Did noise law effort begin with Sunshine Law error?

ANGELA DAUGHTRY
News-Leader

A city violation of the state's Sunshine Law may have given leverage to the Florida House Inn in its lawsuit against the city, according to the president of the First Amendment Foundation.

Joe and Diane Warwick, owners of the Florida House Inn on South Third Street, brought the suit against the city in April 2008, complaining of spotty and unequal enforcement of two city ordinances.

A controversial February settlement of the lawsuit absolved the Warwicks of more than $100,000 in liens levied by the city for neon sign ordinance violations and included a special provision to settle a noise ordinance dispute between the Florida House and the neighboring Green Turtle Tavern.

As a result, the noise ordinance has been rewritten several times, been the topic of numerous contentious public hearings and is set for a final vote July 14.

The city agreed to 'provide an educational memorandum to commissioners regarding (Sunshine Laws).'

CITY ATTORNEY TAMMI BACH

The alleged Sunshine Law violation occurred during a closed attorney/client session in January 2008 that concerned a possible foreclosure action between the city and property owner Bert Austin.

All city commissioners were present as well as City Attorney Tammi Bach, City Manager Michael Czymbor and litigation counsel Jeffrey Tomassetti, who was representing the city's code enforcement board.

Attorney Barbara Petersen, president of the First Amendment Foundation, headquartered in Tallahassee, said one of the conditions for a closed session is that its subject matter must have been properly noticed to the public, among other requirements.

The subject matter – which was the Austin case – was indeed properly noticed. But during the session the Florida House – an unrelated case – was brought up by attorneys Bach and Tomassetti. Petersen says the fact that there was no pending city litigation with the Florida House may have been an additional violation.

Petersen noted that city commissioners would be the only ones in violation of the Sunshine Law, even if they did not enter the discussion.

"The commissioners are the ones who are required to comply with the law," said Petersen. "The city attorney should be providing them with the best advice, but is not subject to the Sunshine Law."

County pays best for job car travel

News-Leader

Nassau County government employees who use their personal vehicles for work are reimbursed at a rate of more than half a dollar per mile traveled. City employees are reimbursed at a lower rate.

A survey of local government agencies reveals:

- Nassau County elected officials and employees receive 58.5 cents per mile for travel related to their jobs.
- County school officials and employees receive 55 cents per mile for using their personal vehicles in work-related travel.
- City elected officials and employees receive 44.5 cents per mile for job-related travel.

County elected officials and their employees have received 58.5 cents per mile since October in reimbursement for use of their personal vehicles, according to the Office of Management and Budget.

How much per mile?

County	58.5 cents
City	44.5 cents
Schools	55 cents

The county commission, the clerk of court and their employees are paid a reimbursement for government-related travel, said Sue Butler of the Office of Management and Budget and Mary Potochnik, the clerk's chief financial services deputy. That's up a full 10 cents from last year's mileage rate, mostly due to higher gasoline prices.

Butler said the mileage rate is set at the beginning of each fiscal year – Oct. 1 – and remains the same until it is reviewed the following year.

The total budget for county commission travel this year is $171,040,

County returns impact fee cash

RYAN SMITH
News-Leader

Nassau County has returned more than $21,000 in impact fees since November after missing the deadline to use the money on new growth. The fees were all returned to SEDA Construction Co., a Jacksonville-based homebuilder.

Impact fees, which are charged to builders for new construction, are used to fund local projects such as roads and parks. However, Florida statute requires the fees be spent only on new growth – a nebulous definition that has become onerous in the past for those attempting to justify fee expenditures.

Nassau County currently has about $10 million in unspent impact fees. However, county ordinance stipulates that the fees must be used within six years or else refunded upon request.

The county commission may by resolution extend the time allowed for spending the fees, but did not do so in the case of those charged to SEDA Construction.

County Coordinator Ed Sealover said keeping up with which impact fees are not being spent is a constant task. "We do a monthly report on impact fees – on which ones are aging,

Settlement agreement

The settlement agreement reached in February between plaintiff The Florida House Inn, Inc., and the city of Fernandina Beach (including Fred Lindes, code enforcement officer, and the city Code Enforcement Board) included these special provisions:

A) Parties agree to a joint meeting with State Attorney Angela Corey to discuss the current city noise ordinance and possible alternatives. After the meeting, the city will take all necessary steps to adopt, amend and/or enforce its noise ordinance.

B) City agrees to investigate occupancy limits and related restroom facilities as well as compliance with general code and permitting requirements of businesses within the Historic District, as well as permitting misrepresentations. Inspections shall take place during meaningful times so as to fully evaluate the business use.

C) City will release all liens and fines for plaintiff's sign violation to date.

D) The city will provide an educational memorandum to commissioners regarding Chapter 286, Florida Statutes (Sunshine Laws).

E) The above will be completed within 60 days from this date.

F) The parties agree that they will maintain confidentiality of the mediation terms and any discussion regarding the sign ordinance and the noise ordinance.

G) The city will not pursue sign violations against the plaintiff under the current sign ordinance. Plaintiff will relocate the two southernmost neon signs to the interior of the building behind the dripline of the porch. All four signs will thereafter be considered conforming signs.

SUNSHINE

According to a transcript of the session, Bach, while talking about code violations, first brought up the Florida House Inn's sign ordinance case.

Later in the session Tomassetti mentioned a house – not Austin's property – the city had tried to condemn. He also said, a little later, "... the case of the Florida House is fitting because ... they hold an occupational license from the city, that is, a license that is a privilege to operate."

"I wonder, in their case," Tomassetti went on, "maybe not to collect the fines, but just say, 'You take that sign down or we're revoking your occupational license and you're not going to be open any more.' I'm just throwing that out."

Then-commissioner Joe Gerrity was the only one to question the propriety of talking about unrelated subject matters.

"Are we moving off of the – is this included in the executive session, the Florida House?" Gerrity asked, but got no response to his question.

Petersen said commissioners do not have to actually participate in conversation to be in violation of the Sunshine Law – they only have to be present. She also said that any action taken as a result of that violation could become null and void – including, conceivably, any settlements that came out of the meeting.

"It sounds as if the meeting was problematic," said Petersen. "They're on thin ice."

Bach conceded last week that part of the settlement between the Florida House and the city was a result of a possible Sunshine Law violation. It states in part that the city "will provide an educational memorandum to commissioners regarding Chap. 286, Florida Statutes (Sunshine Laws)."

Petersen said members of a closed session are required by state statute to limit discussion to "settlement negotiations or strategy sessions related to litigation expenditures."

Members of a closed session also are "not allowed to have free-range conversation" about clients or lawsuits, Petersen said. This restriction may have been violated by then-mayor Bruce Malcolm when he called Joe Warwick "a convicted felon." Then-vice mayor Ken Walker also noted during the session that Warwick was arrested for "selling illegal prescriptions" and wondered out loud "who holds that liquor license" at the inn.

Warwick, a licensed pharmacist, was sentenced in Federal District Court in April 2000 to five years' probation, a $1,000 fine and 100 hours of community service after pleading guilty to a federal fraud charge. He was accused of paying kickbacks to physicians for referrals of patients in the federal Tricare program for military retirees and Medicare program.

Petersen acknowledged that nobody but a judge could determine whether there were any actual violations of the Sunshine Law during the closed session. However, the Florida House Inn did use the possible violation as part of its lawsuit against the city, saying the city had "plotted against the Florida House Inn."

The lawsuit further states that "a large portion of the (Jan. 22 closed session) focuses on the Florida House Inn's mounting sign fines and the city's potential responses."

Bach said the city did not, in the end, foreclose on Austin's Florida Avenue property.

The closed-session exemption to public meetings "is probably the most abused exemption," Petersen said, because its conditions can be complicated, and "local governments have been trying to loosen it up."

"The commissioners take an oath that they will uphold the Constitution," Petersen said. "Ignorance is no excuse."

TRAVEL

up from $164,884 last year. That amount includes reimbursement for mileage, hotels and meals, Butler said. The clerk's travel budget decreased, from $84,520 last year to $57,014 this year.

Both the clerk's and the commission's mileage rates are based on the rates paid to federal employees by the U.S. General Services Administration.

Nassau County School Board officials and employees are allotted 55 cents per mile in reimbursement for use of their personal vehicles, according to Executive Director of Business Services Susan Farmer.

That's down from 58.5 cents from June 1-Dec. 31, 2008, Farmer said. The rate was to be reevaluated again today, July 1.

Farmer said the per mile reimbursement is set based on the federal Internal Revenue Service rate, which is reviewed every six months, and might or might not fluctuate.

The total budget for school board travel for 2008-9 is $359,300, of which $177,732 has been spent to date. The budget for 2007-8 was $566,844, of which $323,726 was spent.

The budget covers travel for itinerant teachers between schools, travel to and from professional development activities, staff training and trips to various conferences, Farmer said.

She also noted that, in an attempt to reduce costs, employees use county vehicles rather than personal vehicles when possible. Additionally, she said a rental agreement in place with Enterprise Rent-A-Car is aimed at reducing expenses.

According to City Finance Director Patti Clifford, all city employees are reimbursed 44.5 cents per mile if they use their own vehicle on a job-related trip such as to a seminar or training session. City employees also have the option of driving a car from the city's car pool.

City employees, such as the city manager, who regularly drive city-owned vehicles do not receive mileage reimbursement.

Clifford said the city's mileage reimbursement rate is based on the state's Department of Revenue and has not been changed since "some time in 2007." Some municipalities, she said, base their mileage reimbursement on Internal Revenue Service standards, which are higher and can change as often as twice a year.

The city does not track the amount spent for employee mileage reimbursement, Clifford said. Rather, all expense report forms go into a city travel expense account. Clifford added that the city does not reimburse employees for mileage frequently.

FEES

meaning we haven't spent the money in the time frame that the ordinance requires," he said.

The county has a history of difficulty finding projects upon which to spend impact fees. For a project to qualify for impact fee expenditure, it has to pass the state's "dual rational nexus test," a process that has been called "Byzantine" by County Attorney David Hallman.

"The first test is that they're legal to take," Interim County Engineer Jonathan Page said Thursday. "And the next test to see if impact fees can be used is, does it benefit the people who paid them?"

County Clerk John Crawford, however, said the county should be able to find ways to spend the money.

"We went to great lengths as a government to enact a law to collect money, with the promise that that money would be spent to enact growth, and it would be spent within the confines of the law within six years," Crawford said. "That's a promise that was broken by the government in that they didn't spend that money, and they must return it to the payers. The payers paid that money in good faith, and they have every right to expect that money back when that promise is not fulfilled by the government.

"I believe you could spend every dime of them legitimately, credibly, defensibly – if you'd just do the justifications as are required in law," he added.

Commission Chair Barry Holloway, long a proponent of spending the fees, acknowledged the problem. "Either the (county) attorney didn't sign off on it, or the clerk didn't sign off on it, or we were going after projects that didn't qualify for impact fees. I don't think it's anything that the commissioners did or didn't do," he said. "I don't think it's been any one individual – just basically lack of taking it forward enough to get it done. The ultimate responsibility lays with the Board of County Commissioners, which is why I've been so vocal for the last two years."

However, Holloway said, the commission is taking steps to find suitable projects for the fees. "All five commissioners have met privately with Jonathan (Page) and our consultant to identify impact fee projects and get them spent," he said.

Page said Thursday he had been working with Jacksonville firm King Engineering to find eligible projects. "Right now we're looking at eight justifications to be written over the next 20 days," he said.

The projects currently under consideration are all road improvements, such as adding turn lanes and widening roads. "Hopefully we'll get great success and keep rolling on this path. ... We've gotten the first couple of drafts in and the (county) attorney's making comments. I think we're heading in the right direction. ... I would think we could use all $10 million in the next three years for sure. ... These that we've got coming in the next 30 days, I could potentially justify $3 million worth."

Lightning sparks home fire

No one was hurt, but about $200,000 damage was done Monday evening to a house that caught fire as a result of a lightning strike.

Fernandina Beach Fire-Rescue Department was dispatched to the residential structure fire at 2811 Magnolia Woods Court about 6:17 p.m., city Fire Chief Daniel Hanes said in a press release.

Firefighters reported there was heavy smoke and flames coming from the roof of the single-family dwelling. They used ground ladders to reach the roof of the house and operated above the fire that was spreading through the attic. They were eventually able to achieve control by cutting a hole in the roof to control the fire spread and gain access to extinguish it, Hanes said.

The occupants, a couple and their pet dog, were able to escape without injury. During a search of the house, firefighters found the family's cat unharmed and hiding under a bed.

It took 15 firefighters approximately 45 minutes to bring the fire under control.

Heavy rains, flooding and wind damage also was reported as a severe storm swept through the area.

A fallen tree blocked First Coast Highway, among other damage reports.

God will hear your every prayer
And always answer thee.

FBHS is among top schools in the U.S.

At a time when budget cuts, teacher reassignments and school closings are the predominant themes in public education here, there are still exemplary performances in the classroom.

Fernandina Beach High School catapulted up the rankings in the annual Newsweek magazine list of top high schools in the U.S. FBHS appeared as the 512th best high school, improving its standing dramatically from No. 908 last year.

FBHS has been ranked in the top 1,000 high schools for the last three years. The school's emphasis on Advanced Placement courses for its top-performing students has established it as one of the country's elite schools.

The Newsweek poll is based upon the percentage of students taking AP as well as other upper-level classes and exams. This year, the criteria changed slightly. It also judged the number of students achieving a minimum score on AP exams, for instance.

The Newsweek rankings began in 1998. Other Jacksonville-area schools appearing on this year's list include: Stanton College Prep, No. 4; Paxon, No. 6; Douglas Anderson School of the Arts, No. 42; Nease, No. 92; Fletcher, No. 133; Wolfson, No. 154; Mandarin, No. 159; Sandalwood, No. 217; and Bartram Trail, No. 425.

STEVE'S MARKET PLACE

Steve Nicklas

FBHS's ranking of 512 truly places it among the ultra-elite schools in this area as well as nationally. To place just behind larger, prestigious public schools such as Bartram Trail, Sandalwood and Nease is no easy task.

During these difficult financial times that call for leaner schools and less resources, it is inspiring to see a presiding emphasis and focus on excellence in the classroom. FBHS principal Jane Arnold and her staff should be once again commended for bringing national attention to the local school district.

Meanwhile, other schools in Nassau County also moved to the head of their classes this year with improved scores on state exams. The Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test, or more commonly known as FCAT, is given each year to certain grade levels in the state.

Nine of the county public schools earned the highest grade of an "A" – including the relatively new Yulee High School.

The grades for each school are based upon a point system, derived from student scores. Nassau County schools received one fewer "A" than last year, but still fared quite respectfully – with 9 of 12 earning top grades.

Among the high schools here, Yulee High improved from a "D" score last year to an "A" this year.

Yulee was the only local high school to score below a "B" last year, but the only one of the lot to score a top grade this year.

FBHS's score dropped to a "C" this year, from an "A" last year. West Nassau scored a "D" and Hilliard Senior High earned a "B." Nassau schools preserved their overall "A" rating and scored among the top districts in the state.

That is quite an accomplishment for a rural school district strapped with declining revenues and state support. Local schools get more than just a top grade for performance – they also get an "A" for effort.

Giving. Sixty years ago, two caring Fernandina women started an incredible organization that still thrives today.

The Baptist Medical Center Nassau Auxiliary. Close to 200 members give several hours every week making visits to the hospital better for patients, visitors and families. Compassion, warmth and friendship are not their only gifts. Through many successful fund-raising projects, the Auxiliary donates thousands of dollars annually to purchase new equipment and improve the hospital—including $150,000 to our current building program.

Sharing. The Auxiliary has thrived for six decades because members enjoy the work, the camaraderie and helping others. They are active throughout the hospital—at reception areas, in the gift shop, emergency department, lab, pharmacy, business office, nursery, medical/surgical units, and many other areas.

Opportunities. With the new Berkman Building, there are interesting new volunteer jobs available for individuals who are young at heart, energetic, and want to interact with patients, families and staff. As a volunteer, you will make a difference as part of a wonderful, caring team. For information, call 321.3818, or visit e-baptisthealth.com/volunteers.

OPINION

VIEWPOINT/PAT KEOGH/FERNANDINA BEACH

Public management vs. privatization? Or…

Ron Sapp's June 17 article regarding the management of our golf course and marina invited other views.

Mr. Sapp's perspective of the alternatives is rather typical with respect to important public assets. Either government manages and controls the assets or government leases or sells to a private entity. I tend to think of the options as a wide spectrum of choices and I usually dispose of the standard two out of hand. Let me tell you why city management of complex public assets makes no sense to me and shouldn't to Mr. Sapp.

Suppose the Sapp Family Foundation owned the marina and golf course. Would Ron and his family consider the city as a prospective asset manager from among all the management options available? Of course not! Then why, if those assets are owned by the city would anyone seriously consider the city as asset manager? Well, that's different! I don't think so and I will go into why I believe that.

What about privatization (lease or sell)? Sapp seems to dispel that as not having worked well here and I can understand that because it often connotes a loss of reasonable public control. My experience is that the right choice is not about public versus private but in the selection of the process for designing the solution.

When dealing with sophisticated public assets there is no 42 regular. Rather, there is a process that involves the tailoring of a unique solution to each asset in each environment. The process is generically referred to as a "public-private partnership" and describes that broad spectrum of deal structures between government management and privatization. Al Gore used to describe such a partnership as applied to management of public assets as "an arrangement where the public steers and the private sector rows."

We have a great one right here in Fernandina. City owns and maintains the property, issues a license for its use and pays nothing for the ongoing management. The private sector manages the enterprise, sets the rental fees and manages the operation subject to city oversight. Business is booming and over time the enterprise has flourished. The community gets a great return, the private tenants love it and I think even city government can muster up a bit of affection for it. What is "It"? The Fernandina Farmers' Market. Now fight the urge to say "that's different." Zone in on Gore's steering vs. rowing thing. The farmers' market is a great local result.

Both the marina and golf course are important and complex public assets with a very significant commercial component. As public owners we are entitled to a reasonable return with a minimum risk of loss or liability. There's no one-size-fits-all solution for either asset that will work over time. But there is a process for getting to a solution or deal structure that will be uniquely tailored to each asset and our community. The public-private partnering process usually works best as follows:

1. The public owner engages advisors to work with government in the procurement of a private asset management partner. The advisors usually include attorneys skilled in the particular asset class. I like to select attorneys who previously advised asset managers on similar deals. They know the standards for the business. The single most common mistake in structuring public partnerships is to attempt to use government counsel for all legal and advisory work. Government counsel will have their hands full with oversight. This is not the time to learn how to structure a golf or marina partnership between a public owner and private asset manager.

2. With the advisory team in place, a Request for Qualifications should be issued to solicit for a private partner. The single most important factor in structuring a partnership is the selection of the partner. You will know who that is because they have previously been a successful partner for other owners. It is a firm and people you can trust because they have proven trustworthy. So the RFQ is all about "who" you want as a partner.

3. Once a partner has been selected then the "what" begins. That is the creation of the business plan that will govern the partnership's business. The partners will work together to better understand and accommodate the needs of each. This is the time to structure the deal and rely on your advisors to understand reasonable terms and boundaries. One of the most important features of the business plan is the break up terms. Partnerships can run their course. Partners' plans change over time and break ups can be inevitable. Again, you need the right advisors to understand how to design fair and effective exit strategies.

4. Once the plan is in place the deal is documented, financed if necessary and the transition and operations commence.

As you can see in this short synopsis, public-private partnering is not about a solution. You cannot know the solution at the outset. It's about a process for getting to the solution that works best for all parties to the deal. That's how I think the marina and golf course deals should be approached. By the way, what's wrong with trash service in the city? I think Stateline does a great job.

Pat Keogh is a local businessman.

COMMUNITY THANKS

We just wanted to acknowledge and thank some wonderful people and businesses that helped make our "1st Amelia Island Beach Walk" a great success:

Kenny Pickett/Sandy Bottoms, David Forbes/Sliders, Matt Myers/The Surf and Norman Bray/Amelia Island Plantation provided strategic and much needed "watering holes." We're a local newspaper

A very nice and charming resident who grew up in Old Town, paid me a visit the other day.

She stated she is a lifelong and loyal reader of the News-Leader, and I appreciate that very much.

Her concern was why we had not covered the death of the "King of Pop" Michael Jackson.

I tried to explain that the News-Leader has been and is a "hyper-local" newspaper, focusing entirely on the people, places and news of the communities in Nassau County.

MY VIEW

Foy Maloy, Publisher

She then went on to mention the fact that we didn't cover the election of our 44th president, Barack Obama, in a timely manner. And stated she had serious doubts about my news judgment.

Again I attempted to explain that we are a "local" newspaper to no avail.

No doubt the election of President Barack Obama and the death of Michael Jackson are huge international news stories and both are very newsworthy. But unless there's a local connection you won't find much national or international news in the pages of the News-Leader. For example, if a local memorial service were held for Michael we would cover it.

Michael was no doubt the greatest entertainer and influential artist the world has ever seen. Who alive today hasn't heard or seen the videos of The Jackson Five, "Thriller," "Beat It," "Bad" or "Billie Jean?" His music will live on forever.

I enjoyed my conversation with her – she was passionate about our absence of coverage and Michael Jackson.

I was raised to respect all people and their views. What hurt me the most during my conversation with her is she made the point that even though I'm a native Floridian and have been a resident of Fernandina Beach for 14 years I'm still considered in her mind – an outsider.

Ouch!

DEBATE AND TACKLE

Ron Sapp

Imagine a focus group of 30 local residents assembled to discuss quality of life issues. You remember the phrase "quality of life," although fading from the vocabularies of local elected officials and completely absent from recent local political campaigns, it still exists, and for me is more relevant than ever.

Suppose the focus group's facilitator asks, "How many of you believe that quality of life is important to a community?" Thirty hands go up. "Well, how many of you believe that Fernandina Beach has a special, unique quality of life that makes it different from other Florida coastal communities?" Again, 30 hands go up. "OK, lets get to the heart of things, who among you can define quality of life?" Thirty hands immediately fly skyward and for the next 10 minutes the facilitator is kept busy maintaining order among the 30 shouting participants.

Defining quality of life is tough; we have 12,500 people living in Fernandina Beach and each one's feelings and beliefs about the subject are shaped by their own experiences and expectations.

My own definition of quality of life – remember, we're talking about community quality of life – includes several elements, or factors: 1) a commitment to real growth management, reflected in the city's Comprehensive Plan, Future Land Use Map, land development codes and land development regulations; 2) creating, enhancing, maintaining and preserving as many public facilities, including parks, green and open space and natural areas, as possible; 3) maintaining and ensuring current and future public access to those areas; 4) maintaining and enhancing local infrastructure; 5) maintaining and enhancing current levels of service regarding public safety and recreation; and 6) keeping local taxes and fees manageable for middle and lower-income individuals and families.

I know, what about this factor, or that one? Well, this is my definition; you have yours, and my hope is, being a devotee of participatory democracy, we can seriously discuss our differences, maybe even reach community consensus. If we don't have these discussions, if we don't insist that quality of life considerations matter, if we continue to allow local politicians to be "soft" on quality of life issues, then we abandon the political decision-making process to the "economic argument," and believe me, for our community that would be a disaster.

What's the economic argument? Well, there are those who believe that the primary consideration, the key factor, some even say the sole factor that is absolutely essential in local political decision-making, is economics, or how will the decision regarding legislation, policy or project impact our community economically. Positively? Do it. Negatively? Don't do it. Economics-neutral? We don't care. Cynics say it's "Fernandina For Sale!" I'm a cynic. Consider the following comparisons regarding the quality of life and economics arguments:

- Density. Quality of life: maintain current or, preferably, lower. Economics: increase.
- More parks and green/open space. Quality of life: certainly. Economics: no.
- Discouraging development of environmentally sensitive areas (wetlands, dunes, pristine, undeveloped islands – remember Crane Island?). Quality of life: no, never. Economics: sure.
- Noise ordinance that protects residential areas (the old quiet enjoyment of property concept). Quality of life: in favor. Economics: oppose.
- More condos along our oceanfront, our downtown waterfront. Quality of life: no. Economics: hmmm, offensive, but brings in a lot of money, sure.

So, do you believe that quality of life is important to a community? Do you believe that Fernandina Beach has a special, unique quality of life that makes us different from other Florida coastal communities? How do you define quality of life?

All of this is important, you see, because if our community is special, if it is different from other Florida coastal communities, then it's going to take work to stay that way. It's going to mean making calls to local officials, e-mailing them, attending public meetings and getting involved politically.

The phrase quality of life is fading from the vocabularies of local political officials and it's been absent from local political campaigns because we've allowed it be so. Politicians without core quality of life values and beliefs respond to one thing and one thing only, the perception of political risk. Evidently, most have perceived little or no political risk in aligning themselves exclusively with the "economics argument." We "quality of lifers" have to create it.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

'Boondoggle'

Mike Boyle is full of crap ("'Slanted story' unfair to county officials," June 24). It's a boondoggle, paid for by the taxpayers, and he knows that.

Ann Chappell
Fernandina Beach

Be careful what you wish for

I do agree that the building department is currently overstaffed ("County gets it," June 26). The management has endeavored to hold on to personnel since it took many years to assemble a competent and efficient staff. It was not long ago in this paper you were often printing stories of how much trouble it was to get a project through the county. I can only assume that is what you want once again.

In my six years in the building department I have watched for most of them the inability to hire qualified inspectors and plans examiners. In most cases when we did hire someone, they had to spend months in state bureaucracy and taking exams to finally get fully qualified.

Foy Maloy states that "businesses have been carrying that burden." But the building department has had its fees cut for a year now.

I can remember having 50 and 60 inspections, working till 7 and 8 at night just to keep up. With this the quality of inspections decreased (you cannot be diligent when you are running). The choice was simple, do them today or have some from today roll over and be added to the pile the next day. A lose/lose proposition.

Now, the commissioners halved the fees to stimulate construction. OK, so tell me what builder cares about saving $2,000 to build a house he has reduced in price $30,000 and even if he builds it, has a poor chance at best of selling it. If he builds it, he has to pay the bank each month for it. In one or two months the building fee reduction is wiped out.

What you applaud is like the vendors on Centre Street deciding they will slash their prices in half. They sell stuff but can't survive. According to you, they should cut their staff to where the customers can't get decent service and they cannot survive. How long does this work? Sounds like a foolhardy business model to me.

The building departments all over the state are exclusively self-funding. They do not get tax money. Only the builders and people working on their homes and businesses pay for building department services. Cutting their fees will not decrease the county tax roll or their budget a cent. The Building Department actually pays the Nassau County Commission rent for the building they occupy. The state legislature did this to take politics out of building inspection. The commission has the right to set the fees. Thus they have. In a year or so I hope you remember this when you write about the problems people have getting inspections, plans approved and permits issued.

As for impact fees, another writer seemed to think that changing a nice old home into a restaurant was not much of an impact. Here we go:

When it was a house, let's assume there were four cars that came and left four times a day: 16 trips. Now it's a cafe and there are 10 tables (conservative) and they turn over every hour for five hours (5-10 p.m., no lunch). Assuming all table guests come in one car you have 10 x 5 = 50 trips. Then you add the owner and his staff. And you add deliveries (trucks); also, the staff has housing needs and kids. Add new roads and schools (some impact), these extra people need police and fire protection, they drive the roads to stores and stuff. There is a pretty good impact and I am being conservative.

Of course, you can be like Orlando, Disney came and they didn't add impact fees until 15-plus years later. What did they get? Horrible roads, toll roads (since they have no money for roads) schools with portable classrooms that do not go away. Boone High School when my son attended had no fewer than 30 portables scattered all over the campus and the track. This is the norm there. Go drive I-4 through Orlando any time from 5 a.m. to 9 at night and it is hellish. Beware what you ask for.

Please remember that if you cut services too much, you end up with no service!

Another 'oops'

Another opinion letter seems to be a little misleading or short on facts.

In the letter titled "Un-fond memories" (June 26) the writer states, "The toll of 6,000 men committing suicide in our armed forces each year is a testament to the stupidity of war, period."

Again this seemed like an extremely high number, so I did a quick check online and at the Centers For Disease Control & Prevention I found the following.

"The VA estimates that 18 vets a day – or 6,500 a year – take their own lives, but that number includes vets from all wars."

Profit

First on the list Nassau had the debate over the landfill garbage – can't afford to run it, sell out to private industry to haul waste out of county. Next it's the golf course – can't maintain it, sell to private industry? The marina cost overrun – sell to private industry, make it transient only. But you have the Goffinsville project under way and there will be a special needs park under way. When you turn things over to private industry a profit must be made. I just wanted to point out that they increased this year's budget by some millions of dollars; you can look up the budget facts for future projects. It just seemed to me if you can't afford to maintain what you have, why build more.

Just a thought: The eight flags may turn into nine flags of Fernandina. Be careful.

Monetizing the deficit?

Is there no other way to deal with the national deficit than to declare it to be money (monetize it)? This might avoid the necessity of having to dealing with it as debt. However, can such a non-sequitur of concepts once again serve as the backbone and keystone of our nation 's fiscal policy? True, Alexander Hamilton set a precedent for this approach early on. But we were not a major player then. To be on the safe side these early patriots also rescued their Continental Currency.

What money is and how it behaves is a function of our common expectations, our contracts and our laws. The coining of terms in economics generally reflects the descriptive and prescriptive nature of the discipline. As an advocate of a new approach I have invented some terms and definitions to help ease the federal government away from the shoals of insolvency.

A universal catalyst is a more apt view of money than the oft-proposed scarce-commodity ploy which is most often slept through. Ideally money is also a scorecard for wealth. Money or wealth may be found on-the-clock of mankind, active, like water. But just as importantly money or wealth may be found on-the-clock of geological time, dormant, like ice. Any project to innovate or renovate starts with a dream but doesn't end with the last payment on associated loans. Time is needed before any review can be carried out and time is needed to allow the acquired improvements to serve their purpose.

This is only the beginning of a defense for keeping paid up loans in an interest free category for a period of aging. While frozen money is linked to a loan, its off-the-clock of mankind status can be used to limit the need for the U.S. government to float bonds to raise money to cover the interest on the national deficit.

As the borrower of last recourse the federal government is also linked to a debt that is frozen. The money frozen in the deficit is as important to the economy as the ice and snowcap of Antarctica is to the weather. Money or wealth also serves which in frozen glaciers wait.

Fish tale

My boyfriend says all the time that there are six or more reasons why women should not fish: One being on the boat that I go in reverse when he says forward; 2) I go left when he says right; 3) I am in forward revving the boat while he is pushing it off the trailer to go into the water in reverse – whoops; and 4) turn left when he says right; 5) not close enough to land yet I see mud; 6) thowing him off the boat when all I meant to do is just that!

Please let all men know that we as women do only what they say when they have been drinkin' lots of Buds – so who is the real driver? So for all you men like mine, don't forget your bait at home and it is really embarrassing to be the women in the truck backing down the boat and you men screaming at us telling us "Back down!" and you're the bright one that left the boat hooked to the trailer. Yet we still seem to get the tail end of it – my session of fissin' – but I will be back if let be.

Conscious effort

Whatever happened to the good old days when the worst things we had to fear on the Fourth of July were traffic jams and wayward fireworks? Now, our greatest threat lurks in food poisoning by nasty E. coli and salmonella bugs in inadequately grilled hamburgers and hot dogs. Unfortunately, the high-temperature grilling that kills these bugs also forms cancer-causing compounds.

Luckily, enterprising food manufacturers and processors have met this challenge with a great variety of healthful, delicious veggie burgers and soy dogs.

These new foods don't harbor nasty pathogens or cancer-causing compounds. They don't even carry cholesterol, saturated fats, drugs or pesticides. And they are available in the frozen food section of every supermarket.

This Fourth of July offers a great opportunity to declare our independence from the meat industry and to share wholesome veggie burgers and soy dogs with our family and friends.

Wonders never cease: Wild mink on the beach

A mink surveys his world from a sandy hole along a beach embankment in Fort Clinch State Park, above. Right, he forages for sand crabs on the beach.

WILD WAYS

Pat Foster-Turley

Wonders never cease. The longer I patrol the natural areas of Amelia Island the more I feel like I am discovering more "layers of the onion" that surrounds us. Just one walk on the beach yields surprises for everyone. But after dozens of dawn walks, I'm still not surprised when I find something new. Surprised, no, but delighted – yes, of course!

Nothing, though, can top the delight I felt on a recent beach stroll at Fort Clinch State Park. It was just past dawn and instead of walking from the North End beach parking lot to the Fort Clinch pier and turning back, I decided to keep walking another mile or so up the beach all the way to the fort.

Along the way, I kept watch for the least terns now nesting again above the dune line in an area posted with signs to protect their nearly invisible eggs from human interlopers. The Wilsons plovers that had hatched out in this section of beach a number of weeks ago were still in juvenile plumage but looking more and more like adults. Here and there a turtle nest was evident, laughing gulls watched me warily as I strode on by and the resident great blue heron flew ahead of me up the beach. All this was great, of course, but not unexpected. I've seen these various species many times, on many other beach walks, all part of the circle of life that makes Amelia Island a great place to explore.

Coming back from the fort, getting hot and tired and wishing my car was not so far away, I noticed something strange. A smallish brown blob that was not there on my way up the beach now was on the sand near a large washed up tree. It looked like something alive, but what?

Then the blob moved. Immediately I recognized the long, furry shape of a mink, right there in front of me on the beach. I am aware that mink live in our area. People have seen them around the city marina, and my husband once saw on crossing Jasmine Street near the Egans Creek Greenway. On various nearby islands Carl Watson has pointed out tracks that were most likely mink, too.

But hearing about them is one thing. Seeing one right in front of me is another. I quickly rustled to get my camera focused and snapped a shot, fully expecting the mink to spot me and run away. But it didn't spot me, or if it did, it didn't seem to care.

For precious minutes I followed the mink down the beach, shooting photos now and again as it perused the escarpment line looking for food. Grasshoppers and crabs were in abundance along the bank and the little mink had no problem filling his mouth with these small prey items. A marked turtle nest was nearby, holding a reservoir of tasty turtle eggs, but the mink kept going past it, along the bank, catching crabs.

Every now and then the mink climbed up a sandy berm and disappeared face first into a ghost crab hole. It was easy to sneak up on the mink when it was in a hole and I waited with my telephoto trained on the hole, shooting photos as it emerged covered with sand.

By now the mink knew I was there, and once or twice nearsightedly stared at me as I tried to keep to a nonthreatening distance. For the most part, though, the mink was just foraging for small prey and not seeming very concerned about me at all.

Finally, the mink took shelter under an overhanging bank, and I ventured even closer to try to get more photos. This time I got close enough to hear that chortling growl, a threat warning, as the mink faced me down from its cornered position. Enough was enough. Time to leave the mink alone.

As I walked down the beach toward my car, I forgot that I was tired. Tired, heck! I was euphoric! My thoughts were full of this wild mink and another mink, "Marvin, the Minkman," as I called him years ago at Marine World Africa USA. Marvin was tame and we used him for educational demonstrations. I always felt sorry for this active clever little life form stuck in a cage and nearly every day I let Marvin loose in my office and happily listened to his gleeful chortles as he explored the nooks and crannies of my office and played his pounce game with me on the floor.

Having a captive tame mink is one thing, but the thrill of following a wild mink is an experience of even higher magnitude. These little otter-cousins are secretive and mostly nocturnal and few people ever get to see one in the wild. But see one I did, right here on our island. The pictures tell the story. Enjoy!

ROBERT FIEGE/NEWS-LEADER

Smoke pours Friday from a three-story house on Spring Tide Lane. Damage was estimated at $350,000.

3 pet dogs saved from house fire

Fire and smoke damage are estimated to have caused $350,000 damage to a home and personal contents in the 95000 block of Spring Tide Lane on Amelia Island.

Nassau County Fire Rescue responded to a report of smoke about 6:15 p.m. Engine 20 arrived within two minutes to find heavy smoke coming from the roof and eaves of a three-story residence with light smoke coming from the front door, the fire department reported.

"All of the eastside units and a unit from Callahan were dispatched as was Fernandina Beach Fire Department, who provided mutual aid with Engine 102," said Fire Chief Chuck Cooper. "No one was at home at the time of occurrence and while firefighting operations were being conducted firefighters searched and rescued three dogs from the residence without injury."

The fire was contained to the third floor until it was extinguished.

The home had smoke damage throughout. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

"This 5,200-square-foot exclusive home overlooking the marsh was built in 2003 and had a firewall built between the adjacent mirror-image residence," said Cooper. "The firewall held throughout extreme fire conditions and saved the valuable home next door."

The home is currently uninhabitable until repairs are conducted.

NEW FIREFIGHTER

Nassau County Fire Rescue has added a new firefighter/paramedic to the roster. Brett Louis started May 18, and was engaged in a pinning ceremony held on May 22. He completed the state mandated firefighter course in 2005 and obtained his paramedic certificate in 2008. The Louis family in attendance included Rachel Carney, sister; Clark Louis, brother; Andrea Louis, mother; and Spencer Louis, brother. Louis will be stationed at Station 50 in Callahan."

Store, handle gasoline safely

Many of us must store some gasoline around our homes to operate lawnmowers, generators, tillers, chainsaws and so on. But if stored improperly, a fire or explosion could result, destroying the house and causing injury or death.

Gasoline is a highly volatile liquid, and its vapors can be ignited easily by a spark, flame or other hot object. There are dangers which can be presented by the improper handling and storage of gasoline and other flammable materials.

Nassau County Fire Rescue offers some safe ways to handle and store gasoline.

- Keep gasoline out of children's sight and reach. Children should never handle gasoline.
- If fire does start while handling gasoline, do not attempt to extinguish the fire or stop the flow of gasoline. Leave the area immediately and call for help.
- Do not use or store gasoline near anything that runs on electricity, oil or gas; anything that contains a pilot light; or anything that can produce a spark.
- Store gasoline outside your house, in a garage or shed. Keep gas in a tightly closed, metal or plastic container specifically made for gasoline. Don't use milk jugs or other bottles.
- Keep the minimum amount of gas you need for your mower or other tools and let machinery cool before refueling it.
- Never use gasoline inside the home or as a cleaning agent.
- Clean up spills promptly and discard clean-up materials properly.
- Do not smoke when handling gasoline.
- Never use gasoline in place of kerosene or to light the barbecque grill.

POLICE REPORT

This was written by Jason Yurgartis of the News-Leader from oral and written reports by the Nassau County Sheriff's Office, the city of Fernandina Beach Police Department and other agencies. Arrest indicates suspicion of a crime, not guilt.

Anyone with information about criminal activity can contact the Fernandina Beach Police Department at 277-7342 or the Nassau County Sheriff's Office anonymously by calling 225-0147 in Yulee and Fernandina Beach or 879-2136 in Callahan, Hilliard and Bryceville. The "We Tip" program – 1-800-78CRIME – also allows callers to leave anonymous tips.

Battery arrest

Corey Franklin Smith, 33, of 725 South 15th St., Fernandina Beach, was arrested for aggravated domestic battery about 8:23 p.m. June 28 following an altercation with his mother's fiancée.

Fernandina Beach Police were called to the home and found Smith standing in the driveway with scratched and bloody hands. According to an arrest report, Smith's mother said her son was irate because he couldn't find his belongings, began using profanity toward her, then punched her fiancée until he fell to the ground after he asked Smith to stop screaming.

Smith allegedly continued the assault until his mother was able to pull him off and call 911. The fight continued until the two were once again separated and Smith stood outside the home until police arrived.

Smith told police that his mother's fiancée tried to choke him twice, after which Smith punched him in the face, then four or five more times as the man came at him. Smith said he then headed for the front door and dodged a kick from the man before tripping him up and heading outside.

Smith was taken to the Nassau County Jail after receiving X-rays at Baptist Medical Center Nassau, which revealed a contusion on his right thumb.

The fiancée, who authorities later found out is deaf and suffers from poor eyesight, was transported to the hospital where he was treated for a dislocated shoulder and a cut on his head that required staples.

Job scam

An unemployed Fernandina Beach resident was the victim of an apparent con game involving a job search website and the state's unemployment office.

According to a Nassau County Sheriff's Office report, the victim had signed up for unemployment benefits and was utilizing a website called snagajob.com, both of which required him to volunteer personal information which authorities believe was compromised.

The victim received an unsolicited letter in the mail from a company calling itself Fabcon Incorporated offering him a job as a mystery shopper. He also received a check for $3,980 to deposit to use as a mystery shopper to evaluate the services of Wal-Mart and Moneygram. He deposited the check into his bank account, withdrew the money and carried on with evaluations of the businesses as instructed.

Some time later, he received another letter that said he had won a $250,000 prize. The letter included a check for $4,991 to aid him in paying a "Non-Canadian Residential Tax," insurance and delivery charges for the prize money.

At this point the victim felt he was being scammed. He verified with his bank that the check had cleared, then contacted Wal-Mart and Moneygram, both of which told him they were aware of the scam.

The victim then called Fabcon Incorporated at a number he found on the Internet and learned it was a construction company and that its lawyers were investigating the scam.

No arrests have been made, but the man provided the deputy handling the case with most of the paperwork he received and the case is pending further investigation.

Truck in ocean

The Nassau County Sheriff's Office was called to 1940 Lewis St. at the American Beach beach access June 22 to help with a disabled vehicle.

According to an incident report, authorities discovered the caller had driven his truck below the high tide mark on the beach, causing it to get stuck in a patch of soft sand and burying it up to its frame.

At the man's request a tow truck was called to retrieve the vehicle but before it arrived the tide rose and waves threatened to overtake the truck as water began to rise to the bottom of its doors. At that time, the deputy and detective on scene took action and pulled the vehicle from the water before it was lost.

There was no damage to the vehicle and the man was able to drive off the beach without incident.

Burglary arrests

Five men were arrested on charges of burglary and theft June 28 inside the Pirates Bay subdivision after allegedly breaking into several vehicles.

Daniel Edward Minahan 18, of 86133 Red Holly Place in Yulee; Jonathan Wade Thomas, 18, of 85064 Patches Lane in Yulee; Timothy James Senesac, 18, of 85279 Wilson Neck Road in Yulee; Christopher Larry Roe, 19, of 940749 Nassauville Road in Nassauville; and Aaron Seth Thomas, 21, of 732 Old Amelia Ave., Lot 12 in Fernandina Beach were each charged with three counts of burglary of a structure or conveyance and three counts of petit theft.

Fernandina Beach Police were first on the scene after an officer patrolling the subdivision saw a blue two-door Ford parked in the road with no lights on and a person nearby. As he approached the vehicle, the lights turned on and the vehicle drove away, at which time the officer turned on his emergency lights and pulled the car over.

The suspects told the officer they were "just driving around," according to an incident report, but further questioning revealed the group was burglarizing vehicles for gas money, police said.

Aaron Thomas said Senesac, the driver, and Roe, who police say originally fled the scene, had committed several vehicle burglaries in the area within a 30-minute period while the others waited in the vehicle, according to the police report.

After learning that burglaries had taken place elsewhere, including the Lakewood subdivision, the Fernandina Beach Police officer turned the case over to the Nassau County Sheriff's Office, which sent a deputy to the scene.

Roe admitted to committing 10 to 12 automobile burglaries and showed the deputy a bush where he had hidden some of the stolen items while trying to elude police, the report said.

Several items were found in the car, on the suspects and in the bushes including a cell phone, an iPod, a wallet, loose change and two pairs of sunglasses.

All of the men were taken to the Nassau County Jail and their vehicle was taken to the sheriff's office impound lot.

2 hurt in separate stabbings

JASON YURGARTIS
News-Leader

Two men were stabbed over the weekend in unrelated incidents; one involved an argument between two brothers who live together, the other an argument at a barbecue.

According to police, Ramon Osario, 23, was stabbed by his brother, Rueben Osario-Rodriguez, 29, about 2:45 a.m. Saturday following an argument that began at a friend's house on Starlight Lane in Yulee, continued on the ride home and culminated when things turned physical at their Lime Street apartment in Fernandina Beach.

The only witness was the friend, who drove the two home, and he could not say what the argument was about. But he told police he saw the brothers begin punching each other, then said Osario-Rodriguez went into the kitchen, grabbed an object and came at his brother. The victim then stumbled to the door where he was seen bleeding and was taken to the Baptist Medical Center Nassau emergency room by the witness.

Ramon Osario was diagnosed with a collapsed lung and taken to Shands Jacksonville. Osario-Rodriguez was later located and arrested and booked at the Nassau County Jail for aggravated domestic battery.

The second stabbing happened about 1:20 a.m. Sunday at 96174 O'Neil-Scott Road.

The Nassau County Sheriff's Office responded to a call at Baptist Medical Center Nassau, where deputies spoke to a witness who drove the victim, 53-year-old Lavarina Lee Mitchell, to the emergency room. The witness told police the victim and 44-year-old Reginal Leonard Baker had an argument at the barbecue that turned physical when Baker stabbed Mitchell with a pocketknife.

Mitchell suffered internal injuries and was flown by air ambulance to Shands Jacksonville, where he was listed in fair condition Tuesday.

The suspect was later found at his home at 96071 Mt. Zion Loop in Yulee along with a pocketknife matching a witness description, according to a police report.

Baker was arrested and booked in the Nassau County Jail for aggravated battery with a deadly weapon.

Deputies shoot Yulee man after domestic incident

JASON YURGARTIS
News-Leader

A Yulee man was in fair condition Tuesday at a Jacksonville hospital after he was shot early Friday morning by Nassau County Sheriff's Office deputies.

The sheriff's office said Fernando Dubose, 44, was shot after he pointed a rifle in the direction of deputies during a domestic violence investigation involving his son at approximately 4:30 a.m.

The incident began when deputies responded to a 911 call about 3:08 a.m. reporting a domestic battery at 852760 US 17 North in Yulee, and were subsequently dispatched to 1973 Palm Drive in Fernandina Beach where the victim sought refuge.

The victim said her boyfriend and the father of her child, Stephen Dubose, started a physical altercation with her because she didn't find a job earlier in the day. She said things escalated at the Dubose home, where the two live with the suspect's parents, when Stephen Dubose began pulling her hair and poking her with his index finger, then poured milk and salt on her. When she tried to leave the Yulee residence, he threw a steel-toe shoe at her, striking her in the lower right side of her back, an incident report said.

After speaking with the victim, deputies went to back to Yulee to talk to Stephen Dubose about the domestic violence battery allegations. They were greeted at the door by the suspect's mother, Debra Dubose, according to a press release.

While advising her that they needed to speak to her son, the father of the suspect, Fernando Dubose, came from the rear of the home holding a flashlight, brandishing a rifle and pointing it at deputies. According to a police report, the deputies and a sergeant on the scene, who were all in uniform, identified themselves as law enforcement officers and commanded him to put down the gun. Fernando Dubose then pointed the gun at the sergeant, who dove to the ground damaging his stun gun and flashlight, the report said.

Two unidentified deputies then fired at Dubose, striking him once in the abdomen. After being struck he entered the home, then reappeared at the front of the home soon after and surrendered to deputies, according to the sheriff's office.

A search revealed the rifle in the bedroom of the home.

Fernando Dubose was taken into custody and transported to Shands Jacksonville. He was booked at the hospital on Saturday for aggravated assault on a law enforcement officer, resisting an officer with violence, both felonies, and improper exhibition of a firearm, a misdemeanor.

Stephen Dubose was located in the residence and booked into the Nassau County Jail on Friday for domestic battery, a misdemeanor. He was released on $1,502 bond on Saturday and ordered to have no contact with the victim.

FINALLY, IT BLOOMS

The plant's name is derived from its habit of blooming infrequently. After it dies it re-grows itself from shoots formed at its base. The plant is indigenous to Mexico and is rare in North Florida and Williams said this is the first time in the two years she's lived at her current home that she's seen it bloom.

No. 1 from start to finish would be a very tall task

SPORTS TALK
JOHN L. CRAWFORD

The preseason college football magazines are making their way onto store shelves and, as most expected, the University of Florida is the popular pick to run the table and claim its second straight national championship. But can the Gators become just the second modern wire-to-wire No. 1 team?

Notre Dame did it in 1943. Army did it in 1945. Florida State did it in 1999. As talented and loaded as the 2009 Gators appear to be — Florida returns Tim Tebow on offense, enough said, and a ridiculous number of defensive players — taking their expected preseason No. 1 ranking all the way through the national title game unscathed might be borderline impossible.

Does that mean Florida can't win a BCS championship just because it opens the season in the top spot? Absolutely not, because eight teams have done it since 1950. But it is unlikely that the Gators will hold onto No. 1 from the beginning until the end.

While Florida appears to have the personnel to be a wire-to-wire champ, the subjectivity that goes into the current polling system (a ticked off sweater-vest-wearing coach might vote Florida down to anonymously smack the SEC), makes such an expectation a little gung-ho ...

Speaking of the Gators and their national title chances, Florida running backs Jeff Demps and Chris Rainey will be expected to fill a majority of the running game gap left by the talented Percy Harvin.

Not many, however, are talking about the void that the Gators will have to fill in its wide receivers corps to replace not only Harvin but also Louis Murphy. On paper, the Gators appear a little shaky in the deep threat department.

While David Nelson really came out of his shell last season, the senior-to-be is expected to fill a Dallas Baker-type role as more of a possession receiver. And sophomore Deonte Thompson seems to have potential to be a field stretcher but he hasn't really had a chance to be "the" guy.

Sure, Riley Cooper has tremendous speed but he missed the spring for baseball and is coming off a knee injury. So one would have to believe that head coach Urban Meyer and company won't expect him to step up and be a game breaker from the get-go. There just isn't a guy who will line up on the edge for the Gators and scare anyone.

The X-Factor might be incoming freshman Andre Debose, whom many compare to Harvin based on his high school film. Type his name into the search bar on Youtube.com, watch the highlights and you will likely agree with the eerie resemblance. Whether that resemblance transfers to the grass of Ben Hill Griffin Stadium will be a topic bounced around water coolers until the Gators kick off in September ...

Former University of Florida QB Chris Leak, who helped lead the Gators to the 2006 National Championship, is now part of the Canadian Football League's Montreal Alouettes. Leak, who despite not being drafted spent time on the rosters of Kansas City and Chicago in 2007 and 2008 respectively, is listed as the Alouettes' fourth-string quarterback.

Montreal's starter, former Utah State quarterback Anthony Calvillo, appears to have a firm grasp on his job, considering his 69 percent completion percentage and 43 touchdown passes from a year ago. Former Iowa QB Brad Banks is listed as second-string and former Florida State QB Adrian McPherson, who might be best remembered for the 2003 gambling scandal at FSU, is listed as third-string.

You can bet (pun intended) that Leak has his work cut out to progress up the Montreal depth chart. With that said, at least he's on a roster. The Edmonton Eskimos said goodbye to Leak's former college teammate, RB Ciatrick Fason, during their final cut.

SAILFISH WIN AGAIN

YMCA Sailfish defeat Bullets, Rays

With two wins under the McArthur YMCA Sailfish swim team's belt, the team is off to a great start this season. On June 20, the Sailfish hosted the Baker Bullets and St. Augustine Rays.

The Bullets and the Rays were ready for a good race, but they did not expect the Sailfish to be so eager for another win.

"With the team stronger this year, great things are going to happen. We had many unexpected amazing races (that) weekend," Coach Mary Donn Bowman said.

Paul Borgman dominated the 11-12 boys 50-yard butterfly.

It was a one-two photo finish in the eight-and-under girls 25-yard freestyle with Ciera Wilcox breaking a three-year record with a 16.99 and Taylor Radcliffe two-tenths behind her with a 17.19.

The eight-and-under girls medley relay team (Taylor Radcliffe, Bridgette DeLille, Ciera Wilcox and Haylie Wallace) team set a new team and pool record with a 1:33.25.

Sofia Dupee had a day of personal best times, but the event she smiles about most is smashing the three-year-old six-and-under 25-yard butterfly record with a 28.72.

LeAnna Middleton competes in the 50-yard freestyle.

As the meet came to a conclusion, the Sailfish were on top with a big win.

It was a great day for the Sailfish once again, proving the Sailfish is the fastest fish in the pool. McArthur YMCA Sailfish hosted Dye-Clay and Yates last Saturday.

Perfect describes Team Fernandina Stingrays' 2009 swim season. The team boasted a perfect 6-0 record. The Stingrays hooked the Magnolia Point Marlins 815-270, their largest point margin of the season, in their final outing Saturday. Josh Reeve, Chris Azar, Johnathan Azar and Joseph Bustabad took advantage of one last opportunity to shine and broke the team record in the 200-yard medley relay. Mary Kate Kaywork improved her time in the 50-yard butterfly event by one second to break teammate Corinne Priest's previous record. Although the regular season is complete, there is still more swimming to come. The Stingrays will continue to practice for the River City Championships July 24-26 in Jacksonville. "Awesome" Megan Combs, left, pulls out first place in the breaststroke. Michaela Irish, right, shows her prowess in the breaststroke, taking second individually and first in the medley relay with teammates Zoe Reyes, Mary Kate Kaywork and Julia Hernandez.

Lacoss wins Wednesday blitz title

The month of June has felt like the dog days of summer and the high temperatures tend to keep a few golfers home, where they can enjoy life in airconditioned comfort while sitting in front of the T.V. Still 51 players came out in the noonday sun to play in the blitz last Wednesday and 59 on Friday.

On Wednesday, Terry Lacoss took individual honors with a 76 and plus 11 points. Joe Parrish, with a three-under-par 70, was second at plus 8. Jim McFarland had a 94 and plus 7 to come in third.

Lacoss (plus 11) got enough help from Jim Roberts, who had a 75 and plus 4 points, to offset the minus 4 of Jim Raffone (89) while Charles Benefield (96) was plus 1 and the team took first place at plus 12.

A five-man team finished second as the team of D.D. Miller (96, plus 4), Doug Morris (94, plus 3), P.W. Nobles (86, plus 1), Jack Croake (83, plus 1) and Rob Maynard (81, minus 2) came in at plus 7.

Third place at plus 5 was claimed by the team of Tom Roberts (76, plus 6), John Rudd (92, plus 3), Sammy Alvarez (79, minus 1) and Jack Harrison (90, minus 3).

There was a tie for fourth place at plus 4 between the teams of Wayne Mortenson (90, plus 6), Larry Luett (78, plus 5), Paul Hensler (96, minus 3), Dave Mudd (93, minus 4) and Dennis Sassenger (83, plus 4), Ron Peterson (84, plus 2), Hydie Peterson (77, plus 3), Doug Wolfe (89, minus 1) and Mike Dowling (100, minus 4).

Although the greens are still far from being perfect after being aerated and sanded, a number of players seem to find them OK for their game. On Friday inidividual honors went to Adam Loud, who had a three-under-par 70 and plus 12 points. Terry Lacoss had another good day as he finished second with a 79 and plus 10 but didn't make it onto a winning team. There was a three-way tie for third at plus 7 between Joe Parrish, who also had a round of 70, Tommy Purvis (85) and Jerry Hudgins (93).

Led by Parrish's plus 7, the all-plus team that included Frank Finocchio (82, plus 5), Dave Mudd (84, plus 5) and R. Garingo (88, plus 1) finished in first place at plus 18.

With Purvis (plus 7) getting help from Wayne Chism (85, plus 6) and Chuck Fenn (77, plus 3), the team total offset the minus 4 of Sam DuBose (95) to come in second at plus 12.

The team of Larry Hutchison (80, plus 5), Steve Johnson (79, plus 5), Allen Elefterion (80, plus 1) and Larry Luett (83, minus 1) finished third at plus 10.

An all-plus team of Rob Maynard (79, plus 3), Mickey Rushton (86, plus 3), Doug Morris (94, plus 2) and Jack Croake (83, plus 1) was fourth at plus 9.

This Week's PGA Tournament Preview

The AT&T National

Defending: Anthony Kim
Total Purse: $6,000,000
Yards: 7,255
Par: 70

The AT&T National is hosted by Tiger Woods and benefits the Tiger Woods Foundation. The event replaced The International in 2007. The AT&T National does not replicate the modified Stableford system that The International had. The AT&T National has been played at the Congressional Country Club in Maryland the past two years, but will move to Philadelphia next year so Congressional can be prepared for the 2011 U.S. Open. The Congressional Country Club has hosted three different major tournaments, including two U.S. Open's. Last year, Anthony Kim emerged from the pack with consecutive birdies around the turn at Congressional and closed with a 5-under 65 for a two-shot victory over Fredrik Jacobson.

Last Week On The PGA Tour

Kenny Perry shot a 63 on Sunday to finish with a tournament-record 258 and won the Travelers Championship by three strokes over Paul Goydos and David Toms. Perry tied a course record with a 61 on Thursday and led after each of the first two rounds, but trailed by a stroke to Goydos heading into the final round. He responded by shooting a 32 on the front nine and was up by 5 strokes heading to the par-4 15th. "Everyone kind of asks about the Augusta hangover deal," Perry said. "I guess I kind of shoved that aside a little bit. So that makes me feel pretty good." Perry's bogey-bogey finish at Augusta kept him from winning the Masters in April.

Golf Trivia

When Tiger Woods appeared on The Mike Douglas Show at age 2, which famous celebrity putted against him?

a) Walter Matthau c) Bob Hope
b) Bing Crosby d) Jack Lemmon

Answer: c) Bob Hope.

Golf Pro Tip

One of the most difficult shots to master is a high, soft lob shot to a real tight pin placement, such as right over a bunker. The key to this shot is to get the ball to stop quickly once it lands on the green in order to get the ball as close as possible. The club of choice for this shot will have to be the 60 degree lob wedge as the standard sand wedge will cause many more sculled shots than good results. As for the actual shot, it is quite difficult to get a consistent swing. Going against most of what we have been taught in golf, you have to cock the wrists while taking a long backswing. Use your torso on the downswing, maintaining the cocked wrists and the blade open through impact. The follow-through should have the clubface facing up to the sky to try and generate the proper bounce and spin.

This Week's Golfing News

Japanese teenage golfer Ryo Ishikawa qualified for the British Open on Sunday with a win at the Mizuno Open. The 17-year-old Ishikawa shot a final round 73 to secure a place at the July 16-19 British Open at Turnberry with his first win of 2009. "I'm thrilled to have qualified for the British Open," said Ishikawa. "There were some tense moments today but it all worked out in the end." Sunday's win was the third of Ishikawa's career on the Japanese tour. Ishikawa missed the cut at the Masters and has received a special invitation to play in the PGA Championship in August. Ishikawa became the youngest winner of a tournament on the Japanese tour by winning the Munsingwear Open KSB Cup at the age 15 years and 8 months in May 2007.

Golf History

July 5, 1975 - At age 51 years, 7 months, and 10 days, Art Wall Jr. edged Gary McCord by one stroke to win the Greater Milwaukee Open. Wall, who won the 1959 Masters, was the second-oldest player ever to win a PGA Tour event. It was Wall's 14th and final PGA Tour victory.

Big game fish of St. Marys, Ga.

OUTDOORS

Terry Lacoss

Saltwater fishermen departing from either St. Marys, Ga., or Fernandina Beach have a lot in common. When entering the ocean by the St. Marys Inlet, fishermen often navigate right past some of the best saltwater fishing the southeastern U.S. has to offer. A few savvy fishermen keep their marine radios turned down low and share with a few select fishing buddies their impressive saltwater catches made at the tips of these fishy jetty rocks.

While most of the game fish caught at both the St. Marys north and south jetty rocks are too big to keep, catching a legal saltwater game fish for the dinner table may be somewhat of a challenge.

"Our fishing party was anchored right in the middle of a school of St. Marys red drum," said Capt. Keith Edwards, captain of the "Miss Kayla" charter fishing boat. "The tide was perfect with a slow outgoing tide until 2:30 p.m. Then an incoming tide began pushing bait right up against the jetty rocks, where redfish were taking advantage of an easy meal."

During the height of the fishing action, Will Beattie hooked a nice red drum and began reeling in his catch when a much larger fish gobbled up his catch.

"There is no way of really telling, but I believe Will Beattie had hooked a redfish when that big fish ate Will's fish," Edwards said.

For the next 15 minutes, Beattie applied maximum fishing rod pressure to his hooked fish while everyone on board waited patiently to see the big fish on the end of his fishing line.

Finally a 150- to 175-pound "Goliath" grouper came slowly to the surface where Edwards boated Beattie's catch long enough to take a few pictures before releasing his catch. The all-tackle IGFA world record Goliath grouper was actually caught from the deep waters of the Amelia River on May 20, 1961, by Lynn Joyner and weighed 680 pounds.

During the next few hours, the "Miss Kayla" fishing party landed a pair of cobia weighing to 60 pounds, 10 red drum of which four of the redfish fell in the legal slot size limit.

Needless to say saltwater fishermen navigating the tip of the St. Marys south jetty rocks to fish offshore pass right by the best fishing waters, maybe the best saltwater fishing in the entire southeastern U.S.

The St. Marys north jetty rocks also harbor world class saltwater fishing, where large schools of tarpon, redfish, king mackerel, sharks and the occasional cobia are targeted by saltwater fishermen. During the spring fishing season, Derek Crawford landed a pending new Georgia all-tackle black drum. Crawford's big drum weighed 103.5 pounds.

Several fishing seasons ago, Roland Martin filmed a T.V. fishing show at the tip of the St. Marys south jetty rocks. Martin hooked and released a 194-pound tarpon that was caught on camera while fishing on my boat, the "Amelia Angler."

However, Martin's tarpon wasn't the largest fish that the "Amelia Angler" had landed at the St. Marys jetty rocks. Hugh Stone and Hugh Stone Jr. teamed up to fight a 500-pound hammerhead shark for 4.5 hours before the large maneater was landed.

During the heat of the summer fishing season, king mackerel fishermen slow troll live baits for giant king mackerel at the end of the St. Marys jetty rocks. World class king mackerel angler Joe Bruce landed a 52-pound king mackerel while king fishing at the tip of the St. Marys north jetty rocks in 1992. Bruce's big mackerel is still the largest king mackerel ever weighed in during the annual Georgia Golden Isles Kingfish Tournament.

A tried and true fishing tactic for a wide variety of St. Marys saltwater game fish during the warm summer months includes anchoring and fishing on the bottom with live menhaden. The tail of the menhaden is cut off, allowing the strong scent of the oily fish to attract nearby game fish. Twenty- to 50-pound fishing tackle is recommended while 50-pound tackle will land heavy game fish in a timely manner. A four- to eight-ounce egg sinker is threaded onto the terminal fishing line where the tag end of the fishing line is tied to a black, 100-pound barrel swivel using a palomar knot. A four- to five-foot section of 100-pound fluorocarbon shock leader is then tied to the remaining side of the swivel using a uni knot. Finally, a 5/0 circle hook is tied to the tag end of the shock leader using a palomar knot.

Tides are very critical to your fishing success at the St. Marys rock jetties. Some of the best action often comes when the tides change or during slow moving tides.

A word of warning, a Georgia saltwater fishing license is needed when fishing on the Georgia side of the St. Marys channel and a Florida saltwater fishing license is needed when fishing on the Florida side of the St. Marys channel.

I have had big fish hooked on the Florida side of the channel that have dragged our fishing party to the Georgia side of the channel, so it pays to have both a Florida and Georgia saltwater fishing license when fishing the big game fish waters to the St. Marys Inlet.

Shoreline anglers need license

Florida's resident saltwater anglers who fish from shore or a structure affixed to shore will need to buy a $7.50 (plus administrative and handling fees) shoreline fishing license by Aug. 1, unless they have a regular resident saltwater fishing license.

The new license applies only to Florida resident saltwater anglers who fish from shore. Resident anglers may prefer to purchase the regular recreational saltwater license that covers them, no matter where they fish for saltwater species in Florida.

Florida has always required non-residents to have a license when fishing from shore, and they will still need to purchase a regular non-resident saltwater fishing license.

The new shoreline saltwater fishing license for residents goes on sale July 15. It provides all of the same exemptions as a regular license, including senior citizens, children, disabled people who meet certain qualifications, active-duty military personnel while home on leave and anglers who fish from a licensed pier. In addition, the shoreline license requirement includes two new exemptions: anglers drawing food stamps, temporary cash assistance or Medicaid; and anglers fishing in their home counties who use cane poles or other gear that does not depend on mechanical retrieval.

At the request of the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission, the Florida Legislature passed the new license requirement to head off a federal license requirement that will go into effect Jan. 1, 2010, and will have a $15-$25 fee beginning in 2011. Florida's new shoreline license exempts this state's anglers from the federal license requirement.

Several hunting, fishing and conservation organizations requested other permit fee changes, which do not take effect until July 2010. They include increases in the state waterfowl stamp from the current $3 to $5; in the resident turkey permit from $5 to $10; the non-resident turkey permit from $100 to $125; the wildlife management area permit for hunting, fishing and other recreational uses from $25 to $30; the limited-entry or special-opportunity hunt fee from $100 per day to $150 per day and $250 per week to $300 per week, as determined by FWC Commissioners; the snook permit from $2 to $10 and the lobster permit from $2 to $5.

Also, new laws create a $5 annual deer permit (in addition to the current hunting license requirement for deer hunters) and allow the agency to charge up to $5 per day for non-hunting and non-fishing recreation on certain wildlife management areas.

The FWC will evaluate areas where it is the lead manager to determine where to charge the fees and how much to charge. In addition, the state will use up to 10 percent of the hunting and sport-fishing fees to promote those sports, with emphasis on youth participation.

Xtreme kingfish events

The United States Kingfish Organization is announcing its new Xtreme Kingfish Tournament Series with proceeds benefiting the athletes of Special Olympics Florida.

The offshore fishing tournaments target king mackerel. But what distinguishes the Xtreme Kingfish Tournament Series is its goal to take the tournament concept to a new level by not only hosting tournaments that satisfy even the most competitive fisherman, but gives back to the community while treating the participants to dining, entertainment and special events as part of their tournament experience.

The United States Kingfish Organization is a non-profit organization; adding a whole new dimension to offshore tournament fishing by making registration fees (in whole or part) tax deductible to their members.

Xtreme Kingfish Tournament Series founder Philip Podskalan is merging his vision of creating a new kind of tournament series with his desire to introduce others to Special Olympics Florida, the respected charity that provides sports training and competition to children and adults diagnosed with intellectual disability.

In addition to its commitment to philanthropy, the XKTS is dedicated to promoting sport fishing as a family activity, as well as valuing sportsmanship and fairness in the sport. Also, unlike many associations in the industry, awards for junior and lady anglers will be given. The organization is aggressively pursuing sponsorship and members to build the organization to be the biggest in the industry.

In total, 20 tournaments are already in the works for the 2009-10 tournament season. Spots are limited and are filling up fast, so for rules, information, locations and registration, those interested should visit www.xtremekts.com.

Confirmed tournament dates and locations: July 30 through Aug. 2, St. Augustine; Aug. 6-9, Sebastian; Sept. 25-27, Port Canaveral; spring 2010, Stuart; April 22-25, Fort Pierce; fall 2010, Sarasota.

XKTS is also working on a tri-state series to include Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina. Visit www.USKingfish.org.

In the age of e-mail and Twitter, address books still live

FROM THE PORCH

Dickie Anderson

We all struggle to keep track of information. Our computer address books spill over with e-mails, phone numbers, birthday information and home addresses. There are lots of changes to keep up with. Birthdays don't change, but nearly everything else does.

Each of us has a preferred system or systems. Many of us remember the old dependable address books that stayed close to our home phones. In the old days home phones were plugged into the wall and not portable. You made telephone calls depending on the time of day and didn't talk long. Close to the phone was the tattered and worn but totally dependable address book.

Some of us miss those well-worn repositories of our most important contact information.

Now we desperately try and keep up with the latest technology and system that will keep us organized. Some of us choose to depend on our cell phones and computers to track names, addresses, phone numbers and e-mails while others use their computers. Exchanging information has gotten more complicated. Even the information we attempt to capture and retain is complicated. It used to be a home address and phone and, maybe, an office address and phone. Now we have street addresses, online addresses, websites, home, office and cell phone numbers. We e-mail, text-mail and some Twitter or use Facebook. It is quite overwhelming.

What a pleasant surprise to walk into Books Plus on Centre Street and find a display of address books. No buttons to push or technology to test – just an address book you can hold in your hand and fill with special names, numbers and addresses.

A collaboration of island talent has produced an address book that offers the traditional format of names and addresses and adds the bonus of an incredible selection of photographs of Amelia Island. Don Shaw, owner of Books Plus and a locally based publishing company, partnered with Roger Moore, also a publisher of books and a talented photographer. Shaw showed Moore an address book that had been given him many years ago. Not only was it a useful address book, it had the bonus of featuring beautiful pictures of Nova Scotia where Shaw had onced lived.

The project was launched and Moore set out to take a variety of pictures showcasing the entire island, not just the more predictable scenes. From beach to marsh, and even featuring some of the island's favorite golf course holes. A border of rich, dark burgundy surrounds the cover photo of picturesque shrimp boats in the harbor.

There are 40 pictures in the address book. Like the address books in our memories, it is a convenient size and is separated by alpha dividers. The project has proven a success. Shaw and Moore smile with pride when someone picks up one of the address books and recalls their own memories of a treasured address book.

Fear the traditional address book has not gone the way of dinosaurs? It lives.

Dickie Anderson welcomes your comments. Books are available at local book and gift stores or on line at www.dickieanderson.com.

June 7 marked an important date in the history of The Katie Ride for Life when David Caples, donor father and founder of the Katie Caples foundation, and David Beattie, top KRFL fundraiser, participated in the Elephant Rock Ride in Castle Rock, Colo., as part of Team Transplant organized by the American Transplant Foundation. The trip was not only to reward Beattie as the top fundraiser, but also to create a connection between the Katie Ride for Life and the American Transplant Foundation in Denver. Nearly 200 Team Transplant riders raised $35,000.

"One of the goals of the Katie Ride has been to test and create a template for our cycling event that could be reproduced in other states and extend organ and tissue donation awareness through our ride on a national basis. With five years' experience, we feel that it is important to begin to share our template with like-minded organizations such as the American Transplant Foundation to help coordinate collaborative efforts to promote the advancement of organ and tissue donation," said Caples. This group travels to local parks on Fridays to keep Nassau beautiful while learning all kinds of cool facts about the great outdoors. Author talk

Author Charles E. Pattillo III will be the guest speaker at the July 13 meeting of the General Duncan Lamont Clinch Historical Society of Amelia Island.

St. Dunstan's & John is a recently published work of historical fiction by Pattillo, an architect and third generation Floridian and grandson of an Episcopal priest. He was born and raised in Tampa. After serving four years in the U.S. Air Force, he attended the University of Florida, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree, followed by a Master of Arts in architecture. As a successful practicing architect in Jacksonville, he designed homes, apartments, schools, condominiums, medical facilities, churches and clubs.

In St. Dunstan's & John, Pattillo blends history, architecture and mystery into a post-Civil War saga. The book explores the impact of the war on the lives of three young men and the disappearance of financial assets of the Confederate States of America, all amidst the beauty of the St. Johns River and 18 small wooden frame churches built along its banks after the war. Now include two men in the present day, seeking the treasure they believe is hidden in the river churches, and you have St. Dunstan's & John.

The meeting will be held July 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of the Fernandina Beach Police Department, 1525 Lime St. The community is welcome.
