voiced concerns about the rights of both female employees and the business owners. He wondered what would happen if an employer ordered a woman who works for him to wear a burka, a full-length robe and head covering commonly worn by conservative Islamic women.

He asked: Does the employer's religious belief "just trump?"

Later in the 90-minute argument, however, he seemed troubled about how the logic of the government's argument would apply to abortions. "A profit corporation could be forced in principle to pay for abortions," Kennedy said. "Your reasoning would permit it."

The three women on the court, Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Elena Kagan and Sonia Sotomayor, repeatedly questioned Paul Clement, representing the businesses, whether blood transfusions, vaccinations and laws against sex discrimination would be subject to the same religious objections if the court ruled for his clients.

"Everything would be piecemeal and nothing would be uniform," Kagan said.

Clement acknowledged that courts would have to decide on a case-by-case basis, but he said only the kind of family-owned com-

Roberts at one point suggested that the court could limit its ruling to just such companies.

One key issue before the justices is whether profit-making corporations may assert religious beliefs under the 1993 religious freedom law or the First Amendment provision guaranteeing Americans the right to believe and worship as they choose.

road to proposed residents. "If you want Sugarmill Woods to stay the way it is, vote against the stub out," Alan Bell said.

Commissioners weren't voting on anything Tuesday. And acting county attorney Kerry Parsons warned commissioners from commenting on the matter because the Oak Village Association has applied for a street vacation to remove the stub out from public ownership.

The county staff will approve or deny Kalka's right of way utilization permit to pave the stub out. Staffers returned the application to Kalka with several questions; Kalka submitted a revised application on Monday.

Two weeks ago, Commissioners Rebecca Bays, John "JJ" Kenney and Joe Meek all indicated they could have conflicts of interest on any Kalka-related application.

Residents urged commissioners to vote on the issue and not abstain from the vote.

"Recusing yourself is like refusing to back the people who put you in office," Dewey Ingram said.

During a meeting break, both Kenney and Meek said they are asking Parsons to seek a formal opinion from the Florida Ethics Commission to determine if they have conflicts that prevent them from voting.

Kenney lives in Oak Village and he said his home value could be affected by opening up Oak Village Boulevard for new traffic.

Meek's father, Joe, has worked with Kalka on home-construction projects in Pine Ridge and Citrus Springs. Commissioner Meek said his father is not planning to partner with Kalka on any projects that could impact Oak Village Boulevard, but he couldn't rule out that it might happen.

Bays said she would ask Parsons whether she has a conflict of interest or not. Bays said she sells insurance to Kalka for some of his properties, though the development land that could connect to Oak Village Boulevard is not included.

The street vacation application goes to the Planning and Development Commission on May 15 and then to the county commission for a final vote.

Residents gave commissioners advance notice of what to expect when the final hearing comes.

Civilian kills sailor on base

NORFOLK, Va. — A civilian approaching a Navy destroyer at the world's largest naval base late at night took a weapon from a sailor who was standing watch and used it to shoot and kill another sailor who was trying to help his embattled colleague, Navy officials said Tuesday.

Navy security forces then killed the suspect, who was authorized to be on Naval Station Norfolk and did not bring his own weapon on base, according to Capt. Robert Clark, the base's commanding officer.

The identities of the civilian and the sailor who were killed have not been released.

Ship channel has limited traffic

GALVESTON, Texas — The Coast Guard partially reopened one of the nation's busiest seaports to ship traffic Tuesday, three days after a collision between a barge and a ship spilled up to 170,000 gallons of tar-like oil into the waters south of Houston.

Authorities said ships were being allowed through the Houston Ship Channel after their assessment teams deemed it was clear enough for passage. About 100 ships were waiting Tuesday morning to move through the channel, which connects Southeast Texas to the Gulf of Mexico and is a key route for tourism and traffic to refineries on the Gulf Coast.

Utah to welcome marijuana extract

SALT LAKE CITY — Parents of Utah children with severe epilepsy are cheering a new state law that allows them to obtain a marijuana extract they say helps with seizures, but procuring it involves navigating a thorny set of state and federal laws.

Utah's Republican Gov. Gary Herbert signed the law Tuesday afternoon.

The new law doesn't allow medical marijuana production in Utah, but allows families meeting certain restrictions to obtain the extract from other states.

The marijuana extract Charlotte's Web, which some believe helps with a severe form of epilepsy, is produced in nearby Colorado and is designed not to produce a high.

Snowstorm treks up East Coast

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Just days after the official end of one of the snowiest winters on record, another storm began its trek up the Interstate 95 corridor Tuesday, dropping flurries in Washington and Philadelphia on its way to Cape Cod, which was expected to see some of the highest snow totals.

A blizzard warning was in effect for Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket beginning Wednesday after midnight. Forecasters warned of wind gusts as high as 70 mph with near-zero visibility at times, including during the Wednesday morning rush hour. As much as 10 inches of snow could fall there.

After a winter of back-to-back snowstorms, most Americans were ready to embrace spring. But the feeling of relief turned to dismay Tuesday when it became clear winter wasn't going away quietly.

"I'm ready for summer," 25-year-old nurse Krystina Smith declared as she rode the subway in Boston on Tuesday. "It's April. When will it stop? I have to work tomorrow, and I don't want to have to shovel again before I go in."

The National Weather Service insisted the timing, though unwelcome, wasn't out of the ordinary. "It is not unusual to have storms this late in the year," weather service spokesman Bill Simpson said, adding that April has seen quite a few big storms in the past. The Boston area got more than 2 inches of snow in an April storm last year and was blanketed with almost 2 feet the same month in 1997.

Mexico: Moms made prostitutes

MEXICO CITY — Mexican prosecutors said they have freed two children held by pimps who used their hold over the children to force their mothers into prostitution in the United States.

The raid announced Tuesday appears to confirm one of the most chilling allegations about the prostitution trade operated by organized gangs in central Mexico: that some women are forced into sex for hire because they fear their children will be harmed if they rebel or attempt escape.

The raid occurred last week in the town of Tenancingo, the pimps' stronghold.

Ebola victims quarantined

CONAKRY, Guinea — Health workers in protective hazmat suits treated patients in quarantine centers on Tuesday in a remote corner of Guinea where Ebola has killed at least 60 people in West Africa's first outbreak of the deadly virus in two decades.

Seven patients are being hospitalized at one isolation ward in Gueckedou in southern Guinea, while two others are being treated elsewhere, said Doctors Without Borders.

The aid group said it is sending mobile teams into the surrounding countryside in search of people who may have been exposed since the first cases emerged last week.

Six of the seven blood samples sent to France from Guinea had tested positive for Ebola, specifically the Zaire strain of the disease originating from Congo which has up to a 90 percent fatality rate, the World Health Organization said Tuesday.

Kenya struggles to stop poaching

NAIROBI, Kenya — Kenya's wildlife authority said Tuesday it needs help to curb the escalation of killings of the country's endangered elephants and rhinos for ivory tusks and horns.

Poachers have killed 18 rhinos and 51 elephants so far this year, Kenya Wildlife Service chief William Kiprono said.

Kiprono denied that a poaching cartel exists within the organization and said that steps are being taken to ensure that none of its employees engage in poaching.

A searcher uses a small boat Tuesday to look through debris from a deadly mudslide in Oso, Wash. At least 14 people were killed in the 1-square-mile slide that hit in a rural area about 55 miles northeast of Seattle on Saturday. Several people also were critically injured, and homes were destroyed.

Scientist warned of mudslide 15 years ago; death toll 24

Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Wash. — Washington state officials say searchers found 10 more bodies in the debris of a massive landslide, raising the number of people who died in the disaster to 24.

Snohomish County District 21 Fire Chief Travis Hots announced the fatalities Tuesday evening after residents from the nearby logging town of Darrington spent the day helping rescue crews scour the muck for any sign of survivors.

The grim discoveries came three days after the collapse of a rain-soaked hillside about 55 miles north of Seattle.

Searchers had warned they were likely to find more bodies in the debris field, which covered a neighborhood of 49 structures. Authorities believe at least 25 were full-time residences.

They were working off a list of 176 people unaccounted for, though some names were believed to be duplicates.

A scientist working for the government had warned 15 years ago about the potential for a catastrophic landslide in the fishing village where the collapse of a rain-soaked hillside over the weekend killed at least 14 people

Volunteers and firefighters with chainsaws and hand tools hike down a rugged path toward the scene of the deadly mudslide.

As rescue workers slogged through the muck and rain in search of victims Tuesday, word of the 1999 report raised questions about why residents were allowed to build homes on the hill and whether officials had taken proper precautions.

"I knew it would fail catastrophically in a large-magnitude event," though not when it would happen, said Daniel Miller, a geomorphologist who was hired by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to do the study. "I was not surprised."

Patricia Graesser, a spokeswoman for the Army Corps in Seattle, said it appears that the report was intended not as a risk assessment, but as a feasibility study for ecosystem restoration.

Asked whether the agency should have done anything with the information, she said: "We don't have jurisdiction to do anything. We don't do zoning. That's a local responsibility."

Snohomish County officials and authorities in the devastated village of Oso said they were not aware of the study, but that residents and town officials knew the risks of living in the area.

In fact, the area has long been known as the "Hazel Landslide" because of landslides over the past half-century. The last severe one before Saturday's disaster was in 2006.

Obama honors American WWI dead

Associated Press

WAREGEM, Belgium — Today, President Barack Obama will honor the Americans who died in an epic struggle so horrific that it came simply to be known as the Great War. Obama's wreath-laying ceremony at Flanders Field, 50 miles west of Brussels, precedes most of the continental centennial remembrances that are targeted at the early August 1914 start of hostilities, which pitted the German and Austro-Hungarian empires against France, Britain, Russia and others.

The Great War claimed some 14 million lives and at least 7 million troops were left permanently disabled. The continent was plunged into physical, moral and philosophical shock.

The men resting at Flanders Field were part of a U.S. contingent of up to 2 million soldiers who became leading protagonists in the struggle.

Compared to World War II, the Great War is sometimes seen as a "forgotten war" for Americans. Overall, more than 116,500 American service members were killed and about 204,000 wounded.

Flanders Field American Cemetery in Waregem, Belgium, is shown Dec. 18. The cemetery contains the remains of 368 U.S. WWI military and support personnel. NFL bans goalpost celebration

Refs will also receive help on instant replays

ORLANDO — The NFL officiating department will help referees rule on instant replay reviews starting next season.

League owners passed a rule Tuesday allowing referees to consult with director of officiating Dean Blandino and his staff to help determine whether a call should be upheld or overturned. NFL officials said the change should speed up the process.

Blandino and other staff will be monitoring the games from league offices in New York, and they will immediately begin reviewing challenges before the referee even gets to his monitor. They can make recommendations on what replays to look at, but the referee still will make the final decision.

Brother of Bucs WR Williams charged with stabbing

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers are gathering information on an incident in which receiver Mike Williams allegedly was stabbed in the leg by his brother.

Williams, who signed a six-year, $40 million contract before last season, was treated and released from a hospital for a thigh wound on Sunday.

The Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office said the fifth-year pro's younger brother, Eric Baylor, turned himself in Monday night. Baylor, 23, was held on $1,000 bond.

Deputies responded Sunday to Williams' Tampa home, finding him with a stab wound in the left thigh. The player initially told deputies the brothers were wrestling and the stabbing was accidental.

Witnesses gave statements later that the two argued before the stabbing.

Injuries limited Williams to six games in 2013. He had 22 receptions for 216 yards and two touchdowns before spending the last nine weeks of the season on injured reserve.

No. 3 Penn State rolls past No. 11 seeded Florida 83-61 in NCAA tourney

Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Florida's return to the NCAA tournament has it longing for a deeper run the next time.

The Gators expect to be back soon. "It just continues to generate a high expectation for our program," coach Amanda Butler said. "It's just huge, huge strides being in the position that we're in."

The Gators will have to wait another year to build on this season's flirtation with the Sweet 16. Maggie Lucas and Dara Taylor each scored 22 points to send Penn State into the regional with a 83-61 win over Florida on Tuesday night.

Kayla Lewis led the 11th-seeded Gators (20-13) with 20 points and nine rebounds. Jaterra Bonds scored 14.

"They pressured us up," Lewis said. "We turned the ball over a little bit too much."

The third-seeded Lady Lions (24-7) will play at No. 2 Stanford (30-3) on Sunday.

Lucas, the two-time Big Ten player of the year, surpassed the 2,500 career-point milestone and led the Lady Lions to the NCAA tournament regional semifinal for the second time in three seasons.

Lucas planted a kiss on the Penn State logo, one final imprint on her home court.

She was the last Lady Lion to sprint toward the locker room, pumping her fist for the final time in front of her fans.

"That we're able to share it with the fans, it's just a whole better feeling," Lucas said. "It's a great way to go out of the Bryce Jordan Center."

Moments after the final horn sounded, Lucas ran toward the fans and let loose a yell a season in the making.

"Let's gooooo!"

Ariel Edwards added 16 points for Penn State. The Lady Lions are in the Sweet 16 for the 13th time.

"It's just sweet," coach Coquese Washington said. "It's like dark chocolate with caramel sweet."

Led by Lucas and Taylor, the Lady Lions controlled the game from the opening tip, and gave the home crowd one more big win to savor.

Edwards hit a jumper and Taylor drove for a layup, giving the Lady Lions a 15-point lead to start the second half and force Florida into a timeout.

Lucas soon hit her third 3 of the game and her fourth was a big one that put them up 56-36. Lucas, PSU's emotional leader, pumped her fist and directed an exuberant shout toward the fans.

She swished a free throw early in the second half for her 2,500th career point.

Tiebreakers decide local tennis champions

Eric van den Hoogen

Two local teams became champions of the USTA winter league after a tie-breaker No. not just the tie break you play on the tennis court.

When teams end up with the same win-loss record, the USTA uses individual wins, losses, sets lost, and games lost as a tie-break system to determine the champion. The main reason it is important to have one winner is because that team qualifies for the sectional tournament in Daytona. In case of the 4.0 Adult Men 55+, they needed to go to the third tie-break, the sets lost, to determine the winner between the Skyview and Sugarmill Woods team that both had ended the season with a 7-2 record. Skyview had one less set lost. The team is captained by Martin McMahon and his teammates were Bruce Payne, Leo Maric, Joseph Hoover, Jim van Haneghan, Sunil Gandhi, Norman Monroe, Paul Hibbard, Nathan Hall and Michael Nathan.

Another Skyview team only needed to go to the first tie-break to claim a spot in Daytona. The 8.0

Adult Mixed 40+ team from Skyview is captained by Martin McMahon with the following teammates: Nadia Maric, Pam Payne, Nancy Lay, Nancy Fetzter, Jacqueline Bennett, Laura Flanagan, Marti Little, Joseph Hoover, Bruce Payne, Pedro Mena, Leo Maric and Sunil Gandhi.

Pacioretty's goal was the 100th of his career as Montreal extended its winning streak to three and won for the sixth time in seven games.

The Sabres have one win in their past 10 games. They played their fourth game of a five-game road trip that ends Thursday in Nashville.

Montreal's top line was on a rush after a Buffalo power play when former Sabre Thomas Vanek slipped a diagonal pass that Pacioretty put in off goaltender Matt Hackett at 10:53 of the third.

Briere picked the puck out of a crowd and beat Hackett with a wrist shot from close range on a power play at 16:54.

PITTSBURGH — Thomas Greiss stopped 23 shots — including all 15 he faced over the final two periods — and the Phoenix Coyotes edged the sloppy Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2.

David Moss, Antoine Vermette and Mikkel Boedker scored for the Coyotes, who never trailed while picking up two vital points in the chase for the final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Greiss was sharp and received plenty of help from his defense as Phoenix rebounded a night after losing starting goaltender Mike Smith indefinitely with a right leg injury in a loss to the New York Rangers on Monday night.

Jussi Jokinen and Taylor Pyatt scored for Pittsburgh.

Kings 5, Capitals 4, SO

WASHINGTON — Anze Kopitar and Jeff Carter scored in the shootout, and the Los Angeles Kings came back after allowing Alex Ovechkin's two early power-play goals to beat the Washington Capitals 5-4.

The shootout score was 2-0, because Kings goalie Jonathan Quick caught Eric Fehr's attempt, after rookie forward Evgeny Kuznetsov whiffed on his opening shot for Washington.

Kuznetsov had tied the game with 41.5 seconds left in regulation with his first NHL goal.

After trailing 2-0 only 7 1/2 minutes in, then 3-1 entering the third period, the Kings wound up winning their seventh consecutive road game. They also have seven victories in a row over Washington.

North Carolina ran off 14 straight points to blow the game open, with DeShields scoring twice during that flurry to build a 57-31 lead with 11 1/2 minutes left that allowed the Tar Heels to coast to the Stanford Regional's round of 16.

The Tar Heels pressured the fifth-seeded Spartans (23-10) and turned the game into the up-and-down pace they wanted.

The Blazers, who entered the night in fifth place in the West, have lost three straight. They were without forward LaMarcus Aldridge, who missed his seventh consecutive game with a lower back contusion.

The Magic closed the third quarter on an 11-2 run and increased their lead to 19 in the opening minutes of the fourth.

Cavs 102, Raptors 100

CLEVELAND — Dion Waiters scored 24 points and Luol Deng added 19 as the Cleveland Cavaliers prevented Toronto from getting closer to a playoff spot with a 102-100 win over the Raptors.

The Cavs blew a 21-point lead, but made just enough plays down the stretch to snap a five-game losing streak at home.

They did it without All-Star point guard Kyrie Irving, who missed his fifth straight game with a strained biceps tendon.

Kyle Lowry scored 22 for the Raptors, who had a chance to tie it in the final seconds but guard Greivis Vasquez lost his footing and committed a turnover with 1.9 seconds left.

Toronto led 95-94 with 6:45 remaining, but went just 1 of 9 from the floor and scored five points the rest of the way.

Sizemore hits 2-run homer, Red Sox beat Rays

Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTTE — Grady Sizemore bolstered his bid to become Boston's new starting center fielder, hitting a two-run homer as the Red Sox defeated the Tampa Bay Rays 4-2 on Tuesday.

Will Middlebrooks also hit a solo homer as the defending World Series champions won for the ninth time in 24 games this spring.

Wil Myers and Jose Molina both drove in runs for the Rays, who are still a Grapefruit League best 15-6-3.

Twins 4, Orioles 1

FORT MYERS — Mike Pelfrey struck out four in three scoreless innings and the Minnesota Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-1.

Pelfrey allowed just two hits and first baseman Joe Mauer went 2 for 3 with an RBI, raising his spring average to .306.

Bud Norris, in line to be Baltimore's fourth or fifth starter, gave up two earned runs and seven hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Pirates 22, Blue Jays 5

BRADENTON — Pitcher Wandy Rodriguez contributed a two-run homer and RBI single as the Pittsburgh Pirates got 29 hits and routed the Toronto Blue Jays 22-5.

Starling Marte and Jose Tabata each homered and drove in four runs. Marte got five hits and Tabata had four. The Pirates finished with nine extra-base hits.

In his first at-bat of the spring, Rodriguez hit a full-count fastball from J.A. Happ into the Pirates' bullpen in right field. Rodriguez added his single in an eight-run fourth inning.

Marlins 6, Cardinals 5

JUPITER — Jose Fernandez struggled in his last tuneup for opening day as the Miami Marlins beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5.

The reigning NL Rookie of the Year gave up five runs in nine hits in 4 2/3 innings, struck out three and walked two. His next outing will be in Monday's opener at home against Colorado.

Cardinals starter Lance Lynn struck out eight and walked one in five innings, giving up three runs and five hits.

Braves 12, Tigers 3

LAKELAND — Ervin Santana allowed two runs in three innings as the Atlanta Braves topped the Detroit Tigers 12-3.

Santana gave up four hits and struck out one in his second start since being signed by the Braves to a one-year, $11 million deal on March 12.

Jason Heyward and Gerald Laird both homered for the Braves. Dan Uggla had two hits and two RBIs.

Rangers 5, Indians 0

GOODYEAR, Ariz. — Robbie Ross gave a strong audition in his bid to join the Texas rotation, pitching seven shutout innings that led the Rangers over the Cleveland Indians 5-0.

Ross allowed just four hits, striking out eight and walking three.

Michael Choice hit his fourth home run, connecting off Indians starter Josh Tomlin.

Giants 5, Brewers 4

PHOENIX — Wily Peralta hit his second homer of spring training and allowed one run over 6 1/3 innings but the Milwaukee Brewers lost to the San Francisco Giants 5-4.

Khris Davis homered in the fifth, before Peralta and Carlos Gomez went back-to-back in the sixth. Martin Moldando connected in the eighth for the Brewers, who had eight hits.

Rockies 4, White Sox 1

GLENDAL, Ariz. — Juan Nicasio held the Chicago White Sox hitless for five innings and Jordan Pacheco homered, helping the Colorado Rockies to a 4-1 victory.

Nicasio struck out six of the first eight batters and eight overall. He was removed after 82 pitches and walking just one — that runner was erased on a double play. The only other Chicago player to reach base was Adam Eaton, who struck out but made it to first on a wild pitch.

White Sox ace Chris Sale, in his first start before opening day on Monday, gave up six hits and struck out three in 3 2/3 innings.

Nationals 7, Mets 3

VIERA — Stephen Strasburg pitched into the sixth inning in his final spring training tuneup and Bryce Harper hit a three-run homer as the Washington Nationals defeated the New York Mets 7-3.

Strasburg was touched for three runs, all in the third when Travis d'Arnaud homered and Eric Young Jr. had a two-run double. The Nationals right-hander struck out seven and walked two in 5 2/3 innings.

Mets starter Zack Wheeler lasted just 2 2/3 innings, allowing five runs on five hits, including Harper's homer. Wheeler threw 73 pitches, 40 in the third inning alone before he was removed.

Athletics 8, Reds 4

PHOENIX — Brandon Moss hit a three-run homer and Josh Reddick had a solo home run to help power the Oakland Athletics to an 8-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Derek Norris went 3-for-4 with two RBIs and two runs scored for Oakland. Starter Tommy Milone struggled at times, but lasted five innings and gave up three earned runs on five hits.

Brandon Phillips hit a solo home run, finishing 2-for-3 for the Reds.

Angels 8, Cubs (ss) 4

MESA, Ariz. — Josh Hamilton doubled off the top wall, a call upheld by video review, and Raul Ibanez homered as the Los Angeles Angels rallied for an 8-4 victory over a Chicago Cubs' split-squad.

Hamilton, who hit a career-worst .250 last season, is batting .417 in spring training.

Hamilton's third-inning double was a few inches shy of becoming his second home run of the spring. The ball appeared to hit near the top of the center field fence and umpires used video to review the play. But the original ruling stood — double.

Phillies 6, Yankees 0

TAMPA — Ryan Howard and Marlon Byrd hit consecutive solo homers in the third inning to lead the Philadelphia Phillies past the New York Yankees 6-0.

Howard sent a 3-1 pitch from Vidal Nuno to deep right before Byrd drove an 0-2 offering over the center-field fence.

Nuno found out before the game that he, David Phelps and Adam Warren had lost out to Michael Pineda in the Yankees' fifth starter competition.

Derek Jeter had a hard single in three at-bats.

A closed shop for World Golf Hall of Fame

16-person panel now decides who gets in to elite club

Associated Press

ORLANDO — No one should have been more thrilled than Vijay Singh to hear about the voting changes for the World Golf Hall of Fame.

Singh is already in. He was elected in 2005 with 56 percent of the vote from a panel that consisted mainly of golf writers, most of whom the big Fijian had blown off over the years. By then, Singh had 25 PGA Tour victories, three majors, two PGA Tour money titles and one Jack Nicklaus Award as player of the year. He is among the greats in the game.

In sweeping changes announced Sunday, a 16-member panel with a majority of golf administrators now decides who gets in the Hall of Fame. Imagine them debating the merits of a guy who has an active and very acrimonious lawsuit against the PGA Tour over its anti-doping policy.

"We liked the old system," PGA Tour Commissioner Tim Finchem said. "But we like this one better."

That would suggest the old system was working fine. And if something isn't broken, did it really need to be fixed?

What was wrong with the old system had nothing to do with who voted, and everything to do with who attended the induction ceremony, which now will be every other year. At recent ceremonies, the chatter was increasingly louder about how few Hall of Fame members bothered to show up.

Last May, only eight members were there, all of them women. That wasn't a surprise. The LPGA Hall of Fame, which existed before it was morphed into the World Golf Hall of Fame, was seen as the highest honor for its players. The men care more about green jackets and claret jugs than a plaque and a concrete slab with their signature on the walkway at the World Golf Village in St. Augustine.

Here's how the voting process works now:

Associated Press

Vijay Singh is already in the World Golf Hall of Fame. Now that writers have been cast aside for committees made up largely of administrators, imagine them deciding whether to elect one of golf's greatest players who happens to be suing the PGA Tour.

A 20-member subcommittee will meet this spring to nominate five male and five female players, along with three people from the Veterans and Lifetime Achievement categories. Twelve of those 20 committee members are administrators, which includes the Ryder Cup director for Europe, the head of public services for the USGA, the communications director of the PGA of America and the vice chairman of IMG. Six are

Hall of Fame members. Two are writers.

The nominations go to the 16-member panel that will "discuss the merits and vote." A candidate has to receive 75 percent (12 votes), and there can be no more than five members of an induction class.

The co-chairs of that panel are Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Nancy Lopez and Annika Sorenstam. So that's four people who will be expected at the next induction ceremony in May 2015, along with the six Hall of Famers from the nominating panel (Curtis Strange, Johnny Miller, Karrie Webb, Carol Mann, Beth Daniel and Peter Alliss).

The rest of the voting panel includes the heads of the PGA Tour, LPGA, European Tour, PGA of America, The Masters, the USGA, the R&A, the Japan LPGA and the Sunshine Tour in South Africa. They are joined by three writers.

No one understands greatness like a player. All of them on both panels were good choices.

Missing from the process is the independent voice of the writers. That's how it works in baseball and football, the best two shrines in sports. The explanation from Jack Peter, the chief operating officer of the World Golf Hall of Fame, was bordering on offensive, if not ridiculous.

"We believe it puts the decision-making of who gets into the Hall of Fame in the right hands — individuals who know the history of the game, have a passion for the game, who know the players, who understand the qualities that make up a Hall of Famer," he said.

NEWSPAPERS IN EDUCATION

Eryn Worthington
Staff writer

Sure, scissors, notebooks, pencils and crayons are all school supplies.
But newspapers are, too!

The Chronicle has partnered with Newspapers in Education, a nationally recognized collaborative effort between private and public schools and community newspapers to provide students with the opportunity to become more literate and knowledgeable citizens. NIE aims to enhance learning through real-life experiences relevant to students' daily lives.

“Newspapers encourage our students to be more active and involved citizens as adults, and it helps them to better understand the community and world in which we live,” said Citrus County School Board Chairman Thomas Kennedy.

Recently, Chronicle editorial staff members distributed 115 newspapers to students in third and fourth grades at Forest Ridge Elementary School in conjunction with NIE and Career Day.

“NIE has provided the Chronicle a fantastic way to work with kids, hands-on and at their own level.” Chronicle features editor Logan Mosby said. “It is so important to introduce the joys of newspapers — from writing to photography to design — at such a young age.”

While distributing the newspapers, presenters spoke with the children about the different aspects of a paper, what careers are involved, why newspapers are important and how to build their own.

From this presentation, the children were challenged to produce their own education feature for future publication by working together as a group.

“The kids, their faces lit up when challenged to create their own newspaper page,” Mosby said. “They asked questions, divided up in groups and were raring to go. It was amazing to see.”

Chronicle staff members believe that through the use of daily news, editorials, features and even advertising, students of all ages can discover math, geography, meteorology, history, reading comprehension and current events and utilize this information in their studies and in the real world.

“Our teachers often use the newspaper — both print and electronic versions — as a supplement in their classroom instruction,” Kennedy said. “I think this is wonderful because students who read the newspaper are more informed about their world and their local community. I appreciate that the Chronicle has made a strong effort to keep up with how newspaper content is delivered.

“Like I do now at home, I can foresee when our students will be using their personal educational devices to read the newspaper.”

According to a study conducted for the Newspaper Association of America Foundation, students who utilize newspapers in the classroom tend to have higher test scores.

Nonetheless, with a teacher's guidance, a newspaper can play both an important role in educating children in and out of the classroom, while involving them in their community.

In summary, the NIE program assists, motivates and teaches students with a black-and-white textbook — the newspaper.

“Our teachers often use the newspaper — both print and electronic versions — as a supplement in their classroom instruction. I think this is wonderful because students who read the newspaper are more informed about their world and their local community.”

At CRHS, a 21-century library for 21st-century students

The Library Media Center (LMC) at Crystal River High School (CRHS) is a new space. Our newly renovated high school is a wonderful place to come to work each day. When we were renovating the media center, I wanted the new space to reflect the fact that our students are 21st-century learners. Many think that means the end of books or libraries. That is far from what is actually happening.

The days of the shushing librarian are over. Our school library media center has different activities all day long.

It is more of a learning commons where classes can collaborate with each other and their library media specialist, where teachers can send students on passes to work on group projects or to work individually. Some students take online classes in the LMC, and it is a haven for students during lunchtime.

American Libraries Association (ALA) describes 21st-century learners as those with key abilities needed for understanding, learning, thinking, and mastering subjects. They possess ongoing beliefs and attitudes that guide thinking and intellectual behavior — measured through actions taken. Students are able to come into the library space first thing in the morning before school starts. They can return or check out library books, study, do research with books or on one of our 14 computers, type or print out assignments, sit and read or discuss their day in our lounge area. The end tables each have electrical and data ports so students can be connected with their own devices.

The brand new library space in CRHS is an interactive, relaxing and great place for 21st-century learners to go, no matter what the reasons might be.

After-school hours are on Wednesday from 2:45 p.m. to 3:45 p.m. Students can come in for any of our services as well as tutoring for the ACT and SAT, and for assistance in any of their classes. The library is open from 7:15 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. all school days except for Wednesday, when it is open until 3:45 p.m.

Lynette Mitchell is the Library Media Specialist at Crystal River High School. She has a master's degree from Marshall University and has been employed by Citrus County School Board since 1991 as a media specialist. She has worked at Citrus Springs Elementary, Withlacoochee Technical Institute and Crystal River High School. In 2000, she traveled to South Africa and started a library in a rural village, training the villagers to be the librarians.

Flying With Mary Poppins

Fifty years ago, a strict, magical governess with a sense of adventure flew into movie history in the Walt Disney film "Mary Poppins." The movie was one of the most artistic blends of live action and animation of its time.

To learn more about the movie magic leading to "Mary Poppins," The Mini Page talked with a professor of animation history at the Savannah College of Art and Design in Georgia.

Movie magician

In the 1890s, a French filmmaker, Georges Melies (mel-YEZ), invented many of the special effects that make movies so amazing. You may have learned about him in the book "The Invention of Hugo Cabret" by Brian Selznick, or in "Hugo," the movie based on the book.

One of Melies' most important special effects was the composite. A composite (kuhm-PAH-zut) is something that is made up of different things, or elements.

This is a composite photo of Mary Poppins (Julie Andrews) and Bert (Dick Van Dyke) dining with cartoon penguins. In 1964, when "Mary Poppins" came out, it was the first time anyone had so successfully made this many long scenes mixing live action with animation.

Composites in movies

A composite photograph or movie frame is made by putting different elements together. For example, if you combined a picture of a giraffe with a photo of your bedroom, you'd have a picture of a giraffe standing by your bed. You'd have one image made of parts of two different photos. In other words, you'd have a composite.

In the early days of movies, compositing, or mixing elements to form one image, was a long process that required a lot of time and patience.

Filmmaking bit by bit

To make a composite, Melies would paint part of a piece of glass black. The black paint stopped any light from hitting the film behind it. A mask over part of an image is called a matte. The matte stopped that one area of film from being exposed.

Melies would film a bit of the movie. Then he'd rewind the film. He'd replace the matte with a new one and film again.

Some parts of silent films were rewound and reshot as many as 30 times. If filmmakers made it all the way to the 29th reshooting and made a mistake, they'd have to start the whole process over again.

Sometimes in California, an earthquake would move puppets or other objects. The filming would have to begin again.

Meet the Shermans

Robert and Richard Sherman were a team of songwriting brothers, most famous for writing the songs in "Mary Poppins." They are well-known for their movie, TV, stage musicals and theme park compositions.

The brothers wrote songs together for 50 years until Robert died in 2012. They wrote the song "It's a Small World (After All)," as well as songs for many movies, including "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," "The Jungle Book," "Winnie the Pooh" and "Charlotte's Web."

Robert played the violin and piano as a child. When he was in high school, he wrote radio shows and a play. He won a Purple Heart in World War II. Richard played the flute, piccolo and piano in high school and college, where he majored in music.

The brothers began composing music for Walt Disney when they wrote songs for Mouseketeer Annette Funicello in the 1950s.

Against a Blank Screen

Colored screens

Filmmakers invented a way to film actors in front of a black or colored screen. After filming the actors, they could replace the colored background with something else, such as scenery or animation. This was much easier and more realistic-looking than making films by rewinding and reshooting over and over.

When movies came out in color, around 1940, filmmakers started photographing actors in front of a blue screen. Blue was the furthest tone away from most skin tones, so actors would stand out better. One of the troubles with the blue-screen technique was that it looked as if there were a blue outline around the actor. Also, actors could not have any blue in their clothes, or it wouldn't show up on film.

Today, actors usually perform in front of a green screen. Green works better with digital, computerized cameras.

The sodium-vapor process allowed actors to wear any color of clothing, including blue.

Lighting a white background

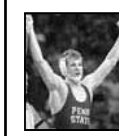

In the 1950s, inventor Petro Vlahos developed a way to film actors in front of a white screen that was lighted with special lights. These sodium-vapor lights gave off a yellow-orange color. (You may have sodium-vapor streetlamps in your town.)

Sodium-vapor filming allowed moviemakers much more freedom. There was no colored outline around the actors. Details such as hairs or fine material would show up on film. Composites were better quality than before. It was much easier to make composites of animation with live actors.

Walt Disney owned the only equipment in America that could use this process.

In the 1960s, Disney was the only major studio that still had its team of visual effects experts. Some of these experts later helped with special effects for the first "Star Wars" movie.

David Taylor

After Penn State wrestling matches, David Taylor is a friendly Nittany Lion, smiling, signing autographs and chatting with admiring young fans.

On the mat, it's a different scene. He's the Lions' king, who dominates opponents, often pinning them. Going into his senior season, Taylor's record included one NCAA championship, three Big Ten titles, a 2012 National Wrestler of the Year award and a 100-3 overall record in collegiate matches.

Ranked No. 1 in his weight class, Taylor is a favorite to win another NCAA title this year. In high school he was a four-time Ohio state champ.

Taylor is just as impressive in the classroom, making first-team Academic All-American three times. He already has graduated and is working on a master's degree in education administration.

Creating the Magic

Telling the story

"Mary Poppins" was made with a mix of visual effects. For example, the scenes with the bird lady and the chimney sweeps used background paintings of London. Many backgrounds were painted on glass.

The actors were filmed first, and the backgrounds were added later. Puppet animation created the scene when the tin soldiers are marching into the toybox. The robin singing on Mary Poppins' hand was a robotic bird, or an animatronic device. It was activated by Julie Andrews' voice. The bird's wires ran under her costume. Blacked-out wires suspended flying actors.

Walt Disney wanted scenes such as people dancing with animals or racing on merry-go-round horses to feel like something from another, magical world.

Magic lands

Walt Disney did not want everything to be realistic in "Mary Poppins." He wanted the movie to feel as if viewers had fallen into a storybook.

He combined realistic scenes, such as the woman on the cathedral steps feeding the birds, with magical, unreal scenes, such as when Bert dances with the penguins or Mary flies in with her umbrella.

Experts say that the philosophy in Disney animation is to create the illusion, or appearance, of life. The animation does not have to look real, but it must look alive in the world of the movie.

The Mini Page thanks Dr. Harvey Deneroff, animation history professor, Savannah College of Art and Design, for help with this issue.

Look through your newspaper, TV and movie listings for shows with animation.

The books that won hearts

Walt Disney's daughters loved the "Mary Poppins" books so much that he promised to make a movie based on these stories. It took him more than 20 years to convince the author to let him make the film.

P.L. Travers, or Pamela Lyndon Travers, was an Australian actress, dancer and writer. The "Mary Poppins" books made her famous.

Travers based much in the books on her own life. Her father worked in a bank, just like Mr. Banks. He died when Pamela was about 7. A great-aunt then helped care for her and her sisters. Mary Poppins is based on that aunt.

Next week, The Mini Page is about the instruments of the orchestra.

Mary: If someone told you he knew a man with a wooden leg called Smith, what would you say?
Bert: "What's the name of his other leg?"

Jane: If you had a nightmare and chewed your pillow to bits, how would you feel the next morning?
Michael: A little down in the mouth!

Paul: What's the easiest job in a watch factory?
John: Making faces!

Child Passenger Safety training

Course conducted at Crystal River Mall

Special to the Chronicle

The Early Learning Coalition recently sponsored a four-day National Child Passenger Safety Course at the Crystal River Mall. The class is designed for agency personnel who regularly transport children or who work with families that have babies and young children.

The class deals with the basics of all types of car seats and proper installation in a variety of vehicles. Child Passenger Safety (CPS) technicians use their training and expertise at their workplace and at community-based activities, such as child safety seat checkup events, where parents and caregivers receive education and hands-on assistance to be sure their child's car seat is used correctly.

Instructors Ed Barnes and Sue Littnan thanked Millie Bresnahan, manager of the Crystal River Mall, for providing the space for the training.

Since much of the course involves installing all types of car seats and boosters in a wide variety of vehicles, they were grateful to be able to park 10 cars in the former Sears service center for hands-on activities. They also had use of classroom space for lectures and testing.

Car seat inspections are provided by appointment at the Early Learning Coalition office, 1564 N. Meadowcrest Blvd., Crystal River. Because four out of every five seats checked has one or more mis-
