Freeze watch for Thanksgiving a.m.

Temps will plunge

State and local emergency management officials are urging Taylor County residents and visitors to stay alert and exercise caution through the upcoming holiday after a storm system moved through the region Tuesday followed by a cold air mass forecast to bring sub-freezing temperatures to North Florida and cold wind chills across the state tonight (Wednesday) through Friday night.

The storms brought more than two inches of rain Tuesday coupled with wind gusts in excess of 35 mph, according to the National Weather Service (NWS) station at Perry-Foley Airport, with additional

Nelson is honored as 2013 Rural Physician of the Year

The Florida Rural Health Association (FRHA) has named Dr. Miles V. Nelson of Perry the 2013 Rural Physician of the Year.

FRHA's Rural Physician of the Year Award recognizes a medical doctor for leadership in bringing health services to rural populations.

"Rural physicians are the backbone of rural health care. With its annual award, FRHA honors a rural physician who works to keep Floridians healthy," said FRHA President Sharon Schmidt.

Dr. Nelson joined the medical staff at Doctors' Memorial Hospital (DMH) in 1989 after completing his surgical residency, including a cardiovascular fellowship at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn.

"Dr. Nelson was looking for a challenge and we were looking for skill and a long-term commitment to our rural community. Now, some 25 years later, he is still here, still committed and his skill is still superior," said DMH CEO Geri Forbes, who nominated Nelson for the award.

City takes belt to baggy pants?

The Perry City Council looks to kick off the new year tackling two polar opposite issues: baggy pants and ethics training.

Councilwoman Shirlie Hampton initiated discussion on both topics at the council's last meeting.

"What can we do about baggy pants and people wearing pajamas to the store?" Hampton asked.

City Manager Bob Brown referred the council to a resolution adopted in 2009 "that applied only to city buildings. We can refuse service to anyone who comes into a city office. However, we found at the time this resolution was drafted, we couldn't do anything to enforce it on public property. The council that adopted the resolution urged local business owners to adopt the same standards...it can be dealt with as a private property issue."

"I would like to see us enforce this resolution, even it means we have to buy belts," Hampton said.

City Attorney Ray Curtis said the current city resolution "has no teeth. It is just an encouragement for people not to wear baggy pants."

While other cities have attempted to put ordinances in place addressing the issues, "they are not surviving legal challenges. There were some cases where the NAACP and the ACLU were the organizations challenging the ordinances, saying they were unconstitutional," Curtis noted.

Taylor County Commissioner Malcolm Page was elected chairman of the board during the commission's annual re-organization held last week.

Page was elected in a split 3-2 vote over former Chair Pam Feagle, who served during the previous year. It was the first time in recent memory that there was more than one nominee for the position.

The meeting began with Feagle passing the gavel to County Clerk Annie Mae Murphy to oversee the election.

Commissioner Pat Patterson then nominated Page, who has served as vice-chair for the past two years and is completing the first year of his third term in office. Commissioner Jim Moody then nominated Feagle, who is rounding up the third year of her first term.

Upon closing the nominations, Murphy asked the commissioners to vote for chairperson, with Page joining Patterson and Commissioner Jody DeVane in voting for him and Feagle joining Moody in voting for her.

Murphy then passed the gavel to Page to oversee the rest of the re-organization meeting and he opened nominations for vice-chair.

Page conducted the election for vice-chair differently than Murphy had for chairman, asking for a yes/no vote on each nominee in the order of their nomination.

Malcolm Page

Feagle was then elected vice-chair 4-1, with Patterson voting against, stating that, "I oppose because I nominated Commissioner DeVane."

Moving on to other re-organization business, commissioners agreed to keep their meeting calendar the same for the upcoming year, but beginning in January 2014, they will push back the starting time from 5:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. The change arose from a request from DeVane, who stated his work schedule made it difficult at times to arrive at the meetings by 5:30.

Steinhatchee American Legion outlines its December projects

Dear Editor:

On Nov. 11, the American Legion Post #291, Steinhatchee, honored all of their veterans with a very nice ham dinner.

The post also chose this memorable date to honor some 31 of its members who received certificates of appreciation from national. These veterans served our great country during the Korean area. Auxiliary President Terry Chase presented pocket flags and poppies to each honoree.

Our post, auxiliary and Sons of the American Legion continue to grow with new members signing up each week. We invite all eligible veterans and their families to join. For more information on membership requirements, stop by the post or call 352-498-8177. We are reminding those members who have not paid their dues to do so as soon as you can.

Our "snow birds" are coming down now and we certainly enjoy seeing and visiting with them when they stop by the post.

We have many functions going on at the post, including Bingo, karaoke, pool, dinners and auctions. Right now, the post is closed on Mondays, however, starting Dec. 1, the post will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. Our meetings are held at the post on the second Thursday of each month beginning at 7 p.m. For those of you planning on attending a meeting, you are invited to come at 6 p.m. for a delicious dinner put on just for you.

We appreciate each and every one of you and look forward to seeing all of you at our meetings. Don't forget to bring a toy for our "Secret Santa" project so that all of Steinhatchee's children will have a joyous and happy Christmas.

Remember our armed forces and veterans everywhere in your thoughts and prayers daily.

For God and country,

Jo-Ann Griffin

Seek out energy-efficient gifts on this Black Friday

Submitted by the FLORIDA PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Though some naysayers claim that Black Friday shopping is no longer an American tradition, shoppers are still expected to invade the malls the day after Thanksgiving. For those braving the crowds on Friday, the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) recommends adding "energy-efficient gifts" to your holiday list.

This year, the PSC has offered monthly energy conservation tips to help residents reach a 500 kilowatt-hour energy savings goal by December. The PSC Energy Saving Challenge is a tribute to Florida's 2013 Viva 500 celebration that will save customers money and save the state's resources. This month, the PSC reminds holiday shoppers to consider "energy-efficient gifts" when snagging deals this Friday, perusing reductions online during Cyber Monday, or hunting holiday bargains another day.

"Don't let your energy-saving efforts fall by the wayside amid all the holiday festivities," said PSC Chairman Ronald A. Brisé. "Whether you want to help your gift recipient save money or just to give the latest 'cool' gadget, there are plenty of energy-efficient gift options available. And, your gift will keep on giving with savings throughout the year."

• Electronics are popular gifts, and you can fulfill your giftee's wishes while also helping them save energy by purchasing ENERGY STAR qualified electronics.

• Computer and office equipment and appliances also receive ENERGY STAR labeling, so do your homework before buying.

• Rechargeable batteries (and chargers) and compact fluorescent bulbs may not be at the top of anyone's wish list, but they make great stocking stuffers and the savings will be appreciated.

• Time and skills are always great gifts. Help someone on your list complete a "do-it-your-self home energy audit," or help air seal their house, install insulation, or insulate their old water heater tank.

Here are a few ways you can save energy during the holidays:

• When trimming your tree, why not try LED (light-emitting diode) holiday lights? LED light strings last longer and are safer to use than traditional incandescent lights.

• Also, when your holiday to-dos stack up, combine multiple errands into one trip to be more fuel efficient.

Look for December's PSC Energy Saving Challenge wrap-up and visit our website to find more energy saving tips at http://www.floridapsc.com/consumers/tips.

"Florida's reputation as a one-of-a-kind cultural destination is a testament to its diverse, innovative, and resourceful residents," said Secretary of State Ken Detzner.

"The PSC's energy challenge will help future generations of Floridians enjoy the great state we call home, and we welcome them as a Viva Florida 500 partner."

HAPPY THANKSGIVING, AMERICA...

Midweek Muddle

Guess who's coming for dinner?

By SUSAN H. LINCOLN

When we moved to our small corner of the country, for which I am grateful, we were greeted by the aboriginals: creatures great and small who lived in the dense woods and had never been disturbed by man.

Among those creatures were slimy lizards I eventually identified as skinks. Strongly resembling snakes, but with legs, these skinks moved through the yard and patio like lightning, whipping their black tails with blue racing stripes as they found cracks and crevices in which to hide. I was confident they were emissaries of the devil until I found their kind listed among the animals God created, within the pages of the Bible. I can only assume my skinks are direct descendants of those who went two-by-two on Noah's Ark.

That gave me pause, but not for long.

Skinks may be God's handiwork, but they creep me out—especially the reprehensible brown, red-headed species which is much larger than its black cousins. One in particular has stalked me, emerging each spring when I'm enjoying a book on the deck. This year brought a repeat performance with the skink zooming past my feet while the red-cockaded woodpeckers stripped the wooden boards of my house, in their search for carpenter bees.

It was a moment of awakening for me. I've always fancied myself a follower of St. Francis of Assisi, but I must finally admit that I am not. I actually wished the woodpecker was stuffed and the skink was dead in the ditch and those are not feelings befitting the patron saint of the animals, whom I've always admired.

Having faced yet another shortcoming, I was surprised I had failed to notice a change in the environment we call home. Last week, the husband approached me with a serious look on his face and asked if I'd noticed the sudden absence of skinks.

"Well, you know…" I said, considering the length of time since one had caused me to gasp in fear, taking six months off my life.

Then in the tone of a parent explaining the death of the family pet to a child, he said, "Have you wondered why?"

About that time, the son shouted from the next room.

"Hey, Mama, there's something for you in the chair by the basketball goal."

Since that's where many deliveries land, I asked, "Is it the Christmas cards?"

"No, it's not the Christmas cards," he said. "You'd better come look."

Someone sent us oranges, I imagined. There's a gift on the doorstep, too big to wrest, I dreamed. How wonderful this season is.

I approached the door, only minutes after one guest had left, and a snake had curled up in the chair, looking very comfortable.

"Ohmigosh," I said, looking at him through the glass doors. "What's he doing sitting in my chair?"

"He's eyeing that green tree frog," the husband said, trying to explain (again) the birds and the bees, the skinks and the snakes, the circle of life.

"That's too close to the house,' I said. "You should kill him," I declared, looking at both men who own guns. Why do they prefer defenseless deer, instead of wicked home invaders like skinks and snakes?

"It's an oak snake," they said, almost in unison. "You don't want to kill an oak snake."

"Yes, I do," I said with all sincerity.

Again, the husband assumed a parental tone. "He eats skinks, and that's probably why we haven't been seeing any."

I was confounded. I don't want a snake in my chair, but I have enjoyed the absence of skinks, and suddenly I couldn't make sense of it all.

The circle of life.

The ark.

The skinks.

St. Francis of Assisi.

Those damnable squirrels.

The beautiful yet destructive woodpeckers.

All creatures great and small, the Lord God made them all.

Thanksgiving.

"I can't be grateful for snakes," I admitted to the husband.

"He's just doing his job," the husband said quietly, and I realized that I still resist being parented.

"In all things give thanks," had been the Bible verse of the week. After all, it's Thanksgiving. How can we dare not notice our good fortune?

So I gave thanks that the snake hadn't bitten me for I would surely die of a heart attack, if not poisoning, and nobody would be home, nor would they notice I was missing until there was nothing to eat and they found me propped up, with blue lips, in that chair.

While feeling such desperation, I heard a sound in a distance which might have been as comforting as a choir of angels.

It was an owl, closing in on his territory.

I stood there as his hooting echoed through the trees, growing closer and closer, accentuated by his magnificent wing span.

I looked at the snake, through glass. He looked cocky and invincible, yet he was completely focused on this prey.

Then I looked toward the hooting, and found that the owl was also completely focused on his prey… and it wasn't the frog.

I gave thanks as I asked the snake in a friendly tone, "Guess who's coming for dinner?"

Visit downtown & win!

Residents are invited to visit downtown and register to win a gift basket filled with items valued at more than $700. There is no cost to enter and forms are at all downtown businesses, many of which will be open for Black Friday (Nov. 29). The basket is currently making the rounds for display and can be seen at The Fair Store today (Wednesday). Its next scheduled stop is Java Depot. Shown above are The Fair Store's (l to r) Lindsey Vaughn, Dean Faulkenberry and Shannon Parker.

NELSON

When Nelson joined Doctors' Memorial in Taylor County, he was the only surgeon and one of three physicians in the community. Before Life Flight transport services were available, Nelson personally responded to trauma incidents at the scene and was ready to receive patients at the hospital. He has served as chief of staff several times during his 25 year tenure.

"Dr. Nelson was instrumental in securing Life Flight services at DMH and continues to serve as our EMS physician director," Forbes said. "He has always sacrificed personal time with his family in order to meet the needs of his patients and our hospital," she said.

"To this present day, Dr. Nelson remains true to his personal mission of making sure that quality medical services are available to the citizens of Taylor County and the surrounding region," Forbes said. "He loves what he does and we love that he has chosen to take care of us for so many years. Physicians of his caliber, dedication and work ethic are such eternal treasures."

Nelson was presented the award at the 20th annual FRHA Educational Summit Thursday, Nov. 21, in Gainesville.

FRHA is a statewide organization of physicians, rural hospitals, clinics, rural governments, educational institutes and Area Health Education Centers.

Council schedules training on ethics, Sunshine Law

BAGGY PANTS

"Other cities do have them. There's one in Georgia. I am willing to go that length myself," Hampton said, making a motion to have Curtis move forward with drafting an ordinance to address the problem.

Councilwoman Venita Woodfaulk offered a second and it passed 4-1. (Councilman Mike Deming voted against the motion; Mayor Daryll Gunter, Vice Mayor Don Cook, Woodfaulk and Hampton all voted in favor.)

The council is expected to have an ordinance for review at its first meeting in December; however, it would require an additional public hearing that would not be held until after the new year.

"So it wouldn't go into effect until January," Gunter said.

"That would be good—time to let people know," Hampton said.

"And maybe get belts for Christmas," Gunter joked.

"Or we can throw a couple of belts into the police cars and give them out," Hampton said.

In further discussions, Hampton asked that the council receive training on ethics and what is expected of council members.

"We need to know how to conduct ourselves," Hampton said.

Councilman Don Cook agreed with Hampton's recommendation, noting "it has been a long time since we have had training in either ethics or the Sunshine Law. It would be beneficial to all of us."

The council tasked Curtis with putting together a presentation that could be reviewed during a special meeting to be scheduled in January.

Board votes to change meeting times to 6 p.m.

Regular meetings will continue to be held on the first Monday and third Tuesday of each month beginning with monthly workshops on the fourth Tuesday. Due to the holidays, the commission will hold one board meeting next month, on Tuesday, Dec. 17.

Discussing county personnel, Page passed the gavel to Feagle to make a motion to retain the services of County Attorney Conrad Bishop.

Patterson seconded and the measure passed unanimously.

The commission agreed that a vote to retain County Administrator Jack Brown was not necessary since he is under contract.

Scholarship fund raises $630 at FFF

The Taylor County Gator Club members, who worked a booth at the recent Florida Forest Festival, report that $630 was generated for the scholarship fund. "We are so thankful to all who contributed," Betty Culbreath said for the group.

June Evans won the $100 dollar bill from the club.

Three scholarships were awarded by the club in 2013, two to James K. Clover and Jeda Holmes. The third, in memory of George A. Collins Jr. and Ruby Nell Collins, was sponsored by their sons, George and Dane Collins, and awarded to Austin Wynn.

Roseheads get 'royal treatment' at ACV

On Saturday, Nov. 2, 15 members of Roseheads of Perry, chapter 2207 of the Red Hat Society, along with three guests, enjoyed the day in Advent Christian Village (ACV) at Dowling Park.

The ladies were greeted at the Advent Village Hall by two well-known Perry friends--Peggy Eckel, who now resides in the River Woods neighborhood of ACV and Deidra Newman, who serves as the director of marketing as ACV prepares for expansion. Each lady was given a tote bag containing informational material, a DVD and an ink pen.

After touring some of the grounds, the ladies were escorted to a private room in the Phillips Dining Center where they were treated to a brunch of sparkling apple cider, quiche, fresh fruit, ginger cake, coffee and tea.

The November Committee of Jeanne Hilgendorf, Marne Helberg, Esther Ehle and Cindi Bishop continued the fun by presenting Cheryl Gregory with a birthday gift and drawing names for door prizes. Eckel and Newman then conducted a drawing for a week-end in a suite at the lodge at ACV. Everyone congratulated Cynthia Sanhein when her name was called.

Loading again on the bus, the ladies were transported to the Village Square where Market Days was in progress and the shops were open. There was time for lots of browsing and shopping before boarding the bus for a complete guided tour of the campus of about 800 retirees built along the Suwannee River.

Eckel and Newman explained the history of this community which began as the American Advent Christian Home and Orphanage 100 years ago.

The location of the historic Suwannee River was pointed out at various times during the bus tour. Places that sparked the most interest and surprise were the gym, the heated pool, golf cart and walking trails, and the multi-level dock on the river.

Returning to Advent Village Hall, the Red Hats were given additional information about the expansion of ACV and a snack-pack before returning home.

"While the day was full of wonderful surprises, seeing that Advent Christian Village is so much more than assisted living and nursing home care was the greatest realization; it is an active community of caring people," commented Cheryl Kay Gregory for the group.

The next meeting is slated for Dec. 7.

Members were reminded that dues for 2014 are due by Dec. 31.

Wrapping up September and October, too...

A committee of Debi Limoges, Martelle Shiver, and Cindi Bishop not only planned a luncheon for Sat., Sept. 28, , but included a Red Hat Yard Sale as part of the day's enjoyment.

Nineteen members and 3 guests got together at Fiddler's Restaurant in Steinhatchee for a good time together. Ladies sold and bought a variety of Red Hat items from jewelry and scarves to copies of Red Hatter Matters magazine. Treasurer Debi Limoges began collecting 2014 dues from members.

No luncheon was held in the month of Oct. so that members could attend the many Forest Festival activities.

United Way of the Big Bend will hold stakeholder meeting Dec. 4

United Way of the Big Bend (UWBB) is undergoing a strategic planning process to ensure that the agency "delivers the greatest possible return" for the money invested by organizations and citizens across the Big Bend.

"It is important to us that as we undertake this process, we engage our stakeholders about your aspirations and concerns," Campaign Associate Glenda Hamby said.

"To get us moving down this path, we are hosting a series of conversations with a variety of stakeholder groups to discuss and identify local issues that we, as a community, can begin to address collectively."

In Taylor County, the community is invited to attend a stakeholder meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 4, at the Alton H. Wentworth Administrative Complex from 8:30 to 10 a.m. The complex is located at 318 North Clark St.

Taylor district offers new 'Path' to learning for speech therapy

To eliminate speech-language pathologist (SLP) travel time and keep Taylor County School District students with diverse speech needs in class, Taylor County School District has implemented PresenceLearning for online speech therapy and other special education-related services for K-12 students.

Approximately 50 students in grades K-12 from both public and private school are working with a remote SLP during online speech therapy sessions.

Some 13 of those local students served attend Steinhatchee Elementary School.

"Our district SLPs had a 45-minute trek to and from Steinhatchee, which made them lose an hour and a half of therapy time," said Ramona Patrick, supervisor of Exceptional Student Education and Student Services. "With the help of PresenceLearning, these students use online speech therapy in the time it would take an SLP to travel to the school. It is more efficient and cost-effective."

The online speech therapy program gives students the ability to complete therapy lessons after school or at home to keep them in class with their peers during instructional time.

Students who attend private schools in Perry also have the ability to use PresenceLearning on-site or after school.

"The students love it and the parents love it even more because their children are having their needs met and are making progress," said Patrick. "A high school student's parent told me himself how happy he is with the online speech therapy. He hears his son, who has significant speech disabilities, laughing and joking with the online therapist. His son is able to truly interact and connect with the therapist."

"By partnering with PresenceLearning, the Taylor district can fill staffing gaps related to acute and chronic SLP and OT shortages, reduce high caseloads for onsite personnel, reduce their backlog of assessments, improve student outcomes and become more efficient. PresenceLearning also offers access to technical specialists, as well as culturally and linguistically diverse speech-language pathologists and occupational therapists," Patrick noted.

Haunting for a cause!

Aaron and Salena Fedor expressed their thanks to friends, co-workers and community members for helping with the annual Haunted Halloween Trail benefitting Guardian ad Litem. "We had a wonderful turnout and were able to raise money for the 'Voices for Children,' Taylor County Guardian ad Litem for a second year. Thank you to the Josh Tedder family for your donation of corn to help set up our trail. We welcome everyone who helped and all who attended the trail to come back again next Halloween to help raise money for our community's children," the couple said. They are pictured (top) presenting a check for $350 to Guardian ad Litem's Linda Peacock, center.

The Awakening CHRIST

Have you ever noticed how quickly your camp fire springs up and burns brightly with a little stirring?

Well it seems that Great Spirit is busily stirring things up around the world today and people are being forced to decide just what it is that they want in their future. It's human nature to relax and become complacent when things are flowing smoothly for them. A little prodding can be a good thing.

Many of us have already decided that we want to live in a world where real friendship, caring, and sharing are valued, where honesty, and integrity are proudly displayed. In other words, We have embraced the teachings of our Elder Brother and seek to express the Christ Spirit in our lives.

Once we begin to shed the limiting beliefs that have held us captive for so long, free ourselves of the feelings of guilt for just acting as humans, we can start to assume our true identity as brothers and sisters to Jesus. Jesus the man who demonstrated that the wonderful Spirit of the Christ within is eager to be expressed.

It is just a matter of choosing the "Right Hand Path". This is strictly a personal choice, and does not need to be announced to anyone. It can be your own little secret, at least until those around you begin to comment about how much happier and peaceful you seem to be.

All our worldly troubles don't just melt away, but we deal with them more calmly and without fear.
Fear is a trait of the ego. You, as pure Spirit, have nothing to fear from anything. You, in reality are part of the infinite Spirit that men refer to as God. The Great Creator of all that is within which we dwell.

The ego expresses all the negative aspects of life for it is only concerned for its' own survival. It becomes angry when it feels threatened in any way, it is jealous, envious, greedy. It lies, cheats, and gossips. The ego seeks power and glory and tricks us into believing that it is who we are.

All the while, our true self is quietly observing and nudging us gently when it deems it necessary.

We also have wonderful friends in the Spirit world who are eager to assist us in dealing with this earthly life if we only acknowledge their presence and ask for help. Most people think of them as Guardian Angels; I call mine my Spiritual Helpers.

I'm going to let you in on a secret. I wouldn't be writing this article if my Spiritual Helpers hadn't encouraged me to do so when I got up this Sunday morning.

Jesus once said,"I of myself can do nothing, it's the Father within that doeth the works".

Right there he revealed a truth that has been disregarded by the religionists for hundreds of years.

Jesus the man was a temporary vehicle for the expression of Spirit, just as are you and I. He never had any intention of starting a new religion; his purpose was to free people of the wrong teachings of the existing religion.

He most certainly did not want to be worshipped. His message was "If you have seen me, you have seen the Father." Also he said,"I am in thee and thou art in me", meaning that the Christ Spirit, believe it or not, dwells within Each of us, just waiting to be expressed.

All together, let's ask to be guided to be the best children of the Creator that we can be and love one another. In Christ we are one.

Peace, Love and Harmony,
John D. Alexander

Happy Birthday Brother

You were given a task, in which you didn't ask
But you stepped right in to assist
Not knowing what to do or say sometimes
Yet you stayed right in the midst
You hold your head high even when we cried, in our losses and tribulations
You've helped bury our loved ones and tended church affairs and many other situations
Whenever we call, you come to see what is wrong and what needs to be done
I know daddy's proud that you're his son and of the man and deacon you've become
So I want to say "I love you" from the bottom of my heart
Because you've brought "our" family so very far.

Happy Birthday Big Brother

Residents urged to protect pets, plants, pipes

Forecast calls for freezing lows next two nights

PLUNGE

rainfall expected overnight. The county was under a Tornado Watch for most of the day as the system moved through with officials warning of the possibility of severe weather as well.

As for the cold air mass, a large portion of northern Florida will be affected, and temperatures could reach the mid 30s over interior portions of Central Florida, officials said.

Locally, the forecast calls for a low of 31 tonight with the high only reaching into the mid 50s Thanksgiving Day, followed by another sub-freezing low of 31 Thursday night.

According to the forecast, temperatures are expected to moderate further into the holiday weekend with a high Friday in the mid 60s before dropping to the low 40s that evening.

The NWS typically issues freeze warnings when sub-freezing temperatures are imminent or highly likely for at least two hours. These conditions can kill crops and other sensitive vegetation, officials warned. The elderly and the homeless are especially vulnerable to the cold, and cold weather shelter opening criteria may be met in many locations.

Breezy conditions will also bring an elevated threat for rip currents to Florida's panhandle through Tuesday and along Atlantic Coast beaches through Sunday. Additionally, the wildfire danger is elevated due to low humidity values, strong winds and fairly dry vegetation across the state.

Residents and visitors to the state should monitor local media outlets for local warnings and ensure that their NOAA All Hazards Weather Radio alert settings are turned on, officials urged.

Thanksgiving travelers are also being asked to use caution on area roadways during heavy rain and practice fire safety with the incoming cold temperatures later this week.

Residents and visitors should remember the "Five P's" of cold weather safety: protecting people, protecting plants, protecting pets, protecting exposed pipes, and practicing fire safety.

The Florida Division of Emergency Management (FDEM) offers the following safety measures:

- Stay indoors and use safe heating sources.
- Be aware of the fire danger from space heaters and candles. Keep such devices away from all flammable materials such as curtains and furniture, and install recommended smoke and carbon monoxide detectors.
- Indoors: Do not use charcoal or other fuel-burning devices, such as grills that produce carbon monoxide. Install at least one carbon monoxide detector per floor in your home.
- Outdoors: Stay dry and in wind-protected areas.
- Wear multiple layers of loose-fitting, warm clothing.
- Drink non-alcoholic fluids.
- Shelter or bring inside animals, especially pets.
