Lee Town Council Weighs Pros And Cons Of Wastewater System

By Michael Curtis
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The price of progress often seems too much to bear, while the consequence of doing nothing is a guarantee that nothing will change. It's somewhat like stepping into that Bible story where the master leaves behind talents (money) for three servants to care for while he's away. Two of the servants invest and double the money, while the third simply buries it for safety. When the master returns, he is very pleased with the two who invested, but takes the money away from the third because he didn't do anything with the money it while it was entrusted to him.

H1N1 Virus (Swine Flu) Suspected In Madison County

By Jacob Bemby
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Several Madison County children, who attended Camp Pickett Lake (a church summer camp in Lafayette County), have been tested for the H1N1 Virus.

Children from both Madison and Jefferson County attended the camp together.

Kim Barnhill, administrator for the Madison/Jefferson County Health Department, said that swab samples have been sent to the state laboratory. The results have not come back yet but Barnhill said 75-80 percent of the samples, which are sent to the state lab to test for the H1N1 novel strain (commonly referred to as "swine flu") test positive.

"For some reason, adolescents seem to be at greater risk for contracting the virus than others," Barnhill said.

Barnhill urges everyone who may feel sick, having flu-like symptoms to stay at home and not go into the public, and for them to constantly wash their hands to prevent the spread of

McDaniel And Thompson Debut As Seminoles

By Bryant Thigpen
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Spring practice for returning Florida State Seminoles is over, and the team returned to the field on Tuesday, June 30, for summer conditioning. This time, the incoming freshmen players made their first appearance in the garnet and gold. Madison's own Jacobbi McDaniel and Chris Thompson were among those who put on their garnet and gold jerseys for the first time.

Jacobbi McDaniel

"Jacobbi and Chris are attending summer school along with the other 2009 freshmen enrolled at Florida State," stated head coach Bobby Bowden. "They are working out in the afternoons with our strength coach Todd Stroud, which gives him a chance to evaluate them. Both of them seem to be easily holding their own. Although we coaches cannot work with them, we do get reports from Coach Stroud of their progress."

Chris Thompson

According to Florida State's spring guide, McDaniel was ranked as the fifth best player in the nation by ESPN and the top defensive tackle. He was listed as the fifth best player in the class by Sporting News. Former Auburn Coach Tommy Tuberville deemed him "one of the best." McDaniel is a 2009 graduate of Madison County High School.

Ranked second best as the nation's all-purpose player is Chris Thompson. According to Rivals.com, Thompson was ranked the 19th best prospect in Florida. He was also listed as number 39 on Scouts.com's list of running backs. Thompson is also a 2009 graduate of Madison County High School.

Residents Urged To Stay Safe And Healthy This Summer

A death, which may have been caused by an infection in a freshwater lake in Madison County has caused concern among environmental health authorities. The health department is urging caution this summer.

The Madison/Jefferson County Health Department is urging everyone to be safe and stay healthy this summer.

The following precautions are advised to decrease the possibility of infection and injury while enjoying Madison County's freshwater recreational areas:

- No diving. Diving in shallow water can result in permanent injury or death.
- Wear nose clips or hold your nose when swimming, jumping or diving in any fresh water. Closed nostrils reduce your risk of infection by amoeba, which is a rare but serious condition.
- Do not swim in warm, standing water, such as ponds and storm water and retention areas. Bacteria and other harmful organisms thrive in warm, standing water.

For most homeowners, the Insurance Services Office (ISO) may be an unfamiliar organization. When it comes to their homeowner's insurance, however, it is definitely something worth knowing, as a community's ISO rating has a profound effect on its insurance rates.

According to their website located at www.iso.com, the Fire Suppression Rating Schedule (FSRS) is the manual ISO uses in reviewing the fire-fighting capabilities of individual communities. The schedule measures the major elements of a community's fire-suppression system and develops a numerical grading called a Public Protection Classification (PPCTM).

Here's how it works:
Fire alarms - Ten percent of the overall grading is based on how well the fire department receives fire alarms and dispatches its fire-fighting resources. ISO field representatives evaluate the communications center, looking at the number of operators at the center; the telephone service, including the number of telephone lines coming into the center; and the listing of emergency numbers in the telephone book. Field representatives also look at the dispatch circuits and how the center notifies firefighters about the location of the emergency.

Engine companies - Fifty percent of the overall grading is based on the number of engine companies and the amount of water a community needs to fight a fire. ISO reviews the distribution of fire companies throughout the area and checks that the fire department tests its pumps regularly and inventories each engine company's nozzles, hoses, breathing apparatus, and other equipment.

ISO also reviews the fire-company records to determine:

Lee's 100th birthday celebration and a disturbance at Lake Francis, which killed hundreds of fish made it onto Late Night With David Letterman on Wednesday evening, July 14.

Several calls came into this newspaper and even one came into our sister newspaper, The Monticello News. Among those calling in Madison were Rosa Branch and Marie Kirkland. In Monticello, a call came in from a man named Scott Sutter.

Showing a copy of The Madison County Carrier, Letterman said, "On March 18, hundreds of dead fish were spotted along the banks of Lake Francis. And on the same page of the newspaper, another article: 'Fish Fry and Fireworks To Kick Off Lee Centennial Celebration.'"

Branch and Kirkland will receive subscriptions to The Madison County Carrier and The Madison Enterprise-Recorder. Sutter refused his subscription but was treated to a nice lunch.

The Best Social Networking Site

And let us consider one another in order to stir up love and good works, 25 not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as is the manner of some, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the Day approaching. Hebrews 10:24-25

I belong to an awesome social networking group. Chances are that many of my readers belong to such a group, even if it is not the one that I belong to. I'm not talking about Facebook, MySpace or any of the other myriad online networking sites. I'm talking about a group that does not even require an Internet connection to participate.

The group I belong to is a church. In my case, I am a member of Midway Church of God. While my network may be small, it is a member of a much larger network called the body of Christ. Many other churches, of all kinds of denominations belong to that network. The only requirement is that they be a true Bible-believing church who believes in one triune God (Father, Son and Holy Ghost) and salvation through the blood of Jesus Christ.

We are told in Hebrews 10:24-25 to stir up love and good works and not forsake the assembling of ourselves together. A Christian can be a Christian without going to church, but a car can also be a car without gas, water and oil but try to run a car without those things. Try to live a Christian life without going to church and engaging in fellowship with other believers who encourage and exhort you. It's not easy, is it? After a while, your Christian life runs down and you become useless for Christ, even though you may still be saved. Cars need to have gas, oil and water to run. A Christian needs prayer, Bible study and church to run.

I have been through a number of crises this past year. If it had not been for my network of friends at my church and other churches who have prayed for me and helped me in so many other ways, I could not have made it.

If you do not go to church, you are invited to join us each Sunday morning, Sunday evening and Wednesday evening at Midway Church of God. I'm sure that you will be welcome at other churches also. If you do go to church, make sure you're there (if at all possible) when the doors are open. It's a social networking site that every one can enjoy.

Water supply - Forty percent of the grading is based on the community's water supply. This part of the survey focuses on whether the community has sufficient water supply for fire suppression beyond daily maximum consumption. ISO surveys all components of the water supply system, including pumps, storage, and filtration. To determine the rate of flow the water mains provide, ISO observes fire-flow tests at representative locations in the community. Finally, they evaluate the distribution of fire hydrants.

Recently, Sirmans VFD was pleased to announce it received a rating of "8B," and while this rating is above that assigned to developed areas, it is an exceptional achievement that should save homeowners serious money over time. Residents within the Sirmans VFD fire district or five miles from the Sirmans' fire station are eligible for this rating. Residents unsure of the distance to their home from the Sirmans VFD may call 973-1454 for more details.

This rating reflects the strides that the Sirmans Volunteer Fire Department has made to provide better fire protection. Sirmans district does not have a hydrant system, so it must rely on tanker transport for water, which makes achieving low ratings very difficult. By utilizing FEMA grants to purchase tankers, and based on the hard work of their volunteers, Sirmans has been able to achieve what few rural departments without hydrants have been able to do.

Additional improvements to the department include the acquisition of a new brush truck: Sirmans Brush Truck 2 was purchased with a FEMA Assistance to Fire Fighters Grant.

"This truck will allow us to respond more quickly and effectively to woods fire than ever before. Getting to the woods fire as soon as possible will give us the opportunity to extinguish or at least contain the fire early while it's still small and containable. We are grateful to FEMA for making these grants available, as it would be impossible to obtain this quality of equipment any other way," George Blevins noted.

Madison Vet Wonders How Much Longer Constitution Will Survive

I am a military vet, and retired law enforcement officer. I swore to uphold the Constitution in both services. I now wonder just how much longer the Constitution will survive under the current President.

I am more afraid of Obama, Pelosi, and the Atty. General, then I am of the enemy. People voted for change, what they got was unemployment over 10%, a national debt our children and their children will be paying for, if this Country survives that long. Higher taxes, a health care system that will not work, but will cost even more money this country doesn't have. Our Government is suppose to be checks and balances, not under Obama, we have 32 Czars, that do not answer to Congress,

Then to add insult to injury, there is a story that someone in his administration wants to limit free speech on the internet, and then there is the Judge, who will most likely be our next Supreme Court Judge. For her to say that a Latino woman is more likely to make a better judgement than a white American male, is a racist statement no matter how you look at it, not only once, she said it seven different times. Look at her ruling, against all white males and one hispanic male firemen. A one paragraph ruling, without a single reference to law. At least the current Supreme Crt, overturned her ruling. If you own a gun, look out, she has ruled in an obscure gun case that the 2nd amendment does not apply to citizens! (I'm sure Obama loves that one)

It doesn't matter if your Republican or Democrat, this is America, we have survived on our values, our strong religious backgrounds, and Pride in the American way. It is now under attack from this Administration and the flunky socialist Democrats who think Obama can walk on water. If you don't think were under attack, did you know the ACLU has filed a suit to remove all "crosses" from marking the graves in Arlington National Cemetery, and any reference to "God" or "Jesus". Did you also notice that in Iowa, for God and Country day, the Pentagon refused a "fly over" Why? because it's reference to God, it implies a religious activity. They have been flying over this event for 42 years but not now, A new Administration. I am a very senior citizen, and I hope to be around so I can stand shoulder to shoulder with Americans who still believe in the Constitution and our Rights. A revolution that can start at the voting polls in 2010 when true Americans clean out the incumbent Congressmen who are helping this Administration destroy America one day at time.

A Women's Pregnancy Center To Hold Benefit Banquet September 15 At Divine Events

This September Dr. Voddie Baucham is coming to Madison, as the keynote speaker for A Women's Pregnancy Center's Celebration of Life Benefit Banquet. Dr. Baucham came into national prominence in 2006 when he set the audience of Southern Baptists ablaze at the Dallas/Fortworth Metroplex as the unscheduled speaker at the their State Evangelism Conference.

The challenge he issued to the over 1,000 pastors and church leaders cut straight to the heart of the crisis in contemporary Evangelicalism. Dr. Baucham spoke of the attrition rate of future Christian generations, citing the statistics of a birth rate among Christians of two children per family and the fact that 75% of teens leave the church by the end of their freshman year in college. The math summary is that it takes two Christian families in one generation to get a single Christian into the next generation. His challenge is for the church to address those odds, a message Dr. Baucham will bring to north Florida in a series of speaking engagements, commencing on Tuesday, September 15th in Madison, Florida at Divine Events.

As writer, preacher and bible teacher, Dr. Baucham's prophetic message is not subtle but also never harsh. It is a message born out of the realism of Dr. Baucham's own experience as the son of a single, teen, African-American, Buddhist mother living in south-central Los Angeles. Through the self-sacrifice of his mother and her wisdom to release him to the guardianship of a retired Marine Corps drill instructor uncle during his late adolescence and a college teammate who shared with him about Jesus Christ, Baucham has a personal story. His story fuels his passion for restoring families and cultivating family driven Christian faith.

This message is especially relevant when 46% of children are born to single moms in Florida and over 70% in the African American community. A Women's Pregnancy Center is a local faith-based agency that addresses the needs of mothers by assisting women free of charge who think they might be pregnant. Services include free pregnancy tests and educational ultrasounds, community health referrals, material help and emotional and counseling support. The center educates women regarding their options in pregnancy, but does not perform or refer for abortions.

The Madison AWPC office is located at 345 NW Marian St., 2 blocks off of North Florida Community College Campus and serves dozens of Madison area women each month at no charge. The work of AWPC is supported exclusively through private donations from individuals, businesses and churches. To enquire about attending the September 15th Benefit Banquet at Divine Events please call the administrative office of AWPC at (850) 297-1174 or e-mail enquiries to awpc@awpc.cc.

Think Food Safety In The Summer Heat

Warmer weather brings on an increase of food borne illness during the summer months – better know to the general population as “food poisoning.” Many bacteria in foods and the environment can grow very fast at temperatures from 40°F to 140°F. With summer temperatures in the 90’s in Florida, picnics and grilling outdoors only increase the potential for illness.

Because bacteria is invisible, it is hard to convenience people their summer meals served outdoors need special care. Dr. Amy Simonne, UF Extension Specialist in Food Safety and Quality, has a few suggestions for summer food safety.

Wash your hands with clean potable water and soap often, especially before eating or preparing food.

If there is no clean water to wash your hands, use alcohol-based gel to clean your hands.

Keep the hand sanitizers away from small children and follow directions carefully.

When temperatures are above 90°F, perishable foods should not be left out for more than one hour.

Safe shelf-life of perishable food is a combination of time and temperature. Discard your perishable foods if it has been on a picnic table for a long time. If in doubt, throw it out!

Ice is a food. Handle ice as you would handle foods. Ice that is used for cooling drinks and other foods should not be used in your drink! Consider putting other perishable food in a separate cooler. Keep ice for drinking separate from ice for cooling food.

If your family enjoys eating homemade ice cream in summer, find recipes without raw eggs. A recipe using eggs should have steps for cooking the egg mixture before it is put into the ice cream churn.

Follow safe handling of fresh fruits and vegetables to reduce the risk of food borne illness. Fruits like cantaloupes and watermelons should be rinsed under running water before slicing to eliminate any dirt.

At family picnics, teach your children and family members the importance of good personal hygiene and serving etiquette to prevent some potential cross-contamination of germs from your hand to others!

- Avoid feeding or contact with wildlife. Natural areas are home to many animals. Keep your distance.
- Protect others. Discarded glass and trash can cause injury to bathers and wildlife.

- Be water safe. Do not go into the water unless you know how to swim and always swim with a partner.

- Avoid mosquito bites to prevent disease by following the five D's. Avoid being outside at DUSK and DAWN. DRESS with clothing that covers most of your skin. Use insect repellents with DEET. DRAIN any standing water around your home.

- The Florida Department of Health has issued a health alert about a dangerous parasite found in lake and pond water called naegleria.

- Naegleria is a big name for a very tiny parasite (amoeba). Naegleria fowleri causes an infection that develops when these parasites enter the human body through the nose, making their way to the brain.

This infection causes a rare, but life-threatening disease called primary amoebic meningoencephalitis (PAM). Symptoms of PAM can start as quickly as 1 to 14 days after infection. Symptoms include headache, fever, nausea, vomiting and stiff neck.

As the disease moves into the brain, it causes swelling which leads to confusion, lack of attention, loss of balance, seizure and hallucinations. This disease usually results in death within three to seven days.

- Do not swim in warm, standing water, such as lakes, ponds, poorly maintained swimming pools, storm water holding areas or places that are posted "No swimming." Bacteria and other harmful organisms thrive in warm, standing water.

- Avoid swimming or jumping into bodies of fresh water during the hot summer months when the water is warm and the water levels are low. As temperatures rise so does your chance of becoming infected.

- Do not dig or stir up the sand and silt while swimming in shallow water.

- This infection cannot be spread from person to person or contracted from a properly maintained swimming pool.

were unable to diagnose or treat this illness locally, being forced to endure the inconvenience and discomfort of traveling outside the county for those medical services.

County and hospital officials are therefore very pleased to announce the availability of these services at Madison County Memorial Hospital. Facilitated by a loan from the county for diagnostic equipment, combined with a service commitment from Dr. James "Jim" Stockwell — a well-respected specialist in this field from Tallahassee — to provide services, the community will now have access to this timely and valuable service, not to mention a sizable income stream for the hospital.

The endoscopy/colonoscopy services will go into effect shortly, as Stockwell, a gastroenterologist, intends to offer the services twice a week.

"We are very pleased to offer these services in Madison County and thank the commissioners for helping us combat the high incidence of colorectal cancer in the county. County residents can now have their colonoscopies performed right here at home, instead of traveling an hour or more each way and dealing with the rush of the city," MCMH CEO David Abercrombie noted.

"Dr. Stockwell is a fantastic physician whom we are lucky to have with us. We are also very pleased to create a new revenue source and increase the profitability of the hospital at this critical time in our history," he added.

"It's a pleasure to work with the town as Public Works Director. Town Manager Cheryl

A Madison County woman, who works as a nurse in Taylor County, said that county had tested a suspected case, which came back negative. She said that H1N1 is not as bad as people had once suspected but that there is not a vaccine for the H1N1 virus.

All flu-like symptoms should be treated with caution. These symptoms include high grade fever (102 or higher), muscle aches, headaches, runny nose (more common in children than in adults), extreme tiredness, dry cough, stomach symptoms, such as nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea, may also occur but are more common in children than adults.

The symptoms of novel H1N1 flu virus in people are similar to the symptoms of seasonal flu and include fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, body aches, headache, chills and fatigue. A significant number of people who have been infected with this virus also have reported diarrhea and vomiting. Also, like seasonal flu, severe illnesses and death has occurred as a result of illness associated with this virus.

Spread of novel H1N1 virus is thought to be happening in the same way that seasonal flu spreads. Flu viruses are spread mainly from person to person through coughing or sneezing by people with influenza. Sometimes people may become infected by touching something with flu viruses on it and then touching their mouth or nose.

As soon as test results are released, they will be posted online at www.greenepublishing.com and www.ecbpublishing.com.

Wastewater

face this issue constantly, as they work to control the expenses of today while planning for tomorrow. Officials become hard pressed to ask residents to accept new expenses, especially with no guarantee of payback, although investing by its nature, rarely comes with guarantees.

Lee Town Manager Cheryl Archambault, who has also served previously as president of the Madison County Development Council, understands this dilemma far too well. Constantly searching for new resources and combing through alternatives, in addition to speaking to industry specialists and collaborating with peers throughout the region, she has built an exceptional reputation for finding the solution. In this instance the issue is wastewater, which planners agree is critical to economic growth, even for smaller operations.

Starting out, there is always the desire to capture as much "free money" as possible, typically in the form of grants. In this situation, the estimated cost for a wastewater system in Lee, which will be coordinated with the City of Madison and serve both commercial and residential uses, is approximately $5.6 million. To her immense credit, Archambault has already secured $4.4 million of that in a grant. The $1.2 million remaining, however, still leaves officials searching for additional resources, including cost-effective solutions for septic tank disposal and residential hook-up requirements associated with the process.

Organizers compared the project to investing in a residential property. Even if tight times without a renter or buyer, who wouldn't invest in a good property if it could be bought for 20 cents on the dollar. Comparatively, the town has secured approximately 80 percent of the funds free and clear. Regardless of the evident value though, the 20 percent must be manageable, which is exactly the focus of the town council.

Many residents have wished for years to create more and better jobs throughout the county, including Lee. Public and private planners in the region universally agree that wastewater is an essential element of that cause. Obviously if it weren't for the money, few would oppose the proposal, especially those who want opportunities for their children and grandchildren, keeping in mind, of course, that the growth must be compatible with local culture and values.

Failing and obsolete septic systems (many of which leached toxic contamination during the recent flooding), increased health standards from regulators, developer requirements (both commercial and residential), as well as future jobs are among the more notable positive impacts of the proposed project. The obvious and only challenge is the remaining funding. And if residents were sure this offer would not be available again in the future, would it be worth the investment? That's the question the Lee Town Council is working to answer and invite input from all interested parties.

The town manager may be contacted at (850) 971-5867 for more information. The town council meets at 7 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month, where the public is welcome and urged to attend.

MHS Class Of 1959 Holds 50th Reunion

By Dale Sowell

The Class of 1959 of Madison High School held their 50th Class Reunion the weekend of the Four Freedoms Festival in Madison, April 17-18. On Friday evening, class members gathered for heavy hors d'oeuvres and fellowship at the home of Richard and Dale Sowell. Name tags were not given out and it was fun trying to see if classmates could figure out who some of the people were - since there were classmates that came for the first time in 50 years.

Saturday morning, the members of the class of '59 met by the City Library, Kin Johnson and Jimmy Register graciously provided steps for some of the "older" class members to get on their float for the Four Freedoms Parade.

The Class of 1959 won the BEST ALL ROUND FLOAT FOR 2009.

Following the parade, they met at Lanier Field at 2 p.m. for a School Bus tour of the old schools in Madison County that our students came from in the 50's, and also a visit to see Mrs. Louise Browning, their senior sponsor, at her home. Mrs. Browning has always attended the reunions, but of course her health did not permit it this year, so we went to her. Dale thought it was more rewarding to them than it was to her, and they appreciate the opportunity to see her and tell her how much she meant to each of them. They also went by Mrs. Rachel Reichmann's home and visited her; then on to Lee School, Pinetta, and the site of where the Cherry Lake School was before it burned. They were unable to go to Blue Springs, like they did in the past, because of the flooding.

Brown and her granddaughter, Ashton Raines; Mrs. Joyce Primm, wife of Coach Mack Primm; and Mrs. Iduma Smith, wife of Mr. David Smith. All of these teachers and their husbands and wives have always been a great part of their legacy, and they appreciate all they have done for us through the years.

Following a delicious dinner, a special memorial service was held to remember 17 class members that have passed away during the past 50 years, and also 3 of their latest teachers, followed by a DVD of their 50 years of history together.

After the class picture was taken, the class adjourned to Richard and Dale Sowell's house again for more reminiscing and breakfast later in the evening. There were a total of 43 class members that attended during the weekend, which is a remarkable turnout. A great time was had by everyone, and they are looking forward to many more reunions in the future.

Dinner was catered by Shelby's Restaurant. They were delighted to have several teachers as special guests: Mrs. Glen Baker, Mrs. Carolyn Edwards and her husband, Howell. They were also extremely proud to have Mrs. Kathryn Brown, wife of Coach Dick

Red Hat Society Meeting To Be Held July 29

By Bryant Thigpen
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Red Hat Society Meeting will be held on Wednesday, July 29, at Crosswinds Health and Rehabilitation Center, starting at 2 p.m.

The program began at Crosswinds in 2007 when activities director Dianne Sullivan initiated the efforts of joining the Red Hat Society. Shortly thereafter, Sullivan left the Crosswinds team for a short term, and was welcomed back the early part of 2009. When she left, no one really did anything else as the Red Hats. But when Sullivan returned, the meetings were started once again.

"The women love it," stated Sullivan. "These women need something that will make them feel special." And the purpose of the Red Hat Society is to do just that. The Red Hats Society is a club with no rules that gather just to have fun. The society promotes good morals while promoting that women can have good clean fun.

The meeting will be held at Crosswinds Health and Rehabilitation Center, but is open to anyone in the community who is a member. If you wish to participate, please call Dianne Sullivan or Tracy Smith at (850) 948-4601.

The Church of Tomorrow: Matt Thompson The Ups And Downs of Christian Living For Young People

By Bryant Thigpen
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Matthew Thompson was saved during a revival meeting at Macedonia Baptist Church in Lee at the age of 13. With nothing much to do for young Christians, Thompson got discouraged and eventually went back to his old lifestyle.

About three years ago, Thompson realized where he went wrong and that he turned his back on God. He felt the need to rededicate his life, and he did so one night at Sirmans Baptist Church in Greenville.

Currently, Thompson serves as Sunday School Superintendent and fills in teaching classes when needed.

Along with his roles at his home church, Thompson has also an-preach when I went and preached at Macedonia Baptist Church. That

Matt and Devin Thompson

swered the call to preach, and evangelizes wherever he gets called.

"I spoke a couple times at church, but I realized I was called to was my first time preaching outside my home church," Thompson said.

His next opportunity of preaching came at Midway Church of God, where Thompson was inspired by the pastor with these words, "If you can do anything else but preach, do it." Although the words didn't mean much then, now Thompson has realized exactly what those words meant and they put a greater impact on his call to preach.

"The theme I've kind of adopted is seize the moment that God's given me; to preach every opportunity I get. I feel like this is what God has for me for this time in my life."

"My goal is to always follow the Lord," he said. Thompson is currently attending Covenant Bible College and Seminary, which he hopes to complete soon.

"One of the struggles I found was that once you become a Christian, the people who were your friends are not your friends. It's a struggle to find genuine relationships and to refrain from bad influences," Thompson stated.

Although there are real struggles being young in age and the faith, Thompson finds his most rewarding moments are seeing people come to the altar after he's delivered the word of God. "I know that God's word went out."

At the age of 21, Thompson finds himself in the will of God. "I always want to strive to please my Heavenly Father."

On October 12, 2008, Thompson married his high school sweetheart and his biggest support, Devin Thompson.

In his free time away from the pulpit and studying, Thompson likes to spend time with his wife, Devin; listen to music (his favorite groups are Heirline, LifeSong, Casting Crowns and Decyfer Down); his favorite TV shows are House and N.C.I.S.; and Wendy's is his favorite fast food restaurant.

Thompson and his wife, Devin, attend Sirmans Baptist Church in Greenville.

Happenings At Madison First Baptist Church

By Kristin Finney

"To everything there is a season, A time for every purpose under heaven." Ecclesiastes 3:1

Everything on Earth happens for a reason, good and bad alike. Sunday services began with a beautiful duet by Jim and Beth Carey. This was followed by Steve Bass giving the offertory prayer. The Worship Choir then sang a wonderful piece entitled "He Touched Me." Pastor Ferrell's message came from 1Peter 3:15. He spoke of the hope that Christ gives us, the everlasting hope of God's love. He also told of the fact that God is in control of our lives and that no matter how hard we try to be, we are not.

The following events will be happening for Madison First Baptist in the next month: There will be an Associational Joint Brotherhood Meeting on July 21 at 6:45 p.m. Also on July 25, there will be a Children's Ministry Conference from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. On August 13 at 2 p.m. at Lee First Baptist, there will be a Senior Adult Ice Cream Social.

On August 28-29, there will be a Beth Moore Living Proof live simulcast.

We would like to invite you to join us for our services! Our worship schedule is as follows: Sunday School 10-11 a.m., Sunday Morning Worship 11 a.m.-12 noon. Sunday Evening Worship 6-7 p.m., followed by youth dinner and fellowship until 8 p.m. Wednesday evening services begin at 6 p.m. for both the adults and youth and lasts until 8 p.m.

We would like you to pray this week for two of Madison First Baptist youth members, Logan Davis and Markesha Thomas. They will be leaving in a week for basic training for the Army. We would like to keep them and all of the others who are attending these camps in our prayers.

Christians Issued A "Call 2 Fall" For Country

By Jan White

On Sunday, July 5, Christians all across America participated in "Call 2 Fall," a special time of prayer for our country.

Churches were urged to set aside a definite time during worship services on July 5th to "call people to get on their knees and faces before the Lord in repentant prayer for God to reshape our lives and renew our land."

Sponsored by the Family Research Council in Washington, D.C.,

"Call 2 Fall" is simply doing what God says in 2 Chronicles 7:14. "If My people who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

Organizers describe "Call 2 Fall" as a call for corporate humility before the Lord. "Why Sunday July 5th? Because on the day after we celebrate our 'Independence,' we hope that believers expressed their 'Dependence' upon the Lord," states the website at www.call2fall.com.

Not only do we have the teaching of Scripture and the examples from history to pray for our country, but again today, our nation needs prayer.

We are witnessing wars, natural disasters, and financial and moral collapse - "What happens when a nation turns away from God?" the Family Research Council believes.

JAMES GADSDEN

By Alfa Hunt

Greene Publishing, Inc.

James Gadsden was an American railroad promoter as well as a leading advocate of Southern Nationalism. Gadsden was also the United States minister to Mexico who was responsible for the Gadsden Purchase of 1853.

While Gadsden was in northern Florida, he was able to acquire some acreage, as an original settler, in what would become Jefferson County. Along with this acreage, he was able to acquire other land from the United States government at minimum price. By 1825, he was setting up a plantation on his newly acquired land, and named it Wacissa.

From August 1821 to March 1822 Gadsden served as adjutant general, but the Senate refused to confirm his appointment. Gadsden resigned from the Army and moved to his Florida plantation, where he was active in the territory's affairs by promoting the selling of lands.

In 1823 he was responsible for placing the Seminoles on reservations and for building the state's first roads.

During the Seminole Wars, Gadsden was appointed by Jackson to settle negotiation with the natives in Leon, Jefferson, and Madison Counties. Gadsden was appointed by the United States Secretary of War to evaluate the native property in Madison, as well as the improvements which had been made to them. For personal reasons, Gadsden declined this position.

By the early 1830s, Gadsden had been appointed as the new Indian Commissioner and was to deal with the Indian removal from Florida directly. When John Hicks and several other chiefs refused to relocate to the West United States because they didn't know what the terrain was like there, Gadsden sent a delegation of seven chiefs to inspect the land.

After returning from inspection of the western lands, Hicks realized that his people would not be able to resist the white population that seemed to be flooding into Florida at the time. He would then become an advocate of removal and Gadsden went about making plans to remove the tribes with no opposition. Shortly after this, Hicks died, possibly with the aid of arsenics administered to him by people close to him.

Whether he died of natural causes or because of secret plots, his death marked the removal of a peacemaker between the white settlers and the natives. The Second Seminole War would soon start after this, only making things more frustrating for Gadsden.

Politically, Gadsden failed several times in bids to represent the Florida territory in the United States Congress. An appointive legislative council was made elective in 1826. Elections for territorial delegates soon became exciting events. Joseph M. White, another planter from Jefferson County, and Gadsden both participated, and White beat Gadsden with 742 votes to 460, gaining him reelection in 1825.

Gadsden became a close friend of Richard Keith Call since both had been protégés of General Jackson and soon territorial governor Duval became allied with these two men. White was their primary opponent and most of the differences were based on bitterness between White and Call. At one point, a duel had almost ensued between the two men if it had not been for their close friends intervening.

White would hold his position for 12 more years and in every election until 1831 Gadsden opposed him. That year, Gadsden again lost with only 1,866 votes against White's 1,933 votes. Governor Duval was enraged by the outcome and called for another election. Criticism mounted against the governor's actions, but Andrew Jackson appointed Gadsden to an United States office.

Regardless of this new office, White won the second election with an even higher majority. This election feuding would continue and affect the affairs of Florida's early statehood. In 1832 when he backed nullification of President Jackson's earlier Tariff Act, Gadsden lost the support and friendship of the president.

During the 1830s Gadsden became a supporter of Southern Nationalism and the expansion of all Southern railroads. He suggested ending the South's economic dependency on the North by providing a direct link between the South and Europe. This direct link would be the result of connecting all Southern railroads into one system and connecting the Southern system with the Pacific Coast.

He promoted these schemes during several Southern Economic Conferences between 1837 and 1850. During the 1840s, Gadsden served as president of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad and while in that position, he greatly expanded its mileage. His ideas concerning Southern transportation were considered to have been far-sighted, but he was continually frustrated both by his devotion to Southern Nationalism and the general opposition of other Southern leaders whose ideas of state rights prevented any regional development from taking place.

In 1853 Gadsden urged the purchase of territory along the Gila River from Mexico in order to build a southern railroad between New Orleans and California. He won the support of U.S. Secretary of War Jefferson Davis and, with the help of Davis, Gadsden was appointed minister to Mexico by President Franklin Pierce.

Gadsden next advocated purchasing extensive territory from Mexico, but he was successful in acquiring only a 45,535 acres, which are now parts of New Mexico and Arizona. This deal became known as the Gadsden Purchase.

James Gadsden died in his South Carolina home on Dec. 26, 1858 at the age of 70.

By the early 1830s, Gadsden had been appointed as the new Indian Commissioner and was to deal with the Indian removal from Florida directly. Real Estate

Understanding zoning restrictions and how to change them can be useful and profitable for investors. Changing a property's zoning — rezoning — allows investors to pursue a greater variety of land uses and may result in increased profits, depending on the land's location and the types of properties around it.

Property zoning restrictions place limits on land uses: A hardware store cannot be built on land zoned for residential property. Zoning often includes restrictions on the physical aspects of the buildings themselves, such as height limits and required distances from property lines. Zoning also designates how many lots can be created within a certain area of land, which can affect subdivision plans. Property taxes may also vary with different zoning designations, depending on county rules.

The most common type of zoning in the United States is Euclidian zoning, named after the town of Euclid, Ohio, where it originated. The goal of this type of zoning is to promote orderly community growth and keep different property types relegated to specific areas. Euclidian zoning is considered to be "traditional" zoning and focuses on land use classifications — e.g. single-family residential, commercial or industrial — and dimensional requirements such as the height and area of structures.

There are three other main types of zoning in the U.S. Form-based codes aim to protect the makeup of existing neighborhoods and promote pedestrian safety by regulating structures' forms and placement within public spaces. Incentive zoning rewards developers with higher density for projects in exchange for doing something in the neighborhood's interest. And performance zoning allows developers to build almost any structure that meets the county's performance standards — such as regulations on density, noise and traffic flow.

Investors may decide to try to rezone properties to increase market value, or they may have specific plans in mind that could not be accomplished with the property's current zoning.

The rezoning process varies from county to county. The first stop for investors interested in pursuing a rezone opportunity should be the county's planning and development department. In Madison County, officials may be reached at (850) 973-1739.

As a general rule, a rezoning petition must be in line with the county's future land use plans. The petition process usually involves filling out forms and attaching comprehensive plans and specifications and doing a thorough job of presenting to the Planning and Zoning Board, being careful to cover all the technical requirements so as not to get disqualified.

When putting together a land use petition, it is also wise to consider the input of the neighborhood. If the neighbors are opposed to a proposed land use and suggest alternatives, it may be worthwhile to consider taking their suggestions in order to avoid conflicts. And although the application process varies between counties, it is estimated that the process will take between four and six months depending on the experience level of the petitioner.

Rezoning is an excellent way for investors to increase profits and land use options, but excessive use can affect their tax status as a real estate investor or real estate dealer. There is a fine line between the two, and it is often hard to distinguish. For more information, again, contact the Madison County Planner at (850) 973-3179.

NOMINATIONS BEING ACCEPTED FOR GEORGE TOWNSEND GOOD NEIGHBOR AWARD

The Madison County Farm Bureau is presently taking nominations for the Annual George Townsend Good Neighbor Award, which will be presented at the local Madison County Farm Bureau Annual Meeting, which will be held on Tuesday, September 15.

This award has been presented annually for the past nine years. The award is given to someone in the community who truly demonstrates what being a "Good Neighbor" is all about. "Mr. Townsend fit into this category as being a good neighbor to everyone he came in contact with," said Richard Terry, Board Member for the Farm Bureau.

Townsend owned and operated the Madison Stockyards for years and years, and his son and daughter and her husband still operate Townsend Livestock Company in Madison.

"Mr. George always had a kind word for everyone he met, and especially the younger generation. He supported every youth program held in Madison County, as well as surrounding counties. He never met a child he did not really love and have time for.

That was what George Townsend was all about," added Terry. "Farm Bureau is indeed proud to present this award every year to someone in the community who makes a difference in our world."

If anyone has a nominee who would qualify for the award, they need to get the name and a short one-page narrative about the person, which would include why the person deserves the award. This nomination must be delivered to the Madison County Farm Bureau office before Friday, September 4. The applications will be judged by a committee of the Madison County Farm Bureau, and the presentation will be made at the September 15 annual meeting.
