In the right place at the right time?

Dear Editor:

We never know where time will take us, "until we get there" that is. God knows why and we find out along the way.

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, at about 5:05 p.m., I was on my way home from work and for some reason I drove a different way from my usual route every other Monday through Friday. The route that I took was from South Washington Street to Highway 27 East at the intersection of Fast Freddie's and the car wash.

I turned left onto 27 going home; about that time I saw a homeless man walking in the direction of 27 East. He was carrying his whole life in his backpack, and his back pack was not so big. He had a sign on his backpack that read, "I am hungry God bless you."

Well instantly I thought to myself, "Sharon, give that man some food and water." I continued to go on my merry way home but, by the time I got to my driveway in Pine Ridge, I was thinking I could not let him go hungry today. So I went straight gold van had slowed down to the store to get him something to eat and drink.

I picked him up some peanut butter crackers, some beef jerky, something to drink, some chocolate, some gum and some Tylenol. There was something about his presence when I saw him that made me feel like he would be very grateful for whatever be was given.

So I left the store and proceeded to go back to Highway 27 East. Sure enough he was there just in front of the jail at that time. When I pulled over just past the jail, he had just sat down to rest. I walked up behind him and said to him, "Sir! Brought you something to eat and drink." He had taken one of his shoes off to doctor his foot. So he didn't get up but, he looked up at me and I gave him the bag with all of the goodies in it. He was tickled pink; to say the least he was smiling from ear to ear and he instantly said thank you, then he looked in the bag he said to me, "Ma'am, thank you so much I appreciate this.'

About that same "time" a and this sweet little voice from the passenger window said, "Sir, here is a hot meal for you." He got up to take the food and acted as if he had just "won the lottery."

He was super tickled by then. He thanked her as well, then he walked back over to where I was and said to me this is a very nice corner of the world, I wish that I could stay here for a while. He thanked me again and I told him good luck and God bless. He said that it was a great day for him and that God had blessed him again.

Life is very interesting sometimes because, the sweet lady and her husband in the gold van that stopped happened to be our neighbors who live behind us. They also felt compelled to stop to give this homeless man something to eat just like I did. The neighbors could have been on a different road at that "time" on that day as well. I chose to take a different route going home that day at that "time' and saw him walking. Had

Midweek Muddle

Brussels sprouts have terrific health benefits: who cares?

By SUSAN H. LINCOLN

After you've been to the grocery store a million times, you begin to long for a new animal to roam the earth before giving his life to provide sustenance for your family. Standing before the meat counter each week, I repeat the litany, "Beef, pork, chicken...beef, pork, chicken.'

Occasionally the family enjoys turkey or fish, but then the litany begins again: beef, pork, chicken.

Next, I stand before the vegetables: lettuce, green beans and squash. In the fall, various bunches of greens provide a welcome break, but for many weeks out of the year, I look at the famous three: lettuce, green beans, squash.

So when I eved those cute little Brussels sprouts in a purple mesh bag, I bought them. I read the label to make sure they didn't come all the way from Brussels, and they did not, but they hailed from Salinas, Calif., which isn't much closer and doesn't play into my loyalty to "Fresh From Florida."

Even so, I needed a break. From Florida, I bought asparagus.

Then I walked down the aisles collecting three beans for a salad of the same name.

Ever since, the family has been distraught. "Brussels sprouts," the husband said in disbelief. "I stopped eating Brussels sprouts when I was four."

I reminded him that we all grow

"But there are only three things I don't eat, and Brussels sprouts is one of them," he reminded.

I told him about the vegetable's anti-oxidant, anti-inflammatory qualities. Then I reported that I had watched a cooking show on television, during which the sprouts were roasted in the oven, under the influence of olive oil, salt and pepper. "This is not your Mother's boiled Brussels sprouts," I explained to him but I could hardly allow the words to leave my mouth, because I've never prepared anything better than his Mother.

Even so, I knew a positive spin was required.

The sprouts were darling and green. I happily cut them in half and arranged them artistically on a baking sheet to begin the roasting process.

Soon the aroma wafted from the oven. It wasn't great.

But when I tasted one of the smaller sprouts, it wasn't bad... at first. Soon thereafter, a bitter aftertaste galloped through my mouth.

Fortunately, I had prepared a marinated Three-Bean Salad and it was chilling in the refrigerator. After the appropriate baking time, I pulled the sheet from the oven just as the husband walked through the kitchen. He produced the same facial expression he must have had at age 4.

"Give it a try," said I. He did. He tilted his head in a moment of surprise, and then the bitter aftertaste found him and he gave me that "don't you try this again" look.

"They're not awful," he said as a compliment, which is sort of like, "You're not too fat."

At the table, I commented on the son's maturity. "Look he's enjoying the Brussels sprouts."

"Enjoying is not the word I would se," he said rather quietly.

"More?" asked the husband, holding the serving platter out for

"It's better than that," he said, pointing to the three-bean salad.

I was completely offended. Here these people sit at my food trough, making disparaging remarks.

"Now I like that," the husband said of the salad.

"Good," I said, "you get to eat all of it because I'm not crazy about it."

He looked at the quart container and worried about his long-term health.

"Then he's got to eat the Brussels sprouts," he said, pointing across the table to the son. Who needs more children?

In a dramatic action, I picked up the platter and put the remainder of the sprouts in the garbage.

"Maybe the dog wants them," the son said to divert me.

"No way," said the husband.

I attempted to ignore them, for they have no idea how much it would cost to hire somebody like me to put up with them, do their laundry and prepare their food. As I returned the tea pitcher to the refrigerator, I announced liltingly, "I have asparagus."

Nobody got excited.

So I looked at my own reflection in the kitchen windows over the sink where the dirty dishes and I spend quality time each evening. As a dirge, I repeated the litany from which I should never depart: beef, pork, chicken; lettuce, green beans, squash.

Then I decided to learn another litany with two verses: the first suggests an alternate approach, You-Cook-Then, You-Cook-Then, You-Cook-Then, with a refrain of Take-out's-Fine, Take-out's-Fine, Take-out's-Fine.

That will be my Dirge of the Day until a new animal roams this earth and finds his way to the meat counter, carrying a load of green vegetables from Florida that everyone at my table loves.

Or when hell freezes over, whichever comes first.

Officer saves parking spot?

Thank God I don't live in

I recently had surgery on my foot and was finding it very difficult to get around. I placed a bandage carefully on my foot slipping a sock over the bandage to protect it and hobbled to the vehicle. Glad my husband could drive because I couldn't.

So we set off going to Perry to visit. It was Sept. 11, 2013, and we wanted to just get out a little and enjoy the scenery. As we arrived at a local restaurant my husband noticed a parking spot up close to the building so it wouldn't be far for me to walk. It had also recently rained and I was afraid of getting my foot wet due to my recent surgery the week before, so I was taking precautions my doctor had ordered. As my husband was pulling into the parking spot up next to the building on the north side, we noticed a female deputy standing near it. As we were about to switch the engine off and get out the deputy told us this parking spot was taken for her friend. Not wanting to challenge an officer, we moved.

The parking spot now closest was on the dirt parking area. So we parked there. As I got out and started walking my foot became wet because of the recent rain. The dirt was still wet. So I hobbled all the way to the door.

As I was hobbling along I noticed a female pull into the spot where we tried to park. The officer still standing there. Upon the female's exit of her vehicle, the female officer joined the female that just parked in the spot where we tried to park. The female was not injured nor was she handicapped, mind you--this was not handicapped parking either.

I truly became upset. How could this officer hold a parking spot for her friend like this? The friend was very capable of parking anywhere. Why was the officer's power under the law being used this way? This was not right. Later on I asked a waitress the officer's name, and was told Officer Lindsey Shaw.

I would like for the sheriffs office to question this officer of the importance of saving this spot for her friend, which clearly is an abuse of her powers. Had the female been handicapped I could understand, but she was not. Abuse of Power.

estimates. There was a traffic count conducted for a week using the speed trailer. The speed trailer is one directional and only counted the northbound traffic. If you add in the southbound traffic the number of cars using Washington Street would be a little higher. However it's still just numbers and no one knows how this would affect the traffic. If Washington was closed for a short period of time before making it final, one could get a real sense of how it might affect them. It may or may not be as bad as people thought. People might say this is something I can live with or they might say it's too much of a problem and changes could be made. But once the bridge is torn down you can't go back and make changes if needed.

I've learned by teaching DDC all of those years that people drive by habits they have learned over the years, being either good or bad. Habits are learned by doing something a certain way over time and can be changed for the good. Over the years people have developed the habit of using Washington Street. By closing Washington on a trial period people can make changes and see how it really affects them instead of how they think it will affect them.

I don't know if there is a strict time frame involved in the park construction or not but I don't think waiting 30 days and closing Washington on a trial period and then voting again would be too much of a problem. Like I said before I'm okay with it either way and hope the community can come together as a whole on this.

I would like to thank the gentleman who donated the ten dollars. He did not know it at the time but his donation allowed us to stay the entire time giving out free water. I asked my brother how much the water had cost and he told me $10.82 This amount was almost to the penny. God knew exactly how much to provide as we only had one bottle of water left at the end. Also by staying until the end I received a blessing by hearing some great music and heard the comment about closing Washington Street on a trial. I hope the community will support the decision of the city council no matter how they feel personally. Now I hope that Bob

Brown and Frazier can come to terms on the placement of his signs. He has made his point that he does not approve of Bob Brown, the city council and apparently now the PPD but I for one say enough is enough and hope others in the community will speak out against this as it a disgrace to the community and makes us look bad to people passing thru and ask yourselves who would want to relocate here seeing all of the discontent?

Lose to unbeaten Wakulla 20-14

Dogs' 4th-quarter comeback falls short

By AARON PORTWOOD

A furious fourth-quarter comeback attempt by Taylor County came up just one play short, as undefeated Class 5A Wakulla escaped with a 20-14 victory over the Bulldogs Friday night in Wakulla scored a single touchdown in each of the first, second and third quarters to build a 20-0 lead, but the Bulldog defense shut down the War Eagles in the second half - holding Wakulla's vaunted offense to just 44 total yards in the final two quarters and forcing three second-half turnovers.

Taylor County did not commit a turnover, while forcing three Wakulla fumbles and one interception.

The Bulldog defense nearly had one more fumble recovery in the third quarter, as two different Bulldogs had a chance at recovering the loose ball, but Wakulla fell on the fumble and on the very next play converted a 3rd and 24 play with a 27yard TD pass.

After managing just two first downs and being shut

An illegal procedure penalty pushed Taylor back, but Darrell Cook followed blocks by Jake Barr, Dylan Strickland, Garrett Massey and Joseph Trujillo to get down to the 1.

Wakulla fumbled and lost a snap on the very next play to give the Bulldogs another chance.

This time the Taylor offense converted, as Art Nelson ran for 3 yards, and Jalen Oliver made a great 10yard catch for a first down at the 2-yard line.

Nelson was stuffed for no gain on 1st and goal, showed but Wentworth tremendous guts following the left side of his offensive line and punching the ball into the endzone on a QB keeper the next play.

Grant Parker made both of his PATs to pull the Bulldogs within 20-14 with 5:26 to play in the game.

Ward tried another pooch kickoff, but this one was returned 34 yards to midfield and the Bulldog defense could not stop the War Eagles from running the ball and running out the clock by picking up three straight first downs.

Wentworth threw one touchdown and ran for another, but struggled passing the ball, completing 13 of 29 passes for just 85 yards and 1 TD.

Wentworth (10 carries, 33 yards, 1 TD) was the Bulldogs' second leading rusher (with most of his yards coming on scrambles when he was chased out of the pocket), behind Darrell Cook, who had 9 carries for 38 yards.

Art Nelson finished with 6 carries for 25 yards, while Jermaine Watkins had 2 carries for 12 yards.

Moral Stephens finished with 7 catches for 45 yards and 1 TD, while Watkins had 3 catches for 18 yards. Grant Parker made an 11yard reception for a key first down, Oliver made a key 10-yard catch and Chance Rodgers was held to just 1 catch for 1 yard and only 1 carry for 2 yards.

Penalties hurt the Bulldogs on both offense and defense. Taylor was flagged 13 times for 95 yards, with four of those helping Wakulla keep drives alive by giving the War Eagles a first down. Offensive penalties also pushed the Bulldogs back on key drives down near the goal line.

The game started off great for Taylor, just three plays into the first quarter, as Jordan White made backto-back run stops and Justin Cruse forced a fumble that was recovered by Watkins at the Wakulla 33-yard line.

A procedure penalty on the Bulldogs pushed Taylor back to the 38, and Watkins picked up 7 yards on a screen pass. Oliver dropped a 2nd down pass and M. Stephens managed to gain 3 yards before Wentworth's 4th down pass bounced off Chance Rodgers' hands on what appeared to be a sure touchdown on a seam pass down the middle.

Wakulla completed a long 53-yard pass down the middle, but Davonta Fudge and Luke Kallschmidt made big tackles before Johnny Anderson punished a War Eagle ball carrier on 3rd down and forced a punt.

The Bulldogs started from their own 2-yard line and managed a first down on Cook's 12-yard run behind the left side of his line, but after Watkins picked up 8 yards on a jet sweep the drive stalled due to a penalty, run for no gain and a short pass.

Wentworth boomed a 48yard punt, but Wakulla's speedy returner made several Bulldogs miss on a 58-yard punt return that led to a 1-yard TD run four plays later.

Wakulla's 2-point try failed to keep the score 6-0 with 37 seconds left in the first quarter.

one more first down (on a 12-yard pass to M. Stephens) in the second quarter, before being forced to punt on the following two possessions.

Wakulla scored on another short run midway through the second quarter on a drive kept alive by a roughing the passer penalty and an offsides penalty against the Bulldogs.

Attorney: 'McNutt was afraid for himself, for his wife'

DON'T SHOOT ME

"The defendant (McNutt) took the life of Lee Spees Jr., shooting him in the stomach with a shotgun... he also took the life of Lee Spees Sr. While Lee Spees Sr. was trying to get away, the defendant shot him in the back with a shotgun. He must have been aiming high, because one of the pellets struck Lee Spees Sr. in the back of his head, ricocheted around, cutting his brain, ultimately killing him. He shot David Spees with the shotgun, hitting him in the shoulder. He (David) ran into woods and ultimately survived. While Lee Spees Jr. was lying on the ground, begging for his life, the defendant stood over him and shot at him again. This is murder, plain and simple."

However, the picture McNutt's defense attorney Cliff Davis sought to paint for the jury was not as simple, casting the defendant's late wife, Diane McNutt, as a diminutive woman "whose mouth was 10 times bigger than her body. She was a contentious person."

Davis indicated that Diane McNutt's argumentative nature contributed to the verbal dispute that day which ended in bloodshed.

"Diane was being bullied five individuals... surrounded by them. Mr. McNutt was afraid for himself, for his dog and for his wife. He was afraid something was going to happen. She started screaming, 'Help me, Paul' and 'Aren't you going to do something?' He felt his life was in danger. He felt her life was in danger," Davis related in his opening

He continued by stating that McNutt was not familiar with guns and, in fact, did not own any himself. The guns he used in the shooting had belonged to his wife's former husband, Davis said.

"Mr. McNutt has a history of seizures and when he heard what he constituted as threats, he could feel an illness coming on him. He has no recollection of what happened. He remembers he needed to put the dog up (in the house) and get his medication. When he came back to himself, he was slumped down (outside) by a tree," Davis said.

"Once you hear the evidence, you will find him not guilty," Davis concluded.

It was left to eyewitnesses to fill in the blanks left from the time McNutt walked out of his home armed with a shotgun and a 9 mm handgun, to when police arrived and took him into custody.

The state's first three witnesses — whose testimony filled much of Tuesday's calendarcolored in the stark lines painted during the opening statements.

First to take the stand was Connie Spees, who lost her husband and oldest son to the carnage. She also faces daily the wounds born by her younger son, David.

It was the sound of raised voices that first caught her attention that late December afternoon.

"I couldn't distinguish what they were saying, so I went out closer. Our lawyer had told us if we could tape the confrontations it would be better in court, so I was taping as I was walking that wav.'

Spees classified argument as "very verbal," a fact verified by the playing of the rough video footage.

Grainy and shot from distance, nevertheless the tone and focus of the argument was captured loud and clear in the videoownership of a 30-foot strip of easement running down the McNutt's property and leading to the Spees home.

"Give me $10,000 and you can own it," Diane McNutt is clearly heard shouting to Lee Spees Sr., Lee Spees Jr., David Spees and his fiancée, Dana Ellison.

While Paul McNutt the video, Connie Spees testified he was standing on his side of the easement/ road and did not enter into the argument.

"He never said a word," she said.

At one point in the argument, Ellison's mother (Hazel Pridgeon) arrived on the scene.

The verbal argument continued as Lee Spees and his sons began pulling up PVC posts Paul McNutt had placed along the easement (on the Spees side of the hurry. I stopped to talk with my son (Lee Jr.) and then went through the woods to David. The EMTs would not let me near my husband. I got close enough to see blood all over Johnson-Stripling Road. I kept trying to tell them he was a bleeder because he took a lot of coumadin. I went back to Dave and told him he was going to be okay. He just wanted a drink of water to get the dirt out of his mouth."

Under cross-examination, Davis asked Spees to road).

"Diane was hollering all sorts of stuff. Paul left with the dog. Then Paul came out from the front (of their residence) and he had already raised the long gun (to shoot) when I saw him. I don't know how long it was between when he walked off and came back out," (Connie) Spees said.

"He aimed and he shot. I saw the flashes. I saw my husband stumble and fall. My son was right there in the ditch. I saw him run. My other son was down and I saw (Paul) pull a handgun and shoot him again. I called 911 and told them we needed an ambulance and to compare physical size of her husband and sons against McNutt. He then asked where Diane McNutt was standing when the shooting started.

"When I saw my husband fall, she was the least of my worries," Spees replied.

Davis then walked Spees through a timeline of the easement dispute, which went back a few years when the McNutts purchased the property.

That was the first of July. By October we were having the police called on us," she related.

nature of complaints (coming from the McNutts) ranged from driving too fast down the dirt driveway to driving up and down the driveway too many times.

"We called the police to make reports and they told us this was a civil matter and to take it to court, so we did. We had a ruling from a judge that they could not hinder us from using the southwest boundary of the easement. We had the right to use it. We had a backhoe and kept it up," Spees said.

David Spees' fiancée Dana Ellison next testified she was present when the argument began and saw it escalate.

"I went out to get them to come in for supper. She (Diane) was arguing with them, but then turned her attention to me. She was threatening to have my children taken away from me, so I called my mother to come over for support," Ellison said.

She also testified that Paul McNutt never said "one word" during the encounter but that she saw him shoot the three men.

"My first instinct was to go to them to help, but my mother knocked me on the ground and would not let me go down there (where the injured men were)," she said.

David Spees took the stand shortly after lunch, expressing his extreme nervousness in speaking in front of a crowd.

In a halting voice that grew stronger as his testimony continued, Spees identified McNutt as the man who shot him, his brother and his father. He shared how the injuries he sustained that day will remain with him for life.

"I lost the use of my left arm. I have three bullets under my shoulder. The pain in my left hand is amplified by 10. The only way I can explain it is if you hit your hand with a hammer, that pain, that pain is what I have and it never goes away," he said.

Under cross-examination, Spees said the McNutts had called the police on his family in the months proceeding the shooting "so many times I lost count. I was tired of being harassed by the bullies. When he (Paul McNutt) bought he property, he said we were all Christians and should be able to get along. He said there was no problem with me grading the driveway and maintaining it."

"So there was nothing that tipped you off that something like this might happen?" Davis asked.

"No. The few dealings we had with them before then were alright," he responded.

"Did he appear deliberate when he came out of the house with the gun and shot you and your father and your brother?" Davis asked.

"I would say he did it in threat order-my brother was bigger than me. My dad was closest to him and my brother the farthest and I was in the middle. He looked blank or p----d off. But when he stood over my brother he didn't look that blank anymore. He was out to kill us.

shouldn't happened. The court order said a deputy would be called to come out and witness him (Paul) removing the posts... but when I called the sheriff, they said there was nothing they could do. So Dad made the decision to enforce the court order. It was not the wisest decision,"

"And you got the result of that," Davis said.

"We got the result of it? I don't see pulling up PVC posts should result in leaving me maimed for life and my dad and my brother dead," Spees said.

"You would agree the whole argument senseless?" Davis said.

"Yes, sir," Spees replied. "The straw that stirred the whole situation was Diane McNutt?" Davis said.

"Yes, sir. As always," Spees said.

Testimony continuing as of presstime Tuesday and was expected to stretch through Thursday afternoon.
