Festival Regains Traditional Name

By Ginger Jarvis
Greene Publishing, Inc.

It's baaaaaack! The April festival formerly called Down Home Days has regained that title after several years of being called Four Freedoms Festival. The Madison City Commissioners approved this change at their regular meeting on February 9.

Chamber of Commerce Director Ted Ensminger approached the board with a plan to keep the title Down Home Days for the spring event. He also asked permission to have a rodeo at Lanier Field in conjunction with Down Home Days. The

Bullets Found In Residential Area

Two separate times Mike Brock, a resident of Madison, has found bullets embedded in his shingled roof. The latest find was Wednesday, February 10, when doing some roof maintenance. The second bullet was located within 30 feet of the first one which was found a couple of years ago.

"Every New Years and 4th of July we hear a lot of gun fire in the City of Madison," Brock said.

Apparently, those firing the weapons are shooting them in the air, disregarding the law of gravity. The lead that goes up comes back to earth and creates damage and sometimes death across the U.S.

Brock's home is located near U.S. Hwy 90 and Hwy 53 North in downtown Madison.

Authorities have been contacted and will be following up with the evidence.

Abbie's Sense Of Humor

My sister, Abbie, has a sense of humor that can scare me sometimes.

The other night, I walked into Walmart in Live Oak with Abbie. We got our buggy and I stationed Abbie at the back so she could push it, which she enjoys doing. I had leaned over and was looking at cookies or something else which don't need to eat and she disappeared. I'm serious. Poof! She vanished.

My brother, Danny, and my father were behind us getting power buggies (since both of them have trouble getting around in the store) and neither of them saw Abbie disappear either.

I don't think I have to tell many of you that I was frightened. I began asking others in the store if they had seen which way my mentally challenged sister went. None of them had. I ran out the door to make sure that she hadn't gone back in the parking lot. There was no sign of her there.

When I got back in the store, Danny and Daddy were fanning out looking for her as I frantically continued to search.

I saw Daddy come out of one aisle, driving his buggy and Abbie was sitting on it with him, just laughing. He said that she had popped out of one aisle and hopped on it with him.

I collected Abbie and we set about doing our shopping, with her happily pushing the buggy and grinning from ear to ear about the joke she had played on her big brother.

The Bible tells us that a merry heart doing good like a medicine but sometimes a little joke can just about scare the life out of you.

People quickly ditch their New Year's resolutions to improve their health and increase the wealth and it usually happens before the end of January. According to Extension Specialists at Rutgers University, the main reason is the negative feelings associated with words like "diet" and "budget." They are restrictive words that imply you have to cut back and do without. Another comparison is the 3 D's, denial, deprivation and don't, which only inspires some people to do the opposite.

Positive behavior changes aren't about making big sacrifices; rather they are about balance and tradeoffs. Whether it's an "energy balance" involved with weight management or a "money balance" associated with managing personal fi-

Think Balance — Not Sacrifice

(Part 6 in a series Small Steps to Health and Wealth)

nances, the process is the same: you need to balance intake and outgo. To lose weight, you must maintain a "negative energy balance" by burning off more calories with exercise and daily activity than you consume. To save money, you need a "positive cash flow" which means having income greater than expenses. Dr. Barbara O'Neil says, "Despite all the marketing hype you might hear; there are no short cuts to health and wealth other than "eat less and exercise more" and "spend less and save more."

Starting with health, look at your energy balance. It is the difference between the energy you consume from food and beverage and the energy that your body burns in physical activity. This energy is measured in calories. Each pound of stored body fat represents 3,500 calories. In order to lose one pound, you must eat 3,500 fewer calories, burn 3,500 through exercise or better yet, combine calorie reductions with physical activity. Experts recommend you lose no more than two pounds per week.

Changing on e habit can have an enormous impact. If you take small amounts of time during your day to exercise, say 10 - 15 minutes, you will burn off calories and achieve the recommended amount of physical activity, at least 30 minutes per day. Add 15 minutes of brisk walking each day and you'll burn off an extra 100 calories. Modify your diet by eliminating a tablespoon of butter or a soft drink and you'll cut out 100 calories. Cut out a doughnut and replace it with an English muffin to save 350 calories each day.

Now for finances, let's think how to achieve a balance. Cash flow is the relationship between income and expenses, including savings for future goals such as retirement. Ideally, your cash flow should be apposite number because this means you are living below your means. If you continually spend more than you earn you will have a negative cash flow and go broke. Three ways to achieve a positive cash flow is to increase income, decrease expenses or a combination of the two.

A popular concept to help you achieve a positive cash flow is the "10% solution." This means trying to save 10% of your gross income each year by reducing flexible household expenses such as food, clothing and entertainment. Over time, the results will have a huge impact.

Start by trimming your family food bill. The US Department of Agriculture calculated a middle-income family of four spends an average of $189.20 per week for food eaten at home. By planning your food purchases, preparing food around sale items and eliminating waste, you can reduce expenses and then direct the money toward savings.

Take a good look at how much you spend on food eaten away from home. If you write it down each time and total the amount, you will be shocked. Just by reducing this habit, you'll be able to find money to save. Continue to apply the "10% solution" to other household expenses like clothing, gifts entertainment and personal care items.

Here are a few money savings idea from the Consumer Federation of America's American Saves program: save 50 cents a day in loose change, substitute coffee for cappuccino, bring lunch to work, buy grocery store brands, use few phone features. As you do these simple things each day, put the money aside you save, because if you leave it in your pocket, you'll find a way to spend it. For additional ideas, visit www.AmericaSaves.org

Rutgers Extension Specialists give one final caution about energy balance and money balance: be prepared to adjust to circumstances if the change. If you suffer an injury and can't exercise, you'll need to reduce your food intake until you are back to exercising. Likewise, if your income drops, you will need to make adjustments. Building health and wealth can be done over time with small changes and personal attention.

Question:

What is the difference between plaque and tartar?

Answer:

OK... grab your morning coffee and take two slurps of coffee because here comes the answer. This is how it works, plaque is the bad stuff that causes all evil in Dentistry. It causes tooth decay, abscesses, gum disease, bad breath, etc. Plaque is that white slimy film that gets all over your teeth if you go on a three day trip and forgot your toothbrush (have you ever done that?). Plaque is composed of billions of germs and bacteria. The bottom line is high bacteria causes high dental disease. If you feed the bacteria with a bunch of sugar, you will have very high dental disease.

Now for the good news. You can remove plaque yourself. Get a new toothbrush and brush your teeth. Forget the toothpaste for a while and learn how to brush your teeth. It is the brush that cleans the teeth and not the paste. After you finish brushing, check your teeth with your tongue to see if any plaque is left. You will be amazed how much you can feel if you don't have paste & bubbles in your mouth. But you say that the brush doesn't get into those nooks and crannies very well. Very true and that is where that stuff called floss is supposed to be used. Over 40% of the surface of the teeth is inaccessible to a toothbrush, so get to work with your floss.

Now the rest of the story. Try as you may, not many patients are all that perfect at removing the plaque. Plaque that remains behind undisturbed by a brush or floss for 100 days will actually plaster or harden onto the teeth. Hardened plaque is what we term tartar or calculus. That is not something you can remove by your self. We recommend that you see your hygienist every 6 months to remove those bits of tartar that have been missed.

Ensminger also requested permission to host an event in November called Four Freedoms Festival, centered around Veterans Day.

The commissioners agreed to Ensminger's proposals, with a stipulation that he will offer more details at their March 11 meeting.

Senior Citizens Director Rosa Richardson presented a status report on the new Senior Citizens Center presently under construction. She said, "The project is 80 percent completed and should be finished by the end of March, depending on the weather." So far, $835,674 of the project grant has been spent, along with $80,000 of in-kind contribution from the Department of Correction.

City Manager Harold Emrich brought a request to apply for the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) Program. He said, "The grant will be used to purchase radios that will put us in compliance with new requirements."

Commissioners Jim Catron and Myra Valentine moved to approve the request; the board passed it unanimously.

Kiwaniis President Oliver Bradley presents a check to Faye Browning to establish the Pat Cantey Memorial Scholarship.

Kiwaniis Club Establishes Pat Cantey Memorial Scholarship

Oliver Bradley, president of the Kiwanis Club of Madison, presented a $3,000 scholarship check to Faye Browning, president of the Madison County Foundation for Excellence in Education, at a recent club meeting.

The family and friends of Pat Cantey, in a joint effort with his Kiwanis family established the Pat Cantey Scholarship to honor his memory. Pat died suddenly in the fall of 2009.

The Pat Cantey Memorial Scholarship will be awarded to a student selected through the Take Stock in Children Program of the Madison County Foundation. This program will assure that the student receives guidance, mentoring and support as he/she progresses through their educational experience. This partnership will result in a Florida Prepaid Scholarship, which will become a four-year college tuition scholarship for the recipient.

Pat Cantey was a charter member of the Kiwanis Club where he served faithfully as President, Secretary, and Chairman of various committees, and on the Board of Directors for many years. The Kiwanis have noted how they greatly miss his service, laughter and zest for fun. He was also a charter member of the Madison County Foundation for Excellence in Education.

If You Build It, They Will Come

Submitted by Doug Freer

"If you build it, they will come". If you know a man 18 years or older who is interested in playing organized baseball, please continue reading.

We have kicked off the 2010 Men's Adult Baseball League season having our first league meeting on January 30 in Madison. We want the local communities to know that there is an opportunity for men 18 years and older to play baseball in an organized league that is comprised of men from several North Florida counties from St. Johns to Leon and everything in between. The next league workout will be on February 20 at 1:30 pm at Cantey Field, located in Madison at North Florida Community College. This workout will serve to not only work on some basic skills and to get warmed up for the season but to meet other players in your area and to share details about what will be needed for an individual to participate in the league. This will be a league that travels to play on Sunday afternoons with opening day planned for March 14. With local sponsors' support and just a few good men wanting to play catch again, the Men's Adult Baseball League looks to make this field of dreams something we can all enjoy, on the diamond and outside the lines.

Local registration is located at www.leagueonlineup.com/northfloridamabl. For more information, contact us at NorthFloridaMABL@gmail.com or call Greg Vickers at (850)253-5107.

Visit www.msblnational.com to learn more about the national league.

Womanless Wedding Blossoms For The Garden Club

The cast and crew of "A Wild and Wacky Womanless Wedding" entertained a packed house for the Madison Garden Club fundraiser held on Feb. 13 at the Woman's Club.

By Michael Curtis
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison Garden Club recently celebrated its milestone, 60th Anniversary, where charter member Rachel Reichmann was appropriately honored. On Feb. 13, the club extended these community milestones, as President Dolly Ballard and a host of helpers organized a theatrical triumph, titled, "A Wacky & Womanless Wedding."

Opening with a wacky hat auction, the evening of entertainment included a delicious dinner. Later characters sporting names such as, "Paris Milton and Dolly Pairton," teamed up with others like, "Gertrude the Cleaning Lady and Oprah Winnifreed," providing a ton of laughs and raising a lot of dollars for Garden Club charities.

Groom Hugo Ego Heffer was scheduled to marry Pamela Handerson. Characters took a few moments to arrive at the church though, as the "lovely ladies" entered the auditorium of the Woman's Club at Lake Frances, working the crowd as they worked their way to the stage.

In the end, the groom objected to his own marriage, which was seconded by the Cleaning Lady who turned out to be his long lost wife.

"Gerty...Gertrude...but I thought you were dead?" Heffer said. "You went out over 20 years ago to get a salami sandwich and a tube of Polident and you didn't come back." As the packed house laughed, Gertrude replied, "I got caught up in a few garage sales," which brought the laughter to a roar.

When asked about the experience, some characters thought they might never live the moment down. For instance, Tommy Greene, who played Dolly Pairton, noted, "We may live through it, but we'll never outlive it."

While jilted bride, Handerson, stated, "I'll be scarred for life from the humiliation of being left at the altar."

Directors Judy Baldwin and Jessica Webb of the RATT pact, as well as Musical Director Ginger Jarvis, were congratulated for an exceptionally entertaining performance, as the show closed festively with everyone singing, "You are my Sunshine."

Seniors Enjoy Valentine's Party

The seniors from the Madison County Senior Center visited the Greenville Senior Center for a Valentine's party on February 12. The clients visited with old friends, and also enjoyed making new friends. Together they participated in arts and crafts, board games, Valentine's games, and even shared stories of unforgettable moments in their lives.

The senior center provided lunch for the seniors, but each of the seniors helped by bringing a covered dish to add to a wonderful meal.

Church

"But the eyes of the LORD are on those who fear him, on those whose hope is in His unfailing love," Psalm 33:18.

Sunday services began in a spectacular way. Our congregation had the blessing of witnessing Sarah Grace Morris be baptized by her father Pastor Ferrell Morris.

We pray that God gives her strength in her walk with Him. Jim Carey followed with a beautiful message through song. The Worship Choir followed with, "It's All Because of Jesus I am Alive." Pastor Ferrell's message came from 2 Peter 3:9 on God's unending patience.

Upcoming events at Madison First Baptist are as follows: Saturday February 20th at 3 p.m. there will be a Associational Choir Festival at our church. February 26th-27th there will be a "Coram Deo Ladies Retreat" called "Revival of the Righteous." Also February 28th there will be a Three Bridges concert at Madison First Baptist. All are invited to attend.

Churches Asked To Assist Their Members With Census

Members of the Madison County Complete Count Census Committee have several projects in place to assist local citizens in being counted in the 2010 Census.

The Church Assistance Sub-committee, led by Rev. Sim Alexander of Madison, Elesta Pritchett of Greenville, and Rev. Rich Quackenbush of Lee, have taken on the responsibility to involve all local churches in helping their members complete and return their Census Questionnaires.

They will be contacting church leaders and encouraging them to call two people in each congregation to assist those who might have difficulties in completing the 10 questions to be received in the mail.

Patrick Lightcap, Co-Chair of the Census Committee, said, "We hope those with any barriers to completing their 2010 Census Questionnaire will ask someone they know and trust to assist them. Working within churches will hopefully enhance trust and accessibility for the help they need."

The official questionnaire should arrive at each home some time in March and is to be mailed back on April 1—Census Day.

The Census Bureau will also be establishing help centers in the County for those who need assistance. All census data remains confidential no matter who helps.

Dan Schall Singing At Local Churches

Dan Schall will appear at Hanson United Methodist Church, Lee United Methodist Church and Cherry Lake United Methodist Church.

Schall's appearance at Hanson UMC will be Saturday evening, Feb. 20, at 6:30 p.m. A covered dish dinner will immediately follow the performance.

He will appear at Lee UMC on Sunday morning, Feb. 21, during the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. services.

Schall will appear at Cherry Lake UMC AT 7 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 26. A dinner will precede the concert.

There will be no admission

charge at any of the concerts. A love offering will be received.

Schall is from Zelionople, Pa. Through his music and testimony, he conveys his love for Jesus Christ and his concern for his fellow man's eternity. His ministry focuses on encouragement and God's love for man.

Dan stutters when he speaks, but the Lord has blessed him with a singing voice of praise to share the Lord's words through music. In his early years of his life he was filled with anger, feeling that even if there was a God, He had forsaken him. Even though he had difficulty in being able to share what Christ had meant to him in spoken word, God had given him a voice to share it through song. Through his concerts he is able to reach to help others realize what God has given them.

For 30 years, he worked a full-time job and continued to give 100-125 concerts a year. In the fall of 2001, he resigned his job and formed Dan Schall Ministries. In addition to his concerts, he spends much of his time visiting the people that God leads him to.

You are able to hear some of his music and his weekly webcast at his web site at www.DanSchall.org. CDs are available at the concert and through the web site.

Dan Schall Ministries is a non-profit organization.

Let's turn back time once again to November of 1909. Two shocking and senseless murders took place in the same month. The following is a recount of the murder of C. Black Ashley. It is printed verbatim from the November 25, 1909 edition of The Madison Enterprise-Recorder.

Shocking Tragedy Startles Town

Col. C. Black Ashley, Prominent Lawyer and Citizen, Meets Death at Hands of James A. Beatty

Without Warning or Known Provocation Beatty Shoots and Kills Ashley at Office of Latter Last Thursday Afternoon

About five o'clock last Thursday afternoon, Col. C. Black Ashley, prominent lawyer and influential citizen, was shot down in front of his office in this city and in a few minutes was a corpse.

J.A. Beatty, a saw mill man in business at or near Lee in this county, is the person at whose hand Col. Ashley lost his life.

The streets were thronged with merry, happy people who were just returning from the performance of the John Robinson circus, and no one - Col. Ashley least of all - had the slightest intimation of the impending tragedy.

Col. Ashley was seated at his desk in the office which opens directly on the street, when a negro man appeared at the door and told him Mr. Beatty wanted to speak to him outside. Without a moment's hesitation and absolutely unsuspecting, Col. Ashley walked across the sidewalk to the curb where Mr. Beatty was seated in his buggy, and putting one foot on the hug of the buggy wheel pleasantly saluted Beatty and inquired his business. As far as we have been able to learn the only conversation which passed was to this effect: Beatty said, "I want to get my note or notes." Ashley replied, "They are in the courthouse locked up. I'll get them for you tomorrow," and with these words yet upon his lips turned to go back into his office. It was then that two pistol shot reports rang out quick and sharp, and the throng on the street knew that something out of the ordinary had happened. Beatty threw himself back in the buggy, exclaiming, "I am shot." Quickly the report was current that "Ashley is dead and Beatty fatally wounded, each having shot the other." An examination of Beatty's person by the sheriff who was immediately upon the scene, failed to discover the faintest suspicion of a wound and he was found to be feigning altogether. A search of Ashley's person failed to bring to light anything in the nature of a deadly weapon. The first shot fired by Beatty was while he held the pistol in his coat pocket, the bullet tearing its way through the coat lining. This shot is thought to have gone wild. It is said that after the first shot and when Ashley had turned, Beatty drew his pistol and taking deliberate aim sent speeding the bullet which found lodgment in Ashley's side producing the wound from which, in a few minutes, his death resulted.

So far as known the killing was without the slightest provocation. Ashley, as attorney for several creditors, had sued out attachments against the property of Beatty and this is supposed to have incensed him. It is stated that Beatty was somewhat under the influence of liquor when he did the shooting. From all reports Beatty drove in town direct from his home at Lee and drove immediately to Ashley's office.

In a little while after the shooting the sheriff had Beatty securely locked in the county jail where he is now confined awaiting trial for his awful deed. Beatty is a married man, his wife and two children being on a visit to Georgia at the time of the tragedy. They arrived her Saturday.

Where To Hunt Spring Turkeys Without A Quota Permit

If you weren't lucky enough to get drawn for a spring turkey quota permit, or if you are looking for even more spring turkey hunting opportunity, don't fret; there are numerous wildlife management areas (WMAs) that don't require them.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) offers 42 public hunting areas statewide where hunters need only to "walk on" to hunt spring turkeys.

These hunts are made possible through the FWC's partnerships with the state's Division of Forestry, Florida's water management districts, the U.S. Forest Service, Florida Department of Environmental Protection, the National Park Service, Department of Defense and the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, who contribute their lands to the state's public-hunting system.

Hunters need only a hunting license ($17 for residents, $46.50 for nonresident 10-day license), management area permit ($26.50) and turkey permit

($5 for residents, $100 for nonresidents) to spring turkey hunt on the following areas. These licenses and permits can be purchased in Florida at county tax collectors' offices and at most retail outlets that sell hunting and fishing supplies. They also can be bought with a credit card by calling 888-486-8356 or going online at www.wildlifefelicense.com/fl.

A Farmer's Fantasy

By John L. Hoblick, Florida Farm Bureau

As president of the state's largest agricultural organization, I'm pleased to present a tale that must never come true. Farm Bureau, the Florida Department of Agriculture, UF/IFAS and Florida commodity organizations are working to make sure this flight into fantasy will never reflect reality. I believe it demonstrates how scary life could be without our agricultural organizations and institutions.

Five years into the second decade of the 21st Century, farmer Frank Baffington is shaking his head. His farm, a blessing to his family for the better part of 100 years, is driving him to distraction.

Not that he and his family haven't faced challenges. Hurricanes, freezes, droughts and bad markets - generations of Baffingtons faced them all down, displaying the adaptability, toughness, character and determination that characterize Florida farmers and ranchers.

Now, he thinks he might give up the land his grandfather began working back when FSU was still a girls' school. Canker and citrus greening have taken a toll on the groves. He thinks that if UF/IFAS researchers hadn't had their funding cut by the Legislature back in 2010, the industry could have defeated or at least arrested those diseases. As it is now, the door is closing on Florida's citrus industry.

The family beef operation is likewise curtailed. Activist groups passed a constitutional initiative effectively outlawing commercial marketing of animals and animal products.

That's okay, though. He couldn't have afforded to keep the cattle anyway because of the costly Title V ("Cow Tax") permits Washington has imposed because the bureaucrats said his cows were belching too much methane. The cattle's absence leaves his pastures teeming with weeds, some of which are likely considered invasive. Nature, he thinks ruefully, can be a bad mother to land that isn't managed.

He's been entertaining the idea of planting another crop. New grass cultivars that can be used to produce energy might hold some promise, if scientists finally find a way to produce energy from them that makes economic sense. And maybe he can find a niche in local markets for some of the designer vegetables that are more and more prized by the locavores.

But, putting pencil to paper, he doesn't see how he can make a profit because he can barely fill his tractor with fuel or his tanks with fertilizer. The new cap-and-trade law has driven prices of petroleum-based products to alarming heights. The sweet iced tea he is sipping leaves a bitter taste in his mouth as he remembers how the politicians promised to save the world by curbing carbon dioxide emissions. At one point, it seemed as if American politicians thought the United States could fix the problem all by itself by discouraging the use of fossil fuels. They failed to heed the cries of rural America and now Baffington wonders if he can work his way out of the problem.

He would like to chuck it all for a few days. Maybe clear his head by going fishing; that's always helped him to work through things. But now his favorite farm pond is under the jurisdiction of the EPA and the Clean Water Restoration Act and off limits to rod and reel. Once he welcomed rainstorms, convinced that he and his property performed a public service by recharging the aquifer. Now, he hopes for long, dry spells because EPAs Numeric Nutrient Criteria call for nutrient levels that are actually lower than most rainfall. Still ... Baffington is a farmer, so the idea of putting in a new crop appeals to him. He could convert part of his land to crops and maybe raise the seed money by developing another tract.

Oh, wait. He has forgotten about Amendment 4, "Hometown Democracy," the constitutional amendment voters passed in 2010. Can he afford a strong enough political campaign to convince his neighbors and the voters in the rest of the county that they should allow him to change his zoning? Will they care, faced as they are with 150 other amendments on the ballot?

He feels pains return to his chest. He should see the doctor tomorrow. He isn't sure he wants to go on. Yet he dare not die. Not now. The Death Tax has returned, full-force, threatening to impoverish his family should he join the departed. Head down, he kicks disconsolately at the dirt.

"Dear, stop kicking," says his wife, lying beside him on the bed. "You have been so restless lately," Baffington sits up, startled, and gazes at the clock glowing on the nightstand.

It's 3 a.m. The date is Feb. 14, 2010, he remembers. It's Valentine's Day. A Sunday, and in a few hours he will prepare breakfast and serve it with a bouquet to the woman he has loved for more than 30 years. His mood brightens as he remembers their first meeting at a Farm Bureau Young Farmer conference so long ago. Baffington smiles, his confidence returning. Agriculture is a community and its people, organizations and institutions are interwoven into his family's life, one of their strongest connections to people of like mind.
