Advent Christian Village marks its 100th Anniversary

As of Dec. 17, Advent Christian Village at Dowling Park crossed the century mark. On that date in 1913, five siblings from North Carolina arrived in Dowling Park following the death of their mother, thus becoming the first residents of what was then called the Advent Christian Home and Orphanage. Soon after, retired pastors, missionaries and their spouses joined them, making ACV the first retirement community in the sunshine state. This rural village has sheltered senior adults and ministered to those in need ever since.

When any organization or individual reaches 100 years, it calls for a grand celebration. Throughout 2013, ACV has been commemorating its great milestone. There have been dedications, recognitions, and performances. The celebration culminated on Dec. 17, when Advent President Emeritus Pomeroy Carter was a special speaker during ACV's Founders' Day festivities on Dec. 17. Pomeroy enlightened those gathered with a lively history of how Advent Christian Village has grown and developed.

The Mayo Woman's Club decided to forego their formal agenda for December's meeting and simply enjoy one another's company at their holiday luncheon.

Many of the members brought along special guests to join in the fun and fellowship. The delicious meal was prepared by different members of the club and consisted of sliced honey ham and turkey, squash dressing casserole, scalloped corn, candied sweet potato souffle, steamed kale and "Shirley Walker" yeast rolls, as well as two different yummy desserts, a pecan coconut pear cobbler and a fluffy congealed pistachio called

Gov. Scott stops in Lake City

Seeks election support

By Joyce Marie Taylor

Florida Governor Rick Scott made a stop at Florida Gateway College in Lake City on Tuesday, Dec. 17, and was greeted by a huge crowd of supporters from the Republican Party of Florida.

Sponsors paid $500-$1,500 to attend the luncheon and listen to Gov. Scott speak about the state of the economy in Florida. Many local dignitaries and elected officials were in attendance, including State Rep. District 10 Elizabeth Porter, State Rep. District 19 Charles E. Van Zant, Avery Roberts and retired Judge E. Vernon Douglas.

Decorated Eagle Scout Jeremy Barwick, best known for raising 38,000 tons of food for the needy, led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance and the National Anthem was sung by Kay Poltorak.

While everyone enjoyed the delicious food that was prepared for the group, Rep. Elizabeth Porter spoke for a couple minutes.

wrong idea," said Porter. "They're going in the wrong direction, but what we are doing here in the state of Florida, is moving in the right direction. So much of that is thanks to our governor and the support he gets in the House and Senate to advance the kind of business building, freedom building ideas that we try and he supports."

Porter said the Republican Party of Florida also wants to support Gov. Scott's ideas, as well.

"We don't want to be like New York and we don't want to be like California," said Porter. "We don't want to try and squash the business people that are the job creators in our country. We want to do exactly what we've been doing in Florida for the past 4-6 years, and that is giving our business people the freedom to grow their business so that they will hire more people. They'll have jobs. They'll have expendable income and we will be able to continue to improve across the state, from top to bottom."

Porter said Gov. Scott has been a boon to the state and she is confident he will continue to do so.

Brief speeches were made by Rep. Van Zant and Judge Douglas, who asked everyone to welcome "a political leader who's restoring the 'American Dream' which seems to be lost on the rest of the country."

Gov. Scott entered the room to a raucous round of applause as he stepped up to the podium. He proceeded to tell the crowd a little about his childhood before moving on to the important issues of the state of Florida.

Scott said in 2010, 832,000 people in the state of Florida lost their jobs and unemployment hit a peak of 11.1 percent.

"We basically increased state debt by $8.7 billion," Scott said. "What did we get for it? Housing prices collapsed by 40 percent. Whatever business you were in, you were pretty much hurting in Florida."

Scott reminded everyone that there is no state income tax in Florida, it is a right-to-work state where you don't have to be a member of a union, there are low business taxes, it is the gateway to Latin America, and the expansion of the Panama Canal is coming up.

"People like to visit our state," said Scott. "In 2010, 82 million tourists came to our state. How did we do it? Because we didn't focus on jobs."

When he first got elected, Scott said he contacted several consulting firms whose job it is to find suitable places for businesses to operate and was met with resistance. Many of them told Scott that Florida doesn't care about businesses, but only about being the state where people either vacation or retire. Calls to Tallahassee from businesses who wanted to come to Florida, he was told, were not addressed in a timely manner. Scott said he set out to change all of that.

Scott said anyone who works for a state agency has the duty to help create more jobs for the people of Florida in any way possible. He has also been cutting sales taxes, property taxes, and regulations to make it easier for new businesses to come in.

Scott's speech wasn't all business. He spent some time telling anecdotes about Gov. Rick Perry in Texas, which engaged the crowd with laughter, but then it was back to business.

"In two years and 10 months, unemployment has gone from 11.1 to 6.7 percent," said Scott. "That's 440,000 jobs."

For the month of October, Florida private businesses generated 46,000 jobs, compared to Texas with only 12,000 jobs, Scott explained. Additionally, this year Florida expects to have a total of about 95 million tourists (up from 82 million), whom, he said, pay a lot of sales taxes.

"So, we've increased our state revenue that way," he said.

Since he's been in office, Scott said the state has lowered their unemployment rate, paid off a $3.5 billion unemployment debt to the federal government, and there are currently 279,000 job openings in the state right now.

"We're headed in the right direction," said Scott.

Education was another topic Scott touched on, saying that the state has increased funding for education, and that Florida's 4th graders are number 2 in the world for reading, as well as other facts about graduation rates, teacher quality and Florida's excellent colleges.

After all the business talk, Scott said, "The year 2014 is a bad year to run for governor, but this is a great job. No one else should run," he added. "That would be nice. The truth is, if you like people, there is no better job than being governor of the state."

After the meeting, Scott spent some time mingling with the guests.

Advent Christian Village marks its 100th Anniversary

Christian Village members, current and past employees, and friends from near and far filled Rumph Dining Room to commemorate the actual anniversary date: Founders' Day.

Jazz music by Tallahassee's Yellow Dog Jazz Band set a festive tone and complemented the buffet of traditional southern fare. Green and gold décor (ACV's colors) adorned tables and walls. Following the meal, current President Craig Carter, past President Jim Humbles, and President Emeritus Pomeroy Carter joined together to weave a narrative explaining how, along with God's guidance, it took people with a heart for ministry as well as people with generous hearts to establish Advent Christian Village and to sustain it. Fires, floods, the Great Depression, and wars were not enough to defeat the great work being done in Dowling Park.

As do most great parties, this celebration included the cutting of a grand cake. Sheila Gardner and three of her siblings, Rena Cross, Clifford Kastor and Ray Kastor, did the honors. They are the children of Eula Setzer Kastor, one of the original five siblings that came to Dowling Park on that day 100 years ago. Sheila Gardner wrote down some of the things her mother had told her about life at the Home and Orphanage, and her memories were read during the celebration. Also on display at the event were items that will go into a time capsule. The items show what life is like now at ACV, as well as how the centennial was celebrated. This capsule will be buried in the courtyard in front of Carter Village Hall to be unearthed at another anniversary celebration many years in the future.

Advent Christian Village at Dowling Park is an accredited, comprehensive retirement community located in north-central Florida along the Suwannee River on 1,200 acres of woodlands and scenic landscapes. It features a comprehensive network of social, recreational and health services; and home ownership, rental homes, assisted living, skilled nursing and rehabilitative care. ACV is Florida's first retirement community. It is large enough to offer ample opportunities for a vibrant and fulfilling lifestyle, and small enough to enjoy the benefits of a hometown atmosphere. With gratitude this unique village now eagerly embarks on its second century of service to senior adults, families with special needs and children.

Watergate Salad.

President Marie O'Steen said, "There are two tasks that we always complete at a gathering of the Woman's Club; to say the Pledge of Allegiance and to recite our Collect."

The "Collect" written by Mary Stuart, reads as follows:

Keep us, Oh God,

from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put all away all pretense and meet each other face to face - without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment, and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; Make us grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight-forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are at one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great common human heart of us all; and, O Lord God, let us forget not to be kind.

The ladies rounded out the gathering with a mingling game and gift exchange, and as always, a good time was had by all.

A New Year's prayer

Dear Lord, please give me ...
 A few friends who understand me and yet remain my friends.

 A work to do which has real value,
 without which the world would feel the poorer ...
 A mind unafraid to travel,
 even though the trail be not blazed.
 An understanding heart ...
 A sense of humor.
 Time for quiet, silent meditation.
 A feeling of the presence of God.
 And the patience to wait for the coming of these things, with the wisdom to know them when they come.

Gainesville goes medieval

Hoggetowne Medieval Faire comes to life Jan. 25-26 and Jan. 31-Feb. 2

For two weekends each year, the clear blast of trumpets mingles with the laughter of children as the kingdom of Hoggetowne opens its gates. Performers in period garb sing and dance in the streets, while knights joust on horseback and magicians captivate the crowds. Tucked away in the enchanted forest of the Alachua County Fairgrounds in Gainesville, this medieval marketplace will come to life on Jan. 25-26 and Jan. 31-Feb. 2.

Hoggetowne is home to more than 160 talented artisans from across the country who journey to the Faire to sell and demonstrate their wares, offering medieval crafts such as weaving, blacksmithing, leatherworking, wood carving and glass blowing. Fairgoers can browse through a selection of delicate medieval jewelry or glimpse into their future with a mystical fortune teller.

"Visitors should arrive early to take full advantage of the exciting medieval magic," said Linda Piper, faire coordinator. "Each morning all the entertainers greet the Hoggetowne guests as the city gates open to this enchanted kingdom."

The sound of applause echoes from the Faire's eight stages, where the forgotten skills of full-flight falconry, gripping aerial acrobatics and old-world magic come to life. Jugglers, knife throwers and gypsy dancers add to the excitement as they fill the streets of Hoggetowne.

"Visitors should plan to spend the entire day enjoying Hoggetowne's enticing blend of artwork, period music and medieval traditions," Piper said. "People wait all year for this highly anticipated event."

One of the Faire's most popular attractions is the joust, where knights in full body armor battle on horseback. Children can meet the knights and their magnificent steeds, or they can watch the Living Chess Match, where medieval heroes show off their swordsmanship and battle the forces of evil.

This year's theme is "The War of the Roses," where you can meet the beautiful and fierce Margaret of Anjou and her arch enemy, Richard, Duke of York at the Alachua County Fairgrounds. The Tournament Field will host a living chess game where Margaret tries to surprise and capture Richard at Hoggetowne, but is thwarted by superior moves in a stunning show of combat entertainment.

Visitors can also engage in traditional medieval games of chance and skill. They can shoot arrows or hurl battle axes at targets, or they can navigate their way through a winding maze. Thrilling human-powered push rides, as well as camel and elephant rides, attract eager children and adventurous adults.

Children can also enjoy the Faire's School Day on Friday, Jan. 31, in which thousands of students from Florida journey to Hoggetowne for a day of face painting, hair binding and medieval crafts. General admission is half-price, and larger discounts are available to school groups that register in advance.

After roaming the streets of Hoggetowne and working up an appetite, both adults and children can enjoy a feast fit for a king at the food court. The tempting aromas of freshly baked pastries, blooming onions, sweet potato fries, giant turkey legs and succulent ribs attract scores of lords and ladies.

Produced by the city of Gainesville Parks, Recreation and Cultural Affairs Department, the Hoggetowne Medieval Faire draws more than 50,000 guests each year. On Saturdays and Sundays, the Faire is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and costs $15 for adults and $7 for children ages 5 to 17. The Faire is free for children under 5. School Day, Friday, Jan. 31, is open 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and admission is half-price. Pets are not permitted. The Alachua County Fairgrounds is located east of Gainesville at 2900 NE 39th Ave. adjacent to Gainesville Regional Airport. Florida Museum announces 2014 spring 'Science Café' programs

GAINESVILLE, Fla. --- The Florida Museum of Natural History will continue its "Science Café" series Jan. 13, 2014, with University of Florida anthropology professor Connie Mulligan discussing "The First Settlers of the New World: Who, Where, When and How."

This is the third year of the program in which guest speakers and community members gather at local establishments and discuss contemporary science over food. Seating and food orders begin at 6 p.m. with the program starting at 6:30 p.m. "Our spring series features a variety of topics from the first settlers in the New World to bird intelligence and fossils of Panama," said Betty Duncel, director of the Florida Museum's Center for Science Learning.

The Jan. 13 program at Saboré, 13005 SW First Road, Suite 129 in Town of Tioga, features Mulligan, who will describe how her work on human genetic variation is used to reconstruct who the first settlers in the New World were, and where, when and how they arrived.

"Our work combines genetics, archaeology, paleoecology, history and linguistics to reconstruct human evolutionary history," said Mulligan, who also is associate chair of the UF department of anthropology and associate director of the UF Genetics Institute.

Other scheduled 2014 spring programs include:

- Feb. 3 at Blue Gill Quality Foods, 1310 SW 13th St. in Gainesville: Florida Museum Katharine Ordway Professor of Ecosystem Conservation Scott Robinson, "Bird Brains: Bird Intelligence and Adapting to a Changing World."

- March 17 at Saboré: Hyatt and Cici Brown Professor of Florida Archaeology Kenneth Sassaman from UF's department of anthropology, "Futurescapes of Ancient Native Americans of the Florida Gulf Coast."

- April 7 at Blue Gill Quality Foods: Florida Museum Curator of Vertebrate Paleontology Bruce J. MacFadden, "Discovering Fossils in Panama: A Once-in-a-Century Opportunity."

Participants purchase their own food and beverage for each program from a special Science Café menu, with seating and ordering beginning at 6 p.m. Please note seating is on a first-come basis (except when wheelchair access is requested in advance) and participation is limited. The presentation starts promptly at 6:30 p.m.

To help plan for these free programs, please RSVP at least one week in advance of the café date with your name and the number attending by emailing aerickson@flmnh.ufl.edu or calling Amanda Erickson Harvey, 352-273-2062.

Basketball team, small town struggle with defeat

Tom Lindley
CNHI News Service

If "Medora" were just another movie about a hard-luck high school basketball team, you might pan it and say, "So what? Who cares? Seen that."

But it would be a mistake to dismiss this 82-minute documentary about a small town in southern Indiana and its 72-student high school that knows more despair than success.

"Medora" takes an intimate, raw look at people struggling now that the world has sped past them - much as it has thousands of other rural communities in America.

The film is showing at selected theaters or can be seen on-demand at www.medorafilm.com. It will be featured on the PBS program "Independent Lens" beginning March 31.

If the rollout is uncon-

ventional, so is the movie.

The film centers on a basketball team but is really about the survival of a way of life. One resident of Medora, whose population hovers around 700, observes: "Once we lose these small towns, we can't get them back."

What makes this story different is that it's told by teenagers, some who have dreams and aspirations and others who struggle to make it to the next day.

Producers Davy Rothbart and Andrew Cohn set up this conflict early in the movie. Coach Justin Gilbert excoriates his team, which lost all 22 games the previous year, for failing to score a point in the fourth quarter of another humbling loss.

"Are you kidding me?" he says. "You had no points. Zero. Zero points in the fourth quarter. Zero. None. In eight minutes. Eight minutes. Eight minutes. Zero. Are you kidding me?"

The players slump, their heads bowed, on a locker room bench. Their expressions range between lost and humiliated.

If that was bad, an observation by one of the team's better players is even more wrenching. Intropective Dylan McSoley ponders life without a father and whether he should try to contact him. "Hey, this is Dylan McSoley. You might not know me, but I'm your son," he says, leaving a telephone message for a man he's never seen except for once on a Facebook post.

The film explores the stories of other players: Rusty Rogers faces homelessness as his mother battles alcoholism. Robby Armstrong wants to be the first in his family to graduate from high school. Chaz Cowless, arrested on a gun charge, seems to spend much of his time trying to avoid the law.

Watching this movie, you must remind yourself that its dialogue is from actual words spoken by teenage boys, not crafted by a scriptwriter. Hearing their stories, one wonders how the players survive in a place described by one as "a meth-head town full of drug addicts and a bunch of drunks."

That comment strikes at the movie's theme - a defeated town versus a defeated team.

It wasn't always that way. Once Medora, Ind., was seen as a prosperous community where jobs were plentiful and people lived the American Dream. In the days before school consolidations became popular, the Hornets were competitive, winning more than their share of games.

Then the day came when the plastics plant and brick factory closed, terminating workers and their livelihoods.

Rothbart said "Medora" isn't a politically driven movie, but there is a salient scene in which a family watches President Obama discuss the challenges facing the country. In the movie, his words were framed against images from around Medora - a view that depicts more past than future.

It makes one wonder if there's a future for small-town America, once described as the soul of the country, and if anything could reverse the downward trend.

Unlike the 1986 classic "Hoosiers," which portrays an Indiana high school team destined for greatness, "Medora" ultimately depicts only a glimmer of success that is celebrated with a late-night ride through town on a fire truck - just like in the old days.

It is doubtful this scene signals a reversal of fortune, however. More likely it is one last happy hoorah for a team and community struggling to stay relevant.

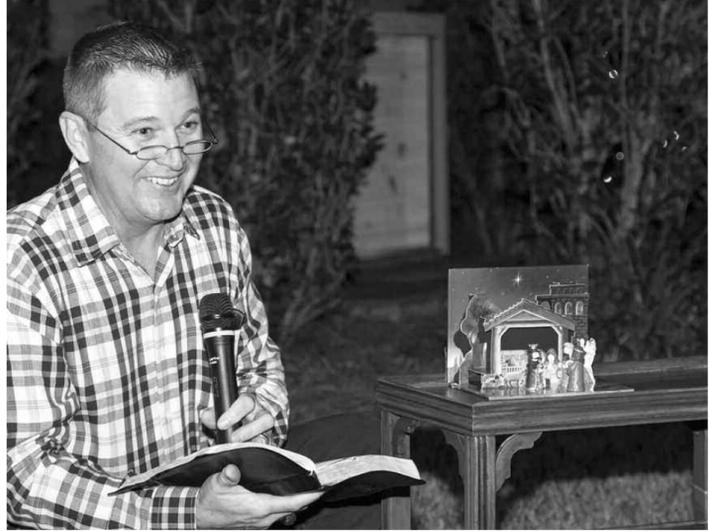

Tom Lindley is a CNHI sports columnist. Reach him at tlindley@cnhi.com. "Medora" is available on iTunes and at www.medorafilm.com.

Stay healthy when the sick season of sneezes and sniffles arrives

The cold weather brings with it a season of smiles, the first snowfalls and, unfortunately, cold and flu outbreaks. While everyone else is suffering, there are ways you can make it through the season unscathed.

It is estimated that a billion people across North America will succumb to the cold virus this year, says Medline. Considering there is no cure for cold and flu viruses, prevention remains a person's best option at fending off cold and flu. There are different precautions to take that can help protect you against getting sick or at least reduce the frequency and severity with which cold and flu strikes.

Although there is no magic pill to take that will prevent you from catching a cold or the flu, there are ways to improve your odds.

* Wash your hands the right way. Washing your hands frequently remains the single-best way to keep viruses and bacteria that can make you sick from infiltrating the body. Washing your hands for at least 20 seconds can effectively remove any dirt, grime and invisible invaders.

* Skip antibacterial products. Because colds and the flu are the result of viruses, which are different in behavior and structure from bacteria, they will not be killed off with the use of antibacterial products. What you may succeed in doing is killing off any beneficial bacteria on your hands as well as creating resistant bacteria that form with over-use of antibiotics and antibacterial products.

* Get the flu shot. There is no vaccination to prevent the common cold, but there are immunizations that can help reduce your risk of getting the flu or help minimize its severity. Doctors' offices, clinics and even pharmacies all offer annual flu shots.

* Use sanitizer on items around the house. Surfaces that are frequently touched by all members of the household should be wiped down with a disinfectant product. A bleach-and-water solution is an effective sanitizer. Surfaces to sanitize include phones, doorknobs, light switches, remote controls, computer keyboards, faucets, toys, and countertops.

* Avoid sick people. KidsHealth.org states that flu viruses and colds can travel up to 12 feet (from a sneeze or cough). Steer clear of anyone exhibiting symptoms, especially someone who is frequently sneezing or coughing.

* Use a sanitizer product. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention advise that when hand-washing is not readily available, a good way to kill germs is to use an alcohol-based sanitizer lotion. While not as effective as washing hands in warm, soapy water, sanitizing products can be used in a pinch while you're on the go.

* Cough into your sleeve. Rather than coughing or sneezing into your hands, do so into the crook of your elbow since this area rarely touches anything else.

* Skip the buffet lunch. Buffet-style offerings are convenient and offer variety, but they are also a breeding ground for illnesses. These foods may have been sneezed or coughed on. Also, the serving spoons have been touched by dozens of people.

There are many different ways to avoid getting a cold or the flu this season. Diligence is one of the keys to staying germ-free.

The elderly are more at risk for serious side effects from the cold and flu
