SCR gets OK to run harvester

A.B. SIDIBE
Staff writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — An official with Save Crystal River Inc. said the whir of mechanical harvesters hired by the group is set to begin in King's Bay on Monday following an OK to do so by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The Corps' go-ahead ends more than a year-long period of wrangling over the proper conduct of mechanical harvesting in the bay.

"You can only imagine how we feel after a year and three agencies later," said Steve Lamb, vice president of SCR.

"But the important thing is we will get to go about cleaning the bay and doing it right and in a way that would not be harmful," he added.

Lamb's SCR and the Save the Manatee Club have been locked in a battle over permits and the cleanup ever since a harvester hired by SCR in March of 2013 was observed by witnesses causing excessive turbidity (cloudiness) and seemingly scraping the bottom of the bottom of the bay to remove Lyngbya, a filamentous algae.

Monday CONVERSATION

Catching up with a rising star

Actor maintains community ties

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

He's been called Hollywood's newest "It Boy," a rapidly rising star, the hardest-working young actor today.

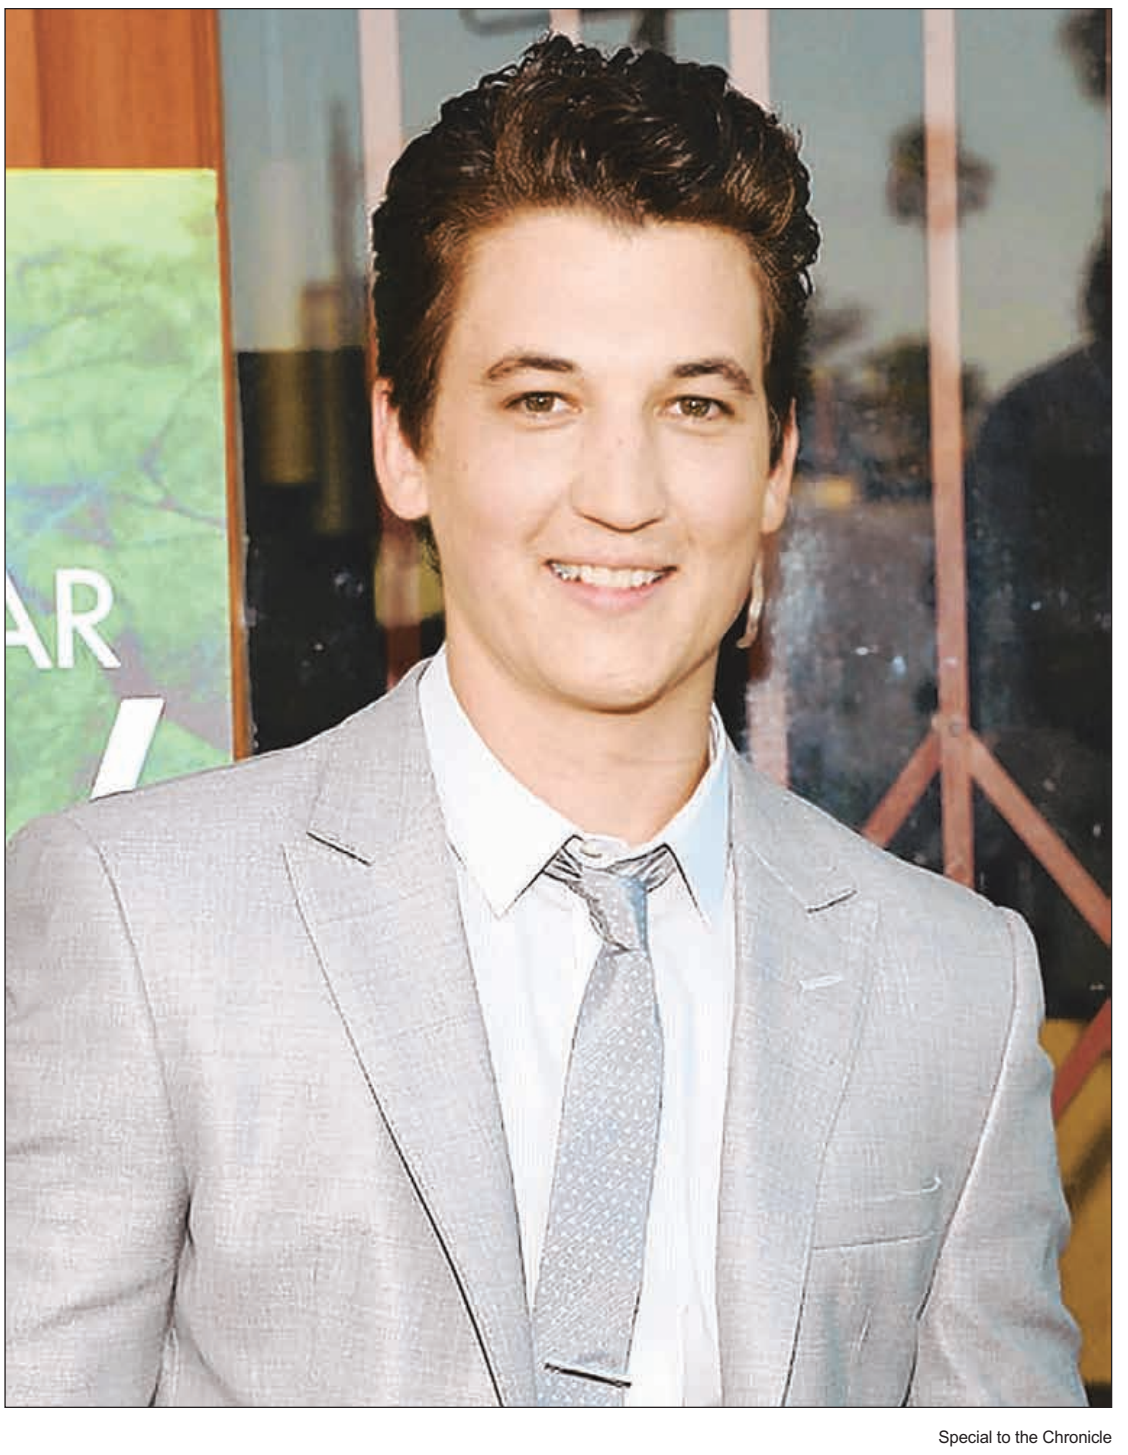
At 27, Miles Teller has more than 10 movies under his belt, beginning with "Rabbit Hole" opposite Nicole Kidman — hand-picked by Kidman — in which he plays a teenager who hits and kills Kidman's 4-year-old son with his car.

He's an aspiring jazz drummer in "Whiplash," which premiered at the Sundance Film Festival this past January and is at the Cannes Film Festival this month, and a troubled high school party boy in "The Spectacular Now" — the role that won him (and co-star Shailene Woodley) the Dramatic Special Jury Award for Acting at Sundance in 2013.

He's done "bro" movies, been a guest on Letterman and attended the Video Music and MTV Movie Awards. In "Divergent," his latest movie and the first of three futuristic movies based on a YA (young adult) trilogy, he plays a villain.

Most recently, Teller was named to play Mr. Fantastic/Reed Richards in "The Fantastic Four" and "The Fantastic Four 2," boxer Vinny Pazienza in the Martin Scorsese film "Bleed for This" and Dan Aykroyd in an untitled movie about the late John Belushi.

Recently, the 2005 Lecanto High School graduate and son of Citrus Hills residents Mike and Merry Teller took time out of his whirlwind schedule to talk with the Chronicle about what he's been up to.



Special to the Chronicle

Miles Teller, called "one of the hardest-working young actors in Hollywood today," calls Citrus County home. The 2005 Lecanto High School graduate's newest movie out is the futuristic "Divergent," in which he plays a villain opposite his "The Spectacular Now" co-star Shailene Woodley. To date, Teller has completed more than 10 movies — and counting.

CHRONICLE: What's it like living in L.A. with all the traffic — and earthquakes?

TELLER: Yeah, the traffic's not my favorite part. I moved out here in 2009, after I did "Rabbit Hole," with two of my buddies from high school. My buddy Joe works in finance and my buddy Rob works in a bar and does some acting.

As for earthquakes, the one we just had wasn't too bad. The thing is, it's scary initially because you're not sure how big it's going to be. But in retrospect, it wasn't much.

CHRONICLE: I hear you can cook. Did your mom teach you?

TELLER: My mom's a great cook, and I've always been around the kitchen. Actually, I learned to cook at a cooking camp when I was younger, and I can make a lot of stuff, but right now I'm on a pretty strict diet for the boxing movie I'll be doing later this summer. So, I'm wrapping everything in lettuce, lots of turkey burgers in lettuce, a lot of grilled chicken.

CHRONICLE: No In-N-Out burgers (a popular California fast food burger chain)?

TELLER: I love In-N-Out Burger! My first cheat meal was In-N-Out Burger.

CHRONICLE: Tell me about Citrus County. You moved here when you were 13 — did you go to the Roller Barn and the county fair and all that?

TELLER: Actually, the first time I ever went to the Roller Barn was for a friend's 18th birthday. I used to go to Manatee Lanes a lot, and of course the fair. I remember we'd get a half a day off from school for it.

CHRONICLE: And you were a drummer?

TELLER: I was. I drummed for a youth group at the Nazarene church in Hernando

NRC wants more details on decommissioning

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has requested more information from Duke Energy on cost estimates and spent fuel management for decommissioning the Crystal River nuclear plant.

The agency is reviewing the company's Post-Shutdown Decommissioning Activities Report (PSDAR) submitted in December.

The report includes a description and a schedule for decommissioning activities and their estimated cost. It also includes a discussion of why any anticipated environmental impacts have already been reviewed in previous reports on the plant.

As submitted, the report calls for the decommissioning process to be completed in 2074. It includes a decommissioning description, cost estimate and schedule. It also includes a management strategy for storing used nuclear fuel on site.

The company believes its existing decommissioning trust fund and the fund's future growth — coupled with funds from the plant's nine other owners — will be sufficient to cover the cost of approximately $1.18 billion.

This includes approximately $265 million for spent fuel management, $862 million for license termination and $52 million for site restoration. Duke is responsible for about 98 percent of the total costs.

The decommissioning figures do not include construction costs of approximately $94 million for

Duke seeks more time for coal units

PAT FAHERTY
Staff writer

Duke Energy Florida is planning on spending approximately $30 million to keep its oldest Crystal River coal burning plants in service through mid-2018.

Last month, Duke filed a petition with the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) to recover anticipated environmental costs from ratepayers to keep the plants running.

The two plants, CR 1 and CR 2, have been operating since the late 1960s and have been scheduled for retirement.

The company has evaluated alternatives and determined CR 1 and 2 would require more than $1 billion of additional emission control systems to meet the national Mercury Air Toxics Standards Rule (MATS) as standalone units.

However, the two other Crystal River coal-burning units are within the MATS limits. So, Duke wants to use the site-wide averaging provisions of MATS along with alternative coal and the addition of less expensive pollution controls, according to the petition.

Last week, the NBA banned Donald Sterling (Los Angeles Clippers owner) for life and fined him $2.5 million for making racial comments. ... Too harsh? Not harsh enough? What are your thoughts?

Debbie Hoffman Sosnicki

If you are in a position of power you have to watch what you say or it can (and will) come back to bite you. Racism has no place in society.

Bignavy Steve

Not harsh enough is not a matter of opinion because the penalty was the maximum allowable by the NBA.

John Pepe

I don't agree with what he said. That said, it seems like a set-up. He got what the league was able to give him. Not too harsh, but no 1st Amendment rights.

Jay Parker

It was a private conversation that never should've been out in the public. I think the punishment is too harsh.

the dry cask facility for storing spent fuel on site.

NRC staff developed its request for additional information based on public comments. The agency held a January meeting in Crystal River to solicit public input on the decommissioning process.

While the NRC does not have to approve the PSDAR, it reviews the report to determine if it meets regulatory requirements.

The agency is questioning where the additional funds will come from if the Duke trust fund does not cover the cost of completing decommissioning. It also questioned how the funds will be allocated.

Regarding spent nuclear fuel, NRC is questioning Duke's assumption as to when the U.S. Department of Energy will assume control of the spent fuel.

"Receiving requests for additional information from the NRC is common in the nuclear industry," explained Duke Energy Florida spokeswoman Heather Danenhower. "Because we have been keeping in close contact with the NRC, we expected to receive questions and comments on our Post-PSDAR as part of the normal process.

"This is a good sign and indicates that we are progressing through the NRC process."

With four nuclear power plants closed in 2013 and another scheduled to shut down later this year, the NRC has posted a YouTube video explaining decommissioning.

In its recently released 2013 Sustainability Report, Duke listed adverse issues surrounding the Crystal River nuclear plant issue as a factor contributing to declines in customer satisfaction scores.

HARVESTER

Save the Manatee Club Executive Director Patrick Rose said at the time the harvesting that was observed amounted to dredging and posed a harmful threat to the bay. He said that is not the kind of permit SCR applied for, therefore demanded they seek the right permit and stop harming the bay. Rose ended up challenging the permit after he said several overtures to SCR to talk about the proper and legal way to clean an Outstanding Florida Waterway were rejected.

The two sides later inked a cleanup regime deal that called for the use of a bubbler bar, turbidity screens and not going into the sediment to remove Lyngbya.

That deal eventually fizzled and SCR sought another permit from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection. However, because of language in that permit that included dredging, the Corps stepped in and said it was the arbiter agency in things dealing with dredging.

But SCR invited Corps personnel April 24 to a demonstration of how they planned to conduct the cleanup in the canals of King's Bay. The group insisted it did not desire to dredge in the canals and employed the use of a bubbler bar.

The Corps staff also observed "that the bubbler bar, which emits compressed air, is attached to the front of the harvester conveyor belt where the harvester's cutting blade is typically located. The harvester operator then lowered the bubbler bar below the surface of the water where the compressed air emitted from the bubbler bar loosened and re-suspended the algal material."

The Corps also noted its representatives saw very little turbidity during that demonstration and decided to give SCR the green light to proceed.

SCR said the demonstrations it conducted for DEP and the Corps have been the way they always intended to conduct the cleanup and blamed the misstep by the previous harvester operators on inexperienced crews.

Rose said Friday he has always been supportive of any cleanup in King's Bay, but that he only insisted on doing it properly.

"I am sure a lot of people will be watching this and I hope they stick to how they did it during the demonstration. If they continue to do it like they have shown in the demonstration, I am all for that and have been all along," Rose said.

"Also, I want to let people know that harvesting has been going on in King's Bay all this time. The county has been doing it and they have been doing it properly. The amount of harvesting they have done lately has probably been the heaviest I have ever seen done in that bay," Rose said.

COAL

"If approved by the PSC, it would allow us to burn a coal that has lower sulfur, mercury and chlorides," said Duke Energy spokesman Sterling Ivy. "If we also receive an extension of our MATS permit, we will retire CR 1 and 2 in 2018 when new federal regulations are in place prohibiting the continued use of CR 1 and 2."

He explained the extension is necessary to continue using the plants.

The Sierra Club filed with PSC asserting Duke should retire the plants in 2016. It stated: Duke has not fully accounted for the costs of continued operation of CR 1, Duke has failed to account for energy efficiency helping to meet load requirements in the absence of CR 1 and 2, and Duke has given "short shrift" to renewable resources.

The PSC discounted those arguments and stated Duke's plan will save an estimated $300 million, compared to retiring the units in 2016.

Kittens, pups spring up at shelter

More foster care needed

CHRIS VAN ORMER
Staff writer

LECANTO — Fostering a pet from the county's animal shelter is becoming its temporary caregiver, is not a trial adoption and is usually emotionally draining.

Thus, Billie Lombardo, Citrus County Animal Services volunteer coordinator, warned a group of about 20 animal advocates at a training session last week that help is needed for all the surrendered and stray pets, and those who offer help should brace themselves for the tasks.

"What you do as a foster is give our pets a chance to do a lot of things," Lombardo said. "A chance to heal; a chance to socialize; a chance to get big enough to become somebody's pet. We get a lot of tiny kittens and puppies."

Spring is the season when the shelter gets inundated with offspring.

"Right now it's spring," Lombardo said. "What that means to us at the shelter is: Welcome the puppies and the kitties. We went from a very low census right after Christmas — under 40 — to right now we have over 200 dogs and cats in the shelter. We are bursting at the seams."

HOW TO HELP

- Anyone interested in offering foster care should email Billie.lombardo@bocc.citrus.fl.us or call 352-746-8408.

About 30 volunteers currently are fostering some of the animals that have special needs requiring more attention. Puppies and kittens need someone to wean them from the mother, take responsibility for their medical needs and socialize them by playing with them.

Some pets enter the shelter needing surgery and afterward require convalescence time. Or perhaps an animal has a chronic condition such as epilepsy. Some animals are surrendered when they become elderly and have geriatric medical requirements.

As these animals can't be expected to appeal quickly to adopters because of their needs, foster care helps them recover quicker to become adoptable, while also freeing space at the shelter for an animal that can be adopted immediately.

"It's not a trial adoption," Lombardo said. "We've had people say, 'Well, can I just take him home for a couple of days and see how it goes?' It's hard on the animal to do that. We encourage fosters to not think of it as a trial adoption."

However, some foster caregivers decide to adopt the animal, but doing so was not the original intent. Many who do so consider whether they have resources to continue to offer foster care.

The foster care giver also must "market" the animal by taking it to the shelter's adoption events when it is well enough to be adopted.

Animal services offers support and medication for those in the foster program. Anyone interested in offering foster care should contact Lombardo at Billie.lombardo@bocc.citrus.fl.us or call 352-746-8408.

'Spider-Man 2' ropes in $92M opening

NEW YORK — Spider-Man can still sling it at the box office.

"The Amazing Spider-Man 2" debuted with $92 million in North American theaters over the weekend, according to studio estimates Sunday. It was a solid opening for Sony's Columbia Pictures, which has released five movies about Marvel's web-slinging superhero in the past 14 years.

The release of "The Amazing Spider-Man 2" essentially kicks off Hollywood's summer season and its annual parade of sequels and spectacle. Marvel movies have regularly commenced summer moviegoing in recent years, and the "Spider-Man 2" opening begins the season with a business-as-usual blockbuster performance.

Last week's No. 1 film, the female revenge comedy "The Other Woman," starring Cameron Diaz, slid to a distant second with $14 million in its second weekend.

The rebooted "Spider-Man" franchise starring Andrew Garfield and Emma Stone isn't performing quite as strongly as Sam Raimi's trilogy with Tobey Maguire. On opening weekends, the Raimi films grossed, in order: $114.1 million, $88.2 million and $151.1 million.

The "The Amazing Spider-Man," also directed by Marc Webb, opened on a Tuesday in 2012, making $62 million on its debut weekend and $137 million over its first six days.

In two weeks, Warner Bros. opens the highly anticipated monster movie "Godzilla."

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at U.S. and Canadian theaters, according to Rentrak. Final domestic figures will be released today.

1. "The Amazing Spider-Man 2," $92 million.
2. "The Other Woman," $14 million.
3. "Heaven Is for Real," $8.7 million.
4. "Captain America: The Winter Soldier," $7.8 million.
5. "Rio 2," $7.6 million.
6. "Brick Mansions," $3.5 million.
7. "Divergent," $2.2 million.
8. "The Quiet Ones," $2 million.
9. "God's Not Dead," $1.8 million.
10. "The Grand Budapest Hotel," $1.7 million.

Fox: Naya Rivera to remain on 'Glee'

LOS ANGELES — Naya Rivera is still a Gleek.

"There is no truth to the rumor Naya has been fired from the show," the Fox network noted in a statement released to The Associated Press on Saturday night, which concluded, "She remains under contract to 'Glee.'"

Rivera plays Santana Lopez, a lesbian glee club member, on the popular musical drama.

Before "Glee" actress Lea Michele arrived Saturday morning at the premiere of her latest film, the animated "Legends of Oz: Dorothy's Return," a publicist for Michele said her client would not comment on co-star Rivera, the subject of numerous rumors and reports over the past week.

Naya Rivera

But Michele did reveal "Glee" had its fifth-season wrap gathering Friday night.

It's been a difficult year for the series' cast and crew, in the wake of the July 2013 overdose death of actor Cory Monteith, who had been romantically linked to Michele.

The show's fifth-season finale is set to air stateside May 13. Show co-creator Ryan Murphy has said the series' sixth season will be its last.

ACADEMIC SUPERSTARS

County's student scholars are amazing achievers

A prevailing perception held by many Americans is that our youths are aimless and our public schools a failure.

Locally, the reality is that great things are happening in our county schools and, as noted by Citrus County superintendent of schools Sandra "Sam" Himmel, "There is plenty of hope in this world because of students like ours in Citrus County."

THE ISSUE:
Golden Scholar Awards program

OUR OPINION:
Great things are happening in our county schools.

This reality is attested to each year by the amazing individual achievements of Citrus County's graduating seniors recognized by the Golden Scholar Awards program. Hosted jointly by the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce, Citrus County Chronicle and the Rotary Clubs of Citrus County, 31 students — 10 from each of the district's three high schools and one from the Academy of Environmental Science — were recently honored.

Illustrative of these amazing achievers' commitment to excellence, the group of student scholars included a National Merit Scholar finalist and a student with a perfect math score on the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT).

Also among the select group was a student involved with the Florida Foster Care system who received a special Perseverance Award for overcoming a multitude of obstacles to distinguish herself in the academic and arts arenas.

Although these academic superstars are self-directed, goal-oriented and fully dedicated to preparing themselves for life's challenges, they could not have attained their remarkable accomplishments without a supportive network of parents, school officials, teachers, counselors, business owners and civic organizations encouraging them to settle for nothing less than realizing their full potential.

Given the tendency of human nature to focus on what's wrong rather than what's right, the annual Golden Scholars program, as well as the annual high school and JROTC awards ceremonies, are an important reminder that great things are happening in our county schools.

We, as a community, should not only take pride in the noteworthy academic accomplishments of these student scholars, but also offer our appreciation to the dedicated school officials and teachers who have provided them with a learning environment where excellence is nurtured.

As these student scholars head off for new academic mountains to conquer, we commend their individual achievements, wish them continued success and hope they will return to our community some day to make it an even better place to live, work and raise a family.

Could've saved bears

I am a concerned citizen. God made the Earth for us to live in and enjoy our life forever, but it seems we are destroying people, killing people, destroying land, water, animals, trees, birds. What I read the other day really made me sad. You killed six bears. There was no need of that. You could have collared them and kept them somewhere else they could live their lives.

Other choices

I don't know why people are going on and on about this Marguerita Grill restaurant. I mean, big deal — it's a restaurant. Obviously the guy hasn't got the money or he doesn't want to finish it. The people act like that's the only place in this world to eat. There's a lot of good restaurants in Citrus County. ... So I mean, you know, get a life. If he wants to build it, he'll build it. If he doesn't, either go to another restaurant or eat at home, I guess, is your choice.

Missing jet theory

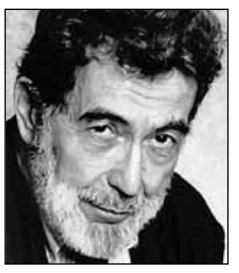
A Sound-Off-er suggests that Flight 370 out of Malaysia was captured by an alien aircraft from another planet. Along those lines, I suggest that it flew to Myanmar; formerly Burma, landed safely, and the passengers are now enslaved.

Don't drain the aquifer

Well, Mr. Mulligan likes to point to the coastal areas as being the problem when the Florida aquifer is underneath almost a third of the state of Florida. Septic tanks inland are a pollution source 20 miles from the coast and pollute just as much as a house on a canal. And if your septic tank is current and up to the new codes, you should be left alone. A blind man could see the problem with our rivers, Homosassa, Crystal River. Amazingly, there are barnacles all the way down to the springs now. Ten years ago there were no barnacles. There's saltwater creatures living in the Blue Waters now. That means a reduced flow of fresh water. That's what's killing our rivers. All the other stuff is in the periphery. We must stop the pumping of the aquifer, but the politicians will never do that because that's tax money. But we need desalinization or other sources of fresh water. We can't just keep pulling it out of the aquifer because that's what's killing the rivers. Quit talking about anything else.

Powerful force teaching students the very essence of being Americans

During the continuously explosive debates about education reform and teacher evaluation, no mention has been made by the media in all its forms of a persistently effective national teaching force in enabling college students to know how to become self-governing Americans for the rest of their lives.



Nat Hentoff
OTHER VOICES

Nor have I previously identified the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education as not only a foremost civil rights and civil liberties leader, but also as an educational leader in truly Americanizing American colleges — an education American students almost never get in their classes.

I have, of course, often cited another such tirelessly liberating educational force, John Whitehead's Rutherford Institute. However, I focus now on the future impact of FIRE being primarily responsible for the first ever U.S. state, Virginia, to bring full college students' First Amendment rights to all outdoor areas of university campuses there instead of tiny "free speech zones."

Nor is FIRE finished helping the Bill of Rights take root in more colleges as it works to guarantee all such students the right to a lawyer when charged with offenses — as it has already successfully accomplished in North Carolina.

Instrumental in the first two victories, as well as the current Virginia campaign, is Joe Cohn, FIRE's legislative and policy director.

To get a full sense of how Cohn operates, here he is on another James Madison-style expedition, this time to my home state of Massachusetts, as he writes legislator Sen. Michael Moore and Rep. Tom Sannicandro in support of a bill to provide "university students facing serious, non-academic disciplinary charges the right to be represented by an attorney."

Here is what Joe Cohn starkly told those legislators about what is happening to students there charged with "theft, harassment, assault, drug and weapons possession, stalking and rape." Until this bill is passed, Cohn said, students "will continue to be forced to represent themselves — alone — against experienced and professionally trained deans, administrators and university attorneys in proceedings that fail to guarantee core components of the rights of due process. ...

"The stakes," he continues, "are very, very high; the result of these hearings dramatically change the course of these students' lives. ... Some institutions may allow a lawyer to attend the hearing, but prohibit them from participating in the proceedings. Others ban attorneys altogether. The universities, on the other hand, are free to send as many attorneys as they wish to prosecute the student."

Yet this is the state where Samuel Adams, the Sons of Liberty, the Boston Tea Party and the Committees of Correspondence continually alerted the 13 colonies under British rule to the bottomless abuses of the colonists' rights, thereby becoming, as Thomas Jefferson was to say, a precipitating cause of the American Revolution!

In his March 28 letter to the Massachusetts legislators, Joe Cohn confronted them with this prickly challenge:

"The law (providing students with the rights to a lawyer) has been in effect in North Carolina since last July. To date, there have been no reports and there is no evidence that providing students with the right to the assistance of lawyers or the advisers of their choice in these hearings has disrupted or prevented any institutions from conducting hearings.

"Simply put, the sky has not fallen, as the bill's opponents loudly predicted."

Nor have the Constitution's First and Fifth Amendment rights continued to fall in that state.

Cohn could not resist this further poke in the ribs of the Massachusetts legislators: "It is simply unreasonable to expect 18-year-old and 19-year-old students acting alone to competently answer serious charges posed by deans and administrators with decades of professional experience acting as judge, jury and executioner for campus crimes.

"FIRE notes that this imbalance is particularly exacerbated for students with disadvantaged backgrounds. While wealthier students who have lawyers or other professionals for parents may confidently face these tribunals, first-generation students or those who rely on substantial financial aid have the added burden of knowing their livelihoods — and often the dreams of their families — are on the line.

"For these students, having legal representation during the few hours of a hearing could make a difference that lasts for decades."

The Massachusetts bill requiring a lawyer is, as of this writing, still pending, and the Virginia lawyer bill has been tabled for the year. But FIRE will not let up on either state.

Meanwhile, around the nation, many parents are paying rising college tuition fees without a thought about whether their sons and daughters will be guaranteed due process rights, if needed, while they're there.

And hey, you 2016 presidential candidates, what's your position on providing college students with campus-wide free speech and also due process to defend themselves across this sweet land of liberty? Will voters and the media be asking them? How about you?

I will continue to report on how FIRE's national student network is more actively than ever connecting with students all over, "making it easier," it tells them, "to look up your school's speech codes and submit a request for FIRE's help — whatever that help might be."

The Sons and Daughters of Liberty have returned in full force.

Thankful for cardiac program

Today is a good day. I woke up and there was no tag on my toe so I knew my hubby and I could go to the Cardiac Rehab Center in Inverness at Citrus Memorial hospital. We go three times a week for about an hour and a half. Why do we go? One reason is we like it. Eight years ago I tried to go to a local gym for exercise and the manager said I couldn't go there because I was 80. They didn't even ask my age when I started at CMH Cardiopulmonary Rehab. That was about two years ago. The heart doctor suggested it and approved it after I had an operation at Citrus Memorial hospital. That was the best thing I could do. Now my husband goes with me and was also approved by the heart doctor. We go because it helps us. Here is what it does:

1. Improve our endurance with supervised exercise training.

2. Allow us to lead a more productive and independent life.

3. Reduce the fear and risk of another cardiac occurrence.

4. Control symptoms of heart disease.

Not only that, we like it there. The nurses and helpers are very good to us. They watch us all the time. They monitor us and take our blood pressure. They really care about how we feel.

We are grateful there is such a program locally. Thanks to CMH for having such a program available. No one likes to be sick but it is assuring there is a good place to go for help.

Senior couple escapes fire

CRYSTAL RIVER — The odor of smoke awoke an elderly couple shortly before midnight Saturday and they got away from a fire that claimed their home.

Citrus Sheriff Fire Rescue units were dispatched at 11:48 p.m. to a structure fire at 2432 N. Owl Point, a singlewide mobile home owned by Matt Martin and occupied by Raymond Brooks and Pearl Mae Williams.

Fire crews arrived on scene at 11:58 p.m. to find the home 100 percent involved with fire, according to an incident report prepared by the battalion chief. The fire was said to have destroyed the entire structure and all its contents.

The residents, described as elderly, saw smoke and fire in a rear bedroom before they vacated, according to the report.

Fire crews found one of the three family dogs and it was turned over to Animal Control on scene. Three engines, one squad and two tankers attended.

After the fire was extinguished, the scene was turned over to the fire chief to determine the origin and cause.

California city looks to sea for water in drought

Associated Press

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — This seaside city thought it had the perfect solution the last time California withered in a severe drought more than two decades ago: Tap the ocean to turn salty seawater to fresh water.

The $34 million desalination plant was fired up for only three months and mothballed after a miracle soaking of rain.

As the state again grapples with historic dryness, the city nicknamed the "American Riviera" has its eye on restarting the idled facility to hedge against current and future droughts.

"We were so close to running out of water during the last drought. It was frightening," said Joshua Haggmark, interim water resources manager. "Desalination wasn't a crazy idea back then."

Removing salt from ocean water is not a far-out idea, but it's no quick drought-relief option. It takes years of planning and overcoming red tape to launch a project.

Santa Barbara is uniquely positioned with a desalination plant in storage. But getting it humming again won't be as simple as flipping a switch.

After the plant was powered down in 1992, the city sold off parts to a Saudi Arabia company. The guts remain as a time capsule — a white elephant of sorts — walled off behind a gate near the Funk Zone, a corridor of art galleries, wineries and eateries tucked between the Pacific and U.S. 101.

Associated Press

Joshua Haggmark, interim resources manager for Santa Barbara, Calif., stands April 25 next to a desalination plant, which removes salt from ocean water, that has been in storage for more than two decades in Santa Barbara, Calif. The city is considering restarting the plant as California withers in a drought.

The city estimates that it will need $20 million in technological upgrades, a cost likely to be borne by ratepayers. Any restart would require city council approval, which won't vote until next spring after reviewing engineering plans and drought conditions.

Santa Barbara, population 89,000, has enough water for this year and even next year by buying supplemental supplies and as long as residents continue to conserve.

While it may seem like a head-scratcher to put the plant in hibernation soon after it was built, officials said the decision saved the city millions of dollars in unnecessary operating costs.

"With the current drought likely to continue, they now appear as if they will be able to cash in on their insurance policy," said Tom Pankratz, editor of Water Desalination Report and consultant on several other desalination projects in California.

The cyclical nature of droughts has made it difficult, if not impossible, to bet on desalination. It requires prime coastal real estate and the foresight to diversify the water supply in flush and dry times. Communities that choose desalination may be more resilient to inevitable droughts in the future.

Santa Barbara relies on water piped through tunnels from the Santa Ynez Mountains. But with Lake Cachuma, the main reservoir, dangerously low, the city expects desalination to play a role.

"We live in a desert. We can expect droughts. It's just inevitable that desalination is going to become a part of our regular water portfolio," Haggmark said.

Haggmark acknowledged desalination's limits, but he said it made sense to start considering it as an option to ease the strain on local supplies. The earliest restart date would be summer 2016.

Acrobats fall during circus stunt in Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — A support frame collapsed during an aerial hair-hanging stunt at a circus performance Sunday, sending eight acrobats plummeting to the ground. Nine performers were seriously injured in the fall, including a dancer below, while an unknown number of others suffered less serious injuries.

The accident was reported about 45 minutes into the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus' 11 a.m. Legends show at the Dunkin' Donuts Center in Providence.

Stephen Payne, a spokesman for Feld Entertainment, the parent company of Ringling Bros., said the accident happened during an act in which eight performers hang "like a human chandelier" using their hair.

He said the metal-frame apparatus from which the performers were hanging came free from the metal truss it was connected to. The eight women fell 25 to 40 feet, landing on a dancer on the ground.

All the performers have been doing "some variation of this act for some time," Payne said, though he didn't know how long.

Coca-Cola drops ingredient from Powerade drinks

NEW YORK — Coca-Cola is dropping a controversial ingredient from its Powerade sports drink, after a similar move by PepsiCo's Gatorade last year.

The ingredient, brominated vegetable oil, had been the target of a petition by a Mississippi teenager, who questioned why it was being used in a drink marketed toward health-conscious athletes. The petition on Change.org noted that the ingredient is linked to a flame retardant and is not approved for use in Japan or the European Union.

In response to customer feedback, PepsiCo said last year it would drop the ingredient from Gatorade. At the time, Coca-Cola declined to say whether it would remove the ingredient from the two flavors of Powerade that contain it as well.

But this week, bottles of Powerade in fruit punch and strawberry lemonade flavors being sold in the Detroit, Michigan; Omaha, Nebraska, New York and Washington, D.C. areas no longer list the ingredient. Some bottles still list it, however, suggesting Coca-Cola Co. may have started phasing it out recently.

Democrat: GOP's Benghazi group 'waste of time'

WASHINGTON — A Democrat on the House Intelligence Committee said it makes no sense to participate in the select committee that Republicans want to create to investigate the 2012 attack on the U.S. diplomatic outpost in Benghazi, Libya.

Rep. Adam Schiff of California said he'd recommend that Democratic leaders not appoint any Democrats to the committee that Speaker John Boehner is moving to set up.

Schiff told "Fox News Sunday" there have been multiple investigations into Benghazi and that the new committee is "a colossal waste of time."

Boehner said U.S. officials misled the public after the assault that killed the ambassador and three other Americans.

CHRONICLE: How often do you come home here to visit?

TELLER: I was just back in the middle of March. Got to float down the Rainbow River, which is my favorite thing to do when I'm home, and either end up at Clawdaddy's or Crackers. I come back about three times a year.

CHRONICLE: Do you still have to take out the trash and make your bed?

TELLER: (Laughs) Yes, I still do all those things when I'm home.

CHRONICLE: Moving on to what you're doing now, what's it like to be at a premiere or the MTV Movie Awards and have hundreds of girls screaming your name?

TELLER: It's definitely interesting. "Divergent" was really my first introduction to that, because for the most part the films I've done, party movies like "Project X" and "21 & Over," the audience is mostly guys. A lot of times guys will come up and say, "Let me buy you a drink," and that's cool. But after I did "Divergent," I got catapulted into that teenage fandom where girls are holding up posters with "Will you marry me?" on them and pictures of my face. It's fun — for a small period of time. Then it's back to regular life, back to work.

CHRONICLE: How do you navigate fame and the pitfalls that it can bring?

TELLER: I have buddies who are my peers who have achieved various levels of fame, some very high, and if I need advice, I can go to them. But you really can't be taught it. Everybody's different, and you only learn by experience. You just try and stay the same person you are. At the end of the day, fame and having a camera on you a lot of the time is only going to expose who you really are, so hopefully you like yourself.

CHRONICLE: What are you learning about yourself by being in the public eye?

TELLER: I think people relate to me, and I think that comes from growing up in a place like Citrus County and having the same buddies that I've had since high school.

CHRONICLE: When you're doing a love scene in a movie, do you ever think, "Yikes, my mom's going to see this"?

TELLER: (Laughs) I try not to think about my mom during a love scene, but at the premiere I think about it. I try to give her a head's up.

CHRONICLE: You've played such diverse roles. Do you have a favorite?

TELLER: "Whiplash" was a lot of fun. "The Spectacular Now" is probably my favorite because the whole rural vibe of that movie reminded me of growing up in Citrus County. My character drove a '96 Honda Accord and for a while my sister drove one, and I drove hers sometimes. I felt like I knew that guy (main character Sutter) and knew that place.

CHRONICLE: What types of roles do you want to play? Who would you like to work with?

TELLER: I'd love to do roles like the ones Tom Hanks has done — I'd like to work with Tom Hanks. He's an American treasure. He's such as huge movie star, but he seems like such an everyday guy, like anybody could sit and talk with him. No matter what part he plays, he's always very relatable. I do like that about him.

I would have loved to work with Philip Seymour Hoffman; I like Daniel Day Lewis; I like Leo (DiCaprio) a lot, Meryl Streep, Pacino, Brad Pitt in the right role.

CHRONICLE: Do you have a dream role?

TELLER: I'd really like to play Elvis. People compare me to Elvis a lot, looks-wise, and I play guitar and sing — I did musicals in high school.

CHRONICLE: You've shown yourself to be quite versatile.

TELLER: Yeah, I think that's the name of the game.

CHRONICLE: You're 27. You've done 10 movies in 10 years and you have a bunch lined up through 2017 as of today. Do you ever get a break?

TELLER: I'm actually on a break now, but even when you're on a break you're not really. Like, I finished "Whiplash" in October and then I had November and December off, and then in January I had Sundance and then I went into a press tour for "That Awkward Moment" and right from that I went into a press tour for "Divergent."

The thing about acting, you film a movie and then you wait a whole year before it comes out, but meanwhile you're filming another movie. The concept of time is always changing.

But when I feel I need to take time off, if my head is congested and I'm feeling I don't have strong intuition or impulses or I'm not feeling very creative, I tell my agent I need a break. At the same time, you don't want to take too much time off; you don't want somebody else to get ahead of you.

CHRONICLE: What do you do to recharge?

TELLER: I like to do nothing. I like to clean, vacuum, do my laundry, that kind of stuff. I like to lounge around and listen to music. I really like going to concerts, classic rock, stuff that was recorded 50 years ago. I'm a big Grateful Dead fan.

Other than that, I like being outside. That's the good thing about California, everything's outside.

CHRONICLE: You've never done the "starving actor/waiting tables" thing, have you?

TELLER: Well, I used to be a server at Crackers, but I wasn't starving because I always ate the food there. But, no, I really haven't. I did "Rabbit Hole" right after college, and have stayed busy ever since.

CHRONICLE: What do you think about working with Scorsese coming up?

TELLER: It's awesome. I have a letter from him saying that he picked me for the role, and that's the coolest thing, the most flattering thing. There have been a couple of "pinch me" moments — I started out working with Nicole Kidman. And the other day I was talking to a guy who was on a show with Kyra Sedgwick, so he knows her and her husband, Kevin Bacon. He said he was having dinner with them the other night and Kevin was saying what a big fan he is of me. That's awesome.

CHRONICLE: One last question: If you could go back 10 years, what would you tell your 17-year-old self?

TELLER: When I was 17, I was a big practical joker. I was named Class Clown and Most Likely to Be Famous. What would I say to him? Well, I wouldn't want to mess him up too much, because he's on his way.

I'd say stay away from such-and-such girl, and to enjoy every second of baseball, which I did. Our coaches used to tell us that once it's gone it's gone and you're going to miss it.

Other than that, I'd tell myself to keep doing what you're doing, and don't worry, you'll grow. You are going to grow. (Laughs) I was always tiny as a sophomore and junior, but now I'm like 6-foot-1.

Inside-the-park HR helps Rays beat Yanks

Myers rounds bases as Tampa Bay chases CC Sabathia early

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Yankee Stadium is already a home run haven for Wil Myers — whether he hits the ball over the fence or not.

Myers had an inside-the-park homer, his latest big blow against the New York Yankees, and drove in four runs as the Tampa Bay Rays battered an ineffective CC Sabathia in a 5-1 victory Sunday.

Erik Bedard earned his first win as a starter since last June, and Evan Longoria had an early RBI double to help the Rays finish 5-5 on a trying trip that included a doubleheader sweep Thursday in Boston and a 14-inning win Friday night in New York.

"One of the best we've ever had," manager Joe Maddon said. "We talked about the possibility of getting a little bit of a bump from the three games in Boston. Apparently, we have."

Desmond Jennings, who homered in his previous three games, had three hits and Logan Forsythe scored twice. Tampa Bay has taken consecutive series for the first time this season, and won eight of its last 10 games in the Bronx.

Hardest to pick, or high profile?

The QB question

Associated Press

Central Florida quarterback Blake Bortles runs past Connecticut defensive end Tim Willman for a 16-yard gain Oct. 26, 2013, in Orlando. With a record 102 underclassmen declaring for this NFL draft, the depth of talent is obvious. Quarterbacks are no exception, with a trio of potential top-10 picks available and another half-dozen or so prospects projected as viable mid-round options.

Making a mistake at quarterback in the NFL draft can be costly

Associated Press

With a record 102 early entrants declaring for this NFL draft, the depth of talent is obvious. Quarterbacks are no exception, with a trio of potential top-10 picks and another half-dozen or so prospects projected as viable mid-round options.

This ought to be an ideal scenario, then, for teams in this pass-driven league missing a long-term solution at the most important position in the sport.

So why isn't taking a Blake Bortles, Teddy Bridgewater or Johnny Manziel at the start of Thursday night's proceedings a slam dunk?

While more media coverage is a factor in Bortles, Bridgewater and Manziel being poked and prodded to near-pulp, all of them left college early. Bortles brings the least experience out of Central Florida. Bridgewater, from Louisville, has shown accuracy problems. Manziel is relatively short, and his well-documented time and exploits at Texas A&M raised concerns about maturity.

Johnny Manziel

"I don't think they're physically ready. I don't think they're far along mentally. I think they might be a work in progress for six months or a year," said ESPN analyst and former NFL head coach Jon Gruden, considered a quarterbacks guru.

Minnesota general manager Rick Spielman, one of those executives under pressure to find the right guy, describing the predraft scheming as "torturous" in a recent interview.

"Nothing is a sure thing. There's no Andrew Luck, no Peyton Manning. It is such a mixed bag with each player. Every one of them has positives. Every one of them has negatives. And if that's the way you end up feeling, why don't you just wait 'til later in the draft and take someone with the first pick you're sure will help you right now?" Spielman told SI.com.

Teddy Bridgewater

Spielman could well have been trying to smoke-screen his desire to select one of the QBs with the eighth overall pick, but there was surely some truth to his explanation. With his own whiff on Christian Ponder (the 12th choice in

Hamlin races to Talladega victory

Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Denny Hamlin, winner of three races at Daytona that didn't count, finally has a points-paying victory at a restrictor-plate track.

Hamlin, who opened the season with a pair of wins in Daytona exhibition races only to finish second in the Daytona 500, was again sitting second in the closing laps Sunday at Talladega Superspeedway. But he won a drag race with leader Kevin Harvick on a restart with two laps remaining, and was out front when NASCAR froze the field because of debris from an accident.

Denny Hamlin

Hamlin let out a deep sigh when the yellow flag waved.

"Superspeedway win," he said on his radio. "With points! With points!"

Hamlin became the eighth winner in 10 races this season as drivers jockey to grab the 16 spots available in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship. A victory conceivably gives a driver an automatic berth, and Joe Gibbs Racing now has both Hamlin and Kyle Busch eligible for the Chase.

It didn't appear that Hamlin had enough to beat Harvick, already a two-time winner this season, until the final restart. Harvick didn't get the help he needed from behind, was hung out without any drafting partners, and Hamlin pulled out to a comfortable lead. Then an accident deep in the pack scattered debris, and NASCAR was forced to throw the caution when a bumper was seen laying on the surface.

The yellow prevented Greg Biffle from pulling out of line in an attempt to grab the victory away from Hamlin.

Clint Bowyer finished third and was followed by Michael Waltrip Racing teammate Brian Vickers as Toyota took the victory and three of the top four spots.

AJ Allmendinger finished fifth in a Chevrolet, followed by Paul Menard and then Harvick, who faded to seventh. Kasey Kahne, Kyle Larson and Ricky Stenhouse Jr. rounded out the top 10.

Danica Patrick led two times for six laps, and the crowd roared its approval when she drove to the front early in the race.

It was a rough day for Brad Keselowski, a two-time Talladega winner, who darted to the lead on Lap 14 but appeared to not have cleared Patrick before squeezing in front of her car. She tapped the back of Keselowski's car, sending him for a spin through the grass that caused enough damage to drop him six laps off the pace.

"We weren't clear enough to make that," crew chief Paul Wolfe told his driver. "I'll just call it at that: We weren't clear enough to make that move."

Keselowski raced in the heart of the pack after the first incident in an attempt to get his laps back

Brooklyn survives

Pierce blocks last shot by Raptors; Spurs rout Dallas

Associated Press

TORONTO — Slowed by foul trouble and struggling with his shot, Paul Pierce still found a way to come up big for the Brooklyn Nets.

And, right when they needed him most.

Pierce blocked Kyle Lowry's shot from the lane on the final play of the game, and the Nets held off the Toronto Raptors 104-103 in Game 7 on Sunday to advance to the second round of the playoffs.

"I just happened to be in the right place at the right time," Pierce said. "I saw him split the defenders, I saw him go up, I went up with him.

"I got my hand on the ball — game over."

The Nets will begin the conference semifinals at Miami on Tuesday night, facing the two-time defending NBA champion Heat.

Pierce had more fouls (three) than points (none) in the second half, but his only block of the game punctuated a hard-fought series win for the Nets.

Leading by one, Brooklyn used its final timeout after failing to inbound the ball. On the second opportunity, Shaun Livingston tried a lob pass to Pierce, but Terrence Ross got a hand on the ball and then knocked it off Pierce and out of bounds for a turnover.

"I rushed it a little bit," Livingston said. "I'm thinking Paul is going to hold him off. He kind of slipped there. Once he slipped, it was a jump ball and Terrence Ross is probably the last guy you want to throw a jump ball to."

Toronto used a timeout and gave the ball to Lowry, whose driving shot was blocked by Pierce as time expired. Lowry lay prone in the key as the Nets surged onto the court in celebration.

"I really didn't have a great offensive game," Pierce said. "I was in foul trouble for most of the night. Sometimes you've got to find ways to help your ballclub win."

Nets coach Jason Kidd said Brooklyn's defense "bent a little" but didn't break, thanks mostly to Pierce's clutch play.

"Paul said it best, that's why he's here, to make plays," Kidd said. "He didn't have a great game, but it only takes one play to help a team win and that's what he did tonight."

Brooklyn went 4-0 against Miami in the regular season, but that didn't mean much to Brooklyn's Kevin Garnett.

"That goes out the window," he said. "This is the postseason. They're playing very well. They went right through Charlotte without a beat and they have a lot of confidence."

Joe Johnson scored 13 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Nets. Marcus Thornton scored 17, Garnett had 12 points and 11 rebounds for his first double-double of the series, and Deron Williams added 13 points.

"Joe has kept us alive this whole series," Garnett said.

Amir Johnson fouled out with 20 points and 10 rebounds for Toronto, which trailed by 10 with just over six minutes remaining before storming back and having a chance to win it at the buzzer.

"They pushed us to the brink," Livingston said.

Lowry finished with 28 points and DeMar DeRozan 18 for the Raptors, who fell to 0-2 in franchise history when playing in a Game 7. Toronto lost Game 7 of the conference semifinals to Philadelphia in 2001.

Spurs 119, Mavericks 96

SAN ANTONIO — Tony Parker scored 32 points and the San Antonio Spurs led by as many as 31 on their way to 119-96 victory over the Dallas Mavericks, closing out a tense first-round series in seven games.

Manu Ginobili scored 20 points, Danny Green added 16 points and Tim Duncan and Kawhi Leonard had 15 points apiece for San Antonio. The Spurs advance to face the fifth-seeded Portland Trail Blazers, who upset the Houston Rockets in a six-game series.

Dirk Nowitzki had 22 points and nine rebounds to lead Dallas.

Last season ended for the Spurs with a Game 7 loss in the NBA Finals against the Miami Heat. Facing a much earlier end, San Antonio rode a raucous home crowd and overwhelmed Dallas in the deciding game of a physical series.

There were two technical fouls and two flagrant fouls in Game 7 and two more flagrants reversed upon review.

Parker was assessed a technical with 31.6 second left in the first quarter after making a layup on and jawing with former teammate DeJuan Blair as the two ran down the court. They have been talking smack to each other all series and Parker was clearly frustrated with the hard fouls committed by Blair on his drives earlier in the series.

Blair was later assessed a flagrant foul for elbowing Ginobili in the face on a drive. After the foul, Blair stared down San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich, who was screaming at officials over the severity of the foul.

Penguins draw even

Chicago tops Wild for 2-0 series advantage

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Kris Letang broke a scoreless tie in the second period and Marc-Andre Fleury made 22 saves for his seventh playoff shutout to lift the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 3-0 victory over the New York Rangers on Sunday night, tying the second-round series one game apiece.

Letang's 15th career postseason goal matched Larry Murphy's record for Penguins defensemen. Jussi Jokinen scored during a third-period power play, and Evgeni Malkin added an empty-net goal for the Penguins, who managed a home split in the first two games with the suddenly weary Rangers.

Game 3 is tonight in New York.

Henrik Lundqvist made 32 saves for New York, but the Rangers mustered little offense while playing their fourth game in six days. New York's limp power play went 0 for 4 and hasn't scored in 29 straight advantages.

Blackhawks 4, Wild 1

CHICAGO — Bryan Bickell had a goal and two assists, and the Chicago Blackhawks beat the Minnesota Wild 4-1 to take a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference semifinals.

Brandon Saad scored his first two goals of the postseason, and Chicago earned its sixth consecutive win despite stretches of lackluster play in the second and third periods. Corey Crawford made 18 saves in another solid performance.

Cody McCormick scored his second career playoff goal, but Minnesota missed another chance to steal home-ice advantage from the defending Stanley Cup champions.

The series opener was tied at 2 in the third period before Patrick Kane scored two of Chicago's final three goals in a 5-2 victory on Friday night.

and then chased Sabathia with a ringing RBI double in the fourth.

Asked if he remembered the previous time he hit an inside-the-park homer, Myers said: "I don't know. Not since I was 8?"

The struggling Sabathia (3-4) gave up 10 hits and five runs in 3 2/3 innings, his shortest start since lasting 2 2/3 innings on Oct. 2, 2009, at Tampa Bay. He was late covering first on a potential double play and got booed during an outing that raised his ERA to 5.75.

"I would have booed myself today, too. I wouldn't want to come to the ballpark and watch that," Sabathia said.

Peyton Manning and his brother, Eli, showed up to watch buddy Derek Jeter play one last time during his final season. The star quarterbacks sat in Jeter's suite along the first base line but didn't see much of a show — a slumping Jeter went 0 for 4 and stranded four runners. He was 4 for 30 (.133) on New York's 3-5 homestand and is hitless in 13 at-bats.

Bedard (1-1) pitched six-plus effective innings for his first win as a starter since June 26 for Houston against St. Louis. He had been 0-9 in 15 starts since, though he did win in relief on Sept. 4 against Minnesota.

"I didn't realize how long it's been," Bedard said. "But yeah, it's nice."

Forsythe, the first batter Sabathia faced, doubled off the wall in left and scored on Longoria's ground-rule double to right.

"He was out of sync from the get-go," Yankees pitching coach Larry Rothschild said. "He didn't warm up particularly well. I was kind of watching to see what we could do, but there wasn't much."

With runners at first and second in the third, Myers sent a long drive to right-center beyond the reach of Jacoby Ellsbury. The ball hit the top of the wall near the 385-foot sign, caromed off a leaping Ellsbury and rolled away along the warning track.

Last season's AL Rookie of the Year jogged out of the batter's box, then turned it on while rounding first base. He scored standing up without a play after second baseman Yangervis Solarte couldn't handle a one-hop throw from right fielder Carlos Beltran, who was late backing up.

"Off the bat, I thought it was gone," Myers said. "Wasn't stoppin'. Wasn't stoppin'."

It was Tampa Bay's 11th inside-the-park homer and first since Ben Zobrist's against Toronto at Tropicana Field on Sept. 25, 2011. The previous player to hit an inside-the-park home run at Yankee Stadium was Jeter against Kansas City on July 22, 2010, according to STATS.

Myers also homered Saturday and had a tiebreaking single in the 14th inning of the series opener Friday night. He has hit safely in all 13 of his games at Yankee Stadium, the longest streak to start a career at the new or old versions of the ballpark.

Myers is batting .375 with four homers and 14 RBIs in seven games against New York this season.

under caution periods. But he was heavily criticized for triggering a 14-car accident with 51 laps remaining. The accident began when Keselowski spun in front of Trevor Bayne, and among those collected were Jeff Gordon, Matt Kenseth, Tony Stewart and Jimmie Johnson.

"Brad made a pretty bold move early, a mind-boggling move, in going in front of Danica and spun out in front of the field and got away with it," Kenseth said. "This time we weren't so lucky. He was driving really, really, really aggressively to try to get back up there. I'm not sure what the strategy was.

"If it was the other way around and it was anybody else except for him, we'd all be getting lectured."

Gordon also chastised Keselowski.

"I had seen him for several laps driving over his head being pretty aggressive," Gordon said. "I knew he was laps down, but he wasn't doing anybody any favors, nor himself. Then, ultimately, that was a wreck."

Keselowski took the blame for the late accident.

"I just spun out in front of the whole field," he said. "I don't know why, if I just busted my butt on my own or lost a tire, but I feel bad for everyone that got torn up."

On the incident with Patrick that put him in position to have to race hard to get his laps back, he said: "Made a really aggressive move to take the lead and then it all just kind of bottlenecked from there. I don't know if I cut somebody off or got ran over, but just enough to get spun out and tear the car up."

QUESTION

2011) and other high-profile busts on the radar of top decision-makers around the league, Spielman will be wary of taking a quarterback so high again — if there are significant questions about the player's skill set.

There are seniors with more polish such as Derek Carr of Fresno State, Alabama's A.J. McCarron or Zach Mettenberger of LSU. But if they're consistently ranked below the top three, then they've got their own limitations. So here's the multi-billion-dollar question, considering the context of the money-making entertainment machine that is the NFL:

Is this truly the hardest position on the roster to draft and develop successfully? Or are the mistakes simply more magnified because the profiles of quarterbacks are so high?

"It's a tough position to play. So drafting it, getting it right? If anyone had the answer, they'd be doing it," San Francisco general manager Trent Baalke said. "It's a tough position. There is so much that goes on from a mental standpoint, a physical standpoint. It's just a very difficult position to play. Some have mastered, some are at the level of trying to master it, and some never will master it."

The cost of a first-round miss at quarterback is steeper than ever, given the critical nature of the job and the infrequency of opportunities to procure another one. The best ones are locked up with long-term contracts and rarely hit free agency, and if an established quarterback is available in a trade he will almost always be on the downside of his career.

"All you have to do is look at the playoffs. Quarterback play is a huge, huge part of winning playoff games," Indianapolis general manager Ryan Grigson said. "We're very fortunate and blessed to have Andrew Luck and what he brings to the table. Because great quarterbacks don't come along all that often and if you don't have one, you're going to have to bolster every other facet of your team to be able to get on the level of a team that has a great one."

Over the last 10 drafts, 28 quarterbacks have been taken in the first round, including 16 in the top 10 picks and seven first overall. Though Eli Manning (first, 2004) and Ben Roethlisberger (11th, 2004) account for two Super Bowl rings each, only four of the 28 first-rounders have won championships. Aaron Rodgers (24th, 2005) and Joe Flacco (18th, 2008) are the others.

Just 10 of the 28 have been picked for a Pro Bowl.

Here's the flip side of the story: Most of the elite quarterbacks come from the top of the draft, so waiting for a Tom Brady, Drew Brees or Russell Wilson in later rounds is far from a tried-and-true strategy. Those are the only three Super Bowl winners of the last 10 who came after the first round.

"First and foremost, he has to be a 'guy.' He has to have the locker room. He has to walk into the meeting room and make the players know, 'Hey, this guy's got us. He's got it.' That character aspect," said Seattle general manager John Schneider, whose selection of Wilson in the third round in 2012 helped spark the team to a title.

The environment in which the drafted quarterback enters has a lot to do with success, too. Teams that don't have to force a player into action before he's ready will often benefit from the patience. Quarterbacks with savvy offensive coordinators and position coaches can glean a lot about the game they didn't gain in college.

Those teams still searching for the solution must keep spinning the wheel, feeling perhaps a little more pressure during the draft next week than those who have theirs.

"You're going to make some mistakes," Jacksonville coach Gus Bradley said, "but you hope it's limited, and especially at that position."

SF hands Braves sixth loss in row

MIAMI — Jeff Baker hit a game-winning double off the wall with two outs in the ninth inning, and the Miami Marlins beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 Sunday.

Right fielder Yasiel Puig retreated and made a leaping try for an acrobatic catch but slammed against the fence, and the ball deflected off it and hit him in the face. Puig collapsed to his stomach and was slow to rise, and he walked off the field with an arm around a trainer.

Giancarlo Stanton homered twice and drove in three runs for Miami, giving him the NL leads with 10 home runs and 36 RBIs. Teammate Christian Yelich hit his second home run.

The Dodgers came from behind three times, and a blown save cost Miami ace Jose Fernandez the victory.

American League Athetics 3, Red Sox 2, 10 inn.

BOSTON — Yoenis Cespedes drove in the go-ahead run on an infield single with the bases loaded in the 10th and the Oakland Athletics averted a three-game sweep with a 3-2 win over the Boston Red Sox.

A.J. Pierzynski hit a solo homer for the Red Sox, who failed to reach .500 for the first time since the fourth game of the season.

Jed Lowrie had a two-out double off Chris Capuano (1-1) and after the bases were loaded with an intentional and regular walk, Cespedes beat out a slow roller to third against reliever Burke Badenhop.

Twins 5, Orioles 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Phil Hughes won his third start in a row, Trevor Plouffe and Kurt Suzuki hit two-run doubles and the Minnesota Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles 5-2.

Hughes (3-1) gave up two runs and six hits in 6 1/3 innings, walking none and striking out three.

After giving up a single to Nick Markakis to start the game, Hughes retired the next 14 batters. Nelson Cruz broke up Hughes' shutout bid with two outs in the sixth, hitting a two-run shot for his ninth homer of the season.

Plouffe hit a two-out, two-run double in the third off Miguel Gonzalez (1-3). Suzuki added his double in the seventh.

White Sox 4, Indians 3

CLEVELAND — Dayan Viciedo hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning off John Axford, lifting the Chicago White Sox over the Cleveland Indians 4-3 and stopping a four-game losing streak.

Corey Kluber struck out a career-high 13 in eight innings, including a team-record seven straight.

Daniel Webb (2-0) pitched the eighth, and Matt Lindstrom threw a one-hit ninth for his fourth save in seven chances.

Tigers 9, Royals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Justin Verlander took a no-hit bid into the sixth inning and won his fourth straight decision, leading Detroit over the Kansas City Royals 9-4 and extending the Tigers' winning streak to a season-high five games.

Verlander (4-1) allowed three runs, four hits and four walks in seven innings with seven strikeouts. Jarrod Dyson hit a two-run triple in the seventh and scored on a sacrifice fly by Nori Aoki, who walked his first three times up.

Mariners 8, Astros 7

HOUSTON — Robinson Cano and Willie Bloomquist each drove in two runs, and the Seattle Mariners broke away in a four-run third inning to beat the Houston Astros 8-7.

Bloomquist broke a 1-all tie with a two-run double against Collin McHugh (2-1) and Cano followed with his first triple since June 3, 2012.

Brandon Maurer (1-0) allowed four runs and six hits in five innings for his first win since Sept. 28 against Oakland.

Rangers 14, Angels 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Prince Fielder had a pair of RBI doubles to end a drought of 39 at-bats without an extra-base hit and Yu Darvish worked into the seventh inning to earn his first victory in almost a month as the Texas Rangers trounced the Los Angeles Angels 14-3.

J.P. Arencibia hit his first home run and Michael Choice added a three-run shot for Texas.

Darvish (2-1) shrugged off first-inning homers by Erick Aybar and Albert Pujols to get his first victory since April 6 at Tampa Bay. He allowed three runs, seven hits and no walks in 6 1/3 innings, with nine strikeouts.

National League Giants 4, Braves 1

ATLANTA — Brandon Crawford hit two home runs and the San Francisco Giants completed a three-game sweep, beating Atlanta 4-1 and handing the Braves their sixth straight loss.

Madison Bumgarner pitched six sharp innings as the NL West-leading Giants won their fifth in a row.

Bumgarner (3-3) allowed one unearned run and three hits, striking out nine.

Santiago Casilla pitched the ninth for his first save.

Crawford gave the Giants a 2-1 lead with his homer off Alex Wood (2-5) in the fourth. Crawford hit a two-run shot off Jordan Walden in the eighth.

Phillies 1, Nationals 0

PHILADELPHIA — Roberto Hernandez pitched four-hit ball over 7 1/3 innings, outdueling Gio Gonzalez and leading the Philadelphia Phillies past the Washington Nationals 1-0.

Chase Utley hit an RBI single in the first inning for the only run.

Hernandez (2-1) struck out three and walked three.

Jonathan Papelbon pitched the ninth for his ninth save in 10 chances.

Gonzalez (3-2) allowed four hits in 7 1/3 innings. He struck out seven and walked two.

Mets 5, Rockies 1

DENVER — Dillon Gee threw six scoreless innings and David Wright had one of New York's four RBI doubles as the Mets salvaged the final game of their series against Colorado, beating the Rockies 5-1.

Gee (3-1) kept the Rockies off balance to run his scoreless string to a career-best 16 innings.

Nolan Arenado ran his hitting streak to 24 games with a double in the fourth, the second-longest hitting streak in Rockies history.

Padres 4, Diamondbacks 3

SAN DIEGO — Cameron Maybin reached base after an overturned umpire's call, then scored on Yonder Alonso's slow grounder in the ninth inning as the San Diego Padres beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 4-3 to avoid a three-game sweep.

The Padres snapped a four-game losing streak and scored their most runs in five games.

Huston Street (1-0) pitched the ninth for the win.

Reds 4, Brewers 3, 10 inn.

CINCINNATI — Chris Heisey scored from first base on Todd Frazier's double into the left-field corner as the Cincinnati Reds came from behind for a 4-3 win over the Milwaukee Brewers in 10 innings.

Brandon Phillips greeted reliever Brandon Kintzler with a game-tying 425-foot blast to center with one out in the eighth inning.

Sam LeCure (1-1) pitched the 10th for the win.

Two years after brain surgery, Holmes gets PGA Tour victory

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — More than two years after going through brain surgery, J.B. Holmes is a winner again on the PGA Tour.

Holmes rolled in a 3-foot bogey putt on the final hole at Quail Hollow for a 1-under 71 and a one-shot victory over Jim Furyk in the Wells Fargo Championship. Furyk had finished his Sunday-best 65 some two hours earlier.

It was a remarkable turnaround for Holmes, who won for the third time in his career. He had brain surgery twice in 2011. He hurt his elbow trying to return too quickly, and had surgery on that only after being sidelined with a broken ankle.

The victory gets him into The Players Championship next week, and the PGA Championship in his home state of Kentucky in August.

Bernhard Langer claims Insperity Invitational

THE WOODLANDS, Texas — Bernhard Langer won the Champions Tour's Insperity Invitational for the third time, closing with a 1-under 71 for a one-stroke victory over Fred Couples.

Langer finished at 11-under 205 at The Woodlands to become the 10th 20-time winner on the 50-and-over tour.

The 56-year-old German player also won the 2007 event at Augusta Pines and successfully defended his title in 2008 at The Woodlands. He opened this season with a victory in Hawaii.

Couples, the former University of Houston player who won the 2010 event, finished with a 67.

Colin Montgomerie was third at 9 under after a 70.

Esteban Toledo, the winner last year, was 7 under after a 71.

Lewis wins North Texas LPGA Shootout by 6

IRVING, Texas — Stacy Lewis shot a 7-under 64 to win the North Texas LPGA Shootout, finally getting another victory after six runner-up finishes in her previous 16 tournaments.

Lewis finished at 16-under 268, six strokes ahead of Meena Lee. That is the largest margin of victory on the LPGA Tour since Jiyai Shin won the 2012 Women's British Open by nine.

Lee shot 70. Michelle Wie had a 67 to finish third at 9 under.

It was the ninth career LPGA Tour victory for Lewis, and will boost the Texan from No. 3 to No. 2 in the world ranking.

Aguilar takes title at Laguna National

SINGAPORE — Chile's Felipe Aguilar holed six birdies and then an eagle on the 18th to shoot a 28 on the back-nine and capture the title at The Championship at Laguna National.

Aguilar's final round 10-under 62 gave him an overall 22-under 266, a stroke ahead of Denmark's Anders Hansen and American David Lipsky in joint second.

Hansen, the co-overnight leader, had a three-shot lead after a birdie at the 12th hole, but could not match Aguilar's impressive finish. He bogeyed the 16th hole, then failed to make birdie on the 18th to force a playoff.

Jameis Winston reinstated to Florida State baseball team

TALLAHASSEE — Jameis Winston has been reinstated to Florida State's baseball team after being suspended following a shoplifting incident, the school confirmed Sunday. The Heisman Trophy winner was issued a civil citation and entered a program that required 20 hours of community service.

The 20-year-old two-sport star is the closer on the baseball team and missed the three-game series against Minnesota this weekend. He was issued the citation last Tuesday after he walked out of a supermarket without paying for $32 worth of crab legs and crawfish. Baseball coach Mike Martin conferred with football coach Jimbo Fisher and decided to suspend Winston until he completed the community service.

The 6-foot-4, 235-pound Winston led Florida State football team to an undefeated season and a national championship. He leads the Seminoles with five saves.

Rays cut reliever Heath Bell, recall Nathan Karns

NEW YORK — Relief pitcher Heath Bell has been cut by the Tampa Bay Rays in a costly move for a normally thrifty team.

Needing a fresh long man in the bullpen, the Rays recalled right-hander Nathan Karns from Triple-A Durham and designated Bell for assignment before Sunday's series finale against the New York Yankees.

Bell, a three-time All-Star, was 1-1 with a 7.27 ERA in 13 appearances for the Rays after they acquired the right-hander from Arizona in December as part of a three-team trade that also included Cincinnati. Tampa Bay still owes him about $4.5 million this season.

Karns was scheduled to start Sunday for Durham, so he provided protection if the Rays needed more than a couple of innings from a reliever. Tampa Bay played a doubleheader Thursday in Boston and a 14-inning game Friday night at Yankee Stadium.

Serena Williams wins in Madrid, Djokovic withdraws

MADRID — Serena Williams brushed aside Belinda Bencic of Switzerland 6-2, 6-1 to open her defense of the Madrid Open title on Sunday, while Maria Sharapova beat Klara Koukalova 6-1, 6-2 in the first round.

In the men's tournament, Novak Djokovic withdrew before the start of the event because of a right wrist injury that had already affected his play at Monte Carlo last month.

The top-ranked Williams, who has won the clay-court tournament the past two years, hit 11 aces and broke Bencic five times to advance in less than an hour.

Williams will play Peng Shuai of China in the second round.

Sharapova, who lost to Williams in last year's final, converted six of eight break points to take advantage of Koukalova's eight double-faults.

The eighth-seeded Sharapova will play Christina McHale of the United States next.

Klizan beats Fognini to win BMW Open final

MUNICH — Slovakian qualifier Martin Klizan defeated top-seeded Fabio Fognini 2-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the BMW Open final for his second ATP World Tour title.

Klizan left center court briefly due to apparent stomach problems in the first set, before he rallied to win in just under 90 minutes.

Mayweather Jr. pushed hard by Maidana

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Marcos Maidana did everything but beat Floyd Mayweather Jr., taking him 12 tough rounds before losing a majority decision.

Mayweather remained unbeaten Saturday night, but not by much. Maidana swarmed all over him from the opening bell and gave him perhaps his toughest fight in a 16-year professional career.

In the end, though, Mayweather got the win — just as he did in his previous 45 fights. He retained his welterweight title by winning 117-111 on one scorecard and 116-112 on another. A third judge had it even at 114-114.

The Associated Press scored it for Mayweather 115-113.

Maidana threw far more punches, but Mayweather was more accurate with his as the two battled into the late rounds with the fight still very much in doubt. Cheered on by a large contingent of Argentine fans, Maidana took the fight to Mayweather, who was cut by the right eye in the fourth round by an accidental head butt.

"It was a tough, competitive fight," Mayweather said. "I normally like to go out there and box and move. But he put pressure on me. I wanted to give the fans what they wanted to see so I stood and fought him.

Associated Press

Marcos Maidana, left, and Floyd Mayweather Jr. brawl late in their WBC-WBA welterweight title boxing fight Saturday in Las Vegas. Mayweather won the bout by majority decision.

Maidana raised his arms in victory when the final bell sounded, and Mayweather watched pensively from his corner as the scorecards were added up before he was declared the winner.

"I think I won the fight," Maidana said. "He didn't fight like a man."

Punch stats by Compubox showed Mayweather landing 230 of 426 punches to 221 of 858 for Maidana. It was the most punches landed by any fighter against Mayweather in 38 fights where punch stats were compiled.

"I couldn't see for two rounds after the head butt," Mayweather said. "After I could see again it didn't both me. That's what champions do, they survive and adjust."

Maidana had said before the fight he was going to treat Mayweather like any other fighter and go right after him. He did just that, bringing the sellout crowd at the MGM Grand hotel to its feet as he landed some big overhand right hands to the top of Mayweather's head.

"He never hurt me with a punch," Maidana said. "He wasn't that tough, I thought I won."

Maidana complained about being forced to fight with gloves he didn't want to use when the two camps engaged in a standoff over gloves at the rules meeting a day earlier.

"If I would have had my gloves I would have knocked him out," Maidana said. "They took away my advantage."

Mayweather, who earned $32 million for the fight, was a 6-1 favorite coming to remain unbeaten. He had picked Maidana as an opponent because Maidana beat Adrien Broner in an upset in December, but he almost made the wrong pick.

Mayweather seemed confused early and unable to adapt to the wild punches thrown by Maidana. It wasn't until the middle rounds that he got into more of a rhythm, hitting Maidana with hooks to the body and right punches to the head.

Still, the fight was in doubt late as Maidana wouldn't quit coming forward. With the crowd on its feet in the final round he tried to land big punches, but Mayweather was able to escape most of them.

Maidana, who was cheered by the crowd as he left the ring, said he wanted a rematch, and both promoter Richard Schaefer and Mayweather said he just might get one after nearly pulling off one of the biggest upsets in recent years.

"If the fans want to see it again, let's do it again," Mayweather said.

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Emily Oster, an economist with a B.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard, said, "Adhering to budgeting rules shouldn't trump good decision-making."

Adhering to bridge adages shouldn't trump good trump-employment.

This week, let's look at various uses of a trump suit. First, though, in today's deal, what should North respond after South opens two spades, showing a respectable six-card suit and 6-10 high-card points?

With an apparent misfit, there might be an impulse to bid three no-trump. But that is unlikely to make. It is safer to bid four spades. North should hope for five trump tricks and his five winners, or, if South has a side-suit winner, four spade and six side-suit tricks.

Then, how should South plan the play in four spades after West leads the diamond queen? The full deal suggests that South is doomed to lose two spades, one diamond and one club. But maybe he can take 10 tricks.

Declarer wins with dummy's diamond king and plays a spade to his king. When it wins, he continues with the spade queen, discarding a club from the dummy. East's best defense is to duck smoothly, because if South plays a third trump, he goes down. However, let's suppose that East takes the second trump and returns his remaining diamond.

Now declarer should cash dummy's heart ace, ruff a heart in his hand, and cash the spade jack. When West pitches, South twice crosses to dummy with a club and ruffs two more hearts to take two high spades, one heart, two diamonds, two clubs and those three heart ruffs.

This way of taking trump tricks is called an elopement.

ANNIE'S MAILBOX

Dear Annie: What do you do with an old and dear friend who now says something negative at every opportunity? "Lorene" and I live in different states, but used to be in touch daily by phone and on Facebook and have spent time together fairly often when she visits her family here.

For years, we were as close as sisters. Then, last year, as Lorene prepared for a reunion with her high school class, she began to change toward me. She hurt my feelings a number of times with subtle snipes and negative comments and, eventually, with a snub that was so insulting, we had a falling out. We didn't speak for some time, but I missed my friend and reconnected with her on Facebook. She welcomed my friend request, but ever since, the snipes and negative comments have been ongoing.

If I post a photo from a lovely vacation somewhere, Lorene makes a negative comment about the place, the weather, the cost or that I was alone there. If I post about some activity I'm planning, she's full of warnings and cautions. If I post an old family photo, she turns my happy memory into a feeling of loss, commenting about how sad it is that others in the photo died before me. When I tried to discuss her attitude, she became defensive and seemed to misunderstand me, so I dropped it.

This is someone who used to call me every day to chat. We have many mutual friends, so it's impossible to avoid her. I miss my friend and don't understand where she went. Should I unfriend her on Facebook? Should I just "take it" in silence? What would you do? — Mourning a Lost Friendship

Dear Mourning: Might Lorene be having health issues that affect her personality? Suggest she talk to her doctor because you're worried about her. Is she only negative about you? It could be jealousy or some long-forgotten argument. And it is not uncommon for some people, as they age, to develop a habit of complaining. Lorene may have no idea how she comes across.

It is unlikely that she will ever be the woman you once knew. Can you accept her as she is, ignoring the negativity and focusing only on the good things? Would you rather limit contact, using Facebook to keep track of her, but without phone calls and visits? You don't need to cut her off completely, but decide what her friendship is worth to you and respond accordingly.

Dear Annie: In my community, there are a lot of "open house" parties, especially around the holidays. I was under the impression that we are invited to come and celebrate, have a glass of wine or whatever. But many of the people attending brought gifts for the hosts. I didn't. Was this the proper thing to do? I believe your advice will help our retirement community. — No Present Guest

Dear No: Large, informal open-house parties where you drop by for a drink and leave do not necessitate a gift, but do write and thank your hosts afterward. Some people bring gifts anyway, and if this is the custom in your community (or if you would feel uncomfortable coming empty-handed), it's perfectly OK to bring wine, candy or something small and holiday appropriate.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Is There Hope for Me?" who said her husband shows no affection toward her after 27 years of marriage. Everything was the way he wanted it.

Her marriage sounds similar to mine. After 43 years, we are now in the process of divorcing. I have had more than enough of having it his way.

I am a clergywoman and regret that I was not strong enough to make this move years ago.

Yes, there's hope. Do something. It's your life. — C.

BARON a SPECIAL NEEDS 6-10 y.o. St. Bernard mix male, came as stray to shelter. Appears housebrkn, weight 91 lbs. A very calm older dog, in search of what would probably be his last home. Very friendly, comes to people for affection, Heartworm-negative, amazingly. May be partially blind, but definitely can see somewhat. He still loves life and wants to be the companion for a kind, loving person or couple who would understand his limitations.
