Casual chat, or handshake deal?

County commission chairman, Inverness mayor differ on Whispering Pines funding talk

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff writer

INVERNESS — They were in the same coffee shop having the same conversation about Whispering Pines Park funding.

Apparently, however, county commission Chairman John "JJ" Kenney and Inverness Mayor Bob Plaisted weren't on the same page.

Kenney announced at the end of Tuesday's county commission meeting that he met with Plaisted and the two came to a tentative agreement on county funding of city "cultural and recreational programs."

"He came up with a figure, I came up with a figure. He came up with a figure, I came up with a figure," Kenney said.

Kenney said he offered

$300,000 and that Plaisted countered with $350,000. Kenney suggested both adjust their numbers by $15,000, and the result was that each would ask his respective board to approve $335,000 in funding along with an interlocal agreement.

Plaisted said Wednesday he doesn't recall anything like that.

Plaisted said he met Monday with Kenney at Deco Café in downtown Inverness for a casual conversation. He agreed the two bantered about Whispering Pines Park funding numbers, but he didn't see the conversation as being anything formal.

"I can't negotiate for the city," he said. "I would think JJ would know my position as mayor. That's the city manager's responsibility."

King's Bay plan optimistic

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

To improve water quality, Hunter Springs has a targeted nitrogen reduction of 64 percent, the highest level among the springs associated with King's Bay. Hitting that target will be a focus of the Basin Action Management Plan for King's Bay and associated springs., which is currently in process.

Water quality focus of district's long-term restoration plan

PAT FAHERTY

CRYSTAL RIVER — Water quality is the main issue behind the Basin Management Action Plan (BMAP) for King's Bay and its associated springs.

And with low numeric goals to achieve toward reducing pollution, improvements could come quickly.

Florida Department of Environment Protection (DEP) and Southwest Florida Water Management District representatives held a public meeting Tuesday to introduce the BMAP process.

"BMAP is specifically for water quality," said Terry Hansen of the DEP. "Whether manatees are eating the eelgrass is not a BMAP effort. We have to focus on water quality."

"This is a cooperative local effort," he said. "People have got to want to make the change. A lot of this effort requires people willing to make a commitment to reduce their nutrient footprint."

Hansen was referring to the targeted reductions for King's Bay in concentrations of nitrogen, 22 percent, and phosphorus, 14 percent.

"This is low; we might see improvement quickly," he said, citing the targeted reduction for Rainbow Springs of 85 or 88 percent.

According to the DEP, nutrients such as nitrogen and phosphorus are naturally present in surface waters and

Board considers outsourcing for school

Renaissance Center could be privatized

LOGAN MOSBY

The future of at-risk students in Citrus County is being considered, as educational leaders explore outsourcing the school district's current program that caters to those with alternative needs.

Superintendent of Schools Sandra "Sam" Himmel and Assistant Superintendent of School Operations Mike Mullen sought direction from Citrus County School Board members Tuesday as to whether or not to seek further information about Silver River Mentoring and Instruction, a private company that has operated an alternative school for at-risk middle and high school students in Marion County for the past 19 years.

Currently, students in need of more disciplined or structured care attend the Renaissance Center in Lecanto.

Due to budgetary concerns, officials are exploring the option of replacing the current at-risk program that is overseen by the school district, and staffed with school district teachers and support staff, by outsourcing it to Silver River, which would privately manage and maintain the Lecanto school.

Seeking to enter into the 2014-15 school year with a balanced budget, district leaders are looking for ways to save while still providing the same level of service to students, school board Chairman Thomas Kennedy said.

School district honored for patriotism

Board approves invitation to become first Purple Heart District in nation

ERYN WORTHINGTON

INVERNESS — Citrus County School District is famous for its academic competitiveness statewide and now is acknowledged patriotically nationwide.

On Tuesday, Citrus County School Board members approved the Aaron A. Weaver Chapter 776 Military Order of the Purple Heart and the Department of Florida Military Order of the Purple Heart's invitation to become the first Purple Heart School District in the nation.

Commander Richard "Bud" Allen said the Purple Heart was created by General George Washington on Aug. 7, 1782, and was awarded for instances of unusual gallantry, extraordinary fidelity and service. However, the Purple Heart declaration was lost until 1932 when Washington's historical papers were discovered.

"Since it was reinstated, over 1.7 million service members have been awarded the Purple Heart," Allen told board members. "Today there is more than 5,000 living Purple Heart recipients with approximately 150 residing in Citrus County."

The Purple Heart is presented to members of armed forces of the United States wounded by an enemy instrument of war and posthumously to the next of kin in the name of those killed in action or who died of wounds received in action, according to Allen.

He said the designation as a Purple Heart School District is reserved for districts that exhibit patriotic support of the nation's armed forces and its veterans. He said the district is worthy, "given the district's educational philosophy of reading, writing, arithmetic and respect for our country, its strong support of the JROTC program, annual participation of the Veterans in the Classroom program, Veterans Day Parade, veterans' food drive, annual luncheon for veterans and plan of wall of honor honoring the fallen in the district's headquarters building."

Also, to be designated a Purple Heart School District, the district is required to complete these seven steps:

- Must approve the designation as a Purple Heart

School District.

- Approve a proclamation designating it as a Purple Heart School District.
- Permanently display the Purple Heart School District proclamation in a common area of the district's headquarters.
- Acquire a Purple Heart flag.
- Schedule and arrange for district-wide ceremony with local government and community leaders.
- Annually commemorate the anniversary of George Washington's birthday on Feb. 22.
- Annually fly the Purple Heart flag at district headquarters building on a minimum of two occasions, Feb. 22 and Aug. 7.

rate the anniversary of George Washington's birthday on Feb. 22.

"We are so honored and it is our blessing to have you here with us today and to allow us to enjoy this wonderful designation," said school board Vice Chairwoman Pat Deutschman.

The invitation was approved with a 5-0 vote.

At 10 a.m. May 5, the patriotic wall will be established at the school administration offices for soldiers who died in action.

State BRIEF

Train hits logging truck at crossing

PLANT CITY — Authorities said the driver of a logging truck was injured when a train crashed into his truck at a Tampa Bay area rail road crossing.

The Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office reported Roberto Febles was crossing tracks near Plant City Wednesday when a southbound CSX cargo train hit the trailer. The flatbed trailer was loaded with timber that Febles had just picked up from nearby Cone Ranch. Officials said the trailer and cab were dragged about 1,000 feet before coming to a stop. Febles was taken to a hospital with minor injuries. No injuries were reported among the train's crew.

Citrus County
Weekend Lyngbya
cleanup back on

The previously canceled Lyngbya algae cleanup at Hunter Springs Park this Saturday is on again. According to One Rake at a Time project founder Art Jones, the cleanup will run from 8 a.m. until noon.

Donnie Brown, principal at Crystal River Primary School, will be there with teachers, staff, parents and children for their first community eco-project. They will learn about what causes Lyngbya and experience a safe way to remove it from the swimming area, helping with a spring cleanup at one of the most popular swimming parks in Citrus County.

Everyone is invited to help in the One Rake at a Time project, sponsored by the Kings Bay Rotary.

Volunteers should bring water shoes, hats, gloves and sunscreen. Scuba divers are encouraged to bring their gear and help clean out the deeper spring vents.

For more information call Jones at 727-642-7659.

Head Start open

No bypass; four-lane U.S. 41 instead

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff writer

INVERNESS — Hold on there, Floral City bypass.

Even though the proposed road is 20 years away and has no state funding, Citrus County Commissioner Scott Adams on Tuesday urged board members to ditch their backing of the bypass in favor of a future widening of U.S. 41.

Commissioners didn't do that, but County Administrator Brad Thorpe directed Public Works Director Jeff Rogers to work with Adams on a conceptual drawing of how a widened U.S. 41 could look in Floral City.

The county commission in 2010 agreed to include a Floral City bypass in its 2035 transportation plan. That decision came only after residents soundly rejected state plans to widen the highway through Floral City, one of the county's historic communities.

Last year the county commission voted to recommend a specific route to the Citrus County Transportation Planning Organization, or TPO. Adams, who voted in favor of the route, said he did so only believing that the bypass was conceptual and nothing more.

Adams said he recently learned from state Department of Transportation officials that the route would stay in place unless county commissioners made a different recommendation.

Commissioner Rebecca Bays, who sits on the TPO along with Adams and Commissioner Joe Meek, noted the bypass was the last on a priority list of 13 projects.

She said the state planned to conduct a planning, development and engineering study in 2016 that will determine whether the project is viable. The study will include public meetings and a public hearing, she said.

Adams said he believes residents and business owners in Floral City now prefer a highway widening to a bypass that would divert traffic miles away from the community.

"I'm for four-laning 41 ...

when it's time," Adams said.

He said the four-laned U.S. 41 could have a median of historic trees. Other trees in the route, he said, are dead and can be removed.

While Thorpe suggested that Adams take the U.S. 41 widening alternative directly to the TPO himself, Adams said it should have county commission support.

"It would go a lot further," he said, "with this board."

Bountiful bales

NANCY KENNEDY/Chronicle

Carol Childers and her "farmer's assistant" husband, Tom, have transformed their Inverness Highlands front yard into a "straw bale" vegetable garden.

Inverness couple grows fruits, veggies, 'everything but grass' in straw bales

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

INVERNESS — Tom Childers says his wife, Carol, doesn't have a green thumb — she has a green arm.

Transplants from New Hampshire since June 2013, Mrs. Childers has transformed the front yard of their Inverness Highlands home into a vegetarian's delight, growing just about any veggie you can think of in rows of bales of straw.

She had learned about straw bale gardening while in New Hampshire where she lived on a "postage stamp-size" lot in the house she grew up in as a child, 67 years in all until the couple moved to Inverness last year.

"I hate lawns," she said. "All you do is cut it, water it, feed it and it doesn't give you anything but green."

So, instead of grass, she grew flowers, grapevines, berries of every variety — anything but grass.

When they moved to Inverness, Mrs. Childers was delighted to discover she was no longer limited to gardening only a few months out of the year; here she can be outside every day.

"Straw bale gardening — it has to be straw, not hay — is great here because the soil is so sandy," she said. "You can grow anything even on your driveway because it's all self-contained."

The process is simple: Bales are placed “ Straw bale gardening — it has to be straw, not hay — is great here because the soil is so sandy. You can grow anything even on your driveway because it's all self-contained. ” end to end then soaked with water for about a week and left in the warm sun to begin decomposing, which is what you want.

Next, you cut a narrow trench down the center of the bale top, add soil and transplant plants directly into the bale.

"You can even plant in the sides," Mrs. Childers said.

Mrs. Childers is growing Swiss chard, green onions, parsley, red and Yukon Gold potatoes, eggplant, green peppers, stevia, burgundy-colored "yard long" string beans and lots and lots and lots of zucchini.

"When I grew zucchini last year, the plants got so heavy that they fell off the bale and pulled themselves out," she said. "So, what I did, had six or seven inches of straw, put Black Kow compost and manure and dirt on top and then (black plastic) over it — I hate pulling weeds."

Many of her plants, such as the green peppers and parsley, came back from last year as a nice surprise.

Also in the garden: peach, nectarine, pomegranate, plum, orange and grapefruit trees.

"When we moved in, we didn't even know the peach tree was here, there were so many vines covering everything," Mrs. Childers said.

She also has 175 gladiola bulbs sprouting in the ground, not on straw, and she's in the process of experimenting with every flower she can think of to see what grows best.

As for how she prepares her veggies once she harvests them, Mrs. Childers said grilling is her favorite.

"I like to make panini sandwiches with grilled vegetables," she said.

Her husband said only one thing is missing from his wife's garden — rhubarb.

"My wife is a wonderful cook," he said, "and strawberry rhubarb pie is my favorite."

Fifth Annual Crystal River Boat Bash this weekend at state park

Special to the Chronicle

The Friends of the Crystal River State Parks and the Crystal River Boat Builders will host the Fifth Annual Crystal River Boat Bash from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Crystal River Preserve State Park.

Also sponsored by Florida Public Archaeology Network and Gulf Archaeology Research Institute, the Boat Bash is a celebration of small craft, nautical history, education and fun on the waters of the Nature Coast.

The event will include historic and wooden boats, boat-building and pottery pit-fire demonstrations, kid's activities, exhibitors, live music and food.

A feature of the Boat Bash is the Civil War-era sailing scow, The Spirit, and its tugboat, The Kingfisher. The scow is a replica of the USS Wartappo and has taken about two years to complete.

Admission for the Boat Bash is a suggested donation of $1 per person to benefit the Crystal River Boat Builders. Food and T-shirts will be available for purchase.

Starting at 6:30 p.m. Friday, the Crystal River Boat Builders will host a free nautical movie night at the Crystal River Preserve State Park Visitor Center. A campfire will follow.

After the Boat Bash on Saturday, Brendan Burke — an archaeologist with St. Augustine's Lighthouse Archaeological Maritime Program — will present a free lecture called "Shrimp Boat City: St. Augustine's connections to commercial shipping & boatbuilding." The lecture will start at 7 p.m. at the Crystal River Preserve State Park Visitor Center.

Call the park at 352-563-0450 for more information.

The event will be across from the Visitors Center at Crystal River Preserve

State Park, 3266 N. Sailboat Ave., Crystal River. From U.S. 19, about a mile north of the Crystal River Mall, turn on State Park Street between Days Inn and Nick Nicholas Ford. Follow the road to the secure remote parking at the Crystal Cove area on State Park Street. Trams will be running all day Saturday to shuttle visitors to the event and back. Disabled parking will be available at the Visitors Center.

Today's HOROSCOPES

Birthdays — Your keen interest in helping others will come to the forefront this year. You will have to decide which among many options will be the most valuable. By developing a friendship with an older person, you will gain knowledge, expertise and profound perception.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Don't get drawn into any arguments. Even though things may not work out as planned, you should accept the changes happening around you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — You are on an upward trend right now, so enjoy the ride. If you take advantage of your wealth of experience, nothing will hold you back.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Mull over an investment, but don't wait until it's too late to make your move.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Your goals and lifestyle need a little adjustment. Be receptive to new ideas, and make a change if you want to feel better about the direction you are heading.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Your leadership qualities will help you gain control. You will attract individuals who want to support your plans.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — You can gain valuable insight if you include youngsters or seniors in your plans.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Don't feel overwhelmed by your long list of chores or responsibilities. Negative thinking will only slow you down.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — You should consider ditching your regular routine in favor of something different. A day trip or talk with people from different backgrounds will spark new concerns as well as a solution.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your curiosity and adaptability will lead to favorable changes in your life. Head in a new direction, and you will be applauded for your innovative and inspirational ideas.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You will be respected for your opinions and insight if you have the courage to speak out.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Take a moment to adjust to the necessities of a demanding situation. A small respite from daunting responsibilities will help recharge your batteries as well as encourage innovative solutions.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Get involved in a cause and interact with interesting people.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Thursday, April 24, the 114th day of 2014. There are 251 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: On April 24, 1916, some 1,600 Irish nationalists launched the Easter Rising by seizing several key sites in Dublin. (The rising was put down by British forces almost a week later.)

On this date: In 1800, Congress approved a bill establishing the Library of Congress.

In 1898, Spain declared war on the United States. (The United States responded in kind the next day.)

In 1962, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology achieved the first satellite relay of a television signal, using NASA's Echo 1 balloon satellite to bounce a video image from Camp Parks, Calif., to Westford, Mass.

In 1980, the United States launched an unsuccessful attempt to free the American hostages in Iran, a mission that resulted in the deaths of eight U.S. servicemen.

Ten years ago: Suicide boat bombers attacked Iraqi facilities in the Persian Gulf, killing three Americans and disabling Iraq's biggest terminal for more than 24 hours.

Five years ago: Mexico shut down schools, museums, libraries and state-run theaters across its overcrowded capital in hopes of containing a deadly swine flu outbreak.

One year ago: In Bangladesh, a shoddily constructed eight-story commercial building housing garment factories collapsed, killing at least 1,129 people.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Shirley MacLaine is 80. Actress-singer-director Barbra Streisand is 72. Rock musician Doug Clifford (Creedence Clearwater Revival) is 69. Actor Michael O'Keefe is 59. Singer Kelly Clarkson is 32.

Thought for Today: "Never practice what you preach. If you're going to practice it, why preach it?" — Lincoln Steffens, American journalist-reformer (1866-1936).

Justine Boulerice, 23, of South Lookout Point, Homosassa, at 12:11 p.m. April 22 on a felony charge of grand theft. According to her arrest affidavit, Boulerice is accused of stealing a lawnmower and scrap metal from a home she was staying at. She reportedly scrapped approximately four truckloads of materials while the victim was away. She was released on her own recognizance.

Patrick Dillard, 46, of West Cyprian Court, Homosassa, at 3:45 p.m. April 22 on a felony charge of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon. According to his arrest affidavit, Dillard was being interviewed by deputies in his home and a 12 gauge shotgun, a .22 caliber rifle with scope and ammunition for both firearms was reportedly found in his possession. Bond $10,000.

Joshua Haight, 20, of West Cardinal Street, Lecanto, at 3:53 p.m. April 22 on an active warrant for felony violation of probation stemming from an original charge of aggravated battery.

Jodi Alexander, 24, of East Kennedy Street, Inverness, at 8:53 p.m. April 22 on an active warrant for a misdemeanor charge of trespassing after warning. Bond $500.

Shane Simms, 29, of West Grant Street, Homosassa, at 8:57 p.m. April 22 on misdemeanor charges of possession of cannabis and drug paraphernalia. According to his arrest affidavit, Simms was stopped for pulling out without his headlights on. A small amount of marijuana, along with a digital scale were reportedly found in his possession. Bond $750.

Brian Curry, 32, of South Missouri Drive, Homosassa, at 1:35 a.m. April 23 on a misdemeanor charge of battery. According to his arrest affidavit, Curry is accused of punching another inmate in the face while both were incarcerated at the Citrus County Detention Facility. Bond was denied.

State BRIEF

School board nixes parent dress code

WEST PALM BEACH — An unlikely proposal to create a dress code to sway unkempt parents from showing up at school functions was quashed Wednesday.

The discussion spurred by Karen Brill, a member of the Palm Beach County School Board, generated national interest for turning the tables on adults, who for generations have nitpicked children's appearance. But the suggestion was met by nothing but dissent from other board members during 12 minutes of debate and showed no sign of being resurrected.

"I want to make sure that every school is inviting to parents," board member Marcia Andrews said. "And whatever they're wearing is secondary in my mind."

Brill opened the discussion expressing surprise by the attention generated by her comments — evident by the bank of television cameras recording her words.

"I think sometimes we have to pause to think about how we are attired," she said.

Five board members spoke in opposition. None came to Brill's side.

The Whispering Pines Park funding issue has divided the city and county governments for some years. In 1993, both agreed to a 50-50 split — about $370,000 for each side.

The county, however, gradually reduced its payments to $300,000 in 2008-11. The last two years, it didn't pay anything all, citing the budget crisis caused by Duke Energy's lower-than-expected tax payment.

Last year the county offered a $300,000 payment along with the interlocal agreement that called for the city to give the county a breakdown on how the money was spent. The city declined.

Plaisted said Kenney approached him at the Citrus County Lincoln Day dinner earlier this month and said he wanted to discuss something with him. Plaisted suggested the two meet for coffee at the Deco Café, and that's what they did on Monday.

Plaisted said he thought Kenney wanted to discuss his re-election campaign. Instead, Ken-

I met him for a casual conversation. I didn't know we were talking about a concrete deal.

Bob Plaisted Inverness mayor.

ney gave Plaisted a page of a proposed interlocal agreement that the county would pay the city $300,000 for cultural and recreational programs.

Kenney said the funding could be used for Whispering Pines or a host of other city projects, such as refurbishing the old Valerie Theatre.

The commission chairman said he made it clear that the conversation centered on moving forward, not revisiting funding issues of the past.

Plaisted said he told Kenney he wasn't in position to negotiate anything. Still, both men said they exchanged amounts and stopped at $335,000.

"Far as I'm concerned we were negotiating,"

Kenney said Wednesday. "I walked out of there with a handshake."

Not so, Plaisted said. "I met him for a casual conversation," he said. "I didn't know we were talking about a concrete deal."

Plaisted wondered whether Kenney understands the role of the mayor in Inverness. Plaisted does not vote, nor does he chair meetings. Other than ceremonial, his only official role is the ability to veto ordinances or resolutions.

Kenney said he thought Plaisted had the ability to break tie votes.

The county commission on Tuesday directed County Administrator Brad Thorpe to present the interlocal agreement for board approval. Commissioners expected that Plaisted would be doing the same for the city council

Plaisted, however, said he only planned to mention it at the council's next meeting, on May 6.

He said Kenney misunderstood his position.

"I didn't go down there to negotiate a deal," Plaisted said. "It was just conversation."

City Manager Frank DiGiovanni said Wednesday he has met with County Administrator Brad Thorpe to discuss Whispering Pines and other issues. He was surprised to learn Kenney told commissioners of a potential settlement in the matter.

Coincidentally, DiGiovanni was in the commission chambers earlier Tuesday to discuss a proposed land swap with the county. Kenney's proposal for funding Inverness was not on the agenda and DiGiovanni left before Kenney brought it up.

Rosemary Mehrmann, 80 INVERNESS

Rosemary Mehrmann, 80, Inverness, Fla., died April 22, 2014, surrounded by her family and under the loving care of Hospice of Citrus County. Rosemary was a very affectionate and loving mother and grandmother, who had a warm sense of humor and was a great conversationalist. She was a woman of deep faith, who celebrated her faith daily in her life. She enjoyed reading mystery novels and providing child care.

A mass of Christian Burial will be offered 11 a.m. Friday, April 25, 2014, at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church. Inurnment will take place at a later date at Pine Lawn National Cemetery in Long Island, N.Y., where she will be laid to rest next to her late husband, Frederick. In lieu of flowers, please consider donations in Rosemary's memory to Friends of the Citrus County Library. Chas. E. Davis Funeral Home with Crematory is assisting the family with arrangements.

Astronauts complete repair job

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — Spacewalking astronauts easily replaced a dead computer outside the International Space Station on Wednesday and got their orbiting home back up to full strength.

The two Americans on board, Rick Mastracchio and Steven Swanson, hustled through the urgent repair job, swapping out the computers well within an hour. The new one tested fine.

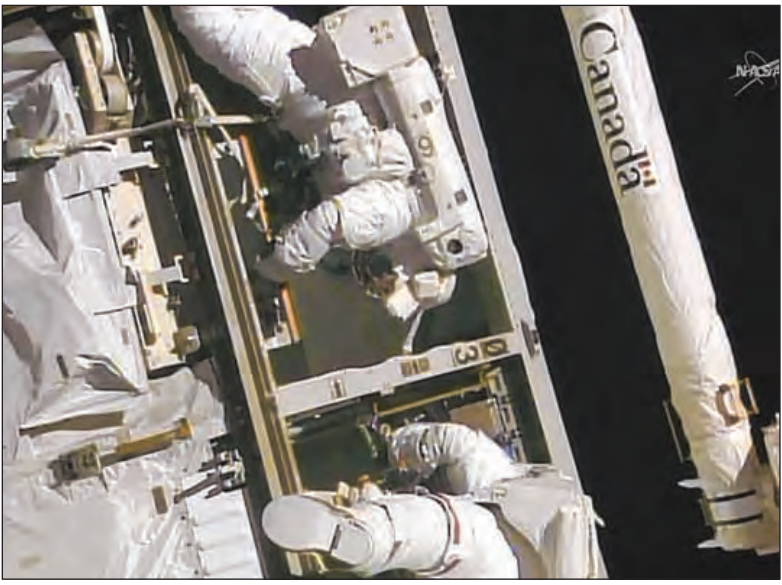

"Excellent work, gentlemen," Mission Control radioed.

The removed computer, a critical backup, failed nearly two weeks ago. The prime computer has been working perfectly, but NASA wanted to install a fresh spare as soon as possible.

Mission Control waited until after the arrival of a capsule full of fresh supplies Sunday.

Replacing the computer — a compact 50-pound box — involved just three bolts, hardly anything for a spacewalking chore.

Engineers do not know why the original failed. Mission Control asked the spacewalkers to keep an eye out for any damage that might explain the breakdown. Nothing jumped out.

Associated Press

Astronauts Steven Swanson, left, and Rick Mastracchio perform a spacewalk outside the International Space Station to replace a dead computer. The device is a critical backup outside the station that failed nearly two weeks ago.

Flight controllers were trying to load software into the spare computer on April 11, but it failed to activate. That set into motion a frenzy of ground meetings and tests to fix the problem.

NASA feared that if the primary computer went down as well, the entire space station would be in jeopardy. These two computers — the primary and backup — control the pointing of the solar wings and radiators, as well as the movement of the robot-arm rail cart.

It was the first failure of one of dozens of so-called MDMs, or multiplexer-demultiplexers, in and outside the space station.

Mission Control kept the spacewalk short and straight-to-the-point; it lasted a mere one hour and 36 minutes. All routine spacewalks by U.S. station crew have been on hold since last summer's near-drowning by a spacewalking astronaut. His helmet filled with water from the cooling system of the suit, and NASA is continuing to investigate the problem.

NASA hopes to reuse the bad computer, once it's inspected indoors by the astronauts and updated.

Their mission accomplished, Mastracchio and Swanson exchanged a few jokes and laughs as they got ready to go back inside.

"My arms are too short for a selfie," Mastracchio said with a chuckle, his camera pointed at himself.

Mission Control spotted a small object floating over Mastracchio's right shoulder as the spacewalk drew to a close. He said he didn't think he lost anything. The NASA commentator, Dan Huot, later said it appeared to be a tiny wire tie.

The space station is home to six men: the two Americans, three Russians and one Japanese.

Researchers find old San Francisco shipwreck

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — The first images of the newly discovered wreckage of a steamship that sank in San Francisco Bay in 1888, killing 16 people, were released Wednesday by federal ocean scientists.

The iron and wood steamship City of Chester went down on Aug. 22, 1888, after it was struck in dense fog by a larger ship.

The collision came soon after family members bid their loved ones safe passage and the Chester departed with 106 passengers for Eureka, Calif., and Portland, Ore.

Moments later, it was split in two by the Oceanic, a ship more than twice its size, killing 13 passengers, including two children, and three crew members.

More than 125 years later, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration team found the shipwreck in 217 feet of water just inside the Golden Gate Bridge while the scientists were charting shipping channels.

Associated Press

This undated image provided by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and San Francisco Maritime National Historic Park shows the iron and wood steamship City of Chester. In 1888, on a trip from the San Francisco bay to Eureka, the Chester was split in two by a ship more than twice its size, killing 16 people and becoming the bay's second-worst maritime disaster.

A display featuring the images and history of the shipwreck is planned at San Francisco's Chrissy Field, which looks out over the spot where the Chester sank, just in front of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Laura Pagano, a member of the NOAA team, said she became emotional while learning they had found the wreckage.

"It was sad in a way because of the loss of life," she said, with the Golden Gate looming behind her. "But to be able to connect with maritime history from a wreck found ... more than 100 years ago was immensely fulfilling."

The crew used a multi-beam sonic imaging system to capture three-dimensional images of the wreckage.

The NOAA researchers then put together research about what happened, and found tons of newspaper articles and transcripts of testimony from the accident investigation.

James Delgado, a NOAA shipwreck researcher and archaeologist who was chief scientist for the 2010 mapping of the Titanic, said newspapers at the time put much of the blame for the deaths on the crew of the Oceanic immigrant steamer that survived the ordeal.

At the time, San Francisco Bay was one of the world's busiest and most important shipping ports.

Florida executes man convicted of murdering two

Associated Press

STARKE — Florida executed a man on Wednesday who was convicted of murdering two relatives to prevent one of them from testifying against him in a burglary trial.

Robert Hendrix was pronounced dead at 6:21 p.m. at Florida State Prison in Starke, shortly after the lethal injection procedure began. He made no final statement.

Hendrix was convicted of the 1990 murders of Elmer and Michelle Scott at their Lake County home.

Prosecutors said Hendrix killed the couple because Elmer Scott intended to testify against him. But Hendrix's attorney said no forensic evidence links his client to the murders, and the witnesses against him were unreliable.

Hendrix was the fourth person executed in Florida this year and the 16th since Gov. Rick Scott took office in 2011.

Evidence in the case showed Hendrix shot Scott in the face in his trailer home, hit him in the head with the gun and stabbed him in the neck the night before Hendrix's trial in the armed burglary case was to begin in August 1990. Hendrix then used a knife to cut the throat of Scott's wife, Michelle, who fought back before Hendrix shot her three times, they added.

Scott had already made a plea deal with prosecutors in the armed burglary case in which he and Hendrix broke into a house but only Scott was caught. His cooperation led investigators to arrest Hendrix. In the weeks leading up to his trial, prosecutors say, Hendrix told friends he would kill Scott rather than return to prison.

Prosecutors said that on the night of the murders, Hendrix's live-in girlfriend — Denise Turbyville — drove him from Orange County, where they lived, to the Scotts' trailer in neighboring Lake County and dropped him off.

Michelle Scott welcomed Hendrix into the trailer, and told him Elmer Scott was in the bathroom shaving and would be out shortly. When Elmer Scott came out, Hendrix asked to use the bathroom. When he left the bathroom, Hendrix fired shots at Elmer Scott and then grabbed a knife and attacked Michelle Scott, according to prosecutors.

Turbyville pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder and was sentenced to 75 years in prison. Another witness against Hendrix, Roger LaForce, was a confidential informant for a narcotics task force and stood to gain a lighter sentence for his assistance, Hendrix's attorneys said.

Hendrix attorney Harry Brody also said the presiding judge had a conflict of interest, Hendrix's trial lawyer was ineffective at presenting mitigating circumstances during sentencing and that Hendrix was shackled during his trial, leading jurors to a biased impression that he was dangerous.

Robert Hendrix convicted of two murders.

full-time equivalent (FTE) dollars — for example, each student is funded at 100 percent by the state. However, according to Kennedy, students enrolled at the Renaissance Center are currently funded at 150 percent. Anything over and above the 100 percent threshold the school district is required to fund.

"When we look at our FTE dollars on per student funding, we are at about one and a half more on those students (at Renaissance) than our mainstream schools," Himmel said Wednesday during a meeting with the Chronicle's editorial board.

"All of that difference has to get made up in the general fund somewhere else," Kennedy said. "That to me is a big issue that we struggle with. How do we meet the high level of service needed for those students, and at the same time we don't get

According to Himmel, Silver River provides a lot of counseling to students, career classes each morning and has fast track and GED classes ...

FTE dollars to accomplish that?"

Should the district decide to outsource, however, that cost could potentially drop dramatically, coming in at 90 percent FTE dollars per student, resulting in an approximate $700,000 windfall for the district.

According to Himmel, Silver River provides a lot of counseling to students, career classes each morning and has fast track and GED classes for students seeking to catch up to their grade level or graduate. In addition, four behavioral specialists are employed, which is not something the school district has been able to supply for students.

The contract will be highly negotiable and would only last for 12 months, allowing renegotiating on a yearly basis.

Although outsourcing is a viable option, Himmel was quick to point out that Renaissance teachers and support staff should not fear an upcoming job loss. The 10 to 15 employees currently staffing Renaissance would be absorbed into other positions throughout the district, she said.

Kennedy reiterated that the board's interest is still very much in an exploratory stage. Kennedy and Mullen are scheduled to visit the Ocala facility next week and report back to the board at a future date.

necessary for the plants and animals living there. But when excess levels of nutrients cause an imbalance it can result in algal mats and other problems.

The primary nitrogen sources to the King's Bay system include wastewater spray fields, septic tanks and stormwater runoff, including fertilizers from home gardens, lawns, golf courses and agricultural operations.

Hansen said the BMAP for King's Bay is a restoration plan — a long-term effort. He said the key in Citrus County will probably be to focus on areas that are urban and residential.

He cited the Crystal River project to send wastewater to the Duke Energy Complex as an example.

The nutrient reduction figures are based on total maximum daily loads (TMDL). Kristina Bridger with DEP explained it represents the basic amount of a pollutant water that can assimilate without diminishing quality.

She said the bay itself and six springs have been verified as impaired. At 64 percent, Hunter Spring has the highest targeted nitrogen reduction.

The process will continue with another meeting at Crystal River City Hall on May 28.

Stocks slip after six-day rally

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stocks edged mostly lower Wednesday, breaking a six-day winning streak, as investors were disappointed by the latest round of earnings from U.S. companies.

A surprise drop in new home sales also weighed on the broader market. The Standard & Poor's 500 index lost 4.16 points, or 0.2 percent, to 1,875.39. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 12.72 points, or 0.1 percent, to 16,501.65 and the Nasdaq composite fell 34.49 points, or 0.8 percent, to 4,126.97.

Since hitting a two-month low on April 11, the index had increased 3.5 percent through Tuesday. It is not unusual for the stock market to pause after such a rally.

"The market, even with those six days of gains, is still struggling to choose a direction," said Joseph Tanious, a global market strategist with J.P. Morgan Funds.

High-flying biotechnology and Internet stocks were among the hardest hit.

Surgical robot maker

Specialist Michael Pistillo works Wednesday on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Intuitive Surgical fell the most in the S&P 500, plunging $48.40, or 12 percent, to $373.93. The company reported a 77 percent drop in first-quarter earnings and sold half has many robots as it did in the same period a year earlier. The company warned two weeks ago that earnings would come in far below expectations, causing its stock to fall sharply from a recent high of $540.63 reached April 3.

Amgen fell 5 percent after it also reported a steep drop in quarterly earnings, missing analysts' expectations.

One bright spot in biotechnology was Gilead Sciences. The drugmaker rose $1, or 1.4 percent, to $73.86 after the company reported a surge in first-quarter earnings.

Gilead's drug Sovaldi, a new treatment for Hepatitis C, had $2.3 billion in sales in the first quarter alone, which beat the record for any drug in its first whole year on the market. While Sovaldi has a 90 percent success rate in curing Hepatitis C, the drug has a price of $1,000 per pill, or around $84,000 for a typical course of treatment.

AT&T, despite posting quarterly results that beat analysts' expectations, wasn't able to impress investors this quarter. The Dow member's shares fell $1.37, or 4 percent, to $34.92. The company reported earnings of 71 cents a share, one cent ahead of analysts' expectations, and quarterly sales of $32.48 billion, which also beat expectations.

Airline stocks were among the biggest advancers. Delta Air Lines rose $2.14, or 6 percent, to $37.09. Delta's first-quarter earnings climbed after the company filled more seats on planes and paid less for fuel. Delta was the biggest gainer in the S&P 500.

Business BRIEFS

Apple increases stock buyback, raises dividend

CUPERTINO, Calif. — Apple Inc. plans to buy back an additional $30 billion of its stock and raise its quarterly dividend by 8 percent amid a slowdown in revenue growth.

The commitment announced Wednesday as part of Apple's fiscal second-quarter earnings report expands on the company's previous pledge to spend $60 billion on stock buybacks by the end of next year. The company is now earmarking $90 billion for buybacks during that time frame.

Apple is also raising its quarterly dividend to $3.29 per share as part its effort to funnel more money to stockholders.

The slowdown in revenue growth has prompted investors to wonder whether the company has lost its innovative power since the death of Steve Jobs.

Facebook 1Q results soar; CFO to step down

NEW YORK — Facebook's first-quarter earnings and revenue grew sharply, surpassing Wall Street's expectations thanks to an 82 percent increase in advertising revenue.

The social network said Wednesday that it earned $642 million, or 25 cents per share, in the January-March quarter, up from $219 million, or 9 cents per share, in the same period a year ago. Adjusted earnings were 34 cents per share. Revenue rose 71 percent to $2.5 billion.

Analysts anticipated earnings of 24 cents per share on revenue of $2.36 billion.

Facebook also said that its finance chief, David Ebersman, is leaving on June 1 after five years. He'll be replaced by David Wehner, currently vice president of corporate finance and business planning.

Wellness programs grow more popular with employers

The little voice nagging you to put down the cake and lace up the running shoes is increasingly coming from your employer. It is likely to grow louder with a looming change under the federal health care overhaul.

Companies are using wellness programs to improve employees' health as a means to reduce their medical costs. They're asking workers to take physical exams and control conditions like diabetes. Some are also dangling the threat of higher monthly premiums to prod workers into action.

The Affordable Care Act calls for a 40 percent tax on expensive benefit plans starting in 2018. In turn, many companies that offer employer-based coverage already have begun looking for ways to lower costs and avoid that tax.

COMMUNITIES UNITED

Build upon spirit of bike ride

The large crowd of bicycle riders participating in Citrus County's first organized Lake to Bay Ride on April 12 probably thought they were just out for an enjoyable day on the trails. They may not have realized what a landmark event it was.

City managers, staff members and volunteers from both Inverness and Crystal River collaborated to stage this biking day. After a morning start at the Withlacoochee State Trail trailhead at Apopka Avenue in Inverness, riders headed north until they reached the trailhead connection at County Road 486. They took the westward trail along C.R. 486 through the hilly central county area to arrive in Crystal River in time for a rest, a bite to eat and maybe a little sightseeing. Then they reversed course, arriving back in the county seat, in time for the annual Taste of Inverness charity event in Liberty Park on the lake.

What was so remarkable about this? For starters, the ride leaders were Andy Houston and Frank DiGiovanni, city managers of Crystal River and Inverness. And this inspirational reach across the county helped erase the east-west divide that has existed for so long. It was a collaborative effort that showcased both cities as well as demonstrated how fortunate we are to have such a beautiful county and enjoyable ways to experience it.

We see this ride as a model for how things ought to be here. We hope it planted the seed for further collaboration between the cities, sharing best practices and support. Even more, we hope the Board of County Commissioners takes note — because the county should be part of this collaboration, too. Together, the three can leverage mutual concerns and accomplish so much more than a splintered, bickering governmental infrastructure can.

Come together, meet and talk on a regular basis. Learn from each other. Put aside private agendas and work together for the overall good of Citrus County.

There are already plans brewing for next year's county biking event, maybe even a multi-day affair. Wouldn't it be nice to see truly united county cooperation on this — and on other matters that affect all our residents?

THE ISSUE:

Inaugural Lake to Bay Ride a success.

OUR OPINION:

Good model for what we can accomplish in Citrus County.

Understanding our divisions

WASHINGTON

In a 2006 interview, Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer said the Constitution is "basically about" one word — "democracy" — that appears in neither that document nor the Declaration of Independence. Democracy is America's way of allocating political power. The Constitution, however, was adopted to confine that power in order to "secure the blessings of" that which simultaneously justifies and limits democratic government — natural liberty.

George Will
OTHER VOICES

The fundamental division in American politics is between those who take their bearings from the individual's right to a capacious, indeed indefinite, realm of freedom, and those whose fundamental value is the right of the majority to have its way in making rules about which specified liberties shall be respected.

Now, the nation no longer lacks what it has long needed, a slender book that lucidly explains the intensity of conservatism's disagreements with progressivism. For the many Americans who are puzzled and dismayed by the heatedness of political argument today, the message of Timothy Sandefur's "The Conscience of the Constitution: The Declaration of Independence and the Right to Liberty" is this: The temperature of today's politics is commensurate to the stakes of today's argument.

The argument is between conservatives who say American politics is basically about a condition, liberty, and progressives who say it is about a process, democracy. Progressives, who consider democracy the source of liberty, reverse the Founders' premise, which was: Liberty pre-exists governments, which, the Declaration says, are legitimate when "instituted" to "secure" natural rights.

Progressives consider, for example, the rights to property and free speech as, in Sandefur's formulation, "spaces of privacy" that government chooses "to carve out and protect" to the extent that these rights serve democracy. Conservatives believe that liberty, understood as a general absence of interference, and individual rights, which cannot be exhaustively listed, are natural and that governmental restrictions on them must be as few as possible and rigorously justified. Merely invoking the right of a majority to have its way is an insufficient justification.

With the Declaration, Americans ceased claiming the rights of aggrieved Englishmen and began asserting rights that are universal because they are natural, meaning necessary for the flourishing of human nature. "In Europe," wrote James Madison, "charters of liberty have been granted by power," but America has "charters of power granted by liberty."

Sandefur, principal attorney at the Pacific Legal Foundation, notes that since the 1864 admission of Nevada to statehood, every state's admission has been conditioned on adoption of a constitution consistent with the U.S. Constitution and the Declaration. The Constitution is the nation's fundamental law but is not the first law. The Declaration is, appearing on Page 1 of Volume 1 of the U.S. Statutes at Large and at the beginning of the U.S. Code. Hence the Declaration "sets the framework" for reading the Constitution not as "basically about" democratic government — majorities — granting rights but about natural rights defining the limits of even democratic government.

The perennial conflict in American politics, Sandefur says, concerns "which takes precedence: the individual's right to freedom, or the power of the majority to govern." The purpose of the post-Civil War's 14th Amendment protection of Americans' "privileges or immunities" — protections vitiating by an absurdly narrow Supreme Court reading of that clause in 1873 — was to assert, on behalf of emancipated blacks, national rights of citizens. National citizenship grounded on natural rights would thwart Southern states then asserting their power to acknowledge only such rights as they chose to dispense.

Government, the Framers said, is instituted to improve upon the state of nature, in which the individual is at the mercy of the strong. But when democracy, meaning the process of majority rule, is the supreme value — when it is elevated to the status of what the Constitution is "basically about" — the individual is again at the mercy of the strong, the strength of mere numbers.

Sandefur says progressivism "inverts America's constitutional foundations" by holding that the Constitution is "about" democracy, which rejects the Framers' premise that majority rule is legitimate "only within the boundaries" of the individual's natural rights. These include — indeed, are mostly — unenumerated rights whose existence and importance are affirmed by the Ninth Amendment.

Many conservatives should be discomfited by Sandefur's analysis, which entails this conclusion: Their indiscriminate denunciations of "judicial activism" inadvertently serve progressivism. The protection of rights, those constitutionally enumerated and others, requires a judiciary actively engaged in enforcing what the Constitution is "basically about," which is making majority power respect individuals' rights.

Fast and faster

It's very funny that people want the speed limit made higher on (County Road) 486. What difference does it make? They go fast, as fast as they want to go anyway, so. And as far as a speed trap, that's not so because if you're going fast, you will get stopped.

Clean up roads

In response to Mr. Smith's Sunday (April 13) letter to the editor about the deer eating trash on the side of the road and it not being a county road department problem: He missed the point.

The people who wrote that said that it's not the deer getting hurt only, it's the major accident that could occur if the deer or any other wild animals run into (State Road) 44 — the cars, the people — but eating trash, you know, eating from the trash. The road department should have some responsibility to clean up, keep Citrus County safe. That's, I thought, their job.

We have (an) irresponsible public who throw trash, but — and I'm all for fining them — but the road department should take care of the sides of the roads so that it doesn't endanger the public.

Save the Snippets

How about someone running a fundraiser for Snippets? That's the organization that is funding the low-cost spay/neuter program for animals whose owners cannot afford it, who love their pets and are trying to keep them.

Don't fear, obey law

The biker who was involved in an accident was in the wrong. No one else's fault, not even the red-light camera scare. I have not had an accident or a ticket since 1960 and I'm glad to see the cameras. Obey the law and you have nothing to fear.

Sidewalk needed

I read the Chronicle every Sunday and I see all these people writing in about sidewalks being needed around the county. I live on Grover Cleveland and I seldom get on Grover Cleveland that I don't see someone either riding a bicycle or walking down Grover Cleveland. There's a lot of grade right there close. I invite anybody to ride up and down that street and you'll see people walking. That's where we need a sidewalk.

Gerry's a riot

I hope everyone reads Gerry Mulligan's article in the Sunday (April 13) paper. It just cracks me up and it really starts your day off with a smile. So I just wanted him to know that we really appreciate his humor.

Letters to the EDITOR

The time is now

Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives, Will Weatherford, acknowledges there are some serious problems with the state's water resources. Finding solutions will be difficult, but he says let's put it off a year until someone else comes into his job. Come on man, this is your job now!

Rep. Weatherford has been elected to do a job and is being paid to do the job. "Let's get to work" up there in Tallahassee. And, by the way, where is our governor on this topic, and where is our own representative, Jimmie Smith? There have been very few words from them on this topic and state Sen. Charlie Dean's bill, SB 1576.

Sen. Dean, bless his heart, has crafted a bill, with the help and courage of four other Florida senators, that has all the elements to really start fixing the problems with our springs and our aquifer. And no new tax revenue is needed! We rely on our aquifer for crop irrigation, industrial processes and residents' personal needs, such as drinking water.

Our springs are nothing but a window into our aquifer. Look into that window and our scientists see steadily increasing pollution and steadily decreasing water flow. It doesn't take another year of some of our elected legislators wringing their hands about which campaign contributors are going to be upset to make needed changes in the management of our water supply.

This is not about Republicans, Democrats or independents nor is it about environmentalists, alarmists or naysayers. It is about having good quality water and enough water for five, ten, fifteen and 20 years down the road. The signs are all there, plenty of studies have been done, and the results are in — we have serious water problems that need to be fixed. Let's get to it now! Drop emails to the governor (rick.scott@eog.myflorida.com), Rep. Jimmie Smith (Jimmie.Smith@myfloridahouse.gov) and Speaker Weatherford (will.weatherford@myfloridahouse.gov) and ask them to get on this now. Drop a note to Sen. Dean (dean.charles.web@flsenate.gov) thanking him for his dedication and hard work on this issue. SB 1576 must get passed this legislative session. Waiting a year for some "watered down" version of this bill is just not acceptable.

Gary W. Kuhl Former executive director, Southwest Florida Water Management District

Field Day thanks

The victories celebrated this year at the CREST/Key Training Field Day were as genuine as the passion each participant brought to this annual event. With the continued support of all those who made this day possible and all who shared in the day's activities, Field Day brings a whole new meaning to winning.

Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Homosassa and assisted by the students of Crystal River High and a wealth of local volunteers, this Olympic-style competition has been bringing cheers to Citrus County for 28 years. Athletes from the Key Training Center and the CREST school (Citrus Resources for Exceptional Students) gathered at Crystal River High School for a day that encompassed everything from golf putting and wheelchair races to soccer kicks and Frisbee throws. And everyone crossed the finish line. Everyone was a winner.

Crowds were not cheering because these shining athletes did something bigger or better or faster or longer. At this event, the cheers were in respect and admiration for the champions who proved they can win their own individual battles and prevail over their own personal contests, not just on Field Day.

Our sincerest appreciation goes to the many who made this day possible.

The administration and students of Crystal River High School deserve high praise for the cooperation and contributions they lend to this event. Students were there to assist in every way possible, including those from the Health Academy, ROTC, band and chorus. The Women of Beverly Hills once again were in charge of the ribbons and awards. Drinks from Coca-Cola distributors and bananas from the Community Food Bank of Citrus County all added to the day's enjoyment. The tireless efforts of the CREST and Key Training Center staff joined with the dedication of the Kiwanis Club members to once again make this day one of the most uplifting athletic competitions in this community.

High court nixes $3.4M award to child porn victim

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Wednesday rejected a plea to make it easier for victims of child pornography to collect money from people who view their images online, throwing out a nearly $3.4 million judgment in favor of a woman whose childhood rape has been widely seen on the Internet. Two dissenting justices said Congress should change the law to benefit victims.

The justices said in a 5-4 ruling that a 1994 federal law gives victims the right to seek restitution from offenders, but only to the extent that the victim's losses are tied to the offenders' actions. In this case, Doyle Randall Paroline was held liable by a federal appeals court for the entire amount of the woman's losses, though his computer contained just two images of her, among more than 150 illicit photographs.

The case involved a woman known in court papers by the pseudonym "Amy." Her losses for psychological care, lost income and attorneys' fees have been pegged at nearly $3.4 million, based on the ongoing Internet trade and viewing of images of her being raped by her uncle when she was 8 and 9 years old.

Wyoming town evacuated after gas explosion

OPAL, Wyo. — A small town in southwest Wyoming was evacuated Wednesday after an explosion and fire at a natural gas processing facility and major national pipeline hub. There were no reports of injuries.

Residents of Opal, about 100 miles northeast of Salt Lake City, went to an area about three miles outside of town as a precaution, said Lincoln County spokesman Stephen Malik. The town has about 95 residents.

No structures in the town were affected.

Gun carry rights expanded in Ga. under new law

ELLIJAY, Ga. — Criticized by one group as the "guns everywhere" bill, Georgia took a big step Wednesday toward expanding where licensed carriers can take their weapons, with the governor signing a law that allows them in bars without restriction and in some churches, schools and government buildings under certain circumstances.

The bill makes several changes to state law and takes effect July 1. School districts would now be able, if they choose, to allow some employees to carry a firearm on school grounds under certain conditions.

The Georgia Municipal Association also was among those raising concerns.

Sweeping clemency in the works

Low-level felons could have sentences sharply reduced

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Obama administration is encouraging many nonviolent federal prisoners to apply for early release — and expecting thousands to take up the offer. It's an effort to deal with high costs and overcrowding in prisons, and also a matter of fairness, the government said.

On Wednesday, the Justice Department unveiled a revamped clemency process directed primarily at low-level felons imprisoned for at least 10 years who have clean records while in custody. The effort is part of a broader administration push to scale back harsh penalties in some drug-related prosecutions and to address sentencing disparities arising from the 1980s crack cocaine epidemic that yielded disproportionately tough punishment for black drug offenders.

"These older, stringent punishments that are out of line with sentences imposed under today's laws erode people's confidence in our criminal justice system," said Deputy Attorney General James Cole in laying out new criteria that will be used in evaluating clemency petitions for possible recommendation for the president's approval.

Though the criteria apply solely to federal inmates, states, too are grappling with severe prison overcrowding. In Nebraska, for example, prisons were at 155 percent of capacity at the end of March. And in California, courts have ordered the state to reduce the inmate population to 137.5 percent of designed capacity,

Associated Press

Deputy Attorney General James Cole holds up a list of guidelines Wednesday during a news conference at the Justice Department in Washington. The new standards that will be considered in deciding whether to recommend clemency for certain non-violent prisoners.

or 112,164 inmates in the 34 facilities, by February 2016.

The White House, sometimes criticized as too stingy with its clemency power, says it's seeking more candidates for leniency in an overcrowded federal prison system whose costs comprise a sizable percentage of the Justice Department's budget.

The system's population has rocketed in recent decades, creating rising multibillion-dollar expenses that officials say threaten other law enforcement priorities and that an inspector general's report last year characterized as a "growing crisis." The United States incarcerates about a quarter of the world's prisoners. Of the roughly 216,000 inmates in federal custody, nearly half are imprisoned for drug-related crimes.

But officials say now's the time to consider releasing more prisoners early.

"These defendants were properly held accountable for their criminal conduct. However, some of them, simply because of the operation of sentencing laws on the books at the time, received substantial sentences that are disproportionate to what they would receive today," Cole said.

Officials said they don't know how many of the tens of thousands of drug-related convicts would be eligible for early release, but an ideal candidate would meet six criteria — including no history of violence, no ties to criminal organizations or gangs and a clean prison record. He must also have already served 10 years or more of his sentence and be likely to have received a substantially shorter sentence if convicted of the same offense today.

Soothing tensions

President Barack Obama and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe shake hands Wednesday in Tokyo. Opening a four-country swing through the Asia-Pacific region, Obama is aiming to promote the U.S. as a committed economic, military and political partner.

Obama reassures Asian allies in wake of Ukraine crisis

Associated Press

TOKYO — Facing fresh questions about his commitment to Asia, President Barack Obama will seek to convince Japan's leaders Thursday that he can deliver on his security and economic pledges, even as the crisis in Ukraine demands U.S. attention and resources elsewhere.

The ominous standoff between Ukraine and Russia is threatening to overshadow Obama's four-country Asia swing that began Wednesday. He may decide during the trip whether to levy new economic sanctions on Moscow, a step that would signal the failure of an international agreement aimed at defusing the crisis.

But at least publicly, Obama will try to keep the focus on his

Asia agenda, which includes reaffirming his commitment to a defense treaty with Japan, making progress on a stalled trans-Pacific trade agreement and finalizing a deal to modestly increase the American military footprint in the Philippines.

Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said he and Obama had a long talk at a private dinner Wednesday evening and looked forward to a fruitful meeting Thursday "so that we can jointly send a message to the rest of the world that the Japan-U.S. alliance is unshakeable and strong."

Today, Obama will meet with Japanese Emperor Akihito, have a news conference with Abe and attend a banquet at the Imperial Palace. He also plans to visit the Meiji Shrine, which honors the emperor whose reign saw Japan emerge from over two centuries of isolation to become a world power.

Obama's stops in Japan, South Korea, Malaysia and the Philippines serve as something of a do-over after he canceled a visit to Asia last fall because of the U.S. government shutdown. The cancellation provided fresh fodder for those in the region who worry that the White House's much-hyped pivot to Asia is continually taking a backseat to other foreign and domestic priorities.

"I think the president will want to make clear that this commitment will be unaffected by developments in Ukraine and other global events," said Jeffrey Bader, Obama's former Asia director. "Countries want to hear that the U.S. presence is in fact steady and strong as China rises."

Activists accuse Syria of gas attacks

Associated Press

BEIRUT — Syrian government forces have attacked rebel-held areas with poisonous chlorine gas in recent weeks and months, leaving men, women and children coughing, choking and gasping for breath, according to Associated Press interviews with more than a dozen activists, medics and residents on the opposition side.

Syria flatly denied the allegations, and they have yet to be confirmed by any foreign country or international organization. But if true, they highlight the limitations of the global effort to rid President Bashar Assad's government of its chemical weapons.

Witnesses near Damascus and in a central rebel-held village told the AP of dozens of cases of choking, fainting and other afflictions from inhaling fumes that some said were yellowish and smelled like chlorine cleanser. Some of those interviewed said they believe the gas was responsible for at least two deaths.

They said the fumes came from hand grenades and helicopter-dropped "barrel bombs," which are crude containers packed with explosives and shrapnel.

The U.N. Security Council called for an investigation Wednesday. Council members expressed "grave concern" over the allegations, said Nigeria's U.N. Ambassador U. Joy Ogwu, council president.

It's an accusation that carries high stakes, and the Syrian opposition has an interest in pushing such claims in hopes of spurring the world to take stern action against Assad, who has been locked in a civil war for three years and faces a Sunday deadline for handing over all his chemical weapons for destruction.

Bolivia approves shooting down smuggling planes

LA PAZ, Bolivia — A new Bolivian law authorizes the country's military to shoot down planes suspected of smuggling cocaine, though it cannot yet be put into practice because it doesn't have sufficient radar coverage.

The law signed Tuesday by President Evo Morales requires that before starting the plan, Bolivia must first purchase and install radar systems, which its borders lack.

Bolivia is the world's No. 3 cocaine producer and has also become a key transit country for partially refined cocaine from Peru, which has the biggest coca crop.

Other countries in the region with similar shootdown policies include Brazil, Colombia, Honduras and Venezuela, all cocaine transit countries. Peru had a shootdown policy, but halted it.

Brazil enacts Internet 'Bill of Rights'

SAO PAULO — Brazil's president signed into law on Wednesday a "Bill of Rights" for the digital age that aims to protect online privacy and promote the Internet as a public utility by barring telecommunications companies from charging for preferential access to their networks.

The law signed by President Dilma Rousseff at a global conference on the future of Internet governance puts Brazil in the vanguard of online consumer protection and what is known as "net neutrality," whose promoters consider it profoundly democratic in part because it keeps financial barriers for innovators low.

The new law promotes privacy by limiting the data that online companies can collect on Internet users in this nation of 200 million people, deeming communications over the Internet "inviolable and secret."

Service providers must develop protocols to ensure email can be read only by senders and their intended recipients. Violators are subject to penalties including fines and suspension.

Enactment of the law, which won final legislative approval in the Senate late Tuesday, coincided with Brazil's hosting of a global conference widely seen as an effort to chart a path for a less U.S.-centric Internet.

Seahawks to open NFL season vs. Packers

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Mike McCarthy promises there won't be any bad memories plaguing his Green Bay Packers when they open the NFL season on Sept. 4 at Super Bowl champion Seattle.

The last time Green Bay visited CenturyLink Field was in Week 3 of the 2012 season, a 14-12 Seahawks victory clinched on what now is often dubbed the "Fail Mary." Russell Wilson's desperation pass on the final play was called a touchdown reception for Golden Tate by the replacement officials.

A few days later, the lockout of the regular officials ended.

"This game won't be about the past," he said. "It will be about the 2014 Green Bay Packers."

It's the third straight season the Packers have traveled to face the defending Super Bowl champions.

"It's a tremendous opportunity for our football team," Packers coach Mike McCarthy said. "We have experience playing in the kickoff opener three years ago, and we will draw on that. Obviously, being the visiting team this time presents new challenges."

It will help sharpen our focus even more during training camp and the preseason."

That Thursday game is the first of four prime-time games on opening weekend. Also at night will be a Sunday matchup of AFC champion Denver and Peyton Manning hosting his former team, Indianapolis; and a Monday night doubleheader with the New York Giants at Detroit, followed by San Diego at Arizona.

The NFL will play three games in London: Dolphins-Raiders on Sept. 28; Lions-Falcons on Oct. 26; and Cowboys-Jaguars on Nov. 9. The Detroit-Atlanta game will kick off at 9:30 a.m. in an experiment to test the NFL's audience draw on a Sunday morning.

A Saturday doubleheader in Week 16 has San Diego at San Francisco and Philadelphia at Washington.

For the first time, games in Weeks 5 through 10 can be flexed from Sunday afternoon to night, with a limit of two. Beginning with Week 11, a Sunday game can be moved to prime time each week. Also,

DUNNELLON — The Citrus baseball team defeated Dunnellon for a third and final time this year, as the top-seeded Hurricanes beat the District 5A-6 tournament host Tigers 8-3 Wednesday night from Mike Payne Field.

Nursing an early 2-0 lead, Citrus (14-11, 6-1), watched No. 4 seed Dunnellon take advantage of Hurricane errors in a three-run fifth inning to claim a 3-2 edge.

Joey Polizzi led off and reached on a groundball misplayed at third base, then Citrus starting pitcher Alex Atkinson gave up a single to Matthew Livermore and a walk to Quinn Roosen to load the bases.

Atkinson (five innings, three runs, one earned run, four hits, six strikeouts and two walks) got Zachary West looking before a Kane Parks fielder's choice RBI ground-out made it 2-1.

Bo Dewitz walked to reload the bases, and Garrett Kudlack's grounder to third was overthrown to first, allowing two runs to score before Citrus could get the ball back in play for the Tigers' 3-2 lead.

Atkinson escaped further damage, and in the bottom half of the fifth, it was Citrus' turn to capitalize on a wild inning.

Lecanto pulls away late to send CR home

SEAN ARNOLD

DUNNELLON — In stark contrast to Lecanto's regular-season loss to Crystal River, which found the Panthers bringing home two of its 15 base runners, the LHS baseball club used its opportunities to the fullest in Wednesday's district tournament opener at Mike Payne Field in Dunnellon. The No. 3 seed Panthers converted nine base runners — and just five hits — into six runs to best the second-seeded Pirates 6-2, and advance to Friday's 5A-6 district championship game to face No. 1 Citrus.

The Panthers (9-12) are in the playoffs for the second time in three years, and just the third time in school history. The school's only district baseball title came in 1989.

Senior Levi O'Steen went the distance on the mound for LHS, allowing five hits and one walk, for his first postseason win and his third win versus rival CRHS (11-12). O'Steen and his defense retired the side in the opening three innings.

Lecanto never trailed in the contest, as it took a 2-0 lead in the first inning, added another in the sixth and tacked on three for insurance in the seventh behind three base hits, a walk, a Pirate error and a sacrifice bunt by junior Zach Bonick. Junior Caleb Southey went 1 for 2 with two walks and two runs for LHS, while senior Jacob Schenck chipped in a run and an RBI at the top of the Panther order.

"As long as we were ahead, I was fine," O'Steen said. "We get to play in another big one Friday. We just have to hit the ball."

Crystal River was shorthanded, without injured would-be starting pitcher Jordan Humphreys, who had four hits against Lecanto this season. In his final game as a Pirate, senior Mason Pateracki helped keep his team alive after a rocky first inning, when Schenck and Southey each walked and scored. Pateracki yielded three walks and five hits in seven innings, while fanning one Panther per frame.

Three stolen bases, a catcher's throwing error and a wild pitch helped lead to three of Lecanto's runs, as Crystal River was more vulnerable defending the Panthers' running game.

American League Red Sox 5, Yankees 1

BOSTON — Michael Pineda was ejected for using a foreign substance less than two weeks after appearing to get away with it in another game against Boston, and the Red Sox beat the New York Yankees 5-1.

Rangers 3, Athletics 0

OAKLAND, Calif. — Martin Perez pitched his second consecutive shutout to extend his scoreless innings streak to 26 and the Texas Rangers wrapped up a three-game sweep of the Oakland Athletics with a 3-0 victory.

White Sox 6, Tigers 4

DETROIT — Marcus Semien's seventh-inning grand slam lifted the Chicago White Sox over the Detroit Tigers 6-4.

Orioles 10, Blue Jays 8

TORONTO — Nelson Cruz hit two of Baltimore's season-high four home runs, Chris Davis and Matt Wieters also connected and the Orioles beat the Toronto Blue Jays 10-8.

Mariners 5, Astros 3

SEATTLE — Kyle Seager hit a three-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth and the Seattle Mariners rallied for a 5-3 win over the Houston Astros to snap an eight-game losing streak.

Braves 3, Marlins 1

ATLANTA — Pinch-hitter Evan Gattis broke an eighth-inning tie with a two-run double off A.J. Ramos, and the Atlanta Braves beat the Miami Marlins 3-1 Wednesday for their ninth win in 12 games.

Aaron Harang allowed one run and six hits in six innings with 11 strikeouts and one walk, raising his ERA from 0.70 to 0.85. Braves pitchers struck out 16 in all, giving them 41 strikeouts and five walks in the three-game series.

David Carpenter (1-0) relieved with two on and two outs in the eighth and retired Casey McGehee on a flyout.

Craig Kimbrel retired Derek Dietrich on a flyout, then struck out Adeiny Hechavarria and Jarrod Saltalamacchia for his sixth save.

Nathan Eovaldi gave up one run — unearned — and five hits in six innings.

Giants 12, Rockies 10, 11 inn.

DENVER — Hector Sanchez hit two of San Francisco's six homers, including a grand slam in the 11th inning that gave the Giants a wild 12-10 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

Sanchez drove a fastball from Chad Bettis (0-1) into the bushes behind center field. The backup catcher also hit a solo homer in the eighth.

Michael Morse also hit two homers: a solo shot in the second and a three-run homer the following inning.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2

NEW YORK — Lucas Duda hit a long home run and the New York Mets threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the ninth inning to hold off the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Jonathon Niese earned his first win of the season, and shortstop Ruben Tejada cut down Matt Carpenter for the second out of the ninth on a strong relay from center fielder Kirk Nieuwenhuis.

Cardinals right-hander Michael Wacha set career highs with 10 strikeouts and five walks.

Reds 5, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Alfredo Simon pitched into the seventh inning despite erratic control, Jay Bruce drove in a run for a fifth consecutive game and the Cincinnati Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2.

Simon (3-1) worked 6 2/3 innings and allowed two runs on four hits and five walks while striking out four.

Brewers 5, Padres 2

MILWAUKEE — Jean Segura hit a three-run homer, and the Milwaukee Brewers broke out of an offensive slumber at home to support Kyle Lohse in a 5-2 win over the San Diego Padres.

Segura homered for a 4-1 lead in the second. Kris Davis added a solo shot for the Brewers, who have won five of six and are a big league-best 16-6.

Lohse (4-1) allowed five hits and no walks in seven innings.

Tyson Ross (2-3) allowed a season-high five earned runs in six innings.

Interleague Nationals 5, Angels 4

WASHINGTON — Adam LaRoche's tiebreaking RBI single off the first pitch from Fernando Salas capped a four-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning, and the Washington Nationals came back to beat the Los Angeles Angels 5-4.

Los Angeles led 4-1 entering the ninth, and closer Ernesto Frieri (0-2) went in, seeking his third save. Instead, he left with his second blown chance, charged with all four runs Washington scored in that inning.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Heat go up 2-0, hold off Bobcats 101-97

MIAMI — LeBron James scored 32 points and added eight assists, Chris Bosh scored 20 points and the Miami Heat held on to beat the Charlotte Bobcats 101-97 on Wednesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the teams' Eastern Conference first-round series. Dwyane Wade scored 15 points, plus had a steal in the final seconds to help seal the win for Miami. Mario Chalmers added 11 for the Heat. Michael Kidd-Gilchrist scored 22 points for Charlotte, which got 18 points and 13 rebounds from Al Jefferson, who played through a left plantar fascia strain and shot 9 for 23 from the floor. Kemba Walker added 16 and Gerald Henderson scored 15 for the Bobcats. Game 3 is Saturday night in Charlotte.

Mavs roll past Spurs 113-92, even series at 1-1

SAN ANTONIO — Monta Ellis scored 21 points and the Dallas Mavericks rolled to a 113-92 victory over San Antonio on Wednesday night, snapping a 10-game skid against the Spurs and evening their first-round series at a game apiece. Shawn Marion scored 20 points, Dirk Nowitzki added 16, Devin Harris had 18 and Jose Calderon 12 for Dallas, which never trailed after the opening minutes of the second quarter. Manu Ginobili had 27 points, Tony Parker added 12 and Tim Duncan 11 for the Spurs. Dallas didn't relent in Game 2 after blowing a 10-point lead in the final eight minutes of the series opener. San Antonio's ineptness had as much to do with tying the series, however. The Spurs averaged 14.4 turnovers during the regular season, but had 15 with 3 minutes left in the first half. They finished with 22 turnovers, which resulted in 33 points for the Mavericks.

Dubinsky, Foligno lift CBJ to 1st home playoff win

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Brandon Dubinsky scored with 22.5 seconds left in regulation to force overtime and Nick Foligno's wrist shot just inside the blue line 2:49 into the extra session gave the Columbus Blue Jackets a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins on Wednesday night. The Blue Jackets overcame a 3-0 deficit for their first home playoff victory in the franchise's 13 seasons, sending the series back to Pittsburgh for Game 5 on Saturday night tied 2-2. Craig Adams, Chris Kunitz, James Neal scored in a span of 5:01 of the first period to stake the Penguins to a 3-0 lead. But Ryan Johansen and Dubinsky each had a goal and an assist and Boone Jenner also scored for Columbus, making only its second postseason trip. Stars beat Ducks 4-2, even series 2-2 DALLAS — Cody Eakin and Alex Goligoski scored on Dallas' first two shots in the third period and the Stars beat the top-seeded Anaheim Ducks 4-2 on Wednesday in Game 4 of the best-of-seven series that is all even now. Even without captain Ryan Getzlaf, a surprise late scratch with an upper-body injury, and healthy scratch Teemu Selane, the Ducks jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first period. But the Stars, who got physical at home after a pair of one-goal losses in Anaheim to start the series, dominated the rest of the way. Game 5 is Friday night in Anaheim, and Game 6 is Sunday in Dallas. Dallas captain Jaime Benn scored off a faceoff only 27 seconds into the second period, his third goal in the series.

C Johnson, F Poythress returning to Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky's front-court will bring back size and experience next season after freshman center Dakari Johnson and sophomore forward Alex Poythress announced they would return. The 7-foot Johnson started 18 of Kentucky's final 20 games and shot 62 percent during the NCAA tournament. Poythress averaged 5.9 points and 4.5 rebounds and showed more flashes of his talent during the Wildcats' run to the national title game. Johnson and Poythress will return along with 6-9 freshman Marcus Lee and 7-foot sophomore Willie Cauley-Stein, who announced their decisions last week. —From wire reports

"We were efficient tonight," he added. "We got the job done when we needed to. We have to use our speed, and it worked out well tonight. I've been preaching to our team all year about finishing. Those guys have worked hard. It hasn't always been easy, we've been up and down all year, but anything can happen now." After boarding on an infield hit in the fourth, Pateracki scored the first Pirate run off a blast to left field by senior Garrett Lofley, cutting the Panther lead in half. A single by sophomore Tyler Voland in the sixth drove in Casey Purnell for the team's other run, making it a 3-2 Panther advantage following another Southey run earlier in the sixth. Continued from Page B1 I really liked when they jumped on us 3-2, we came right back," Citrus head coach Brady Bogart said. "Both teams took advantage of errors, but I think we were able to pitch out of those jams more than they were." Hurricanes reliever Chad Dawson pitched the last two innings, giving up two hits and a walk while keeping Dunnellon (5-18, 1-5) off the board to close it out, but not without any dramatics, as the Tigers twice had the potential tying run in the on-deck circle in the seventh. Wright and Cody Bogart each went 2 for 4, while Atkinson was 2 for 3 with two RBIs and a run for Citrus. Dunnellon starter Ryan Mills gave up six earned runs over five innings, with eight hits, six strikeouts and three walks. Citrus will face Lecanto Friday night back in Dunnellon at 7 p.m. for the District 5A-6 championship. Both teams automatically qualify for next week's playoffs. "I like jumping out to 2-0 leads, but Austin Bogart started the Hurricanes' five-run frame with a single through the left side, and came around to score all the way from first when Ben Wright's grounder was fielded and thrown well over first base, tying it at 3-3. Cody Bogart singled and came around to score on another Dunnellon miscue, this a passed ball and another throwing error to first after Robert Wilkinson struck out swinging. Wilkinson came home on an RBI line drive single to left off the bat of Atkinson, making it 5-3 Citrus. Ben Croftchick smashed a two-run double down the right field line to finish off the frame with a sudden 7-3 advantage. "I like jumping out to 2-0 leads, but

SCHEDULE

Continued from Page B1 And for those looking for the rematch of the Super Bowl, Seattle's 43-8 rout of Denver, it's on Sept. 21 at Seattle. Denver opens the season against three 2013 playoff teams: Indianapolis and Kansas City at home, then at the Seahawks. "I think when you look at it, we have to start fast," Broncos general manager John Elway said. "We knew it was going to be a tough schedule playing the NFC West, and when we finish first in our division like we have the past three years, it is always going to be a tough schedule with a lot of good football teams on it." Bye weeks begin in Week 4 when Arizona, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Denver, Seattle and St. Louis are off. They end in Week 12 when Carolina and Pittsburgh are idle. Looking for the latest installment of Manning vs. Tom Brady? The Patriots host it on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 2.

Springtime sparks activity for Florida black bears, cubs

Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) reminds the public to be aware that bears are now or soon will be on the move as they are leaving their winter dens. There are important things people can do over the next few months to reduce negative interactions with Florida's largest land mammal.

"Now is the time to expect bears to show up looking for food," said Dave Telesco, who directs the FWC's bear management program. "If they can't find food in your neighborhood, they'll move on."

Female bears that gave birth to cubs that were only 12 ounces in January are beginning to move around with their babies, which are now around 5 pounds. As the cubs continue to grow, the family unit will roam farther and could be more visible to people.

While black bears generally are not aggressive, a mother bear may try to defend her cubs. Never intentionally approach a bear. Do not assume when you see a lone adult bear that there are no cubs, because the cubs may be hidden nearby. When walking dogs, keep them close and be aware of your surroundings. Dogs can trigger defensive behaviors from bears.

Keep human sources of food, like garbage, birdseed and pet food, secure from bears so they won't wander into your neighborhood this spring looking for an easy meal. Use a bear-resistant trash can, build a bear-resistant trash can shed or modify your existing trash can with hardware to make it more resistant. Instructions for these methods, plus a video on how to use an electric fence to deter bears can be found at www.pinterest.com/myfwc/bear-necessities/.

If you do not have a bear-resistant garbage can, consider building a bear-resistant trash can shed. In Collier County today, the FWC is partnering with local Boy Scout volunteers to build sheds that will deter bears from accessing garbage. The FWC received a grant from the Wildlife Foundation of Florida, using proceeds from the Conserve Wildlife license plate, to build and install 70 bear-resistant wooden trash can sheds for residents of two East Naples mobile home parks, who have no other way to keep their garbage away from bears.

As females and cubs increase their movements this time of year, they also increase the number of roads they cross. For the safety of yourself and bears, remember to slow down when driving, particularly on rural highways at dawn or dusk. Watch for road signs identifying bear crossing areas. Over 200 Florida bears were killed after being hit by vehicles in 2013.

Tarpon time getting near

Our resident year-round trout and reds will still be obliging barring poor weather. I and other guides had several trips during April, getting our limits of the fine-eating saltwater speckled sea trout.

In as little as 3 feet of water, with the floating grass, it's best to utilize a jig under a Cajun thunder cork. Don't use any jighead heavier than 1/8 ounce in this shallow of water. You still need a little weight for casting, but you don't want to anchor the thing. It needs to flutter down and rest between pops. The old trusty white, new penny and electric chicken assassins will be the best colors for plastics. If the floating grass is too much and gets snagged on a topwater plug, but isn't real thick, try a mirrorlure mirrodine subsurface twitch bait. Color isn't as important as the action and flash these plugs put out.

Capt. Rick Burns

Spanish mackerel are still around and eager to take the same tackle. The cobia fishing is in full force, as we already had a few boated the past few weeks. And the bonnet heads and spinner sharks will take the same offering as the trout.

However, the "reeel deal" for our Homosassa and Crystal River area in May will be the kickoff of the peak season for the silver king, which will last through June. They start to show up on the shallow 3 feet to 7 feet gin clear flats as early as late April if the water along the coast reaches and maintains about 75 degrees.

Eighty percent of my charters during the peak May and June tarpon season will be with the fly rod. Not necessarily because it's the most successful tackle of choice, but because it's the epitome of sportfishing. There's nothing like seeing, casting and fooling a 150 to 200 pound fish into taking a clump of chicken feathers tied on a hook. We use a lot of toads, apte 1 and 2's, black deaths, Homosassa specials, and cockroach patterns to achieve most of the hook-ups.

If the long rod isn't your game, we'll throw the conventional setup to 'em. A good Penn 65 or 7500 on a matched slammer rod, along with a frisky pinfish, or active crab will most assuredly do the trick.

I've found that if you're going to stick a tarpon, it'll be between 6 and 10 a.m. After that, the sun gets high and bright and they head off into deeper water for the most part. Then it's time to go bust a red or three.

"No rules, just right" might be the mantra in some commercials, but on the Homosassa tarpon flats it's likely to get a 6 ounce sinker fired into your fiberglass. The fish are very sensitive to boat pressure, so it requires common sense and cooperation for the numerous anglers after them to succeed.

First, avoid running your outboard where the fish are, as much as possible. Run well outside the travel route, then cut in at a 90-degree angle, rather than roaring directly up on the flat. And if another boat is set up on a pod of fish waiting for them to swim into range, take your position well beyond that boat, say 300 to 500 yards, rather than trying to cut the fish off. Wait your turn and you'll get your shots; push too hard and you'll blow the fish off — and make enemies of anglers who do it right.

Surest bet is to hire a guide and avoid the guesswork in these type of sacred grounds.

OUTDOORS BRIEF

Blessing of the Fleet is May 10

What is "The Blessing of the Fleet"? It is a tradition that started centuries ago by fishermen on the Mediterranean Sea. It was believed that this ceremony would ensure a safe return from the sea and a bountiful harvest by the fishermen.

All boat owners/operators are invited to this annual event, which will be held on May 10 from 10 a.m. to noon.

The Blessing of the Fleet will be held on King's Bay on the north side of Buzard's Island. Look for the 22-foot pontoon boat with a green bimini and the Crystal River Sail and Power Squadron banner on the port side. —From staff reports

Belgian Invasion

ULA ILNYTZKY

NEW YORK

The notion of introducing a new food to the American public is almost inconceivable in an era of TV chefs, global cuisine and foodie websites.

But that's what happened 50 years ago at the 1964 New York World's Fair in Queens, N.Y., when a family from Belgium introduced Belgian waffles, topped with fresh whipped cream, powdered sugar and sliced strawberries.

Once Maurice and Rose Vermersch and their daughter, MariePaule, began serving the delicacy, there was no turning back the crowds.

"From the moment we opened there was a line. We couldn't see the end," recalled MariePaule Vermersch, 66, who helped her parents serve an average of 2,500 waffles a day during the fair, which opened 50 years ago on April 22, 1964. "It was wild."

They were supposed to be called Brussels waffles — named for the Belgian capital, where they were a specialty — but her mother soon realized many Americans didn't know where Brussels was.

The Vermersch family first served the treat two years earlier at the 1962 World's Fair in Seattle, and for years after they made the waffles at the annual New York State Fair in Syracuse. But it was at the 1964 event in New York City that the waffles became a sensation.

Compared to American waffles, the Belgian treat was light, crispy and fluffy. To this day, baby boomers fondly recall the memory of enjoying them at the fair.

Vermersch said that for years she ran a coffee shop, MariePaule's Authentic Belgian Waffles, in her current home of Albuquerque, New Mexico, that featured a picture of the 1964 World's Fair.

"People would look at the name and see the picture and say, 'I ate those waffles at the World's Fair,' and they'd pick up the phone and call their parents," said Vermersch, who is in New York to attend the fair's 50th anniversary celebration this month, and also to care for her 95-year-old mother, who lives in Queens. "I couldn't believe how often that would happen."

What made the waffles so good? Vermersch cited a special cast-iron pan that heats up to 500 degrees. "As soon as the batter touches the grill, it gets crispy on the outside and soft on the inside," she said. "You don't want to put anything syrupy on it or it will turn it into a sponge."

They served the waffles with whipped cream, adding hand-sliced strawberries for color.

Waffles in the United States date back to the Pilgrims, who were familiar with them from time spent in the Netherlands, which has a similar waffle culture. And during the latter part of the 18th century, "waffle parties" were all the rage. Today, a version of the Belgian can be found in diners and restaurants across the country.

Vermersch said she vowed never to create an instant mix because the recipe requires fresh, carefully prepped ingredients: pure vanilla, fresh yeast or self-rising flour, melted but cooled sweet butter, and eggs at room temperature, with egg whites added at the end.

But that's as much information as she'll

Lobster decline could end high catches

Associated Press

YARMOUTH, Maine — The number of baby lobsters settling off the rocky coast of Maine continues to steadily decline — possibly foreshadowing an end to the recent record catches that have boosted New England's lobster fishery, scientists say.

A University of Maine survey of 11 Gulf of Maine locations indicates that young lobsters have declined by more than half of their 2007 levels — significant since lobsters typically take about eight years to reach the legal harvesting size.

The downward trend has lobstermen, retailers, state officials, and ocean scientists concerned that the impact could soon be felt on dinner tables nationwide. Maine lobsters were 85 percent of the nation's lobster catch in 2012.

Warmer ocean temperatures, pollution, atmospheric conditions and changes in predation and availability of food could all be to blame, say scientists, state officials and industry leaders. Lobsters are very sensitive to even subtle changes in temperature, scientists say.

Maine Department of Marine Resources officials say the decline does not appear to be the product of overfishing as some environmental groups contend.

The last three years have brought record hauls to Maine's lobster industry, more than 350 million pounds — by far the most for any three-year period according to state data that go back to 1880. The value of the catch has topped $1 billion for the first time.

Larger catches generally follow high levels years earlier of baby lobster settlement — the process in which young lobsters reach the ocean floor and grow. The boom in lobster catches in recent years follows a trend of heavy lobster settlement in the mid-2000s, university scientists say.

But that pace might not be sustainable, says Carl Wilson, the state's lobster biologist.

"It's our first indicator that things might be changing in the future," Wilson said. "Low settlement, it's thought, in the future will lead to lower landings."

Maine lobsters' eggs hatch in the early summer and larvae swim freely about six to eight weeks before settling at the ocean bottom as inch-long post-larvae. Divers for the University of Maine have been tracking their settlement rates since the late 1980s.

When it comes to reds, don't be yellow

Today we finish our grape overview and glance at some of the important red wines on shelves. But first, a question: How does red wine gets its color if the crushed juice of every red grape is neutral?*

Red wine is all about skin: Show a lot of skin during fermentation and you get red wine, a little bit of skin and you produce rosé; no skin results in white. In fact, most golden-colored Champagne is made from red grapes.

In a world of thousands of red grapes, only about six are basic, and that's where we will focus, starting with the king of them all, cabernet sauvignon, always at the vanguard. Cabs are everywhere in the wine world and adapt well to a variety of soil and climates. They love oak, especially new barrels, at the peril of wine critics who regard big, dramatic reds as over the hill. Further, they love to associate with other red grapes, making them a fine blender with merlot, cab Franc and others. In price they can range from $10 up to the thousands depending on origin. Bordeaux cabernet blends costing thousands are not uncommon, and California is starting to catch up with labels such as Screaming Eagle at $750 a bottle.

And yet the buzzword at many wine tastings is a twin sister of cabernet — you guessed it, merlot. Some refer to merlot as "cabernet on Prozac," a wine without rough edges, smooth and easy to sip, one which folks frequently identify by saying, "I don't particularly enjoy cabernet, but merlot is fine, if you have any." Yet in the right-bank regions of Bordeaux of Pomerol and St. Emilion it is a superstar, commanding stratospheric prices. Why, you may ask? Because it is not "pow," in your face, but instead is more modest, yet black-hole deep and opulent, melding beautifully with racks of lamb and prime rib.

Ron Drinkhouse

WINES 'N' SUCH

Pinot noir is the third prodigious red grape, and by far the touchiest and most difficult to grow. In France's Burgundy region, it is the only grape permitted, and when it reaches its zenith (albeit too rarely) it is indeed heavenly. When Dom Pérignon the alleged inventor of Champagne said "I think I am drinking stars," some say the wine in question was pinot noir. This is a cultured grape, delicate in body with flavors and aromas occasionally reminding one of the childhood barnyard. It is a variety, and as the saying goes, you get what you pay for. Pinot noir under $50 a bottle can be good, light and charming, tasting of fresh fruits and strawberries, but lacking the almost funky flavors of mushrooms, leather, wood and smoke. I know it sounds too good to be true, but when you get the occasional outstanding one, it is a revelation on the palette. The best American pinots in my view come from Oregon. Explore these beauties with the opportunity of finding something new and exciting. Get the movie "Sideways" to see how Hollywood handles pinot noir.

Syrah — or as the Australians call it, shiraz — originated in France, especially in the northern Rhone regions of Hermitage, and Cote-Rotie, where it reaches its peak. There are many different styles, from in-your-face bruisers marrying just great with smoked and slathered barbecued spare ribs to the consumer-friendly versions from "Down Under" that have made it into a national favorite. Just know it is an atypical red wine, and note it is not petite syrah, which is a completely different grape.

Zinfandel is next, and it is not pink, but rather a deep dark purple. Remember, pink wine comes from red grape skins only slightly exposed during fermentation. Zins are harvested only in California, not grown anywhere else in the wine world. The vines are often very old, up to 80 years in some instances, producing limited yields of amazing richness and depth. Try to find some made by the legendary Paul Draper for a vivid experience.

No. 6 on our list is the world's most widely planted grape, Grenache in English or Garnacha in Spanish. This is the primary grape of France's southern Rhone, high in alcohol with sweet, fruity flavors and low tannins. But make no mistake: This is truly dry wine with a zesty fruit swallow. I love it, especially served with roasts and steaks. Tres Picos from Spain is a house wine.

And so ends our brief two-week tutorial on some of the most popular grape varieties to be found currently. My advice for a well-rounded wine education is to bravely try them all.

Two highly recommended labels Bev and I have tasted recently are Line Shack 2012 cabernet sauvignon from Central Coast Paso Robles in California and Radius 2012 chardonnay out of Washington state. At about $15, they are both first-rate QPR (quality-to-price rating) varieties.

*The Alicant Bouschet is a hybrid grape with actual red juice.

Advocates vow to revive Navajo junk-food tax

Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — Facing a high prevalence of diabetes, many American Indian tribes are returning to their roots with community and home gardens, cooking classes that incorporate traditional foods, and running programs to encourage healthy lifestyles.

The latest effort on the Navajo Nation, the country's largest reservation, is to use the tax system to spur people to ditch junk food.

A proposed 2 percent sales tax on chips, cookies and sodas failed Tuesday in a Tribal Council vote. But the measure still has widespread support, and advocates plan to revive it, with the hope of making the tribe one of the first governments to enact a junk-food tax.

Elected officials across the U.S. have taken aim at sugary drinks with proposed bans, size limits, tax hikes and warning labels, though their efforts have not gained widespread traction. In Mexico, lawmakers approved a junk food tax and a tax on soft drinks last year as part of that government's campaign to fight obesity.

Navajo President Ben Shelly earlier this year vetoed measures to establish a junk-food tax and eliminate the tax on fresh fruit and vegetables. At Tuesday's meeting, tribal lawmakers overturned the veto on the tax cut, but a vote to secure the junk-food tax fell short. Lawmakers voted 13-7 in favor it, but the tax needed 16 votes to pass.

The Dine Community Advocacy Alliance, which led the effort, said it plans to revise the proposal and bring it before lawmakers again during the summer legislative session.

Shelly said he supports the proposal's intent but questioned how the higher tax on snacks high in fat, sugar and salt would be enacted and regulated. Supporters say the tax is another tool in their fight for the health of the people.

"If we can encourage our people to make healthier choices and work on the prevention side, we increase the life span of our children, we improve their quality of life," said professional golfer Notah Begay III, who is among supporters.

American Indians and Alaska Natives as a whole have the highest age-adjusted prevalence of diabetes among U.S. racial and ethnic groups, according to the American Diabetes Association. They are more than twice as likely as non-Hispanic whites to have the disease that was the fourth leading cause of death in the Navajo area from 2003 to 2005, according to the Indian Health Service.

Native children ages 10 to 19 are nine times as likely to be diagnosed with Type 2 diabetes, the IHS said.

The proposed Navajo Nation tax wouldn't have added significantly to the price of junk food, but buying food on the reservation presents obstacles that don't exist in most of urban America. The reservation is a vast 27,000 square miles with few grocery stores and a population with an unemployment rate of around 50 percent. Thousands of people live without electricity and have no way of storing perishable food items for too long.

"They have a tendency to purchase what's available, and it's not always the best food," said Leslie Wheelock, director of tribal relations for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A minted lemon and olive chicken wrap with cucumber and capers.

Giving mint its due in a savory lemon chicken wrap

ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Fresh mint so rarely gets its due in America. We gladly pair it with chocolate and fruit, but it almost never makes appearances in savory dishes. But the rest of the world knows better, adding it with abandon to all manner of savory dairy, vegetable and meat dishes. That's because a little bit of its naturally sweet, herby flavor can go a long way to playing up the savory elements of a dish.

To demonstrate what a delicious addition mint can be to meaty dishes, we created these chicken wraps that are seasoned with salty capers and olives, a sweet hit of honey and a splash of lemon — all flavors that meld wonderfully with fresh mint.

Minted lemon and olive chicken wraps

- INGREDIENTS:
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - 1 medium yellow onion, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 tablespoons chopped capers
 - 1/2 cup oil-cured black olives, pitted and chopped
 - Pinch red pepper flakes
 - 1 tablespoon coriander seeds, crushed
 - Zest and juice of 2 lemons
 - 2 1/2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken thighs, trimmed and cut into 1-inch chunks
 - 1 tablespoon honey
 - 1/4 cup chopped fresh mint
 - Salt and ground black pepper
 - 8 pita breads or baguette sections, to serve
 - 1 cup fresh ricotta cheese
 - 1 cup sliced seedless cucumber
- DIRECTIONS:
- In a large sauté pan over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the onion, garlic, capers, olive and red pepper flakes, then sauté for 6 to 8 minutes, or until the onion is tender and starting to brown. Add the coriander, lemon zest and juice, and the chicken. Cook, stirring often, until the chicken is cooked through, 8 to 10 minutes.
- Stir in the honey and mint, then season with salt and pepper. To serve, spoon some of the chicken mixture onto each pita bread or section of baguette, then top with ricotta and cucumber slices.

As spring emerges, so does a reminder of our purpose

It is turning out to be a nice, sunny day. The temperature is almost 40. We awoke one morning this week with the ground all covered with snow. It stayed cold for a few days, with the temperature going down to 22 one night. My husband Joe and the boys planted 30 to 40 pounds of potatoes on Saturday. Joe tilled all the gardens, but I haven't had a chance to plant anything. I would like to plant peas, radishes, lettuce and onions. At least a little of each so we have some ready earlier.

Sister Emma and her daughters came yesterday to assist daughter Verena and I with cleaning for our upcoming church services. Walls and ceilings were washed off, furniture cleaned, windows cleaned, curtains washed, etc. I thought we really accomplished a lot. Last week the girls and I cleaned the master bedroom and bath. Everything seems to be getting done on schedule.

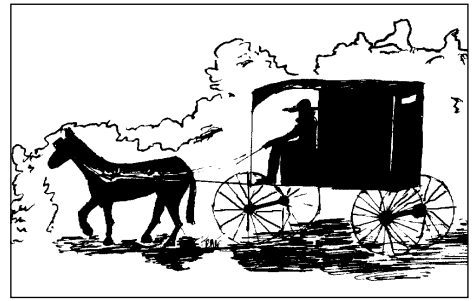

Saturday the children raked most of the yard. It still need to be raked in some areas. It looks like dandelion greens are popping through. I hope to go look for some today. The children want to color eggs for Easter, so dandelion salad will be a good way to use up some of those colored eggs. The school planned a half day of school for tomorrow (Good Friday). The Amish children won't go, as Good Friday is an Amish holiday in this community. The half day is to make up one of the missed days due to the bad weather this winter.

Daughter Susan's hands seem to be healing gradually. She was moved to another job, which she greatly appreciated. She is feeling better every day and hopefully it will all be healed soon.

The farmers down the road are planting their fields. It looks like they might be planting potatoes. Timothy's (Elizabeth's friend) third mare delivered a foal on Sunday night. He now has four foals at his place, as Susan's pony Roxie and her foal are there, too. We want to go see the four new foals sometime. They're always so frisky and full of life.

We are in the process of getting a permit accepted to build a ramp to the house. Loretta will be so glad for it. I would like to thank all you readers for you're the support you have given.

Joe would also like to get some side-walks made to the house before church services are held here. It will help a lot to keep dirt from getting dragged in.

Lovina Eicher THE AMISH COOK

My rhubarb and horseradish are peeping through. The tulips are looking hearty, too. I'm watching to see when the asparagus pops also. I love spring!

After a long winter, it will be even more special. God has created a wonderful world. How often do we take all our needs for granted? Do we appreciate our blessings enough? I read a saying recently that said "what if God only gave you tomorrow for what you prayed for today?" How true to life — people tend to get so busy they truly miss the purpose we were put on this Earth to begin with. I hope everyone had a very blessed Easter!

Butterscotch zucchini brownies

- INGREDIENTS:
- 3 eggs
 - 2/3 cup oil
 - 2 cups sugar
 - 2 teaspoons vanilla
 - 1 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 2 1/2 cups flour
 - 2 cups zucchini (shredded)
- Topping:
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
 - 1 cup butterscotch chips
- DIRECTIONS:
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Beat eggs, oil, vanilla, and sugar. Add flour, soda, salt and baking powder. Stir in zucchini. Pour into a greased, 15-by-10-inch cookie sheet.
- Mix topping ingredients together and spread on top of batter.
- Bake for 30 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean.

FEED YOUR WILD SIDE

Discover why everyone is going wild for Wild Blueberries

FAMILY FEATURES

If you love to cook, discover the wild advantage and fill your freezer with Wild Blueberries. Packed with more intense blueberry flavor and two times the antioxidants of regular blueberries, Wild Blueberries are wildly different from the cultivated blueberries you find in the fresh produce section. Don't be fooled by their small size, these berries pack more flavor and antioxidant power into their tiny blue bodies than any other blueberry on this big blue planet. This makes them the blueberry of choice for anyone interested in cooking, baking, making smoothies and more.

Here are three delicious recipes from three talented food bloggers with a shared love for tiny, potent Wild Blueberries and a passion for developing innovative, healthy and tasty twists on the classics everyone loves. Our suggestion is to try them all and feed your wild side.

For more delicious recipes, visit www.wildblueberries.com.

Gluten-Free Orange Pancakes with Wild Blueberry-Orange Sauce

Recipe by Katie Heddleston, Healthy Heddleston, katieheddleston.com

Yield: 12 to 15 thin pancakes, depending on size

Wild Blueberry-orange sauce:

1/2 cup frozen Wild Blueberries

1 tablespoon freshly squeezed orange juice

1/2 teaspoon orange zest

1 teaspoon granulated sugar (or honey)

Orange pancakes

1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons gluten-free flour

1 tablespoon granulated sugar (or honey)

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/4 teaspoon salt

1/4 cup freshly squeezed orange juice

1/4 cup milk

1 egg

1/2 teaspoon orange zest

1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

First make sauce. In small sauce pan, combine all ingredients and place on low heat while preparing pancakes. Stir occasionally. Smash Wild Blueberries to desired consistency.

To make pancakes, combine all dry ingredients in a medium mixing bowl. Then add in wet ingredients. Whisk everything together until well combined; batter will be thin. On griddle or electric skillet preheat to medium heat. Make sure pan is hot before scooping batter. Using 1/4-cup scoop, pour batter (but not whole scoopful into pancake shapes on griddle). Batter is thin so not much is needed for each pancake. Wait until pancake bubbles before flipping. Flip and cook other side. Continue process until all batter is used. Pour sauce over pancakes while warm.

Note: Only one orange is needed for fresh juice and zest for both pancakes and sauce.

A Healthy Choice

A growing body of research is establishing Wild Blueberries as a potential ally to protect against cancer, heart disease and Alzheimer's disease — so it's no surprise that more and more people are picking Wild Blueberries than ever before.

Wild Blueberry, Coconut and Ginger Smoothie

Recipe by Rachael Hartley, An Avocado A Day, anavocadoaday.blogspot.com

Yield: 1 serving

1 cup frozen Wild Blueberries

1 cup 2 percent plain yogurt

1/4 cup light coconut milk

2 tablespoons unsweetened, shredded coconut

1/2 teaspoon grated fresh ginger

Place all ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. Serve immediately.

Wild Blueberry Polenta with Grilled Onions and Sausage

Recipe by Mireya Merritt, My Healthy Eating Habits, myhealthyeatinghabits.com

Yield: 4 servings

Onions:

1 1/2 large onions, cut in half and thinly sliced, about 4 cups

1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil

Polenta:

4 cups water

1 teaspoon salt

1 cup yellow cornmeal

1 3/4 cups frozen Wild Blueberries

Sausage:

2 teaspoons olive oil

4 sausages, prepared according to package instructions

Saute onions in 1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil until lightly caramelized, about 25 minutes. About 15 minutes before onions are ready, heat water in 4-quart saucepan until comes to a boil. Add salt and slowly whisk in cornmeal. Stir frequently until the polenta thickens up and texture is smooth. Carefully stir in frozen blueberries, trying not to break them. Cook one minute and then turn off the heat, cover the pot and allow polenta to rest 1 to 2 minutes.

To serve, place large spoonful of Wild Blueberry polenta on plate, top with grilled onions and then place one sausage, sliced or whole, on top of onions. Serve with sliced oranges or garden salad.

A Tasty and Easy Option

Convenience and freshness are frozen right in. Wild Blueberries are individually quick-frozen within 24 hours of harvest, locking in their intense blueberry flavor, nutrition and antioxidant power. Find them in your grocer's freezer in convenient re-sealable bags and make sure you get the wild ones.

Spiking chocolate truffles with tea and basil

ALISON LADMAN
Associated Press

Chocolate truffles with tea and fresh basil? Yes!

Unusual as that combination may sound, it works surprisingly well to create a delicious, creamy truffle with hints of herby flavor. Think about it this way — we don't hesitate to pair chocolate and mint. Basil isn't all that far off in flavor, lending a pepperiness that acts as the perfect foil to the richness of the chocolate. And the tea — which pairs so well with sweets — lends a depth of flavor that ties everything together.

We like these truffles coated in lightly salted and chopped marcona almonds, but chocolate wafer cookies, pistachios or straight up cocoa powder all would be delicious, too.

Basil-tea truffles

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1/2 cup packed fresh basil leaves

- 2 bags Earl Grey tea
- Pinch of salt
- 1 pound bittersweet chocolate, chopped
- Crushed cookies, toasted chopped nuts, shredded coconut, or cocoa powder, for rolling

DIRECTIONS:

In a medium saucepan over medium heat, bring the cream to a bare simmer. Remove the pan from the heat, add the tea bags and basil leaves, then cover the pan and set aside to steep for 15 minutes.

Pour the cream mixture through a mesh strainer and discard the solids. Return the cream to the pan and bring back to a simmer. Remove the pan from the heat and add the salt and chocolate. Let sit for 5 minutes, then stir gently until the chocolate is completely melted and combined. Cover the pan and refrigerate until completely chilled and set up, about 2 hours, or overnight.

When ready to form the truffles, place the topping or toppings of your choice in bowls. Use a spoon to scoop up about 1 rounded teaspoon of the truffle mixture. Use your hands to roll the mixture into a 1-inch ball. Roll each truffle in a topping until well coated. Store truffles in airtight containers in the refrigerator.

A springtime take on the classic crabcake

SARA MOULTON
Associated Press

As the weather gets warmer, I cook lighter. And in The Husband's taxonomy of food, crabcakes are relatively light. So I thought I'd employ of couple of seasonal stars — peas and radishes — to put a spring spin on them.

I blithely went shopping for fresh crabmeat at my local market, but found to my horror that it's almost unaffordably pricey — and that pasteurized refrigerated crabmeat isn't much cheaper. In search of an ingredient with which to stretch the crab (I thought of it as Crab Helper), I settled on boiled shrimp, which are readily available, but not astronomically expensive. Happily, the crab and the shrimp played very nicely together.

As this also is the season for fresh peas, I added some of them to the crab/shrimp mix. Their natural sweetness chimes in well with the shellfish, and they add a little crunchy pop to the texture of the cakes.

Flavor and texture aside, I used to discount the nutritional value of peas, until I finally scrutinized the data and discovered that the little fellers are packed with protein, fiber and micronutrients. If you find fresh peas at the farmer's market, by all means scoop them up. But keep in mind that the sugar in fresh peas starts turning to starch the minute they're harvested, so be sure to bring them home, shell them and boil them right away.

And if your only option is frozen peas, don't despair. Those guys are picked at the height of their ripeness and blanched immediately in water, which sets their flavor and texture.

We bind up the cakes with eggs, mayonnaise and panko breadcrumbs, then season them with tarragon, which always teams up nicely with both shellfish and peas. If you're not a fan of tarragon, which is unpleasantly reminiscent of licorice to some folks, substitute some dill, chives or parsley. The panko does double duty, thickening the interior of the cakes and adding crunch to their crust. And as long as you brown the cakes in a nonstick or stick-resistant skillet, you won't have to use much oil.

Associated Press

Spring crab and shrimp cakes with double radish sauce.

The cakes are topped off with a peppery cream flavored by both horseradish and red radishes. Kissing cousins from the same family — brassicaceae — the radishes add a little kick to the otherwise bland shellfish. The sour cream is a moist and tangy complement to the panko crust. The Husband was very happy with my springtime rendition of one of his faves!

Spring crab and shrimp cakes with double radish sauce

INGREDIENTS:

- 1/2 pound peeled and deveined cooked shrimp
- 1 large egg, plus 1 egg yolk
- 1 cup cooked English peas or thawed frozen peas
- 1/2 cup finely chopped scallions
- 1 2/3 cups panko breadcrumbs, divided
- 1/4 cup light mayonnaise
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped fresh tarragon, or to taste

- Kosher salt and ground black pepper
- 1/2 pound lump crabmeat, picked over for any shells
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided
- 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons light sour cream
- 1 cup coarsely shredded red radishes
- 1 tablespoon bottled horseradish (do not drain)

DIRECTIONS:

Heat oven to 300 degrees. In a food processor, pulse the shrimp until very finely chopped, but not reduced to a paste. Transfer the chopped shrimp to a medium bowl and add the egg and egg yolk, peas, scallions, 2/3 cup of the panko, the mayonnaise, tarragon, 1/2 teaspoon of salt and 1/4 teaspoon of pepper. Stir well, then gently fold in the crabmeat. Divide the mixture into 8 portions, shaping each into a patty. Coat the patties with the remaining panko.

In a large, nonstick skillet over medium-high, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil. Reduce the heat to medium, then add 4 of the patties and cook until golden, about 4 minutes per side. Transfer the patties to a rimmed baking sheet and place them in the oven to keep warm. Repeat with the remaining patties, using the remaining 1 tablespoon of oil in the skillet.

Meanwhile, in a small bowl whisk together the sour cream, radishes and horseradish. Season with salt and pepper.

To serve, arrange 2 patties per plate and top with the radish sauce.

NEWS NOTES

Library to host flower show this weekend

The Garden Club of Crystal River will host a standard flower show from 1 to 4 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Coastal Region Library.

The theme of the show is "The Magic of Nursery Rhymes." A children's activity will be available with plants for the children to take home. The public is invited to see floral arrangements and horticulture displays.

For information, call Jenny Wensel, president, at 352-795-0844.

Scouts plan yard sale to raise money for trip

Cub Scout Pack 462 will have a multi-family yard sale beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday at Citrus Springs Church of God, 9921 N. Deltona Blvd.

A special feature of the sale will be many Snow Babies collectibles that were donated to the pack.

Proceeds of the yard sale will go to the pack to help with expenses for the boys to go to LEGOLAND this summer.

Take a bird walk Saturday at state park

The Ellie Schiller Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park, in cooperation with Citrus County Audubon Society, will host a bird walk on Pepper Creek Trail on Saturday.

An experienced birder from Citrus County Audubon will lead the walk on the trail. Participants should meet at 7:45 a.m. at the entrance to the Park's Visitor Center. The walk will begin at 8 a.m. Binoculars and a field guide are recommended. Participation in the bird walk is free.

For more information and to register, call 352-628-5343, ext.1002.

CHIPS to offer free hearing screenings

Are you having a difficult time hearing certain sounds? Do conversations frustrate you and require extra effort to understand? Are you asking people to repeat information more frequently?

Hearing loss can affect anyone. It can be caused by loud noise exposure and illness, as well as the natural aging process. Citrus Hearing Impaired Program Services (CHIPS) will offer free hearing screenings from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday at the old train depot at 109 N.E. Crystal St., in Crystal River.

Screenings will be by appointment only; call now to reserve a time. Low-income hearing aid assistance is available and information about CHIPS programs will be available.

For information and reservations, call Maureen, Maryjo or Dianne at 352-795-5000.

Animal Shelter ADOPTABLES

Bella and Jackie

Special to the Chronicle

Bella is a pretty, spayed brown, gray and white. She is sweet, friendly and enjoys time out of her kennel to explore. She enjoys some play time and likes catnip. She will do best as an only cat. Jackie is a pretty, spayed gray and white kitty that is very friendly and likes to curl up in a warm lap. Jackie has some dietary special needs; she has food allergies which cause her skin to become irritated. She is currently on a hypoallergenic diet which is agreeing with her, and that diet should continue once she is adopted. Both have been at the shelter since January. Meet both at Citrus County Animal Services, 4030 S. Airport Road, Inverness, behind the fairgrounds. View more adoptable pets at www.citruscritters.com. Call 352-746-8400.

NEWS NOTESCommissioner to speak at TOO FAR meeting

Citrus County Commissioner Scott Adams will speak at the April general meeting of the environmental organization TOO FAR Inc. at 7 p.m. today at East Citrus Community Center, 9907 E. Gulf-to-Lake Highway, Inverness.

Adams is known for his direct approach to issues and strong support for local waters. TOO FAR meetings are free and open to the public.

Special program to benefit heart patient

Mount Zion AME Church will host a special benefit program at 6 p.m. Saturday for Robert Keith, who is awaiting a heart transplant and will need medication.

The church is at 2532 N. Calomonden Terrace, Hernando. For more information, call the Rev. Robert Simmons Sr. at 352-726-6344.

Floral City Masons to fry fish Saturday

Floral City Masonic Lodge No. 133, located on Orange Avenue next to the library, will host its monthly fish fry from 3 to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Sides include French fries, coleslaw, hushpuppies, beans, dessert and beverage. Cost is an $8 donation.

TOPSTOPS 826

TOPS 826 was brought to order April 15, by Janet Lemieux with the Pledge of Allegiance, and members recited the TOPS and KOPS pledges.

Roll was taken by Betty Carstens; there were 15 weigh-ins with a loss of 10.25 pounds. Mille McDannold and Barb Stubstad tied for best loser. Each received $1 and a gold diamond.

Vonita Klassen read a trivia article and Lynn Daugherty presented a program about packaged, frozen and canned foods that should be avoided.

Meetings are from 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesdays, with the weigh-ins at 8:30 a.m. at Whispering Pines Park in Inverness. Each month a member or guest presents a program dealing with healthy choices.

For more information, call Janet Lemieux at 352-726-5360.

TOPS 743

Sylvia Lovelace called the meeting to order at 9 a.m. April 16, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. TOPS/KOPS recited their creeds.

Weight recorder Jerry Smart and assistant weight recorder Nancy Smart weighed in members with a weight loss of 6 pounds. Kathy Millard was the TOPS of the week and Sylvia Lovelace was the KOPS of the week.

The program was given by Nancy Smart and was on responsibility for weight recorders.

The chapter meets every Wednesday at the DAV building at 1039 N. Paul Drive, Inverness. Weigh-ins are from 7:45 to 9 a.m., with the meeting starting at 9 a.m. For more information, call Sylvia Lovelace at 352-637-6553.

New name, new features

'Clock 'N Tower' Museum Store now bigger, has more merchandise

Special to the Chronicle

The museum store in the Old Courthouse Heritage Museum now has a name: the Clock 'N Tower Museum Store.

The Clock 'N Tower Museum Store is located to the left by the stairs as visitors enter the building.

Its size has doubled; actually, it is now back to its original historical size, which is appropriate for a place that is all about history.

Currently, the store is featuring its newest merchandise line — handmade pottery by Lee Partin. Partin has been doing pottery locally for many years and teaches classes in Homosassa and was in the March exhibit featuring Citrus County art teachers. During the day, Partin can be found at the Citrus Springs Middle School.

Her pottery collection is a mixture of exquisite, useful items — sponge holders for the kitchen and coffee/beer mugs and beautiful decorative items as well.

Another feature of the store is a children's line, including a puzzle in a bottle where the puzzle is a treasure map. History books about Citrus County and a kit to make a ship in a bottle to appeal to kids and the adults who have a bit of kid left in them.

Wendy Stillwell, Barbara Engaldo and Mary Ann Lynn comprise the committee transforming the Clock 'N Tower Museum Store at the Old Courthouse Museum. The store is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information, call 352-341-6427.

news from the Inverness area

Gallery/boutique to host reception

Special to the Chronicle

The Red Brick Place, Floral City's newest gallery and boutique, will host a reception for photographer Richard Wayne Sloop at the Florida Artists Gallery Café from 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 29. Sloop, an internationally acclaimed photographer, will be on hand to greet guests and discuss his work.

Based in Atlanta, Sloop took up photography 20 years ago to pursue his love of motor racing. Though he is still an international motorsports photographer, his work has branched out into a wide range of subjects including commercial, industrial, portraiture and special events.

Sloop's work now on display at the Gallery Café is presented entirely in black and white. The Sloop exhibition will remain through May 1.

The Florida Artists Gallery & Café is in the historic Knight House at 8219 Orange Ave., Floral City. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Admission is free.

For more information, call 352-344-9300, or visit www.flartistsgallery.com.

Students learning about U.S. flag

Special to the Chronicle

Students from Bobby Verlato's sixth-grade history class at Crystal River Middle School are assisted by Priscilla Tyson, Fort Cooper DAR chapter officer, during a recent Flag Program.

Fort Cooper Daughters of the American Revolution promote program

Special to the Chronicle

The Fort Cooper, National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution prepared a Flag Program designed for the students of Citrus County.

Last year, the Flag Committee presented the program to over 450 students throughout the Citrus County schools.

Students were given a talk about Betsy Ross and her role in making our first flag, while the younger grade level students were presented with a skit about Betsy Ross and George Washington.

Priscilla Tyson showed the classes how to cut a five-pointed star just as Betsy Ross did when she demonstrated the five-pointed star to George Washington in June 1776.

Students were told about the 15th "Star Spangled Banner Flag" that was sewn by Mary Pickersgill in 1814 and flown over Fort McHenry on Sept. 14, 1814.

The program also consisted of a brief oral history of Francis Bellamy's writing the "Pledge of Allegiance" and William Tyler Page's authorship of the American's Creed.

Students were told about the meaning of a flag-draped coffin and were shown a PowerPoint presentation on the history of the flag, along with examples of historical flags.

The Flag Committee was assisted in this program by members of the Withlacoochee Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

The Fort Cooper Flag Committee is available to present this flag program to any organization or group that would like to learn more about the U.S. flag.

For information, call DAR Regent Sue Camillo at 352-382-7383, Carolyn Ohlmeyer at 352-382-4272 or Priscilla Tyson at 352-341-1357.

Heritage Council slates spring meeting

Quarterly session to include 'Snippet of History' about river

Special to the Chronicle

It's time for the spring quarterly meeting of the Floral City Heritage Council on Tuesday, April 29, at the Floral City Community House, 8370 E. Orange Ave.

A member and guest potluck dinner starts at 7 p.m., followed by the "Snippet of History" and the quarterly business meeting.

At 7:30 p.m., the popular "Snippet of History" program will feature Mark Fulkerson, professional engineer with the Southwest Florida Water Management District. The subject will be Withlacoochee River Watershed Initiative. The talk will touch on the history of the river and the Lake Tsala Apopka chain of lakes and how to better understand the dynamics of the river and watershed.

Identify how alterations have affected the system and evaluate alternatives to better manage the resources. This includes developing a model of the entire 2,000-square-mile watershed to address public concerns related to both man-made and natural changes. Historic photos will be part of the presentation.

At 8:15 p.m. during the business meeting, the membership will be updated on new ventures for the Heritage Council, recent accomplishments and events and activities connected with the Duval House Preservation Trust.

Members are reminded to bring their own plate and table service and nonperishable food items or a grocery store gift card for the Citrus County Veterans Coalition Food Pantry.

Visitors are invited to join the council, which provides full privileges in the Citrus County Historical Society Inc. Everyone is invited to visit the Heritage Hall Museum and Museum "Country" Store at 8394 E. Orange Ave. in the new Town Center, a block from the U.S. 41 traffic signal. The museum is open, free to the public, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday, or by special arrangement with the chairman.

Visit www.floralcityhc.org or call chairman Frank Peters at 352-860-0101 or email him at the-fchc@hotmail.com for more information. Like us on Facebook.com/FloralCityMuseum.

NEWS NOTEPet food needed

Citrus County Animal Services asks for the public's help in meeting the needs of financially challenged citizens who own pets. The goal is to afford those residents the ability to feed their pets.

Animal Services asks citizens to deliver donations of dog food and cat food to their local food bank or to the Animal Services shelter in Inverness to help those residents keep their animals rather than surrender them to the shelter because they don't have the money to feed them.

The shelter is at the end of Airport Road, off U.S. 41 between the airport and the fairgrounds. For more information, call 352-746-8400.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt said, "Repetition does not transform a lie into a truth." But one does hope that repetition transforms a truth that is sometimes overlooked into a truth that is remembered. As an example, how do the defenders defeat four hearts in this deal after West leads the spade ace?

The bidding is instructive. Over West's textbook takeout double, North's redouble indicates at least 10 high-card points and fewer than four-card heart support. (Note that in the United States, a two-diamond response is typically treated as natural and nonforcing, showing a long suit in a weak hand. With a good hand that isn't suitable for a forcing one-level response, responder must start with redouble.) After this redouble, the simplest rule is that either the opening pair buys the contract or the intervening side plays in something doubled for penalty.

Under West's spade ace, East drops his three, the lowest card denying both the spade queen and a doubleton. West continues with the spade queen. Now East should play his eight, starting a high-low with his remaining doubleton. Then West cashes the spade king. But what should he do at trick four?

West has 14 high-card points and dummy has 13. That leaves 13 for East and South. The declarer must have the diamond ace, club ace and club king. It is highly unlikely that the defenders can gain a minor-suit trick. And if so, the fourth defensive trick will have to come from trumps.

West should lead his last spade. This promotes East's heart jack to the setting trick.

How we spent Mom's money

By Doris Butt

Special to the Chronicle

The farmstead, where I grew up and celebrated some 53 years of marriage, was very special to me. How could I leave it?

I treasure my written words of my time there. I consider the following paragraph, the best I have ever written. It is no surprise that it is about the barn, the grand master of the farmstead.

"I loved the sounds of the barn: the squeak of the hay wagon and hollow sound of horses' hoofs as they walk across the wooden floor, the creak of the hay fork as it struggles along the track of barn and the rattle of impatient horses shaking their harness. I hear the sound of machinery: the slap of the drive belt as it powers the feed grinder, the pulsations of the tractor as each grain bundle is received into the noisy thresher or corn shredder. I hear the talk of horses, bellowing bulls, mooing cows crying for weaned calves, cats with kittens and chickens clucking in nests in the hay."

When Ray and I married, we moved into an apartment in the farmhouse we shared with my parents. It was an innocent move, but there were no problems.

A time soon came when Dad retired and Ray, a farmer's son, took over the farm.

My best memory of those days was walking to the barn where the children would play with the cats while I sat in front of the stable to be with Ray as he milked.

However, after two years of stretching my teaching earnings to pay farm bills, we said, "Enough."

Dad took back the farming for a few years and then tenant farmers took over.

Ray soon found a job that brought us to what we are today.

In 1994 we both retired. By then, Dad and Mom had passed on.

The buildings and 13 acres were now ours. The children were grown and away. Ray and I appreciated being alone at the farmstead for the first time. We also began spending our winters in Inverness.

We soon started refurbishing our neglected 90-by-60-foot 100-year-old barn. Mom's Money, my inheritance from her, got us started, but the project went far beyond those dollars.

We brought in barn repair specialist from New York for the inside repairs.

Ray reworked the siding then dressed her with fresh paint. We crowned her with a new roof, redid the towering cupola and put in new windows.

We called a family work party where all the children returned home to put new track on for the doors.

We decided to not replace them but let their worn bottoms be symbolic of its bygone years as the center of the farmstead.

I circled it with a rainbow of my beloved hollyhocks. I put scarecrows, Harry and Sally, the watch guards of the farmstead, on its front side.

After six years of dedicated effort, the barn stood prouder than I ever remembered it. There was little note that it sheltered only Ray's classic tractors.

Time passed and our beloved farmstead was becoming a victim of our mature years. Only my pre-

Special to the Chronicle

The barn, complete with hollyhocks and scarecrows Harry and Sally.

cious hollyhocks survived my flowerbed cutbacks.

When Ray's shoulders and back would not give him enough pain-free time to trim a small row of hedges, we knew it was time to sell.

By that time my sister and I sold off the land we owned together. One of the buyers of a large portion of land bought the farmstead because he admired the barn.

And that pleased us very much.

Pledge to be a well woman

What does it mean to be a well woman? It's a state of mind. It's being as healthy as you can be.

And, most importantly, it's about taking steps to improve your physical and mental health.

National Women's Health Week, May 11 to 17, is the perfect time to make a commitment to health and wellness. National Women's Health Week is an observance led by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Office on Women's Health. The goal is to empower women to make their health a priority. It's also a time for health care professionals to help women understand what it means to be well.

Our community offers numerous opportunities to get active and eat healthy.

For example, YMCA of the Suncoast has affordable fitness plans for women of all ages, including the nationally recognized Silver Sneakers program for active older adults (ymcasuncoast.org).

Or, there are the many senior community centers that offer people a place to go for nutritious meals, social activities and an array of programs such as health screenings, health and consumer education, creative arts, computer classes and exercises (bocc.citrus.fl.us).

Improving your physical and mental health is easier than you think.

Just remember:

- Get active.
 - Eat healthy.
 - Get enough sleep and manage stress.
 - Avoid unhealthy behaviors, such as smoking, texting while driving and not wearing a seatbelt or bicycle helmet.
 - Visit a health care professional to receive regular well-woman checkups.
- A well-

Celebrate women's health week

In honor of National Women's Health Week, Seven Rivers Regional presents Girls Night Out – an evening of education, inspiration and relaxation.

Join Dr. Anastasia Solovieva, Dr. Rose Mary Sobel, and Dr. Udaya Kumar at the College of Central Florida Citrus Campus Thursday, May 15, 4:30 to 8 p.m. to learn about leading health concerns of women – like prolapse, incontinence and abnormal bleeding.

Then, enjoy free esthetician consults, eyebrow shaping, paraffin wax hand dips and more.

Registration is required. Call 352-795-1234 to learn more about Girls Night Out.

woman checkup is a time to see your health care provider to:

- Discuss your health habits and family history.
- Get or schedule necessary screenings and exams.
- Set health goals.

Schedule a well-woman visit every year.

It's considered a preventive service and must be covered by most health plans at no cost to you.

During your well-woman visit, you can receive many screenings free of charge, such as screenings for blood pressure, cholesterol, cervical cancer and more. And if your health care provider says you need more than one well-woman visit in a year, the additional visits are also covered.

We hope you will pledge to be a well woman during National Women's Health Week. For daily health tips and links to community activities, visit Facebook.com/SRRMC.

It's great to hear your voice

Wouldn't you think that with all the millions of ways we have to communicate, we would get to talk with our families even more than ever before?

How come that's not working out so well?

Sometimes, I get the feeling that my family is avoiding me. I can't imagine why that would be.

I love the commercial where the guy is standing out in front of the house and he's trying to call his daughter, but when he pushes the buttons, the garage door opens and the sprinklers come on.

It shouldn't be that hard to make a phone call, should it? It's funny, though.

My husband just wants a phone he can make and answer calls on. Of course, you remember my husband is in the non-shopping category of husbands.

He wants "just the basics" and that is what he gets. It's just a step up from a tin can and a string.

I have a brother-in-law who believes computers are the devil's work for sure.

He can get on a rant when you talk about social media and, as far as he is concerned, government and devil are interchangeable. I'm just saying. I have to admit sometimes, simple is definitely better.

With all of that said, and with all the new phones, there is this thing that happens sometimes called "pocket dialing." That's when the phone is in your pocket or purse and the wrong button gets pushed and the phone automatically dials a phone number and you have no idea that your phone is calling someone.

I don't know about you, but I always feel so worthless when I'm the receiver of one of those calls.

Yes, I know I might be just a tad bit sensitive. But, think about it, you answer the phone and you are so glad that someone is calling and then nothing except restaurant or car conversation or they actually say, "I didn't really mean to call you." Which is translated to "I didn't want to talk to you."

Anyway, early in the day recently, I received a call from my daughter-in-law, Angie. I tried to call her back throughout the day, but I kept missing her.

Later that evening I tried again and my son answered her phone. My son informed me that she had dialed my number by mistake!

Mistake! That couldn't be a mistake. I know she wanted to talk to me.

"Nope," he said, it was definitely a mistake. Boy, did I feel let down. I thought she wanted unsolicited advice or, better yet, just wanted to talk to me. Here's the thing. My daughter-in-law missed her chance.

I think if she would have answered, she probably would have said, "Oh yes, I didn't want anything in particular. I just wanted to chat because we haven't talked in a while and because I so enjoy talking to you." That's what I'm talking about.

If only she had picked up instead of my son, that would have been what she would have said and I would never have known the difference. That's my story and I'm sticking with it. See how we can turn something totally accidental into making someone's day?

So, if your phone calls someone all by itself, just say to the person on the other end that you wanted to chat or just hear their voice. Unless it's your attorney or your accountant. They charge big bucks for talking to you. They are always eager to chat for as long as you want.

Whatever happens, keep laughing because "laughter is the best medicine."

Diabetes prevention program slated

By Caitlin Drew
Special to the Chronicle

In the United States alone, diabetes has been responsible for heart disease, strokes, impaired sight, kidney disease and nerve disease. Diabetes is suffered by almost 26 million Americans and, even more shocking, about 79 million adults have prediabetes.

With such a strong focus on the health and the well-being of the community, these statistics allowed the YMCA to partner with the CDC to offer the YMCA's Diabetes Prevention Program.

This program was carefully constructed to allow participants the opportunity to change their lifestyle and lower their risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

Through this program, participants are welcomed into a warm and supportive environment, led by a trained lifestyle coach, where participants can learn new strategies for healthy eating and physical activity.

The program is delivered over a 12-month period, starting with 16 weekly sessions and followed by monthly maintenance. During the program, participants learn how to develop healthier eating habits, increase their physical activity, and make lifestyle changes to improve their overall health and well-being.

To qualify for this program, participants must be at least 18 years of age, overweight and at a high risk of developing type 2 diabetes.

Those who have been diagnosed with prediabetes by their doctor also qualify.

The goals of the Diabetes Prevention Program are to reduce body weight by 7 percent and increase physical activity. The National Institutes of Health's research has proven that programs, like the YMCA's Diabetes Prevention Program, can reduce the number of cases of type 2 diabetes by 58 percent.

Those who are insured by Medicare may be eligible to participate in the Diabetes Prevention Program at no cost. The Y also offers financial assistance to those who qualify.

Preventing falls can be key factor in staying healthy

Tai chi, above, and walking, below, are a couple of ways to build strength and flexibility and increase balance – all which will help to avoid falls.

preventable.

Limited physical activity, loss of muscle strength and flexibility, poor vision, medications, and household hazards can all increase your chances of falling.

Staying active is essential to preventing falls.

Physical activities like walking regularly or tai chi help to maintain or build strength, flexibility and improve balance, allowing you to stay independent longer. If you're not currently exercising, it's never too late to start an exercise program.

See your eye doctor and have your eyes examined yearly. Some forms of vision loss are associated with aging and older adults with vision problems are more than twice as likely to fall compared to someone who has no vision problem. If you are supposed to wear corrective lenses, make sure you wear them.

Medications affect different people in different ways. Any medication can increase your fall risk but some have side effects, such as dizziness, which increases your risk of falling. Talk to your doctor or pharmacist about the medications you are taking to learn about potential side effects and drug interactions.

Eliminate potential household hazards. Perform a home safety check identifying hazards and remove or change potential tripping hazards, clutter, and poor lighting. Staircases should be well lit and have handrails to ensure safety. Grab bars and non-slip mats should be installed in the bathroom.

Older Americans can live longer healthier lives by taking control of their safety. Speak with your doctor and family members about any fall risk concerns you may have. They want to help you reduce your risk of falling and maintain your independence.

DASH eating plan

Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension can help to lower blood pressure

A number of major research studies have shown that following the Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension (DASH) Plan can lower blood pressure.

This plan emphasizes whole grains, fruits, vegetables, fat-free or low-fat dairy, seafood, poultry, beans, seeds, and nuts.

It contains less salt and sodium, sweets, added sugars, fats, and red meats than the typical American eats.

DASH recommendations are spread over eight food groups. If you need to, refer to How many calories do you need?

Then see the appropriate column below for the amounts you should eat each day, unless given as weekly amounts:

DASH is organized by servings for most food groups.

A DASH serving equals:

Grains – one ounce or equivalent

Fruits – half cup cut-up fruit or equivalent

Vegetables – half cup cooked vegetables or equivalent Meats, poultry, and fish - one ounce cooked meats, poultry, or fish or one egg

Nuts, seeds and legumes – foods like two tablespoons peanut butter, third cup or 1-1/2 ounces of nuts, half cup cooked beans, or one cup bean soup

Fats and oils – one teaspoon soft margarine or vegetable oil, one tablespoon mayonnaise, and one tablespoon regular salad dressing or two tablespoons low-fat dressing

Sugars - one tablespoon jam or jelly, half cup regular gelatin, or one cup regular lemonade

Cloud watching

By Ben Kampschroer

Special to the Chronicle

Has the term “cloud” been hanging over your head?

Or perhaps you’re afraid that this new technology might rain on your parade?

Have no fear. The cloud is not nearly as confusing as it might seem at first glance.

In fact, chances are good that you are already using some form of cloud to store some of your data – you just might not know it yet. In any event, cloud technology is becoming more popular and doesn’t seem to be going away any time soon. So, let’s take a quick look at some of the advantages and disadvantages that cloud storage presents.

First, it is probably a good idea to clarify what the cloud is and how it works.

Essentially, when someone refers to the cloud, they are talking about a method of data storage that involves storing files online. Files that are uploaded to the cloud are stored on a host server, which is (simply put) just a powerful series of computers with a huge amount of memory. These host servers are maintained by companies such as Google, Amazon, and Carbonite.

Cloud users are given a user name and password, which allows them to log in to these servers and access their stored files from any computer or wi-fi enabled device.

Many of us are using the cloud already and we may not even know it.

Have you ever uploaded a photo to Facebook, attached a document to your email, or added a video to YouTube? In all these cases, you have taken a file from your computer and uploaded it to a server; now, that file is accessible through the website that you uploaded it to.

There are all kinds of cloud storage services; the ones mentioned previously are geared more towards sharing, but there are others that are more private and can be used for different types of storage.

The main advantage to using cloud storage is the easy access to files that have been uploaded to online servers. In the case of social media, the cloud makes it easy to upload and share your pictures and videos (which is a lot easier that putting that data on multiple DVDs and mailing them to all your friends and family).

Other cloud storage methods, such as Google Drive or Amazon Cloud Drive, offer storage for just about any type of file. Unlike Facebook and YouTube, however, these files are only accessible if you log into the password protected account that uploaded them.

This is useful as a backup for important files; if your computer suddenly sheds its mortal coil, you need only access the cloud from another computer to recover any data that you uploaded. This is similarly useful for keeping important documents handy.

If you are working on a document at the library and have nowhere to save it, you can open up an account with a cloud storage provider, save the document online, and then come back to work on it again another day - all without accidentally letting your storage device go through the laundry.

Of course, there are certain limitations to be aware of when dealing with cloud storage.

One obvious concern is security. For the most part, cloud storage is safe, though there is always the possibility that someone will guess your unique log in information and have access to your files.

The best thing you can do to prevent this is to create a very strong password for any online account you have. Remember that strong passwords contain a mixture of uppercase and lowercase letters, along with numbers and symbols, and should be at least eight characters long (eX@mp1e4U).

Price is also something to consider. Google Drive and Amazon Cloud Drive both offer free storage space, which will usually be enough for most things, but be aware that if you want a great deal of storage space you might need to pay a monthly fee. Also, it is worth noting that what is free now might not be free later.

Citrus County Library System

Finally, cloud computing is completely dependent on internet access. If you spend a great deal of time in places without internet access, you might want to keep that in mind when deciding to keep data in the cloud.

I won’t torture you with any further cloud puns, but I will mention that cloud computing is worth a try. If you are interested in sharing pictures or just backing up some important files (so that you won’t lose them), the cloud might be an easy and cost effective tactic.

Many Citrus County residents find the joy of their retirement right outside their door

By Rochelle Kaiser
Chronicle

Everything is coming up roses, along with petunias, lettuce, beans and so much more around the home of Bill and Gisele Mountain.

Their variety of individual gardens are a great example of how many local retirees enjoy spend their days.

The Mountains purchased their home 10 years ago, along with the lot next door, after moving to Florida from New Hampshire, where they cultivated their gardening techniques. In New Hampshire the two owned a large greenhouse where they grew vegetables and herbs which they sold to nearby restaurants and stores.

It's these gardening talents and Bill's welding skills that has turned their ordinary yard into a relaxing oasis complete with water fountains, a running brook and brick pathway that takes visitors from a large garden of roses, through a vine covered trellis, past the ginger, around eggplants and over to the petunias and rows of corn.

If it's a vegetable, chances are it's already in the ground and surrounded by flowers at the

One of several fountains built by Bill Mountain sits in a rose garden created by Gisele Mountain.

Mountain's home.

"We have always loved to garden," said Gisele.

For those with or without a green thumb, Gisele recommends starting small, which is what they did years ago when they moved in.

There was an area that wouldn't grow so they decided to start planting flowers and a few vegetables there. Bill added one of his handmade birdhouses to dress up the area.

Once that area was established Gisele moved over to another area nearby planting ginger, a few more plants and outlined the area with flowering petunias and snapdragons. In turn, Bill added another birdhouse.

"I just love the smell of ginger," said Gisele.

As the years went by, individual gardens kept popping up and so did the selection of herbs, vegetables and plants. Bill continued making birdhouses for each garden and, as a retired welder, he's added a few metal animals. Different sizes of cats and a large chicken protect the home while a large crow and praying mantis are nearby guarding their lush gardens.

The Mountains began planting their gardens in late February and early March.

Gisele likes to stagger her planting so not all flowers and vegetables are ready at the same time.

They eat everything they plant. They currently have a long list of vegetables sprouting up including eggplant, radishes, onions, beets, wax beans, garlic, cilantro, celery, lettuce, bokchoy, butternut squash, rutabaga, potatoes, summer squash, cucumbers and corn.

Flowering bushes and annuals are planted in between offering a variety of color and edging.

The secret to their flourishing garden is staying away from harsh chemicals, preferring to rely on horse manure to do the job.

Between the gardens Bill has put in a pond that Gisele landscaped. A little further over Bill added a real running brook.

"This is my favorite place. It's so relaxing," said Gisele.

As a retired welder, Bill Mountain designed and created a praying mantis that stands guard over the gardens.

And just around the corner Bill added another waterfall in the middle of a large rose garden that started out small and grew quickly to encompass a long flow of flowering red and pink roses.

"I started out with only five bushes. I just kept taking clippings and rooting them," said Gisele.

Those five rose bushes are now dozens of rose bushes with a colorful array of buds and flowers.

A set of three bird houses watch over the garden.

Now Gisele is currently preparing an area of soil that will become her new herb garden.

"It's time to put everyone where they belong," she said.

Right now she feels the herbs are restricted and cannot spread out.

She removes the baby herbs as they spread so they don't crowd themselves and other nearby plants. And she wants to try her hand at planting heirloom tomatoes.

"I'm growing new pepper plants that will produce green, yellow and red peppers. I don't know how that will work, but it will be interesting to see," she said.

Each garden area is growing nicely and every plant has its place whether it's a flower or a vegetable.

What few areas where the ground is exposed will soon fill in as everything grows. Gisele figures in a few months there won't be any exposed ground.

"And I just planted pumpkins. This is my first try at growing them," she said.

Jim Harris planted onions last November and they are just about ready to be pulled. Harris figures by the end of the month he, and a few of his neighbors, will be enjoying fresh onions for most of the summer.

"I planted 100 onion plants this year," he said.

Harris is experimenting with garden boxes. He's tried to grow vegetables in the ground but he says his soil is too salty since he lives on a canal to the Homosassa River.

Exactly what is a Reverse Mortgage?

- ▶ A Reverse Mortgage is a government insured loan program, available only to those who are 62 or older which allows them to turn the equity in their homes into cash. You receive cash for 50% to 70% of the appraisal value of your house and do not have to pay it back in your lifetime.
- ▶ A Reverse Mortgage Loan allows you to maintain the ownership of your home while accessing your equity, without requiring any monthly mortgage payment. Yes it's true! You will never be required to make a monthly mortgage payment as long as you occupy the home as your primary residence and remain current on property taxes and homeowner's insurance.

Today's senior homeowner faces more difficult challenges than at any other time in recent history. Financial pressures throughout the economy have forced both seniors and their trusted advisors to make different decisions regarding homes, finances and the ability to maintain financial independence than were originally planned.

Living here in Citrus county allows me a special insight into the dreams, goals and needs, of our county's senior citizens (being one myself also helps). Living independently and financial certainty are two important considerations for most seniors. Using a Reverse Mortgage to help achieve these goals, simply makes good sense.

Above: Deedra Harris, not shown, grows her herbs closer to the house. The thick rosemary bush on the left is fragrant and offers a nice flavor for foods while the blueberry bush on the right offers a sweet treat.

Right: By making his own compost, Jim Harris is able to keep his vegetables moist and saves money while doing it.

Gardening

above ground. Harris filled these boxes with regular yellow sand. He then plants his vegetables and fertilizes. Altogether, he has four boxes that are 5 feet by 10 feet and one that is 6 feet by 12 feet. All of them are approximately 2 to 3 feet deep.

"Last year we had more tomatoes than we could eat and raised enough green beans to last all year long. The year before we had enough turnip greens and mustard greens to last all year," said Harris.

Soon he will harvest Vidalia onions, sweet onions and scallions. A stray pepper plant from last year is surprisingly doing quite well. But he's disappointed he didn't get his tomato plants in sooner. He's hoping the plants will last long enough to provide some tomatoes before the heat gets to them.

On the other side of the yard, his wife Deedra grows flowers and herbs. She has several large rosemary bushes that are extremely fragrant, along with blueberry bushes, sage plants and a variety of beautiful red amaryllis. Her colorful orchids have attached themselves perfectly in the crevasses of trees. One orchid plant is preparing to bloom soon.

Harris even makes his own compost by using the large abundance of free oak leaves, compliments of all the trees in his yard.

"I rake them and put them through a mulcher. This helps the leaves to compost quicker. It also helps to keep the water from evaporating too quickly. And the cost is right," he said.

If it's a flower, a plant or a bush, Pattie Steck probably has one growing in her yard. She will impress even the most experienced gardener with her knowledge and can provide the name of every plant in her yard.

"I'm from New York. Gardening here is so much different than it is up north so I've tried to learn as much as I can about what works well here," she said.

Steck has several gardens through out the front yard, side yards and back yard. She has some well established flower beds and she has several experiments going on too.

A walk around her yard reveals knockout roses, oak leaf crotons, hibiscus, European fan palms, geraniums, southern magnolia, sweet vibernum, lily of the Nile, society garlic and so many other plants.

She has found many of the plants in her yard at Howard's Flea Market.

"The people there are very knowledgeable and have been very helpful," said Steck.

Steck has many succulents potted in containers. She lines them up near the concrete wall of her home. Since these plants will freeze during winter months she's learned if she keeps them near the wall they fair better. The concrete wall absorbs heat during the day, then at night, the wall radiates the heat back onto her plants, which helps to protect them from the cold.

Steck has one flower bed that contains a variety of different non-flowering plants, preferring to mix and match plants with different-colored leaves.

She has a cactus container garden with a variety of different cacti that offer big yellow flowers and smaller pink flowers.

"I keep them in containers so I can easily move them if I need to. One of the cac-tuses has needles that resemble fish hooks. If you get one of those in your finger it's going to be difficult to get it out," said Steck.

Her newest gardening attempt is a water garden container. She has selected a variety of water plants that she keeps in a container. She prefers container gardening since they are easy to move anywhere she wants.

"I just love gardening and being out in the yard all day. When it starts getting real hot I come out real early in the morning," she said.

She's now waiting to see if her irises and Brazilian purple sage will attract butterflies and hummingbirds.

ROCHELLE KAISER/Chronicle

Brilliant red-colored roses line a pathway to Patti Steck's front door.

ROCHELLE KAISER/Chronicle

Pattie Steck holds an agastache plant that produces light purple flowers. This is a new plant for Steck and hopes it will continue doing well in her side yard.

Not so lovable love bugs

By B.J. Jarvis

Special to the Chronicle

Yes, it is nearly love bug season again. Love bugs are mating adult insects that fly around during the day making a gardener's life miserable.

Twice each year, the little critters emerge from the ground to mate. In the process, they can wreck paint, smear the windshield and gross us out in the garden or at the gas pumps.

Typically, we see these critters flying two-by-two. The larger of the two-some is female, which also serves as pilot for the team. She may drag her smaller mate around for up to 12 hours before dumping him for another love bug. After mating, the female can lay up to 600 eggs in decaying matter such as a manure pile or on leaf litter, before dying. After the minute eggs hatch, the larvae spend about half a year feeding on decaying matter before emerging as an adult.

Starting just after a good rainfall in early May, the black and red insects emerge from the soil, climb high up a branch and take flight.

While their numbers are large and somewhat reminiscent of a horror movie, don't worry.

Love bugs do not bite, sting or transmit disease. But when inadvertently smashed on the front of a car, acidic insect remains can eat away at the paint. Making matters worse, they are attracted to the smell of fuel and exhaust, so look out for an invasion on the highways, too.

So where do unlovable love bugs come from?

Lots of folk lore exists about their origin but most scientists agree that this tiny insect migrated from Central or South America more than 50 years ago, possibly hitching rides on cargo ships.

Since introduction, love bugs quickly spread throughout the warm-weather Gulf States.

Green Gardening

see Bugs Page 15

Bugs

Extermination has proven to be an impractical option. Over the years, numerous attempts have been made to try to eradicate these mating insect couples to no avail.

An additional consideration is that pesticides can also kill beneficial insects such as pollinating bees and butterflies.

Here are five tips to survive the love bug season, which lasts about four weeks.

- Start with a good coat of car wax. Slicker surfaces makes it easier to remove insect remains.
- Wash or wipe affected areas of the car regularly to minimize paint pitting, preferably within 24 hours.
- Install a screen or bug deflector.
- Love bugs love the daytime heat. When practical, drive at night.
- Looking for a good excuse to put off that home improvement project? Fresh house paint emits a fragrance that actually attracts these insects in large numbers, which can ultimately stick to the newly painted surface.

While the weather is nice this spring, keep the hose and scrubber handy and find a healthy dose of patience to survive the unlovable "Love Bug Season."

May gardening calendar

What to plant

Annuals: Plants that can take summer heat include salvia, torenia, wax begonia, coleus and ornamental pepper.

Bulbs: Some lilies do better when their roots are crowded. Try planting Amazon, Aztec and clivia lilies in containers to increase blooming.

Herbs: Plant heat-loving herbs, including basil, Mexican tarragon and rosemary.

Vegetables: There are only a few vegetables that tolerate the summer heat. Don't be surprised if tomatoes, peppers and other spring vegetables perish during summer's heat. Southern favorites to plant in May for summer are okra, Southern pea and sweet potato.

What to do

Pests: Harmful insects become more active as the weather warms. Watch for thrips, scale and mites on ornamental plants.

Gardenias: While some yellowing of older leaves is normal, yellowing of new growth usually indicates a micronutrient deficiency.

Oleanders: Chewed or ragged leaves indicate oleander caterpillars. Use an environmentally safe product that works only on caterpillars, called B.t. – sold often as either Dipel or Thuricide.

Tomatoes: Watch for pests, disease and nutritional disorders on tomato plants.

Prevent lawn diseases: Prevent or minimize disease by following proper cultural practices when caring for lawns. Water only when necessary. The best time to irrigate is early morning to reduce fungus development.

Trees: Prepare for hurricane season by checking trees for damaged or weak branches and prune if needed. Hire an ISA-certified arborist.

An excavation at Mission San Luis.

Time travel, escape and unwind at Mission San Luis

A visit to Mission San Luis in Tallahassee transports you back to 1703, to a community where Apalachee Indians and newcomers from Spain lived together.

Hear the ring of the blacksmith's hammer, smell traditional foods being cooked over an open fire, and walk the plaza where the Apalachees played their traditional ball games. Experience the largest historic-period Indian building found in the southeast and greet the friar at the church.

Learn about a soldier's life at the fort, and explore 300-year-old artifacts excavated onsite.

Or just enjoy the beautiful outdoor setting with a picnic lunch or nature walk.

What is Mission San Luis?

From 1656 to 1704, San Luis served as the principal village of the Apalachees and was the Spaniards' westernmost military, religious, and administrative capital.

Mission

Mission San Luis was one of over 100 mission settlements established in Spanish Florida between the 1560s and 1690s.

It was home to more than 1,400 residents, including a powerful Apalachee chief and the Spanish deputy governor.

In recognition of its historical significance, San Luis received designation as a National Historic Landmark in 1960. Today Mission San Luis is the only reconstructed Spanish mission in Florida.

As a living history museum it is devoted to sharing the stories of its former Apalachee and Spanish residents.

Mission San Luis

Address: 2100 West Tennessee St., Tallahassee

Hours: Tuesday – Sunday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Closed on Mondays, New Year's Day, Easter, July 4, Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Day

Admission: Adults – $5; Seniors (65 and older) – $3; Children (6-17) – $2; Active Duty Military – free with ID; Friends members – free

Amenities: Picnic tables, 1/3-mile ravine nature trail, pets on leashes permitted

Artifacts and history

Visit the exhibit gallery, where the history of this 17th-century western capital of Spanish Florida is interpreted.

See replicated archaeological profiles, a three-dimensional topographic site map, and Apalachee and Spanish artifacts discovered at Mission San Luis over decades of archaeology.

Colonial art and artifacts

Also on display in the exhibit gallery are period devotional objects in the Roman Catholic tradition, including santos (three-dimensional carved figures) and retablos (two-dimensional flat panels/enclosures on which images of saints were painted).

Similar items were probably used in the altarpiece of the 17th-century mission church.

How Medicare covers eyes

Dear Savvy Senior,

What does Medicare cover when it comes to eye care? I currently have good vision insurance through my employer but will lose it when I retire.

Looking Ahead

Dear Looking,

Many retirees are confused with what Medicare does and doesn't cover when it comes to eye care. The good news is that Medicare covers most medical issues like cataract surgery, treatment of eye diseases and medical emergencies. But unfortunately, routine care like eye exams and eyeglasses are usually the beneficiary's responsibility.

Here's a breakdown of how original Medicare covers your eyes, along with some tips that can help you reduce your out-of-pocket costs.

Exams: Routine eye exams that test for eyeglasses or contact lenses are usually not covered under Medicare, but you are entitled to a yearly medical eye exam if you have diabetes or are at high risk for glaucoma. Medicare will also pay for exams to test and treat medical eye diseases and other problems like macular degeneration, dry eye syndrome, eye infections or if you get something in your eye.

Eyeglasses and contact lenses: Medicare does not pay for eyeglasses or contact lenses, with one exception: If you have had a conventional intraocular lens inserted during cataract surgery, Medicare will pay for eyeglasses or contact lenses following the operation.

To find affordable eye exams or eyeglasses, many retailers provide discounts – between 10 and 30 percent – if you belong to a membership group like AARP or AAA.

Walmart Vision Centers and For Eyes Optical offer low prices, too, with no required membership.

You can also save big by buying your glasses online. To purchase glasses online you'll need your prescription and pupillary distance from an exam, and your frame size.

Eye surgeries:

Medicare covers most eye surgeries including cataract surgery to remove cataracts and insert standard intraocular lenses to replace your own.

Medicare will not, however, pick up the extra cost if you choose a specialized lens that restores full range of vision, thereby reducing your need for glasses after cataract surgery.
