WICKED WATERWAYS: 13 DROWNINGS IN AREA

Officials are encouraging locals to consider swimming lessons if they plan to be around water. This comes after Jacksonville has seen over ten drowning this summer alone.

Since the month began, there have been three drownings - a 39-year-old man canoeing in Cowpen Lake in Putnam County, a 64-year-old partially clothed man found dead in the ocean off Fernandina Beach and a 9-year-old girl who was a swimming pool.

In August there were more deaths. An eight month-old drowned in a swimming pool in Oceanway. On Aug. 24, an 8-month-old baby drowned in an Oceanway swimming pool. A 53 year-old man involved in a boating accident drowned on Rodman Lake three days after the drowning of an autistic 9 year-old boy in a Live Oak pond.

On August 5, a 20 year-old man drowned after a rip current pulled him at Mickler's Landing. The following day a 19 year-old drowned swimming across Black Creek. Just one day after that incident, a one year-old boy drowned in a pool in Hastings.

On July 26, a man in his early 20s drowned after driving a golf cart into a ditch with water on Fleming Island. On June 13, the day before an 18 year-old drowned in St. Johns River, a 59 year-old man died after being involved in a boating accident on Rodman Lake.

Another drowning occurred when a 29 year-old man drowned on Little Talbot Island.

Teen Shot, Robbery Suspects Sought by Jacksonville Police

The Jacksonville Sheriff's Office is asking for the community's assistance in identifying two Robbery suspects.

On August 31, 2014 at around 7:00 p.m., the Sheriff's Office responded to the area of 1100 Murray Drive in reference to an armed robbery with injuries.

Investigation revealed the two suspects robbed the victim and then shot him in the back prior to fleeing on foot. The suspects, both described as black males, are believed to frequent the Murray Hill area and possibly reside in that area.

Cee Lo Sorry for 'rape' remarks

Grammy winner and 'The Voice' judge Cee Lo Green is apologizing following his online remarks about rape. This comes after he was placed on probation for giving a woman ecstasy before returning to her hotel.

"People who have really been raped REMEMBER!!!" he wrote. Another read: "When someone brakes on a home there is broken glass where is your plausible proof that anyone was raped."

"If someone is passed out they're not even WITH you consciously! so WITH Implies consent," he also wrote.

He later apologized saying, "Those comments were idiotic, untrue and not what I believe."

$40,000 for Learn2Earn from AT&T

Learn2Earn, which provides a week of college admissions counseling and a residential college experience for first-generation and low-income prospective college students each summer, received a $40,000 contribution from AT&T to support its programming.

"Learn2Earn has proven that immersing students in activities can increase their chances for a successful future", said Heather Duncan, AT&T Florida Regional Director. "I am proud that Learn2 Earn, with our support, will expand this opportunity to more students in Jacksonville."

Since 2012, Mayor

public-spirited business community, and we're grateful to AT&T for its generous investment in support of our young people and their future."

The 2014 student cohort will continue their college readiness efforts throughout the year with quarterly seminars designed to keep the students engaged as they prepare for the college admissions process throughout the year. As one of Mayor Brown's signature education initiatives, Learn2Earn's goal is to raise the percentage of college educated adults in Jacksonville and prepare students to join the workforce ready to meet the challenges of a global economy. Though only 24.7 percent of adults in Jacksonville hold a bachelor's degree or higher, 93 percent of Learn2Earn alumni who have graduated from high school have matriculated at a college or university since completing the program.

MICHAEL BROWN LAID TO REST

It's the image that spoke a thousand words - Michael Brown Sr. screaming out in pain as his son's coffin was lowered into the ground. Mike Brown, Jr., the 18 year-old unarmed teen who was shot by a white cop in Missouri was mourned by thousands. The event sparked riots and calls for peace. Brown's stepmother said the teen told her that he was afraid she wouldn't make it when she was hospitalized a month ago and revealed he had been dreaming about death.

"Mike Mike told me, 'I didn't think you were going to make it,'" she said. "And I said why and he said, 'Because I've been dreaming of death, seeing pictures of death, seeing pictures of bloody sheets hanging on clotheslines'. 'That touched me. That's what it was like when he was laying there on the street. He prophesized his own death.'"

Tips to Make Play-time Educational and Fun

(StatePoint) Playtime should be fun, but who says it can't also be beneficial to kids? From imaginative play that expands creativity to toys that develop crucial motor skills, kids' play can be a time when learning and fun go hand in hand.

"Children don't need to be in a classroom for quality learning to take place," says Dr. Lise Eliot, early childhood development expert and author. "In fact, opportunities to promote mental and physical development can happen anywhere, anytime."

Here are a few ideas for maximizing playtime:

- Make Music: Playing music can help kids be creative and expressive, as well as promote coordination. But some kids may be reluctant to participate if it feels like work. If there's resistance to formal music education, don't nix the idea entirely. Stock your playroom with a keyboard, tambourine and other kid-friendly instruments and let kids explore music on their own terms.

- Cool Toys: "Look for fun toys that encourage problem-solving, engage children in imaginative play and develop fine motor skills and spatial reasoning," says Eliot.

For example, VTech's Go! Go! Smart Wheels and Go! Go! Smart Animals capture the best of both worlds: traditional role-play infused with modern technology, for engaging, imaginative learning.

Each playset features SmartPoint locations that can be recognized by every vehicle and animal. As a vehicle or animal is rolled over a playset's various SmartPoints, it will flash and play greetings, fun sounds, short tunes and sing-along songs for a multi-sensory learning experience that evokes kids' imaginations.

More information can be found at www.VTechKids.com.

- Outdoor Games: For some fresh air, and at the same time to encourage hand-eye coordination and learning number fun, get outdoors to play some classic games like hopscotch, jacks or marbles. Encourage kids' creative side, by having them come up with an idea for their own game, complete with rules and a scoring system.

When it comes to playtime, there's no need to put learning on the back burner!

Seven year old publishes book, coloring book with environmental message ebook for purchase and in local libraries for check out.

JACKSONVILLE, FL — Between the hustle and bustle of back-to-school shopping, dance class, and swimming lessons, Ed and Cheryl Gaston have an added spark to their summer that most parents of seven year olds don't have. That is ordering and shipping their daughter's first book.

Last year, their daughter Adara shared with her father the story of Summer and her family who are hated by a villain named Lute who wants to poison the Earth and end the seasons. Summer teams up with her friends and uses her special power of dance to try and stop Lute.

"You have to read my story to know what happens next," Adara, 7, told her father.

Fascinated by the story and his daughter's vivid imagination, Ed shared the story with an editor who paired him with illustrator/artist Antoine Mitchell of Baton Rouge, La. The pair quickly set to publish Summer Saves Summer and surprised Adara, her mother, and family in Birmingham, Ala., on a beautiful Summer Solstice afternoon with preview copies of the 42-page, full color, children's book with dramatic illustrations to match Adara's story.

Today, the Gastons have shipped more than 50 books to Birmingham, Tallahassee, Baton Rouge, Jasper, TX, and Indianapolis. They have also responded to request to make the book available as an

"We are extremely proud of Adara. She's so talented and when she shared the story of Summer with us and how she beats Lute, we knew her talents transcended dance. We had to do something with it and I wanted her to be surprised," said Ed Gaston, who is vice president of community development at Wealth Watchers Inc.

As a second surprise to Adara and his wife, Cheryl, who is principal at Carter G. Woodson Academy, Gaston said, he has gotten a commitment from Mozelle Inc., to publish and release the accompanying coloring book on Sept. 15.

"The environmental message, the message of friendship, and the message of the power of family found in the pages of Summer Saves Summer will resonate with young readers as the imagery of an extremely talented illustrator jumps off the pages. We are proud to published Adara Gaston. She is on her way to a prolific writing career if she chooses to continue," said the publisher.

Summer Saves Summer, by Adara Gaston, (ISBN 9780692233788) is available at <https://wwwcreatespace.com/4838283> for $10 and on Amazon.com. The coloring book sells directly from the publisher for schools, organizations, and small groups. Contact (904) 479-6873. Mitchell's work can be enjoyed at www.poeARTry.net.

LIVING

Americans Not Getting Enough Relaxation Time

(StatePoint) Nearly all Americans understand that relaxation time is essential to good health, yet most of us don't spend nearly enough time unwinding during a typical day or week.

While our society acknowledges that kicking back is indispensable, we don't seem to be practicing what we preach. Indeed, 99 percent of Americans think relaxation is important, yet they actually spend less than 5 percent of their day relaxing, according a new independent research study commissioned by Princess Cruises.

The goal of the research was to better understand the latest trends about how many of us actually relax and how we go about doing it.

Nearly half of Americans report they're more stressed than their significant other, with a whopping 82 percent of men indicating that their partner is the stressed out one.

Music topped the list of relaxation techniques for those surveyed, with 48 percent reporting music helps them take it easy. Interestingly, only 18 percent find exercise is a good relaxation tool.

The most surprising findings were that relaxation causes 62 percent of parents to feel guilty and that nearly one third of Americans surveyed reported being stressed out simply by the thought of relaxing!

So try to beat the odds and make time to unwind.

Safety

Internet Safety for Kids

Best Internet practices for kids:

- Keep all your personal information to yourself.
- Don't give out your picture or post it online.
- Use a neutral and appropriate screen name.
- Don't give out your passwords.
- Don't trust everyone you meet online.
- If you come across anything that makes you uncomfortable, tell your parents.
- Meeting someone in person that you met online can be extremely dangerous. Ask parents before meeting an online buddy in public.

Best Internet practices for parents:

- Create rules for Internet use in the home.
- Know what your kids are doing online.
- Communicate with your kids (ask what they like to do online, watch their favorite online videos).
- Use the Internet with your kids.
- Don't allow solitary surfing.
- Desktop and laptop computers should be set up in an open area within the home so you can personally monitor your child's Internet activity.
- Kids should never be allowed to go online behind a closed bedroom door.
- If your kids refuse to follow your computer rules you set up, take away their computer use privilege.
- If you agree to let your child meet an online buddy in person (which can potentially be dangerous), go with them.
- Don't rely solely on technology as a substitute for you.
- Safeguard your home computers (filtering applications, anti-virus software, and Internet monitoring software).
- Don't discount the fact that your child is not being completely truthful with you about his/her online activities. (For example, it is not at all uncommon for kids to have one "sanitized" Facebook page for their parents to review and a completely different Facebook page for their friends).

Risky online decisions include the following:

- "Friending" unknown people
- Sending or posting provocative and sexual images
- Clicking on pop-ups
- Talking about sex
- Posting personal information
- Sharing passwords with friends
- Embarrassing or harassing people

Engaging in the above types of behavior can ultimately lead to:

- Becoming a "sexting" and cyber bullying/harassment victim or criminal suspect.
- Attracts online predators.

Mrs. Blanche Arrington Cobb will celebrate her 114th birthday

My aunt, Blanche Arrington Cobb will celebrate her 114th birthday on September 9, 2014, and I am requesting a greeting from President Obama on her behalf. She had the opportunity to meet the President at a rally in Jacksonville, FL in 2011, and that is still one of the most momentous occasions of her life.

Aunt Blanche is cared for by her daughter, May Helen Shields, age 84. Aunt Blanche requires assistance getting in and out of the chair and bed. She feeds and dresses herself and enjoys all of her meals. She still likes to go to church, enjoys reading her bible, and singing hymns of the goodness of God. Her memory is still very good and she loves to talk about special times with family and friends who visit with her. She has some days when she just wants to spend a lot of time in bed.

Aunt Blanche worked intermittently, and in later years, she did volunteer work, making lap pads for people in the nursing home and cooking meals in a shelter until she was 100 years old. At that time, she was recognized for her volunteer service in her home town of Jacksonville, FL.

Aunt Blanche is very proud of being a registered voter at age forty five and has voted in every presidential election since 1946. Her response to the question of why voting is so important to her was: "It's my way of knowing what is going on. I vote to stay involved in the voting process." She prayed for President Obama's election and continues to pray for his success. She is so grateful for the opportunity to have met and talked with our President, Mr. Obama.

DON'T FORGET, TO REGISTERED TO VOTE!

Michelle Nunn and father Sam Nunn in Kingsland, Georgia

The Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate Michelle Nunn and her father, Sam Nunn, who served in the U.S. Senate 24 years, speaks to the community, students and elected officials in Kingsland on last week Friday.

Former Senator Sam Nunn commended Navy Veteran Mayor Kenneth E. Smith and the communities of Saint Mary and Kingsland for their outstanding partnership with the Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base.

Nunn also shared reflections of the administration of the former submarine officer and former Georgia governor Jimmy Carter and Georgia Senator Herman Talmadge, whereas the U.S. Navy decided that Kings Bay, became the East Coast home of America's nuclear-submarine fleet.

Naval Submarine Base Kings Bay is the state-of-the-art home to the Atlantic Fleet's Trident II Submarines and is one of only two locations that are home ports for the Trident ballistic missile submarines, which compose one third of the US nuclear deterrence "triad."

Saints cut Champ Bailey Georgia native

The New Orleans Saints released future Hall of Fame cornerback Champ Bailey, a native of Folkston, Ga. on Aug. 30 before he ever wound up playing a snap for them.

They also released veteran receiver Robert Meachem and both of the kickers they had in camp, Shayne Graham and Derek Dimke while cutting down the roster to 53 players.

Bailey's release marks another disappointing chapter this year in an otherwise sensational career. The 36-year-old was also released by the Denver Broncos earlier this year after spending 10 seasons in Denver.

As coach Sean Payton said early in camp, "With a player like Champ we don't need to see it every day, we just need to see it once in a while." And they obviously didn't get to see enough.

Bailey, too, recognized that despite his stellar track record, he needed to make an impression on his new team.

Said Bailey last week: "Even though I've played 15 years, it doesn't matter. Man, this is a production business. I think every guy going into training camp has to show what he can do. And, you know, I feel good. If they like what I do, then I'll play a lot on Sundays. Plain and simple."

Bailey had a solid performance when he was healthy, including the last two weeks. But he is the type of player who probably needed to lock down a starting job to keep his spot on the roster since he doesn't play special teams.

It appears as though the Saints prefer veteran Patrick Robinson as their No. 2 starting cornerback. And they really like safety Rafael Bush and cornerback Corey White as nickel/dime backs and special teamers.

Bailey went to 12 Pro Bowls with the Denver Broncos and Washington Redskins, racking up 52 career interceptions along the way. But his 2013 season in Denver was marred by a major foot injury that limited him to five regular-season games. He then signed an incentive-laden deal with the Saints that included only $500,000 in guaranteed money in the form of a signing bonus.

Bailey was due a base salary of $1 million this year, plus a $250,000 roster bonus if he was active for six games, among other incentives.

"Definitely, and he is fully healthy now," Reale told NFL.com. "He had a plantar prob-

EWC FOOTBALL: Bass, Smith Lead TSU Over Tigers, 58-6

By MIKE BONTS
FLORIDA SPORTS WIRE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. – Junior running back Tom Smith found solid footing on a soggy opening night, leading Tennessee State past Edward Waters (1-1), 58-6, in the 16th annual John Merritt Classic on Saturday night.

The bright spot on the night for the visiting Tigers came when James Reese, IV returned an interception 71 yards for a score in the second quarter.

Smith had 151 yards on 12 carries and added four touchdowns en route to being named the Offensive MVP. Smith's four rushing scores were the most for a Tiger since Trabis Ward's four against Southeast Missouri on Oct. 13, 2012.

Anthony Bass was named the game's Defensive MVP after recording four stops, two sacks, 2.5 tackles for loss and an interception. Bass anchored a defensive unit that only allowed 76 yards of total offense, five first downs and did not give up any points.

EWC running backs Cleve Williams, Ray Dukes and Daryl Campbell combined for 38 yards on 18 carries.

The QBs didn't fare much better. Taron Williams and Tyler Mahla were 6 of 20 for 51 yards. Mahla threw three interceptions.

Dukes caught two passes for 28 yards, and Williams had two receptions for 19.

The Tennessee State offense got off to a slow start, fumbling on the first play from scrimmage and then committing three straight false start penalties.

TSU finally found the end zone at the 5:31 mark, as German hit fellow senior Je-Marc Sears with a short pass and then the tight end ran the rest of the way for a 24-yard touchdown. The rain soaked turf caused a bad hold on the point after, so TSU was forced to settle with a 6-0 lead.

A Bernell Brooks interception later in the first set up a 23-yard Carter field goal, and the Tigers held a 9-0 lead with only a minute to go in the first.

Tennessee State's special teams produced a big play to kick off the second period as De'Ante Saunders ran back a punt for a score, making the score 16-0 with just over 12 minutes to play before halftime.

Saunders' punt return for a touchdown was TSU's first since Oct. 8, 2011 when Weldon Garlington scampered 91 yards against Southeast Missouri.

Javon Brandon and reigning OVC Defensive Player of the Year Bass each recorded their first career interceptions in the second quarter - two of the eight combined first half turnovers.

Smith and Stephen Hopkins combined for 127 yards on ten carry and two scores in the second quarter, and TSU led EWC 30-6 at the break.

Smith scored two more touchdowns within the first five minutes of the second half to put TSU up by 38, and the Tigers forced their fifth turnover to close out the third quarter.

After another turnover late in the stanza, Martine Stevenson took the first play of the fourth period 17 yards for a touchdown and finished the contest with 92 yards on 10 carries.

Running back, Greg White added a late score as part of his 98-yard day and the hosts walked away with a 52-point victory.

There was a total of 11 turnovers in the contest and TSU committed 18 penalties for 102 yards.

Sam joins Dallas Cowboys' practice team

The rookie defensive lineman Michael Sam, who was released by the St. Louis Rams on August 30, joined the practice squad of the Dallas Cowboys on Wednesday, Sept. 3rd. Sam, the first openly gay player, drafted by a N.F.L. team, had failed to win a spot with the Rams despite a solid showing in the preseason in which he had 11 tackles and three sacks.

He was drafted at the end of the seventh and final round of the draft in May. After the Rams had released him, Sam was not initially picked up by another team, and he was not signed to the Rams' practice squad.

"We feel like he has a chance to come in at a position that we've tried to address throughout the off-season, throughout the training camp, and compete for a spot," Cowboys Coach Jason Garrett said. "The way we view the practice roster is, first and foremost, their job is to help facilitate practice. There's also a great opportunity for us to develop personnel and evaluate personnel, and this is no different for us."

Trio Joins Bethune-Cookman Women's Basketball for 2014-15

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. - With the fall semester underway, the Lady Wildcats are gearing up for the 2014-15 season and three more ladies will be joining the squad, bringing the newcomers total to seven, with the late additions of Ashanti Hunt, Jordan Knowles and Arreonté Lee.

The latest additions further extend the Lady Wildcats' depth in the new season, as the squad looks to build off the momentum swing that closed the 2013-14 season in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC) Championships quarterfinal.

The first of three guards to join the team is Hunt (Washington, D.C.), a big-time scorer from Kipp College Preparatory High School. Twice named Team MVP, the 5-11 four-year team captain averaged over 20 points each year, in addition to eight points and five assists per game during her senior year. Each year of high school, Hunt led her team in scoring, rebounds and steals.

"Ashanti is an extremely versatile player," Head Coach Vanessa Blair-Lewis said. "She could probably play most every position, one through four. However, the best thing about her game is her defensive presence and how hard she works on that end of the floor."

Jordan Knowles

In addition to being a strong scorer on the court, Hunt is a solid performer in the classroom, reaching the honor roll for three years, in addition to membership in the National Honor Society.

Also joining the Lady Wildcats in the backcourt is Knowles, 5-3 point guard who transferred to B-CU last season from Western Michigan University. The junior-to-be played in 47 games for the Broncos and came to WMU as a four-year varsity player from Romulus High School. Ranked No. 19 overall by michladyballers.com as the No. 1-point guard in Michigan out of high school, Knowles (Romulus, Mich.) was a McDonald's All-American nominee and twice was named to the U.S. Junior National All-Star team. Recognized as always playing in attack mode, the three-year team captain was twice named conference MVP and was Michigan All-State honorable mention.

"Jasmine's role this year will be running the team," Blair-Lewis noted. "She's an up-tempo guard who is lightning-quick and will run the floor. She's a very smart, heads-up player, and she has great ball control."

She's a true point guard that can score." Rounding out the trio is another transfer, Lee (San Antonio, Texas), who comes to the Lady Wildcats after graduating from the University of Maine at Augusta. The 5-10 junior was a two-time team captain and was named both Yankee Small College Conference (YSCC) First Team All-Conference and United States Collegiate Athletic Association (USCAA) First Team All-American. "Coming in with college experience as a scorer, the best part of her game is attacking the rim, but she can still hit the outside shot and she plays tough defense," Blair-Lewis said.

Just the fourth 1,000-point scorer for UMA, Lee was also named Female Athlete of the Year as a sophomore. During her sophomore campaign at UMA, Lee logged a double-double average of 20.9 points and 10.8 rebounds per outing, in addition averages of 6.0 assists, 3.4 steals and 1.8 blocks.

Playing inside and outside, Lee tallied 15 double-doubles and four triple-triple doubles as a sophomore and wrapped the season as the program's all-time single season scoring leader.

The Lady Wildcats are currently working through preseason conditioning and individual workouts and are slated to begin formal team practices on October 6.

The Killing of Black Men Continues

COLUMN

RON DANIELS

This is the opinion of Ron Daniels

When will it stop? The police killing of Michael Brown, an unarmed teenager in the streets of Ferguson, Mo., coming on the heels of the killing of Eric Garner, an unarmed Black man by a policeman's choke hold in Staten Island, N.Y. is yet another painful, traumatic reminder of the long history of occupation, torture, abuse and killing of Black people in America, particularly Black men. Indeed, within hours of the killing of Michael Brown, Ezell Ford, an unarmed Black man with a history of mental problems, was killed in Los Angeles under suspicious circumstances. It doesn't matter that there is an African American president of the United States or that Blacks are mayors of major American cities, run Fortune 500 companies or are pace setters as high paid and adored hip hop moguls, entertainers and athletes, the killing of Black men continues.

Once again legions of Black people and people of conscience and goodwill are in the streets in Ferguson, Mo. and in solidarity rallies across the country. But, to add insult to injury, in scenes reminiscent of the brutalizing of civil rights protesters in Birmingham and Selma in the 60s, St. Louis County Police units with sharpshooters, sniper squads, mine-resistant trucks and a "Bearcat armored truck" unleashed a ferocious assault on peaceful marchers, firing tear gas, stun bombs and rubber bullets into the ranks of terrorized protesters. The whole nation and the world witnessed this vicious onslaught against the First Amendment by highly militarized police that looked more like soldiers on the frontlines in Iraq and Afghanistan than the suburb of a major American city.

The question of the hour is, and has been for far too long: When will the killing of Black men and the occupation of Black communities stop?

In a book edited by Jill Nelson in 2000, titled Police Brutality: An Anthology, I wrote, "The policy of more police and prisons has been used as a substitute for policies that promote social, economic, and racial justice for people of color. This formula of ill-conceived public policy and policing practices has produced a highly combustible situation in communities of color throughout the nation."

These words were written in the wake of the police torture of Abner Louima, the police slaughter of Amadou Diallo and the killing of a number of Black and Latino young men in the greater New York City area under suspicious circumstances. Nearly 15 years since the publication of Jill Nelson's book, much has changed, but the killing of Black men continues.

Black people must exercise political and economic muscle to demand greater civilian control and oversight of the police. In Ferguson, Blacks are 67 percent of the population but all the political structures are dominated by Whites. This must change. Blacks and their allies must march on ballot boxes to seize the reins of power as a major step towards changing policing policies and practices in Ferguson. However, simply replacing White faces with Black faces in the corridors of power is not sufficient. Ultimately, there must be a change in the policies and practices of the police.

We must demand an end to the militarization of the police, the utilization of military tactics as control mechanisms and the profiling/targeting of Black communities. We must also demand an end to the "broken windows" and "zero tolerance" strategies that insult the intelligence and infuriate Black people. Community-policing must become the centerpiece of a human-centered, holistic approach to crime prevention and public safety in Black communities.

Black people must also use economic sanctions/boycotts to complement protests and political action to achieve just and humane alternatives to police occupation and racially-biased policing practices. Economic sanctions campaigns should be coupled with demands for private and public sector investment in Black communities to create jobs and develop business/economic infrastructure. Ending bad policing is not enough. Black people must struggle to revitalize Black communities.

— Ron Daniels is president of the Institute of the Black World 21st Century and Distinguished Lecturer at York College City University of New York.
