Use Of Fiscally Constrained Money Set For Reevaluation

(Boyd Calls For Budgeting The Money Differently)

How the Jefferson County Commission budgets the fiscally constrained money going forward is an issue that Commission Chairman Hines Boyd has put front and center for the board to discuss on Monday morning, Sept. 10.

Boyd basically wants the commission to reconsider how the fiscally constrained money is budgeted. That suggestion puts him, if not at odds, than at variance, with Clerk of Court Kirk Reams, the county's chief financial officer.

Boyd acknowledges the complexity of the issue, which he says has taken him several years to understand. Here is Boyd's postscript explanation to the News of the basic issue and what he's trying to accomplish:

"Every year for the last several years, the commission budgets for expenses that exceed its revenues by about $500,000 to $700,000. The special small county 'fiscally constrained' funds are not counted in our revenues, but are put in a special section of the budget where they can be spent if the commission votes to spend them.

"Normally, we don't spend these funds in the year they're received, so they roll forward as "cash on hand" to the next year, where they fill the deficit gap in our budget. Any smart fourth grader could tell follow in its finer points, is essentially that the fiscally constrained money should be identified in the budget as revenue, so that if it's spent during the year, the process is transparent.

It further calls for any unspent portion of the fiscally constrained money to be used to build up the reserve or contingency fund. Should the board then want to spend any of this money on a special project, it would require two public hearings before the commission could vote to spend the money. At present, it simply requires a majority vote for the board to spend the money, absent any public hearings.

Boyd's argument stems in part from the fact that the fiscally constrained money, which amounts to about $700,000 annually and which the county receives from the state because of the county's economic disadvantaged status, is at risk of being terminated in a few more years. Should that happen, it's Boyd's concern, the county would

Now You Have Your Proposed Tax (TRIM) Notice....

LYNETTE NORRIS

ECB Publishing, Inc.

PART I: WHAT YOU

WILL SEE ON THE TRIM

You're either a brand new homeowner in Jefferson County and you've just received your first Proposed Tax Notice (A.K.A. the "TRIM" or Truth In Millage Notice), or maybe you've owned a home here for a few years, but there are still some things you don't quite understand about your TRIM Notice.

Or, perhaps you're one of those rare folks who understand the TRIM Notice perfectly, but just for the sake of argument and the rest of this brief, general report, let's assume you're in one of the first two categories.

On Aug. 20, 2012, a TRIM Notice (which you should have received by now) was mailed out to every citizen who owns property in Jefferson County, as well as owners of Tangible Personal Property. The first category includes homeowners and business owners in the county, while the second – "tangible personal property" – refers to any equipment required to operate your business, whether it's desks and computers or other equipment for an office or retail-type business (this does not include inventory), or tractors, harrows and other agricultural equipment for a farm.

The first thing you might see on your TRIM, underneath the "Notice of Proposed Property Taxes" is DO NOT PAY – THIS IS NOT A BILL.

Rather, this is simply a notice to let you know approximately what your tax bill for 2012 will be if: 1) No budget change is adopted; or, 2) The proposed budget and tax rate for 2012 is adopted. Here, "budget" refers to the budget each of the taxing authorities in Jefferson County (county, city, school, etc.) uses to operate. They can either change nothing in their

In the next two columns (under one heading), you'll see the tax rate or "millage" that each of these authorities used in 2011 and the actual dollar amount on your 2011 tax bill for ad-valorem taxes.

In the next two columns after those, you'll see, first, the tax rate each will use for 2012 if no budget change is adopted, and then what your tax dollar amount will be in that case.

In the next two columns, you'll see what each authority's proposed tax rate is for 2012, and the amount this will add to your taxes if the new tax rate and budget is adopted.

All of these taxing authorities' millage rates are multiplied by the assessed value of your home, or a percentage of the assessed budgets when they go into a new fiscal year, or adopt budget changes that will affect the dollar amount of tax they put on your bill. The TRIM also lists the tax exemptions (homestead, widowed, disabled, veteran, low-income senior, etc.) for which you are eligible. Assessment reductions are also shown which cover Save Our Homes and Agricultural Classifications.

There are five of these taxing authorities altogether in Jefferson County, beginning with the county itself, followed by the school district, then the city (if you live within the city limits of Monticello) and finally, depending on where you live, the Suwannee River Water Management District or the Northwest Florida Water Management District.

The second block of information on the TRIM covers proposed or adopted Non Ad-Valorem Assessments by Jefferson County. These are the Fire and Landfill Assessments that are charged to owners who receive these services. Questions regarding these rates should be directed to the county coordinator, or discussed with your county commissioner.

PART II: MILLAGE AND HOW THE EXEMPTIONS WORK

The easiest way to understand millage is to think of it as "dollars per thousand." One mil is equal to one dollar of tax for every 1000 dollars of taxable value. That's taxable value, not assessed value. Taxable value is what is subject to tax after all eligible exemptions are applied.

Take the example of a hypothetical taxing authority that levies a hypothetical tax rate of 10 mils (ten dollars of tax on every 1000 dollars of taxable value) on a hypothetical home assessed at $50,000.

First, the standard homestead exemption ($25,000) is going to be subtracted from the assessed value of $50,000, leaving a taxable value of $25,000.

A mil is written as .001, so for a millage rate of ten mils ($10 \times .001 = .010$), multiply \$25,000 x .010 for a dollar tax amount of \$250.

Now for the exemptions:

The standard homestead exemption is fairly straightforward; it gives the homeowner a break by exempting the first $25,000 of the assessed value of the home (and this has to be the actual, primary residence; second homes, vacation homes, etc., are not eligible) from taxation from all taxing authorities. For several years, it was the only big home-stead exemption used.

Then, a few years ago, a second $25,000 exemption was authorized by law, but it doesn't apply to the second $25,000 of your home's assessed value – it applies to the third $25,000.

Yes, this has caused some confusion, especially if someone has a home assessed at $60,000, but wonders why, with $50,000 worth of exemptions in existence; his home has a taxable value of $25,000, rather than $10,000.

Here's how that works:

Take that $60,000 assessment and divide it into chunks of $25,000, $25,000 and $10,000.

The first chunk is exempted by the old standard Homestead Exemption that has been around since...well, it's been around for a long time. The second chunk is taxed at full value. The third chunk, $10,000, is exempted under the second $25,000 exemption.

If your home were assessed at $75,000 or higher, you would then see the full benefit of the two $25,000 exemptions.

There are, however, more exemptions that a homeowner may qualify for, including the widow's exemption, the senior citizen's exemption, a disability exemption for the wheelchair-bound, and a veteran's exemption, among others, which are applied to the homeowner's advantage. Check with the Property Appraiser's Office to determine which ones you may be eligible for. For a complete list of exemptions and explanations of each one, visit the property appraiser's website, www.jeffersonpa.net.

Now to add to the confusion; not all taxing authorities recognize all exemptions. For example, they all recognize the first

Water Situation Still Bears Some Watching

Although June's Tropical Storm Debby somewhat alleviated the water situation in the Suwannee River Water Management District (SRWMD), not all parts of the district benefited equally from the rains, and by July, the situation was pretty much as before the storm.

The SRWMD reports that rainfall across the district in July averaged 5.81 inches, which represents 75 percent of the long-term July average of 7.72 inches.

"Rainfall was distributed in typical summer patterns, with localized storms inland and higher amounts along the coast, where accumulations neared 15 inches," states the SRWMD's latest hydrologic conditions report.

Per the report, the average rainfall in the district for the 12 months ending on July 31 was 55.70 inches, or 1.14 inches higher than the historical average of 54.65 inches.

"This average surplus is the result of wide range accumulations, with areas in the central part of the district having received 30 to 40 inches more than the northern and southern counties," the report states.

The statistics show that Jefferson County received 3.61 inches of rainfall in July, compared with the July average of 7.23 inches. The county received 23.62 inches of rainfall during the last three months and 46.47 inches during the last 12 months.

Madison County, meanwhile, received 3.10 inches in July, compared with the July average of 7.29 inches. Madison County received 25.60 inches during the last three months and 54.15 inches during the last 12 months.

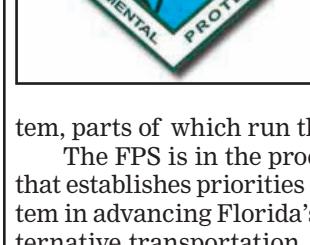

River flows in the district for the most part were at levels considered normal for the time year, with the exception of a few waterways that were experiencing high levels due an excess of rain at their upper basins.

Lake levels, for their part, remained below average generally, although a few were above average. Groundwater levels likewise remained low, despite improvements in some counties. In northern Jefferson and Madison counties, for example, groundwater levels remained "extremely low", the report states. The three-month outlook issued for the region by the Climate Prediction Center calls for above normal temperatures and equal chances of wet or dry conditions through October.

The SRWMD notes that its modified Phase III Water Shortage Order remains in effect, with users "strongly urged to eliminate unnecessary uses." For more information on the applicable restrictions, visit www.mysuwanneeriver.com.

The hydrologic conditions report is a compilation of water resource data collected from radar-derived rainfall estimates, groundwater and surface water levels, and river flows, among other sources. The district encompasses all or parts of 15 counties in north-central Florida, including Madison County and the eastern portion of Jefferson County.

New Plan Being Developed For Greenway Trail System

The Florida Park Service (FPS), which is part of the Florida Department of Environmental Protection, will host a public meeting in Tallahassee on Wednesday, Sept. 12, to solicit public input on the new vision for the Florida Greenways and Trails System, parts of which run through Jefferson County.

The FPS is in the process of developing a new plan that establishes priorities and defines the role of the system in advancing Florida's economy, tourism, health, alternative transportation, recreation, conservation and quality of life. The FPS reports that this is the first update to the Florida Greenways and Trails System Plan since its adoption in 1999 by the Florida Legislature.

The draft plan and maps are available on the Office of Greenways and Trails website at www.dep.state.fl.us/gwt/FGTS_Plan/. The open house-style meeting will focus on the Florida Greenways and Trails System Plan, as well as the Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan, viewable at www.dep.state.fl.us/parks/outdoor/ and the U.S. Forest Service's Florida National Scenic Trail Route Designation, viewable at www.fs.usda.gov/fnst.

The meeting in Tallahassee is scheduled 4-7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 12, at the Florida Department of Transportation headquarters, 605 Suwannee Street. The public is invited to attend.

Financial Disaster Plan

We all know what a disaster plan is in the context of one of Mother Nature's bad tempered moments like hurricane, wildfire or earthquake. A disaster plan lists the risk areas and who has to do what to neutralize them. The most comprehensive disaster plans addresses the most predictable events. Today's technology has made predicting hurricane strength and landfall quite accurate.

Disaster can strike our personal lives too so we often prepare for them as we can afford. Life events such as birth, marriage, education, illness and death are predictable, so we save up money, plan for long term care, take out insurance and sometimes borrow. But what happens when a family wage earner suddenly is gone? The remaining members go into "reactive mode" to be able to keep living as close to their normal standard as possible and plan for a better future for their children.

Jefferson County is not much different. We have two different types of income revenue: one I call ordinary revenue that comes from taxes and fees of all types generated within the county and one I call extra-ordinary that comes from the state as special funding. The most prominent of the extra-ordinary is called Fiscally Constrained Funds and amounts to approximately $70,000 annually.

The statute is fairly vague about how it can be used so it can be used for just about anything the county wishes except for debt service. Our local government has been using these funds for special needs such as purchasing the head of the Wacissa River, refurbishing the government complex buildings (Court Annex, Appraiser's office, Tax Collector's office, etc) and for matching funds required by federal programs such as NCRS that have addressed erosion. Any unspent fiscally constrained funds carry over into the following year's budget as cash on-hand to help balance the operating budget. These are legitimate uses and the commission has done nothing wrong by using these fiscally constrained funds this way.

This extra-ordinary external funding is scheduled to end within the next few years. There are three possibilities: 1.) The funding will continue at the same amount, 2.) The funding will be cut by some amount and 3.) The funding will be eliminated. Given the squeeze on everyone's budgets the probability of cutting or elimination is high. For example we had a 72% cut in state money for solid waste in the last few years.

So we, as a community and county government have an opportunity and an obligation to get ourselves ready for what could only be a coming financial disaster should the fiscally constrained funding be severely cut or even eliminated. There are many opportunities to become self-reliant and prepared. This would not be easy or pain free but it is very possible and necessary. Crisis and disaster challenge the status quo and that is usually where the arguments begin. Typical bad behavior examples are protecting individual organizations' scope, and preserving pet programs while denying the value and scope of other needed projects.

Nothing in our government structure and budget can be held sacred and all options must be on the table, since we are talking about a potential $700,000 annual funding reduction that will hit special capital needs and some operating budget gap plugging. The coming year is the time for such financial disaster planning by identifying areas for cost cutting, consolidation and generally making the operations of the entire county government more financially efficient at executing their responsibilities and service delivery.

For the 'do-nothing until it happens' people who react to an event, this effects everyone and proactive government management is what we need to be ready. And if the funding continues it would allow the county to invest more in our infrastructure and make ourselves self-reliant. We don't need to be an ostrich with its head in the sand or a watchdog barking at the crows while the cows escape.

attempted to bring a kitten into the club. Instead of leaving, Lages sat down outside the business and called 911.

When the deputies spoke with Lages, they noted that he appeared intoxicated. They told him he needed to leave the premises and assisted in calling a taxi for him. However when the taxi arrived, Lages would not cooperate with the driver; he initially would not provide his address where he wanted to be taken and he would not substantiate to the driver that he could pay the fare. Instead Lages began yelling and causing a disturbance. Lages insisted that the club owner had committed a crime and continued to call 911 on his cell phone, even though the deputies were on the scene.

This man apparently didn't think those rules applied to him when he tried to take his kitten into all places a strip club. But it's what he did after being refused entry into the club, that got him arrested.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Everett Robert Lages, 47, a Port Charlotte man on several charges, including Misuse of the 911 System when he continued to call 911 despite being told by deputies that he should stop calling.

Deputies were called to the Emerald City in Murdock after the owner told Lages to leave. Lages had Lages was placed under arrest and had to be forcibly restrained. He was booked into the jail on charges of Misuse of the 911 System, Disorderly Intoxication, Trespassing after Warning and Resisting Arrest without Violence. He is being held on $4,000 bond. CONSIDER THESE FINANCIAL GIFTS FOR YOUR GRANDCHILDREN

Provided by Robert J. Davison

National Grandparents Day is celebrated on September 9. If you're a grandparent yourself, you already know the pleasures of having grandchildren in your life. So you may want to take this occasion to think of ways you can help those grandchildren get the most out of their lives.

Perhaps the most valuable thing you could give to your grandkids is the gift of education. Consider this: Over a lifetime, college graduates earn, on average, about $1 million more than those without a degree according to the Census Bureau. So, putting money toward your grandchildren's college education is probably a pretty good investment.

Furthermore, your grandchildren may well need the help, because college is expensive and costs continue to rise. Consequently, you may want to contribute to a 529 plan. You have several options for how the money can be invested and contribution limits are quite high. All withdrawals are free from federal income taxes, provided the money is used for qualified college expenses. (Keep in mind, though, that non-qualified withdrawals will be taxable and possibly subject to penalties.) Plus, if you invest in your own state's 529 plan, your contributions may be deductible on your state income taxes.

If you name one grandchild as a beneficiary of a 529 plan and that grandchild decides not to go to college, you can switch the account to another grandchild — in other words, you maintain control of the money for the life of the account.

Of course, despite its economic benefits, college is not for everyone. So if you wanted to provide financial help to a grandchild who seems likely to choose a different route in life, what could you do?

One possibility is to set up a custodial account, often known as an UGMA (Uniform Gift to Minors Act) or UTMA (Uniform Transfer to Minors Act). You can fund a custodial account with many different types of investments, but the use of the money is entirely up to your grandchildren when they reach the age of termination in whatever state in which they live. But if your reason for funding a custodial account is simply to provide a gift, then you might not be concerned with how the money is used.

On the other hand, if you want to give your grandchildren a financial gift with greater control, you may want to speak to your attorney about your options. One possibility is to set up an irrevocable trust. You can fund this trust with either cash or securities and specify at the time the trust is created when the funds can be used. So for example, you can provide that the trust pay your grandchild a certain amount of money at one age, with another installment coming several years later. Keep in mind, though, that trusts are complex instruments and may have tax considerations, so in addition to consulting with an attorney, you'll want to discuss your plans with your tax advisor.

Whichever option is right for your family, use Grandparents Day as an opportunity to consider the ways in which you can give something to the grandchildren who give so much to you.

be hard put to make up the budget deficits that now are regularly built into the budget, especially if there is not a sizable reserve.

"How is it that we continue to budget for deficits and at the end of the year we're able to balance the budget," Boyd said. "The reason is that we carry the money over from the unexpended fiscally constrained money from the previous year. Consistently, we have been spending the fiscally constrained money to balance the budget." He went on to say that such a practice was "dishonest".

"I think the budgeting techniques that we have been using are dishonest," Boyd said. "They mask what's really happening and ultimately it will get us into trouble. I'm saying let's budget in a way that we all understand what we're doing when we formulate the budget. If we budget the fiscally constrained money as the general fund or a 'slush fund' for favorite projects, it's not a fiscally responsible way to budget."

Boyd cited various instances where the commission had drawn money from the fiscally constrained money to pay for special projects. It was his concern, he said, that in time the fiscally constrained money would cease coming and the county's reserve would be depleted, absent a conscious effort to grow it.

"Right now we're burying our heads in the sand and using smoke and mirrors and it's eroding our reserve," Boyd said. "We need to make a policy decision and build a reasonable reserve that could last three to six months."

Boyd asked for his colleagues' thoughts on his remarks. The request was followed by several minutes of silence.

"You know how I feel about it," Reams said finally. "I won't repeat it now."

Reams' position is basically that the focus needs to be on implementing cost-cutting measures and streamlining county operations to make them more efficient, a task that he believes the new coordinator is exceedingly qualified to do.

His other take on the matter is that if the commission does what Boyd proposes, it will have dire consequences.

"It's a policy decision," Reams said. "But if you want to do it, it will be painful. If we're going to set a contingency aside, we need to limit expenditures and it will require a lot of cuts."

Commissioners Stephen Fulford and John Nelson said they appreciated what Boyd was trying to do, but they wanted more information. Boyd's proposal, they said, was based on a snapshot of the county's finances, not on a comprehensive picture that showed a historical pattern of at least five years of the ups and downs of the county's reserve fund.

Would the commission entertain a presentation from the auditors on the county's reserve and financial history? Boyd asked.

Receiving the nod from his colleagues, Boyd said he would arrange for the presentation. That presentation is set for 9 a.m. Monday, Sept. 10, in the courthouse annex.

Good Turnout For JCMHS Open House

Jefferson County Middle High School (JCMHS) held its open house and general meeting on Thursday evening, August 23. The event was very well attended with standing room only in the cafeteria.

JCMHS Principal Loietta Holmes welcomed everyone, gave instruction and updates and introduced the teachers, Superintendent Bill Brumfield and other school personnel in attendance to the audience. She also mentioned that the new assistant principal Kimberly Cummings would begin on September 4.

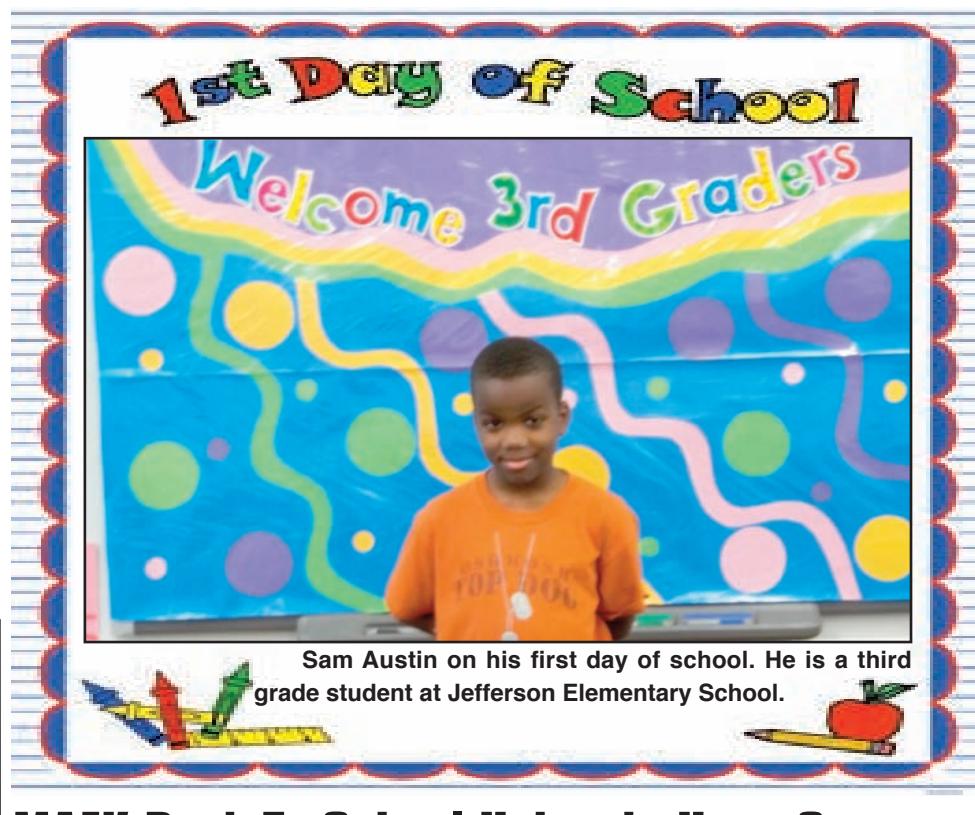

Holmes invited Dean Roddell Thomas and Deputy OJ Sloan to talk briefly about the rules students are expected to abide by and what will happen if they chose not to. Rules that include 'zero' tolerance for fighting, the dress code, electronic devices, and Facebook bullying.

Shirley Washington spoke to the students and parents about the TCC 21st Century After School program. She provided information and signup flyers and such. Transportation will be provided.

Jacqueline Daniels talked up the FAMU Trio program that will be offered to exceptional students during and after school to enrolled students. All who enroll did and will receive a backpack filled with educational goodies and information.

Representatives from the Jefferson County Health Department and Tonya Bell with the Kid-Care program were available to speak to the parents and JCMHS staff. Application forms for sports physicals and emergencies were handed out as well as other school related information and goodies were given to all visitors to their table.

The attendees were divided into groups: Middle School parents and students were given instructions by Guidance Counselor Dr. Donna Williams; High School parents and students were instructed by Guidance Counselor Latina Butler; and groups were taken on walkabouts to classrooms and other points of interest. All were given maps of the JCMHS facility, dress code instruction pages and other forms of interest.

MAFK Back To School Haircuts Huge Success

The Madison Avenue For Kids, Inc. (MAFK) 50 Free Back To School Haircuts event, held Saturday, August 11 and offered by Jefferson County native Sam Madison, Jr., was a huge success. The event was greatly appreciated by youth and parents or guardians.

The haircuts were performed by Barbers Don "G" and Kendrick "Wolf," with the earliest haircut beginning at 6:30 a.m.

As fate would have it, the traditional school supplies and amenities filled backpack was won by Jaymz Norton, who was the 29th haircut recipient. (#29 is the number that Sam Madison wore on his jersey with the Miami Dolphins and the New York Giants).

The uniqueness of this particular situation is that his brother, Jeremiah, was last year's winner. Last year, Jaymz suggested that his little brother go ahead of him, when he was originally behind him.

Jamia Bradley, mother, stated that she had just gotten a copy of the Monticello News and was reminded of the Free Back To School Haircuts event, so they came immediately in.

"It was unbelievable when I picked up the stack of numbered registration forms for parents to fill out and it was #29 and Jaymz was standing in front of his mother and brother," stated coordinator (Sam's mom) Mary Madison.

"It was an amusing sight to watch Jaymz walk out with his backpack and big gift bag of items, all by himself," said Madison.

Jaymz and Jeremiah attend Conley Elementary in Tallahassee.

The black East Sport backpack and gift bag contained one and three subject notebooks, composition notebooks, several packs of notebook paper, three-ring binder, legal pads, several packs of pencils, assorted ballpoint pens, assorted highlighters, Elmers's glue, ruled index cards, an electronic scientific hand calculator, portable CD/AM radio, hand sanitizer, rain ponchos, toothbrushes with caps, toothpaste, shower gel, crew socks, chugs and energy drinks, a miniature US flag and a King James Version of the Holy Bible.

"A very special thanks goes to Mrs. Angela Gray for her generous donation to help supply items for the backpack," said Madison. "Mrs. Gray has made a contribution to the haircuts event for the past several years. She has always expressed how she thought it was a wonderful thing that Sam does," stated Madison.

The MAFK Foundation is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization was spearheaded by Sam in 1999 with the mission to motivate and inspire at-risk youth and families to achieve a better way of life through educational, social and economic empowerment.

MAFK reaches out to youth, especially those who are less fortunate and not exposed to the positive aspects of life.

In the past, whenever Sam had the opportunity to speak to the hometown youth during his Educational Rallies, his messages stressed the fact that coming from a small rural town should not be a deferment of one's achievement or reaching the goals in their lives.

He encourages them to stay in school, do their best, get a quality education, respect others, especially their parents, elders and teachers, respect themselves by leading a healthy lifestyle, which ultimately leads to high self-esteem, great achievements and a productive future. He reminds them to always be proud of their roots, community and give back to the community in some way.

Sam's messages to the parents and guardians were; know where your child/children are at all times, know who their associates are, and today, with all of the technologies, monitor closely the materials they are viewing and their communications.

In related Sam Madison news to the many dedicated supporters and fans who are still interested in Sam and want to know where he is and what he is doing after his retirement from the National Football League (NFL); His family reports that he is still very busy in what he loves, which is sports.

Sam has his own sports facility and training field. He is a Technique and Skills Specialist. He has established a program called Airo Athletics, which implements skills camps; boot camps; accredited coaching clinics; speed, position and agility training; and coaching high school tournaments.

Sam has recently completed certification as National Scouting Report (NSR) Area Director. He continues his weekly radio broadcasting and when the regular NFL season begins, he will serve as a Dolphins television broadcaster.

"With his involvement in assisting in his older kids' sports and other activities, taxiing them to and from school, managing, operating and conducting all of his other intricate activities, I think Sam is as busy now as when he was playing on the field," concluded his mother, Mary.

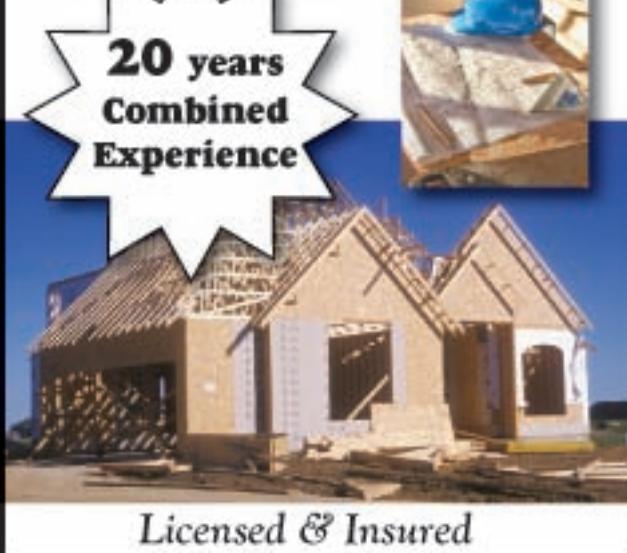

Sam, his wife Saska, elder son Kellen, daughter Kennedy and youngest son Kaden, who will be two years old in September, currently reside in Davie FL.

Monticello Music Academy Begins New Year

BRYANT THIGPEN
ECB Publishing

It's a new name, and it's a new year, but it's still the same great program that is hosted by the First United Methodist Church of Monticello. Over the summer, the music teachers met to discuss changes that would occur this year to better the program.

The first change the staff made was the name.

The music program welcomed the name, Monticello Music Academy. And instead of meeting on Wednesdays, lessons will be held on Tuesdays to make it more convenient for children from other churches. The church has partnered with other local churches to make the program the best it can be.

New curriculum is one of the changes that occurred during the summer. Now, children who are ages 3-4 and kindergarten-first grade students will sing, melody bells and rhythm games. Second and third grade student lessons will include singing, recorder and melody bells. And fourth through sixth grade students will be taking singing, keyboard and guitar. Each group will rotate classes to participate in all three musical experiences.

Classes at Monticello Music Academy began on Tuesday, September 4, with classes being held from 4:30-5:30 p.m. each Tuesday. The church is still accepting students and looking for adults who can serve as volunteers in the program. Those wishing to serve as volunteers are encouraged to call the church office at (850) 997-2349.

Praise Him

By Vivian Miles

Three essential actions in life for today and tomorrow, Are something to do, someone to love, and something to hope for.

On life's journey each day, Obey His commandments along the way.

Our joys in life are from God's greatness, Which are fresh each morning, no less.

The key to happiness for all on earth, was given to us by Christ at his birth.

We are honored and blessed by God's love, Day after day He reaches down to us from above.

Our lives are filled with God's love and care, With Him there is no despair.

Keeping our lives in focus,

Jesus came down from Heaven for us.

When the strong wind blows, the trees are swaying,

We are at the window praying.

Our love of songs we cannot measure, Simple things are our treasure.

To honor our King of Kings, Praises to Him we sing.

Bible Study is held at 7 p.m. every Thursday at the Lloyd Woman's Club. Join with Elder Linda D. Ross for an evening of Christian faith. For more information contact her at 850-322-3424.

Business Community Prayer Breakfast To Restart September 6

BRYANT THIGPEN
ECB Publishing

The Business Community Prayer Breakfast will be continuing its program on Thursday morning, September 6, from 7:30 a.m., at the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church of Monticello.

There is no charge for the breakfast, however, a donation plate will be made available for those who wish to contribute at free-will to help cover the cost of the meal.

The program was started 18 years ago by Gary Wright. His mission was simple. Wright wanted to establish a program that would gather people from all denominations and enjoy great fellowship together. The breakfast is held the first Thursday of each month and serves as a great way to get the day started.

At 7 a.m., a delicious breakfast is served. For about 20 minutes, a few songs are sung and prayer requests are taken from the local people, before the guest speaker takes the stand. In the past, the breakfast program has had notable speakers such as Florida State University's legendary football coach, Bobby Bowden, who spoke at the event in February.

This month's guest speaker is Lt. Colonel Clifford Palmer. According to his biography, Palmer is an 18-year career Air Force reserve officer and veteran of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom (Afghanistan). He is currently assigned as an Individual Mobilization Augmentee (IMA) in the Secretary of the Air Force's Office of Legislative Liaison, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. His responsibilities include working with members of congress and their staffs on Air Force/Joint Issues of interest and concern, testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, congressional inquiries, delegation travel, and key legislative initiatives.

While serving in Afghanistan, Lt. Col. Palmer was the Director of the Adraskan National Training Center in Heart Province. He oversaw all aspects of the training center and mentored 65 Afghan officers, instructors and support staff. He also managed the training conducted by a contingent of Italian police and military trainers (Carabinieri), and supervised international contractors providing site security and life support for a training population of 800 students. During his tour in Baghdad, Iraq, Lt. Col. Palmer served as the senior liaison officer to the Personal Security Detail for Iraqi President Jalal Talabani. He managed President Talabani's movements within the country, in and out of the Green Zone, and the president's trips abroad. Recently, Lt. Col. Palmer served as a special assistant to the Commander of U.S. Southern Command in support of the massive humanitarian relief effort in Haiti known as Operation Unified Response.

He served as an augmentee to the Office of Congressional Affairs. Lt. Col. Palmer is a native Floridian and calls Tallahassee home.

TIGERS DROPPED IN SEASON OPENER

FRAN HUNT
ECB Publishing
Staff Writer

The Jefferson County Tigers were dropped for a close 29-26 loss last Friday night against the Bay County Tornadoes, in the season opener.

Head Football Coach Jeremy Brown said the Tigers have got to learn to put four quarters together. "In the first half, our defense was good, but the offense was not so good. It just turned around for the second half. The offense played a good second half, but the defense played a not so good second half. If we can just put four quarters together, we'll be okay," he added.

In passing, quarterback Lenorris Footman completed 12 of 27 attempts for one touchdown, one pass interception and a total of 163 yards.

The Tigers had a total of 304 rushing yards.

Revonte Robinson had nine rushes for 150 yards and two touchdowns.

Coach Brown named him as the offensive player of the week.

Kenny Madison had 12 rushes for 151 yards and one touchdown.

Lenorris Footman had two rushes for nine yards.

Ladarian Smiley had five pass receptions for 82 yards and one touchdown.

Gene Noel had five pass receptions for 69 yards.

Tre'Veon Edwards had two receptions for 10 yards.

On the defensive side of the field, leading tacklers included Robert Nealy, who had eight tackles and two tackles for a loss. Coach Brown named him the defensive player of the week.

Revonte Robinson had seven tackles.

Kenny Madison had seven tackles.

Shavarist Alexander had six tackles.

Damion Crumity had five tackles.

Calvin Footman had five tackles.

The Tigers hit the field against the Madison County Cowboys, Friday night, September 7 at 7:30 p.m., there.

Of the upcoming game against the Cowboys, Coach Brown said, "Madison plays hard and it'll be a tough game. We have to focus on us and correct our mistakes. Nobody really expects to go in against the Cowboys and beat them. They are a really tough team."

The Jefferson County Economic Development Council supports the County Referendum allowing property tax exemptions for new jobs. Please vote YES on this important issue and give Jefferson County a vital economic development tool to encourage job creation in our community.

BALLOT LANGUAGE Local Option Tax Referendum Non-Partisan- Special

"Shall the Board of County Commissioners of this County be authorized to grant, pursuant to s.3, Art. VII of the State Constitution, property tax exemptions to new businesses and expanding, existing businesses, that are expected to create new, full-time jobs in the county?"

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

- Will NOT increase taxes.
- Will provide job creation more competitive.
- OVER HALF THE COUNTIES IN FLORIDA OFFER TAX ABATEMENT.
- Exemption cannot exceed 10 years.
- Does NOT exempt taxes levied by school, city, water management district or other special taxing authorities.
- Can only be used for improvements to real property and for tangible property. Taxes are still levied on the land where the business is located.

YES - For authority to grant the exemptions

NO - For authority to grant the exemptions

National Grandparents Day

Marian McQuade at Congress

Marian McQuade of Oak Hill, West Virginia, has been recognized nationally by the United States Senate – in particular by Senators Jennings Randolph and Robert Byrd, and by President Jimmy Carter, as the founder of National Grandparents Day. McQuade made it her goal to educate the youth in the community about the important contributions seniors have made throughout history. She also urged the youth to "adopt" a grandparent, not just for one day a year, but rather for a lifetime.

In 1973, Senator Jennings Randolph (D-WV) introduced a resolution to the Senate to make Grandparents Day a national holiday. West Virginia's Governor Arch Moore had proclaimed an annual Grandparents Day for the state, at the urging of Marian McQuade. When Senator Randolph's resolution in the U.S. Senate died in committee, Marian McQuade organized supporters and began contacting governors, senators, and congressmen in all fifty states. She urged each state to proclaim their own Grandparents Day. Within three years, she had received Grandparents Day proclamations from forty-three states. She sent copies of the proclamations to Senator Randolph.

In February 1977, Senator Randolph, with the concurrence of many other senators, introduced a Joint Resolution to the Senate requesting the President to "issue annually a proclamation designating the first Sunday of September after Labor Day of each year as 'National Grandparents Day'." Congress passed the legislation proclaiming the first Sunday after Labor Day as National Grandparents Day and, on August 3, 1978, then-President Jimmy Carter signed the proclamation. The statute cites the day's purpose as: "...to honor grandparents, to give grandparents an opportunity to show love for their children's children, and to help children become aware of strength, information, and guidance older people can offer".

Some people claim the origin of the holiday resides with the efforts of Hermine Beckett Hanna of North Syracuse, New York, recognizing seniors and their importance as early as 1961. On February 21, 1990, New York Congressman James T. Walsh recognized the efforts of Hermine Beckett Hanna in front of the U.S. House of Representatives, thanking her "for her important role in the establishment of Grandparents Day".

Great-Grandmother And Great-Granddaughter Celebrate Together

DEBBIE SNAPP
ECB Publishing
Staff Writer

Dorris Laing Uptain celebrates the first birthday of her great-granddaughter Kylie Ray Stidam. The party was held at Burmah Heights Park in Quincy.

The 'Hello Kitty' themed birthday party was attended by most of their family and lots of their friends. This made for a very special day for great-grandmother and great-granddaughter.

Kylie is the daughter of Mallory and Keifer Stidam of Chattahoochee. Dorris is the mother of Maggie and Fred Shofner of Monticello, Kylie's great-aunt and great-uncle.

Ten Reasons Kids Love Grandparents

There's something about grandparents that grandchildren love

GRANDPARENTS and GRANDCHILDREN

Surely, two of the most satisfying experiences in life must be those of being a grandchild or a grandparent. ~Donald A. Norberg

JACQUELINE CARROLL

1. We're always up for an adventure. Whether it's a nature hike, a day of kayaking, or a weekend of camping, we like to get outside as much as the kids do.

2. We know lots of stories — and some of them are even true.

3. We can grow things. Maybe it's a garden of tomatoes and zucchini. Maybe it's just a potted plant. And if the kids help, we'll let them get their hands dirty.

4. We know our way around libraries and book stores. Where are the picture books? Where can kids find something for tomorrow's report on Conestoga wagons? We can be great guides.

5. We're not afraid to be silly. Did a grandchild make a mask or a funny hat? We know who will try it on. Is no one at home willing to listen to kids' knock-knock jokes? Guess whom they should call.

6. We let grandchildren take their time. When kids stay with us, they don't need to rush to get dressed in the morning. They know we will wait for them.

7. We make the best audience. When grandchildren learn a new poem, some fancy dance moves, or their first violin piece, they count on us to watch, listen — and applaud.

8. We have the coolest pets. Whether it's a cocker spaniel or a real, live, talking parrot, we share our animals with the kids. What's more, we let our grandchildren help take care of the animals.

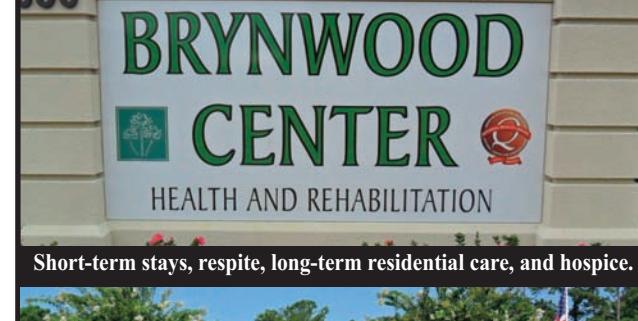

9. We love to travel. We're up for a week in Yellowstone, a vacation at Disney, or a family cruise.

10. We knew our grandchildren's parents when they were kids, and we have the pictures to prove it. We can tell the kids stories about their parents that their moms and dads would never tell themselves.
