Landfill search finds 'items of interest'

JULIA ROBERTS
News-Leader

While investigators will not give specific details, Nassau County Sheriff Bill Leeper said some "items of interest" that he hopes will help solve the mystery of what happened to Joleen Cummings have been found this week in a Georgia landfill.

"It may be something, it may not be," Leeper said on Friday at a news conference held outside the Waste Management Chesser Island Road Landfill in Charlton County, Ga. "We want to double check to make sure. If it is, then we'll have it."

Leeper said the more than 200 personnel from the FBI and his office who conducted the search last week had completed their work.

"We believe we've done all we can do here, but we will continue our investigation, continue gathering evidence, continue putting our criminal case together to present to the State Attorney's Office, and they will determine any additional charges that may be made," the sheriff said.

Kimberly Kessler, also known as Jennifer Sybert, is in the Duval County Jail on a charge of auto theft. A surveillance video allegedly shows Kessler exiting Cummings' vehicle in the parking lot of the Home Depot in Yulee around 1 a.m. on Sunday, May 13. Cummings disappeared after working a shift with Kessler at Tangles Hair Salon in Fernandina Beach on Saturday, May 12. She was reported missing on May 14.

A law enforcement officer found Kessler in her own car, a 2016 Kia Soul, at an Interstate 95 rest area in St. Johns County the following day and arrested her on the theft charge. Leeper has said Kessler is so far not cooperating with investigators.

Law enforcement officials reported two weeks ago that they have surveillance video allegedly showing Kessler throwing away a white trash bag and the contents of a trash can into a dumpster in Nassau County. They believe what went into the dumpster could be evidence in the missing woman's case. It was determined that the contents of that dumpster were taken to the landfill south of Folkston. Searchers have sifted through 3,300 tons of trash since Friday, July 6.

Local marine business destroyed in Monday fire

PHOTOS BY ROBERT FIEGE/NEWS-LEADER

A major fire off North 14th Street in Fernandina Beach late Monday night totally destroyed a building as well as some boats and equipment at Ocean Outboard Marine. There were no injuries reported.

According to a news release from the city of Fernandina Beach with information provided by Fire Chief Ty Silcox, units from the city as well as Nassau County Fire-Rescue were dispatched at approximately 11:40 p.m. to the fire at 997 Egans Creek Lane, the address for Tiger Point Marina and Boat Works, where they found the Ocean Outboard Marine boat shop "fully involved, with fire venting through the roof, and impinging on an additional warehouse. Firefighters maintained a defensive attack on the fire."

The release says the fire was out by 1 a.m. Tuesday. The building was a total loss.

"Individuals from Florida Public Utilities were requested to secure power, the Department of Environmental Protection and the United States Coast Guard have been notified regarding any potential chemical exposure, and the State Fire Marshal's Office is conducting an investigation into the cause of the fire, alongside members of the Fernandina Beach Police Department," according to Silcox.

Deputy Fire Chief Jason Higginbotham said Tuesday morning that the State Fire Marshal's Office has not yet determined the cause of the fire. The FDEP did determine that no hazardous materials at the site got into the water, Higginbotham said.

City races finalized

Friday, July 13, was the deadline for filing as a candidate for the Fernandina Beach City Commission Group 4 and Group 5 seats up for election this fall. They are non-partisan races. The qualified candidates for the Group 4 seat on the commission are incumbent Roy G. Smith, Bradley M. Bean, and Mike Lednovich. Incumbent Vice Mayor Len Kreger will run against Cason Nichole Zylinski in the Group 5 race.

The deadline to register to vote in the general election is Oct. 9. To request a ballot to vote by mail, contact Supervisor of Elections Vicki Cannon at (904) 491-7500, go to www.votenassau.com, or email info@votenassau.com.

Early voting starts Oct. 26 and ends Nov. 3.

The general election is Nov. 6. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Election Day.

Surfer won't let sharks keep him on land

JULIA ROBERTS
News-Leader

A Fernandina Beach surfer said he is not afraid of the ocean and hopes the public will not be either, in the wake of his Friday the 13th encounter with a shark.

According to the Fernandina Beach Fire Department, Ocean Rescue was dispatched to Dustin Theobald's shark bite incident on South Fletcher Avenue at 2:35 p.m. on Friday and then to another attack minutes later. The second person was reported to be an underage male. Ocean Rescue closed the beaches to swimming in the city limits for the rest of the day, but reopened them on Saturday.

Theobald was surfing with his 8-year-old son, Emerson, near the Sadler Road beach access when the incident involving him occurred. Theobald spoke to the News-Leader from his Jacksonville hospital bed. He was preparing for surgery to repair damaged tendons in his leg. He said he and Emerson were surfing a sandbar when the attack occurred.

"He had just caught a wave, and I was laying on my belly, watching him paddle back out," Theobald said. "I felt something grab my foot. I turned around and reached back toward my foot out of instinct. I put my hand over its head, not on purpose. I couldn't see anything from the white water and sand churned up. It wasn't like he was thrashing or anything like that, but he did a left-and-right and jerked on my foot to see if he could pull anything off real quick and get out of there. He could have held on a lot longer and kept going. I think once he tasted me, he let go."

Theobald said the side-to-side jerking motion told him it was a shark. Since he could not see it, figuring out what type of shark it was has become a matter of deduction.

"Obviously I didn't see enough to do anything but made an educated guess," he said. "It was most likely a bull shark, I'm thinking. They come in shallow water. When they bite, they jerk. They try to shred what they are biting apart. Black tips are more speed swimmers, they grab, bite, and go. A bull shark is going to grab and try to rip and tear. Nurse sharks don't have that kind of teeth that would go around my foot and grab and jerk. I can really only narrow it down to a bull shark."

According to the Florida Museum of History, before last Friday, Nassau County had only four confirmed, unprovoked shark attacks since 1882. Theobald said the rarity of the event is what has piqued the interest of the pub-

OBITUARIES

Susan Abels

Susan Abels, 62, passed away June 19, 2018 at Senior Care Center in St. Marys, Ga. Susan was born January 11, 1956 in Zanesville, Ohio.

Susan worked for Nassau County before moving to Bryson City, N.C. While in North Carolina, she worked for the Smokey Mountain Railroad as an assistant manager. Susan loved the railroad.

While in Fernandina, Susan made many friends, especially in the Class of 1958. Susan helped with class reunions and get-togethers.

Susan is survived by her husband, Gentry Abels of Fernandina Beach; daughter, Crystal (Phillip) Patterson of Hilliard; two stepsons, Jason Abels of Tampa and Brian (Jenny) Abels of Bryson City; four grandchildren, Jessica and Preston Patterson of Hilliard and Kaitlyn and Britton Abels of Bryson City.

Memorial services were held July 6, 2018 in Bosque Bello Cemetery.

Nancy Broughton

Nancy Broughton, 83, of Fernandina Beach, Fla., passed away Friday, July 13, 2018.

She was born and raised in Plattsburgh, N.Y. Her early days were spent with her best friend, Reba, an Airedale. Reading was always her favorite thing to do. In the winter, she ice-skated on the local football field and summers were spent at Plattsburgh Municipal Beach on Lake Champlain. She went to the Y dances and loved Elvis. She spent hours talking on the phone to friends. She took singing lessons and performed in Mercado, Pirates of Penzance and Guys & Dolls.

Nancy met her husband, Walt, while studying nursing in college. She began her career as a school nurse and also taught health education. She had two sons, David (Deborah) and John (Glenda); four grandchildren, Chrissy (Mike), Ben, Jonathan, and Chris; and four grandchildren, Michael, Hayden, Erin and Jonah.

Nancy worked as a nurse in Austin, Texas and volunteered with the Texas Court-Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) for many years. She loved volunteering with House of Friends and was a member of Hope Presbyterian Church.

Nancy will be remembered for her quick wit and the love she gave to her many friends and family.

Please join Nancy's family and friends for a memorial service honoring her life at 4 p.m. Friday, July 27, 2018 at Hope Presbyterian Church in Austin.

Irma K. Feldman

Mrs. Irma K. Feldman, 89, of Fernandina Beach, Fla., passed away Friday, July 13, 2018 at Baptist Medical Center Nassau in Fernandina Beach.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Feldman was a daughter of the late Samuel and Gussie Kampf.

She was the widow of the late Samuel J. Feldman and had been a homemaker for all of her married life.

Mrs. Feldman and her family moved to Fernandina Beach in 1972 from Merritt Island, Fla. Her husband, Sam, was a longtime employee of Container Corporation of America.

While involved in many activities, Mrs. Feldman liked to be known as a beloved wife, mother and, especially, grandmother and great-grandmother.

She leaves behind her three sons, Lawrence Feldman of Fernandina Beach, Rick Feldman and his wife, Julie, of Tallahassee, Fla., and Ian Feldman of Fernandina Beach; her three grandchildren, Raymond Feldman and his wife, Johanna, Benjamin Feldman and his wife, Ariel, and Vlad Feldman; and her five precious great-grandchildren, Kaylah, Sydnei, Emma, Adaline and Isaac; as well as several extended family members.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, July 20, 2018 in the Burgess Chapel of Oxley-Heard Funeral Directors. Rabbi Robert Goodman will officiate. The family will receive friends during the hour prior to the service. She will be laid to rest beside her husband at Bosque Bello Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to the American Cancer Society or the American Heart Association in her memory.

Please share your memories and condolences at www.oxleyheard.com.

Charles John Globis Jr.

Charles John "Chucky" Globis Jr., 60, a former resident of Yulee, Fla., passed away Wednesday, July 11, 2018 in Kalispell, Mont.

He was born December 19, 1957 in Pittsburgh, Pa. to the late Charles J. Globis Sr. and Florence Globis.

Chucky was raised in Yulee and played baseball for Fernandina Beach High School. He graduated with the Class of 1975 and then attended the University of Florida, where he obtained his bachelor's degree. After that, he continued his education to earn his master's degree.

He began his career in accounting for the oil industry in Saudi Arabia and then worked as an internal accountant for various casinos in Las Vegas, Nev.

Chucky was an avid sports fan and especially followed all of the sports of the University of Florida Gators.

He was "regularly in touch with his Lord." He was preceded in death by his parents and his sister, Marcia.

His surviving family includes his brothers, Gary Globis and his wife, Janet, of Yulee and Dale Globis and his wife, Bobbie, of Peoria, Ariz.; and nieces, Kylene, Andrea, Jarrahlee, Taylor and Libby.

He will be laid to rest beside his parents in Hughes Cemetery in the coming weeks.

Biagio Litrico

Biagio "Gino" Litrico, a resident of Quality Health in Fernandina Beach, Fla., passed away Friday, July 13, 2018 at the age of 89.

A native of Fernandina Beach, Gino attended school at St. Michael Academy and graduated from Fernandina Beach High School in 1945. Gino served in the United States Army from 1952-54 and was stationed in Germany as part of the United States Counterintelligence Corps.

He earned a degree in industrial management from Georgia Tech in 1956. He later worked as a systems analyst for Westinghouse and Ryder Truck Lines.

In 1967, he married his wife, Helen, in Atlanta, Ga., and in 1968 they had a son, Charles. Gino returned to his hometown in 1970 with his family and moved into the historic home in Old Town that would later be known as the "Pippi Longstocking House" featured in the movie of the same name.

Gino worked in Jacksonville, Fla. in financial services in the 1970s and volunteered with the local historical society and the Fernandina Beach Little League, where he served as PA announcer and scorekeeper from 1978 to 1980.

After leaving the corporate world in the 1970s, Gino became a part owner of several businesses, including Amelia Now Magazine, which was started by his wife, Helen, in 1975 and is currently published by his son Charles. Gino and Helen also owned Amelia One-Hour Photo from 1984-87. His final business endeavor was the Trigger-Net Company, which operated from 1999 to 2004 and was the culmination of many years of shrimping and fishing research that began on his father's shrimp boat in the 1930s.

Gino was preceded in death by his wife, Helen, in 2008. He is survived by a son, Charles Litrico; daughter-in-law, Robin Litrico; and two grandchildren, Ryan and Charlie Litrico, all of Jacksonville.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to support the Amelia Island Museum of History, 233 S. Third St., Fernandina Beach, FL 32034; (904) 261-7378; ameliamuseum.org.

Conversation on digestive health

Starting Point Behavioral Healthcare will host "How Your Digestive Health Impacts Your Mental Wellness: A Community Conversation" for participants to learn about and discuss the connection between your brain and your gut 5:30 to 7 p.m. July 30 at the Peck Center, 516 S. 10th St. in Fernandina Beach. You have probably had a "gut feeling" or some stomach upset when you were stressed. Now, scientists are learning that there is actually a "second brain" in your gut that influences how you think and feel. In fact, studies show the "little brain" in your gut actually includes more than 100 million nerve cells that controls digestion. It is called the Enteric Nervous System (ENS) and it communicates with our big brain, impacting our mental health. Julie Schafer, director of Health Partnerships at Baptist Health, will be the keynote speaker. Her presentation will include an overview of the neurological connections between the two, and how you can influence the health of both. The audience is invited to join in the conversation following her presentation.

The event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. To register, contact dforbes@spbh.org or 225.8280, ext. 428.

Veterans could be owed money due to computer 'error,' say feds

More than 130,000 combat-injured veterans had their lump sum severance pay improperly taxed by the government due to a computer glitch when they left the military from 1991-2016, according to a news release from a nonprofit attempting to help them get their money back.

On July 9, the Department of Defense began mailing letters to notify affected veterans, and on July 11 the Internal Revenue Service issued guidance to assist veterans.

The National Veterans Legal Services Program says it discovered the error in 2014 and considered filing litigation to help veterans, but felt the best option to assist all of the veterans affected, was to ask Congress to pass legislation.

The "Combat-Injured Veterans Tax Fairness Act of 2016" was passed and signed into law by President Barack Obama in December 2016.

"NVLSP will issue advice to help veterans and their families in the coming weeks through our website at www.nvlsp.org and social media accounts," said Bart Stichman, executive director of NVLSP, in the release.

NVLSP offers the following preliminary advice if you are affected:

Tip No. 1: Watch for your notification letter in the mail. Notification letters are being mailed until July 20 from the Department of Defense. Keep this letter in a safe place and do not lose it. When you receive your notification letter, send an email to info@nvlsp.org.

Tip No. 2: Review the guidance from DFAS and the IRS. The process of requesting a refund is complex. Review carefully all the guidance from the IRS, the 1040X form, the instructions for the 1040X form, and the guidance from the Defense Finance & Accounting Service (DFAS).

Tip No. 3: Take your time. This is not paperwork to rush through. It is complex. It is important veterans or their survivors or caregivers carefully evaluate their situation before filing a request for a refund with the IRS. You have at least one year from the date of the notification letter to file a request for a refund.

Tip No. 4: Watch NVLSP's website and social media accounts for more advice to help you. NVLSP attorneys who have viewed public guidance issued over the last few days by DFAS and the IRS are actively working with a pro-bono law firm to assemble advice to help affected veterans and their families seeking refunds. When this advice is ready in the next few weeks, NVLSP will post it at www.nvlsp.org and share it through social media accounts on Facebook and Twitter (@Lawyer4Warriors).

The National Veterans Legal Services Program is an independent, nonprofit veterans service organization that has served active duty military personnel and veterans since 1980. For more information, go to www.nvlsp.org.

Investigators wore special suits and ventilators at the Waste Management Chesser Island Road Landfill, where the heat index was 116 degrees. SEARCH Continued from 1A

Leeper would not give any details of the items that were found last week. He said they will be analyzed at the Florida Department of Law Enforcement laboratory in Jacksonville, and that it may be several weeks before any results are obtained.

"We didn't know what we were looking for, but we found a few things that piqued our interest and we're going to check them," Leeper said.

Kessler, according to law enforcement officials, has at least 18 aliases and dozens of previous addresses. Leeper said he is confident that Kessler is the key to the investigation.

"I do know that there is one person who knows where Joleen is," he said. "That person is in the Duval County Jail, and she's not talking."

Leeper declined to give details as to why he believes Kessler knows the location of Cummings, saying that investigators reached their conclusion "because of the evidence that we found."

"We have a lot of evidence we've recovered, a lot of forensic evidence we've recovered," Leeper continued. "We believe the only person that knows where Joleen's at is Kimberly Kessler," he said.

Law enforcement will continue to follow all credible leads in order to build a "rock-solid" case, the sheriff added. "We have not received any credible leads in a while, so we will continue with our criminal investigation to put a rock-solid case together to make sure that this will never happen again," he said.

Leeper has said that, when details of the case are made public, the community will be shocked, but did not say what aspect of the case would prove shocking.

"Once we're ready to release those details, we will," he said, "(Kessler) hasn't been charged with anything other than auto theft. I can tell you, I'm shocked. I believe our community will be, too."

Martin runs again for School Board

Incumbent Donna Martin is running again for a seat on the Nassau County School Board, District 1, according to a news release.

"I care about the future of Nassau County. I believe that the future of Nassau County depends on the decisions we make today that will impact our most precious resource, our children. It is our responsibility to ensure that the children of this county continue to be given every opportunity to learn and grow into productive citizens, fully prepared for the challenges they will face as adults," Martin said in the release.

Martin is employed as the executive director of Florida State College at Jacksonville Nassau Center. Martin has lived in Nassau County for 25 years with her husband, John, who is retired from the Navy and recently retired as Nassau County's Veterans' Service Officer. They have one daughter, Janel, who is a graduate of Florida's economy is winning

Florida, which had one half the population of New York in 1980, recently passed New York as the third largest state. As reported by Jeff Kunerth in the Orlando Sentinel, "Florida's population growth is also the result of an improving economy." There are some large benefits that come with this statistic. For example, as Kunerth notes, "the numbers are more than just bragging rights. It's also money and politics. Population determines federal funding and congressional seats. Since 2010, Florida has gained two seats in the House of Representatives while New York lost two."

As Neal Freeman points out in a recent National Review article, "Florida spends approximately half as much on state government as New York." Freeman, having lived in and been heavily involved in politics in both places, strongly believes that consumer experiences are, despite the tremendous

COACH'S CORNER

Howard Pines

Clinton and Obama, Florida's governorship is different: "Florida, for the last 24 years, has sent nothing but Republicans to Tallahassee."

When Rick Scott was elected governor, we did not know what to expect. However, his two terms have brought about some excellent results. There are a lot of economic reasons why we are so happy to be Florida residents. And whether you want to difference in spending, roughly equivalent in the two states, with a small but widening advantage accruing to Florida. The reason for this, Neal states, is that even as the country elected Democrat presidents in give Scott the credit, here are the statistics: Since he has been in office, the unemployment rate has gone from over 10 percent to 3.6 percent. In addition, Florida employers have created nearly 1.5 million jobs, a growth rate of 20.3 percent.

As Mark Vitner, an economist for Wells Fargo, writes about Scott, "He has done very well. But, it didn't just happen. When he came into office, the future of the state was very much in doubt. Therefore, he deserves a good bit of the credit."

And, of course, we Floridians in Nassau County are sharing in the benefits. On the other hand, Jeff Ostrowski points out in the Palm Beach Post, "The Democratic side derides the wisdom of the governor's economic platform with his emphasis on cutting taxes, slashing regulation and paying incentives to corporations who create jobs."

But as we head to a new election for governor, some like Freeman have major concerns with what happens next. Freeman in his National Review piece worries, "there are good reasons the Democrats believe they have an opportunity to win the governor's race."

First, as with the Clinton vs. Trump race, for the first time in eight years the governor's race is an open seat. Second, the tidal wave of Puerto Ricans attracted to the mainland by economic opportunity and Hurricane Maria has changed the political dynamic. Third, and he believes most significant, is the fact that the Republicans have one too many good candidates. "The Republican candidates for governor, Adam Putnam and Ron DeSantis, both say they support what Rick Scott stood for in turning around the state's economy. Both are accomplished, articulate, well funded and highly competitive, so either should be a winner." However, Freeman states that "after the primary on Aug. 28, whoever loses will crawl out of bed exhausted, bloodied, broke and quite possibly, seething with resentment at his Republican opponent."

Then with the election only two months away, he worries whether the party will have the time and the energy to truly come together. As I watched the recent debate with Ron DeSantis and Adam Putnam, I could see how contentious it was becoming and I began to understand Freeman's concern.

With this as the argument, you would think Republicans would be energized to get out and support the candidate who wins their primary. Freeman is taking no chances and in trying to get everyone to "come together" has developed an Aug. 29 committee to "gather resources, mediate between factions, smooth the path for whoever wins and focus the partisan energies on winning the November election." However, I have talked to many people who don't share Freeman's concerns, and are not eager to waste their time on something that is not their reality. Sounds a little like Pennsylvania and Michigan in the presidential race, and New York after Giuliani and Bloomberg. My reality is, people love to support change. So again, I understand why Neal Freeman is so concerned.

Conflict arises over port's operating contract

CINDY JACKSON
News-Leader

The meeting of the Ocean Highway and Port Authority's board on Wednesday, July 11, was not entirely smooth sailing, as a disagreement over the legal process for renegotiating the existing operating agreement with new port operator Worldwide Terminals Fernandina LLC emerged.

The agreement, left over from when Kinder Morgan operated the port, has five-plus years remaining. Christopher Ragucci, CEO of Worldwide Terminals, said he understood the contract he assumed from Kinder Morgan would be negotiated into a long-term agreement that could run as long as 25 to 30 years. Ragucci obtained financing for the deal, paying off over $6 million in existing port debt.

OHPA attorney Clyde Davis said at the meeting that Florida law requires port commissioners to do one of three things when the existing contract expires: request invitations to bid, request invitations to negotiate, or issue a request for proposals. "The existing port operating agreement is a document, a contract that is more than 25 years old. Over the past year there has been significant evolution in the relationship between OPHA and Nassau Terminals, the operating company," Davis said.

In the meeting, Ragucci disagreed with Davis about how exactly to handle the contract, saying Davis would hear from Ragucci's lawyers with their position statement. But by yesterday Ragucci said he was feeling confident that things with the operating agreement would be worked out and that he and his company have a good working relationship with Davis.

Ragucci also mentioned at the July 11 meeting that there had been a security breach at the port but gave no details. Commissioner Bob Sturgess took that opportunity to emphasize the need for OPHA commissioners to be better informed of port operations.

According to Fernandina Beach Police Chief James Hurley, the security breach Ragucci mentioned took place during the Isle of Eight Flags Shrimp Festival weekend, when a licensed boat pilot with passengers onboard docked at the port in search of restrooms. Port security officials intercepted the passengers.

PEG DAVIS/NEWS-LEADER

There are a number of agencies tasked with security operations as well as monitoring and enforcing regulations regarding the transportation of hazardous materials, including the U.S. Coast Guard, the Department of Transportation, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, the National Transportation Safety Board, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Transportation Safety Administration, as well as U.S. Customs and Border Control.

It is in the context of revising the operating agreement that Sturgess, an attorney who has served on the OPHA board since 2016, offered specific recommendations related to security and hazardous cargo shipments. Sturgess sees it as a perfect opportunity to include additional reporting requirements.

In a conversation with the News-Leader, Sturgess said changes are needed to guarantee that the "port authority has authority and the public has knowledge." Contract language proposed by Sturgess calls for the operator of the port to provide notice to the OPHA of potential liability, security breaches, and certain dangerous cargo.

In addition to his suggestion that the port operator be required to inform the OPHA of any security breaches, Sturgess also recommends that the port operator provide notification when the port handles hazardous materials known as "certain dangerous cargoes." Objections were made in the past that such a report would be laborious. Sturgess, in an effort to quell those objections, presented a one-page document that the Port of Miami uses for such a notification.

Reached via email about the Port of Fernandina's handling of hazardous materials, Davis wrote: "Cargo is not regulated at the local level. Rather ... it is done at the national level."

"If it is moving as a bulk tank or containerized freight, then the tank or container will carry a required placard that identifies the particular hazard presented by the item. It may be flammable, combustible, or an oxidizer. It could be toxic or poisonous, such as an insecticide. The nature of the danger or hazard depends on the particular item, but, regardless, the cargo must carry the required placard before it can enter the port. This is true whether it comes in or out by truck or by ship. Coming or going, it must be identified in order to be properly handled," Davis stated.

Davis also said that the port is not licensed to handle explosives or radioactive materials.

"The Coast Guard's primary role for ports is safety," explained Petty Officer 1st Class Luke Clayton with the Coast Guard Seventh District Public Affairs Detachment in Jacksonville.

"Partner agencies have similar roles, but different, more specific, missions. Ultimately the Captain of the Port, Coast Guard Sector Jacksonville's Commanding Officer, is in charge of the port and its operations. As far as inspections, the Coast Guard inspects the port for a multitude of requirements including the handling and storage of hazardous material. This also includes inspecting policies and plans for emergencies. A port is inspected fully annually with random inspections throughout the year to test the integrity of the port. These random inspections can be for various requirements at any time, night or day," Clayton continued.

"Vessels entering the port are also inspected on an annual basis but can be inspected more often if they have a track record of violations. This varies from ship to ship and can coincide with other ports. Different vessels have different requirements depending on type, size and a multitude of other variations.

"Hazardous materials are controlled and regulated through federal law. The Coast Guard monitors all hazardous materials with port partners to ensure they are handled according to federal regulations. The overall health of the port is critical to commerce and daily function, which is why we have many laws and requirements in place."

Sturgess summarized his concerns: "The port authority and the public have a right to know about what goes in and out of the port and what is stored there. While it hasn't been a problem in the past, whether or not a port operator decides to handle such material is, pure and simple, a business decision."

In other port news, while the state of Florida has appropriated $2 million toward the acquisition of a new multipurpose crane and the construction of a new 50,000-square-foot covered warehouse, a resolution approved by OPHA estimated the total project cost at $5,000,000.

Ragucci presented some positive news during his report to the OPHA on port operations, announcing that tonnage by commodity is up, container tonnage is up, and calls to the port are up, as is rail cargo traffic.

Ragucci also addressed the delay experienced when the M/V Owl made a delivery of heavy oats to the port at the beginning of the month. The ship had to first offload a portion of its total cargo in Houston, Texas. Because of siltation in the federal shipping channel and in the Port of Fernandina's berth, the ship was prevented from docking with a full load. Ragucci also hired additional staff from Jacksonville to work around the clock to get the container unloaded in three days.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is responsible for maintaining navigable depths at the nation's ports. The last time the Corps did anything in or around the Port of Fernandina was in 2000. According to project manager Beau Corbett of the USACE Jacksonville office, a verbal request has been made to the Corps for new dredging, but a more in-depth and official statement of need is required before the Corps moves forward.

The Corps did complete work in the past eight months on a survey requested by pilots operating to and from the port. There are three major components to consider in doing such a survey, including the depth up to the port where vessels are offloaded, the turning basin, and the rest of the channel that leads up to the Intracoastal Waterway.

Ragucci is anxious to have the dredging work completed in order to fulfill his promise to increase traffic to the Port of Fernandina. In addition to noting for commissioners that all evaluation measures of port operations are up, he also mentioned a potential contract involving the transport of regionally manufactured portable classrooms destined for the Virgin Islands.

The threats to journalism

NEWSROOM VIEW

student whose school in uninhabitable while cuts are made to education. As another saying goes – all politics are local politics.

According to the Pew Research Institute, 72 percent of Americans follow local news. That's a pretty large percentage of the population that is reading local newspapers. A number that cannot be ignored.

So, if you tried working on it from the consumer end by addressing the demand for reliable news, and newspapers are still reporting, attack the problem by going after the supply of newspapers – literally.

Donald Trump has enacted tariffs that will affect items as American as Harley-Davidson, Levi's, Budweiser and orange juice. Now tariffs are working to destroy another American staple – small, local newspapers.

The 22-percent tariff the Trump administration has imposed on some Canadian newsprint has raised the cost of newsprint to some newspapers, which could be a death knell for smaller papers when the newspaper business is not doing well in general. Large papers, some of which had been in print for 100 years, have closed. Hundreds of thousands of journalists have been laid off, leaving just a few to cover what has traditionally been covered by dozens of reporters. While larger newspapers, owned by multi-billion dollar corporations, might be able to absorb the additional cost of printing, smaller newspapers, already threatened by electronic media and the 24-hour news cycle, might not survive.

We at local newspapers have persevered, covering breaking news, local sports, features about the people in your community, and politics, from those elected to the mosquito control board to the president. Local newspapers not only give you insight as to who is elected, but follow the effects of those elected on their constituency, because we are the constituency too.

Going at the “problem” of journalism has now come full circle. Cut off the demand for journalists by calling them liars, whip up a frenzy of hatred for reporters.

A free press is still the best way for the American public to know what the president is up to. His goal frequently appears to be to move that attention – scrutiny of his policies and decisions – away from himself. Don't let that happen. Don't let him skin that cat.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Paid parking idea

I am happy to read in the News-Leader, July 13, that the city of Fernandina might institute beach parking fees.

As a former resident of Sanibel Island for 20 years, Sanibel finally began a beach-parking fee.

Kindly allow me to describe how Sanibel instituted it. The Sanibel beaches began to be so crowded with litter and other debris from individuals all over Lee County. Consequently, resident parking became very difficult, and Sanibel residents were paying for the beach up-keep.

To fund the cost of maintaining Sanibel beaches, annual resident beach decals were issued by the Sanibel police. Residents also were charged a fee. Residents had to provide proof of their residency, which was their driver's license, which gave them the opportunity to park at the different access points on the island, very similar to Amelia Island. The annual resident sticker allowed residents to park free at the paid parking lots. If non-residents wanted an annual pass, they paid MUCH more than the residents.

The two large (main) beaches on Sanibel had paid parking. Each beach parking lot had a self-pay parking meter that issued a parking stub and had to be visible on the dashboard. Beachgoers had to choose a time from the meter. Of course the meter took credit cards.

Tickets were issued as well as tow trucks called for offenders.

I hope you find this helpful. Please feel free to contact me.

Keeping pets safe

A little haiku:

Coyotes live here.

They will kill cats and small dogs.

Keep your pets inside!

Urban coyotes are here to stay – it's up to us to find ways of coexisting with them. Coyotes are predators of small prey and are generally scavengers. The most common food item for coyotes is small rodents. However, they are also opportunistic and will shift their diets to take advantage of the most available prey.

Keeping pets and pet food inside is the best way to keep coyotes out of your yard.

If your pet is missing, call the animal shelters immediately. If you live in the city limits of Fernandina Beach, call the Nassau Humane Society at (904) 321-1647. Unincorporated Nassau County residents should call Nassau County Animal Services at (904) 530-6150. If you live in the area of both the city and county, please call both. Be sure to call them back when you find your pet.

Support for Aaron Bell

Aaron Bell, candidate for Nassau County Commission, District 2, is a seasoned businessman, dedicated family man, and concerned citizen who cares deeply about the quality of life in our county. A practiced problem solver, with no personal interests in development or ancillary businesses, he clearly understands and articulates how the addition of 40,000 new county residents in the next few years will put tremendous strain on our emergency services, schools, the county's infrastructure, and the flora and fauna of our region.

He knows that the addition of one more lane each way on S.R. 190 will not be enough to handle the demands of a burgeoning population. And, as the newest of our public schools, Wildlight, is already at capacity, he knows at least two, if not more, elementary schools must be built, as well as a middle and high school. With no funding sources clearly outlined in existing plans, he is gravely concerned for the county's current taxpayers.

Bell is running for office with the goal of addressing and remedying these issues. He intends to be a full-time county commissioner who is accessible and available to all residents. When you speak with him, you know he well understands the many future struggles our county faces. As he says, “We can't just keep kicking the can down the road and not worry about where it will go.” It is imperative that we vote for Aaron Bell, making him a county commissioner for the people and our future.

This (primary) election takes place August 28. All registered voters, regardless of party or district in which you live, may vote in this election.

If you will be out of town and need an absentee ballot, or have other voting questions, please contact the Board of Elections, (904) 491-7500 or www.votenassau.com.

COMMUNITY THANKS

Light-Up Amelia

The Light-Up Amelia Committee would like to thank the community for its participation in our 2018 Hometown Fourth of July Celebration presented by Community First Credit Union. This year was memorable as an estimated crowd of five thousand gathered with family and friends at the waterfront to celebrate. It is always rewarding to have so many from our community participating in the contests and enjoying the delicious food and great service provided by the vendors. This evening of free entertainment with music provided by Nassau Community Band and the Fife and Drum Corp, culminating with a spectacular fireworks display, could not happen without the support of many. We would like to thank the City of Fernandina Beach with special thanks to the Fernandina Beach Police and Fire Departments for always doing a terrific job of keeping our families and community safe. A big thank you to our event partners: Community First Credit Union, Florida Public Utilities, Vystar Credit Union, Westrec, P-5 Productions, Gillette and Associates, Big Chef and Nassau Fertilizer and Oil. Also to the following local businesses who donated prizes: Fernandina Beach Animal Clinic, Paws Obedience Training, Holistic Wellness Center, Arctic Air, Super Corsa Cycles, PK's Bike Shop, Bella Computer, Miss Carolyn's, Drews Pools and Community First Credit Union.

Light-Up Amelia looks forward to next year's Fourth of July Celebration; however, in just a few days we will gather to begin planning and preparing for our famous New Year's Eve “Shrimp Drop.” We invite everyone to come and celebrate the New Year with us. Your continued financial support is much appreciated and if you are interested in volunteering at these events, please email me at rsicre@fpuc.com.

VIEWPOINT / DOUG ADKINS / FERNANDINA BEACH

It is time for new leadership

The discussion around HB 631 has been on the kitchen table for many families and a topic of lunch for many here in our community. I, along with my family, took our pictures to complete the affidavits to protect our interests in the dry sand and to submit to the county the evidence they would need to show the customary use or ancient use of these areas where our children and family would use the beach.

In reviewing the statute that was passed, it is clear that both state Rep. Byrd and state Sen. Bean just did not read the bill or had no clue that this bill would become applicable to a wide range of properties that could fall under the term “beach.” There are “beaches” created along rivers, lakes, and of course along the coastal areas of Florida. It would appear that the “Byrd/Bean beach improvement plan” seems to suggest, in basic terms, that you would be able to place your towel on the wet sand because that is clearly under the law public property. In order to place that same towel on the dry sand, however, the county would need to file a complaint and seek a court declaration affirming its position that there is an ancient, customary use to that parcel of dry sand.

issues for beach property owners and for people who go to the beach as to where the property lines actually really exist. This dispute never was an issue in our community until the “Byrd/Bean beach improvement plan” was adopted under HB 631.

In my view this law opens a Pandora's box to judicial activism. It allows the courts the ability to start issuing declaratory rulings about the proposed decisions of local governmental entities, de novo. This legalized styled of judicial activism is a problem that will blur the lines between our elected local municipalities and county commissions and the judicial branch, which should

I know that my son would like to play as a young child in the dry sand, so fortunately I had some pictures to send along to the county for them to use. I am sure many other residents of our lovely community did the same. The fact remains that with this new law, which has imposed a tremendous burden upon a whole community, has raised new have the power to settle disputes over laws that these entities adopt or acts they take up. But this should not be the case before the local elected body has crafted its policy or law.

I know that Representative Byrd was on a recent news show and stated that other laws would circumvent HB 631 somehow. This was a disingenuous statement in that he should know having been at the capitol that the committee staff who work on these bills do significant research to ensure that these bills or proposed laws do not contravene other laws because that would not be permitted under the process.

I believe Byrd should have filed an amendment to exempt Nassau County from this hostile legislation from the start. This would have forced the South Florida Democrat Rep. Katie Edwards, who is also a lawyer, to come to him to make her case why Nassau County should be included. Byrd was in the majority party, the sponsor of the bill was a South Florida Democrat, and he could have easily sought an amendment to the bill to protect our interests. Instead, Byrd decided it was not controversial and no action was necessary on his part.

He would come to this conclusion, because in his home community at Neptune Beach they have had customary use ordinances for decades, so this proposed bill would have no effect on the beach where he states he runs each morning.

The problem with having a state representative who does not live in your community is that he does not understand the issues and the needs properly. Clearly the issue was not controversial for Byrd because where he lives was not being adversely affected.

The (primary) election on Aug. 28 is a time for the community to make many decisions about who should represent them in the seats of government. I was told many years ago by GOP Chairman Tom Slade, “If an incumbent cannot tell you three problems they have without dispute provided leadership on, then maybe its time for new leadership.” It was wise counsel in my early days of political involvement and has always helped guide my decisions when evaluating incumbents who are asking to be re-elected to their seats. Leadership is about solving problems for the people here in Nassau County. It makes a difference where your state representative lives, and for many years this seat was in Nassau County. Its time to bring the seat back to Nassau County, repeal HB 631, and save the dry sand. It's time for new leadership.

lic. His story has been reported as far away as London, he said, and he has been on ABC's Good Morning America, Fox News and other networks.

"I really don't want people to be scared," he said. "I want them to understand the odds of something like this happening. It's such a rare thing. I was surrounded by 100 to 150 people. There were a bunch of people out there with their kids. I'm glad it happened to me versus anyone's child that's out there. There's a bunch of people out there with their kids. That little quick bite could have taken a foot."

Theobald said he has been surfing for 22 of his 30 years, and the shark bite will not stop him, nor will it keep him from surfing with his son.

"Being a father, I can't stop. I have to set an example for him," he said. "I think there will be some stuff I have to work through, mentally. I have to make sure that he knows, if you fall off the horse, you get back on. I can't imagine if it happened to him."

Since he has been hospitalized, friends and acquaintances have helped him maintain a sense of humor about the attack, Theobald says, including gifting him with items such as a T-shirt with a picture of a shark on it proclaiming "Human Week" and a shark on a leash, which rides a surfboard.

"It's really uplifting my spirits," he said. "I can't imagine having a negative attitude with something like this."

Theobald owns Handyman and Home Maintenance LLC in Fernandina Beach and says he will be off work for a minimum of six weeks. His brother has started a GoFundMe campaign at <http://bit.ly/2NojgEr>, and the Fernandina Beach Stingrays, his son's swim team, is holding a fundraising event as well. He said the outpouring of support from the community has moved him.

"I haven't shed a tear, except for thinking about my son, and the outpouring of support from the community," he said.

Friday the 13th is traditionally a day for bad luck, but Theobald said he doesn't feel unlucky.

"I wasn't very superstitious before this," he said. "I was thinking about playing the lotto that day. I guess maybe I had a choice and in some alternate timeline I would have won the lottery. I've won the lottery in some ways. Everyone has come out to support me, mentally and emotionally. People have been really supportive. I never imagined it would turn to this. I'm ready to go home and kick it on the couch with the dogs."

Zebra long-wings are Florida's state butterfly. Karen Brown's garden in Gainesville is a paradise for bird and butterfly watching.

Visiting Karen's garden

I go to Gainesville every few months to visit old friends, and while there, I take in the sights too. The Sweetwater Wetland Park, with all its nature, is a favorite stop of mine. I've written about it often. The Museum of Natural History at the University of Florida is another regular visit of mine, especially the Butterfly house – there's always something interesting to watch there.

WILD WAYS

Pat Foster-Turley

I usually stay at my friend Karen Brown's house in Gainesville. Over the three decades or so that it has been my "home base" there, I've watched Karen expand her double-lot garden. She's added a water garden, a collection of carnivorous plants, bird feeders of all varieties, from suet to seeds, and most of all, an ever-expanding habitat full of native flowers, shrubs, and trees. Often when I visit, Karen and her partner, Bill, and I set off for some adventure or another, but this visit I took the time to savor the wonders of their garden.

Karen recently retired from her job of 30-some years as information manager of the University of Florida's Center for Aquatic and Invasive Plants, and she finally has more time for the gardening and bird watching that she loves. Wow, do her gardens show it!

I learned a lot touring the gardens with her. I saw the beetles that she and others in her neighborhood have released to eat the invasive air potato vines. Judging from all the holes in the large heart-shaped leaves, they were doing a fine job of it. We have invasive air potato vines around here too, and those beetles have been released on the edge of the Greenway – I hope they do as well.

But there's another problem plant trying to get a toehold in Karen's garden. Just beyond her fence, swallowtail butterflies were busy feeding on tall glorybower shrubs. These are highly invasive plants, so Karen keeps them out of her side of the fence, as much as she can, anyway. I hate to say "invasive" because they have beautiful pink flower heads that certainly do attract the butterflies.

Mostly, though, Karen's yard is a masterpiece of well-thought-out plant selections. She spends a lot of time digging out and chopping down overgrown shrubs and vines and planting native replacements. Everything she plants now is known as a Florida native that attracts birds, bees, or butterflies.

Sometimes she has to make hard choices. For years now she's been yanking wild grapevines off her holly tree. She's planted another holly tree nearby, since this species needs both a male and a female plant around to produce berries. The berries attract birds, but so do the grapes! Grape vines also create a bird-friendly structural habitat. Now she is letting the grapevines grow over the holly. In the fall, when the leaves die off, holly berries should be there too.

Karen and I only spent a few minutes on this garden tour, but it was enough time to watch monarch butterflies hovering above her milkweed plants, maybe ready to lay their eggs on this host plant. Elsewhere in her yard, zebra longwings – Florida's state butterfly – fed on orange firebush flowers.

And hummingbirds were zipping to and from her feeders.

Once her buckeye shrubs started blooming, the hummingbirds showed up for the spring. She had not gotten her hummingbird feeders set up before they arrived, and they hovered near the place where the feeders had been last year. Now the feeders and the hummingbirds are settled again.

There was a lot more to see in Karen's garden, but it was getting hot and I had to leave for my drive back to Fernandina. Right before I left, Karen pointed to the sky, and we saw a snail kite high above us – a rare treat in this part of Florida. For the first time accurately recorded, snail kites have been found nesting in Paynes Prairie, far north of their more typical, south Florida habitats. Gainesville is indeed a birder's paradise, surrounded by natural areas in every direction. There is always something to watch in the wetlands, woods, and in your own backyard. Although Karen is now retired, it's just the beginning of a new life, and birds and bees and butterflies will be a big part of it. In Karen's volunteer roles as newsletter editor and membership coordinator of the Alachua Audubon Society, she has a lot of work still ahead of her. Fun work on her own schedule at last!

Skylar Whitty returns to lead the all-Nassau County team for a second season. She led the state runner-up West Nassau team on the mound in 2018 and will soon join the pitching line-up at Florida Atlantic University.

"I just enjoy softball and always compete," Whitty said.

She doesn't like to lose. "I hate it. It's the worst feeling ever."

Whitty first joined a softball team at age 7. Since then, she's mostly played year-round, gaining the visibility of several college scouts.

She originally committed to Georgia Southern's athletic program, but the coaching staff was reorganized and she found a better roost among FAU's Owls.

"I really liked the coaching staff at FAU and the campus," Whitty said.

The picturesque Boca Raton campus features suite-style housing. Whitty will room with two teammates and another athlete.

After four years at West Nassau, which included two seasons that ended as state runner-up, Whitty has strong ties with her teammates.

"I'll miss being around them and knowing everybody I'm around and being familiar with how they play and knowing that they have my back."

She heads south Aug. 16 to begin her college career.

"I'm ready to venture out on my own," Whitty said. "I feel kind of pressured, but it's exciting at the same time."

She's ready to accept the challenge. The Owls play a few games in the fall, acclimating the freshmen into collegiate play.

The Lady Warrior freshmen impressed Whitty throughout the 2018 season.

"For their age, they stepped up and did their jobs," she said. "I think they're going to continue to get better. They were great this year, but they're going to get better as they mature as high school players."

West Nassau set its sights on a championship bid early on.

"We worked hard all year, from the fall to the season, in hopes of getting back to the state championship," Whitty said.

Morning workouts began at 7 a.m. throughout the fall. The team also held offseason conditioning games against Yulee, Oakleaf and Baker County. They were prepared for the state quest.

After defeating Keystone Heights 4-1 in the Final Four, "I think most of us thought, 'we've got this, we can win it,'" Whitty said.

But Coral Springs Charter was ready to defend its Class 5A title, winning 4-1.

"I was devastated," Whitty said. "I was like, this just happened - again."

Her freshman season at West Nassau also ended with a loss to Coral Springs for the cham-

First session set for Saturday

Two-time International Surfing Association gold medalist Sean Poynter and the Amelia Island Paddle Surf Co. have teamed up to provide a new excursion experience for paddlers in the area.

With Poynter's involvement, Amelia Island Paddle Surf Co. is injecting its tours with a good amount of stand up paddleboard education and light-hearted paddle fun, according to Poynter.

Not only is the company tapping into Poynter's experience, but it enlisted the Amelia Island Museum of History to provide history of the waterways they paddle. It also reached out to local businesses in the health and wellness industries space to offer their insights on the fitness aspects of paddling and body repair.

"Mixing that with the good nature fun and all-round water safety and island navigation experience of Amelia Island Paddle Surf Co. and you have a truly unique experience,"

Golf News, Tips, Trivia & Stats

This Week in Pro Golf

The Open Championship returns to Carnoustie for just the eighth time
The Open Championship's long and glorious history began in 1860 when it was first staged by members of the Prestwick Golf Club. Eight men participated in a three-round event, with Willie Park capturing the first championship. The Claret Jug is synonymous with the Open title as the winner gets the Jug. However, it was not until 1873 when the Claret Jug became a mainstay for the winner. Harry Vardon holds the record for the most victories in this event, winning six different times. Last year, Jordan Spieth (pictured below) defeated Matt Kuchar by three strokes at Royal Birkdale.

Which golfer has the most runner-up finishes at the Open Championship?

a) Phil Mickelson c) Jack Nicklaus
b) Sergio Garcia d) Ben Crenshaw

Answer: c) Jack Nicklaus finished runner-up at the Open Championship a record 7 times.

Top News Stories

John Daly withdraws from Open Championship
John Daly is missing the Open Championship for only the fourth time since he first became eligible as a surprise major champion. Daly has notified the R&A that he is withdrawing because of a knee injury. Daly also cited his knee injury in asking for a cart at the U.S. Senior Open, a request that was denied. He played the following week at The Greenbrier on the PGA Tour and missed the cut. Daly, who also withdrew from last week's Senior Players Championship after the second round, said in a tweet Saturday that his knee pain was "unbearable." Daly won The Open in 1995 at St. Andrews in a playoff over Costantino Rocca. He first became eligible for the major in 1992, a year after he won the PGA Championship at Crooked Stick as the ninth alternate. He has not made the cut at The Open since 2010.

Lessons from the Golf Pro

Golf shoes are apparel that need quite a bit of care, yet they rarely get the attention that they need. One of the main problems is that they shrink due to the elements as well as storage. The best way to keep your golf shoes in prime condition is to insert a shoe tree inside your shoe. This will hold the shoe's shape, minimize shrinkage and eliminate moisture buildup. If you have leather golf shoes, you should treat them with either polish or a silicone spray. Today, most golf courses want you to wear soft golf spikes instead of the old metal ones. If you still have metal spikes and one comes loose, the standard spike wrench will do the job. However, if you do not have a spike wrench to use, try using a divot repair tool or a towel that is pressed firmly against the golf shoe spike.

Michael Kim obliterated TPC Deere Run, shooting a tournament record 27-under par to win the John Deere Classic by eight shots over Francesco Molinari, Joel Dahmen, Sam Ryder and Bronson Burgoon. After building a five-stroke lead heading into the final round, Kim slammed the door shut Sunday and finished the weekend with a final round 5-under par 66. "I started playing at eight years old," Kim, now 25, said. "You dream about playing on the PGA Tour, winning on the PGA Tour."

pionship. Finishing in second place a second time was bittersweet.

"Some of our hard work paid off, which makes it kind of OK, but not completely OK."

Whitty finished the year with 218 strikeouts in 196 innings on the mound. She hit six home runs while fellow senior and all-county team player Emily Dixon led the team with seven.

Sophomore Madison Dixon also joins the all-county roster and led the Lady Warriors with 31 RBI. Whitty had 29. Freshman Hope Epps was the youngest from West Nassau to make the county team and only had two errors at second base in 30 games.

Whitty's advice for younger players is "just work hard and stay committed to the sports."

She added, "Work hard and stay focused on what you want to do. Be a coachable athlete."

Whitty is the daughter of Tracee and Calton "Buzz" Whitty of Callahan.

The 2018 All-Nassau County Softball Team includes:

- Skylar Whitty, senior pitcher, West Nassau. Whitty repeats as the county's most valuable player. This season she had a .375 batting average with six home runs and 29 RBI. She threw 218 strikeouts in 196 innings. Whitty signed with Florida Atlantic University. This is her third appearance on the all-county team.

- Tristan Edwards, junior catcher, Hilliard. Edwards stepped up as a leader for the Lady Flashes and boasted a .989 percent fielding percentage with zero errors. She had a .408 batting average with 21 singles, 5 doubles, a triple and 4 home runs. She hit 25 RBIS and also stole 6 bases.

- Linzie LaFavor, junior short stop and catcher, Yulee. LaFavor boasted a .355 average, 33 hits, four home runs and 31 RBI, returning to the all-county team for a second season. LaFavor has committed to play at Georgia Southern University.

- Shelbee Holland,

junior infielder and pitcher, Fernandina Beach. The Lady Pirate batted .545 with a .909 slugging percentage. She had 36 hits and 30 RBIS, scored 18 runs, hit 11 doubles, two triples and a trio of home runs. On the mound, Holland struck out 110 batters and boasted an earned run average of 1.88. This is Holland's third appearance on the all-county team.

- Emily Dixon, senior short stop, West Nassau. Dixon had a .472 batting average, 7 home runs, 5 doubles, 4 triples and only two strikeouts all year. She signed with the College of Central Florida. This is Dixon's third appearance on the all-county team.

- Brooke Geiger, sophomore pitcher, Hilliard. Geiger had a .949 fielding percentage and a .292 batting average. She hit nine singles, four doubles, a triple and five home runs with 11 RBI. Her ERA was 3.164 percent. This is Geiger's second appearance on the all-county team.

- Kayla Bradberry, senior outfielder, Yulee. She hit .425 with 37 hits, three home runs, 14 doubles and three home runs for the Lady Hornets. Bradberry, who signed to play at Santa Fe, was selected for the 29th annual Florida Athletic Coaches Association Softball All Star Classic. She returns to the all-county team.

- Hope Epps, freshman second baseman, West Nassau. Epps had a .419 batting average with 5 doubles and a home run. She only made two errors at second base all year.

- Casey Erb, junior outfielder, Yulee. She hit .407 with 37 hits, two home runs, three triples and 14 doubles. She also had 29 RBIS.

- Madison Dixon, sophomore first baseman, West Nassau. Dixon had a .300 batting average with 5 home runs, 5 doubles and a triple. She led the Lady Warriors with 31 RBI.

Honorable mention: Rylee English, Amy Lee, Hilliard; Mykhala Moore, Bre Hickox, West Nassau; Daylee Pucca, Jordyn Foley, Fernandina Beach; Zoe McKendree, McKenize Flowers, Yulee.

Big week for kingfish

There is the Daytona 500, where race car fans gather for the year's most popular race, and The Players Championship golf tournament, where you can shake hands with Phil

Mickelson. Then, there is the Greater Jacksonville Kingfish Tournament, where any fisherman entered in the event has the opportunity to become a fishing legend by catching the largest kingfish.

Such was the case during the 2009 Fernandina Beach Fishing Rodeo, when Capt. Bob Johnson of North Carolina teamed up with Yulee's Keith Lane and weighed in a massive 48.64-pound kingfish. Fishing aboard Johnson's 17-foot Boston Whaler, the Traveler, the pair of seasoned king mackerel fishermen fished in close to land and topped all other tournament teams with their impressive catch.

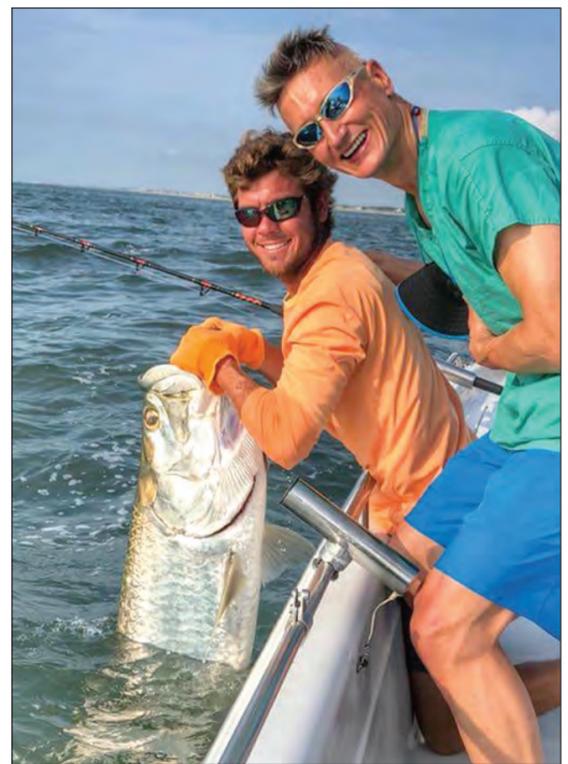

Eighty-degree water temperatures fired up the beach kingfishing during the second and final day of the event, with the largest king mackerel, a 48.64-pound smoker, weighed in by team Traveler.

"At exactly 11 a.m., we had a big kingfish eat a large menhaden trolled just behind the prop wash of our 90-hp Mercury outboard," Johnson said. "During its slow and methodical first run, not typical of most kingfish we hook, the line tangled with another kingfish line, and Keith had to bite the line free.

"After a deep run, the king came close to our kingfish boat, where Keith easily gaffed the tired king mackerel right in the shoulders. We took one look at the big king and headed to the Fernandina Beach City Marina kingfish scales."

The Red Top condos are located some five miles south of the Jacksonville inlet and are well identified with their bright red roofs. Kingfishing there is excellent through the warm months of summer. A hard shell bottom attracts both baitfish schools and tournament-size king.

During this week's Greater Jacksonville Kingfish Tournament, the popular Red Tops will once again attract several skilled kingfish boats and more than likely produce several top-money kingfish. The regular tournament is July 19-20. Fishermen will be fishing a wide variety of kingfish waters, from just outside the Jacksonville jetty rocks to some 50 miles offshore where the deep waters of the Elton Bottom will more than likely hold its share of money king mackerel.

Popular baits for tournament-size kingfish include blue runners and goggle eyes, which can be purchased early each morning of the event by contacting Lee's Live Bait at (561) 624-0089.

He has a truck with a large livewell, and he meets fishermen at various boat ramps, including the local Dee Dee Bartels public boat ramp.

Ribbonfish are long, knife-like baitfish that can also be purchased ahead of time at most bait shops; they are frozen and packaged in plastic sleeves.

However, if you simply wish to secure your own live baits, casting an eight-foot cast net over a large school of menhaden is also an excellent kingfish live bait tactic.

Live menhaden are typically fished with 20-pound fishing gear where a six-foot length of 30-pound coffee-colored wire is attached to the terminal fishing line using a small black barrel swivel.

Next, a No. 4 live bait hook is haywire wrapped to the tag end of the wire leader. A short piece of 40-pound coffee-colored wire is then haywire wrapped to the eye of the live bait hook.

Finally, a No. 4-4X treble hook is haywire wrapped to the tag end of the stinger wire. The length of the stinger wire is set so the stinger hook lays just behind the dorsal fin of the live menhaden.

Live menhaden are then slow trolled at 1.5-2 knots on the surface and deep with the aid of downriggers. However, one of the best live bait kingfish tactics includes slow trolling a live bait just behind the prop wash of your outboard motor.

Good luck in this week's GJKT, and be sure and sign up for the upcoming Fernandina Beach Fishing Rodeo. For information rodeo, visit www.fishnsfa.net.

Fourth redfish spot tournament Sept. 8

The Amelia Island Guides Association and Amelia Island Marina will co-host the fourth annual Redfish Spot Tournament Sept. 8 to benefit the Folds of Honor Foundation. The event will take place at the Amelia Island Marina, 251 Creekside Drive in Fernandina Beach, at the foot of the Shave Bridge.

The fishing tournament is open to all anglers fishing from powered boats, sail boats, kayak, canoe, the shore, bridges and piers, with 100 percent of the entry fees paid out in prize money. There will also be a youth division.

The captains meeting is Sept. 7.

The public is invited to listen to live music and watch the anglers present their fish for spot counting beginning at 2 p.m. on Saturday. There are also raffles, a silent auction and food.

Folds of Honor, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, is committed to the families of the armed services who have been disabled or killed while serving our great nation and to ensure no military family is left behind or forgotten.

Since its inception in 2007, Folds of Honor has awarded more than 16,000 scholarships to children and spouses of fallen or disabled military men and women in all 50 states. Make a donation to the Folds of Honor Foundation directly on their web site at www.foldsofhonor.org.

Visit www.ameliainland-guidesassociation.com. To donate to the raffle/silent auction or have a booth at the event, contact Capt. Scott Thompson at 430-6014.

Shark fishing workshop

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission is gathering public input on shore-based shark fishing. Share your thoughts on the future management of this fishery by attending a public workshop.

There will be a workshop at 6 p.m. Aug. 21 at Jacksonville University, J. Henry Gooding Building, Swisher Auditorium, 2800 University Blvd. N.

If you cannot attend an in-person meeting, submit comments online at www.MyFWC.com/SaltwaterComments.

FWC staff is working on an advance copy of the presentation and a virtual workshop that should be available online soon. Additional details and updates will be posted at www.MyFWC.com/Fishing.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Thursday, the 26th day of July, 2018, at 6:00 P.M. the Conditional Use and Variance Board of Nassau County will hold a public hearing at the Commission Chambers, James S. Page Governmental Complex, 96135 Nassau Place, Yulee, Florida, 32097 to consider an application for conditional use, E18-012. The Public is invited to attend the meeting concerning the following described property in Nassau County:

The location address of subject property of conditional use application E18-012: East SR 200

On the south side of SR 200 between Kutana Drive and Miner Road
Parcel Number: 42-2N-27-0000-0001-0060

The applicant is seeking: a conditional use permit pursuant to Section 16.03(F) of the Nassau County Land Development Code to operate an auto laundry/car wash in the Commercial General (CG) zoning district.

This application is filed by: Emily G. Pierce, Rogers Towers, P.A., 1301 Riverplace Blvd., Suite 1500, Jacksonville, FL 32207, applicant and agent for the owner.

The public is invited to be present and to be able to speak for or against or to ask questions. Copies of the application and copies of the criteria that are applicable to the application are available at the Department of Planning & Economic Opportunity located at 96161 Nassau Place, Yulee, FL 32097, or (904) 530-6300. Individuals who cannot attend the public hearing may provide written comments to this address or by e-mail to: skurtz@nassaucountyfla.com. Written comments become a part of the record and are subject to Florida Public Records law, Chapter 119.07(1)(a), F.S.

This hearing must be conducted as a quasi-judicial hearing. Any questions as to procedures may be obtained from the Department of Planning & Economic Opportunity. Interested parties should limit contact with Conditional Use and Variance Board Members and with County Commissioners on this topic to properly noticed public hearing or to written communication in care of the Nassau County Department of Planning & Economic Opportunity, 96161 Nassau Place, Yulee, FL 32097.

Persons with disabilities requiring accommodations in order to participate in this program or activity should contact (904) 530-6300 at least twenty-four (24) hours in advance to request such accommodation.

THE PUBLIC IS INVITED TO BE PRESENT AND BE HEARD. IF A PERSON DECIDES TO APPEAL ANY DECISION MADE BY THE BOARD, AGENCY OR COMMISSION WITH RESPECT TO ANY MATTER CONSIDERED AT SUCH MEETING OR HEARING HE/SHE WILL NEED A RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS AND FOR THAT PURPOSE, MAY NEED TO ENSURE THAT A VERBATIM RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS IS MADE, WHICH RECORD INCLUDES THE TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE UPON WHICH APPEAL IS TO BE BASED.

The Planning and Zoning Board and the Board of County Commissioners may continue hearings on this matter.

PUBLIC NOTICE

This public notice is to solicit Pre-Qualification applications from Bidders as per the State Requirements for Educational Facilities (SREF, 2014, Revised 11-14), Chapter 4.1 (1) and Nassau County School District Administrative Rule 7.68 as follows:

(1) Pre-qualification of General Contractors for Educational Facilities Construction. A Board shall pre-qualify contractors for a one-year period or for a specific project. The intent of this section is to prescribe uniform requirements for pre-qualification of contractors.

(a) Criteria. Contractors shall be pre-qualified by a board on the basis of the following criteria and such other criteria as the board may adopt.

1. Proof that the contractor holds a contractor's license, which authorizes the contractor to supervise the work within the scope of the construction project.

2. Evidence that the applicant has financial resources to start up and follow through on projects and to respond to damages in case of default as shown by written verification of bonding capacity equal to or exceeding the amount of any project for which the contractor seeks pre-qualification. The written verification must be submitted by a licensed surety company rated excellent (A- or better) in the current A.M. Best Guide and qualified to do business within the state. In the absence of such written verification, the board may require the applicant to submit any audited financial information necessary to evaluate an applicant's financial ability to perform the project and to respond to damages in the event of default.

3. Evidence of experience with construction techniques, trade standards, quality workmanship, project scheduling, cost control, management of projects, and building codes for similar or less cost or scope projects as shown by the successful completion within the past five (5) years of at least two (2) other projects of similar size.

4. Evidence of satisfactory resolution of claims filed by or against the contractor asserted on projects of the same or similar size within the five (5) years preceding the submission of the application. Any claim against a contractor shall be deemed to have been satisfactorily resolved if final judgment is rendered in favor of the contractor or any final judgment rendered against the contractor is satisfied within ninety (90) days of the date the judgment becomes final.

5. Type of work for which the contractor is licensed. Evidence of timely completion of projects of similar scope and size. Include any liquidated damages that may have been or could have been assessed on these projects.

One of my happy places – White Oak

Whenever I get a chance to visit White Oak, it makes me happy. Being outside, seeing endangered animals well cared for, and learning more about the difference White Oak is making in protecting endangered species makes for a very good day. For many, White Oak is the best-kept secret in Nassau County. You might be surprised to find giraffes, cheetahs, rhinos, zebras, all kinds of antelopes and gazelles and even a 100-pound cassowary bird, all hidden in the piney woods of North Florida. White Oak encompasses more than 16,000 acres of hardwood hammocks, pine forest, and tidal wetlands. As you travel north and approach the Florida-Georgia state line, you make a left turn on a dusty dirt road that leads you to a guard gate and entrance to White Oak.

I joined a group on one of the trolleys that tour White Oaks labyrinth of roads. We passed the generous enclosures that are home to a wide variety and petted with supervision a thick-skinned rhinoceros leaning against his enclosure fence. Surprisingly, rhinos are very gentle and we were in no danger.

White Oak focuses on the conservation of threatened and endangered species. It was originally developed by an eccentric but brilliant man, Howard Gilman, who had fierce passion for those things he loved. These passions included arts of all kinds and endangered animals. Gilman's family owned extensive acreage that offered an ideal environment for many of the world's endangered species. Through his foundation he not only worked to protect and save endangered species, he hosted a variety of national and international conferences and seminars at White Oak focusing on conservation and the environment, arts and culture and public policy. In 1990, a dance studio was built for Mikhail Baryshnikov's White Oak Dance Project and has served many other dance and theatrical projects.

In 2013, Mark and Kimbra Walter purchased White Oak and have built on the base created by the Gilman Foundation. Through their financial commitment and innovative strategies they have realized great success with some of the world's most endangered species. The Walters are committed to inspiring and teaching the next generation of conservationists. As their website shares, "White Oak promotes endeavors in conservation through innovative science, education, training, and collaborations. We are committed to providing conservation options for the species that need them the most. We invite you to explore our over 16,000 acre haven for people, animals and ideas, and join in our effort to save species."

The breeding programs have been very successful and have helped species closer to home. White Oak has worked with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission to bolster wild populations of critically endangered Florida panthers and the Mississippi sandhill cranes.

Yes, White Oak is a happy place for me and maybe for many others! There are a wide variety of activities offered from camps to tours. To find out more and support White Oak, go to their website at whiteoak-wildlife.org.

4-H celebrates award winners, receives donations

Nassau County 4-H recently hosted its annual awards banquet and celebrated the accomplishments of numerous youth and volunteers, according to a news release.

Youth recognized included Emma Norstrom as 4-H'er of the Year, Kody Barger as winner of the Silver Clover, and Project Book Award winners Kai Laurendine, Kee Laurendine, Emily Pilcher, and Raelin Tew. Volunteer award winners included Dawn Barger for Club Leader of the Year and TC Sweat for Volunteer of the Year.

Three clubs were awarded the highest level of excellence awards, the Emerald Standards of Excellence: Next Generation, Bugging Out and Young Riders. 4-H also honored its 2018 Outstanding Community Partner, Liberty Landscaping, for providing financial and in-kind donations to America's Youth SPIN Club and the 4-H camping program.

"We are extremely proud of the hard work put in by all of our youth and volunteers over the last year," the release states.

In addition to the awards ceremony, 4-H received a donation from Callahan Masonic Lodge No. 32 in support of its scholarship program. Masonic Lodge Treasurer George Spicer presented the donation to members of the Nassau County 4-H Council, the youth leadership team for 4-H.

"4-H is thankful to have community support such as the Masonic Lodge to make our programs accessible to all youth," the release also says.

If you're interested in learning more about Nassau County 4-H, call 530-6353 or visit the organization's Open House event set for 4:30-7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 23, at the Callahan Extension Office.

A firecracker of a recovery

Despite wearing a seatbelt, Tracy Alls was ejected from her Jeep in a crash during a snow storm in February in Illinois. Suffering many life-threatening injuries, including multiple lower back, neck, wrist and pelvic fractures, a cerebral hemorrhage and a punctured lung, she spent several weeks in ICU before being released to start physical therapy in May. She was transported to Yulee so she could rehab under the care of her sister, Stormy Kubatzke, who is a nurse, and Eric Kubatzke, a physical trainer who manages Advance Rehabilitation in Fernandina Beach. Five weeks later, Alls raised her arms in celebration after walking the Firecracker 5K at the Omni Amelia Island Plantation Resort with her nephew, Caden.

CATS ANGELS

Playful, sweet and loving describe Mouse. She's a 3-month-old pastel torti kitten that has soft gray, cream and peach fur. Mouse spends her day chasing toys, running through tunnels and joining in games with her kitten playmates. When that wears her out, you will find her napping in her favorite basket – sometimes curled up with friend. Stop by to meet Mouse and all the kittens she hangs out with at the Cats Angels Adoption Center. They have all been spayed or neutered, vaccinated, and micro-chipped and are anxious to find their new "forever" home and family. Our Adoption Center is open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday or you can call 321-2267 to make an appointment to visit.

Cats Angels is a volunteer-based organization helping the community since 2001 with low-cost spay and neuter services and TNVR (Trap-Neuter-Vaccinate-Return to Caregiver). We receive no local or federal government funding and operate solely on private donations, fund raising, grants and sales from our Thrift Store. Your support is appreciated. If you want to know more about how to support or donate to Cats Angels, visit www.catsangels.com and click on "How To Help" where you will find many ways to lend a hand and also be able read our current Meowing Messenger newsletter. Recycle your aluminum and cat food cans at the bins in our parking lot at 709 S. Eighth Street. We graciously accept donations for cat care and resale items at our Thrift Store. Information about our spay-neuter, TNVR and adoption programs is on our website. Cats Angels welcomes volunteers to help us care for the cats and as retail clerks in our Thrift Store. Our volunteer application is online or you can call or stop by Cats Angels to sign up. The Thrift Store at Cats Angels is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Cats Angels can help you get the animals in your care spayed or neutered. It will control the overpopulation of unwanted cats and dogs. Visit the Spay/Neuter TNVR page on our website or call us at 321-2267 for help with feral and community cats or information on low-cost spay-neuter services. NASSAU COUNTY ANIMAL SERVICES

This is Meera. Meera is a 3-year-old dog, reddish brown in color with a white chest. She currently weighs 44 pounds. Meera is a very friendly girl. She loves to go out for walks and be petted and loved on. She says she is better than a puppy because she is not so hyper and they are overrated! Meera has all her shots and is micro-chipped and spayed and – best of all – she is heartworm negative.

This handsome fellow's name is Puma. He is mostly black with a small white spot on his chest and a couple white spots on his belly. Puma is super sweet and did so well having his picture taken. He knows he is photogenic! Puma is 2 years old so he is still young enough to want to play but will also love to be held and petted. Come see him for yourself and you will fall in love with him too.

To see our great pets, come to the Nassau County Animal Services, located at 86078 License Road in Fernandina Beach, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday or 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call 530-6150. We are also at Petco every Saturday with pets for adoption.

NASSAU HUMANE SOCIETY

Knox is a sweet girl who came to us via special delivery: She and some of her friends were airlifted to our shelter by helicopter! She's already smiling about her new digs and eager to meet you and find her loving forever home.

She's a mixed-breed dog with a beautiful tan coat and white markings. We think she's about 5 years old. Our volunteers say she's quiet and affectionate and has a good temperament. They say she walks very nicely on her leash and does her business on her walks. She loves attention and adores tummy rubs! She likes to snuggle and will give you kisses on request. She's also good with other dogs. She needs someone who can handle a strong dog. She was a staff favorite at her former shelter, and if you come over and meet her, we think you'll see why! Please come see Knox!

Meet Catzilla, a very handsome tuxedo cat! Catzilla is less than 2 years old and has beautiful markings and pretty green eyes. He is a relaxed, happy cat and will come over to greet you with a mellow meow.

He does well with other cats in our cattery and also seems quite comfortable around cat-friendly dogs. He's super-sweet and loves to be petted. He got his name not because he's a "zilla," but because of his size – he's a large, laid-back guy who will give you big loving. Catzilla is neutered and vaccinated and has a microchip. If you're interested in seeing him, please call us at 321-1647 or visit NassauHumaneSociety.com to see if he's at our cattery or one of our remote adoption locations.

He is ready to meet his new family now!

Our adoption center at 639 Airport Road in Fernandina Beach now is open an hour later on Wednesdays so you can come over after work! We're open 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays; 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sundays. The center is closed Mondays.

You can see pictures and videos of our adoptable pets on our website at NassauHumaneSociety.com. You can contact us at 321-1647 or info@nassauhumane.org and follow us on Facebook. Come meet your new best friend!

New NHS director: animals often 'just dealt a bad hand'

ED HARDEE
Nassau Humane Society

The Nassau Humane Society has a new executive director. Jacki McDonald, who moved to Nassau County from Atlanta, Ga., said her top goal is "saving and adopting more pets into loving forever homes."

McDonald is a graduate of Emory University's Goizueta Business School and spent the first decade of her career in the business world, including national television and media marketing. She then decided to make a life change.

"I've always cared deeply about animals," she said. While volunteering during her corporate career, "I noticed many animal welfare groups did not have the resources that many business people take for granted – basics such as office supplies to print adoption forms. Rescue staffs were purchasing kitty litter or dog leashes out of their own pockets. I thought I could use my marketing and sponsorship skills to help get more resources and attention for animals in need."

And so she entered the world of animal rescue full-time. She has worked with a large metro animal control, DeKalb County Animal Services; with one of Georgia's oldest no-kill shelters, PAWS Atlanta; and most recently as executive director of the Georgia SPCA. She has led fundraising efforts, matched future pet parents with the perfect dog or cat, and helped save literally thousands of homeless pets' lives.

In addition to pet rescue and adoption, McDonald said her goals at NHS include ensuring that all animals are treated with respect and proper care. She also wants to focus on education regarding issues such as the importance of spaying or neutering pets and planning for your pet after you are gone.

She assumed her new role at NHS in June. Everywhere she goes in her "extremely welcoming" new community, she said, she seems to make a new friend. "As for NHS, the animals are so, so lucky to have this beautiful facility and caring staff," she said.

Joining McDonald in her move from Atlanta is her beloved rescue dog, Fizzle. "He brightens my life," she said. "I could honestly write a book on the benefits of pet ownership. You could have the most exhausting day and come home to your dog or cat, and the stress immediately melts away. They look at you as if you hung the moon – especially rescue pets. I truly believe in my soul that rescue animals know that you saved them. It's a bond like no other."

She pointed out that most rescue animals don't come from a bad background or have abuse in their past. "Often they just were dealt a bad hand," she said. "Their previous humans may have had a baby or moved or had some other life change and decided a pet didn't fit into their lifestyle anymore. Our NHS pets are often house-trained already and easily adjust to their new family, and sometimes even purebred pets are available at shelters!"

"We always welcome everyone to get involved – through volunteering at the Adoption Center, socializing our cats, walking our dogs, assisting with landscaping, helping at our community dog park, or over at our wonderful resale shops, Second Chance and the Closet. Even if you only have a couple hours a week or month, come on over," McDonald said.

More than 1,000 pets were adopted last year through NHS, a not-for-profit group whose facility meets the criteria of a "no-kill" shelter. NHS also provides animal control services within the city of Fernandina Beach under a contract with the city and transports animals from overcrowded shelters to help them find forever homes. More information about adoption and volunteering at NHS can be found at NassauHumaneSociety.com or "simply pop in during business hours" at the NHS Adoption Center, located at 639 Airport Road in Fernandina Beach.

FINAL PERFORMANCES OF 'CURIOUS INCIDENT'

SUBMITTED

The final performances of The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time at Amelia Musical Playhouse will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. This production of a play-within-a-play follows Christopher, whose discovery of the body of his neighbor's beloved dog leads him on an important mission to London. This show is rated PG-13 and features Karen Marie Hourigan, Joseph Woodlief, Hannah James, Gillian Johnson, Joseph Stearman, Susan Joline, Karen Harper King, Sam Forbes, Frank O'Donnell and David Watson. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students and available online at ameliamusicalplayhouse.com or by phone at 277-3455.

'An Act of God' opens Friday at ACT

LINDA MCCLANE
Amelia Community Theatre

Amelia Community Theatre will present the irreverent comedy An Act of God beginning this weekend at its Studio 209 stage located at 209 Cedar St. in Fernandina Beach.

In this adult comedy, God has chosen to appear at a theatre, in the human form of a local actor, to address the audience on the many misconceptions about the way He thinks and works. God says, "Yeah, I have grown weary of the Ten Commandments in exactly the same way that Don McLean has grown weary of 'American Pie.'" Assisted by the angels Gabriel and Michael, God reveals a new, improved set of commandments.

The concept for the show began as a series of tweets by God, as written by successful comedy writer and playwright David Javerbaum. That effort led to a book and then the 2015 Broadway play that starred Jim Parsons and, later in 2016, Sean Hayes. ACT's cast includes Sam Cobean, Scott Campbell and Toni D'Amico.

An Act of God is directed by Laura Swaim and carries a suggested R rating, based on content. It's funny and often poignant, as God chastises humankind for using Him to further its own plans.

The show is sponsored by Amelia Island Escape Rooms.

Showtimes are 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 20-21, and July 26-28 and 2 p.m. July 22.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students through college and available at 261-6749 and AmeliaCommunityTheatre.org.

'Purrfect Cats'

Cats Angels has announced it is accepting submissions for its 2019 "Purrfect Cats of Cats Angels" calendar. Photos will be accepted through Aug. 31. Members of the Island Art Association will judge the submissions, and the winning photo will earn the coveted calendar cover shot. Four runners-up will have a full page in the calendar. Photos should be of a cat rescued through Cats Angels, but even if you don't have a Cats Angels cat, there are plenty of furry faces in the Cats Angels Adoption Center waiting for their time in the limelight! Contest information and submission forms can be found on the counter at the adoption center. Cats Angels is also looking for businesses and sponsors to help defray the cost of printing the calendar.

If you would like to be a sponsor, contact Cats Angels at 321-2267 or catsangels@catsangels.com.
