NEWS BRIEFS

Gas prices expected to slide

The summer driving season is in full swing, and it opened with the most expensive gas prices in four years, according to AAA-The Auto Club Group.

Fortunately, those prices at the pump are beginning to trickle lower, AAA said.

The state average of $2.87 is 14 cents more than a month ago and 49 cents more than this time last year. The anticipated discount at the pump is being driven by strong declines in the price of oil - which influences about half the price of gasoline.

"Gas prices could drop 10-15 cents, based on recent oil price declines." said AAA spokesman Mark Jenkins. "The discount will not happen overnight, because it usually takes a couple weeks for shifts like this to play out at the pump. However, any downward potential would be wiped out if futures prices suddenly bounce higher."

Billionaire Greene to run for governor

TALLAHASSEE - Billionaire Jeff Greene is jumping into Florida's crowded Democratic primary for governor less than three months before the election.

While a late entry into the race. Greene has enough money to shake up an election where about half the voters are undecided. He filed his paperwork to run Friday, but didn't immediately make a public announcement about the run.

It's not the first political run for Palm Beach real estate tycoon, who lost a U.S. Senate primary eight years ago despite spending $30 million of his own money.

Greene ran for Senate in 2010 and lost by a landslide to then-U.S. Rep. Kendrick Meek despite far outspending the congressman. His campaign was dogged by distractions, including reports that Hollywood Madam Heidi Fleiss was his house guest for a year. There were also news reports about parties on his yacht, which once made a stop in Cuba while the U.S. had a travel ban to the island.

After he lost, he sued what's now the Tampa Bay Times accusing the newspaper of libel during its coverage of the campaign. The newspaper settled the lawsuit in Forbes magazine lists Greene as being worth $3.8 billion.

Snapper season nears for recreational anglers

BUSTER THOMPSON Staff writer

State wildlife officials are the on the brink of holding a 40-day red snapper season for both state and federal waters in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) will open red snapper season for recreational anglers June 11 and close it July 21, according to the FWC.

Those fishing for red snapper from private recreational vessels must have a saltwater fishing license and will need to have "Gulf Reef Fish Angler" designation on their license to target red snapper and other reef fish in state waters of the gulf.

Saltwater fishing license-holders can get the "Gulf Reef Fish Angler" label printed on their license at no cost by visiting GoOutdoorsFlorida. com or by visiting any location that sells licenses.

For-hire fishing charters that don't have a federal reef fish permit may also participate in the 40-day season, but are limited to harvesting snapper in state waters only, according to FWC.

Operations like those must have a 'State Gulf Reef Fish Charter" designation on a license, which can be done at no cost at the Tax Collector's Office. The federal season for forhire charters with federal reef fish permits is June 1 through July 21.

Man charged with strangling woman

SILVER SPRINGS — A Florida man has been charged with choking a woman to death with a phone cord after she found him stealing prescription medications and cash from her bedroom.

Marion County Sheriff's officials said 37-year-old Eric Todd Gay was charged Sunday with first-degree murder. The victim's name has not been released.

Detectives said Gay was staying overnight at the victim's home in Silver Springs. An arrest reports says Gay strangled the woman until she lost consciousness, then killed her by strangulation with the phone cord. Investigators say Gay put her body in the trunk of her car.

The Orlando Sentinel reported that Gay is jailed without bail. It's not clear if he has a lawyer.

Calling all hams, calling all hams. Amateur radio operators wanting to put their far-reaching transmission skills to the test can be a part of the live, on-air American Radio Relay League's (ARRL's) Field Day on June 23 and 24.

Citrus County Emergency Management's Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES) and the Citrus County Amateur Radio Club will host a local ARRL Field Day gathering each day at the county's Emergency Operations Center at 3549 Saunders Way in Lecanto.

Radio enthusiasts — individuals or groups — will get a chance to demonstrate how fast they can set up their equipment and how many of the more than 35,000 other ARRL Field Day participants in the U.S. and parts of Canada they can reach, however they can.

"The whole thing is to show what you can do during an emergency," said Jerry Dixon, ARES emergency coordinator and president of the county's amateur radio club. "What can you do in the next eight hours to get this place communicating?"

Curious members of the public are also invited to attend.

Radio operators can also participate in the field day's "Grid Challenge," which Messages can be sent via Morse code, voice or through digital radios that transmit instantaneously and can send images.

Communications technology surpasses itself year after year, with devices becoming obsolete not long after they're the cutting edge. But one such machine has kept the world's interest through countless other innovations: Ham radios.

Amateur radio operators, nicknamed "hams," are licensed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to tinker with materials and methods to get their messages across on government-approved frequencies.

The license that we get and have to work for allows us to experiment on things," Dixon said. "As long as you don't disrupt another person's service, you get a full board to work with." That privilege is what keeps hams excited about the hobby, ARES and county amateur radio club member Richard Nay-

'We're into new technology, developing new technology," Naylor said. "A lot of new things have been developed by amateurs that are important to the electronics field."

Dixon said cellphone companies got the idea of installing keypads in phones after

Dixon and Naylor also helped build a homemade antenna made out of a few PVC pipes for structure, connected copper wiring for signal relaying and cement-filled buckets for weights.

For more information about getting licensed, visit www.arrl.org/getting-licensed.

Dixon said with the right gear, antenna, skies and coordination with satellites, a ham can send a signal around Earth and even to the International Space Station, a regular activity classrooms do.

'You can bounce signals off the moon, you can bounce signals off airplanes, Dixon said. "It gets back to technology and I'm going to try this, I'm going to try this.'

ARES is also responsible for relaying urgent information during emergencies, like hurricanes, mass blackouts or cellphone tower outages, which have crippled a community's traditional communication system.

"When all else fails, you got Morse code," Dixon said.

Christopher Evan, the deputy director over the Citrus County Sheriff's Office's Emergency Operations Division, said radio operators are invaluable for the sheriff's office at times of disaster or heavily populated events.

It's also an activity Evan hopes the youths will get into because it's an elaborate and intricate interest that can do so much.

You can go really simple, or really complex — there's science involved." Evan said. "It's a fascinating hobby for anyone, at any age.'

Judge considers lifting stay on smokable medical pot

JOE REEDY Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians who are eligible to receive medical marijuana will still have to wait a long time to access smokable products if a judge

An attorney representing the state's Department of Health said Monday that even if smokabe medical marijuana was made legal, it would not be immediately available. Assistant Attorney General Karen Brodeen said it would take several months for the department to make rules and for medical marijuana treatment centers to stock the product.

Leon County circuit court Judge Karen Gievers heard testimony Monday on a motion that would vacate a stay on a May 25 ruling that said a provision banning smokable cannabis was unconstitutional. The state immediately filed an appeal which led to an automatic stay against the ruling's implementation.

John Morgan's People United for public, it is allowed in private."

Medical Marijuana and two patients with terminal illnesses appealed the stay. Jon Mills, who represents the plaintiffs, said if the stay is vacated, then the Department of Health should get to work on creating rules even if further litigation continues.

There's no excuse for delay at this point," Mills said. "We have tens of thousands of people in Florida who could benefit. We need to expedite it as much as possible.

Florida voters approved a constitutional amendment in November 2016 allowing the use of medical marijuana, which left it up to the Legislature to approve enacting laws.

Morgan, who was the guiding force behind the amendment, has noted that a "statement of intent" shared with the public before voters approved the constitutional amendment made it clear that "smokable marijuana wouldn't be used in public." He also added "we said very clearly that if it's not allowed in Corcoran and Johnston. Altogether, the firm submitted 19 claims, giving it a 42 percent success rate.

Lobbying records show the Corcoran firm collected at least $89,000 in fees last year for its work on claims bills and is in line to receive tens of thousands more this year.

The success of the well-connected lobbying firm in winning approval for claims bills adds to a persistent debate among legislators as to who does - and doesn't — get paid.

Michael Corcoran didn't return a phone call requesting comment. Richard Corcoran didn't respond directly to questions about his brother's lobbying efforts, but said he was a firm believer that legislators should approve claims bills.

Claims bills are needed when someone sues state and local governments and a jury approves a payment above the caps enshrined in the state's sovereign-immunity law. The law says state and local government cannot pay more than $200,000 to an individual or $300,000 overall.

But some Republicans in the past openly complained that lobbyists held too much sway in deciding which bills were approved. During the 2013 and 2014 sessions, legislators didn't approve a single claims bill, in part due to opposition by then-Senate President Don Gaetz, who said it seemed bills were passing based not on their substance, but the effectiveness of the lobbyists behind them.

Rep. Jay Fant, a Jacksonville Republican and attorney, consistently votes against claims bills because of what he calls a flawed process.

"We don't have a consistent process," Byrd said. 'It's cheaper to hire a lobbyist to go in year in and Fant, who's running for

"The way it is applied is just terribly imperfect," Fant said.

Rep. Evan Jenne, a Democrat from Dania Beach who sponsored two claims bills this year, said both came from lobbyists.

"Every claims bill I've ever done, it's been a lobbyist coming to me saying, 'Would you mind carrying a claims bill?" Jenne said.

Jenne said Jeff Johnston, Michael Corcoran's partner, approached him about sponsoring a bill to compensate a family that sued the Brevard County Health Department for medical malpractice. The bill passed and was approved by the governor. Jenne said Corcoran's is "one of the most effective lobbying firms" in Florida.

Nonetheless, the legislator said he doesn't sponsor any claims bill - regardless of who represents it without conducting his own research.

"I don't want to do a bill I don't believe in," he said. He also said that he's never felt pressure from on high. and that no one has ever told him, "We've got this, the speaker is on board."

Rep. Cord Byrd, a Jacksonville Republican and an attorney, sponsored two claims bills during the 2018 session that didn't pass — and he blamed lobbyists for their failure.

One bill would have authorized Volusia County to pay nearly $2 million to a Kansas woman who was injured and disfigured after she was run over by a county-operated truck while sunbathing on Daytona Beach. The bill was opposed by an insurer that covered the county. The insurer was represented by a lobbyist.

LANGLEY HEALTH SERVICES EXPANDS SERVICES IN CITRUS COUNTY

The Board of Directors of Project Health, Inc. (PHI), dba Langley Health Services (Langley), is pleased to announce that they have expanded services further in Citrus County. In November 2017, Pediatrician Komala Bhushan MD. located in Lecanto, transitioned her Pediatric Practice to Langlev Health Services. In March 2018, Langley opened an independent Dental site in Inverness, a Family Practice site in Crystal River, and Inverness Family Practice moved to a new location (see ad for addresses of all Citrus County site locations). In May 2018, Pediatrician Marcy Howard MD, located in Crystal River, joined the Langley team. We are proud to offer 4 locations throughout Citrus County to better serve the community.

Project Health, Inc. dba Langley Health Services (Langley), is a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit corporation serving the health care needs of residents in Sumter County, Citrus County and southeastern Marion County. A Federally Qualified Health Center (FQHC), Langley is in its 44th year and served nearly 22,000 patients in 2017. In addition to primary Adult Medical, Pediatric, Dental, Podiatry, Pharmacy and Behavioral Health Care, LHS is the County. only FQHC in the country that offers fully accredited Independent Diagnostic Testing Facility (IDTF) services, including CT, MRI,

Mammography, Ultrasound, Echo

Cardiograms, Bone Density Scans and Pulmonary Function Testing at the Sumterville site.

What is now known as Langley Health Services began in 1974 as Project Health, Inc. PHI was formed primarily to address the heath care needs of the agricultural workers in and around Sumter County. These workers. who made up a large majority of Sumter County's population at the time, could not afford private physician care and therefore often went without much needed medical care. In 2008 another dream was made a reality when Family Medical Center at the Shores (FMC) was opened in the Silver Springs Shores in South Eastern Marion County. In 2012 a State-of-the-Art 20,000 square foot facility was built in The Shores and is now, in part, a Teaching Health Center in partnership with Ocala Regional Medical Center. On December 1, 2016 Langley Health Services became accredited by the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care (AAAHC) and is designated as a Patient Centered Medical Home (PCMH) at its Sumter and Marion county locations. In June 2016, Langley expanded services into Citrus CHICAGO — Countless breast cancer patients in the future will be spared millions of dollars of chemotherapy thanks in part to something that millions of cancer research. Americans did that cost them just pennies: bought a postage stamp.

Proceeds from the U.S. Postal Service's breast cancer stamp put researchers over the top when they were trying to get enough money to do the landmark study published on Sunday that showed genetic testing can reveal which women with early-stage breast cancer need chemo and which do not.

'Finding the money to do this was very, very difficult. They really had to pass the hat around," said Dr. Otis Brawley, chief medical officer of the American Cancer Society, who had no role in the study but is familiar with its funding history. Without the stamp money, the study may never have been done, he

The National Cancer Institute sponsored the study, along with several foundations. A key part — the initial $4.5 million of the cancer institute's $36 million contribution — came from the stamp, said Dina Singer, who is involved in the institute's use of stamp proceeds. The money was used to pay for the gene test, which costs more than $4,000 per person.

The stamp was the nation's first stamp sold at a surcharge to raise money use of their products, Brawley said.

Study finds rare advance in treatment of pancreatic cancer

LINDSEY TANNER Associated Press

CHICAGO — Patients that hadn't spread lived substantially longer on a four-drug combo than on a single standard cancer drug, a rare advance for a tough-to-treat disease, researchers reported years of follow-up, almost 40 percent of the folfirinox patients were disease-free compared with about 20 percent who had standard drug. Gemzar. Overall, almost two-thirds of folfirinox patients were still alive compared with almost half of Gemzar patients, unexpectedly good results, said Dr. Thierry Conroy, the lead author and a cancer specialist at the Cancer Institute of Lorraine in Vandoeuvre-les-Nancy, France.

The results indicate the powerful chemotherapy treatment known as folfirinox will likely become standard of care for the minority of patients whose pancreatic cancer is diagnosed early enough to be removed by surgery, experts not involved in the study said.

Results were presented Monday at an American Society of Clinical Oncolconference Chicago.

Dr. Richard Schilsky, the group's chief medical officer, called the research an "immediately practice-changing study and said it's the biggest advance for pancreatic cancer in 25 years.

Folfirinox is already with pancreatic cancer bleak for patients with pancreatic cancer, an uncommon disease for which there is no screening. Symptoms including fatigue, weight loss and abdomen pain often don't occur until late, after the disease has spread.

About 330,000 cases are diagnosed each vear worldwide, including about 55,000 in the United States. About half are diagnosed after the disease has spread; most die within a year of diagnosis and only about 6 percent survive for five years.

The new results are "reassuring for a disease where unfortunately on average people only live several months rather than several years. This is a new standard of care for this illness," said Dr. Andrew Epstein, an expert at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New

Nearly 500 patients at 77 centers in France and Canada were enrolled in The outlook has been the study from spring 2012 through fall 2016. They either received the fourdrug combo through an IV every two weeks for about six months or Gemzar three times a month for six months. The study was funded by philanthropic groups in France and Canada.

Participants had early ductal tumors, the most common kind of pancreatic cancer.

Side effects are common for both drugs including low blood counts, fatigue and diarrhea, and they occurred more often in folfirinox patients. There was one death in the study in the Gemzar group.

Folfirinox and Gemzar are available as generics. Schilsky said both treatments are "pretty inexpensive" since the drugs are available as generics. Insurance typically covers both for metastatic cancer and gemcitabine for operable cancer, and it's likely it would cover folfirinox for operable cancer if guidelines are revised and it becomes standard of care, which several experts say is expected.

Charles 'Billy' Fergus

"Billy." He was born October 27, 1966. Billy was a loving husband to his wife, Donna, and father to his two sons, Gary and Mikey.

He was also a devoted brother to his three sisters; Alta Lee and Debra Espat, both of Hernando, FL, and Annette Patton of St. Petersburg, FL; and to his brother, Bucky Fergus who received his wings a few years ago.

Billy, his wife and their son Gary have been working for the Chronicle for many years. He was always the life of the party ... and quite the comedian some would say. He loved to joke around and pull pranks on the family. There was nothing but good times and lots of laughter with him. There was never a dull moment.

Unfortunately, he was taken so suddenly and way too soon but he will always be remembered. We are upset for the time taken away, but grateful for all the moments shared and the many memories made ... memories that will last a lifetime. Billy will forever be in our hearts. He may be gone, but he will never be forgotten. May his soul rest in peace.

The family will be planning a memorial service for a later date.

Deaths ELSEWHERE

Clarence Fountain, 88

BATON ROUGE, LA

A founding member of the Grammy-winning gospel group the Blind Boys of Alabama has died.

Manager Charles Driebe said in an email that Clarence Fountain died Sunday in a hospital in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Fountain was 88.

Fountain and friends started their first group as students at the Alabama Institute for the Negro Deaf and Blind in Talladega. They left school in 1944 while in their teens.

The group won four Grammys, a Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award and a National Endowment for the Arts National Heritage Fellowship, and were members of the Gospel Music Hall of Fame.

Fountain stopped touring with the group in 2007 because of complications from diabetes, but sang on their 2017 album, "Almost Home." - From wire reports

Fed goals

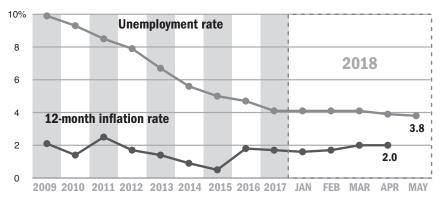

The Federal Reserve seeks to manage interest rates to achieve its two major policy goals - maximum employment and stable prices. Unemployment has been falling during this nine-year expansion and is now at a 18-year low and well below the Fed's long-term goal for unemployment of 4.5 percent. But the goal of stable prices, which the Fed defines as annual gains of 2 percent, has proven to be a tougher challenge. The deep 2007-2009 recession, the worst since the 1930s, has kept a lid on wages and the ability of businesses to boost prices. After six years of missing the 2

Tech gains drive Nasdaq composite to all-time high

MARLEY JAY AP markets writer

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks rose for the second consecutive day Monday with technology companies, retailers and household goods companies in the lead. Indexes of technology companies and smaller, more U.S.-focused companies both hit alltime highs.

Major technology companies including Google's parent company, Alphabet, made solid gains. Apple rose as it previewed new features and software updates at its Worldwide Developers Conference. Microsoft edged higher after it said it will buy the coder platform GitHub. Facebook fell, however, on new privacy concerns.

Retailers including Target, Walmart and Under Armour rallied, as did Amazon. Energy companies fell as the price of oil continued to slide.

After an up and down funds, is on its first winning streak in three weeks. The technology-heavy Nasdaq composite finished at a record high, above a mark it set March 12, while the smaller Russell 2000 surpassed a record it set last week.

Last week investors reacted to political turmoil in Italy and rising trade tensions as the U.S. continued to hold talks with Chinese officials and placed tariffs on steel and aluminum imported from Europe, Mexico and Canada.

Stocks have wobbled in the last few months as investors worried that tariffs and other barriers to trade will reduce economic growth and corporate mostly treated the tough as a negotiating tactic. like Invesco Chief Global Mar- she said ket Strategist Kristina Hooper said the U.S. crossed an important dividing line last week when, after months of talks, its aluminum and steel import duties went into effect.

"It appears that will lead to some significant retaliatory tariffs," she said. "Markets seem to treat it as if it's just rhetoric and it's just a bargaining tool, and my view is that that is foolhardy."

The S&P 500 climbed 12.25 points, or 0.4 percent, to 2,746.87. The index rose 1.1 percent Friday after a strong jobs report. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 178.48 points, or 0.7 percent, to 24,813.69. The Nasdag composite gained 52.13 points, or 0.7 percent, to 7,606.46.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks gained 5.39 points, or 0.3 percent, to 1,653.37.

Apple climbed 0.8 percent to $191.83 and Alphaweek last week, the S&P bet gained 1.6 percent to 0.9 percent to $101.67 after the company said it will pay $7.5 billion in stock for GitHub. Around 27 million developers software around the world use GitHub to share code and build businesses.

Among retailers, Target gained 4.9 percent to $76.35 and Walmart picked up 2.9 percent to $85.42 after it agreed to sell an 80 percent stake in its struggling Brazilian business.

Hooper, of Invesco, said Wall Street is overlooking the threat that tariffs pose because it's focused on solid economic news from the U.S.

"We have enough posiprofits. But Wall Street has tive economic data that it's easy enough to put blinders talk and proposed tariffs on when it comes to threats protectionism,"

The New York Times reported Sunday that Facebook struck data-sharing deals with at least 60 device makers, including Apple and Amazon, as it tried to get its app onto smartphones, and that the device companies were able to access users friends without their explicit consent.

That renewed some investors' concerns about Facebook's handling of user data, and the stock lost 0.4 percent to $193.28.

Facebook said it maintained tight control over the technology and is not aware of any abuse by the companies that it teamed with. The stock skidded in March following allegations a firm linked to the Trump campaign improperly harvested personal data millions of Facebook users, but Wall Street's concerns about the stock gradually faded and Facebook closed at an all-time high Friday.

Energy companies 500 index, a market bench- $1,153.04. Brent crude, used to price international oils, fell 2 percent to $75.29 per barrel in London.

Wholesale gasoline lost 1 percent to $2.12 a gallon. Heating oil slid 1.1 percent to $2.15 a gallon. Natural gas fell 1.1 percent to $2.93 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Companies reported results from cancer drug studies at the annual meeting of the American Society of Clinical Oncology. Nektar Therapeutics plunged 41.8 percent to $52.57 after it disclosed data from a potential treatment for pancreatic cancer. Analyst Debjit Chattopadhyay of H.C. Wainwright said investors were concerned by mixed results from the study and a lack of information and a lung cancer drug study.

Wider range of views would be nice

Out of five commission seats in this county, it would be a refreshing change for at least one of them to be seated by a nonparty affiliate or a Democrat just so that I hear a different point of view. I'm getting tired of everybody saying they're another Donald Trump. I knew Donald Trump and, believe me, they're no Donald Trump.

I got cut off, too!

This is in regards to the person that was cut off in Inverness by another driver (May 25's Sound Off, "Driver cut me off; deputy did nothing"). This happened to me coming out of Dunnellon at 8:30 in the morning with the sun in my eyes just about ready to get off the bridge and a tow truck came up to that merge lane and cut me right off right into the northbound lane. Lucky no cars were coming. I got going down the road and that same tow truck got on my rear end and was like trying to push me like they was in a revenge for not letting him go. But I turned around and called the sheriff's department and they said there's nothing they can do because they did not witness it.

Ain't this something? They've got to witness something. You can't report road rage. So in the future, don't report it because they won't do nothing because they didn't see it.

Thanks for nothing

I would like to say thank you to the contractor that dumped aluminum and metal studs and duct work in the parking lot behind the trees at the Citrus County WMA off of Oak Park just east of Southern Woods on the south side. I can't believe you can't afford $10 to take it to the dump.

Thank you for the letter

Thank you to Anna Clark for the wonderful letter in the Chronicle on Friday. May 25. I wish everybody had that same belief. You sound like somebody with a great head on your shoulders. May God bless you and may God bless America and President Trump. Thank you.

Editorial really got it right

I can't agree more with the Citrus County Chronicle on the (May 26) editorial, "Prioritize vocational education." That would help our county get the people we need and jobs we need and teaching young people there is not anything to do without college. If you want to be a blue-collar worker, that's no problem. We've got the education to help you be right on task with that. Good job. Thank you all so much.

Double standard with Trump, Obama

CITRUS COUNTY CHRONICLE -

As a snowflake liberal hiding out in Citrus county hoping the Trump administration does not decide to deport my wife and I because we don't hold up "true" American standards, I am amazed every day by what is happening in our country. Let me say I do stand for the National Anthem ever since I heard Jimi Hendrix play it but I digress.

The double standard that is taking place between this administration and the previous one is truly mind boggling. Whole books could be written on this subject, and some probably already have been. So let's throw out an example or two.

First: Trump pays a porn star to stay quiet a few weeks before the election for an affair he had right after his child is born. Trump's backers say little, if anything. President Obama fist-bumps his wife in a moment of celebration and it is equated with terrorism. Huh?

Trump insults women, minorities, veterans, disabled persons and religious groups and his people applaud. Obama bows to a foreign leader showing cultural respect and is lambasted for being weak.

Do not get the idea that I worship at the feet of Barack Obama. There are more than a few things he did or didn't do that I disagree with. He could have fought harder for single-payer health care. He should have been much harder on Syria's dictator when Assad began slaughtering his own people. I believe he let the financial institutions get away with too much after they almost created the next Great Depression."

It is the rampant hypocrisy shown by too many groups that I can't understand. How do Christians support such a man? He is no more Christian than I am, and I'm an atheist.

More has happened in a month with this administration than happened in eight years with the previous one. We as a country cannot allow our standards to slip to the level of a third world dictatorship.

Publix should be ashamed

The following letter was sent to Publix's headquarters: Isn't it strange that a company that supports healthy living with their Greenwise products also supports the NRA and death? The NRA isn't about the Second Amendment; the NRA is about marketing weapons and ammunition.

The NRA has contributed $5,674,459 to Adam Putnam's gubernatorial race (Follow The Money.org). I think it's strange that with the millions of dollars the NRA has contributed to Adam Putnam's run for governor, he would also need Publix's contribution of $600,000. I think it's also obscene that Publix would offer the company jet to fly Putnam to campaign events.

This money was made from customers like me. I find it both strange and obscene that you would use money made earned from sales advertised for products that are healthy. On your webpage, Publix claims that consumers helped create the Greenwise requirements, and the company listened when we asked for safe products. Why do you refuse to listen when your customers demand protection from gun violence?

I just began shopping at Publix after boycotting your business for many years when I discovered you supported insane gun laws written by the powerful NRA lobbyists and the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), a right-wing policy group.

The "Stand Your Ground" Law is one of them, and it is nothing but a support of legal murder. If a person feels threatened, instead of taking sensible actions, guns are drawn and shots are threatened or discharged. Even the Wild West of the 19th century didn't support this action, no matter what you see and/or read in Westerns.

Publix now claims it is suspending political contributions to re-evaluate corporate policies for campaign donations. Not good enough. Your hypocrisy in the face of gun violence is shameful. Either remove your Greenwise products from Publix shelves or remove your support for the NRA who advocates a very unhealthy attitude about guns. Publix cannot honorably support both.

Hope and change brought us Trump

In a recent letter, the writer have ever voted for President Trump. As with most of the elites, he believes he and those from the opposition are so much smarter and able to know what is good for all.

Those who supported and voted for Trump are those who found out Obamacare is a scam, unaffordable, unsustainable and a disaster. Those that believe illegals should not be in this country, period. They are descendants of people who came to this country legally and assimilated, never collecting one welfare dollar from the government.

They are the Christians and Jews who daily see their freedoms to pray in public, display the icons and images they hold dear and the removal of the basis for all laws — the Ten Commandments — from the public eye. Yet those of the Muslim faith are catered to.

They are supporters of the military, keeping it strong and the finest fighting force in the world, thereby preserving our freedoms.

They are respectful of law enforcement and have little pity for the thugs, gangsters and those who push the envelope while a fellow ne'er-dowell conveniently records a video on their cellphone the so-called excessive tactics used.

They are the folks who know history cannot be rewritten by taking down statues, removing the battle flag of a long-ago army that was vanquished, yet never forgotten.

They are people of many skin colors, male and female, who consider themselves Americans without a hyphen. People that have like values and need no program to supposedly make them equal.

They are people who resented some labeling them as deplorables, racists, homophobes and so many other derogatory names.

They are the people who cared about the underemployed and those who have suffered due to lack of jobs in our country — jobs that are returning.

They are the folks who understand $13 trillion in debt is not a sign of a healthy financial engine.

There are so many other issues — climate change, division of males and females, pitting ethnic groups against one another, the treatment or lack thereof due our veterans, the continual drone of the rich not paying their "fair share."

Those who want to question why Donald Trump is our president need only to examine the eight long years of hope and change.

Flag honors only the deserving

I don't fly a flag on a daily basis. It reminds me too much of what this country has become. I do, however, display it on specific holidays. Memorial Day, to honor the men and women who gave the ultimate sacrifice — those who stood and fought on the front lines bearing witness to the ugliness and brutality of war.

I fly it for July Fourth, to celebrate when we were an independent country — long before we were sold out by the greed of politicians.

I fly it on Veterans Day for all who have served this once great land. The flag symbolizes a country made up of all different nationalities, religions, beliefs and colors. It is supposed to represent all Americans, but we know it doesn't.

I flew it this weekend, remembering my uncle who died in World War II. I flew it for my cousin who died in Korea. I flew it for all the lives cut short and for the Inverness families that grieve them.

My flag will be stored away once again until I honor the people who are worthy of being remembered. To me it's just a piece of material, usually asked the question who would made in China, that has taken on more meaning than it deserves — or maybe has lost the meaning it once had. When we say the Pledge of Allegiance which originally did not have "under God" written into it until many years later — and we recite "with liberty and justice for all," there are too many who have neither.

I flew my flag on the Memorial Day weekend to honor all Americans who did not come home from wars. It is for them and only them. They were remembered and given the respect they deserve.

How did we get to this place?

What has happened to us as a society? It seems we have spiraled out of control. Comedians and actors saying rude and crude comments just to get noticed. Children afraid to go to school for fear of being shot and killed. Hitand-run drivers. A generation refusing to grow up and become responsible adults. Video games where the object is to choose between shooting at the bad guy or at the police. Almost every day there is another law enforcement officer shot and killed. And what about the lack of respect for our flag and country?

Where have we gone wrong? Some say it is due to the breakdown of the family unit. Some say it is when prayers were taken out of the school. How do we get back to respecting one another no matter our political or religious beliefs?

Years ago my parent's generation (known as the "Greatest Generation") were shocked at Elvis Presley swiveling his hips on national television. Looking back, that is nothing compared to what is going on today. We have forgotten how to respect one another, and more importantly, have respect for ourselves.

Thank you for your generous support

The National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) 26th Annual Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive was very successful again this year. Residents of Citrus County donated more than 39,480 pounds of food, equivalent to approximately 33,000 meals, to help those in our community who are hungry and need our support the most in these difficult times. Over the past 14 years, Citrus County residents have donated more than 674,400 pounds of food through this annual spring food drive to help individuals and families in need.

Food drives of this magnitude need many people to make them successful. Our special thanks to the United States Postal Service Postmasters, post office employees, and the letter carriers who are all very supportive of this food drive every year. We also thank the Citrus County

Chronicle for their support and for the various articles promoting the food drive and Homosassa Printing for providing posters and flyers as

The annual Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive continues to be the nation's largest one-day campaign to collect food for distribution to needy families. Here in Citrus County, the Community Food Bank partners with six of our local food pantries to coordinate the pickup, receipt and distribution of all food donated through this food drive: Citrus County Family Resource Center; Citrus United Basket; Daystar Life Center; First Baptist Church of Floral City and Floral City Church of Christ; and We Care Food

The next time you visit a post office here in Citrus County, please thank them for sponsoring and supporting the post office food drives that we hold each year. We could not do it without their support and I know the post office employees and letter carriers would appreciate your thanks and encouragement for all they do for our community.

Another lesson from Habakkuk

"Death to Trespassers!" the electric fence sign read. Fortunately, I had called ahead and the gate was open to go to this outskirts location bordering on the Goethe State Forest.

"Don't be surprised" when you get there, the Nature Coast Wildlife person told me. So, I drove in to drop off some abandoned baby brother and sister raccoons I found huddled by my garden hose.

I went to the door of the home and was greeted by a fully tattooed man in a colorful shirt who simply said, "bring you and your box in." Was I at death's door? Quite the contrary! He and his wife's home were filled with cages with a variety of small wildlife from flying squirrels to foxes and raccoons, mostly young, recovering from abandonment and abuse. After six months in their home, the recovered animals were placed outside in their yard in unlocked protective cages, free to stay or leave. This was their mission in life after retirement.

Here were kind-hearted people, respecting a reverence of all life. That was some six years ago, and I compare them this past month to that sadistic Ocala teacher who drowned, in waterboarding fashion, several raccoons and a possum, killing them in front of horrified students as some sort of bizarre teaching lesson. The event was well-described by columnist Carl Hiaasen and also videotaped by some students. This resulted in the teacher's departure from the school system and facing potential legal action from community outrage.

No matter the subject, a teacher's role is always to evoke lessons of respect and appreciation for all life. Some, of course, have taught these lessons firsthand — when confronted, using their own lives to protect those of their students in the various school shootings. Unfortunately, not the profile of this Ocala teacher.

Hiaasen's column appeared in the Sunday paper that I read after listening earlier in church to a final sermon in a series about the Jewish prophet Habakkuk, in relation to countercultural living. It was appropriate to the subject at hand, in that Habakkuk's vision from God was essentially "woe" or condemnation to those like the Babylonians who destroyed nature and killed not only people, but also animals. The result for the Babylonians was their own replacement by the Persians. The lesson being, don't do violence to God's creations.

Bike trail is a giant waste of money

Just when I thought the county commissioners could stoop no lower, they come up with a bicycle trail to nowhere at a cost of $20 million to $50 million of public funds. I just can't believe they're actually serious about this. What next — another Port Citrus? I like to remain anonymous because there's too many wackos out there and I don't want to deal with the feedback.

Dirty pajamas in stores

OK, so people are complaining about dogs in the store and too much perfume. My complaint is, why are people coming into stores with dirty pajamas on? I have a solution: Stay home, take a bath, put some perfume on and go walk your dog.

Why does it take so long?

How long does it take before comments are printed in the Sound Off? I called last Tuesday and I haven't seen anything all week.

Editor's note: It depends, but Sound Offs generally run about two weeks after they're called in. We make an effort to run as many Sound Offs as possible, so they do back up.

Not the only dangerous job

In Sound Off again, people are saying how dangerous it is to be a sheriff's deputy. You know, I appreciate the job they do, although in this county they don't do their job about taking care of reckless driving. And if you all check the statistics, it's only the 14th major dangerous job in the country. They make a big deal every time something happens in their industry. I understand that. You don't hear about it, but more dangerous jobs are roofers, trash workers, truck drivers, farmers — these guys all have a much higher rate of accidents and fatal injuries. So I'm just tired of hearing that they're the only ones out there working for a living and putting their lives in danger to serve or to do a job. That's all I have to say.

Thanks to a great volunteer

Congratulations to Brenda Neff for being named Volunteer of the Month for the month of May by the We Care Food Pantry.

Not a heavily traveled path

I've lived in Citrus County for over 20 years. My wife and I have ridden most of the bicycle trails in this county, including the Withlacoochee all the way down to Pasco County. I drive out to Fort Island Beach quite often. In over 20 years, I've seen less than a handful of bicycles riding out on that road.

People are finally waking up

The beginning of the week on a Monday in the end of the month of May on page 3, May 28, "Online Poll Results: Two county commission seats and three school board are on the 2018 ballot. How will you be voting?" I see "I say vote all the incumbents out" gets 213 votes.

Blessed Lord! Inverness and the people here, have finally woken up.

Keep voting them out

I see in this morning's "Online Poll Results," almost double any other category, people said they're going to vote all the incumbents out on the county commission. People are tired of government. People are sick of self-serving people trying to run our government. It's been that way the last few years, voting out these incumbents. Looks like we'll continue doing it until we get the right ones in there.

Take the plank out of your own eye

Many people are calling in to say that the extension of the Suncoast Parkway is a bad idea. I wonder how many of them stop to apologize to the people whose back yards they are going through as they travel south on the Suncoast Parkway going to TIA or the Tampa Bay

Poor planning

I've been reading about the Suncoast Parkway extension, then I see people are planning the connection with

I-75. Wow, that's about the dumbest idea I've seen. Why don't they just easily connect it to (U.S.) 19 up around Ozello after Yankeetown or Inglis. There's hardly any traffic on that road all the way. You get to Chiefland, then there's a little bit and after that, there's none. And then when you get out of Perry, you can take the road that cuts off to I-10, which is (U.S.) 19. Then you could connect with either I-10 and I-10 back to I-75 or take (U.S.) 19 straight on up through

Georgia because there's no traffic on it all the way to Albany. And isn't it supposed to be a connector so people can escape hurricanes from Key West? Try connecting at I-75. Really? Really? Even on this holiday (Memorial Day), it's jam-packed. Give me a break. That's the worst thing that they could do. I don't know who is doing the planning, but they're not a very good

Neighbor's dogs are bothering me

We have a neighbor who has two large dogs in their back yard that stay outside from early morning until dark. The dogs bark loudly every few minutes, all day long. They hardly ever go more than an hour without a barking binge. It's loud in our bedroom and living room and it's more annoying than you can imagine. The lots here are small about a third of an acre and most of the lots around us are empty. I've talked with the neighbor several times. They're just inconsiderate. Any suggestions?

On a daily basis, we care for people who are often emotionally and physically at there lowest point. We aim to be compassionate, understanding and sympathetic.

The other mission of our practice is to provide the quality care in the field of Gastroenterology. As part of that goal, we have an Ambulatory Surgery Center next to our medical office. This center is Medicare Certified and provides an opportunity for patients to have their procedure(s) done outside a hospital setting, at substantially lower costs and with state-of-the-art equipment. In addition, for patient comfort, an Anesthetist will be available for sedation.

WASHINGTON - Prosecutors working for special counsel Robert Mueller are accusing former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort of trying to tamper with witnesses in his ongoing criminal cases.

Mueller's team said in a new court filing that Manafort and one of his associates "repeatedly" contacted two witnesses in an effort to influence their testimony. The contacts occurred while Manafort while under house arrest.

The two witnesses are not named in court filings. But prosecutors said they worked with Manafort in organizing a group of former European officials who lobbied within the U.S. without registering.

More victims found in series of Arizona killings

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Police said the man suspected of killing a prominent forensic psychiatrist, two paralegals and a marriage counselor in the Phoenix area over the last several days is now linked to two other slayings.

Authorities said they believe 56-vear-old Dwight Lamon Jones also killed a man and a woman whose bodies were discovered Monday in the Phoenix suburb of Fountain Hills.

Police said the killings began Thursday with Steven Pitt, a forensic psychiatrist who assisted in the JonBenet Ramsey mystery in Colorado and a notorious Phoenix serial killer investigation.

They said the deaths Friday of paralegals Veleria Sharp and Laura Anderson were related to Pitt's shooting as well as the Saturday killing of 72-year-old counselor Marshall Levine.

Authorities were closing in on Jones at a Scottsdale extended-stay hotel Monday when he fatally shot himself.

George H.W. Bush released from Maine hospital

BIDDEFORD, Maine — Former President George H.W. Bush has left a Maine hospital after more than a week of treatment for low blood pressure and fatigue.

A Bush spokesman tweeted Monday that the president "deeply" appreciates the care and good wishes he has received. Spokesman Jim McGrath also told The Associated Press that Bush is "back to his old self" and looking forward to a summer with family and friends.

The 93-year-old Bush was admitted to the hospital on May 27 and was released Monday.

His wife, Barbara Bush, died in April at age 92. They had been married 73 years.

Can Trump pardon himself?

Not if he's impeached

ANNE FLAHERTY Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump once joked he could "stand in the middle of Fifth Avenue and shoot somebody" and not lose voter support. The quip was intended as hyperbole to make a point on the loyalty of his base.

Now, Trump says, he has the power to keep himself out of jail if he wanted, declaring an "absolute right to PARDON myself." This time, though, it seems he isn't joking.

But there is a big limit in the world of presidential pardons: impeachment.

A look at what's true and what's not when it comes to presidential pardons:

SO PRESIDENTS GET TO DO WHAT EXACTLY?

Under the Constitution, the president has the power to grant "reprieves and pardons" for federal (but not state) crimes, essentially wiping out a person's convictions. The power is, as Trump says, "absolute" in that pardons can't be overturned by Congress or the courts.

Almost every president has used his pardon powers, but somewhat narrowly — focusing on overturning cases when they believe a severe injustice has been done or is needed to heal partisan rifts.

THE BIG EXCEPTION

There is one notable exception to a president's pardoning powers Trump doesn't mention: cases of impeachment. Under the U.S. system of checks and balances, Congress can hold presidents accountable by ousting them cover-up in court, President was trying to obstruct justice. But Press" this weekend.

President Donald Trump pumps his fist May 31 as he steps off Air Force One after arriving at Ellington Field Joint Reserve Base, in Houston. Trump is right that he has an "absolute" right to pardon, but there is a pretty big loophole in this hypothetical: He could still be impeached.

using impeachment trials.

Only two presidents have been impeached by the House, although both were acquitted by the Senate: Andrew Johnson in 1868 after he clashed with Congress over reconstruction of the South and Bill Clinton in 1998 on charges of lying under oath and obstructing justice concerning his sexual relationship with Monica Lewinsky.

The bottom line is that Trump retains his pardoning powers up until a possible impeachment.

PARDONS AS A POLITICAL WEAPON

A person doesn't have to be convicted for a pardon to take place. That was the case in the Iran-Contra scandal, which involved the secret sales of weapons overseas by the Reagan administration.

By the time the chief prosecu-

George H.W. Bush blocked the prosecution of several central figures using his pardoning power. The pardons infuriated the prosecutor, Lawrence Walsh, and the $47 million investigation resulted in only one person sent to prison.

Bush defended his pardons by saying "at the heart of this investigation was a political dispute between the executive and legislative branches over foreign policy. We must be careful not to criminalize constitutional disputes of this kind.'

Likewise, Trump could try to undercut the Russia investigation by pardoning anyone charged by special counsel Robert Mueller. Overall, 19 people have been charged in the investigation, including Trump's former campaign chair and national security adviser.

But such pardons could also again, the outcome would probably fall on party lines.

COULD THE PRESIDENT PARDON HIMSELF?

So far, Trump has shown he's not afraid to pardon others he claims were unfair victims of partisanship. Among those include Joe Arpaio, the former Arizona sheriff who clashed with a judge on immigration, and I. Lewis 'Scooter" Libby, the Bush administration official convicted of perjury and obstruction of justice in the Valerie Plame leak case.

But could Trump pardon himself? Not surprisingly, that particular scenario has never been tested in the courts.

Trump's lawyer, Rudy Giuliani, says it wouldn't happen anyway.

"Pardoning himself would be unthinkable and probably lead to tor in the case was prepared to trigger impeachment trials in immediate impeachment," Gipresent evidence of a high-level Congress on the claim that Trump uliani told NBC's "Meet the

Guatemala volcano death toll at 65

Number expected to rise

SONIA PEREZ D. Associated Press

EL RODEO, Guatemala — Rescuers pulled survivors and bodies Monday from the charred aftermath of the powerful eruption of Guatemala's Volcano of Fire, as the death toll rose to 65 and was expected to go higher from a disaster that caught residents of remote mountain hamlets off guard, with little or no time to flee to safety.

Using shovels and backhoes, emergency workers dug through the debris and mud, perilous labor on smoldering terrain still hot enough to melt shoe soles a day after the volcano exploded in a hail of ash, smoke and molten rock.

Bodies were so thickly coated with ash that they looked like statues, and rescuers were forced to use sledgehammers to break through the roofs of houses buried in debris up to their rooflines to try to see if anyone was trapped inside.

In the afternoon, Fanuel Garcia, director of the National Institute of Forensic Sciences, said 62 bodies had been recovered and 13 of those had been identified. Guatemala's national disaster agency later raised the toll to 65.

"It is very difficult for us to identify them because some of the dead lost their features or their fingerprints" from the red-hot flows, Garcia said. "We are going to have to resort to other methods ... and if possible take DNA samples to identify them."

Serena bows out of French before Sharapova match

HOWARD FENDRICH AP tennis writer

PARIS — Serena Williams tried to play through the pain of an injured chest muscle. Eventually, barely able to serve, she knew she had to call off her Grand Slam comeback.

Williams pulled out of the French Open less than an hour before she was supposed to face Maria Sharapova in a fourth-round showdown Monday, the most-anticipated match of the tournament so far. The announcement came two days after the 36-year-old American initially felt something was wrong during a singles victory. But she hid that bit of information — even from her coach - and a day after Williams struggled through a doubles loss with her sister, Venus.

PAULINE BALLET/FFT via AP

This was Williams' first major tournament in 16 months, and her first as a mother. She was pregnant when she won the Australian Open in January 2017 for her 23rd Grand Slam singles championship, the most for anyone during tennis' 50-year professional era. Her baby was born last September.

'I have given up so much to be here. There is times where I'm on the court and I'm practicing. and I look on the monitor, and I see my daughter and she's playing, and I want to be there," Williams said. "But I know that these are the sacrifices you have to make to live out your dream. And I have made every sacrifice that I could. So it's extremely disappointing."

Her voice trembled a bit during a brief news conference, where she explained she will get an MRI on Tuesday and consult with doctors before figuring out what comes next. Her coach, Patrick Mouratoglou, said in an interview that an ultrasound revealed the injury to the muscle, but the extent wasn't clear

DETROIT — Yankees slugger Aaron Judge became the first player since at least 1920 with eight strikeouts in a doubleheader, including five punchouts in the nightcap as the Detroit Tigers beat New York 4-2 for a day-night split Monday. Leonys Martin had two hits and scored twice for Detroit in the second game after New York took the opener 7-4 behind Luis Severino's eight strong innings and a six-run fourth inning.

Judge struck out eight times in nine at-bats, a record for a doubleheader during the liveball era, according to STATS. Judge struck out in each of his five at-bats in the ninth.

The five strikeouts were a career high for Judge, who led the homer, and Torres and Greg Bird majors with 208 strikeouts while winning AL Rookie of the Year last season

Tigers draft Auburn pitcher Mize with No. 1 pick

AP sports writer

SECAUCUS, N.J. — Casey Mize went from undrafted three years ago all the way to No. 1. The Detroit Tigers selected the Auburn right-hander with the top pick in the Major League Baseball draft Monday night. The announcement at MLB Network studios marked the second time the Tigers led off the draft, and first since they took Rice pitcher Matt Anderson in 1997.

The 6-foot-3, 220-pound Mize had long been linked to the Tigers, and he pitched his way this season to the top spot on Detroit's list. Mize went undrafted out of high school three years ago, but developed into a potential big league ace while in college. "It means a ton," Mize said in an interview on MLB Network's broadcast. "I'm very thankful that the Tigers thought of me enough to take me with their first selection. I can't describe this feeling right now.'

Mize is 10-5 with a 2.95 ERA and 151 strikeouts with just 12 walks in 109 2/3 innings while helping the Tigers to the NCAA Tournament super regionals. Mize has solid command of four pitches, including a fastball that hovers in the mid-90s (mph). His outstanding command and wicked split changeup whip up lots of swings and misses.

Mize became only the seventh player in draft history to go from undrafted in high school to the No. 1 pick since Stephen Strasburg went to the Washington Nationals in 2009.

"All of us in the Tigers organization are thrilled to select Casey with this pick, and are confident that he will become a pillar in our player development system that's going to bring

Carter Stewart, a pitcher from Eau Gallie High School in Florida, puts his name on the board Monday after being selected eighth by the Atlanta Braves during the first round of the Major League Baseball draft in Secaucus, N.J.

Avila said. "Being a college pitcher especially coming from the Southeastern Conference — we know Casey has seen elite competition before.'

With the second selection, San Francisco took slugging Georgia Tech catcher Joey Bart, the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year. Perhaps Buster Posey's replacement someday, Bart follows in the footsteps of big league backstops Matt Wieters and Jason Varitek, who also came out of Georgia Tech.

Bart led the conference in hitting with a .359 average and topped the Yellow Jackets with a .632 slugging percentage, 79 hits, 16 home runs, 55 runs and a .471 on-base percentage. He's also one of the country's best defensive catchers, with a .992 fielding percentwinning baseball to Detroit for seasons age on the season while throwing out 12 to come," Detroit general manager Al of 33 would-be base stealers.

Wichita State third baseman Alec Bohm was the first of six players attending the draft to be selected, going third overall to Philadelphia.

He had some trouble buttoning his white Phillies jersey before heading to the podium to shake hands with Commissioner Rob Manfred.

"The holes are pretty tight. It was pretty tough," said the 6-foot-5 Bohm, later adding that his biggest strength is probably his maturity at the plate. "I'm just ready to go play ball.[•]

Bohm is one of the top offensive players in the draft, hitting .339 with 16 homers — the most by a Wichita State player since 2004 — and 55 RBIs with 14 doubles and 39 walks. He also showed a knack for hitting in the clutch by setting a school record with three grand slams this year, and led the team with 10 go-ahead RBIs.

Oregon State second baseman Nick Madrigal went fourth to the Chicago

at NY Mets

White Sox. Despite his short stature — 5-foot-7, 160 pounds — Madrigal is considered by many to be the best overall hitter in the draft. He rebounded nicely for the Beavers after missing half the season with a broken left wrist. He was hitting .406 with three homers, 32 RBIs and just five strikeouts in 133 at-bats while helping lead Oregon State to the NCAA Tournament super regionals. Rounding out the top five was Cincinnati, which took Florida third baseman Jonathan India. The Southeastern Conference player of the year has been an offensive force for the defending College World Series champions. He's the 12th player in school history to post 20 or more homers, 100 or more RBIs and 30 or more stolen bases in his career.

FAU beats Florida 7-4, sets up winner-takes-all final

GAINESVILLE — Joe Montes drove in three runs, two of them in another big inning, and Florida Atlantic beat overall No. 1 seed and defending national champion Florida 7-4 Monday to set up a winnertakes-all finale in the NCAA baseball tournament's Gainesville Regional.

The Owls (43-18-1) sent 10 batters to the plate during a five-run third inning, getting two-run singles from David Miranda and Montes. Montes brought home another run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

FAU and Florida (44-18) played again later Monday, with the winner advancing to the super regionals to face Auburn and No. 1 draft pick Casey Mize. The first game was delayed 4 hours, 41 minutes because of pending rain.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Former 49ers WR Dwight Clark dead at 61

Dwight Clark, the former 49ers wide receiver whose reception known as "The Catch" sent San Francisco to its first Super Bowl, has died one year after revealing he had ALS. He was 61.

Clark said in March 2017 that he had amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease), which attacks cells that control muscles. He suspected playing football might have caused the illness.

The team said Clark died Monday surrounded by friends and family.

Clark won two Super Bowls with the 49ers during a nine-year career that ended in 1987. He memorably pulled down the winning touchdown pass from Joe Montana in the 1981 NFC championship game against the Dallas Cowboys, a play remembered simply as "The Catch." It's considered one of the most significant plays in NFL history.

His No. 87 has been retired by the 49ers. Clark also served as general manager of the 49ers and the Cleveland Browns.

Palmer, Young first-timers on college Hall ballot

NEW YORK — Heisman Trophy winner Carson Palmer and Vince Young will make their first appearances on the College Football Hall of Fame ballot.

The National Football Foundation released Monday the names of 76 players and six coaches from major college football who will be considered for the Hall of Fame this year. The latest class of about 15 player and coaches will be announced Jan. 7, the day of the College Football Playoff national championship.

Palmer won the Heisman for Southern California in 2002 and went on to a long NFL career. Young finished second in the Heisman voting in 2005, but put on one of the great performances in college football history, leading Texas past USC in the BCS title Rose Bowl game.

"The fact that I physically can't serve at all is a good indication that maybe I should just go back to the drawing board and stay positive," Williams said, "and try to get better and not get it to a point where it could be a lot worse."

In a statement released by the tournament, Sharapova wished Williams "a speedy recovery." This would have been their 22nd career meeting; Williams has won 19, including the past 18. Because of the withdrawal, this does not count as a victory for Sharapova, who will play 2016 French Open champion Garbine Muguruza on Wednesday.

Oddly enough, Muguruza didn't have to put forth much effort in the fourth round, either. Her opponent, Lesia Tsurenko, stopped because of an injury after only two games. No. 1 Simona Halep, a two-time

Smith earns Open Wheel Modified

Second victory this season in division

KIMBERLY KELLY For the Chronicle

Richie Smith earned his second Open Wheel Modified win of the 2018 season at Citrus County Speedway Saturday night.

The defending division champion set the night's fast time in qualifying with a 13.780 second lap time on the quarter-mile asphalt oval and started the event seventh after a seven-car inversion.

Ten laps into the 50-lap event, Smith had found his way to the top three contenders — race leader Cody Allen, Gator Hise and Devin McLeod — who had broke away from the rest of the field and were in a race of their own.

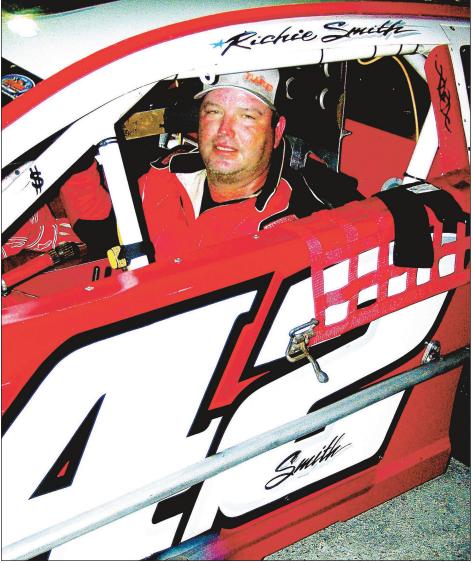

Caution tightened up the field and put the top four side-by-side two rows deep for the restart with Smith outside the second row. On green he was able to move by McLeod as Hise took command of the race from Allen. One lap later he was second.

Trouble for Chris Allen, as his attempt at maneuvering through the fourth turn failed, brought out the caution flag with 15 laps complete and put both Hise and Smith on the front row for the restart.

When the green flag fell again, Smith was able to power by Hise, take the lead and pull to a comfortable three-car advantage over the field. From there, he stretched his lead to over a second by the time he took the checkered flag. Hise followed to post his best finish of the season in second. Bobby Blake followed in third, but was disqualified in the post-race technical inspection due to his No. 75 racecar being too low on the left side. LJ Grimm, Devin McLeod and Allen all moved up a position on the finish to round out the top five.

In his first event of the season, Dean Butrum found his way to victory lane in the Modified Mini Stock 25. Butrum was able to nudge his way by division leader Wayne Heater as the pair battled down the back stretch and then beat him to the stripe as they continued their side-bvside contest. Once in control, Butrum pulled to a 0.671 second advantage over Heater to win the event in a seasoned race car formerly owned by Kevin Harrod. Heater followed for second with daughter Sonya Heater third. Greg Beeman and Doug Hopper followed respectively.

Lane Wilson was declared the winner of the Don's Plumbing Pure Stock 25 after race winner Wes Wilson was disqualified in the mandatory post-race technical inspection. It had been over two years since Wes Wilson had won an event at Citrus County Speedway and Saturday's disqualification would only add to the number of races since a win was posted to his credit.

Jesse Veltman took the early lead and was holding off a hard charge by Larry Welter Sr. when the first of three back-toback cautions came and forced the field to close the gap for the restart. With the help of Wes Wilson, Veltman was able to clear Welter on the start as they led the field to the second caution. This time it would be Wilson rocketing to the lead and leaving Veltman to contend with the remainder of the field.

Sport Wilson was in the mix and, as he and Veltman came down the front stretch, the two cars touched and sent both into the turn No. 1 wall. The incident left both top contenders out of the Ray Catterton won his third McCall Service Mini Stock event of the season after beating Deric Sharrone to the finish by 0.383 seconds. Division leader Thomas Peet followed the pair for third. Clynton Cyr and Brian Potvin rounded out the top five, respectively.

William Hindman outlasted a nine-car Demolition Derby field to win the event over Billy Benoit and J.C. Molly Lombardi.

Buddy Wilson won the Southeast Elevator Service Thunder Stock event.

Saturday's race card includes the 50lap PRT Super Late Models, McCall Service Mini Stocks, Legends Cars, Southeast Elevator Thunder Stocks and Don's Plumbing Pure Stocks.

Sham's jockey, Laffit Pincay Jr., had been instructed by trainer Frank Martin to go after Secretariat from the start.

Secretariat went to the early lead along the rail and was soon challenged by Sham. The two were even through a half-mile at a fevered pace in what became a match race with the rest of the field about 10 lengths behind.

'Even if he stayed with me, I didn't think any way in the world he could beat me because my horse was so good," Turcotte said. "He had trained so hard for the race and the others hadn't done much."

Lessons from our son

ometimes we don't understand why things happen and find ourselves in the deepest despair. We feel broken and it's easy to lose faith and give up. Our son has taught us that we have to believe there is a greater and bigger purpose of life.

Oftentimes we complain or find ourselves squabbling over petty little differences. I, too, am guilty of this, but life is so much more than what we sometimes make of it. Life is the most precious gift we are honored to have and for those of us who have the opportunity, it is important to try and make a difference and make this world we live in a bet-

Life is also very fragile and can be taken from us at any given time.

My little boy never had the opportunity to taste and breathe the air we take for granted. He never had the chance to see through his eyes, and came into this world with his eyes closed. He was never able to directly touch our skin or feel the warm air through our lips while whispering in his ear. Although he was loved immensely, we were robbed of the opportunity to kiss him, to hold him, to hug him and to tell him we loved him while he was alive.

It is difficult for me to grasp that much of our world is out of our control. As a Greek stoic said best, the only thing that is in our control is how we react to any one situation and to simply accept things that are out of our control. The only thing in this life that is eternal is love, love for thy mother, father, husband, wife, son. daughter, family and friends. These relationships should never be taken for granted.

Our son taught me much about his mom. He reinforced that whatever storm comes our way, my wife and I will be able to ride it out together. We are also supported by an incredible four-person foundation, our parents. Without saying a word or performing any action, their presence adds a layer of comfort that cannot be explained. They are our invisible shield.

Without sorrow one can never appreciate true happiness and joy. Our son reminded us that life is short. He taught us to live fully, to appreciate life and to appreciate each other.

This story is dedicated to our son, Sai Shirjan Patel. He will be remembered in our thoughts and prayers until the end of our time.

He will fill our hearts when we are feeling sad and alone and when our hearts are filled with joy he will hold our hands and dance with us.

Start colon cancer screening at age 45

s I approach the end of my 25th year working here in Citrus County, I am thrilled that a major player in the field of cancer has actually come out with a recommendation to begin certain cancer screening tests at a younger age; this is in stark contrast to some of the idiotic decisions that have been made in the past regarding less frequent screening, or even the elimination of screening after a certain age.

For those of you who regularly read my column, you know that your risk of many cancers increases as we get older, and colon cancer is no different the risk increases as you age.

But what can you do to protect yourself besides getting a colonoscopy? Luckily, the same steps that can help you prevent the disease can also help you maintain a better sense of overall health. Now, new data suggest most people should start screening tests for colon and rectal cancers at age 45, rather than waiting for age 50, as long recommended by many different organizations around the world. However, as many of these advocacy groups often do, many groups are also now saving that the initial test does not have to be a colonoscopy, a procedure that typically requires a day off work and a bowel-cleansing routine. Instead, it could be one of several other tests, including home stool tests available by prescription, or the genetic stool test that looks for abnormalities

But, in my opinion, nothing replaces the colonoscopy as the most accurate and sensitive test to look for early signs of colon cancer.

So why this change to earlier screening? Based on new information regarding the rise in colon and rectal cancer among younger adults, researchers have realized the later starting age is putting many of the population between the ages of 40 to 50 at a much higher risk of developing colon cancer.

As a matter of fact, colon and rectal cancers have increased 51 percent among adults under the age 50 since 1994, and we don't know for sure why this is happening; however, we strongly suspect the increasing incidence of obesity in this country and very poor dietary habits are related.

Meanwhile, cases and deaths have fallen in older adults, at least partly due to screening, which can lead to the detection and removal of polyps before they become cancerous. Most of the nation's 140,000 annual cases and 50,000 deaths from colon and rectal cancer still occur among people over age 55.

But the share of cases involving younger adults has risen to 29 percent for rectal cancer and 17 percent for colon cancer. These high numbers make it idiotic to wait until the age of 50 for screening that can greatly increase the chance of cure if detected early.

Protective measures help prevent infant sleep-related deaths ecently, National Public Radio's (NPR) "Morning Edition" aired a story titled "Is Sleeping With Your Baby as Dangerous as Doctors Say?" The reporter argued that American pediatricians should abandon their current safe-sleep recommendations for all babies and instead give different bed-sharing recommendations to parents based on their individual risk factors. This is a perilous approach to educating parents on safe sleep practices.

Connie Shingledecker GUEST

Unsafe sleep practices remain the leading cause of preventable death for children under age 1 in Florida. Most of Florida's health educators stand behind the American Academy of Pediatrics universal recommendation that infants sleep safest when on their back, in a crib or bassinette with only a firm mattress and tight-fitting sheet, and in the same room as their parents for the first year of Research clearly shows that many risk factors are associated with a higher incidence of sleep-related deaths. These include stomach sleeping, exposure to cigarette smoke, sleeping on or under soft surfaces or loose bedding, poor prenatal care and prematurity or low birth weight. But eliminating these risk factors does not completely eliminate the

Attempting to assess a family's self-reported risk for the purpose of giving them personalized safe infant sleep instructions is problematic. Despite a practitioner's best effamily individualized instruction confuses caregivers and waters down the message. Having one clear, concise message for everyone is preferred so that everyone understands the expectations, risks and benefits and can educate

The fact remains that bed-sharing itself is a risky behavior. The NPR story does admit that bed-sharing, even in the absence of risk factors such as soft bedding, heavy coverings or a parent under the influence of drugs or alcohol, raises the risk of sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) by about threefold. A pediatrician then points out that even at three times the risk, it's still a very small number of ba-

This is a shocking assertion from a pediatrician. When we talk about percentages and numbers it's easy to forget that each number represents someone's child, a valuable person who is loved and deserves the opportunity to grow healthy and safe. The bottom line is that "low risk" does not mean "no risk" and even one baby is too many to lose to a tragedy that is completely preventable. No parent or doctor wants this on their conscience.

I urge every infant caretaker to choose the safest sleep conditions every time baby sleeps: on their back, alone in a crib or bassinette free of toys, blankets and loose bedding. and in the same room as their parents for the first year of earn from behavior of loved one with dementia

hroughout the disease process of Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia, your loved one will lose the ability to understand simple instructions, the ability to reason or undertake any logical process and sometimes the ability to speak. My husband, Albert, lost his language skills very early in the process, and this left me feeling confused, adrift and alone. How are we supposed to know or respond to what they need when they cannot tell us what they want?

I am always reluctant to compare people with dementia to children because it seems demeaning, but in this case, it may be instructive to do so. Think about how your child communicated before he or she could talk. They did it with behaviors, mood changes and body language, and it did not take you long to figure out what they wanted.

Many individuals with dementia who cannot communicate conventionally will behave in a similar fashion, expressing themselves through actions, behaviors and mood changes.

Some of the behaviors you may see are:

■ Reactionary or temperamental behavior associated with frustration.

 \blacksquare Depression-like withdrawal or anxiety.

■ Isolation, lack of sociability, refusal to do things they usually enjoy.

■ Swearing or abusive language.

■ Irrational anger;

■ Aggressive behavior:

threatening or striking out. ■ Suspicion, paranoia, confusion. ■ Wandering.

■ Changes in hygiene.

Many people think dementia behaviors are random and unpredictable. Usually, this is not the case. More often than not, they are trying to tell us what they need, or they are responding to something we have done.

Some of these behaviors or changes in mood emerge when we try to correct or argue with them, ask too many questions or cause over-stimulation by taking them to loud places or where there are too many people. Or, they may be tired, hot or cold, hungry or need to use the bathroom. Changes in medication, lack of sleep, or infections will change

When confronted with a troublesome behavior, we need to back up and think about what happened prior to a change in behavior. We need to understand that they may be trying to tell us something and we need to be flexible, adapt and listen. This is not easy to do and it is what sometimes causes families to decide to seek professional assistance.

needed a professional day care for Albert, it became a little easier. I had some time to myself and I learned from them how to better maintain a routine so that when we were together in the evenings, everything was more predictable for both of us.

It is essential to understand that a person living with dementia is losing many senses and abilities, but they do not lose their feelings. Making them feel safe in a quiet, predictable environment will build trust and reduce their need to express confusion and frustration.

In our case, when we arrived home in the evening, I gave him a snack or some ice cream and we sat on the couch so he could hold my hand and watch a bit of one of his favorite movies (there were only three of them). In a short time, he would be ready for bed. We watched no news and no loud or violent movies. As much as I did not want to watch the same movie For me, once I admitted that I over and over again or sit when I still had chores to do, this routine completely eliminated disruptive or confusing behaviors. He had told me what he could handle, and I had listened.

A person who is living with dementia is not trying to give you a hard time. They are having a hard time. As caregivers, we must be compassionate and focus on the person rather than the "dementia behavior." Try to read the signs and understand that behaviors may be the way they tell you what they need. They are doing the best they can. You have the ability to change the environment if you just "listen."

Olfaction: Ability, act of smelling he ability to smell is something that most of us take for granted until there is a problem where we can't smell. The problem can be the complete inability to smell, defined as anos-

mia. A diminished ability to smell is called hyposmia. Enhanced smell is called hyperosmia. Distorted sense of smell is called dysosmia. And a common impairment called phantosmia represents a situation where patients perceive a certain smell and there is no smell stimulation whatsoever in the patient's environment that could trigger it.

The ability to smell is an important quality-of-life factor. Approximately 2 million Americans suffer with impaired sense of smell; chronically and likely permanent. The problem is poorly understood despite research. The sense of smell in man is relatively an unimportant function as compared to animals in the wild. Animals in the wild depend on their sense of smell for safety and food. Our sense of smell is very basic and rudimentary compared to certain animals. For example, we use dogs for hunting and tracking, as well as other talents they have as a result of having a very sophisticated nose.

Dogs and other mammals have a much bigger area of nasal mucosa with many more sensors in the nose than do humans. Despite the fact that, as humans, we don't depend on sense of smell. our nose as much as our animal friends do, we do need to depend on the help it provides. It lets us smell certain odors that could put us in harm's way such as gas or smoke or bad food. We mainly enjoy the benefits of our every day experiences that are usually pleasurable this includes smelling flowers, cooking foods, soaps and perfumes, to name a few.

Molecules are given off by the substance that we smell and may come in Dr. Denis Grillo contact with the recep-EAR, NOSE tors in the lining of the nose. These receptors are embedded in the lin> ing of the nose and attached to neurologic pathways that go to the brain. Brain centers receive this stimulation and we are therefore able to smell.

& THROAT

Impairment or disruption of the sense of smell has many causes. The swollen lining of the nose secondary to upper respiratory infection, sinus infections, allergies related to viruses and bacteria generally cause temporary problem. Serious nerve damage to the system can come from severe viruses or trauma. Brain injuries from cardiac accidents or surgery can alter the sense of smell, sometimes permanently. Nutritional problems such as cirrhosis of the liver are another cause. Metabolic or endocrine problems such as diabetes, thyroid and kidney problems also can affect the Local nasal problems like nasal polyps, damage from radiation therapy or surgery and even a foreign body of the nose blocking airflow can result in an impaired sense of smell. Prolonged exposure to toxic chemicals and drugs and medications are other factors that can cause one to lose his or her sense of smell. Medications that have been implemented in causing olfaction problems include antibiotics, anesthetic agents, blood pressure pills, cancer medications and opioids.

Neurologic disorders such as Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases have been implicated also. It is thought that congenital and genetic issues may be a factor on how well one is able to smell.

Correction or resolution is difficult. If it's a simple cold, it's likely temporary and your ability to smell will come back. Severe viruses and trauma likely will produce partial results and recovery, but could even cause a permanent loss of sense of smell. There is no treatment or medication. It is thought that there could be some correction or improvement with vitamin A supplements.

Like all other senses, the sense of smell is something that we take for granted but is very important for the quality of our life.

Inverness Surgical to do weight loss seminars

Inverness Surgical Associates is offering a series of free weight loss seminars at their office, 403 W. Highland Blvd. in Inverness. The informative lectures are planned for July 19, Sept. 20 and Nov. 15.

"Redefining Your Health Through Weight Loss Surgery" will feature a presentation from general surgeon Dr. Parth Patel. The seminar will give a general overview of obesity and weight loss options, including the process to become a candidate for surgical weight loss.

Obesity is the excess accumulation of body fat, to the extent that it may have an adverse effect on health. It can lead to reduced life expectancy and increased health conditions such as certain types of cancer, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, osteoarthritis, acid reflux, sleep apnea and type II diabetes.

Everyone is welcome. An RSVP is not required, but encouraged by calling 352-637-3337 or visiting citrusmh.com.

Senior Circle shingles and vaccine

"Shingles and the Vaccine" will be presented by a Walgreens representative at 2 p.m. Wednesday, June 20, at the Senior Circle Center, just north of Seven Rivers Regional Hospital at 1537 W. Emerald Oaks Drive, Crystal

Shingles is caused by the same virus that causes chicken pox and anyone who has had chicken pox is at risk. Shingles is a viral infection that causes a painful rash that can be severe. The virus stays inactive in the body for life and can reactivate years, or even decades later, causing shingles. The virus can cause nerve pain that can last for months or even years and the older you are, the greater your risk of long-term nerve pain. Unlike chicken pox, if you've already had shingles, the disease can come back.

There is an effective vaccine available to help prevent shingles. Come find out more about the shingles and the vaccine to see if it is could be for you. For more information, call 352-795-8400.

Balance and fall prevention workshops

A Balance and Fall Prevention Workshop will be presented by Seven Rivers Outpatient Rehab for four weeks on Thursdays, June 7 through June 28, from 1 to 2 p.m. in the Senior Circle Center, 11537 W. Emerald Oaks Drive, Crystal River.

Roughly 40 percent of all nursing home admissions are due to a fall, and if you or someone you know has issues with balance and/or falling, this workshop may help reduce that risk. Not all falls can be prevented: however. there are simple things you can do to prevent one.

All participants receive a free balance screening. This four-week workshop is free and open to the public. RSVP today at 352-795-8400 or email katie.lucas@seven riversregional.com.

Senior Circle — Do you have GERD?

"Please Excuse My GERD" will be presented by Mederi Care Tenders from 10 to 11 a.m. Wednesday, June 6, at the Senior Circle Center, just north of Seven Rivers Regional Hospital at 1537 W. Emerald Oaks Drive, Crystal River.

Do you have frequent heartburn, food regurgitation, hoarseness or the feeling of a lump in the throat? You could be suffering from gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD), which can also include difficulty swallowing, dry cough or chest pain.

Come find out about more of the symptoms, and what you can do if you suffer from this disease or think you may have it.

So, what does this all mean? I for one hope that doctors will look at this, and at least start discussions of colorectal cancer screening with their patients beginning at the age of 45. And, age is not the only factor we need to be looking at. A group representing gastrointestinal doctors stated in 2017 that African-Americans should start screening at 45 because they are at increased risk, but that others should wait until age 50. Vague recommendations like this simply lead to an increase in con-screened. The bottom line is if you regularly participate in colon cancer screening, you will have a reduced risk of getting and dying from colon cancer, no if's, fusion regarding who should or should not be and's, or but's. Now, having said that, colonoscopy also carries risks, including bowel perforation and complications from anesthesia and the risks for a complication rise with age. But in a younger population, the risk should be very small, and will be outweighed by the benefits of early detection and treatment.

Take today's deal as an example. What did West lead against four spades? What did East discard on that trick?

The bidding was not easy. I would have been inclined to rebid two no-trump with the North hand. (Many of the human Norths rebid only two diamonds. Then South jumped to three spades, and North raised to game.) Over three diamonds, I was torn. Did we have a slam in diamonds, or was game the limit? And if we could not make a slam, was four spades better than five diamonds?

Eventually, I rebid three spades, partner raised, and I passed with misgivings.

The "normal" lead by West is surely either the diamond 10 or club ace. He expects to win two trump tricks and the club ace. The fourth trick might be a diamond ruff; and perhaps after leading the club ace, seeing the dummy will help. Of the 10 robots with this problem, four chose the club ace, three the diamond 10, one the heart eight, and one, my opponent, the strange spade six.

To make the contract, in theory I had to win with dummy's jack and abandon trumps. But never guessing that West had led away from the spade queen, I played low from the board. Now East rode to my rescue, discarding a diamond! Why are computers not taught to keep equal length with the board?

So I lost only two spades and one club.

Annıe offers advice

ear Annie. My octogenarian parents recently visited my family for two weeks. They stayed in our house for the duration of their stay. My three sons are all preteens and were very excited to spend time with their grandparents. My husband and I are always a bit more anxious to have them stay. My parents were present and financially supportive throughout my childhood but were ethotiondisengaged. Over

few

DEAR ANNIE

the past years, I've noticed that their speed has been slowing and their health has been declining. With this slowing, their presence has also become more disengaged. In fact, they generally spent the trip sitting in our family room watching the news. They would only occasionally leave the house, and even then, it was often just for a quick trip to the supermarket or to get lunch. They didn't join me for school drop-off, pickup, activities or sports games.

I am concerned about the physical and mental stability of my parents. Both of them worked as I was growing up in California. My father was a sales executive, and my mother was a teacher. They don't appear to have many friends where they live in Arizona and seem to be hyperfixated on 24-hour news channels. I think they both miss the interactions from an office job.

They also are fixated on the past and retelling old stories instead of talking about new experiences. They seem to be more confrontational and looking for arguments with people. (Too much cable news?) And they focus on minor health issues and have grown concerned that this is the end.

I'd like to have an intervention with my parents and encourage them to find hobbies or adult groups, but I'm not sure how to do this without hurting them. — Searching for Senior Help

Dear Searching for Senior Help: Strangers are just friends waiting to happen. Maybe they are uncomfortable approaching strangers or feel vulnerable. Encourage them to join local senior groups or a group for new residents. Anybody attending an outing sponsored by one of these social groups is looking for the exact same feeling: companionship. Your parents will meet couples with whom they share interests and values and will be able to pull themselves out of their home and into activities. This will take their minds off the alarming vortex of cable news and give them more positive social interactions.

Dear Annie: Recently, you advised "Unexcused" to encourage the guy she's seeing, who chronically belches, to see a doctor to find out whether he has a medical condition. I would suggest that he first start taking one or two high-quality food enzymes, which break down a broad range of foods, right before each meal. The enzymes will help him digest his food, and the problem may disappear. If that doesn't work entirely, he might add one or two acidophilus capsules in the morning to help repopulate his stomach and upper intestine with good bacteria, which chlorinated water, alcohol and other things deplete. -Longtime Enzymes and

Dear Longtime Enzymes and Probiotics User: I looked into it after receiving your letter, and I see that probiotics are one of the most popular natural remedies for preventing acid reflux and for relieving its symptoms. Thank you for bringing that to my attention.

World Breastfeeding Week

In support of World Breastfeeding Week (Aug. 1-7), the Florida Department of Health in Citrus County will have a "Live, Love, Latch!" Movie Night event from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 3, hosted by the Citrus County Branch of the YMCA at 4127 W. Norvell Bryant Highway, Lecanto.

The event is open to the public, featuring a short presentation, food, vendors and gifts. All are invited to come gather together to celebrate World Breastfeeding Week. Event sponsors include the Breastfeeding Foundation of Life, West Coast Breastfeeding Task Force, Florida Health, the YMCA and LaLeche League USA.

Call the YMCA at 352-500-9622 for more information regarding "Parents Night Out" during this event. Follow the event on Facebook for more details at www.facebook.com/ events/583839741992013/.

Weight-loss surgery support group

Inverness Surgical Associates recently began offering a bimonthly weight loss surgery support group. The group provides new patients — or long-time patients who are trying to get back on track — with a support system to share helpful information and experiences. Patients who regularly attend a bariatric support group are more successful in their weight loss journey than those who don't attend. This group helps patients who have undergone any bariatric procedure get the support they need to stay motivated and is led by a nutritionist.

sociates, 403 W Highland Blvd, Inverness, at 5 p.m. Upcoming meetings are scheduled for: June 21, Aug. 18, Oct. 18 and Dec. 20.

The group meets at Inverness Surgical As-

Group to host dementia speaker

Robert Boissoneault Oncology Institute's Lecanto location will have a guest speaker for the June 6 cancer support group meeting.

Debbie Selsavage, president of Coping with Dementia LLC will speak about compassionate care based on the techniques of Positive Approach to Care, for individuals and families coping with dementia. Selsavage is well known throughout central Florida for teaching and training groups of all kinds to be dementia

One in nine Americans over 65 has Alzheimer's disease and living in Florida with so many seniors, we see the impact dementia can have on a family. The general cancer support group meets monthly at 522 N. Lecanto Highway, the first Wednesday of each month at 11:45 a.m. A light lunch is provided. For information on this and other cancer support groups provided by RBOI, call Wendy Hall at 352-527-0106.
