Report: American lifespans still on the rise

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Americans are living longer than ever before, according to a new government report filled mostly with good news. U.S. life expectancy inched up again and death rates fell.

Rates also fell or held steady for nearly all the leading causes of death. The one exception: The suicide rate reached its highest point in 25 years.

That figure has been increasing since 2000 and "it's really hard to say why," said Robert Anderson, who oversees the Centers for Disease Prevention and Control branch that issued the report Wednesday. The yearly report looked at deaths in 2012. It found:

■ U.S. life expectancy for a child born in 2012 was 78 years and 9.5 months, up about six weeks from life expectancy in 2010 and 2011. That's a record.

■ For someone 65, the CDC estimates that men have about 18 years of life left and women about 20.5 years. The gaps between men and women grew slightly, compared to 2011.

■ There were 2.5 million deaths in 2012, or about 28,000 more than the year before. The increase was expected, reflecting the

A Florida Department of Corrections crew works Tuesday to remove fencing on a stretch of County Road 486. The county and the Pine Ridge Property Owners Association had originally struck a deal that required the association to maintain the fence. However, the group changed its mind and said it couldn't afford to maintain the fence and handed it back to the county.

County removes C.R. 486 fence after Pine Ridge group decides not to maintain structure

A.B. SIDIBE Staff writer

A stretch of fencing along County Road 486 that has caused a bit of controversy recently is being removed at the direction of county officials. Department of Corrections inmates joined some county staff members in beginning Monday to remove the off-white vinyl fence on the southern edge of Pine Ridge.

"Our scheduling allows us to do it now," said Larry Brock, the county's interim public works manager.

"Because of the Department of Corrections help we do not expect to use too much of our own staff time to remove the fence," Brock said.

He said crews will probably work for several days to remove the fencing because officials are being careful not to damage the material and the concrete post supports.

The removal of the fence was spurred by a change in a contract entered into by the county and the Pine Ridge

Property Owners Association several years ago.

The fence was part of a transaction between the county and the property owners association when the county acquired property from the association for right-of-way purposes. The fence was built at the cost of $80,938 by the county per the terms of that deal. In that deal, the property owners group agreed to maintain the fencing.

However, according to county officials, the deal between the county and the association was modified recently at the request of the property owners group,

Man's 'can-do' spirit gets local recognition

Walker a driving force for community center

BUSTER THOMPSON Staff writer

CRYSTAL RIVER — Harold Walker didn't expect a thing on Monday when he walked up to the George Washington Carver Community Center — still under construction in Crystal River, the building wouldn't be there without his volunteer leadership and help.

Walker, 58, was surprised and recognized by Duke Energy, board members of the community center, and fellow volunteers for his dedication to create a reality for a nonprofit charitable organization. "I had no idea, no idea at all," Walker said. "It's just a real moment."

The George Washington Carver Community Center was once an 8,000-square-foot concrete foundation with no steel frame, doors or walls.

"We had money, but we didn't have enough money," said Coressa Nanteal, president of the center's board of directors. "We had been praying for something to happen for years with just a foundation and some pipes, and the Lord sent us Harold."

Walker — a recent retiree from Duke Energy and worker at the Crystal River nuclear plant — would drive past that construction site when he went to church with his wife.

Three years ago, during Thanksgiving week, Walker decided to ask the organization's board if there was anything he could do to help.

"I drove by and asked if I can help," Walker said. "I got in touch with the board and we just started working together."

Walker soon found himself as project supervisor, recruiting volunteers from his employer, Duke Energy, to help raise money, buy materials and construct the center.

The center succeeds the Arrests have immigrant advocates crying foul

Accuse state of trying to enforce federal laws

Associated Press

NAPLES — Florida Chief Financial Officer Jeff Atwater touted the arrests of more than 100 immigrant agriculture workers last July as an effort to crack down on the costly problem of workers' compensation fraud.

But it quickly became apparent the raid on the Naples-area Oakes Farm fruit and vegetable processing plant wasn't your typical workers' compensation fraud, such as employees who fake back injuries or businesses who treat employees as outside contractors.

Instead, the state attorney's office charged the mostly Mexican and Central American workers, many in the country illegally, under Florida statutes that makes it a felony to use a fake or stolen ID to obtain a job — and, by extension, workers' compensation insurance.

On Tuesday, prosecutors and an attorney representing the workers confirmed most had agreed to a pre-trial diversion deal akin to probation.

Naples attorney Donald Day said as long as the workers kept out of trouble, the charges would be dropped.

Still, immigrant and workers' advocates say Atwater is skirting the line of pre-empting the federal government's immigration authority by targeting these workers, whose main crime was finding a fake ID that employers wink and nod at — and should instead go after the employers who benefit from their cheap labor.

"In Florida this is a new wrinkle, where the state is going after people who haven't even filed a workers' comp claim, and is essentially taking enforcement of immigration laws into its own hands," said Rebecca Smith, deputy director of the nonprofit National Employment Law Project.

Atwater spokeswoman Ashley Carr said the investigation is ongoing and declined to discuss details.

"This case has nothing to do with immigration," she insisted.

She added that workers had stolen the identities of at least 36 people.

"They are the real victims," Carr said.

Experts say nationwide workers' compensation fraud costs insurers, law-abiding businesses and taxpayers more than $1 billion annually.

Atwater, a Republican who is likely to win re-election next month, has made workers' compensation insurance a priority since taking office in 2011. A January report produced for state lawmakers highlights department operations like "Dirty Money," which targeted construction industry shell companies that obtain minimum worker compensation insurance and then rent it out to sub-contractors who can falsely claim they are covered.

Yet, according to the annual reports' statistics, the largest number of workers' compensation fraud cases — and the largest number of arrests — between July 2012 and June 2013 came not from fraudulent claims but from ID theft cases, often connected to unauthorized workers. Last year, the state won 97 ID theft convictions. That's three times as many as four years ago.

Convictions against employers who underreported the number of employees or otherwise failed to properly apply for insurance — among the most common employer-based violations nationally — totaled 17.

Authorities began investigating Oakes Farms in September 2013 after an attorney for several former employees contacted the company during a dispute over a workers' compensation claim. The attorney said he repeatedly saw clients working up to 70 hours a week who were then fired after being injured or couldn't file compensation claims because of the fake Social Security numbers the company had encouraged them to get.

Workers' compensation insurance attorneys say those in the country illegally are often hesitant to make claims because they fear deportation.

Sheriff apologizes for wrongful arrest

BUSTER THOMPSON

The Citrus County Sheriff's Office has apologized to the family of the undisclosed man who was falsely arrested early Saturday morning, according to a Tuesday news release from the sheriff's office.

One sheriff's office employee has been placed on administrative leave pending the outcome of an investigation.

Sheriff's officials discovered the wrongful arrest on Monday after learning there was incorrect information on the man's arrest warrant.

The arrested man was later released.

Undersheriff/Commander Buddy Grant apologized to the man and his family on behalf of the sheriff's office.

"I want them to know we are deeply sorry this happened and understand it should never have occurred," Grant said.

Sheriff Jeff Dawsey has issued an internal affairs investigation to determine how the mistake occurred.

No further details will be released until the internal affairs investigation is complete.

According to sheriff spokeswoman Lindsay Blair, a man and woman who rented the mobile home were arrested in connection to the meth lab.

Two children were also contacted on scene by the Department of Children and Families. Further details will be released as the investigation continues.

Health Dept confirms 1st enterovirus case

The state Department of Health has confirmed the first Florida case of a severe respiratory illness affecting children around the country.

Officials said a 10-year-old girl from Polk County was recovering Tuesday from enterovirus 68. She was treated in Hillsborough County.

The virus causes cold and flu-like symptoms and is considered highly contagious. In infants and young children, the virus can cause difficulty breathing.

The Health Department is advising parents, child-care workers and health care professionals to be vigilant and practice good hygiene by washing hands frequently.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has said four people infected with the virus have died, but it's unknown what role the virus played in their deaths.

Issue No. 1: All about the water tower

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff writer

HOMOSASSA — There's the usual talk of taxes, fees and such. But this year's Homosassa Special Water Board election has something much larger riding on the outcome.

The big debate centers around the district's 50-year-old water tower, which some want torn down to save money for water line repairs while others want preserved as part of the old town's history.

Voters in Homosassa elect members of the water board, which was created by the state Legislature. The board levies a tax millage, sets water rates and approves projects.

The 100-gallon water tower, right next to the old water district office just off Yulee Drive, is unnecessary with the district's well field on Grover Cleveland Boulevard.

Residents in the district are sharply divided about the water tower, and that shows with candidates for the water board, who hope the issue will fix itself with the creation of a Homosassa historical preservation organization to buy the water tower property.

The board's lone incumbent, Dennis Seibert, said the district can't afford $30,000 annual maintenance on the water tower. He said the preservation group, which is still in the process of being organized, has until December to make an offer to buy the tower.

Absent that, he said, the district should have it dismantled.

"It costs $30,000 a year to maintain a tank we don't need anymore," Seibert said.

His Seat 2 opponent, Caitlin Wilcox, said the district should explore companies that buy and restore water towers.

"There's a lot of middle ground available," she said.

Seat 4 candidates Madonna

Ault, Winston Perry and Rosemary "Rosey" Rendueles all hope the water tower can be saved by the preservation group.

"I think it should stay," Rendueles said. "It's part of our heritage."

Perry and Ault both want the tower preserved, but not at the district's expense.

Ault noted the district has old water pipes that need to be replaced.

"You've got to take care of what you have," she said.

Perry said district taxpayers and customers shouldn't be saddled with the costs of upkeep on an aging water tank.

"It all boils down to money," he said. "It costs an enormous amount of money to maintain something like that."

Christie's sweet life

Bakery café hits spot in Inverness

INVERNESS
Christie Duryea remembers her first disaster as a pastry chef. "It was my first job. I was working for a pastry chef that was nominated for a James Beard Award, and he had this special dessert he called the chocolate goddess. Just one small piece cost about $20," she said.

The chef had placed a tray of it in the refrigerator, and when Duryea reached in to get something, her sleeve hit nearly every single piece of that costly dessert.

"It had a mousse on top, and you couldn't fix it," she said. "I ruined a couple hundred dollars worth of it. I thought for sure I'd get fired, but he ended up laughing and just said, 'Looks like the staff got lucky today.' But he also said, 'You'll remember this for the rest of your life,' and he was right. I tell that story to every new chef, every intern. You're going to make mistakes. Most, however, can be fixed."

At 28, the graduate of Johnson & Wales University recently opened Christie's Sweets, a neighborhood bakery café in a little lavender 1920s house on Line Street, across from Citrus High School.

Hers is an after-school sweet spot for the students.

"They eat me out of cupcakes and cookies," she said.

Still young herself, she said she likes to ask them about their future plans and they ask her about her life.

She and husband, Matt, who recently completed police academy training at the College of Central Florida, moved to Dunnellon in February from Miami.

"I've been a pastry chef for 10 years," Duryea said. "At 18, I took a tour of a fine dining restaurant, met the pastry chef and begged him for a job," she said. "He's the one who really

"I tried the culinary side of cooking, and I hated it," she said. "But I've wanted to do pastry and sweets ever since I was 15 when I had my first crème brulee and wanted to know how it was made."

After she graduated, Duryea started moving up the ranks in the kitchen until she became executive pastry chef of the exclusive James Royal Palm Hotel.

"After a year, I was on NBC — I did my first cooking segment on live TV," she said. "I was featured at the South Beach Food & Wine Festival ... and I made a brown sugar, bourbon milkshake with salted caramel, milk chocolate and pieces of bread pudding. Lawrence: Photo hack was 'sex crime'

NEW YORK — The people who chose to look at nude celebrity photos that hackers posted committed "a sexual offense," actress Jennifer Lawrence says in an exclusive interview with Vanity Fair in its November issues.
The Oscar winner, who was among dozens of celebrities whose photos were posted beginning Aug. 31, attacked both the hackers and those who sought out the photos in the interview, which marked the first time she had publicly commented.
"It is not a scandal. It is a sex crime," she said about the hackers "It is a sexual violation. It's disgusting. The law needs to be changed, and we need to change."

Of those who looked at the photos, she said, "Anybody who looked at those pictures, you're perpetuating a sexual offense. You should cower with shame."
The 24-year-old said the photos were taken for her boyfriend of four years, actor Nicholas Hoult, adding that the hardest phone call she had to make was to her father, telling him that the photos were stolen and posted on the Web.
She said she considered writing a statement but each time would "cry or get angry."
The November issue of Vanity Fair goes on sale Oct. 14.

Showtime to bring back 'Twin Peaks'

NEW YORK — Showtime is returning to the weird world of "Twin Peaks" in a new series a quarter-century after the original version rocked viewers with its strangeness.
Series creators and executive producers David Lynch and

The Rockettes rehearse their 'New York at Christmas' number Tuesday from the 2014 Radio City Christmas Spectacular, in the rehearsal space of St. Paul the Apostle Church, in New York.

Mark Frost will be back to write and produce the limited series.

Showtime announced it will go into production next year for airing in 2016. Lynch will direct all nine episodes.
Originally aired on ABC in 1990-91, it eerily posed the question, "Who killed Laura Palmer?" It was set in the quirky Pacific Northwest town of Twin Peaks, where the slain girl had lived.
Showtime said the revived "Twin Peaks" will be set in the present-day and will provide long-awaited answers for the series' fan base.
No cast members were announced.

'World of Tanks' game finds film ally

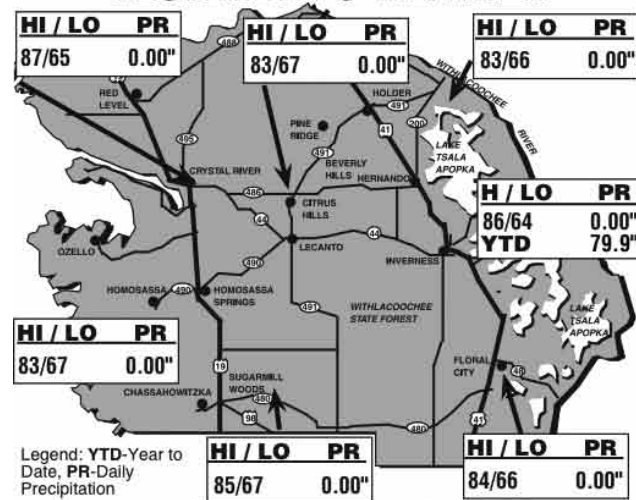

LOS ANGELES — "Fury" is rolling into "World of Tanks."
Before the World War II tank drama reaches theaters Oct. 17, video gamers can make like Brad Pitt's character, Sgt. Don "Wardaddy" Collier, and steer a virtual rendition of the tank he commands in the film. It's the latest example of a likeminded movie and game aligning to hype each other, and it marks the first Hollywood pact for the popular online tank combat title.

"It made sense," said Victor Kislyi, CEO of "World of Tanks" developer Wargaming. "Both audiences are interested in historical accuracy, so why don't we do something together? We didn't want to overdo it. We appreciate the opportunity, but our audience wants appropriateness. It's show business. You never know how it's going to turn out before the premiere."

The movie, set in 1945, follows a five-man crew as they carry out brutal missions behind enemy lines during the final days of the war. Beginning this week, "World of Tanks Blitz" players can purchase a "Fury"-themed bundle for $15.
The game, originally released in Russia in 2010, currently features about 110 million registered players around the world battling each other in 500 different types of tanks representing various nations.

Obituaries

Jacquelyn Stokes

A native Floridian, Jacquelyn (Jackie) Young Stokes was born in Starke, Florida, to the late Bennie and Leila Ward Young. Jackie moved to Floral City in 1943. Jackie first laid eyes on Joseph Burel Stokes when she was 14 years of age, and said she would marry him one day. They married in Floral City in 1947. They both had a passion for fishing and camping while exploring the local surrounding lakes and rivers in Central Florida. They both loved listening to country and Christian music. Jackie and Joseph made long-lasting loving memories for 52 years. Jackie was a member of the New Hope Methodist Church in Istachatta and active in many of their ministries. She received great joy in serving our Lord.

Jackie was a teacher who taught us to respect and always be honorable. She was full of compassion and wisdom by always sharing her love of life with others. She was tremendously unselfish by always helping and caring for others. She embraced nature and God's creation to the fullest. Jackie was full of strength that allowed her to carry multiple crosses even for others. Her smile always made us feel HIS love and warmth. She was HIS light. She was a devoted wife, mother, sister and friend, always putting the needs of others before herself. She carried a generous and loving heart that touched many lives in her presence. Her family and friends will always be thankful for the gift that was her life.

Our family promises to celebrate Jackie's life and continue to walk in God's light. She will be missed and always loved dearly by her son, Joseph F. Stokes and his wife Grace from San Antonio, Texas; her daughter, Susan F. Whitty from Floral City; grandchildren, Alyana, Travis, Tanner and Antonia from San Antonio. Jackie is preceded by her loving husband, Joseph B. Stokes; and her son-in-law, Jim Whitty.

A celebration of Jackie's life will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 10, 2014, at New Hope Church Fellowship Hall. Chas. E. Davis Funeral Home with Crematory is assisting the family with arrangements. In lieu of flowers the family is asking donations go to New Hope Cemetery fund.

Astronauts resume routine spacewalks

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — Two spacewalking astronauts moved an old, broken pump into permanent storage Tuesday, NASA's first routine maintenance outside the International Space Station in more than a year.

American Reid Wiseman and German Alexander Gerst, both first-time spacewalkers, cheerfully completed the long overdue job 260 miles up.

"I can't wait to see these pictures," Gerst said.

U.S.-based spacewalks were curtailed in July 2013 after an Italian astronaut nearly drowned because of a flooded helmet. NASA solved the problem with the suit's water-cooling system. Then concern arose over the spacesuit batteries.

New batteries arrived late last month, clearing the way for Tuesday's spacewalk and another one scheduled for next week.

Gerst clutched the 780-pound pump — about the size of a double-door refrigerator — as he rode on the end of the station's big robot arm. The crane swung him from the pump's temporary location to the new permanent spot in about 12 minutes.

"You should see my view right now," Gerst said, referring to the sprawling space station, lit up like gold in the darkness.

The pump ended up in short-term storage during urgent spacewalking repairs to the station's ammonia-cooling system last December. NASA did not want to waste time back then parking the pump in its long-term garage, given all the space-suit worries. So the job was deferred — until now.

With Wiseman looking on, Gerst slid the pump into its permanent slot, a large rectangular sheath formed by white protective blankets, and then bolted it down. "Nice work," Mission Control radioed.

The spacewalkers hustled through their other chores — replacing a camera light and installing a power-relay device for the station's robot-arm railcar — before calling it quits.

As the six-hour excursion drew to a close, Wiseman thanked the hundreds if not thousands of people who worked on NASA's spacewalk recovery team over the past year.

"Alex and I, we'd like to express just our huge gratitude for getting us back into planned EVAs (spacewalks), safely outside, safely back in," Wiseman said. EVA is NASA talk for extra-vehicular activity.

FENCE

handing back responsibility for the fence to the county. Association officials said they could no longer maintain the fence. Vandalism to the fencing was cited as one of the reasons for the group's change of mind about maintaining the fence. Panels of the fencing are missing, presumably because of vandalism.

Shortly after the modification, the county announced it also was not interested in maintaining the fence and was mulling what to do. The county solicited ideas for what to do with the fencing material. Some residents of the subdivision also expressed dismay at the association's decision to hand back responsibility of the fence to the county. Many said they love the fence and would love to see it stay.

County officials said the modified contract clearly stipulates that the property owners cannot come back and ask the county to reinstall the fence.

The 6-foot-high PVC fence was installed in 2013 along the southern boundary of Pine Ridge and stretches on for 3,679 feet on C.R. 486 and was meant to serve as a buffer between the C.R. 486 and the community.

The fence project paralleled work on the roadway. Work on the road and the fence was completed during the summer of 2013.

Brock said the removed fencing is going to storage.

"I have received several good ideas from the public about what to do with it, but we are going to see if one of our departments could put it to good use and more importantly they have to show they have the budget to maintain it because that's the real issue here," Brock added.

Florida, especially its wildlife and natural settings. In her younger years, she was a model in Palm Beach, even modeling swimsuits for Jantzen Swimwear.

"She was as pretty on the inside as she was on the outside," said Curt Bond.

Her friends agreed that she was always kind, always friendly.

"She was unflappable," Kerr said. "She was always cheerful and upbeat and generous with her time."

In local art circles, Dee Witt was known as the "bird artist of Crystal River." She lived on the water and would paint the birds that captured her attention.

"We sometimes had our meetings on her dock, which was nice," Bond said.

She was a boat captain and took people out on the local waters, including art classes for sightseeing and sketching. And she caught her own crabs and turned them into the best crab dip anyone ever ate.

At age 6, she paddled her own canoe. She flew a Piper Cub airplane and loved to fish — but she never ordered fish in a restaurant.

She had a green thumb. She'd take cuttings and plant them in her yard, nurture and cultivate them, like her papaya tree.

“ She was unflappable. She was always cheerful and upbeat and generous with her time. ”

Barbara Kerr

"She lived within beauty and within nature," Mickey Scott said.

In 2009, Witt wrote a letter to the Chronicle thanking everyone who "braved the cold" to attend a Nature Coast Painters art show, because a portion of the proceeds went to the Save Three Sisters Springs fund.

"The fund is very important," she wrote. "Big development will spoil the area and its impact will affect the whole city, as this area is in the heart of town. Back in 1963, we were very upset over development of Banana Island (King Springs, as it is called today). But it was small scale in comparison to the Three Sisters development. The state stepped in and bought not only Banana Island but Parker Island, (the Shallows), Buzzard Island and Warden Key. Consequently, they are beautiful natural islands today!"

"If we can get the state (with our help) to buy Three Sisters Springs, it will remain natural and beautiful also. Everyone in Crystal River should be concerned and help in any way possible."

Dee Witt loved the water she lived near and was inspired by. Her nature-based watercolor paintings were featured in many art shows and in the gallery she had in her home.

Some of her other artist friends offered their comments:

"I knew her through the Citrus Watercolor Club and as a student of hers," Meredith Keene said. "She was an amazingly accomplished artist and a wonderful teacher. She was a very kind and thoughtful person in all ways."

"Dee was a remarkable woman," Barbara Fife said. "I knew Dee as an artist, inspired to paint the beauty around her home on King's Bay. She enjoyed giving leisurely boat tours around King's Bay, pointing out wildlife and sharing stories gathered during her years of living there. On her return to the boat dock she was usually greeted by birds patiently waiting for a treat of fresh fish. Those great birds also inspired many of Dee's paintings."

"Some of us are hobbyists," Dick Krall said, "but Dee was a true artist."

George Washington Carver School, built in the 1920s as Crystal River's first black school.

Now, the building on the corner of Northeast Fifth Street and Northeast Third Avenue will provide local families with charitable and civic activities.

"Our goal is to be done in February of next year to coincide with Black History Month," Walker said.

Walker, with friends and volunteers with the Duke Energy in Action Volunteer Program, went to work on Saturdays at the site.

"My guys would give up Saturday and go out working," Walker said.

His efforts were soon noticed by Stick Williams, president of the Duke Energy Foundation, who also attended Walker's surprise occasion on Monday.

"I saw a video of Harold engaged with this project and it absolutely captured me; a small community like this and a small group trying to make a great thing happen," Williams said.

Walker was recently awarded Duke Energy's highest internal honor, the James B. Duke award.

"We try to recognize employees who have done some extraordinary work," Williams said. "Sometimes it's for employees taking some personal time and doing some amazing things in their community."

Alex Glenn, president of Duke Energy's Florida operations, ventured up from St. Petersburg to honor Walker and his enlisted volunteers at Monday's event.

"It's to show support to Harold and his team who have done this and the amount of blood, sweat and tears that they've put into this and what it's going to do for this community," Glenn said.

While the center is still being constructed, the celebration for Walker could not wait.

"For Harold it's overdue," Coressa Natteal said.

"This is recognizing him."

The Duke Energy Foundation also presented Harold Walker and the community center's board with a $20,000 check — a much-needed donation for a project relying solely on fundraisers or donations.

"I was expecting cake, so I was kind of in a state of shock," Walker said about the donation.

Even though the event was for him, Walker extended his thanks and recognition to the dozens of volunteers who aided him with this project.

"Everybody tries to throw their credit on me," Walker said. "But every Saturday, we're all at the center."

Donations to the George Washington Carver Community Center construction project can be made by visiting its website at www.gwcarvercitrusco.com.

Florida

Up to our eyeballs in... newspaper readers?

Florida is home to an estimated 1.3 million alligators. That's one gator for every 14 people in the state! But that figure pales in comparison to the 5.1 million Floridians who read a daily newspaper yesterday. And if yesterday was Sunday, the number of adults perusing a paper jumps to 7.2 million. That's half of all Floridians! Like alligators, newspapers have been around a long time, and like alligators they aren't going anywhere.

If you're a reader, you're in good company!

And if you're an advertiser, you can take a big bite of profit pie using Florida newspapers.

nation's growing and aging population, Anderson said.

■ The infant mortality rate dropped again slightly, to a new low of 5.98 per 1,000 births. That's a historic low, but the U.S. infant mortality rate continues to be higher than in most European countries.

■ Death rates for blacks and whites dropped but held steady for Hispanics. However, Hispanic death rates remain lower than the black and white numbers.

■ The 10 leading causes of death remained the same, with heart disease and cancer topping the list. Suicide is the 10th.

The suicide rate rose more than 2 percent, to 12.6 per suicide deaths per 100,000 American. That's the highest it's been since 1987, when the rate was 12.8.

Some research suggests suicides increase during hard economic times, but this trend has persisted before, during, and after the recession of 2007-2009. Some experts have said the sale and abuse of prescription painkillers in the last decade have been a contributing factor.

Whatever the reason, "it's kind of surprising," said Solveig Cunningham, an Emory University researcher who has studied death rates during eras of financial hardship.

Judge approves sale of Revel casino

Associated Press

CAMDEN, N.J. — A federal bankruptcy judge on Tuesday approved the sale of Atlantic City's former Revel Casino Hotel for 5 cents on the dollar to a Toronto asset management firm.

Judge Gloria Burns approved the sale to Brookfield Asset Management for $110 million.

She turned aside numerous objections from the losing bidder, Florida developer Glenn Straub, who complained that Revel's lawyers reneged on a promise to share information on competing bids, something Revel has denied.

"The best news is Revel is going to reopen as a casino," said John Cunningham, one of Revel's attorneys. "It's not going to be a university."

That was a thinly veiled swipe at one of the offbeat uses Straub had proposed for the property, including a so-called genius university where the world's top minds would attack the planet's biggest problems — with or without a casino.

Although Straub said he intended to make a higher bid, he did not do so during the auction and declined to do so at Tuesday's hearing. Cunningham said the company decided to take Brookfield's bid in an all-night auction rather than wait for a possible new bid by Straub a week later.

"This is a disgruntled losing bidder," he told the judge. "Mr. Straub had to put his money where his mouth is. He didn't do it. Our decision was to take the bird in the hand. It was too much money to risk."

Revel president Scott Kreeger said he was "excited by the decision of the court."

"We conducted a comprehensive sale process that maximized the value to the estate," he said. "Brookfield is a highly regarded company with extensive gaming experience. Their experience would give Revel a strong new owner with whom to chart a new course for success."

The casino cost $2.4 billion to build and never turned a profit. It closed Sept. 2 after just over two years of operation.

It was one of four Atlantic City casinos to go out of business this year, and a fifth, the Trump Taj Mahal, could close Nov. 13.

During the auction, Straub complained that he suffers from a serious medical issue and had left his medication in Florida, jeopardizing his health. He didn't specify what kind of medical issue he had.

"I was wandering up and down the streets, which is what caused my medical condition," Straub told the judge in complaining about the duration of the auction and the 6 a.m. deadline that Brookfield set for acceptance of their bid. "It was cold, high anxiety. This is life and death here. How can they keep continuing to do this?"

Straub also objected to being told at 3:45 a.m. that any new bid he might make had to be received by 5 a.m. because Brookfield made its bid contingent on being accepted by 6 a.m. He said he couldn't reach his financial advisers at that hour.

"I don't know if I knew my name at 5:30 in the morning," he said.

Straub's attorney said he remains interested in other development opportunities in Atlantic City.

At 95 percent off, Revel casino sale quite a steal

Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — A Toronto-based asset management firm won a bankruptcy auction for the former Revel Casino Hotel by bidding 5 cents on the dollar for Atlantic City's newest casino.

Revel cost $2.4 billion to build, but Brookfield Asset Management will pay $110 million to buy it out of bankruptcy court. In a sale approved Tuesday, Brookfield got the property for a 95 percent discount.

That, by any measure, is a deep discount. At 95 percent off, you could also:

■ Hire Alex Rodriguez, who is due $21 million next year from the New York Yankees, to play third base for you all next season for just over $1 million. (The major league minimum salary for 2014 is $500,000.)

■ Buy a Lamborghini Gallardo (about $200,000 with options) for $10,000. That's cheaper than a Hyundai Accent, a Kia Soul or a Nissan Versa.

■ Own Bird Cay, a private island in the Bahamas listed at $8.9 million, for $445,000, or the price of an average house in many towns at the Jersey shore.

■ Purchase an iPhone 6 (retail about $800 without service contract) for $40 — about what some cellphone cases cost.

■ Sport a Gucci bright diamante handbag (list $1,550) for $77.50.

■ Take a 113-day cruise around the world on the Queen Mary 2 (price $30,000) for $1,500, or about the same as renting a beach house on New Jersey's Long beach Island for a week in the summer.

US stocks slide

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The prospects of weakening global growth weighed on the stock market Tuesday. U.S. growth may be strengthening, but the outlook elsewhere is far less encouraging. On Tuesday the International Monetary Fund trimmed its forecast for global economic growth. A surprisingly weak report on industrial production in Germany, Europe's biggest economy, added to the concerns.

Industrial companies, whose fortunes are closely tied those of the global economy, led the sell-off. Government bonds rallied as investors snapped up safe assets, pushing the yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury note close to its lowest level of the year.

After a weak September, the slump in stocks is showing no signs of abating in October. The Standard & Poor's index has now dropped almost 4 percent since closing at a record Sept. 18.

"Investors have become a bit more cautious about earnings and about the pace of global growth," said Kate Warne, a principal at Edward Jones, an investment firm. "That reassessment is leading to a bit more caution on stocks."

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 29.72 points, or 1.5 percent, to 1,935.10. The index closed at a record 2,0

BEING PROACTIVE

If it sounds too good to be true, it likely is

It happens all the time: someone is thrust suddenly into the role of managing family financial and household business — with little or no preparation or skill to handle it. Especially with the emotional trauma of a spouse's death or disability, the person is vulnerable and probably not making the best decisions. Often, this person is a senior.

THE ISSUE:

Seniors are vulnerable to con artists and unexpected life situations.

OUR OPINION:

Help is available, but planning is also needed.

Con artists and other bad guys in our world seem to have a homing instinct for these folks, targeting them in scams, outright crimes or just plain bad deals. But even perfectly legal transactions can be so complex; think health care here, or major purchases — when otherwise levelheaded individuals become flummoxed.

Is help available? Absolutely.

First, we're fortunate to have an active Seniors vs. Crime (SVC) program here in Citrus County. SVC is a non-profit organization that operates as a Special Project of the Florida Attorney General's office. Since it began here in 2002, the program — overseen by the Citrus County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) and staffed by trained volunteers — has recovered some $2.4 million for clients, including more than $67,000 in just the last month.

The Citrus SVC program currently operates three days a week from a storefront in Beverly Hills. Volunteers are ready to talk with anyone who thinks they've been taken advantage of, feels someone has cheated them out of money or not delivered what was promised, or just needs another eye to review a vendor's contract proposal.

Lee Alexander, senior affairs coordinator for the sheriff's office, took over the SVC program this summer. He hopes to increase the days and hours that the office is open and implement outreach initiatives to make the service more accessible.

Ultimately, though, seniors as well as soon-to-be-seniors should take responsibility for proactively helping themselves. As the Seniors vs. Crime team says, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Refuse to be pushed into decisions or actions. Don't reveal personal information. Don't sign contracts you don't understand. Get advice if you're not sure how to proceed.

Take the longer view and act now to plan for major life issues. Find a trusted attorney to provide advice and draw up not just a will and living will, but also a HIPAA (medical information) release, a designation of health care surrogate and a durable power of attorney. Have the delicate family conversations and make decisions before a crisis erupts. Create an inventory of important household information and details on services. Know how to access and use important financial tools, and arrange ahead of time with a trusted friend or adviser if you anticipate requiring assistance. Develop a network of informed acquaintances to share information and resources for the variety of needs that arise with major life events.

- Citrus County's Seniors vs. Crime is looking for volunteers to join the seniors-helping-seniors program. With the addition of just three more volunteers, the program can add a fourth day of operation to its weekly schedule.
- Interested? Contact the volunteer coordinator, Deputy Andy McEwen at 527-3701, or get a volunteer application at any Sheriff's Office facility, and indicate on it your interest in working for Seniors vs. Crime.
- At least 10 hours of training is required, with more available as needed.
- Volunteers are asked to donate at least one five-hour work day per week with Seniors vs. Crime, though there is some flexibility.

Refunding $54 million

Regarding Oct. 3's Chronicle headlines, second line states, "Also orders Duke to credit customers $54 million for costs associated with un-built nuke plant." Sounds like we'll be getting a check in the mail. Wrong. The last line of the article states, "The $54 million will go towards reducing the balance, which will reduce the time the monthly fee is added to power bills." I called Duke. Staff has not been given instructions on what $54 million credit or "reducing the balance" — what balance? — means.

Helping through osmosis

A Sound Off today says we have homeless people in the woods some with children yet the county will build a shelter for animals and nothing for the people. I know of homeless people at campsites who have animals that need help. Since we do care about animals, perhaps if we provided care for the animals at homeless shelters, we might incidentally help some of our people.

THE CHRONICLE invites you to call "Sound Off" with your opinions about local or statewide subjects. You do not need to leave your name, and have less than a minute to record. COMMENTS will be edited for length, libel, personal or political attacks and good taste. Editors will cut libelous material. OPINIONS expressed are purely those of the callers.

Wisconsin governor key GOP race

Of course it's important which party controls the House and Senate. But for Republicans concerned about the party's 2016 presidential prospects, one key race this November isn't for control of Capitol Hill. It is, somewhat improbably, the fight for governor of Wisconsin.

Democrats have been gunning for incumbent Gov. Scott Walker since he and the Republican-controlled state legislature passed Act 10 — a measure curbing the collective bargaining powers of some public workers — forcing them to contribute more for their health care and pensions, and ending the automatic collection of union dues.

It's hard to remember the incredible intensity that surrounded passage of Act 10 three years ago. Democratic lawmakers fled the state rather than allow a vote on it. Protesters took over the state capitol. There was an ugly Supreme Court fight. But it became the law.

In the years since, Act 10 has been very good for the state budget. The measure has saved the state somewhere between $2 billion and $3 billion, mostly in pension costs.

On the other hand, Act 10 has been very bad for public-sector unions. "We've lost 70 percent of our membership in the state," Lee Saunders, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, told The Washington Post recently. Teachers' unions have also been hit hard.

Walker's law is the most devastating blow ever struck to union domination of public services. It is probably not an exaggeration to say that revenge-seeking organized labor will pursue Walker to the grave, and perhaps beyond. This year, AFSCME, the AFL-CIO and others will spend tens of millions, perhaps more than $100 million, in an effort to unseat him in favor of Democrat Mary Burke.

"We have a score to settle with Scott Walker," Saunders told the Post. "He took collective bargaining away from us. He stole our voices, in a state where we were born."

The rhetoric around the Wisconsin campaign reflects its intensity. During a visit to Milwaukee earlier this month, Democratic National Committee chairwoman Debbie Wasserman Schultz said: "Scott Walker has given women the back of his hand ... What Republican tea party extremists like Scott Walker are doing is they are grabbing us by the hair and pulling us back."

Wasserman Schultz later apologized, but she had gotten her message out.

Apart from politics — or rather, in a different arena of politics — Walker has been the target of two investigations by state prosecutors who seem determined to bring him down. The first probe did not touch

Walker, and a second investigation — into allegations he illegally coordinated with conservative groups during the recall fight — has been stopped at least temporarily by a federal judge.

The prosecutions seem to fit the definition of "lawfare" — that is, the use of legal action to pursue political goals. Veteran legal writer Stuart Taylor recently reported the prosecutor in the case may have been motivated by appeals from his wife, a school union shop steward who had been "repeatedly moved to tears by Walker's anti-union policies."

So Walker has a lot of fights on a lot of fronts. But the biggest by far is re-election.

The race is important to the national GOP for two reasons. One is that a Walker victory would validate and solidify Act 10, while a loss would undermine it. The second reason is that Walker may well be a contender for the 2016 Republican presidential nomination — but only if he wins re-election first.

Polls show the race essentially tied. A recent Marquette University survey showed Walker ahead by three percentage points among likely voters, which is within the poll's margin of error. Republicans are right to be nervous.

Of course, despite all he has faced, Walker has prevailed before. The GOP needs him to do it again.

LETTER to the Editor

Other solutions available for fence

In 2008, the county engineer and I, as president of the Pine Ridge Property Owner's Association (PRPOA), negotiated the agreement under which the beige vinyl fence was installed by the county as part of the widening of County Road 486. The agreement required PRPOA to maintain the fence. This fence was intended mostly as a buffer to protect the people of Pine Ridge, but it also was intended to benefit the general public traveling on C.R. 486 by fully screening the items typically stored by homeowners on their rear property lines, such as tractors, lawnmowers, boats, trailers, recreational vehicles, ATVs, dirt bikes and other items. In addition, a continuous, uniform and very high-quality beige vinyl fence is an important benefit to all and clearly is more desirable than a hodgepodge of homeowner fencing along the public right-of-way.

Public Works Department Director Larry Brock was quoted in a Sept. 14 Chronicle story saying this type of vinyl fence is very low maintenance, so the only significant cost of maintenance would be from vandalism. This is correct and obvious to many.

Presently, the vinyl fence to the east of Pine Ridge

Boulevard is in perfect condition and needs no maintenance. The vinyl fence to the west of Pine Ridge Boulevard also is in excellent condition, with the exception of a few vinyl boards that are lying on the ground that just need to be fitted back into the preformed slots in the fence rail.

The Pine Ridge Board of Directors has publicly stated that it will not honor its agreement with the county to maintain the fence, and the county, in response, has said it will remove the fence. In my opinion, the Pine Ridge Board of Directors should act quickly to keep the fence by telling the county that PRPOA will continue to maintain the fence or at least PRPOA should call for a town hall meeting to allow residents to voice their opinions. Many from Pine Ridge want to see the fence remain, and the board could ask for volunteers to spend a few hours to make the repairs. Perhaps this endeavor could be taken up as part of the adopt-a-highway program being undertaken by both the Pine Ridge R/C Electric Airplane Club or by the Pine Ridge Civic Association. Another group that might step forward is the Wildlife Club in Pine Ridge. In the alternative, rather than tear down the fence, the county could use Department of Corrections volunteers to reattach the few boards on the ground back into the fence. The fence is a benefit to both Pine Ridge residents and Citrus County residents, and those in charge should find a way to keep it in place.

Cleaning crew at Ebola site gets national attention

Associated Press

DALLAS — The Fort Worth, Texas, company Cleaning Guys has dealt with hazardous spills. It has cleared bloody crime scenes, including some that involved HIV.

But Garrett Eison, the company's operations manager, said he was initially anxious when the company agreed to take on a job others were reportedly hesitant to do: cleaning up the Dallas apartment where an Ebola patient stayed.

"This is definitely something that would make you a little more nervous," Eison said, though he added that because he knew his company was prepared, "I don't feel worried about it."

Eison was part of a 15-member crew that spent four days at the apartment where Thomas Eric Duncan stayed when he began showing Ebola-related symptoms such as vomiting and diarrhea. They wore protective suits with gas masks as they filled about 140 barrels with items from the home for incineration, including mattresses, the patient's sheets and the entire apartment's carpet.

By the end, logos on the company's black and green trailers — televised nationwide by media camped outside the home — became a recognizable brand across Dallas, where Eison's colleagues have been approached in public and thanked.

The job wasn't easy to fill. At a briefing last week, Texas Health Commissioner David Lakey said that "there's been a little bit of hesitancy for entities to want to do that." On Tuesday, a Dallas County official didn't immediately provide information on how many businesses the county contacted before reaching Cleaning Guys, but the company said it understands that others turned down the job before they got the call.

Duncan arrived in Dallas last month from Ebola-ravaged Liberia and stayed in the apartment with Louise Troh, her 13-year-old son and two nephews until he developed symptoms several days later and was eventually hospitalized. The family was moved to an undisclosed location on Friday.

For the next several days, the crew cleared out the place, including a 26-hour final stretch lasting into Monday. The job required rotating two-person teams after they'd worked for 40 minutes to avoid exhaustion. They disposed of most of the family's belongings but were able to set aside items such as passports, a laptop, a family Bible, trophies, photographs and other keepsakes.

Company owner Erick McCallum said that for the job they set up a "little city" outside the apartment that included food, portable toilets and a place for workers to rest. They also made sure workers were properly hydrated and had their blood pressure under control.

McCallum said his crew didn't have any specific training for Ebola, which is spread by contact with bodily fluids and has killed more than 3,400 people in West Africa. But he noted his company's previous work prepared them for what he calls his business' most high-profile job.

The workers consulted with Dallas County and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control to ensure everyone was safe.

"It comes down to biohazard training," he said. "The steps and precautions taken are basically the same."

Family disturbed by Ebola patient's appearance

Can only be seen via video

Associated Press

DALLAS — The family of a man diagnosed with the first U.S. case of Ebola again visited him at the hospital Tuesday but declined to view him via video the last time had been too upsetting.

Relatives of Thomas Eric Duncan glimpsed him using a video system at Dallas' Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital on Monday. But when they returned anew, this time with the Rev. Jesse Jackson, they decided such images were too much.

"What we saw was very painful. It didn't look good," said Duncan's nephew, Josephus Weeks.

Weeks said he and Duncan's mother were unable to sleep after seeing Duncan's face.

The hospital said Duncan is in critical condition and is sedated but stable. He is on a breathing machine and kidney dialysis. Duncan's liver function, which declined over the weekend, has improved, though doctors say it may it may not stay that way.

David Lakey, commissioner of Texas' Department of State Health Services, walked the hospital ward housing Duncan, which is otherwise vacant. He said security and medical officials wear gowns, double gloves and masks and are following protocols on removing them and showering when they leave the ward.

"They are doing their work very safely," Lakey said.

Three share Nobel for new LED

Associated Press

STOCKHOLM — An invention that promises to revolutionize the way the world lights its homes and offices — and already helps create the glowing screens of mobile phones, computers and TVs — earned a Nobel Prize on Tuesday for two Japanese scientists and a Japanese-born American.

By inventing a new kind of light-emitting diode, or LED, they overcame a crucial roadblock for creating white light far more efficiently than incandescent or fluorescent bulbs. Now LEDs are pervasive and experts say their use will only grow.

“Incandescent light bulbs lit the 20th century; the 21st century will be lit by LED lamps,” the Nobel committee said in announcing its award to Japanese researchers Isamu Akasaki and Hiroshi Amano and naturalized U.S. citizen Shuji Nakamura.

Hiroshi Amano

Their work, done in the early 1990s, led to a fundamental transformation of technology for illumination, the committee said. And when the three arrive in Stockholm to collect their awards in early December, “they will hardly fail to notice the light from their invention glowing in virtually all the windows of the city.”

Nakamura, 60, is a professor at the University of California, Santa Barbara. Akasaki, 85, is a professor at Meijo University and Nagoya University in Japan, while Amano, 54, is also at Nagoya. Akasaki and Amano made their inventions while working at Nagoya, while Nakamura was working separately at the Japanese company Nichia Chemicals.

The Nobel award in chemistry will be announced Wednesday, followed by the literature award on Thursday, the Nobel Peace Prize on Friday and the economics prize on Monday.

Worth $1.1 million each, the Nobel Prizes are always handed out on Dec. 10, the anniversary of prize founder Alfred Nobel’s death in 1896. Besides the prize money, each laureate receives a diploma and a gold medal.

Syrian town poised to fall

Associated Press

Turkish Kurds run in the outskirts of Suruc on Tuesday, at the Turkey-Syria border, to avoid the effect of tear gas fired by Turkish forces to disperse them after they gathered, as fighting intensified between Syrian Kurds and the militants of Islamic State group, in nearby Kobani, Syria.

Coalition strikes have done little to blunt Islamic group’s offensive

Associated Press

MURSITPINAR, Turkey — Islamic State fighters were poised to capture a strategic Syrian town on the Turkish border, Turkey’s president warned Tuesday, even as Kurdish forces battled to expel the extremists from their footholds on the outskirts.

The outgunned Kurdish fighters struggling to defend Kobani got a small boost from a series of U.S.-led airstrikes against the militants that sent huge columns of black smoke into the sky. Limited coalition strikes have done little to blunt the Islamic State group’s three-week offensive, and its fighters have relentlessly shelled the town in preparation for a final assault.

Warning that the aerial campaign alone was not enough to halt the Islamic State group’s advance, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan called for greater cooperation with the Syrian opposition, which is fighting both the extremists and forces loyal to Syrian President Bashar Assad.

“Kobani is about to fall,” Erdogan told Syrian refugees in the Turkish town of Gaziantep, near the border. “We asked for three things: One, for a no-fly zone to be created; Two, for a secure zone parallel to the region to be declared; and for the moderate opposition in Syria and Iraq to be trained and equipped.”

Erdogan’s comments did not signal a shift in Turkey’s position: He has said repeatedly that Ankara wants to see a more comprehensive strategy for Syria before it commits to military involvement in the U.S.-led coalition.

Turkish tanks and other ground forces have been stationed along the border within a few hundred yards of the fighting in Kobani, also known as Ayn Arab, but have not intervened. And while Turkey said just days ago that it wouldn’t let Kobani fall, there’s no indication the government is prepared to make a major move to save it.

Since mid-September, the militant onslaught has forced some 200,000 people to flee Kobani and surrounding villages, and activists say more than 400 people have been killed in the fighting. It has also brought the violence of Syria’s civil war to Turkey’s doorstep.

Capturing Kobani would give the Islamic State group, which already rules a huge stretch of territory spanning the Syria-Iraq border, a direct link between its positions in the Syrian province of Aleppo and its stronghold of Raqqa, to the east. It would also give the group full control of a large stretch of the Turkish-Syrian border.

Millions may qualify for health law waivers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans may qualify for waivers from the most unpopular part of President Barack Obama’s health care overhaul. But getting that exemption could be an ordeal.

Community groups are concerned about a convoluted process for waivers from the law’s tax penalty on people who remain uninsured. Not everyone is complaining, however: Tax preparation companies are flagging it as a business opportunity.

The law’s requirement that Americans carry health insurance remains contentious. Waivers were designed to ease the impact.

But while some exemptions seem simple, others will require math calculations.

Some involve sending in the application — by mail — and supporting documents, such as copies of medical bills, police reports, obituaries, utility shut-off notices — even news articles. Consumers will have to dig up the documentation — it’s not like filing the W-2s they get from employers.

Two federal agencies have roles, each with its own waivers and time schedules. Some people will apply directly to the Internal Revenue Service when they file their 2014 tax returns next year. They’ll use a new Form 8965.

Others can start now and seek an exemption through Health Care.gov. If it’s approved, they’ll get a number to put on their IRS form later on.

It will all come to a head this tax-filing season.

Hailed by Democrats as the fulfillment of historical aspirations for covering all Americans, the Affordable Care Act has turned out to have multiple issues. The debut of online insurance markets last fall became an embarrassment for the White House. It took two months to get the website working reasonably well.

FBI investigating swastikas at Georgia frat house

Emory University officials said the FBI has joined an investigation into swastikas that were painted on the exterior of a historically Jewish fraternity house at the Georgia school.

The FBI has launched a federal civil rights investigation of the graffiti painted on the Alpha Epsilon Pi house.

University officials have said the fraternity house was targeted early Sunday morning, shortly after the end of the observance of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur. Alpha Epsilon Pi is a global Jewish fraternity with headquarters in Indianapolis, according to a description on its website.

Anyone with information on the graffiti is asked to call the FBI’s Atlanta Division.

Drug agency sued over its fake Facebook account

WASHINGTON — The Drug Enforcement Administration set up a fake Facebook account using photographs and other personal information it took from the cellphone of a New York woman arrested in a cocaine case in hopes of tricking her friends and associates into revealing incriminating drug secrets.

The Justice Department initially defended the practice in court filings but now says it is reviewing whether the Facebook guise went too far.

Sondra Arquiatt’s Facebook account looked as real as any other. It included photos of her posing on the hood of a sleek BMW and a close-up with her young son and niece. She even appeared to write that she missed her boyfriend, who was identified by his nickname.

But it wasn’t her. The account was the work of DEA Agent Timothy Sinnigen, Arquiatt said in a federal court lawsuit. The case is scheduled for trial next week in Albany, New York, court records show.

Some conservative states balk at gay marriage move

The U.S. Supreme Court’s refusal to hear appeals on same-sex marriage bans is spawning diverging responses in the states indirectly affected by the move.

Conservative places such as Kansas and Wyoming are for now refusing to issue marriage licenses to gay couples. In more liberal outposts such as Colorado, gay marriage is officially legal.

Officials in the conservative states acknowledge they’ll have to reassess once legal challenges directly target their distinct state bans. For instance, South Carolina’s attorney general said if a court specifically rules against its gay marriage ban, he’ll then decide how to proceed.

India, Pakistan exchange fire over Kashmir border

Indian and Pakistani troops have fired bullets and mortar shells across the border between Kashmir and Pakistan for a second day, with both accusing the other of provoking the violence.

Police in both countries said troops exchanged fire for hours early Tuesday, killing a Pakistani man and injuring 22 others.

Firing across the border on Monday killed nine civilians and prompted tens of thousands of villagers to flee for safety.

The two countries have fought two wars since 1947 over their competing claims to the Kashmir region.

Indian police official K. Rajendra said the bombardment occurred along the border between Pakistan’s Punjab province and the Indian-controlled portion of Kashmir. Pakistan also controls part of Kashmir further north, but no violence was reported there overnight.

Committee OKs $49 million for Ebola mission

A United Nations committee has approved $49 million in funding for the global body’s unprecedented emergency mission to combat Ebola.

The General Assembly budget committee on Tuesday adopted a resolution supporting the U.N. secretary-general’s funding request, which is expected to cover operations through the end of December.

This is the first mission the U.N. has created in response to a public health crisis. The World Health Organization said Ebola has killed more than 3,400 people in West Africa and infected at least twice that many.

Train derails, catches fire

A Canadian National Railway Company freight train carrying flammable goods derailed in central Saskatchewan on Tuesday and caught fire.

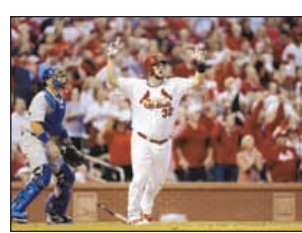

The Saskatchewan government said the derailment happened near the small community of Clair. About 50 people were evacuated.

Provincial officials said hazardous materials crews were en route. CN spokesman Jim Feeny said the fire is coming from petroleum distillate, which spilled from two of the derailed cars. Petroleum distillates are often made into diesel, kerosene, heating oil and jet fuel.

Feeny said the crew was not injured. He said the train was made up of three locomotives pulling 100 cars and that 26 of them derailed Tuesday morning. He said 60 of the cars were empty and forty were carrying goods including six carrying dangerous goods. Besides the two carrying petroleum distillate, two were carrying hydrochloric acid and two were carrying caustic soda.

CRYSTAL RIVER — This outcome was almost predictable.

The top two volleyball teams in 5A-6 clashed Tuesday in a five-set match in which neither was willing to surrender. In the end, Crystal River scored six of the final seven points to edge Lecanto in the fifth-set tiebreaker, 15-9.

Although Lecanto dominated Crystal River in a straight-set victory earlier this season at Lecanto, it was anticipated that this meeting would be much closer — and it was, the Panthers winning the first set 25-23, the Pirates getting victories in the next two, 25-13 and 25-23, then Lecanto deadlocking it with a fourth-set triumph, 25-18.

The result is that both Lecanto, host of the district tournament this season, and Crystal River finish tied atop 5A-6 with 5-1 district marks. Lecanto is 12-5 overall, the Pirates are 14-8.

“I think our defense really stepped up today,” Crystal River coach Mike Ridley said. “When we played real well, in particular in the second, third and fifth sets, our defense stepped up. Our back row was getting the ball up to our setter, and Kaite (Eichler) was able to get the ball up to our hitters where they could do something with it.”

“The intensity was there. I’ve got four seniors who are playing for a chance to be district champions. Lecanto has some

Lecanto's Alford running toward return to state meet

Sam Alford said one day he would like to become a psychiatrist.

Then, perhaps, he can figure out why he delights in pounding the pavement as a high school cross country runner.

For now, the Marion, Indiana, native is working on leading his Lecanto boys team back on the journey to the state meet this November in Tallahassee.

The high school senior ran a season-best time of 17:34 Saturday at the Land O'Lakes Gator Invitational at Crews Lake Park to place 17th.

Last year at state, Alford finished 89th in Class 3A with a clocking of 17:16.95.

He plans to attend Taylor College in Indiana, major in biology and probably go to medical school. He said he has a 3.8 cumulative grade point average.

“I definitely want a cross country scholarship,” he said.

He said he enjoys his running, as he also runs track and plays tennis.

Under his leadership, and coach Rozelle Lattin's emphasis on pack running, Lecanto finished fifth out of 32 teams Saturday with 183 points.

Woods shines

The big surprise Saturday was the performance of Mackenzie Woods of Lecanto. The sophomore took fifth at the Gator Invitational with a personal best of 17:05.

His was the best time this year by a Citrus County cross country runner and there was stiff competition.

Alford ran a 17:34 for 17th and Greg Buettner finished 40th with an 18:27, as the Lecanto boys were fifth overall out of 32 teams.

Crystal River's Gunnar Consol finished 70th with a 19:07. The Pirates were 18th with 502 points.

Citrus's Israel Diaz was 89th with a 19:39. Citrus was 22nd with 678 points.

Russo handled Beat the Sheriff

LARRY BUGG

Caleb Russo knew just the right way to prepare for the Beat the Sheriff 5K Race.

The night before, he partied like a rock star at the Crystal River High homecoming dance until late.

Then, he and his Dad, Robert, dragged themselves out of bed to run the race Sept. 27 at the old Inverness Courthouse.

Russo may have found a good technique.

The 16-year-old Albany, New York, native finished second in the race with a time of 18:45 and planned to take part in a competitive soccer match later in the day.

A fine student, the junior has a 3.6 grade point average. He lives in Inverness, but is a student at the Crystal River High Health Academy.

He is also the number one runner on the Crystal River cross country team.

“I do (like beating the Sheriff),” Russo said. “I got number two. I’m good. My Dad (got me going).”

“I was running it, so I figured I might as well get him to run,” said his father.

The younger Russo gives a lot of credit to his coach at Crystal River, Tim Byrne.

“He helps you to get motivated,” Caleb said. “He knows his running.”

Caleb is hoping for a scholarship, either for soccer or academics.

Now, if he can just find a dance to attend before his upcoming cross country meets.

Frazier, Wuerffel enshrined

Associated Press

ATLANTA — It's been nearly 20 years, and Tommie Frazier is still trading jabs with Danny Wuerffel.

The former quarterbacks at Nebraska and Florida have plenty of goodwill for each other, too, as they were enshrined Tuesday night in the College Football Hall of Fame.

Frazier and Wuerffel joined 10 former players and two coaches who make up last year's hall of fame class.

Frazier led Nebraska to consecutive unbeaten national title seasons in 1994-95. He finished second in the Heisman Trophy voting as a senior.

Wuerffel won the 1996 Heisman and led the Gators to a national championship that season. The year before, Frazier led Nebraska to a lopsided victory over Florida in the title game matchup at the Fiesta Bowl.

“You play against some of these guys, or you have established friendships, and when it comes to university against university,” Frazier said, “you have so much pride for your school.”

Wuerffel said the “rivalry” with Frazier goes back to their prep days in the Sunshine State. He played at Fort Walton High. Frazier went to Manatee High in Bradenton.

For Wuerffel, who lives a few miles from downtown Atlanta and is executive director of a ministry that helps revitalize impoverished urban neighborhoods, the back-and-forth banter is constant.

Cards sink Kershaw again

St. Louis makes fourth straight trip to NLCS

Associated Press

Associated Press

St. Louis Cardinal Matt Adams celebrates Tuesday after hitting a three-run home in the seventh inning of Game 4 of the NL Division Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers in St. Louis. The Cardinals won 3-2 to take the series 3-1.

"It goes back to the same question: Is there anybody better, even on short rest, and even where he was at that point?" Mattingly said.

Kershaw started on three days' rest for the second time in his postseason career. He was dominant into the seventh, as he was in Game 1, but again started the inning with three straight hits.

The third hit Tuesday came when Adams drove a curveball on Kershaw's 102nd pitch into the right-center bullpen to put St. Louis up 3-2. Adams thrust his hands over his head in the batter's box then jumped several times as he ran down the first base line. A stunned Kershaw bent over on the mound, head hung and hands on his knees.

"I had a pretty good idea that it was gone," Adams said.

Kershaw allowed one homer to left-handed hitters while going 21-3 with a 1.77 ERA in the regular season. He gave up two to the Cardinals, with Matt Carpenter connecting in the opener. The left-handed ace is 0-3 with a 9.72 ERA in his last three postseason appearances, including St. Louis' clinching Game 6 victory in the NLCS last year.

Reliever Marco Gonzales earned his second victory of the series, after getting treated for a nosebleed. The rookie lefty got Adrian Gonzalez on a groundout to end the seventh and strand two runners.

Pat Neshek worked a perfect eighth for the second straight game and Rosenthal pitched the ninth for a second straight day, receiving two visits to the mound from catcher Yadier Molina and one from the pitching coach after a shaky start to the inning.

Kershaw had yielded only one hit through six innings and struck out nine, including three in a row in the sixth.

But Matt Holliday opened the seventh with a sharp single up the middle off second baseman Dee Gordon's glove, and Jonny Peralta lined another single before Adams homered off a left-hander for the first time since July 7.

The Cardinals had an NL-low 105 homers this season and left-hander batters had only eight homers against lefty pitching. But lefties hit five off Dodgers southpaws in four playoff games.

Miller matched Kershaw into the sixth, when the Dodgers started the inning with two hits. They scored a run on Matt Kemp's double-play grounder and added another on Juan Uribe's RBI single against Seth Maness.

But Los Angeles wasted a chance to add on when Andre Ethier, playing in place of Yasiel Puig, was picked off third by Molina — a call overturned by video review.

Miller went 5 2/3 innings in his first postseason start.

Both pitchers likely benefited the first few innings from late-afternoon shadows mixed with brilliant sunlight.

Kershaw piled up five strikeouts the first time through the order. The Cardinals got the ball out of the infield for the first time on Carpenter's routine fly on a checked swing leading off the fourth.

Sticking to their guns

Hosmer, Moustakas finally pay off, leading Royals into ALCS

Associated Press

Associated Press

LEFT: Kansas City Royals' Mike Moustakas takes off for first base but is thrown out by Los Angeles Angels catcher Chris Iannetta, rear, Oct. 3 in the eighth inning in Anaheim, Calif. RIGHT: Kansas City Royals first baseman Eric Hosmer connects with the ball for a 2-run home run against the Los Angeles Angels on Sunday during the third inning of Game 3 in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.— The expectations that accompanied Mike Moustakas and Eric Hosmer were largely unfair, and anybody in the Kansas City Royals front office would probably be willing to admit it.

Moustakas was the second overall pick in the 2007 first-year player draft. Hosmer went third overall the following year. Together, the third baseman and first baseman were general manager Dayton Moore's cornerstones in his plan to build a contender.

Yet even through this summer, they struggled. Moustakas spent months trying to get his batting average over .200, even getting banished to the minor leagues. Hosmer experienced a power outage, rarely taking a pitch deep.

Perhaps now, they are finally living up to those expectations.

Moustakas hit the go-ahead home run in the 11th inning in Game 1 of their AL Division Series against the Angels. Hosmer hit a two-run shot in the 11th inning the next night. And in the clincher on Sunday night, both of them went deep in an 8-3 victory.

"It's times like this that we've been prepared for, and were preparing for in the minor leagues for a long time," said Hosmer, who hit .270 with nine homers in the regular season.

"A big asset or a big characteristic when Dayton drafts guys is character, and I think every single person in that locker room is showing that right now with the way we've been battling back, the way we've been in some holes and we've had our season on the line," Hosmer said. "It's the guys that aren't going to quit, the guys that believe they can do it."

Guys like Moustakas, whose ability to hit home runs made him too good for the Royals to pass up. He was plucked out of California's Chatsworth High School one pick after Tigers ace David Price, and ahead of future All-Stars Matt Wieters and Jason Heyward.

He made his professional debut at 18. He rocketed through the minor leagues, reaching Triple-A Omaha three years later. And he quickly moved into the starting lineup at third base.

Moustakas hit .263 during his abbreviated rookie season, and the Royals thought they had found the next George Brett — with more power. But the young slugger regressed the next year, hitting just .242, and even hit just .233 in 136 games last year.

Things may have bottomed out earlier this year, when Moustakas was drawing the ire of Royals fans. Many thought he should be released, but the Royals stuck with him.

He's returning their belief in him this postseason.

"We don't really care how we win ballgames, so long as we get a 'W' at the end of the night, and I think I speak for 25 guys in the clubhouse that will say the exact same thing," Moustakas said. "We go out every night with intentions to win."

Hosmer, who won his first Gold Glove last year, hasn't had nearly as much trouble in his young big league career. But not everything has been as easy as it was during his rookie season with the Royals, when he hit .293 with 19 homers in 128 games.

Hosmer hit just .232 the following year, his swing utterly abandoning him.

He bounced back last year, hitting .302 with a career-high 79 RBIs. And while he has continued to put the ball in play this season, Hosmer's power numbers have been way down — at least, until the start of the playoffs. Now, he's swinging for the fences again.

"Moose and I, we're just — we're winners," Hosmer said. "We want to win. That's all we care about. The numbers, that's for the scoreboard and for the fans to see, but when it all comes down to it, we want to win, and we're going to do anything we can to win."

That's good enough for manager Ned Yost, who has stuck by both of his cornerstones.

"We've always believed in Eric Hosmer. We've believed in Mike Moustakas and everybody we've got on our team," Yost said. "I wouldn't say we're sitting back saying, 'We told you so.' We're just happy for them that they've put us in position to win baseball games."

Gators fight over cleats

GAINESVILLE — Florida coach Will Muschamp has another issue to deal with this week.

According to the University Police Department, reserve quarterback Skyler Mornhinweg, son of New York Jets offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg, and teammate Gerald Willis got into a fight over a pair of missing cleats Monday night.

Mornhinweg sustained "small lacerations on his lower lip" and was taken to a nearby hospital for treatment, according to the police report. Willis had a "small cut on his chin" but did not get medical attention.

Mornhinweg told police the fight started Monday night after his missing cleats were located in Willis' locker. Mornhinweg said he asked Willis about the cleats outside Florida Field following practice, and their discussion escalated into a physical altercation.

Willis was no longer at the scene when police arrived, so an officer met with Willis at the football facility Tuesday. Willis told the officer he couldn't locate his cleats recently, feared being late to practice and grabbed the nearest pair to him.

Willis said the two exchanged words, adding that he felt threatened by Mornhinweg standing over him. Willis said he pushed Mornhinweg, who responded by striking Willis with a closed fist. Willis then struck Mornhinweg in the mouth.

Both players declined to press charges, closing the case.

PIRATES

great hitters, they do some super things with the ball. We needed to adjust where our block is, where we're forcing the ball to go, and I think we did a pretty good job of that."

But this wasn't the type of match that could be summarized in a few words. Lecanto's loss of two key players, Morgan Christian and Jessica Ray, certainly had an impact on the outcome. Morgan Christian injured her ankle in a tournament 10 days ago, and Ray suffered a hairline fracture in her leg. They could return in time for the district tournament.

Both are strong defensively and at passing the ball, the Panthers needed them in a match like this — even though they won the first set after repelling a late Crystal River rally. The Panthers led 22-18 down the stretch in that one, but the Pirates scored five-straight points to grab a 23-22 lead.

However, Lecanto scored three of the final four to earn the opening-set win, getting kills from Annalee Garcia and DeeAnna Mohering in the process.

But whatever went right in the first set for Lecanto didn't make an appearance in the second. Crystal River jumped in front early, 8-2, and they never trailed, although the Panthers got to within 8-6 before an 11-3 Pirate run put the set away.

There were no similar runs in the third set, Crystal River building the biggest lead at 22-17 before Lecanto rallied to score five-straight and knot it at 22-all.

In the end, a Panther return error and then an official's reversal on a call gave the win to Crystal River. With the Pirates up 24-23, Lecanto's Annalee Garcia appeared to tap a shot down the line around a block attempt for a kill. However, after a conference between the officials, it was ruled Garcia carried the ball, giving the point — and the set — to Crystal River.

Lecanto had to hold off a late Pirate rally in set No. 4 to get that victory, letting a 19-15 lead almost slip away. Crystal River scored three straight before an Alice Christian timeout for Lecanto. The Panthers followed with six-straight points, two on Garcia kills.

Although Crystal River led nearly all the way in the 15-point tiebreaker, its advantage was only 9-8 before a late surge brought them the win. Four of the Pirates' final six came on Lecanto miscues.

"One word summarizes this match: errors," coach Christian said. "We gave them 15 of 18 points in one game. Errors, errors, errors, across the board."

"Crystal River came out ready to win. They were hustling, they were athletically better than we were tonight, we just were not moving. We were flat on our feet, we were slow, we were standing up when passing — all the things we teach them not to do. No, I was not happy."

Some of the better performances for Lecanto came from Garcia with 15 kills and three service aces; Shannon Fernandez with 11 kills and nine assists; Olivia Grey with 25 assists and four kills; Mohering with 10 kills; and Erin Smilgen with 22 digs.

For Crystal River, Kaylan Simms finished with 10 kills, six digs, six blocks and two aces; Cassidy Wardlow totaled seven kills, 21 digs, two aces and three blocks; Abby Epstein had eight kills, eight blocks and four aces; Kaite Eichler had 24 assists and 17 digs; Allie Whited with four kills, 15 digs and three blocks; and the defense, ignited by Mercedes Scott with 15 digs, Olivia Townsend with 14 digs and Natalie Ortiz with 12 digs.

Ryder Cup reviewing access inside the ropes

Associated Press

Rickie Fowler plays a shot on the first fairway Sept. 28 during the singles match on the final day of the Ryder Cup at Gleneagles, Scotland.

Associated Press

NAPA, Calif. — For the first two days of the Ryder Cup, only 16 players were on the golf course at the same time.

And they had plenty of company. The greatest growth in golf might be the number of guests allowed inside the ropes at the Ryder Cup.

The access began with the players' wives dressed in uniform. It has expanded significantly in the last decade to include the parents of the players, the parents of the players' wives, other family members of the players, the wives and family members of the caddies. Not to be overlooked was Michael Jordan, a regular at the Ryder Cup.

Some have credentials. Some do not. One person at Gleneagles was the friend of a brother of a player. Other people seen inside the ropes were ... well, no one was sure.

It's not a clean look, especially with overhead views on television. And there were a few complaints from fans behind the ropes who struggled to see.

This has not escaped the attention of Ryder Cup organizers.

"It is an issue that we continue to review and monitor," Kerry Haigh, chief of championships for the PGA of America, said in an email. "As you know, there are a number of different groups that currently are allowed access inside the ropes. ... All categories and numbers are and will be reviewed and may be reduced or eliminated if we collectively feel it will be in the best interests of the Ryder Cup."

SPORTS BRIEF

Former tennis pro and teacher Vic Braden dies

LOS ANGELES — Vic Braden, a tennis player in the late 1940s and early '50s who became one of the nation's top tennis teaching professionals, has died from complications of congestive heart failure. He was 85.

Braden died Monday at his home in the Orange County city of Trabuco Canyon, according to his wife, Melody Braden.

Braden was a 1951 graduate of Kalamazoo College in Michigan, where he was captain of the tennis team and later inducted into the school's athletic hall of fame.

Braden turned pro after college at a time when there were only a few professional tournaments. He eventually joined Jack Kramer on Kramer's fledgling pro tour. Among those Braden played with were Jimmy Evert, the father of Hall of Famer Chris Evert, and George Richey, the father of future pros Cliff and Nancy Richey.

Lecanto High School student Simi Shah, left, and Superintendent of Schools Sandra "Sam" Himmel, right, visited Forest Ridge Elementary School Thursday. Shah requested to follow Himmel around all day to better understand some of the tasks involved in the daily routine of a superintendent. They stopped in one of the kindergarten rooms and helped Caleb Crowe complete a puzzle.

Student shadows superintendent for a day

ERYN WORTHINGTON
Staff writer

What does Superintendent Sandra "Sam" Himmel do all day? That's what Lecanto High School's Simi Shah wanted to discover Thursday as she followed Himmel around the district. "I think it is important for students our age to understand what people put into our school system and how hard the superintendent works to keep everything in order," Shah said. Recently, at a LHS football game, Shah approached Himmel with the request to shadow her for the day. And Thursday was an awakening for the International Baccalaureate program student. "I recommend that Mrs. Himmel take juniors and seniors once a month around to all of the schools and see how the school system works," she said. "It was a really huge eye opener for me. There are a lot of things that happen behind the scene and they work hard to meet the needs of every child." Himmel said along their districtwide tour they discussed facilities, construction, standardized testing, teacher evaluations and "all of the great things that we do besides putting kids in the classroom." "A teacher evaluation should not be based on student performance," Shah said. "Every student performs differently and it is up to the student to motivate themselves to their maximum. Teachers equip students with the knowledge to pass the test, but it is up to the students to exercise that knowledge." Shah developed a middle school tutoring group at Lecanto Middle School. The tutors get community service hours and the middle school students receive free tutoring in any course. However, she didn't recognize the importance of technology in student learning. "I noticed the students are using iPads," Shah said about her tour. "It made me realize that technology is being incorporated in education and therefore it is accelerating their learning. It is a part of our future and children are preparing for that." Even though Shah took a glance into Himmel's daily responsibilities as superintendent, she is going to college to be a local dentist. "It is a safe place that I have been raised in," Shah said. "It is a great community with good people. I feel like our county is growing, but will always be a safe place." One nationwide chain restaurant is helping a local employee succeed in life. The Kentucky Fried Chicken Foundation has selected two-year Inverness team member Kristen Bullock as a recipient of a $2,000 Reach High scholarship. The 2003 Dunnellon High School graduate is currently attending College of Central Florida for a degree in business administration and a dream of opening a Popeye's franchise in Inverness. "It is an accomplishment and a sign that I am going in the right direction," Bullock said. "Plus, the money helps take a lot of pressure off of me with knowing that my schooling is going to get paid. It is expensive." Manager Amanda Dick said Bullock is the first employee from her store to win the scholarship. The Reach Educational Grant Program helps KFC hourly team members and shift supervisors pursue their educational dreams through accredited four-year and two-year colleges, as well as trade/vocational schools. Winners are selected via a competitive application process, according to their website. "Everything helps and you never know when you are going to need the extra money to help get through college," Bullock said. "If you are already close to your goal, you don't want anything to keep you from getting it. It's helping with my tuition and books." Bullock will graduate from CF in May with an associate of art's degree. Contact Chronicle education reporter Eryn Worthington at 352-563-5660, ext. 1334, or eworthington@chronicleonline.com.

Academics with accountability

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran School prepares students for life now, later

ERYN WORTHINGTON
Staff writer

Nestled north of Beverly Hills is a small, but mighty school for parents desiring biblical education for their children. St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church & School only has 72 students enrolled; however, they are academically competitive throughout the county. "For the past three years, we have grown each year by 20 percent," said Principal Kyle Bender. "With the Precious Lambs (the school's preschool) kindergarten readiness testing, we have always done very well. Our preschoolers always score in the top 5 percent in the county." Recently, a Chronicle reporter interviewed Bender for an insight into the school.

Challenging academics

"We offer challenging academics," Bender said. "Parents coming in from other schools commonly say that it is more challenging here. One of the areas that we focus on is to progress the kids forward with academics by testing them and finding out where they are academically, and placing them at an appropriate level. For example, I have some eighth-graders taking high school math right now. It all depends on the student's abilities." Bender said the kindergarten through eighth-grade school is a Christian school with a mission: "To share God's love with the children and every day that happens in the classroom. We want to educate the children for an eternity in Heaven. The other part of our mission is to train them for a successful life on this earth." Academically, they hold students accountable. "We make sure that if you don't have your homework done, you get it done," Bender said. "There is no taking an F and being done. You still have to do it. But it is teaching them to be responsible, independent learners through various means."

Uniforms

And for the first time ever, students are now required to wear uniforms. "Uniforms were implemented for unity, academic and behavioral reasons," Bender said. "They build and encourage the school unity that we have here. It equalizes the children on the same level. And it improves behavior. Children are put into the work mentality." Uniforms are dresses (for the girls), or red or grey polo shirts with khaki or navy blue shorts or pants with belts.

Classroom pickup

Also, parental involvement is essential in the classrooms. "We want our parents in the school," Bender said. "At the end of the day, parents come into the classrooms to pick up their kids. We want the parents in the school. It is their school, too, not just our school. We want them to be able to see what is going on. We stress with our teachers that communication is vital. Every day we get to see the parent and touch base with them on how their student is doing."

Technology

"As far as technology goes, we have interactive SMART Boards in every classroom from grades one to eight," Bender said. "We also have a SMART Response System that encourages active student participation. Our lower-grade students use the iPads to complement the curriculum. We have enough laptops for every student."

Teacher education

"Our teachers participate in in-service times throughout the year as we focus on skill strategy building that they can implement in the classroom," Bender said. "Over the past few years, we have seen a dramatic increase in active student learning."

Textbooks

"The books you would find in a public school would be similar to what you would find here," Bender

YMCA enriching lives after school

Special to the Chronicle

Research shows that children who participate in programs after school are healthier, more successful in academics and often maintain positive behaviors. After school programming with the YMCA is specially geared to achieve these results.

The Y provides programs that are more than just a safe place for kids when school ends. The Afterschool Enrichment program nurtures the potential of each and every child while helping build their confidence and character.

Through programs such as basketball, dance and holiday crafts, the second session of the Y's Enrichment classes will stimulate children's minds and get them physically active to improve their overall healthy development.

"She's always excited when Enrichment is about to start. It's her thing, it's something that makes her feel special," said Sheri DeBarge. "As a single mom, the financial assistance is very beneficial. It helps me give Olivia the chance to participate in as many programs she wants."

The Y believes that programs and services should be available to everyone; because of generous contributions, the Y is able to provide financial assistance on a sliding scale to families who qualify. Full scholarships are available on a first-come, first-served basis through a grant provided by the Suncoast Credit Union Foundation.

The second session of Enrichment classes begins the week of Oct. 20 and will run for six weeks until the week of Dec. 12. Registrations can be submitted to a child's school, emailed to cdigirolamo@suncoastymca.org, or faxed to 888-206-1244 by Oct. 15. For questions regarding the Y's Enrichment Program, call the Y's Administrative Office at 352-637-0132.

said. "However, it is taught from a Christian perspective."

No child forgotten

"We hold students accountable," Bender said. "That's what parents want — their children not to get lost in the school system. That is very easy in a larger school. But here it is easier here with the small school setting."

"We challenge students to use their God-given abilities to the fullest," he said. "We like seeing the kids succeed and we acknowledge that."

The school's drama class will be performing the drama "Trial of the Big Bad Wolf" on Friday. For more information, call 352-489-3027.

Launching a New Age of Exploration

What's Up in Space?

The residents of Earth share a dream of exploring the lands and skies far from our home planet. Government groups and private industries are joining forces to launch a new chapter in the Space Age.

More than 100 countries have some type of space program. The world has come together in space.

To learn more about current and future missions, The Mini Page talked with experts from NASA.

U.S. Navy personnel approach an Orion test module to practice Orion recovery.

Beyond Earth orbit

For the first time since the last Apollo missions in the 1970s, people are preparing to leave low-Earth orbit. This December, NASA will launch the first test flight of Orion, its first human spacecraft since the space shuttle.

Orion is designed to eventually carry people into deep space, to an asteroid and maybe to Mars.

People have been flying to the International Space Station, or ISS, but that is in low-Earth orbit, about 220 miles above the planet. Orion's first test flight will launch it to about 3,600 miles above Earth. An older rocket model will launch Orion's first test because SLS will not be ready.

The December Orion flight will test the heat shields as it streaks back to Earth at 20,000 miles per hour. No crew members will be on board this first flight.

Orion upgrades

Orion was built with major upgrades and new technology. Designed for a crew of at least four, it will be the safest, most advanced spacecraft ever built.

Orion's new computer system will be 25 times faster than the computers on the ISS and 4,000 times faster than Apollo's.

The most important new addition to Orion is the launch abort system. If something goes wrong, it will be able to pull the crew away to safety immediately. No other spacecraft has had this safety feature.

This art shows the launch abort system (far right) still attached.

Destination: Deep space

Orion's first mission will be to capture a small asteroid and deliver it to lunar orbit. The asteroid will orbit the moon until NASA can send humans to explore it.

The asteroid trips will help NASA test people's ability to perform jobs needed for travel in deep space.

NASA tests the engine of a new Space Launch System, or SLS, for sending Orion into deep space. Its first flight test will be about 2018. In 2021, the SLS will launch Orion with a crew on board.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe Sweet Baked Tortilla Chips

Astronauts eat tortillas instead of bread in space!

- You'll need:
- Cooking spray (butter-flavored works best)
 - 8 (6-inch) corn tortillas, cut into 8 wedges each
 - 1 1/2 to 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- What to do:
1. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Coat a large baking sheet with cooking spray.
 2. Arrange the tortillas on baking sheet and spray surface of them with cooking spray. Sprinkle the sugar and cinnamon over the tortillas.
 3. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes, until the tortilla chips are golden brown and crispy. Serves 4.
- You will need an adult's help with this recipe.*

Meet Meryl Streep

Meryl Streep stars as Chief Elder in the movie "The Giver." She has starred in many movies, including "Mamma Mia," "Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events" and "Music of the Heart." She was the voice of Mrs. Fox in the animated movie "Fantastic Mr. Fox" and the voice of Queen in "The Ant Bully."

Meryl, 65, was born in Summit, New Jersey. When she was 12, she began studying to be an opera singer. She was a cheerleader in high school. In college, she studied acting and received an advanced degree in drama from Yale University. She then began acting in plays in New York.

She has earned 18 Academy Award nominations and won an Oscar three times. She was awarded the National Medal of the Arts.

Meryl co-founded the charity Mothers and Others that works to protect the environment. She also supports international women's rights organizations.

Getting Ready for Deep Space

Twins in space

In March 2015, NASA will begin a year-long study of identical twin astronauts. Scott Kelly will spend a year on the ISS. His brother Mark Kelly will stay on the ground.

Comparing test results from the twins will teach scientists more about how spending a long time in space affects the body. A Russian cosmonaut will join Scott in this first year-long study on the ISS. In the 1990s, cosmonauts stayed a year on the earlier Russian space station MIR.

Since the cargo crafts usually burn up when they re-enter Earth's atmosphere, astronauts load their trash on board the crafts before returning them to Earth. The trash is incinerated, or burned, in re-entry.

This fall, the private company SpaceX's Dragon cargo spacecraft will bring back parts and experiments, such as the space-grown lettuce. It has been designed to return to Earth safely, without burning up.

Opening a new chapter

Since the U.S. ended the shuttle program, the Russians, Europeans and Japanese have been responsible for delivering supplies to the ISS. Now two private American companies are also delivering cargo and will begin transporting astronauts.

Buying routine services such as cargo and crew flights from private companies frees NASA to focus on deeper space missions.

Space lettuce

ISS crews have been learning how to deal with the challenges of long-term space missions. One of the challenges is to find food that will stay fresh and tasty for long periods.

Crews have taken the first steps by growing lettuce on board the ISS. But astronauts won't get to eat the first crops. They are sending the lettuce back to Earth to make sure it's safe to eat after growing in space.

Lettuce grows in an ISS capsule called Veggie. Special grow lights make the capsule glow purple.

Mo'ne Davis

For more than 65 years, young baseball players have stepped onto the national stage at the Little League World Series, which is held each August in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

This year, 13-year-old Mo'ne Davis captured the attention of the nation as she helped lead her Taneys Dragons Little League team of Philadelphia to the World Series. Mo'ne, who can throw a 70-mile-per-hour fastball, pitched a three-hit shutout in the Mid-Atlantic regional final to advance Taneys to Williamsport. Once there, she became the first female pitcher to earn a win — another shutout, of course. Millions of Americans watched her games on TV. Quiet confidence and historic accomplishments ultimately led to Mo'ne becoming the first Little Leaguer — male or female — to appear on the cover of Sports Illustrated magazine. It may not be her last, since Mo'ne and others say she's an even better basketball player.

To Mars and Beyond

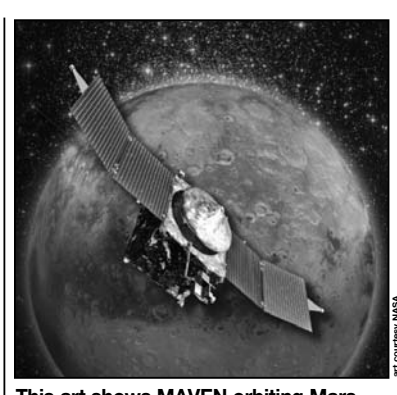

Martian history mysteries

In the last year, the Mars rover Curiosity accomplished its top goal, to gain proof that Mars was once habitable, or able to support life.

More than 3 1/2 billion years ago, liquid water was on Mars. Certain chemicals necessary for life were also present. Experts believe conditions would have been right for life to develop.

Curiosity is now traveling toward Mount Sharp, a mound of sedimentary (seh-duh-MEN-tuh-ree) rock. Sedimentary rock has been formed from layers of sediment, or particles carried by wind or water and deposited on land. Because each layer was deposited at a different time, sedimentary rock forms a kind of time capsule.

As Curiosity drives up the side of Mount Sharp, it will take samples of the different layers. The first region it samples will have the oldest rock. As it rises up the side, it will open up newer and newer chapters in Martian history.

This art shows MAVEN orbiting Mars. MAVEN stands for Mars Atmosphere and Volatile Evolution.

A growing neighborhood

Two new missions reached Mars this September, the U.S. MAVEN and the Indian Mangalyaan orbiters. They joined three other craft already orbiting Mars.

MAVEN will look at how the atmosphere has changed over time, which will give more clues about whether Mars was once habitable. Experts would also like to learn why Mars seems to have lost most of its atmosphere.

Some Earth-based telescopes have seen what looks like methane gas in the Martian atmosphere. This surprised scientists.

Mangalyaan will be discovering if methane really is present. Methane is a sign that there may have been life, but it can also be formed from underground processes.

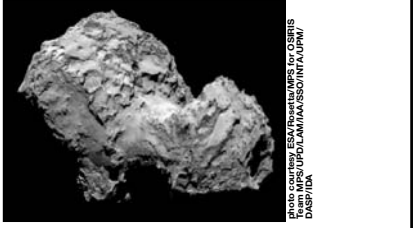

Exploring planets and moons

NASA's JUNO mission is on the way to Jupiter to study its interior. The Cassini spacecraft regularly flies by Saturn's moon Titan, studying its atmosphere and its lakes of methane and ethane.

The Kepler mission has confirmed there is one rocky planet in a habitable zone outside our solar system. Experts believe there are at least 17 billion Earth-size rocky planets in the Milky Way galaxy.

Moon missions

China landed a craft on the moon in 2013 and its rover, Yutu (Jade Rabbit), is collecting lunar dust. It is also planning a 2016 mission to the moon. Four privately funded moon missions are scheduled for 2015.

Rosetta, a European Space Agency mission, entered orbit around a comet in August. Experts were surprised to see that it looked as if two objects had come together to form the comet. In November, Rosetta will be the first mission to land on a comet's surface.

The Mini Page thanks Dr. Dan McCleese, chief scientist for NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and Stephanie Schierholz, NASA Human Exploration and Operations, for help with this issue.

Mighty Funny's Mini Jokes

All the following jokes have something in common. Can you guess the common theme or category?

- Stan: How do astronaut lambs travel?
Stuart: In spacesheeps!
- Sally: How do you park at the space station?
Steve: At a parking meteor!
- Sid: How do you organize a flight to the space station?
Scott: You need to plan-et carefully!

Adopt A
RESCUED PET

Aegir

Special to the Chronicle

Aegir is a darling 22-month-old, neutered Chiweenie. At 12 pounds, he is small, but not delicate (he likes a good romp). He is housebroken, walks well on a leash and is eager to please. Aegir loves people big and small, other dogs, cats and even our bird! This little boy lost his home through no fault of his own and is hoping someone will see how much love he can bring to a new family. This is a very bright and attentive little dog. Adopt A Rescued Pet Inc. does home visits prior to adoptions, so can only adopt to the Citrus County and adjoining county areas. Call 352-795-9550 and leave your name, number and pet's name for a return call. Check www.adoptarescuedpet.com for more pets and the adoption calendar with locations, dates and times.

Protecting plants

Master gardeners' free seminars look at how to keep landscape healthy

Special to the Chronicle

UF-IFAS Citrus County Extension Service October Plant Seminars will discuss protecting landscape plants from cold weather.

Sometimes Mother Nature helps by acclimating plants to cold weather and dormancy. Most times, she does not. Plants have a better chance of withstanding the effects of cold weather if they are healthy and have acclimated and attained dormancy. Regardless, some plants may need protection. This seminar will discuss the best ways to provide cold protection. The remaining October schedule for the free plant seminars is:

- Oct. 8 (today) at 1:30 p.m. at Central Ridge Library, Beverly Hills.
- Oct. 10 (second Friday) at 1:30 p.m. at Coastal Region Library, Crystal River.
- Oct. 14 (second Tuesday) at 1 p.m. at Lakes Region Library, Inverness.
- Oct. 15 (third Wednesday) at 1 p.m. at Citrus Springs Library.

■ Oct. 28 (fourth Tuesday) at 2 p.m. at Homosassa Library.

Master gardener volunteers will be available to answer plant questions, offer solutions to problems and address gardening concerns in general.

Call the UF/Citrus County Extension anytime during business hours at 352-527-5700 (ask for Extension Director BJ Jarvis or any on-duty master gardener) or email MasterG1@bocc.citrus.fl.us.

New season set to begin for Friends at refuge

Summer is about over and the new season for the Friends of Crystal River National Wildlife Refuge is about to begin. Plans for the new year have been slotted into the calendar and the tentative dates are set.

The first event of the year was a member brunch at Sugarmill Woods Country Club on Sept. 13. Our new refuge manager, Andrew Gude, made an informative presentation to the members with an update on the current progress on opening Three Sisters Springs to the public, and the problems and solutions to the bank erosion, the overcrowding in the springs and the effect on the well-being of manatees which, he said, was his major responsibility and focus as a refuge manager.

October begins with annual Refuge Day. This event will be Oct. 25 at Three Sisters Springs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The refuge staff will be in attendance to answer questions and have detailed posters showing the future plans for the refuge. There will be many other conservation organizations with information and displays and the Friends Gift Shop. We will again offer food and drinks for purchase, barbecue favorites prepared by BBQ Masters. There is only handicap parking at Three Sisters (mobility-impaired only); however, visitors can park at King's Bay Plaza (right behind Sonic) and take a free shuttle to the property. Come and enjoy the day. Remember, this is your refuge and the day is free. It may be a bit early in the season, but we can hope that some manatees will join us.

On Nov. 8 and 9, the Friends group will have a booth at the Homosassa Seafood Festival. The booth will be located in front of Kevin Jenkins' Riverworks Gallery in Old Homosassa. Be sure to stop by and say hello.

On Nov. 15, we have scheduled the annual Sunrise Bird/Boat Tour of King's Bay with breakfast. The tour will start at the refuge headquarters on King's Bay Drive at 7 a.m. This event is extremely popular, so make sure to get your reservation in early; space is limited. (see the Bird Tour flyer on page 1 of the newsletter for registration information) The cost will be $20, paid in advance.

The first open house at Three Sisters will be held on Saturday, Dec. 6, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Again, the day is free and by this time of year, there should be some manatees in the sanctuary.

This takes us to Christmas and a New Year will begin.

The first event of the new year will be our annual meeting on Jan. 25, 2015, at 2 p.m. It will again be held at the First United Methodist Church in Homosassa. Our speaker will be Chris Anastasiou, Ph.D., chief scientist, Natural Systems and Restoration, from the Southwest Florida Water Management District. Further information will be distributed in December. Until then, all conservation efforts will be appreciated; remember to support all efforts to save our springs.

Last spring, the Friends again sponsored field trips for the fourth- and fifth-grade students from Homosassa Elementary School. The students were bused to the Salt Marsh Trails for a day of fun and learning. They were introduced to nature with a hands-on program and learned how the Salt Marsh is important to the ecosystem. The Friends, through grants and donations, pay all expenses of this program.

We will offer this program again next spring. It is the Friends' intention to expand this program to at least one other school in Citrus County this year. We need to find additional teachers in order to carry out this effort. If you have teaching experience or just enjoy working with children and would like to be a part of this program, give us a call. It is important to advance our education program into the schools to educate our youths in the importance of the preservation of our environment and wildlife for future generations. If you are interested in this program, please contact us. Our children are the future of the preservation of our wildlife and environment.

On a tearful note, we say goodbye to our Friends of Chazz name. In 2012, when the refuge changed its name from Chassahowitzka to Crystal River National Wildlife Refuge, the Friends also changed its name, but still kept the website and email as Friends of Chazz. This past month, we made the change on our website to www.friendsofcrystalriver.org. Friends of Chazz is still in our heart.

A reminder: Your Friends group is organized to support the mission of the Crystal River National Wildlife Refuge and all funds raised through dues, donations and grants support your local refuge.

Please feel free to contact me should you have any comments or concerns about the Friends and how we meet our goals and mission.

Ross Knudsen is president of Friends of the Crystal River National Wildlife Refuge and can be reached at rosssef@aol.com or 352-382-0525.

 PHILLIP ALDER
 Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Gertrude Stein said, "We are apt to shut our eyes to that siren until she allures us to our death."

When the opponents are in the bidding, they are giving you information about their hands. You may shut your eyes, but do not close your ears. Listen closely and use that data to your benefit. Do not sit there with earmuffs on. (Even a pass may provide positive information, but that is much less common.)

In this deal, East had an interesting decision over two spades: double or three hearts? Double would have kept all three suits in play, but would have almost certainly resulted in a 5-3 heart fit being missed. Preferring to aim for the most likely game, East plunged in with three hearts. Then South understandably took a shot at four spades. West, less understandably, doubled for penalty, telling declarer that the spade break was very bad.

West led the heart 10. East won with his king and tried to cash the ace, but South ruffed. There was a strong case for not touching trumps at all, but at the table declarer led his spade seven and went up with dummy's ace! Now the contract had to fail.

South should have played the spade two from dummy. Then he cashes his diamond tricks and plays a club to dummy's queen. Suppose East wins and leads another heart. Declarer must ruff with his jack. Assume West overruffs and returns a trump. South wins with dummy's nine, and crossruffs the last two tricks.

Knights of Columbus Soccer Championship

Special to the Chronicle

The Knights of Columbus, St. Scholastica Council #14485, congratulate the winners of the 2014 Knights of Columbus Soccer Challenge Championship. These individuals not only showed great ability and accuracy on the soccer field, but also showed remarkable sportsmanship, character and determination. Thirty seven students participated. The winners were Kelly Tallman, 9 years with 95 points – Andrew Smutko, 9 years with 90 points – Amberly Grace, 10 years with 90 points – Daniel Schotter, 10 years with 85 points – Fiona Connor, 11 years with 130 points – Andrew Hayes, 11 years with 95 points – Stephen Schotter, 12 years with 95 points and Devonte Edwards, 13 years with 105 points. The Soccer Challenge is a Supreme Council program. It is open to boys and girls between the ages of 10 to 14. The competition is designed for participants to demonstrate the most basic soccer skill — the penalty kick. Each player is allowed 15 shots at the goal from the penalty line. The goal is divided into five scoring zones and points are awarded depending upon where the ball passes. The winners will go on to compete in the Regional Soccer Challenge. All eight winners received a certificate and a new Knights of Columbus soccer ball. The group picture includes the thirty-seven students, twelve members of the Knights of Columbus, Principal Chris Meyer and Rev. Jo Jo Tejata. Pictured kicking the ball is Amanda Marques.
