An Inverness woman who was a substitute teacher at Citrus High School was arrested Wednesday night, accused of sexually battering one student and sending inappropriate photos to two more.

Citrus County School District officials Thursday morning fired 50-year-old Angela Cone-Stanton after learning the Citrus County Sheriff's Office charged her Wednesday night with transmitting harmful materials to minors and lewd and lascivious battery on a child between 12 and 16 years old, according to a school district news release. Cone-Stanton was hired by the school district Jan. 3, 2019, as a short-term substitute teacher in Citrus High School's athletics programs, according to the school district and sheriff's office. A high school administrator reported Cone-Stanton to the Florida Department of Children and Families, the sheriff's office and school district after learning of the allegations Tuesday, according to the school district. According to the sheriff's office, one victim told deputies on Wednesday that Cone-Stanton sent him partially nude photos of herself via text message. Two others said she sent them fully nude photos via Snapchat during the summer of 2018. One victim who received Snapchat photos also reported that Cone-Stanton visited his home last year and performed a sex act on him.

OMG! Pretzel Bites get TV spotlight

Brett Mueller had an idea. He and his mobile pretzel business, OMG! Pretzel Bites, were at a fair in Jacksonville a year or so ago. The year prior, the local Jacksonville NBC News affiliate got word that his pretzel bites were the talk of the fair and featured Mueller on their broadcast. The following year, the fair president called Mueller and said, "Something big is coming to the fair this year that you need to be a part of." That something big was the Food Network's show, "Carnival Eats," shown on the Cooking Channel. Mueller's idea? "I did what we've done for 17 years, starting with my dad's Magic Twists & Cream business in the Crystal River Mall — I offered free samples to the camera guy who was walking by," Mueller said. The "Carnival Eats" camera guy stopped in his tracks and said what everyone says, "OMG! My guys are going to love these!" "So, I gave him a full order to take with him," Mueller said, "and the next day they came over and said, 'We have to do an episode with you — where do you live?'" After months of phone calls and emails back and forth, with Mueller selling Citrus County, this past weekend, "Carnival Eats" came to the Manatee Festival to feature Mueller and OMG! Pretzel Bites. The show also filmed with two other Manatee Festival vendors, Mueller's friend Kelly Decaire and her "Hippie Chick Cheesecake on a Stick," and Bayou Billy from High Springs.

Brett Mueller, right, owner of OMG Pretzel Bites, is interviewed at the Manatee Festival Saturday morning by Noah Cappe, host of the Carnival Eats television series. The episode is currently slated to air this summer on the Cooking Channel.

Noah Cappe has the enviable job of traveling around North America to festivals and fairs eating some of the best, biggest, sweetest, most savory, gooey, messy, spicy, weirdest carnival food concoctions people can dream up. And he loves every bite. More than that, he loves the people who make the crazy, over-the-top, "wanna slap your mama" food. This past weekend, Cappe and the crew from "Carnival Eats," shown on the Cooking Channel, came to the Manatee Festival. This episode, featuring OMG! Pretzel Bites, Hippie Chick Cheesecake and Bayou Billy, will air sometime this summer.

"For me, it's about the people, hearing their backstories and seeing their passion for what they do, that's what I love about this," Cappe said during a break from filming.

For 26-year-old Brett Mueller, it was a dream come true on top of a dream come true. "Going mobile has always been a dream of mine," he said, adding, "It was originally a father-son thing." Although his father, John Siegel, who had the ice cream and pretzel store in the mall for 17 years, saw the beginning of OMG!, and together they worked with SCORE to get the mobile business going, Siegel died in July, just six months before he could see

Florida expects extra money for Michael recovery

MARIANNA — Florida will get potentially hundreds of million dollars for Hurricane Michael recovery after President Donald Trump agreed to expand the number of days the federal government will reimburse state and local governments for cleanup efforts, the state's governor announced Thursday.

Woman convicted of grabbing, resisting deputy

Faces 10-year prison sentence

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

A jury convicted Michele Susan Clayton of grabbing and resisting a Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputy.

At the end of Clayton's one-day trial on Wednesday, jurors found her guilty as charged on third-degree felony counts of battering an emergency responder and resisting arrest with violence, according to while she was being questioned for reportedly striking another woman, according to reports.

When Clayton didn't follow the police's commands to let go, the deputy took her down to the ground with a leg sweep.

Presiding Circuit Court Senior Judge T. Michael Johnson on Wednesday ordered the Florida Department of Corrections to conduct a pre-sentence investigation for Clayton before her sentencing on Feb. 27, court filings show.

Johnson could sentence Clayton to up to 10 years in prison.

State Road 44 rollover

MIKE WRIGHT/Chronicle

Westbound traffic on S.R. 44 in Inverness was blocked for over an hour after a Thursday morning wreck. According to Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Curtis Vaughn, the driver of a pickup truck was eastbound on S.R. 44 and came around a curve too fast for wet pavement conditions. The driver lost control of the pickup, which fishtailed near South Cove Walk and crossed the concrete median into the westbound lanes, striking a car. Both drivers, whose identities were unavailable Thursday, were transported to hospitals for treatment of non life-threatening injuries, Vaughn said. The accident led to a second minor chain-reaction collision of three eastbound vehicles that were trying to stop to avoid the pickup. Vaughn said charges against the pickup's driver are pending. S.R. 44 westbound was blocked from about 9 to 10:15 a.m.

Van Gogh's 'Sunflowers' staying put in Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM — A "full body scan" carried out on the Van Gogh Museum's version of the Dutch master's iconic "Sunflowers" has shown the painting is not fit to travel because it's in "stable but vulnerable" condition, the museum's director said Thursday.

"We've decided that any stresses that the picture could be subjected to were it to travel, were (it) to be lent, that those might be too risky," director Axel Rueger told The Associated Press in the studio where the painting is undergoing restoration. "So therefore we decided that from now on we will not be able to lend the picture any more to other exhibitions to other museums — so it will always stay in Amsterdam."

For Van Gogh fans who can't make it to Amsterdam, the predominantly yellow 1889 painting of a bunch of sunflowers in a vase is based on another version of the work painted a year earlier that is on display at London's National Gallery. Other versions of the work are in Philadelphia, Tokyo and Munich.

The painting in Amsterdam is hardly a frequent flyer — it has only been loaned out six times, the last time to the National Gallery so it could hang next to that London museum's version.

Ella Hendriks, who worked on the current restoration project, said the painting underwent a series of tests she likened to a "full body scan" on a human patient. The tests used precision imaging machines to peer through the surface and decide what could and could not be done to the painting.

Associated Press

Senior paintings conservator Rene Boitelle works on restoring Vincent van Gogh's world-famous "Sunflowers" painting Wednesday at the Van Gogh museum in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

One test, usually used to examine retinas, gave a crucial insight by creating a "virtual cross-section" of layers of paint and varnish.

"We can see ... that the paint layer is mixed in together with the varnish layer so there's not a clear division between them," Hendriks said.

That discovery has limited the amount of work restorer Rene Boitelle can carry out.

He will remove some patches of beeswax that was applied after Van Gogh finished the work and have now gone a milky white color, and will use special paint to rework some previous restorations to make them less visible.

To return the painting to its original state would involve removing the varnish, which Van Gogh did not apply to the painting. Also, some previous restorations are under the varnish and can't be treated.

"That varnish cannot be removed safely — at least not with the methods and materials available to us now," Boitelle said. "I can remove the wax but the retouchings are there to stay — at least for now."

The painting will go back on display at the museum Feb. 22 and an exhibition about the research and restoration will open in June.

That means Boitelle has just a few more weeks to incredibly carefully spruce up one of the world's most recognizable artworks.

CHARGES

He said he was 15 years old at the time.

Cone-Stanton corroborated some of her alleged victims' allegations in an interview Wednesday with detectives, and was arrested afterwards, according to the sheriff's office.

"This is an unfortunate and sad situation," Superintendent Sandra "Sam" Himmel said in a release posted to the school district's Facebook page. "However, there is no reason to believe that any inappropriate behavior with our students occurred on any of our school campuses."

Cone-Stanton's bond was set at $12,000, and she was barred from school campuses, according to the sheriff's office and school district.

She faces up to 20 years in prison if convicted as charged on the third- and second-degree felonies.

Cone-Stanton was involved in the Inverness Storm cheerleading and football organization, Storm cheer commissioner Sandi Watson said Thursday.

"Her affiliation with Inverness Storm prior to this happening last night was she was the vice president," Watson said. "She has been removed from all Pop Warner roles."

Sheriff Mike Prendergast said Thursday in a press release the sheriff's office was continuing to investigate the case.

"Stanton was a trusted community member who was heavily involved in activities working with our county's youth. She used her position to prey on the vulnerability of our children," Prendergast said.

"No parent should ever have to worry about their child being victimized like this; especially from someone they viewed as a mentor," Prendergast's statement continued. "We will continue to work with the Citrus County School Board to determine if there are any additional victims."

Those with any additional information about the case, or who have been victimized by Cone-Stanton, can contact Special Victims Unit Sgt. Stephen Conley by calling 352-249-2718 or emailing sconley@sheriffcitrus.org.

Canada, native, is also the host of "The Bachelor Canada" and "The Bachelorette Canada."

Cappe said he gets asked the same two questions all the time: "Why are you not 500 pounds?" and, "What's the best or weirdest thing you ever ate?"

The Chronicle did not ask him either question, but did ask, "How many of the same shirts do you buy in case you drip sauce down your chest when you bite into something messy?"

He said he used to buy two or three, but now keeps a stash of quick stain remover products with him at all times so he's not lugging around a ton of clothes the 200 or so days a year that he's on the road.

Another question he said he's asked a lot: "What happens if you bite into something and you don't like it?"

"The truth is, we have an unbelievable research team, and by the time I get here — the fair, the vendors, the menu — everything has been hand-picked," he said. "So, by the time I get here, we're filming foods that are the best of the best."

Cappe did say that he leans toward sweet things rather than savory, although he likes everything.

Producer Jacob Ulrich said one way to tell if Cappe doesn't love something: if he leaves more than half. Otherwise, only crumbs are left over.

And yes, Cappe is as nice and personable off screen as he is on screen.

"On this show it's genuine," Cappe said. "It's real. We have a good time. We laugh and talk. We get to learn about people's backstories, and I love that. I'm a people person, and I've always loved talking to people — and eating, of course."

after the deadly storm ravaged the Gulf Coast region and eight months after Ertel was appointed Seminole County supervisor of elections. The newspaper hasn't said how it got the photos or identified the source.

Ertel, who had been on the job less than three weeks, resigned just hours after he testified about election lawsuits before a state legislative committee. He didn't immediately respond to a message seeking comment.

"There's nothing I can say," he told the paper.

The Republican was Seminole elections supervisor until last month, when new Gov. Ron DeSantis picked him to take over the state department that oversees elections. At the time, Ertel's appointment was praised by some Democrats who noted his lengthy tenure as a central Florida elections official.

DeSantis said Ertel regretted dressing up in blackface but was right to step down after the pictures surfaced.

his son featured on national TV.

As the cameras rolled early Saturday morning, Mueller and "Carnival Eats" host, Noah Cappe, talked not only about pretzel bites and stuffed pretzel bombs, but also Mueller's dad and the influence he had on his son.

Mueller said he learned from his dad that it's not just about making a living, but about being a part of the community.

That's why, when one of the "Carnival Eats" producers asked who else they might want to spotlight, he immediately thought of Kelly Decaire and her Hippie Chick Cheesecake.

"Brett's dad was a friend of mine and helped me get started as a mobile business," Decaire said. "He's been like family, and now Brett is taking over."

"I was going through a mix of emotions," Mueller said after the filming wrapped on Saturday. "I was nervous, I was excited, I was sad because my dad wasn't there — it was a lot to take in."

Mueller's mom, Kimberly Siegel, was also at the filming, taking photos and video with her phone.

"Wow, this is fantastic — Brett's a star," she said. "His dad started this business in the mall, and when the mall started going down when the big stores left, John thought the business was going to end. But our son had a dream and he called his dad and said, 'How about if we just go mobile?' His dad said, 'You work out all the details and we'll do it.'"

"So, Brett designed this trailer — he designed everything — and presented it to his dad, and with their two great minds, that's how we got OMG! Pretzel Bites," she said.

The name came from their customers consistently tasting and saying, "OMG, these are amazing!"

Mueller's younger sister, Brianna Bridewell, was also there to support her brother in his big moment.

"It's amazing, and I'm very proud of my brother," she said. "We worked with our dad at the mall ever since we could walk ... and now Brett's keeping our family's legacy going."

As for the secret to the "OMG!" factor in their pretzel bites?

"It's a family recipe," Mueller said. "But it's love — it really is love."

Langley offers aid to furloughed federal workers

Special to the Chronicle

Langley Health Services (LHS) seeks to ensure that federal employees and dependents impacted by the government shutdown can receive health care and diagnostic services at this time. It is implementing a program to provide medical, dental and behavioral health care at no cash out-of-pocket cost. It will also offer advanced imaging services at sliding scale rates or with extended payment plans.

Proof of employment with a federal agency impacted by the shutdown will be required. Langley will accept insurance and will be willing to provide administrative discounts and/or provide payment plans that will enable federal employees to defer any substantial deductible or copay requirements.

This program will only be available during the course of the government shutdown and will only be applicable to affected federal employees and their immediate dependents.

Langley Health Services Chief Executive Officer Thomas G. Chase said, "from Sept. 30, 2017, into March 2018, we were faced with the prospect of a substantial loss in funding. In that case, the funding became available in March and we were able to avoid the effects that our neighbors and friends are currently experiencing. LHS stands ready to help mitigate these effects. We want any affected federal employee to know they can turn to us for their primary medical and diagnostic services needs in this stressful time."

Three hospitalized after crash near hospital entrance

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

A trio of people was hospitalized after a jeep broadsided a car in front of a Crystal River-area hospital.

Manojkumar Bhanuprasad Shukla, 67, of Crystal River, was driving a silver BMW 328i at about 4:55 p.m. from the exit of Bayfront Health Seven Rivers, south of U.S. 19's intersection with Emerald Oaks Drive, according to a Florida Highway Patrol (FHP) crash report.

Shukla failed to stop or stay for the red light with U.S. 19 and pulled in front of a red, northbound Jeep Grand Cherokee, driven by 40-year-old April Lin Bowers of Inglis.

Bowers tried to brake and stop from her 60-mph speed, causing skid marks up to 82 feet long, but her jeep collided with the driver's side of Shukla's BMW, causing both vehicles to spin in the highway, according to FHP's report.

Shukla suffered from non-incapacitating injuries. Bowers and her passenger, 40-year-old Shannah Brook Romano, of Inglis, received incapacitating injuries. All three motorists were taken to the nearby hospital for treatment.

FHP cited Shukla for failing to obey a traffic control signal, and cited Bowers for failing to provide proof of insurance, driving without a valid vehicle registration and unknowingly driving with an invalid license.

LOOKING AHEAD

Grant a mixed blessing for B&G Clubs

It's great news that the Boys and Girls Clubs of Citrus County is in line for a multimillion-dollar grant over the course of the next five years.

The federal grant, of up to $1.7 million a year, will enable the club to greatly expand upon educational efforts, as it's intended to fund certified teachers to tutor and teach children involved with the Boys and Girls Clubs.

The grant is also intended to enable the B&G Clubs to drop most of the program fees it charges.

The windfall will greatly expand the emphasis on education. It's designed to enable a doubling of its staff size with 20 to 25 mostly part-time teachers. It's also designed to facilitate a near doubling of the number of youths enrolled at the three county club sites.

Provided that the terms of the grant can be realized, the financial infusion seems a blessing. It does, however, present some big concerns:

■ The grant will not be recurring. Just how and if the organization can keep the expanded staff after the five years is unknown. If after five years staff must be cut because of a funding shortfall, what will become of the expanded number of youths served?

THE ISSUE:

Grant for Boys and Girls Clubs.

OUR OPINION:

Great, but local support as important as ever.

■ Also, the organization provides an array of non-instructional activities for youths that come at a cost — things that foster healthy lifestyles, socialization and steering at-risk kids in a positive direction. With the grant dollars flowing, any assumption by potential donors that their support is no longer needed will undercut the means to keep those initiatives going.

"We're preparing for when we no longer have that grant ... so we have to do a better job fundraising," Boys and Girls Clubs of Citrus CEO Travis Anderson said.

The bottom line is, the Boys and Girls Clubs of Citrus County meet a great need. The grant will broaden that capability and minimize costs to families. But, if local support wanes, existing services and the ability to meet demands five years and more down the pike could be in jeopardy.

When it comes to charitable giving and volunteering, keep the Boys and Girls Clubs top of mind and close to your heart.

dogs in grocery stores. If people are smart, get after the manager and tell them because I gave a copy of this to the manager at the (supermarket) and asked her to forward this up to their legal department so they can rewrite about dogs in stores. Whether they did or not, I don't know. I've got to see the service manager so I can question her and see if they're abiding by the law.

God bless you, Gerry Mulligan!

This is a call for Gerry Mulligan: I would just like to say I just love his commentaries and I loved the one where he wrote about how people were complaining that when the papers were delivered, people complained that some of them are tied and some of them are untied and that they were just complaining about the people who deliver them and they weren't happy. And I would just like to say to him, you know, you can only please some of the people some of the time, but not all of the people all of the time. But, Gerry, you're a great person and it was wonderful to hear that you had a wonderful

Clearer reporting would be helpful

Sometimes news stories just make little sense. More effort should be made to clarify things. Take, for example, the Sunday article that seems to imply, in a blatantly oxymoronic fashion, that the number of veterans in the county has fallen despite having gone up ("VA says Citrus veteran population took a dive," Jan. 13, page A11). Hmmm. A quick bit of research shows that it can be explained and more correctly reported, or at least more clearly reported, that despite VA's projections for 2016, the actual number of veterans went up. The projection formula clearly demonstrates how that could happen. I kid you not. Here is the formula used: "Vets t,a = Vets t-1, a-1 + Seps fy(t,a-1) - Deaths fy(t,a-1) +/- Net Migration fy(t,a-1), where 't' represents time and 'a' represents age." This formula — VetPop2016 — represents the eighth generation of the Veteran Population Projection Model which began in the 1990s. The math is well beyond my comprehension and is likely liked only by math geeks and actuaries.

But the bigger flaw in the article is that either the reporter or the source does not correctly describe a veteran. The article says that "rather than simply counting members of the retired military, the VA is using a calculation ..." which implies that the number of retired military is the number of veterans. A veteran, as defined in the U.S. Code Title 38, is "a person who served in the active military, naval or air service, and who was discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable." Most vets did not retire from the military. Having served honorably in the military and having retired from the military are both deserving of our respect and praise but they are different. The conflation of the two is a very common error and I wish more people would get it straight.

Hot Corner: RECYCLING

■ In response to the Sunday article about recycling (in Jan. 20's Commentary, "County facing new challenges with recycling," by Mike Bresnahan). It was quite good. It was pointed out all the problems with recycling but, unfortunately, no solutions. Let me offer a couple: First of all, put a deposit on beer, soda and sports drinks — bottles and cans — which will reduce them in the recycle bins and also help your litter problem. This will require a statewide change. I am sure all counties in Florida have this recycle problem. So to get the same state to put in a returnable bottle and can deposit law, it should be possible. This may take a few counties getting together. Build a paper- and cardboard-burning steam plant. Turn the steam into electricity and sell it. Burn those pizza boxes. Residents put all paper in a paper bag, put the bag in their recycle bin, collect it, send it to the steam plant and make money. Don't give up on recycling; change how you do it.

■ I was very upset when I read in Sunday's paper that an item as small as a dirty pizza box could contaminate a whole truckload of recyclables after many people clean all their things — jars, cans, etc. Perhaps one way to help would be to teach the youngsters from the first grade up about the proper way to recycle. Then they could get in the habit of doing it correctly and show their parents what they have learned and hopefully that would solve some of the problem.

■ I'm calling Sound Off in reference to all these people complaining about recycle bins, recycle bins, recycle bins. The point is, if the county won't put the recycle bins out, then guess what? Put your recyclables out with the trash because if they don't care and they don't want to make the money from the recyclables, then why should you? Just throw them out with the trash. As far as the person saying that his neighbor or somebody he knows is throwing trash in the recycle bins area, why don't you take a picture of that person and give it to the Chronicle and see if they'll put his picture on the front page? Then maybe then you might get some action toward it because the commissioners ain't going to do nothing about it. They're going to tell you it's not their area of prestige. The sheriff's department, they're going to say that if they don't see it, they can't do nothing about it. So maybe if you put his picture or her picture in the Chronicle of them putting the trash in the recycle bin, maybe the Chronicle could do something about it. But my attitude is, if they don't want to recycle, just throw it in the trash with your regular trash and let it be gone.

Benefits, yes; free rides, no

Benefits vs. free passes: I, nor anybody else, would want to deprive any veteran or civilian from their benefits. My rebuttal to a previous Sound Off was in reference to a veteran wanting free entrance to some of our parks — ergo, Three Sisters Springs. I am proud of our veterans for their service. I am also proud of my lifetime service in the private sector. So, again, I say let's all enjoy the benefits we are entitled to, but also stop trying to get a free ride along the rest of the way.

You should alert the store manager

I'm calling about the dogs in the store. I was in (a supermarket) and two big hound dogs came in with two women. I complained to the service manager and she says it's OK. She showed me the rules and said OK. Well, I went to my computer and this is for everybody to check on their computer. Look for ADA Title III News & Insight. Dogs have to be able to do certain things. If they can't, they're not service dogs. And you can also check other federal agencies and look for laws regarding Christmas with your family because not many people are blessed as you are blessed with such a wonderful family, children and grandchildren. And I just want to say have a very happy, happy, healthy and holy new year to you and yours. God bless you, dear man. Goodbye.

Guys need to get the lead out

The clock is moving. We are now in the third year of the Phase 1 project to four-lane County Road 491 from State Road 44 to County Road 486. This dillydally project has been ongoing since the C.R. 491 four-lane county workshops of 1995. With estimated completion of 13 miles of the Suncoast Parkway into Citrus County in three years, 2022, it's time to complete the final C.R. 491 four-lane phase. Traffic in the center of Citrus County will not be fun if the Suncoast Parkway is completed prior to the full four-laning of C.R. 491.

Acronyms for everything

Well, you guys did it again. I thought I knew all the acronyms and the abbreviations and letters for everything, but not in this education thing today about the schools starting to get overcrowded, etc. (Jan. 13's front-page story, "Citrus schools at high capacity"). You have FISH. I had a chuckle. So, hey, I'm chuckling.

Toot your horn somewhere else

Letter writers who use letters to the editor to tout their past experience and pat themselves on the back should use Facebook. This would leave space for other writers who have something important to write.

Sometimes they need some prodding

This is Stat Cop. How is everybody doing? In regards to enforcing the law, petitions just bring to attention to law enforcement that there's more than one problem in the area. Once a petition is signed by more than one person, that shows that there's a lot of people having a problem. That makes the law enforcement do their jobs a little bit faster and (give) more attention to that area. The petition, if it's signed by other people in the area, the state attorney's office will look at it and also the sheriff's office. So do what you can in your area. The deputies try to do the best they can but sometimes they have to get prodded a little bit on their butt sides, if you know what I mean. Hope everything works.

Boat owners are a better investment

Regarding the discussion of bike trails vs. boat ramps: I say follow the money. A bicyclist spends a couple hundred dollars for a bike and that is the end of it. A boater spends several thousand dollars for a boat and that is just the beginning. The boater has license and registration fees, fishing license fees, repairs and upkeep. When he uses the boat, he has fuel costs, launch fees, fishing tackle, bait and even beer. Any boater will tell you that his boat is a hole in the water into which he throws money, but that money does not disappear. It goes into the pockets of the large and small businesses who provide the services he needs. On top of all his other expenses, most boaters would gladly pay a $5 fee to have a decent place to launch. Can the same be said of the bicyclists? The county should spend its money where it will bring the most return.

Sound OFF

Next time, do some research

Criticizing the county commissioners now is obviously too late. They are in office because Republicans don't do any research and just vote the party line. So now you are stuck with all of them. Unfortunately, so is everyone else.

Mind your own business, folks

In regards to the Chronicle in the Sound Off column (Jan. 13, page C4), the "Chronicle should alert public about smoking": Here we go with the smoking Nazis again. The only thing I'd like to say to them people is mind your own business, not other's.

Pit bulls are fine, except when they're not

Pit bull dogs are among the most loving and gentle creatures on this planet. However, there is a condition called canine rage syndrome, which manifests itself more in some breeds than others. I guess it's kind of like being bipolar if you're human. It's a condition in which the slightest provocation can cause some breeds of dogs — some individuals within those breeds — to go into a rage and attack. There are more people killed in this country by pit bull dogs than by all other breeds combined. Rottweilers come in second.

Pit bulls, deadly spiders — same thing, right?

Concerning pit bulls: I have four pet black widow spiders and they're very friendly. A lot of people are afraid of them. These spiders, I let them crawl on my arms and all over me. I have pictures of them on my face and they're really neat spiders. They've never hurt anybody. Why people hate these spiders, I don't understand it. Now does that sound as stupid as it sounds?

Do dogs get retirement benefits?

Interesting article about the K-9 that was retiring from the police force (Jan. 13's front page). I understand that he has been deputized and sworn in as a member of the police department. So now that he retires, does that mean he's going to get a large pension and Medicare and all this other stuff? Well, with the government shutdown, he may not get anything. It's kind of interesting that the dog sometimes get better care than some of the people in the county, but I love animals.

You should listen to that guy

Yesterday, the Chronicle named John Plevell as the Stat Cop, based on a tip (in Jan. 13's Sound Off, "Stat Cop's secret identity?"). I thought that the Chronicle is confidential when it came to these types of calls. If he is the Stat Cop, you might want to listen to him because he was a good cop and I worked with him occasionally. An ex-retired cop from Citrus County.

Pine Ridge people getting too excited

I'm reading in today's Sunday paper (Jan. 13's front page) that they say the Suncoast Parkway is going to end up at the Pine Ridge front door. I'm not sure what that means, but why do they think that the people coming off the Suncoast are going to drive into Pine Ridge? They're going to go east or west on (County Road) 486. I think that once again, the Pine Ridge people are getting overexcited. It's probably never going to happen.

Just sign up with the VA

This is for the (Sound Off) Jan. 14, Monday, "Get your facts straight, buddy." Well, I'm a veteran and I got full medical coverage. I don't have dental coverage and I don't have PX privileges, but every veteran has medical coverage for the rest of his life. All a fellow has to do is go down to the VA Clinic in Lecanto and sign up and he's covered for the rest of his life. That includes prescriptions, glasses and hearing aids.

Keep your dog on a leash

This suggestion involves when you have people not putting their leashes on their dogs. I'm handicapped. I have to take my dogs out for a walk. I go to the park. I took a drive out there behind Wendy's on (County Road) 491. These people come out there — I'm handicapped — with their dogs not on a leash. Mine are on a leash. The problem is when they come in to attack my dogs, I can't fight for them because I have a disability in my back. I've called the police. I have no one helping me to tell these people they need to have their dogs on a leash. It's a state law.

Trees need trimming over here

Just a friendly heads-up to the county road maintenance crew: Perhaps we could get those nuisance palm fronds protruding on the roadway trimmed along Maylen Avenue in Lecanto. That road is narrow enough without having to drive near the center to avoid having your vehicle's mirrors adjusted by these palm fronds. Thank you in advance for getting this done. It's really appreciated.

Maduro rival offers amnesty

SCOTT SMITH AND
CHRISTINE ARMARIO
Associated Press

CARACAS, Venezuela — All eyes were on Juan Guaido's next step after the popular Venezuelan opposition leader declared he was temporarily assuming presidential powers in a high-stakes bid to unseat Nicolas Maduro, whose powerful loyalists went on the offensive Thursday in support of the embattled leader.

Guaido has disappeared from view since swearing before tens of thousands of cheering supporters to uphold the constitution and rid Venezuela of Maduro's dictatorship, and his whereabouts remained shrouded in mystery.

In his first public comments since declaring himself interim president, and speaking from an undisclosed location, Guaido told Univision he would consider granting amnesty to Maduro and his allies if they helped return Venezuela to democracy.

"Amnesty is on the table," the 35-year-old said. "Those guarantees are for all those who are willing to side with the constitution to recover the constitutional order."

A defiant Maduro called home all Venezuelan diplomats from the United States and closed its embassy, a day after ordering all U.S. diplomats out of the country by the weekend. Washington has refused to comply, but ordered its non-essential staff to leave the tumultuous country, citing security concerns.

The Trump administration says Maduro's order isn't legal because the U.S. no longer recognizes him as Venezuela's legitimate leader.

"They believe they have a colonial hold in Venezuela, where they decide what they want to do," Maduro said in an address broadcast live on state TV.

"You must fulfill my order from the government of Venezuela."

Tensions have soared between the two nations after Trump recognized opposition leader Juan Guaido, who claimed Wednesday to hold the presidency and vowed to remove Maduro, calling him a "dictator."

Attention has been on the military, a traditional arbiter of political disputes in Venezuela, as a critical indicator of whether the opposition will succeed in establishing a new government.

Venezuela's top military brass pledged their unwavering support to Maduro, delivering vows of loyalty earlier Thursday before rows of green-uniformed officers on state television.

A half-dozen generals belonging largely to district commands and with direct control over thousands of troops joined Maduro in accusing the United States of meddling in Venezuela's affairs and said they would uphold the socialist leader's rule.

Nation BRIEFS

Man says emotional support alligator helps him

YORK HAVEN, Pa. — A Pennsylvania man says his emotional support alligator helps him deal with his depression.

Joie Henney, 65, said his registered emotional support animal named Wally likes to snuggle and give hugs, despite being a 5-foot-long alligator. The York Haven man said he received approval from his doctor to use Wally as his emotional support animal after not wanting to go on medication for depression, he told Philly.com.

"I had Wally, and when I came home and was around him, it was all OK," he said. "My doctor knew about Wally and figured it works, so why not?"

Wally was rescued from outside Orlando at 14 months old and is still growing; Henney said Wally could be 16 feet long one day. Henney says Wally eats chicken wings and shares an indoor plastic pond with a smaller rescue alligator named Scrappy.

Wally, who turns 4 this year, is a big teddy bear, in Henney's words. The cold-blooded reptile likes to rest his snout on Henney's, and "he likes to give hugs," he said.

The alligator has never bitten anyone and is even afraid of cats, according to Henney.

Henney acknowledged that Wally is still a dangerous wild animal and could probably tear his arm off, but says he's never been afraid of him.

Illinois may seek new sentencing in McDonald slaying

CHICAGO — The Illinois attorney general's office has signaled it may be considering a rare sentencing-related appeal if it concludes a white Chicago police officer's less-than-seven-year prison sentence in the slaying of black teenager Laquan McDonald was wrongly calculated.

The office said in a statement Thursday it is reviewing Jason Van Dyke's sentence. With credit for good behavior, Van Dyke will likely serve only around three years for firing 16 bullets into McDonald in 2014.

An activist who helped force the city to release dashcam video of the shooting in 2015, William Callo-way, echoed the sentiment of many Chicago residents last week when he said the sentence amounted to "a slap on the wrist."

Van Dyke's attorney, Dan Herbert, says raising the idea of an appeal is "about politics not the law."

Immigrant suspect in four killings accused of thefts

CARSON CITY, Nev. — A suspect in four fatal shootings in Nevada was accused in court Thursday of being in the U.S. illegally and selling jewelry stolen from some of the dead.

Wilber Ernesto Martinez-Guzman, a 19-year-old immigrant from El Salvador, appeared in court in Carson City in shackles with a Spanish-language interpreter and a public defender at his side.

The judge spent more than 25 minutes reading aloud a 36-count criminal complaint that suggested property theft as a motive for the slayings. He set bail at $500,000.

Martinez-Guzman was not charged with murder and did not enter a plea to burglary, stolen property and weapon charges that are punishable by decades in prison. Authorities in nearby Douglas and Washoe counties, where the four victims lived, have said they plan to file murder charges against him soon, perhaps as early as Friday.

Senate rejects plans to end shutdown

ANDREW TAYLOR
AND ALAN FRAM
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A splintered Senate swatted down competing Democratic and Republican plans for ending the 34-day partial government shutdown on Thursday, but the twin setbacks prompted a burst of bipartisan talks aimed at temporarily halting the longest-ever closure of federal agencies and the damage it's inflicting around the country.

In the first serious talks in weeks, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., quickly called Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., to his office to explore potential next steps for solving the vitriolic stalemate. Senators from both sides floated a plan to reopen agencies for three weeks and pay hundreds of thousands of beleaguered federal workers while bargainers hunt a deal.

At the White House, President Donald Trump told reporters he'd support "a reasonable agreement." He suggested he'd also want a "prorated down payment" for his long-sought border wall with Mexico, a term he didn't describe and which drew opposition from Democrats. He said he has "other alternatives" for getting wall funding, an apparent reference to his disputed claim that he could declare a national emergency and fund its construction using other programs in the federal budget.

"At least we're talking about it. That's better than it was before," McConnell told reporters in one of the most encouraging statements heard since the shutdown began Dec. 22.

It was initially unclear whether the flurry would produce results. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., whose relationship with Trump seems to have soured daily, told reporters a "big" down payment would not be "a reasonable agreement." Asked if she knew how much money Trump meant, Pelosi said, "I don't know if he knows what he's talking about."

Contributing to the pressure on lawmakers was the harsh reality confronting 800,000 federal workers, who on Friday face a second two-week payday with no paychecks.

Thursday's votes came after Vice President Mike Pence lunched privately with GOP senators, who told him they were itching for the stand-off to end, participants said. Sen. Roy Blunt, R-Mo., said their message to Pence was, "Find a way forward."

Producing points for Panthers

Sophomore Keeran putting ball in the basket

Correspondent

It was just a few moments after her Lecanto girls basketball team had suffered a disappointing one-point loss to cross-county rival Citrus, a team the Panthers had defeated by 11 points five weeks earlier.

Trinity Keeran was visibly upset and, in her viewpoint, she deserved to be.

"I didn't do the best I could, we didn't do the best we could do as a team," she said. "We had way too many turnovers, we should do better than this."

It was the third time this season Lecanto had lost a game by a single point, which didn't make the defeat any more palatable. The 32 turnovers the Panthers committed were a prime factor in the loss.

Keeran knew she didn't have her best game; she scored just five points, and scoring is something she's counted on to do. Through Lecanto's first 10 games, she led her team in scoring, averaging 11 points a game; she also had the most 3-pointers converted at 14.

Not bad for a sophomore.

Not that Keeran had no varsity experience. As her Lecanto coach, Ron Allan, put it, "She played a lot last year, she was like our sixth man, she scored a lot."

But that was last year, as a freshman, on a team that went 8-15. This year's Panthers have already surpassed that win total; after losing their first four games, they won nine of their

Area teams look to advance from district play

DAVID PIEKLIK
Correspondent

One team looks to make its third-consecutive trip to the regional playoffs, while another looks for its first-ever district title when girls soccer district playoffs kick-off today.

The No. 1 seed Lecanto Panthers look to repeat as district champions when they host their District 3A-5 quarterfinal match against Belleview at 7 p.m. The Panthers (15-3-1, 13-1 3A-5) are heavily favored to beat the Rattlers, having won both regular season matchups, 9-0 and 11-0, respectively.

The Panthers hold a 4-0-2 all-time record against the 8th-seed Rattlers, with the team looking for its third-straight trip to the 3A regional playoffs.

Despite entering the season with some uncertainties when tremendous scoring talent graduated, the Panthers are still outscoring opponents 102-16, almost equaling last year's output.

Head coach Kevin Towne said his team is playing very well right now, especially against highly ranked teams like Montverde Academy, ranked fourth in the nation with a 16-0 record. The Panthers recently lost 3-0 to the Eagles, but had close calls on net and played strong throughout.

The Panthers are so hungry for a shot at heading back to the state's semifinal like they did last year — a school and county first — that they practiced in 32 degrees Monday.

"They don't seem anxious, they just seem ready," Towne said. "They know now what it takes and how easy it is for any team to come in any night and upset anyone."

The Crystal River Pirates are looking to do just that when they face Vanguard on the road in their quarterfinal match. The fifth-seeded Pirates (7-10-1, 6-7-1) have an uphill fight against the No. 4 Knights (11-9, 8-6), losing to them 6-0 and 7-1 this season. The all-time series between the schools is split at 3-3.

Pirates coach Bill Reyes was seeing improvement before a few losses to end the regular season, and knows more is needed from how his team played the Knights earlier in the year. He has had to play backup goalkeeper Lecanto's Tristin King, front, and Kaley Kjos of Citrus battle for possession of the ball Jan. 8 at Citrus High School in Inverness. All four county teams are in action tonight when district tournament play begins. Citrus, Lecanto and Seven Rivers Christian host quarterfinal games, while Crystal River is on the road.

Haylee Woodhouse in net after starter Courtney Pinnell got injured.

Woodhouse is the team's leading scorer, limiting his attack options. However, he added, "We have to keep stepping up and playing not to how our opponent is, but how well we can play."

The game he uses as a key to that success is the second matchup against the North Marion Colts, a 5-0 Pirates rout. "The team I saw is the team that can play against tougher opponents," Reyes added.

The No. 3 Citrus Hurricanes, hosting the sixth-seed Colts for their quarterfinal, are also a heavy favorite to advance to the semifinal match after two 8-0 regular-season shutouts against their opponent. The 'Canes have a 6-0 scoring lead over the Colts, outscoring them 42-2.

Head coach Eric Tremante is not looking ahead.

"We have to approach every game like it's our last to get to the district tournament. We can continue to improve, and we need to continue to improve," he said.

A win sets up a semifinals match against the quarterfinals winner from the Eastside-Lake Weir game, with a trip to the final possibly leading to a hometown rivalry match. A small winning

LeBron's a captain once again

Antetokounmpo picked to lead the Eastern squad

TIM REYNOLDS
AP basketball writer

LeBron James of the Los Angeles Lakers is a captain and an All-Star starter — again.

Giannis of the Milwaukee Bucks will choose his own teammates as the other captain.

And Hornets guard Kemba Walker is about to make his first All-Star start, on his home floor in Charlotte.

While there were perhaps mild surprises, there were no real stunners during Thursday night's unveiling of the starters for the NBA All-Star Game that will be played in Charlotte on Feb. 17. James and Antetokounmpo are captains, their perk for being the leading vote-getters out of the Western and Eastern Conferences, and nine of this year's 10 starters have been chosen to begin All-Star Games in the past.

Walker is the lone exception, and broke into a smile when realizing he was a pick.

"It's kind of surreal," Walker told TNT during the broadcast to announce the starters.

The starting guards from the East are Boston's Kyrie Irving and Walker. The East frontcourt picks were Antetokounmpo, Toronto's Kawhi Leonard and Philadelphia's Joel Embiid. From the West, Stephen Curry and reigning NBA MVP James Harden were the picks at guard, with James, Golden State's Kevin Durant and Oklahoma City's Paul George getting the frontcourt spots.

"I had a lot of doubt coming into my early career about just even being an elite point guard in this league," Walker said. "So for me to become an All-Star for two straight years and then now to become an All-Star starter most definitely proves the doubters wrong. So this is an unbelievable moment in my career."

James, who has been out for a month with a groin injury but is nearing a return, extended his own record by getting picked as a starter for the 15th consecutive year. He was also a captain last year in the first usage of this captain's-choice format — and just like last year, James will have the No. 1 pick when he and Antetokounmpo get together on Feb. 7 to choose their 12-man teams.

Osaka vs. Kvitova for title, No. 1 ranking

Women's final matchup set

MELBOURNE, Australia — Naomi Osaka never made it past the fourth round at any of the first 10 Grand Slam tournaments of her career. Now, still just 21, she's suddenly on the verge of a second consecutive major championship.

And the No. 1 ranking, too.

Osaka moved one victory away from adding the Australian Open trophy to the one she collected 4 1/2 months ago at the U.S. Open, using her smooth power to produce 15 aces and groundstroke winners at will while beating Karolina Pliskova of the Czech Republic 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 in the semifinals Thursday.

"I just told myself to regroup in the third set and just try as hard as I can," said Osaka, who saved four break points in the last set and finished the match with an ace at 115 mph.

"I was so scared serving second serves. I was like, 'Oh, my God. Please!'" Osaka said. "Somehow, I made it. I guess that's experience."

A day after erasing four match points and a 5-1 deficit in the third set to stun Serena Williams in the quarterfinals, Pliskova could not produce the same kind of comeback.

Instead it is Osaka, the only Japanese woman to win a major singles title, who will face two-time Wimbledon champion Petra Kvitova on Saturday. The winner will rise to the top of the WTA rankings for the first time; Osaka is currently No. 4, Kvitova is No. 6.

In the men's semifinals,

Rafael Nadal continued his relentless roll through the draw by defeating Stefanos Tsitsipas 6-2, 6-4, 6-0 at night. Nadal has not dropped a set as he bids for a second Australian Open title and 18th Grand Slam trophy overall.

Osaka's fourth-round finish at Melbourne Park a year ago was her best showing at a major until last year's U.S. Open, where she outplayed Williams in the final. A victory over Kvitova would make Osaka the first woman to win two Slams in a row since Williams claimed four straight across the 2014-15 seasons.

Two years ago, Kvitova missed the Australian Open, just weeks after her left hand was stabbed by an intruder at her home in the Czech Republic. Back at her best during what she calls her "second career," Kvitova surged to a 7-6 (2), 6-0 victory against 35th-ranked American Danielle Collins after Rod Laver Arena's retractable roof was closed as the temperature soared toward 105 degrees.

Kvitova reached her first major final since the December 2016 knife attack that led to hours of surgery on the hand she holds her racket with — and first since winning Wimbledon for the second time in 2014.

"I didn't know even if I (was) going to play tennis again," Kvitova said. "It's been a long journey."

Against Collins, a two-time NCAA champion at the University of Virginia who was 0-5 at Slams until this one, Kvitova was more aggressive throughout, mixing big lefty forehands and well-timed pushes forward to the tune of a 30-9 edge in total winners.

But the key to the outcome might very well have been what happened at 4-all after 35 minutes of action: That's when the decision finally was made to close the 15,000-seat stadium's cover, drawing cheers of approval from broiling spectators.

Kvitova probably wanted to applaud, too.

"I was happier than the fans that the roof closed," she said afterward. "I like to play indoors. It helped me a little bit."

She's made clear over the years she is not a huge fan of playing in stifling heat. Not too many people truly are, of course, but Collins is OK with it and thought the roof should have stayed open.

"I grew up in Florida and am used to it being really hot all the time. So I kind of embrace that very well," Collins said. "Indoor tennis is a different game. Certainly had its effect."

When play resumed after a five-minute delay, it went from being completely even to tilted in Kvitova's favor. She dominated the tiebreaker and the second set to stretch her winning streak to 11 matches.

Osaka, meanwhile, extended her Slam run to 13 matches while putting a stop to Pliskova's 10-0 start to the season.

Osaka accumulated a 56-20 advantage in winners — and held on when it all could have slipped away.

She began the day having won 58 matches in a row after taking the first set, but that seemed in danger when Pliskova broke to end the second and had three break points to go up 2-0 in the third.

But Osaka steeled herself there, erasing the first break chance with a huge forehand, the second with a down-the-line backhand winner. On the third, another terrific backhand forced a forehand error into the net by Pliskova, who cracked her racket against the blue court. When Pliskova netted a return of an 83 mph second serve to make it 1-all, Osaka tugged at the brim of her pink visor and let out a big exhale.

The match would continue for another

28 minutes, but it basically was done, then and there. That stretch began a nine-point, three-game run for Osaka, and she was on her way. She would face one last break point at 4-3, but saved it with a 108 mph ace.

Rahm opens with 62 at Torrey Pines, Woods grinds out a 70

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — All the attention was on Tiger Woods and his 2019 debut. Just like the last two occasions, Jon Rahm delivered the best performance.

In ideal conditions even by San Diego standards, Rahm opened with an eagle and kept going lower until he had a 10-under 62 on the North course at Torrey Pines, giving him a one-shot lead over Justin Rose after the opening round Thursday at the Farmers Insurance Open.

"You play the South on the first day, you're trying to survive," Rahm said. "On the North, you've got to start under par to keep up. I kept the pedal down."

Woods was on the tougher South course, where he won his last major, the 2008 U.S. Open. He made three birdies on the back nine for a 70, which he thought could have been lower but found acceptable given that it was his first competition in nearly two months.

"I probably could have shot something around 68 or 67 today pretty easily," Woods said. "I hit a lot of good putts that were around the hole that just didn't quite fall in. Overall, shooting a couple under par on the South course is not so bad, but now I'm forced to have to shoot a low one tomorrow just like most of the field did over there today."

Rahm's highlight last year was beating Woods on Sunday in the Ryder Cup during a European victory in France. He ended the year by closing with a 65 to win Woods' holiday tournament in the Bahamas.

They were on opposite ends of Torrey Pines, and the Spaniard made the most of being on the North course, which is 440 yards shorter and played just over two shots easier on average. He made two eagles on the back nine to go out in 29, and his only regret was missing a 7-foot birdie putt on his final hole that would have tied the North course record set 12 years ago by Brandt Snedeker, who was in his group.

"I don't think you ever tee up on any course at Torrey Pines expecting to shoot 10-under par," said Rahm, who won at Torrey two years ago for his first PGA Tour title.

Rose played in the group behind him, also opened with an eagle and did his best to keep up. He played bogey-free for a 63 and finished with a birdie. He played in the same group as Jordan Spieth (65) and Billy Horschel (66), a group that combined for 21 birdies and two eagles, a better-ball score of 59.

"They told us our combined group was the lowest," Spieth said. "I'm glad, because if there were lower than that, it means everybody went low."

Charles Howell III and Brandon Nagy had the lowest scores on the South at 66, and Nagy did that with three bogeys on his card.

"You don't see many days when you don't have any wind," Howell said.

"The scores were a lot lower than I thought they would be."

Ninety-seven players in the 156-man field broke par. Even more unusual was that no one shot worse than 77.

Most of that was the ideal weather, and while the North is a little tougher than it used to be, the new greens from the Tom Weiskopf redo have settled in and were much easier to hold. Add to that a collection of shorter par 4s, and there was no shortage of birdies.

Rahm led the way in what he calls his special place.

This is where he won for the first time on the PGA Tour, when he holed a 60-foot eagle putt on the 18th hole. He loves Torrey Pines so much that this was the only tournament where he tried Monday qualifying while at Arizona State (he missed). And this is where he proposed to his girlfriend, Kelley Cahill, on the hiking trails around Torrey.

"So there's a lot of reasons for me to be happy every time I come here, no matter how I play," Rahm said.

He had plenty of reason to smile after a 62, matching his low round in his short career on the PGA Tour.

Rahm made his only bogey on the tough par-3 third, and he was in trouble in the rough on the next hole until escaping with par. He responded with four straight birdies, and was just short of the green on the par-5 ninth when his pitch ran out 7 feet past the hole and his birdie putt to tie the course record caught the left lip.

And now it's onto the South course for Rahm, Rose, Spieth and the rest.

"It's nice to get the North out of the way, shoot a good score, just what you have to do," Rose said.

Woods and Rory McIlroy, who opened with a 71, move over to the North.

"It seems like everybody over on the North course shot low numbers, and obviously it's playing a little bit easier than we've had the last couple of years over there," Woods said. "After the changes, those greens have been usually extremely firm and difficult to get the ball close. If that many guys shot that many under par, it might be a different story."

Fitzpatrick leads by 1 at Dubai Desert Classic

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Matthew Fitzpatrick birdied five of his last six holes to shoot a 7-under 65 and take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Dubai Desert Classic.

Fitzpatrick's lowest score in an opening round since 2015 broke a logjam at the top of the leaderboard, with morning starters Sergio Garcia and Bryson DeChambeau among eight players to shoot 66 at Emirates Golf Club.

The biggest of Fitzpatrick's five career wins came in Dubai, at the end-of-season World Tour Championship in 2016.

The Englishman said he worked hard in the offseason to add length to his driver and to improve his wedge game. It is already paying off, with his strong start to the second stop of the European Tour's "Gulf Swing" coming days after securing a fourth-place finish at the Singapore Open.

The benefits of having veteran caddie Billy Foster, who recently split with Lee Westwood, on his bag are also showing.

"I needed to work on different parts of my game, different shots, and really did feel like I put in a lot of work over the winter, to be honest," Fitzpatrick said. "And so far I've played five rounds this year and have played pretty well for all of them."

At No. 5, DeChambeau is the highest-ranked player in the field as he looks to win for the first time outside the U.S. PGA Tour or Web.com Tour.

Like playing partner Garcia, DeChambeau made six birdies and didn't drop a shot, despite saying he wasn't "hitting it anywhere near my best."

"I even missed a couple of putts," he said. "I just felt like it was a scrappy round but I got out of it and shot 66."

Tiger Woods watches his tee shot on the 14th hole of the South Course at Torrey Pines Golf Course during the first round on Thursday in San Diego.

next 10. Even with the loss at Citrus, Lecanto still has a 10-7 overall record.

Keeran has been a major part in that turnaround. Last season, the Panthers didn't have anyone averaging double-figures in scoring. Points had to be produced. Keeran has done that.

"She stepped into a different role this year as a starter and she's starting to develop," Allan said. "She's got a nice shot, especially once she gets into a rhythm."

Still, her basketball education is on-going.

"That's the thing, she still takes some ill-advised shots, they may be open but she's not ready to take those shots," he said. "She's got to learn how to get herself into position a little bit better."

"She works hard, she's coachable, she does listen, but she's only a sophomore and she still has a lot to learn."

Keeran knows it. Last Friday's loss served as a learning tool.

Asked what she needed to improve, she replied, "Basically everything — my free throws, my shooting, my taking the ball in from the side, my defense. Everything I do in the game, I have to get better at."

Allan wouldn't argue, extending that assessment to the entire Panther squad.

"She's got some things to work on, she has to get better defensively and she has to work on her stroke a little bit to become more consistent," he said.

It's her ability to put the ball in the basket that remains her greatest attribute, he said.

"Oh yeah, right now it is," he said, then added, "But like everybody else, there's a lot of things she can get better at."

She has improved since her freshman year, to be sure.

"I'm taking the ball into the basket more," she said. "Last year, as a freshman, I really didn't do much, I would just sit outside and shoot. I'm just able to take it in more and be more active for the team. I have been a better shooter than last year."

A lesson she's learned, compliments of Citrus, is where to focus her attention so the Panthers can get what's most sought — a victory.

"We're going to have to take care of the ball and stop their shooters," she said when asked of a possible meeting with the Hurricanes in the district tournament. "Hayleigh (Reeves) hit too many 3s on us, she scored too much on us (10 points), and we committed way too many fouls that shouldn't have happened. We just have to take care of the ball, play defense, and run our offense like we know how to."

Do that and Lecanto's season could be extended for a while.

Valerie announces February lineup

Special to the Chronicle

The Valerie Theatre Cultural Center has announced its lineup for February.

Sunday movies are show at 3 p.m. each week and the second Friday movie begins at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $6 for all films.

On the schedule for the month are:

directed by John G. Avildsen and both written by and starring Sylvester Stallone. It tells the rags-to-riches American Dream story of Rocky Balboa, an uneducated but kind-hearted working class Italian-American boxer working as a debt collector for a loan shark in the slums of Philadelphia.

Rocky, also a small-time club fighter, gets a shot at the world heavyweight championship. The film also stars Talia Shire as Adrian, Burt Young as Adrian's brother Paulie, Burgess Meredith as Rocky's trainer Mickey Goldmill and Carl Weathers as the champion, Apollo Creed.

The film, made on a budget of just over $1 million, was a sleeper hit; it earned $225 million in global box office receipts, becoming the highest-grossing film of 1976 and went on to win three Oscars, including Best Picture. The film received many positive reviews and turned Stallone into a major star.

GOOD TIMES

Accepting mistakes

Several years ago, I attended a lecture by Elliot Aronson, co-author of a great book, "Mistakes Were Made (but not by me)."

The author described our tendency for self-justification: We don't admit that we have made a mistake because we can't bear to be wrong. Research has shown that mistake-makers who acknowledge their errors are often more accepted than those who insist on their own innocence.

I am hoping that this research is correct, as I confess that I inadvertently sent in a two-year-old column instead of the correct column last week. Mea culpa. I hope no one's plans were ruined by my mistake. And I dream that this spirit of disclosure floats up to Washington.

When I watch musicians perform, I rarely hear mistakes, but even my uncritical ear could pick up a big oops two weeks ago at The Florida Orchestra Pops show, "Nat and Natalie." Denzal Sinclaire, a noted jazz vocalist, began singing the Nat King Cole song "L-O-V-E" with full orchestra accompaniment. Instead of starting with "L — is for the way you look at me" he began "O — is for the only one I see." It was a show stopper, literally. How did the audience react to this mistake? With laughter, not boos. For some, it was the hit of the show.

Even some big-name performers have made mistakes and accepted them. Listen to the very beginning of "Roxanne" by The Police. There is a wrong note, followed by Sting's soft laugh. They could have fixed it but chose to live with the mistake. In "Love Shack," by The B-52s, Cindy Wilson's a capella scream "Tin roof rusted!" was a mistake that the band decided to keep.

So going forward, let's all accept and acknowledge our mistakes and encourage others to do the same. At least in the world of music, a mistake can sometimes become a hit.

Janet Bostrom is a fan of the local music scene. You can reach her at citruscountymusic@gmail.com.

Bead society meets weekly at Coastal Region Library

CLAIRE PHILLIPS LAXTON
For the Chronicle

If you enjoy creating bead embroidery, bead weaving, peyote stitch and many other types of bead work, you may want to join the Nature Coast Bead Society that meets Wednesday mornings at the Coastal Region Library in Crystal River.

It's a friendly group that loves to create, enjoy friendships and the social aspects while working on their own creations. There is no cost to join and most members arrive between 9:30 and 10 a.m.

Some frame their work while many make various types of jewelry. Each person brings whatever type of bead work they are working on, along with their materials, and they work on their own projects until about noon. They make jewelry pieces for friends, family, themselves — or some sell their work at shows or in shops.

There are no teachers or instructors, but everyone helps anyone in need while working on their own specific creation. Members say they learn much being with others with the same interest in beading.

Lois Becket's been in the organization for the past six years and has her work in two different shops, one in Crystal River and one in Ocala. She made a necklace with a peyote stitch with a twist, and also designs lovely beaded scarves. Her beaded scarves are in the Anderson Gallery in the Heritage Village Shops in Crystal River.

Speaking of the Nature Coast Bead Society, she said, "I saw it advertised in the Chronicle," and later joined.

The club began in 1998 and one of the founders was Virginia Weaver from Crystal River.

At one of their gatherings, many in the group were working on the peyote stitch. Member Audrey Laurel likes doing Japanese braiding (kamihimo). Marnie Baird made a great-looking tapestry of Old World Santas and framed them. She also did a tapestry of a manatee.

"It's fun to come to see what everyone is working on," Baird said. "We learn new ideas and can get help" if needed.

Several member like to create popular "pen wraps" that wrap around personal pens.

Member Cindy Morin crafted a Christmas tree ornament and some jewelry pieces.

"It's a wonderful social gathering," she said.

Another member, Margaret Erb, enjoys doing "bead embroidery," while she creates her own patterns making unique pieces. Jeanne Kritzi was showing a beautiful crocheted necklace she created on 24-gauge wire and Lynn Hagen designs unique hearts for cancer patients made with colorful Swarovski crystals.

Nature Coast Bead Society has anywhere from 40 to 50 members, although they don't all show up at once.

Longtime bead artists Katheryn and Ed Orrell have been creating jewelry pieces for many years. She loves to make earrings and bracelets, while his specialty is a variety of bead weaving, an art form where the piece looks the same on the front as it does on the back. The Orrells joined in 2000.

"This is a come-as-you-wish (organization). We don't teach, but there's always help when asked," Ed Orrell said.

To get involved and for more information about the group, call Lois at 603-714-0769 or show up at the library with your beadwork on Wednesday mornings.

In 2006, the film was selected for preservation in the United States National Film Registry by the Library of Congress as being "culturally, historically or aesthetically significant." "Rocky" is considered to be one of the greatest sports films ever made and was ranked as the second-best in the genre, after "Raging Bull," by the American Film Institute in 2008.

■ Feb. 8 — "8 1/2" (NR) is a 1963 surrealist comedy-drama film directed by Federico Fellini. Co-scripted by Fellini, Tullio Pinelli, Ennio Flaiano and Brunello Rondi, it stars Marcello Mastroianni as Guido Anselmi, a famous Italian film director who suffers from stifled creativity as he attempts to direct an epic science fiction film.

Shot in black-and-white by cinematographer Gianni Di Venanzo, the film features a soundtrack by Nino Rota with costume and set designs by Piero Gherardi. Its title refers to it being Fellini's eighth and a half film as a director. His previous directorial work consisted of six features, two short segments and a collaboration with another director, Alberto Lattuada, the latter three treated as "half" films.

"8 1/2" won the Academy Awards for Best Foreign Language Film and Best Costume Design (black-and-white). Acknowledged as an avant-garde film and a highly influential classic, it was among the top 10 on BFI The Top 50 Greatest Films of All Time, ranked third in a 2002 poll of film directors conducted by the British Film Institute and is also listed on the Vatican's compilation of the 45 best films made before 1995, the 100th anniversary of cinema. It is now considered to be one of the greatest films of all time.

■ Feb. 10 — "Follow That Dream" (PG) is a 1962 American musical film starring Elvis Presley made by Mirisch Productions. The movie was based on the 1959 novel "Pioneer, Go Home!" by Richard P. Powell.

Producer Walter Mirisch liked the song "Follow that Dream" and retitled the picture. The movie reached No. 5 on the Variety weekly Box Office Survey, staying on the chart for three weeks, and finishing at No. 33 on the year end list of the top-grossing movies of 1962.

The courtroom scene was filmed at the Old Citrus County Courthouse.

■ Feb. 16 at 3 and 7:30 p.m. — Live onstage is Redhead Express.

"If Mumford and Sons hung out with the Dixie Chicks 'plus one' at an Eagles Concert, you'd have the Redhead Express," said Kendra, guitar player for Redhead Express. Some refer to Redhead Express as folk-rock or folk-pop, while others like the alternative country label. However, it seems that no matter what they sing, it is uniquely their own.

While many believe it is their near perfect three- and four-part sibling harmonies that truly make them unique, after 10 years and over 3,000 shows, their sound and stage presence is undeniable. Sponsored, in part, by Mr. David S. Arthurs Sr.

■ Feb. 17 — "Some Like It Hot" (PG) is a 1959 American black-and-white romantic comedy film set in 1929, directed and produced by Billy Wilder, starring Marilyn Monroe, Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon.

The supporting cast includes

George Raft, Pat O'Brien, Joe E. Brown, Joan Shawlee and Nehemiah Persoff. The screenplay by Billy Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond is based on a screenplay by Robert Thoeren and Michael Logan from the French film "Fanfare of Love."

The film is about two musicians who dress in drag in order to escape from mafia gangsters whom they witnessed commit a crime inspired by the St. Valentine's Day Massacre. Despite Monroe's contract requiring the film to be in color, she agreed to it being filmed in black and white after seeing that Curtis and Lemmon's makeup gave them a "ghoulish" appearance on color film.

"Some Like It Hot" opened to largely positive reviews and is today considered to be one of the greatest films of all time. It was voted as the top comedy film by the American Film Institute on their list on AFI's 100 Years ... 100 Laughs poll in 2000. In 2017, the film was voted the best comedy of all time in a poll of 253 film critics from 52 countries conducted by the BBC in 2017. In 2005, the British Film Institute included this film on British Film Institute list of the 50 films you should see by the age of 14.

■ Feb. 24 — "The African Queen" (PG) is a 1951 British-American adventure film adapted from the 1935 novel of the same name by C. S. Forester.

The film was directed by John Huston and produced by Sam Spiegel and John Woolf. The screenplay was adapted by James Agee, John Huston, John Collier and Peter Viertel. It was photographed in Technicolor by Jack Cardiff and had a music score by Allan Gray.

The film stars Humphrey Bogart (who won the Academy Award for Best Actor — his only Oscar) and Katharine Hepburn with Robert Morley, Peter Bull, Walter Gotell, Richard Marner and Theodore Bikel.

"The African Queen" was selected for preservation in the United States National Film Registry in 1994, with the Library of Congress deeming it "culturally, historically or aesthetically significant." The film currently holds a 98 percent "Fresh" rating on Rotten Tomatoes, based on 41 reviews.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: There is an issue that has been going on for quite some time now, and I don't know what to do. I have a child who is 2, and his father treats me as if I were the biggest piece of garbage. So we split up. The good news is that I have a fiancé who treats me and my son like gold. The problem is that I don't speak to the father of my child because of the way he treats me and because my fiancé has an issue with it. My ex's mother has my son, and I am currently fighting for custody. Should I be speaking to only her about my child, or should I be speaking to the father, as well? Please help me out with this. — Confused Mom

DEAR ANNIE

Dear Confused Mom: Congratulations on finding someone who treats you and your son like gold. What a blessing. Still, your ex-husband is your son's father. Assuming there is no physical threat or danger, try to be as civil to your ex as possible. He gave you the gift of a beautiful child. If your fiancé has a problem with that, just explain to him that your son and his well-being come first and that being polite to your father will help you and your fiancé get closer to your son.

Dear Annie: We have a close friend who always blows her nose vehemently at the dinner table at least several times while we are eating. Is this appropriate dinner behavior, or should we ask her nicely to excuse herself when she needs to clean her sinuses?

We really need your advice, as other guests are also repulsed. — Handkerchief Mary
Dear Handkerchief Mary: First off, I'm assuming your dinner guest has her own handkerchief, because if she doesn't and is using a napkin that was designed to lightly wipe one's mouth on her nose, you have even bigger problems. Assuming she has her own handkerchief or tissues, it is truly not too much to ask that she excuse herself for a moment to blow her nose in the bathroom. Any bodily functions should be performed away from the dinner table. That most definitely includes blowing your nose or even discussing it. Pull your friend aside and tell her that you realize she may have some sinus issues but you'd appreciate it if she could refrain from blowing her nose at the table. Let her know that this rule applies to all guests and not just her. It's not only more polite but also more sanitary for all parties involved.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Shortchanged," the woman annoyed by one roommate shortchanging her when paying a share of the utility bills. She should report to her roommates an amount that is rounded up on even-numbered months and rounded down on odd-numbered months. That way, people wouldn't have to type the pennies, and it should average out over time. — Adam J.
Dear Adam: Wish I'd thought of this handy, simple and drama-free solution for "Shortchanged" in the first place. Thanks for writing.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Bummed-Out Bibliophile," whose shelves are full of unread books. Another option for this person is to make a list of the books, donate them to the local library and check them out as needed. That way, the public library would be helped, and others could also enjoy the books. Our public libraries are a treasure. Sharing is caring! — Rhea L. in Illinois

Dear Rhea: Indeed it is. What a brilliant and practical suggestion. Thanks for writing.

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Stephen Colbert, on his show in 2006, said, "I don't want someone showing his views down my throat, unless they're covered in a crunchy candy shell."
That's ironic, since he gives his opinions to viewers every night. But, of course, one may change channels or turn off the television. Politicians in particular try to persuade you to agree with them. Bridge players occasionally strive to get an opponent to help the cause. But often the persuader has to find a clever way to coerce the persuadee — if there is such a word.

How does that apply in this deal? South is in seven spades. What should he do after West leads the diamond queen?
North responded with the Jacoby Forcing Raise, showing four-plus spades and at least game-going values. South took over with Blackwood.
With no losers in the side suits, South just needs to draw trumps. That will not be a problem if they are 2-1, which the mathematicians tell us happens 78 percent of the time. If West has all three spades, the contract is hopeless. But if East has three, declarer can set a trap.
He should win the first trick with dummy's diamond king and call for the spade jack.
If East plays low smoothly, South will go up with the ace, assuming a 2-1 split — and here he will go down. But if East covers the jack with the queen, declarer wins with his ace, crosses back to dummy in either minor and finesse East out of his spade 10. Sneaky!

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER
Monitoring Requirements Not Met for Floral City Water Association Inc.

We are required to monitor your drinking water for specific contaminants on a regular basis. Results of regular monitoring are an indicator of whether or not our drinking water meets health standards. During the September 2018 sample set we did not test for coliform bacteria on the unfinished raw water from Well 10 or Well 11 and therefore cannot be sure of the quality of your drinking water during that time. Although all water produced from Well 10 and Well 11 during this period was disinfected and a safe distribution residual was maintained as required at all times and in all parts of our distribution system, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection requires FCWAI to inform persons who may consume our water.
What should I do?
There is nothing you need to do at this time. The table in bold below lists the contaminant we did not properly test for during September 2018, how often we are supposed to sample for this contaminant, how many samples we are supposed to take, how many samples we took, when samples should have been taken, and the date on which follow-up samples were taken.

|-----------------------------|--|
| Contaminant = Coliform | Required sampling frequency = Monthly |
| Number of samples taken = 0 | When samples should have been taken = Sept. 2018 |
| | When samples were taken = October 2018 |

What is being done?
Sampling procedures have been revised to ensure samples are pulled in a timely manner. For more information, please contact Gary Judd at 352-726-3366 or Floral City Water Association, Inc. at P.O. Box 597 Floral City, FL 34436. Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, especially those who may not have received this notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools and businesses). You can do this by posting this notice in a public place or distributing copies by hand or mail. This notice is being sent to you by the Floral City Water Association, Inc. State Water System ID #: 6090588.
