County Commission Expands Its Search For Mining Expert

LAZARO ALEMAN

Commissioners have decided to expand the search for a mining expert to advise them on how best to operate the county-owned rock mine near Goose Pasture.

The decision — made for the sake of procedural correctness and to placate the concerns of Commissioner Betsy Barfield — left at least one citizen questioning if the process wasn't weighed toward favoring one individual.

County Coordinator Roy Schleicher informed the Jefferson County Commission on Thursday evening, June 16, that the decision to advertise for the job had followed a meeting be-

COUNTY MAN ARRESTED FOR CULTIVATION OF MARIJUANA

A county man was arrested last week and charged with cultivation of marijuana after deputies found the area where the marijuana was growing and observing the suspect tending to the plants.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office reported that on June 14 the Sheriff's Office received information in reference to marijuana being cultivated at 1525 South Jefferson Street. Investigator Kevin Sears, Deputy Kevin Tharpe and Investigator Logan Wilcox located the marijuana plants and conducted surveillance on it.

During the surveillance deputies learned that a white male they identified as Donald Glynn Barton, 49, of Jefferson County, was growing marijuana plants in or near a garden behind a residence located at the address. They also learned that Barton would check on the marijuana plants on most days between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

On June 21 at approximately 6 p.m., deputies observed Barton walk into the garden near about seven two to six-foot marijuana plants, looked around, bent down, did something with his hands, stood up and looked

SCHOOL BOARD REJECTS SECOND CHOICE FOR JCHMS PRINCIPAL DECISION CAUSES QUITE A STIR

LAZARO ALEMAN

For the second time in as many weeks, the Jefferson County School Board on Thursday, June 23, dealt School Superintendent Bill Brumfield another blow, narrowly rejecting his latest pick for principal of Jefferson County Middle High School (JCMHS).

In the process, board members subjected candidate Loietta Holmes to a bruising interview, hurled pointed remarks at each other, and continued to engage in heated exchanges amongst themselves and with members of the public at the conclusion of the generally emotional meeting, which ended unceremoniously without the typical adjournment vote.

"You have three board members who don't care about education or our children," School Board Member Shirley Washington loudly proclaimed right after the 3-2 vote and went on loudly declaring as she exited the boardroom.

Washington was referring to colleagues Marianne Arbulu, Charles Boland and Ed Vollertsen, all three of whom voted against the approval of Holmes as the new principal at JCMHS.

No one leaving the meeting was happy — not Holmes, not the citizens and parents who attended, not the School Board members, not Assistant Superintendent Dr. Kelvin Norton and other administrators, and not Brumfield. Sad to say, the proceeding largely accentuated and exacted

MAY IS NINTH DRIEST MONTH IN 79 YEARS

LAZARO ALEMAN
ECB Publishing
Senior Staff Writer

It will probably come as no surprise to many that May was an unusually dry and hot month. Indeed, it was the ninth driest May since 1932 when the Suwannee River Water Management District (SRWMD) began keeping such records.

This according to the latest hydrologic conditions report released by the SRWMD on June 7. The report indicates that the average rainfall in May was 1.35 inches, which represents 39 percent of the historical May average of 3.32 inches.

Meanwhile, the average 12-month deficit increased to 5.4 inches; and "deficits nearing 25 inches persisted in the upper Aucilla, Suwannee and Santa Fe basins".

"Localized areas along the coast saw almost no rain, while parts of Union, Bradford, and Alachua counties had near normal totals," the report states.

The report shows Jefferson County received 1.25 inches of rainfall in May, compared with the May average of 5.88 inches. The county has received 11.23 inches of rainfall during the last three months and 44.28 inches during the last 12 months.

Madison County, meanwhile, received 1.39 inches in May, compared with the May average of 4.73 inches. Madison County has received 10.60 inches during the last three months and 47.30 inches during the last 12 months.

River levels for the month were generally low and near record lows in some instances. Meanwhile, levels at 16 monitored lakes fell an average of five inches, putting all at below their historical average levels. And groundwater levels dropped 92 percent in the monitored wells of the upper Floridian Aquifer, meaning that each dropped an average of three inches since April, according to the report.

The report notes that the U.S. Geological Survey categorizes the Suwannee River and its tributaries as being in severe hydrologic drought, and other basins in the district as being below normal.

Letters To The Editor

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR ARE TYPED WORD FOR WORD, COMMA FOR COMMA, AS SENT TO THIS NEWSPAPER.

To The Taxpayers Of District 3

Thank you for choosing me to be the recipient of a $500 scholarship. I am very happy to have been selected as such. I will be going to college in August and the scholarship is a massive boon to me.

The course I will be taking is Criminal Justice, and it will take me a full two years to complete. Upon completion, I will have my Associates degree.

By awarding me this scholarship, my finances have been freed up, and the load lightened. Your generosity is highly appreciated, and will not go to waste.

Sincerely,
Joseph W. Goldfarb,

“It’s Just A Dog”

To whom it may concern, I have written your paper once before in an effort to recognize and express appreciation for all the warm hearted articles that your paper publishes on behalf of the critters who cannot speak for themselves. My barn partner lives in Jefferson County, and she saves your paper for me to read, because I love it so. On Wednesday, May 25, Fran Hunt wrote a beautiful article. It was very obvious that she had her heart in every word she wrote and it is my prayer that all those who read what she wrote will be moved enough to make a difference in the life of those creatures who depend on us for love and care. My Husband and I have adopted six dogs and nine cats (several from JCHS) and everyday they are a blessing in our life! I pray that someday there will be no more homeless, abused, neglected, abandoned or suffering critters. Till then, thank everyone at Monticello News for getting the word out; for educating people to the need, and putting heart behind the words!

From my heart,
Becky W. McNeill

“It’s just a dog”, they say to me,
But how could they know or how could they see?
This dog is an extension of my heart and my soul,
The communication between us speaks volumes untold.

“It’s just a dog”, they say to me,
But how could they know or how could they see?
It’s a true friend and companion as no human can be,
With unconditional love and an ability to see,
All that is good in someone like me.

“Its just a dog”, they say to me,
But how could they know or how could they see?
Those eyes when they see me, a tail wagging strong,
True signs of their devotion and faith that I’ll let nothing go wrong.

It's love and it's trust,
friendship and care.
Sharing and devotion for those that dare.
At times it's hard, and quite expensive too,
But the bond that is shared defines kinship anew!

The Jefferson County Bailar Public Library recently held a ribbon cutting ceremony to introduce the public to its new Computer Lab. Library staff offered a brief program, with an enjoyable skit, an introduction of local dignitaries and a welcome to those in attendance.

Residents will be able to access the lab to focus on professional development and it will be a tool for better education programs.

The lab will be open on a scheduled basis, to people who are attending school online, filling out job applications, applying for benefits and services, taking exams and the like. There will be a part-time attendant to handle scheduling, teach classes and provide assistance.

AROUND JEFFERSON COUNTY

Principal

erbated the divisiveness among board members and played into the politics of race. And it overall made for another disturbing display of a lack of civility and decorum on the part of public officials.

The recommendation of Holmes for the JCMHS principalship followed the board's June 9 rejection of Brumfield's first choice, Dr. Jonathan Prince, of Palm Beach County. Featuring prominently among the board's reasons for rejecting Prince was his misuse of a school district purchase card, which resulted in a deferred prosecution agreement with the Palm Beach County State Attorney's office, his demotion from principal to assistant principal for an 18-month period, and a prohibition that he not deal with non-personal finances for a three-year period.

Holmes, it turned out, also had skeletons in her closet, to the degree that she had written four bad checks when she was a 19-year-old student in college. More importantly, at least from some School Board members' point of view, Holmes lacked experience as principal or assistant principal, although she had a teaching background and currently headed a reading and writing program at the Florida Department of Education (FDOE).

Prompted by Washington's questioning, Holmes initially appeared to impress the board with her recital of her accomplishments; her plans and vision for JCMHS, if selected principal; her people skills; and the fact that she was familiar with JCMHS and its students, having coordinated a coaching program for reading and writing at the school during the last two years.

Holmes identified, among the school's problems, a sense of uncertainty and deflated morale on the part of the staff and the students alike, stemming from the frequent turnovers at the leadership level; the lack of a clear vision and objectives; and the lack of consistent, applied standards.

She identified, among the strengths and qualities that she would bring to the table, a sense of stability; an understanding of rural communities, having grown up in rural Suwannee County; a dedication to academic excellence; and a track record of improved reading and writing scores at the various schools where she coordinated a coaching program.

She said one of her major initiatives would be to establish a school climate that allowed for a safe, orderly environment where learning could take place. She would also be adamant about communicating with parents and having the staff also communicate with the parents, she said. Collaboration was critical, Holmes said, and she vowed to tap into teachers' cumulative wisdom and involve them in the formulation of policies and procedures for the school.

Washington and School Board Member Sandra Saunders said they heard Holmes articulate exactly what they believed the kids, the school and the community needed and wanted. They also believed that with Holmes' FDOE background, she could act as a liaison and facilitate the district's dealings with the state agency, a point that Holmes affirmed.

"I have relationships and capabilities within the department that would help me negotiate issues with the FDOE," she said.

Holmes conceded that her lack of experience as a principal or assistant principal represented a concern that she herself would entertain if she were a School Board member. But she was confidence of her ability to perform, and failure was simply not, nor had it ever been, an option for her, she said.

Saunders and Washington were enthusiastic in their support of Holmes. Washington, for example, noted that when she had started out as a teacher, she also had lacked experience. But the principal had been willing to give her a chance, she said. And she had risen to the occasion and proven herself a good teacher, she said. And so would Holmes, if given the chance, she argued.

Saunders, the only School Board member with a child at JCMHS, is, by her own words, well attuned to the school's inner workings and dynamics, as she works at the school. She also wholeheartedly supported Holmes.

"I hear you say what we need in this community," Saunders said to Holmes.

Arbulu said she agreed with Holmes' expressed sentiments about the school, but she frankly had concerns about the latter's lack of management, budgetary and other such experiences. She challenged Holmes to provide a specific and relevant example from her past employments that demonstrated her ability to handle the principalship. Arbulu also asked Holmes to explain why the reading and writing scores at JCHMS hadn't improved as they had improved in other schools where Holmes coordinated reading and writing programs?

Holmes attributed the poor showings at JCMHS to a high turnover of reading and writing teachers, in combination with the retention of other teachers who should have been replaced. Which teachers she would replace if she became principal, she added.

Vollertsen returned to Holmes' lack of experience as a principal. To which concern Holmes responded that she was certified at all levels and thus qualified to be a principal.

Vollertsen next raised the issue of Holmes pleading no contest to uttering or writing false checks in college, a written explanation of which incident Holmes had submitted with her application.

Saunders said the particular issue should be left alone, given that Holmes had provided a written explanation. She had a problem with a board member "trying to make a biggy out of this," Saunders said. She noted that Holmes had been 19 at the time of the incident and that it had involved a personal account. Yet, some on the board apparently weren't concerned about another candidate who had been placed on three-year probation for misusing school district funds, Saunders said.

And as for assigning fault to Holmes for the poor reading and writing scores at JCMHS, the problem hadn't just materialized overnight, Saunders said.

"They (scores) have been like that for years," she said. "Reading is a problem at our school. We have had reading counselors who knew it what their responsibility to improve the reading. We should have been concerned about this for years. We had principals in place that should have been concerned about it."

Arbulu agreed the problem had long existed. Her point, she said, was not to denigrate Holmes but rather to point out that if the latter was going to take credit for the schools she had helped improved, she also had to be willing to take responsibility for those schools that hadn't improved.

School Board

Charles Boland took strong exception to Saunders' statement that the uttering incident should not be raised.

"Do we have a double standard for asking questions?" Boland asked vehemently. "I'm not supposed to ask these questions? All I've gotten is this application form showing four yeses on 15 questions."

Washington interrupted to demand that everyone on the board take a minute and examine his or her "own teenage closet".

"Do we have anything we can pull out that we wouldn't want pulled out?" Washington asked. "I want the board to be quiet for a minute and take a search over your life."

She herself had overdrawn her bank account when she had been young and inexperienced in financial matters, she said.

"Are you going to penalize me in my career because I did this?" Washington asked. "She (Holmes) stole no money, but we had someone who took school money and that was okay seeming. So we do have a double standard. We're focusing on everything but the children. If we're not focused on the children, we don't need to be on this board. We're looking at petty stuff. Think about the children. Think about the children. Think about the children."

Boland challenged that Brumfield had never answered the question of whether Holmes was qualified for the job; nor had the superintendent adequately explained the uttering incident, he said.

Brumfield disagreed.

"I called each board member individually and told you about the application and pointed out that this might be a concern," Brumfield said, speaking of the uttering incident.

Vollertsen returned to Prince, whom he described as an experienced principal with a doctorate and a proven track record at turning around failing schools and who had essentially been "thrown under the bus" for political reasons in his home districts.

Vollertsen referred to a letter written by Prince's former superintendent to the FDOE early in the current year. In the letter, the superintendent — Dr. Art Johnson — had expressed his intention to restore Prince to a principalship in Palm Beach County, a decision the FDOE affirmed.

But Washington gleefully pointed out that subsequent to the FDOE's affirmation memo, Johnson himself had run afoul of the Palm Beach County School Board and the latter had removed him from the appointed office. Her point, Washington said, was that Johnson was no one to put great faith in. As for Prince, the latter had never been able to verify his alleged achievements to her satisfaction, she said.

"Anything looks good on paper, but if you can't tell me what you did, it's no good," Washington said.

And so went the discussion, ever downhill. Washington said she believed some on the board purposely wanted to see the school fail. How many board members actually had children in the school, she asked, a remark that Boland took as being directed at him, given his daughter attends Aucilla Christian Academy.

"I know that was directed at me," he said. Saunders, meanwhile, grew passionate, as the issue affected her both as a parent and as a board member, she said. Like all parents, she wanted what was best for her daughter, Saunders said. Which was why she was so intimately involved with the school, she said. She had followed her daughter through elementary school and into the high school to ensure the latter did her best. She had a stake in the issue, Saunders said. She knew what was happening at the school — both the good and the bad.

She talked to the kids. She saw how demoralized they were because of the lack of leadership and the constant instability.

She had no tolerance for negativity, Saunders said. And she had no patience for people who complained about the school but didn't do anything to help improve it. If a person wasn't part of the solution, then that the person was part of the problem, she said.

"I know the needs of the children," Saunders said passionately. "What I'm hearing her (Holmes) say is what the board and the community has been asking for. It's what we need and want. If what she's bringing is not what we want, what then is that we want? If this is not what we're looking for, what then is it that we're looking for? I make a motion to accept the recommendation of Loietta Holmes for principal."

The response from the rest of the board was silence.

Forgetting or simply ignoring parliamentary procedures in her frustration, Washington herself seconded the motion without bothering to temporarily relinquish the chairmanship — a minor but telling point of order. Washington then called for a vote, and immediately upon the 3-2 result, she stood and the board disbanded absent protocol, board member engaging in separate debates with each other and members of the public.

It was all Sheriff Deputy O.J. Sloan could do to monitor the situation and ensure the strong discussions didn't escalate to the point of a physical confrontation.

The CIGP is one of three programs that the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) administers to help counties with road improvement projects. The other two are the Small County Road Assistance Program (SCRAP) and the Small County Outreach Program (SCOP). Commissioners adopted the resolution accepting the Watermill Road project at the request of Clerk Kirk Reams.

"We applied for this funding in 2009," Reams said. "Actually, we applied for several projects and the FDOT gave us $500,000 for Watermill Road."

In conjunction with the adoption of the resolution accepting the Watermill Road project, the commission also approved a budget amendment that allows for the expenditure of a combined $2,896,445 for three upcoming road improvement projects.

Besides the $500,000 for the Watermill Road, the other two projects are the resurfacing of Whitehouse Road from SR-59 to the Leon County line, $922,077; and the resurfacing and widening of the Waukeenah Highway from SR-50 at Wacissa to U.S. 27 at Waukeenah, $1,474,368.

The reason for the budget amendments is that, as with most FDOT road assistance funding, counties must expend the money upfront and then get reimbursed.

"This is an accounting cleanup recognizing that the program may take place during this year," Reams said of the budget amendment. "This will give us the budgetary authority to expend these funds during the year."

The SRWMD continues its phase-one water shortage advisory urging voluntary reduction of water consumption. It reminds homeowners and others whose water use the district doesn't regulate via a permit that they are required to limit landscape irrigation to two days per week between March and October.

The district compiles the hydrologic conditions report using water resource data collected from radar-derived rainfall estimates, groundwater and surface water levels, and river flows, among other variables.

The district encompasses all or parts of 15 counties in north-central Florida, including Madison County and the eastern half of Jefferson County.

THANK YOU

Citizens of Monticello

It has been four years since you gave me the honor of letting me serve on the City Council of our great city. With the deepest sense of humility, I would like to express my thanks for the faith that you have put in my abilities, and I will continue to work every day for the benefit of the City of Monticello and all its citizens. I look forward to tackling the challenges we face ahead to make Monticello a better place for its future generations. Sincerely Yours

Longtime resident and Jefferson County historian Dee Counts was guest speaker at the June 22 meeting of the Monticello Kiwanis. She was invited to share with the membership a bit of Jefferson County history...specifically involving the five law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty, back to the mid 1800's.

Counts is the well-known author of "Familiar Faces and Quiet Places: A Pictorial and Narrative History of Jefferson County, Florida" by Derylene Delp Counts 2005. She is an active member of the local Historical Society and is very well versed on the history of local people and sites. She makes herself available to speak to groups and organizations whenever asked.

Kiwanis meetings are held at noon on Wednesdays at the Jefferson Country Club. For more information about this group and its events, contact President Jessica Corley at 850-997-2591.

JES DRESS CODE

DEBBIE SNAPP
*ECB Publishing
Staff Writer*

Jefferson Elementary School Principal Valarie Thompson announces the student dress code that will be enforced this 2011-2012 School Term. Please adhere to the guide below as you begin selecting school clothing for your child. This information will be provided on the school website, in the newspaper and by mail to allow parents/guardians to make informed decisions about their child's school clothes. Listed below is the approved wear for the 2011-2012 school term:

Tops should be a solid color, short or long sleeved polo shirt with collar. Bottoms should be solid color khaki pants or jeans with no holes or tears and worn with a belt at the waist. Shorts and skirts must be knee length, to the kneecap. Shoes should be secured to the feet and have a protective sole. There should be no flip-flops, shower shoes, sandals, bare feet, bedroom shoes, slippers, open toe shoes or shoes with spiked heels, wheels or cleats. Shoes must also cover the feet and must not be a hazard to the wearer or others. Black shoes tend to stay cleaner because students participate in outside activities.

Fridays are School Spirit Day; everyone is expected to wear a school spirit shirt. Additional shirts may be purchased from the main office as needed.

Last school year went great and many goals were accomplished. This year, JES will build on its successes to achieve even greater success, and will, with continued support and encouragement. Thompson and the JES staff are looking forward to seeing the students in the aforementioned dress code, on the first day of school, Monday, August 22.

In Search Of The USA

By: Cleo Kelly

It began with a three-person discussion and a shopping list. The talk was on unemployment, high cost of living and how to make a difference. The businessman said "we need to block all import sales," the accountant asked "what we would buy if we did" and the grandmother looked at her shopping list and wondered "how she could make a difference." The list was of simple needs: paper supplies, cotton dishcloths and curtain hardware. The local Wal-Mart would have all those.

The discussion of the morning resounded through her head as she pulled into the parking lot and she determined to buy only things made in the USA. Here in the sunny south, surrounded with cotton fields, replacement of her threadbare dishcloths would be the easiest thing to purchase. The big cart went first to household goods and a wall of lovely cotton. There were netted scrubbers, twilled squares of cloth, ribbed towels in an array of colors. Turning them over to look for the country they were milled in offered a different array of choices. The legends read India, Bangladesh, China and Pakistan. She stepped back! Wasn't Pakistan that country that wanted her own soldier son dead? She searched again through every rack but not a

City of Monticello 2010 Annual Drinking Water Quality Report

We're pleased to present to you this year's Annual Water Quality Report. This report is designed to inform you about the quality water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. Our water source is ground water from three wells. The wells draw from the Floridan Aquifer. Because of the excellent quality of our water, the only treatment required is chlorine for disinfection purposes.

In 2009 the Department of Environmental Protection performed a Source Water Assessment on our system. The assessment was conducted to provide information about any potential sources of contamination in the vicinity of our wells. There are 16 potential sources of contamination identified for this system with moderate susceptibility levels. The assessment results are available on the FDEP Source Water Assessment and Protection Program website at www.dep.state.fl.us/swapp or they can be obtained from Steve Wingate at 850-294-8329.

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Steve Wingate at 850-294-8329. We encourage our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. They are held on the first Tuesday of every month at the City Hall at 7 pm.

The City of Monticello routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws, rules, and regulations. Except where indicated otherwise, this report is based on the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1 to December 31, 2010. Data obtained before January 1, 2010, and presented in this report are from the most recent testing done in accordance with the laws, rules, and regulations.

In the table below, you may find unfamiliar terms and abbreviations. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Maximum Contaminant Level or MCL: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal or MCLG: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.

Initial Distribution System Evaluation (IDSE): An important part of the Stage 2 Disinfection Byproducts Rule (DBPR). The IDSE is a one-time study conducted by water systems to identify distribution system locations with high concentrations of trihalomethanes (THMs) and haloacetic acids (HAAs). Water systems will use results from the IDSE, in conjunction with their Stage 1 DBPR compliance monitoring data, to select compliance monitoring locations for the Stage 2 DBPR.

Maximum residual disinfectant level or MRDL: The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum residual disinfectant level goal or MRDLG: The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

"ND" means not detected and indicates that the substance was not found by laboratory analysis.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter (µg/l): one part by weight of analyte to 1 billion parts by weight of the water sample.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l): one part by weight of analyte to 1 million parts by weight of the water sample.

Picocurie per liter (pCi/L): measure of the radioactivity in water.

The City of Monticello constantly monitors for various contaminants in the water supply to meet all regulatory requirements. If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. City of Monticello is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

(A) Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife.

(B) Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming.

(C) Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff, and residential uses.

(D) Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

(E) Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.

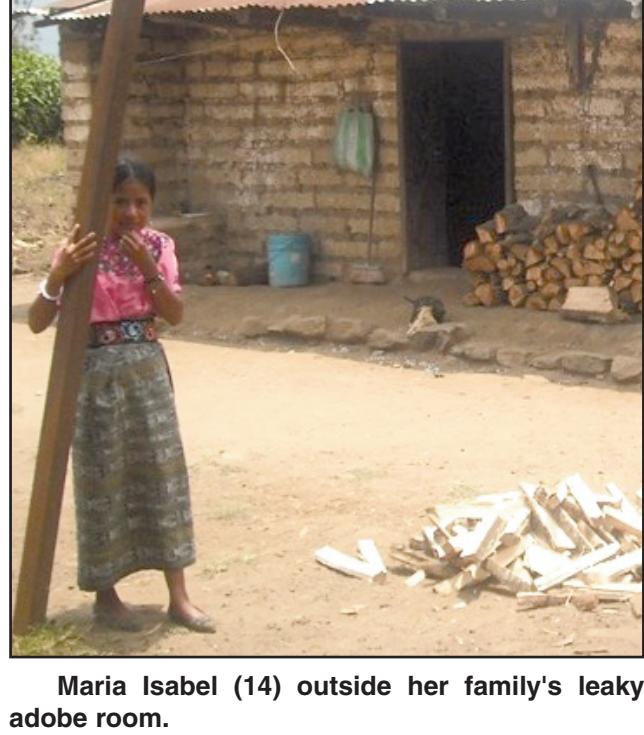

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations, which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which must provide the same protection for public health.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

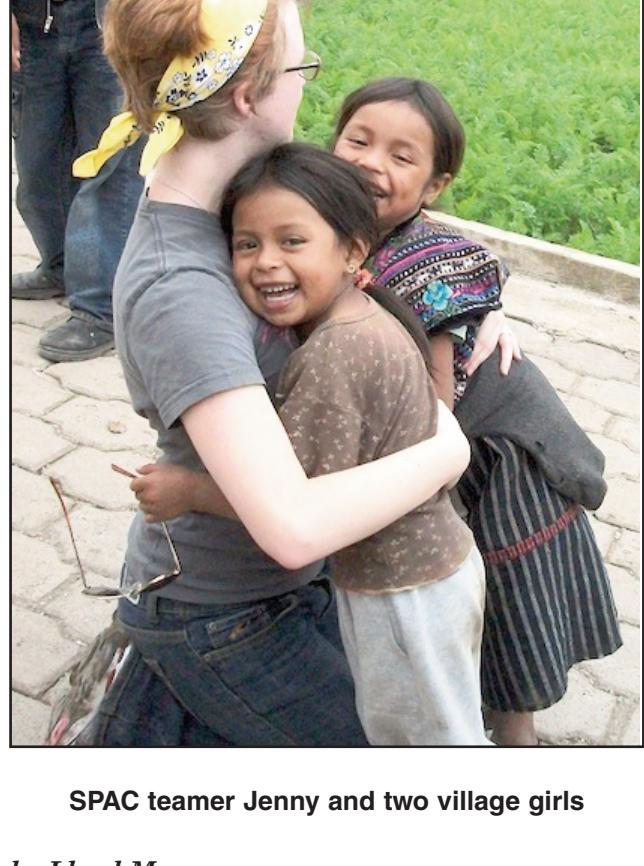

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

"We at City of Monticello work around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap," said Steve Wingate. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life and our children's future.

Refreshings

Maria Isabel (14) outside her family's leaky adobe room.

SPAC teamer Jenny and two village girls

by Lloyd Monroe

You sent abundant rain, O God, to refresh... Psalm 68:9 (NLT) The generous will prosper; those who refresh others will themselves be refreshed. Proverbs 11:25 (NLT)

Melanie and I left hot, dry North Florida and returned to Guatemala's cool and wet Western Highlands mid-month. Many folks don't know that, largely because of Panajachel's mile-high altitude, our temperatures are spring-like all year long (high's in the 70's, low's in the 60's). We have neither air conditioning nor heater in our house!

While returning to Panajachel's delightful climate indeed refreshed us, generous and giving folks in the states likewise refreshed our spirits and further empowered the work of Porch de Salomon; both as we visited up there and now "down here." Such people, in turn, allow Porch de Salomon to be generous toward and refresh many here: single-mother indigenous families, poor or physically challenged children, the hopeless and many others who cross our ministry's path. Our hope and prayer is that you will feel and sense God's constant refreshing in your lives.

Some current refreshings:

*Team St. Peter's Anglican Youth, the first of six-straight short-term teams, arrived three days after we did, 19 strong. They are funding and building Juana Toc family's house in Chuaxic, plastering parsonage walls in San Pablo La Laguna and debutting the Semillitas Bible school program in that latter village. Team Killearn UMC arrived June 25 to conduct ten free village medical clinics.

*We are enjoying getting to know our three college-age summer mission interns: Christy Steffy, Susanna Zorn and Megan Robbins. New friend Steve Metz left the world of Tallahassee lobbying to experience Porch work up-close for a week; another new friend, Linda Duvernois, has moved from Boone, NC, to volunteer with us. Like old friend Dusty Turner (who now plays keyboard on the Queen Elizabeth for a living but joined our band again for a week), all these people bring new stuff and spirit to our mix.

*Our seventh 2011 new house project will be for Maria Asuncion and her six children in Chuaxic; we break ground June 25. Maria's husband deserted the family years ago; his bad actions made things very difficult for the family in the village. They are fearful, timid, and malnourished and mostly keep to their crumbling old adobe room. Daughter Maria Isabel's (14) quit school because of her untreated epilepsy. She has now visited a specialist and receives medicine as part of Porch's medical outreach.

We thank so many for refreshing Porch so that we can refresh families like this.

The bible tells how the Jews took up stones to throw at Jesus because He claimed to be the Son of God. But Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple through the midst of them, and passed by them (St. John 8:59). This lesson was taken, and paraphrased, from verses found in St. John 9:1-41, in which Jesus passed by a man who was blind from birth. Therefore, the man's blindness was considered to be a permanent disability in which he would never be able to see the light, and would forever live in total darkness. Due to his blindness, the man relied on what he heard or felt to find his way around. He was also a beggar who was laid near the temple to ask for handouts. The Jewish leaders taught that poverty, sickness, bad luck, and suffering were punishment for those who had committed sin. So when the disciples saw the blind man, they asked Jesus if this man or his parent's sins caused his blindness. Jesus told his disciples the man's blindness was neither caused by his sins nor his parent's sins. However, Jesus did not mean the man or his parents were sinless, but that the man was purposely born blind for God's glory, and for His Son to be glorified by the manifesting of His divine work. Jesus also knew His time on earth was drawing nigh, and He had to fulfill His purpose by doing His Father's Will; while He yet lived. Jesus also told his disciples, "As long as He was in the world, He was the light of the world." Then Jesus spat on the ground and made a ball of clay from the spittle. He took the clay and anointed the blind man's eyes, and told him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam; which means, "Sent." Obediently, the blind man went to the pool and washed, and immediately he could see clearly, both spiritually and physically. The people could not believe the man who was born blind and sat and begged for handouts could now see clearly. When they asked the man how his eyes were opened, he told them the details of how a man called "Jesus" had opened his eyes. Because Jesus healed the blind man on the Sabbath Day, some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not of God because He keepeth not the Sabbath day," the holy day. So others asked the Pharisees: "How can a man that does such miracles be a sinner?" The man's parents feared the Jews: for the Jews had already agreed if man confessed that Jesus was Christ, he should be put out of the synagogue; which was an awful punishment to a Jew. Therefore, his parents said, "We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind, but we don't know how he now seeth, or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; he shall speak for himself." They questioned the man again about how Jesus had opened his eyes; and said Jesus was a sinner. So the man answered them and said: "Whether he be a sinner or not, I know I was blind now I see." He also said: "Since the world began it was not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind. Now we know that God heareth not sinners; but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth His will, him he heareth. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing." It made the Pharisees angry that this man now spoke with a better knowledge of the scriptures and was able to teach them. So they cast him out of the synagogue. Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he found him, Jesus said to him, "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" The man answered Jesus and said "who is he Lord that I might believe on him?" And Jesus said, "Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee." The man said, Lord, I believe; and he openly worshipped the Lord. The Pharisees saw proof of the power of Jesus, but they still refused to believe in Him. Their spiritual blindness resulted from their jealousy and envy of the popularity Jesus received from changing the lives of the people He healed. The Pharisees were of age and morally responsible for their decision to remain in their sins. They were aware of their spiritual blindness, but they chose to remain in darkness.

God has a purpose for your life that was planned before you were born. As it was with the Pharisees, many people still believe that afflictions result from a person's sins or generational curses inherited from the sins of their parents. But Jesus made it clear that it does not mean that everyone who suffers has committed sin. The truth is, sometimes suffering even comes with righteous living. Christ never sinned yet His purpose on earth was to suffer so that we would be redeemed from sin. In John 11:4, when Jesus heard Lazarus was sick, He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby." However, Satan will launch an attack on your mind by using the influence of others who walk in darkness, to convince you that your suffering is from your sins. Satan will also make you think your condition is incurable and a permanent disability. Whatever problems you are faced with today, Jesus knows, and you have something to live for. The Lord knows the afflictions you are having, and with your afflictions, He has anointed and appointed you for a special task. Your blindness may be due to an illness that has left you crippled and unable to get around on your own abilities. You may be incarcerated and required to live in constant darkness that make you feel alone. Your blindness may have resulted from the loss of a love one, a divorce, or a bad relationship. Your blindness may be due to a financial need. No matter how long you have been spiritually blind, and unable to see or feel your way out of darkness, know that you have something to live for. Your affliction is just a set-up for God to get the glory out of your life. In due time, Jesus will show up to brighten up your day, and lead you to the light. Psalm 119:105 says, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." But you must be in the right place and have the right spiritual mind to receive Him when He comes. No matter what you have done, Jesus will touch you where you need healing, and cleanse you for His use. Your faith in Christ will be manifested when you obey His commandments, even if what He sends you to do seem strange. When you have developed a personal relationship with Christ, you will not fear what man can do to you. Even if they threaten to cast you out of the church, keep telling the world what the Lord has done for you. You must have Holy boldness in order to please Christ. God's process of taking you through trials is to strengthen and prepare you for the next level. As true believers of Christ, you will be persecuted for righteousness' sake. But if you stay focused on your purpose, and not allow your personal feelings to take control, Jesus said you will be blessed. You cannot do anything without Christ. Just keep working to fulfill your purpose, because you have something to live for. Even in the midst of trials and persecutions, keep praising the Lord, because you have something to live for. When others see the miraculous change in your life, and they know nobody "but God" did it, they will also come to Christ and confess their belief in Him as the Son of God. In St. Matthew 5:12, Jesus said: "Rejoice and be exceeding glad for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Follow in the footsteps of Christ, so the world will be able to see your good works, and glorify our Father. In St. Matthew 5:14 and 16, Jesus said: "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Let your light so shine that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." I am a witness that, "God's grace is sufficient." "Amazing grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me, I once was lost, but now I'm found, was blind but now I see," As Jesus did with the blind man, He is extending an invitation for you to come out of darkness. Don't let your final fate be determined by your choice to reject Christ as the Son of God. Walk out on faith, and start working for Christ while it is day. Because, when night (death) cometh, no man can work.

May God bless you! (850-997-3612)

Financial Focus...

WORK TOWARD YOUR OWN FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE DAY

Provided by Robert J. Davison

On July 4, we shoot fireworks, attend picnics, watch parades and otherwise celebrate our nation's independence and the many freedoms we enjoy. But as you go through life, you'll find out how important it is to work towards another type of freedom — financial freedom. That's why you need to put strategies in place to help you work towards your own Financial Independence Day.

And there's no way to "sugar-coat" this task, because it will be challenging. In recent years, a combination of factors — including depressed housing prices, rising health care costs, frozen or eliminated pension plans and the financial market plunge of 2008 and early 2009 — has made it more difficult for many of us to accumulate the resources we'll need to enjoy the retirement lifestyle we've envisioned. In fact, the average American family faces a 37 percent shortfall in the income they will need in retirement, according to a recent report by consulting firm McKinsey & Company.

But now that we've gotten the "bad" stuff out of the way, let's turn to the good news: You can do a great deal to work towards financial freedom during your retirement years. Here are some suggestions that can help:

- Save and invest more. Obviously, the younger you are, the greater the benefit you'll get by increasing your savings and investments. But whatever your age, you'll find that it pays to save and invest more. During difficult economic times, of course, it's not always easy to boost your savings and investments, but try to find ways that are as "automatic" as possible. For example, whenever you get a raise, increase your 401(k) contributions, which come directly from your paycheck. And whenever you get a "windfall," such as a tax refund, try to use part of it for your IRA or another investment account.

- Rebalance your portfolio. It's always a good idea to periodically rebalance your investments to make sure they are still aligned with your goals and risk tolerance. But it's especially important to rebalance as you get older and you near retirement. At this stage, you'll want to decrease the volatility in your portfolio and lock in what gains you've achieved, so you may want to move some (but certainly not all) of your more aggressive investments into less volatile ones.

- Cut down on debts. It's easier said than done, but anything you can do to reduce your debt load will free up money to invest for your retirement. Work diligently to pay off whatever debts you can and examine your lifestyle to find areas in which you can reduce spending.

- Consider working part-time during retirement. Many Americans are now living longer and enjoying happy, healthy retirements. In fact, the concept of "retirement" has changed so that it now includes any number of activities — including part-time work in a completely different area from one's previous career. If you are willing to do even a little part-time work during your retirement years, you can greatly reduce the financial pressures you may face during this time of your life.

The 4th of July comes and goes quickly. So put strategies in place now to help you work towards your own Financial Independence Day.

Word Of Life Brazil
Greg and Anne Parker

Dear family and friends, I am so sorry it has been so long since we have sent an update.

Life has been very busy and we have very few chances to use the Internet. We just got back from a medical trip with "A Doctors Heart."

The trip went great. We treated over 1,400 people.

Now we have a week to get ready for the next trip, which will be with internship students from WOL Belem. We will be gone for almost a month. They are going to do two camps and stay a couple of days in various communities. Please pray for this trip, that the camps will go well and that a lot of young people can turn their lives over to the Lord. Also, pray for the boat, as we will have 22 people living on it and it fits comfortably 12 people!

After the first camp I am going to be doing my survival training with them so please pray for safety on that.

Anne just got her two lower wisdom teeth pulled, so she is in a little bit of pain these days.

Please pray for her to have a quick recovery.

We were thinking of going back for about a month in November because our home church in North Carolina will have its Missions Conference, but unfortunately we were not accepted on this year for support. Please pray that other doors will open because we were counting on them to help us out. We know everything is in the Lord's hands.

Thanks for all your prayers and support. We wouldn't be here if it wasn't for all of you. God Bless.

That's about all that's going on with us.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL ENDS AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

LYNETTE NORRIS
A Special From Greene Publishing, Inc.

Friday evening of June 17, VBS Director Jean Willis wrapped up a week of Vacation Bible School for about 50 children who had gathered in the First Baptist Church sanctuary to recite their memory verses and sing the VBS songs they had learned, while their parents smiled, took dozens of pictures and applauded.

During the entire week of "Hometown Nazareth - When Jesus was a Kid," the children learned about a different aspect of Jesus' childhood from their memory verses and "visits to Mary's house" where they could talk to Mary (played on alternate days by Christy Grant and Donna Hill), ask questions and listen as she told them a different story each day about Jesus' childhood, described what it was like to be the mother of God's son.

Besides bible verses and bible study, there was plenty of food and fast-action games played indoors, away from the punishing summer heat. They learned and sang songs ranging from the high-energy, foot-tapping "Great Things are Gonna Happen!" to the more lyrical and haunting "God With Us."

Those of us who remember crafts as a big part of our VBS experience as children would not have been disappointed with this week's list of projects, which included everything from making key chains with colorful beads to painting miniature birdhouses, and also included a mission outreach project. Each class assembled dozens of "care bags" for children in hospitals that included a fuzzy blanket, a small stuffed animal, a coloring book, crayons and miscellaneous toys.

Altogether, the children put together 72 care bags, which were displayed on the stage Friday night.

As they concluded their busy week Friday evening, filing into the sanctuary filled with late afternoon sun slanting through the stained glass windows, there were echoes from vacation bible schools of years ago where children lined up by age group and class and took their seats. Maybe some of the parents could remember when they were that age, walking into the church just so, gathering in the pew, and pledging allegiance to the American flag, the Christian Flag and the Bible, "God's Holy word...a lamp unto my feet" – words that strike a familiar chord with so many who are no longer children, but who remember those words they once spoke in unison with others.

When it came time to sing, they filed up onto a stage that was an open-air market in ancient Nazareth, dressed with trees and fruit stand and painted stone wall backdrops beneath the AV screen overhead as the accompanying music and video began.

As for the songs the children learned all week, the new audio/visual technology has presented the music in new and exciting ways to those gathered in the auditorium, allowing the children to watch performances of the songs as they learned the words and hand motions and sing along with the video.

However, even though the songs themselves were new, the stories they told remain as timeless as when they were first tween the county's negotiating committee and Randy Hatch, the expert whom county officials have been courting for several months. Hatch is a former Suwannee County commissioner and president of Hatch Enterprise, a private rock mining company. He recently evaluated the county's rock mine and offered to help make the operation more productive and efficient, per some kind of a fee-based agreement.

Schleicher said the committee had discussed several options for hiring Hatch, including declaring him a sole source or having the county's consultant engineer firm act as middleman and hire Hatch. But the committee had ultimately rejected all the options, he said.

"We decided the best and fairest way to go was to put out a Request for Qualifications (RFQ)," Schleicher said.

Commissioner Hines Boyd allowed that other factors had played into the decision.

"We're trying to make sure all the procedural bases are covered, that's essentially what's going on," Boyd said.

Also, he added, the committee wanted to alleviate Barfield's concerns. Barfield's preference is to have the county give up the rock mine. But if the commission was determined to make a go of the mine and hire an expert to make the operation more efficient and productive, the board shouldn't limit itself to one person, she has argued repeatedly.

Schleicher next proceeded to explain how the RFQ process would work. He said the RFQ would list the qualifications that county officials wanted in a candidate. Depending on how many respondents the RFQ attracted, a committee would review the responses, shortlist the top choices, and arrange them by priority according to their order of preference, he said. The commission would then interview the top choices, he said.

"That's the first time you talk about money in the negotiations," Schleicher said.

The Third Annual Sheriff's Charity Golf Tournament is slated for July 16 and this year's event is expected by coordinators to be an even bigger and better success than that of last year's tournament. This year's proceeds will go to benefit the Florida Sheriff's Boys Ranch, Jefferson County Relay for Life and Jefferson Senior Center. Last year's event raised over $20,000.

The event will be held July 16 at the Jefferson Country Club with tee times of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., preferred times are on a first call basis. The registration fee is $400 per team or

The Jefferson County Warriors semi-pro football team faced off against the Florida Rhino June 18 and the Warriors hammered their opponent for a 42-6 victory to remain undefeated.

The Jefferson defense held the Rhino scoreless for the first three quarters, while the Warriors put six points on the board in the first quarter; added another 22 points in the second quarter; and marked up another six points in the third quarter. Jefferson put another eight points on the board in the fourth quarter and the Florida Rhino chalked up six points.

The Warriors quarterbacks totaled 11 pass completions out of 19 attempts for 210 yards and one touchdown.

Deion Graham completed nine passes out of 15 attempts for 124 yards.

Brandon Robinson completed two passes out of four attempts for 86 yards and one touchdown.

The Jefferson running backs had 13 carries for 70 yards, three two-point conversions and three touchdowns.

Nicholas Freeman had two carries for an eight-yard loss.

Graham had five carries for 10 yards, one two-point conversion and one touchdown.

Tony Sims had two carries for 20 yards, one two-point conversion and one touchdown.

Montray Crumity had two carries for 23 yards, one fumble and one touchdown.

Harry Reddick had one carry for two yards.

Jarvis Davis had one carry for 20 yards.

Robinson had two carries for three yards and one two-point conver-
