School Board Bans Valentine Deliveries At School

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

This Valentine's Day, Cupid will have to wait until after school.

Acting on a letter of request from Madison County High School student government, the School Board debated the possibility of allowing Valentine's Day deliveries at the high school; last year, Valentine's Day was on a Sunday, so it wasn't a problem, but this year, Cupid's special day is next Tuesday.

After a short discussion that brought up the fact that the deliveries of flowers, gifts, candy, etc. tend to be disruptive during the course of an average school day and that the FCAT is less than three weeks away (the writing portion of the FCAT will be given Feb. 28) the board, agreeing that, "there's not a day to be wasted," voted unanimously to ban the deliveries, making it a county-wide policy until further action of the board.

Scam Alert

By Jacob Bemby
Greene Publishing, Inc.

A Lee woman reported to this newspaper that she was the victim of an attempted phone scam.

She said that she was home one day when the phone rang. On the other end of the line was a man who spoke in a very thick accent. She told him that she could not understand him and he put another man on the line. The second man offered to send her medical supplies to the home for free and then asked for her banking information.

The request for the banking information threw up a red flag and she told the man, "I might be 92 years old but I'm not an idiot and I won't give you my banking information."

If you or anyone you know has been the attempted victim of such a scheme, please call the Madison County Sheriff's Office at (850) 973-4001 or the Madison Police Department at (850) 973-5077.

Mona Rector, daughter of Thelma Thompson of Lee, was seriously injured in a fall from a motorcycle in an accident in Jacksonville.

According to Thompson, Rector was on a poker run when she was ejected from her motorcycle and fell down an embankment. A rider behind her saw her plummet down the embankment and immediately stopped to help her.

Rector has been in three different hospitals since the wreck happened and the prognosis has not been good.

Thompson requests that prayers be said for her daughter and the family.

New Downtown Mural Spotlights Local History

"Isn't he something?" says next door neighbor (on ground) Louise Bland, during one of her stops to check on the mural's progress. Daniel Cucinella (on ladder) adds the blue for the sky.

On a warm Friday afternoon in February, the weather is perfect to do a little outdoor painting at the corner of SW Rutledge and SW Shelby; the young man on the ladder is hard at work on the cinderblock building that houses the newly refurbished Madison Coin Laundry on one side and will soon house a new brick-oven pizzeria on the other.

But this isn't a typical paint job. Cars slow down to watch 26-year-old Daniel Cucinella at work. Next-door neighbor Louise Bland stops by to check on his progress, fascinated by it and joking about stopping by three or four times a day for the last couple of days.

'Parents Are Your Partners,' Teresa Gallegos Tells School Board

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Speaking to the School Board Feb. 7, Teresa Gallegos, a working parent and past president of the PTO, urged the school board to do more to involve parents in their children's education, but added that it would mean actively reaching out to some groups of parents who feel alienated by the way school staff and administrators sometimes treat them. It would mean calling them, contacting them personally and asking why they are not involved. It would mean bringing the school meetings to them in their neighborhoods, particularly the neighborhoods of the working poor, where transportation is a problem, and scheduling meetings that would allow them to attend.

"The parents who are involved now are the ones with the middle class, eight-to-five jobs," Gallegos said adding that eight-to-five parents were in the minority

USDA Dietary Guidelines recommend choosing a diet low in fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, trans fats and using monounsaturated fats; all part of a plan to reduce your risk of heart disease. What a tall order! And, do you understand the difference between these fats? This week in National Heart Month, let's explore the issue of fat and ways to get more heart healthy fats into your diet.

According to Dr. Linda Bobroff, UF Extension Nutrition Specialist, fat is an essential nutrient in our diets. It is a source of energy, or calories and is needed to help with the absorption of fat soluble vitamins. The problem with fat in our diets is that we eat too much.

Fats are made up of a mixture of fatty acids; they can be saturated, monounsaturated, or polyunsaturated fatty acids.

Saturated fats tend to raise cholesterol levels which increase your risk of heart disease; it is recommended we limit the intake of foods high in this type of fat. Saturated fats are solid at room temperature and can be found in animal sources of food; examples are butter, cream, and beef fat. The exceptions to the rule are coconut, palm and palm kernel oil, which are often used in commercial baked goods, cookies and crackers.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance that is part of all human and animal cells. It is needed to form hormones, cell membranes and other body substances. Since your body makes its own, you don't need extra cholesterol in your diet. Over time, high levels of cholesterol cause plaque to collect along the walls of your blood vessels resulting in restricted blood flow or blockages. It is recommended that you keep cholesterol take to 300 mg. each day. Cholesterol is found animal sources of food; meat and whole dairy. Usually when you alter you fat intake for saturated fats you also reduce cholesterol.

Trans fats have been in the news in recent years, they are formed when liquid oils are made into solid fats, although small amounts are found naturally in some animal-based foods. Like saturated fat, trans fats raise LDL cholesterol in blood, which increases the risk of heart disease. Manufacturers now have to label their products for trans fats.

Reading nutrition labels and ingredients lists can help identify the amount of fat in a food product. The nutrition label will also list total fat—saturated, unsaturated and trans - fats. Ingredients are listed in descending order. To keep your fat intake within reason, choose foods with fat listed lower on the ingredient list. Choose foods with low amounts of fat, saturated and trans fats on the label.

Polyunsaturated fats are liquid at room temperature and do not increase cholesterol levels. Corn oil is an example of this type of fat. It is a healthier fat to use and many recipes have been developed to use this fat in baked produce such as biscuits.

Monounsaturated fats are the better choice; they are liquid at room temperature and tend to help lower cholesterol. That's right, they help carry cholesterol out of the body. Remember though, all fats are high in calories and should be used sparingly. Canola oil is the highest in monounsaturated fats. Other liquid oils like olive, peanut and safflower are all high in monounsaturated fats.

So, how do you apply these recommendations in daily eating habits? When preparing food, use fat free milk, lean cuts of meat and remove the skin from poultry. Forget frying altogether, there are so many interesting low fat cooking methods; try baking, roasting, steaming or grilling. If you have grandma's favorite recipe that is high fat and can't live without it, consider eating it less often, have a smaller portion or modify the recipe and use a heart healthy fat.

All fats are not equal, change the type of fat you use and then reduce the total amount. Start by drastically reducing saturated fats and substitute monounsaturated fats in your diet. For more information on fat in your diet, call the Madison Extension office for your copy of "Nutrition for Health and Fitness: Fat in Your Diet".

Did You Know....

It is impossible for a solar eclipse to last for more than seven minutes 58 seconds.

Once upon a time, in a fairy tale land and in a fairy tale castle lived the most beautiful princess ever written about. Like Helen of Troy in mythology, her face launched a thousand ships. Poets wrote poems about her but they could not capture her essence. The world's master artists attempted to paint her but they could not capture her beauty.

She not only had beauty. She also had a great voice and a talent for music. People loved to hear her sing, for in the sound of her song, one could hear the beat of her heart. In that beat, though, there was a longing - the longing was for her one true love and for things not of this world.

Each evening, she would gaze out her window at the heavens and wish upon a star. Somewhere, far away, there had to be a kingdom other than the realm that she reigned over.

Far, far away, there lived a pauper who had only seen one of the paintings of the princess hanging in a museum. The beauty that the master had captured with oils on the canvas had failed miserably at capturing her true beauty but it was enough to stir a passion in the pauper. He yearned to meet her but how could he do it? He was but a poor, hardworking soul that knew his station in life. She was a princess.

The pauper looked at the book that he had owned for years. He felt its leather binding. It had been given to him as a child by his grandmother. It was the only book that he had ever owned but how he loved to read it. The book was filled with stories about history and mystery. There were tales of intrigue in it. It was filled with poetry and there were even stories of romance in it.

Towards the end of the book, there seemed to be a theme that brought the first part of the book together. In that part, there were stories about one Man. The pauper thought of how the princess would love to read about the Man.

He lovingly wrote a letter to the princess and found a box to put the treasured book in. He scraped up enough pennies for postage and mailed the letter and the book to the princess.

When the princess got the book, she began to read it. She devoured every word in it. As she got near the end, she learned about the Man. The Man's name was Jesus.

As she sat in the bedroom of her castle, everything that had once before appeared beautiful to her now seemed drab and ugly. Even her reflection in the mirror had changed.

She fell to her knees beside her bed and asked Jesus to come into her heart and fill that longing and make everything beautiful again. He heard that prayer and faithfully answered it.

The longing for her one true love remained but she knew where to find him. She looked at the return address on the box containing the book. She ordered a team of horses drawn up and she had her driver take her to the pauper.

When she arrived, their eyes locked. She was beautiful but she saw in him a beauty she knew that was created by his warm, caring heart.

They embraced. She whispered in his ear that he was to come and marry her and be her prince.

The two of them lived in the kingdom on Earth, but knew that they had been promised a kingdom not made with man's hands because in accepting Jesus Christ as their Savior, they were both children of the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

And they lived happily ever after on Earth and then in Heaven.

NEW TAX LAW CHANGES ARE ON THE HORIZON

The new year is in full swing in Madison and it's time to look forward to the rest of 2012. For tax planning purposes, you might want to look forward to 2013 as well, so you're ready for federal tax law changes - those presently scheduled to arrive and those likely to be implemented.

For both types, early planning that incorporates strategies for reducing the impact of higher tax rates is a smart move. Why? One reason is the possibility of increased capital gain and ordinary income tax rates in 2013, after current rules expire.

Another is the 2010 health care laws, which introduced two new surtaxes slated to kick in next January. These taxes apply to wages, self-employment, and investment income. There are certain moves to consider now to offset the impact of changes currently scheduled to begin in 2013.

First, make smart investment decisions. As you make investment decisions during 2012, look for ways to take advantage of this year's maximum long-term capital gain rate of 15%. For instance, you might sell appreciated assets before year-end and postpone selling those with losses until 2013.

When your modified adjusted gross income exceeds $250,000 on a joint return ($200,000 when you're single), accelerating gains and deferring losses will mitigate the impact of the new 3.8% Medicare surtax on unearned income. This tax is scheduled to take effect January 1, 2013, and it applies to interest, dividends, rents, royalties, annuities, and capital gains in addition to the regular capital gain tax.

Perhaps you believe a stock in your portfolio has the potential for additional appreciation over the next year or two. Review your overall investment strategy, transaction costs, and your tax bracket, and determine if it makes sense to sell the stock this year and immediately re-purchase it.

The result? You pay tax on your 2012 tax return for the gain already accrued, and you end up with increased basis in the future year when you're ready to liquidate your stake. Higher basis means lower taxable gain and less tax.

Another thought as we look ahead: plan for higher taxes on dividends. Remember, too, under present rules dividends will no longer qualify for favorable capital gain rates after 2012. Instead, they'll be taxed as ordinary income. If you are the owner of a C corporation, you might want to distribute dividends to yourself and your shareholders before year-end.

While double taxation of dividends can be a concern, the strategy can be especially effective if you qualify for the 10% or 15% tax brackets, where the applicable capital gain rate for 2012 is zero. When you're married filing jointly, those brackets - and the zero percent rate - apply to taxable income of up to $70,700 for 2012.

Another way to prepare for higher capital gain rates is to shift your investments to assets that generate tax-exempt income, such as municipal bonds. Tax-exempt income is not part of the calculation when figuring the surtax on unearned income.

Setting up a retirement plan for your business in 2012 is another sound move. Contributing to a qualified plan gives you a double benefit in the future, when the Medicare surtax on net investment income takes effect. Benefit one: The contributions are made pre-tax. That can help keep your modified AGI below the $200,000/$250,000 threshold imposed by the surtax. Benefit two: Qualified withdrawals you take after you retire are not subject to the surtax.

With the current tax rates scheduled to end after December 31, 2012, this year becomes a critical one for tax planning. The general expectation is that rates will go higher in 2013, at least for wealthier taxpayers.

The coming tax changes are comprehensive and your tax-saving plan needs to be comprehensive as well. The earlier you start, the easier it will be to make adjustments throughout the year as the law and your tax situation evolves.

honor band this year representing Madison for the third consecutive year. Cullen Gudz, junior tuba player, and Joshua Stafford, sophomore trombone player, were awarded seats in this prestigious group for the first time this year.

These students, combined with the best musicians from other high schools in the district, rehearsed and performed at Lawton Chiles High School at the end of January.

The guest conductor for the All District Band was Ms. Cynthia Berry. Ms. Berry is the Band Director at Lake Brantley High School and has recently been inducted into the Florida Bandmasters Association "Hall of Fame." She was a demanding conductor and was able to perform exceptionally hard music with the band in a short period of time. Possibly the most demanding selection, and most rewarding selection, on the program was the Eternal Father, Strong to Save piece arranged by Claude T. Smith. The audience was thrilled to hear this popular hymn performed by such a fine ensemble.

Because of their participation in this honor band, Kristi, Cullen, and Joshua gained musical experiences they never would have achieved at Madison County High School. They also have another musical accomplishment to list as they graduate from high school and begin to apply for colleges. The next step for these students will be to win the district competition with the Madison County High School jazz band, the "Cowboy Nights." The Nights compete on the stage at Leon High School February 16th at 7:00pm.

"Isn't he something?" she smiles, gesturing toward the wall, where Cucinella, on the ladder, is hard at work applying blue paint. Another car slows down to watch.

The blue paint forms part of a sky. Nearly 80 percent finished, the paint project that Cucinella has been working on for the last few days is an enormous mural, his first, depicting the old steam locomotive, Engine No. 2, that used to run through Madison on the Georgia-Florida Railway.

Cucinella, who just finished up at Flagler College, majored in political science and minored in art. Now home for a short time, he is creating the mural for his father, Paul Cucinella, who owns that building and a few others downtown. Paul Cucinella, who with his wife, Deborah, lives right across the street from the building where his son is working, also owns a couple of other buildings in the two-block area near his home, where he invests in several small downtown businesses in an effort to help revitalize downtown Madison. Some of the businesses he owns, like the Madison Coin Laundry, others are small businesses belonging to other local merchants who rent space in one of his buildings; several of those buildings are also adorned with large murals, like the American flag on Ron's Barber Shop.

A love of art seems to run in the Cucinella family, said Daniel. "Or at least a love of painting trains on walls," he smiles.

The Cucinella's other love is bringing some of Madison's rich local history out into the limelight. Paul went to the historical society to get a photo of the old steam engine for the mural and he is pleased with the result of Daniel's work.

"He's my son, and I'm proud of him," Paul said.

Parents

in the Madison County area, where there were large numbers of parents whose workdays run from 4:30 p.m. until midnight.

"Parents are your partners, not the people you call when their child (does some minor irritating thing) in class and the teacher doesn't know how to handle it...why don't they ever call these parents when the child does something good? When the child makes an A or B? Only calling when the child irritates the teacher is not parental involvement."

School board member Kenny Hall answered that in the past, the school board had done some of these things, including holding meeting in neighbor locations and providing transportation, but that attendance was still small. Gallegos said that parents who felt angry and alienated, who believed that their presence was unwanted, or that they would not be listened to or respected, were still not likely to attend unless someone, preferably school officials, spoke to them personally and found out the underlying reason.

Getting these parents involved means "reaching out to them and building positive relationships with them," she said, "positive relationships" being a theme that she came back to several times. "We have to make parents partners...until we get serious about parent involvement instead of parent alienation, we will continue to be number 67 (in the state)."

It would take some time and would not happen overnight, but she believed that it could be done, "if you put half as much energy into getting these parents involved as you put into managing electricity costs." Managing cost was good, she admitted, but it wasn't the only thing.

"I know money will always be the number one priority because we haven't got any," she concluded. "I know the state will always be number two because they give us the money we haven't got...but number three has got to be the parents."

TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION

has become a disturbingly accurate statement. For 20 years, the United Nation's Agenda 21 has been developing right under our noses, so to speak, as it weaves a net of control through every area of our lives and IT STINKS WITH THE CORPSE OF UNCLE SAM!

From the Phyllis Schlafly Report, December 2011
THE MISCHIEF OF AGENDA 21

"The UN goal is to move the United States into global government by environmental regulations and a vast network of taxes. These newly-imposed taxes will give the UN a tremendous stream of money in addition to U.S. dues and congressional appropriations.

Agenda 21 is a comprehensive master plan to reshape and control the U.S. and lock us into the clutches of the UN under the innocuous phrase Sustainable Development. Along with 178 countries, President George H.W. Bush accepted Agenda 21 as "soft law" adopted by a new tactic called collaborative consensus building, instead of by treaty.

Advocates of Agenda 21 talk about the three E's of Sustainable Development: Economy, Equity, and Environment. Equity means replacing our American constitutional system with central planning and "social justice," which is a code word for redistribution of wealth, abolition of private property rights, and giving favored corporations tax breaks, grants, and use of Eminent Domain.

Economy means shifting from a private enterprise system to government-private-corporation-partnerships. That would be a giant step toward total government and UN control of our economy, with the ability to redistribute our goods and services to foreign countries.

Environment means giving animals and plants more rights or at least equal rights with humans. It also promotes worship of nature and Mother Earth.

To talk about Agenda 21, you will have to get used to a new vocabulary: green jobs, green building codes, going green, regional planning, smart growth, biodiversity, sustainable farming, growth management, resilient cities, sustainable communities, redistribution, urban growth boundaries, redevelopment districts, and consensus.

Agenda 21 supports the Wildlands Project, which seeks to re-wild 50% of our nation and turn it into a pre-Columbian wilderness where animals roam freely and humans are crowded into limited spaces. ...Six hundred U.S. cities and counties have signed on to ICLEI (International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives, pronounced ik-lay), putting themselves indirectly under supervision of UN regulations and restrictions.

Advocates of Agenda 21 believe the earth is overcrowded. They demand an 85% reduction in human population.

It's a major goal of Agenda 21 to lower the U.S. standard of living by cutting our use of energy. Agenda 21 plans to use smart meters, smart grids, and smart growth so that our nation's use of electricity can be controlled, limited, and redistributed.

Schools and universities are important to Agenda 21's goals. The plan is to make them indoctrination institutions, where kids are taught "green" propaganda, as well as global education to make them citizens of the world.

This UN plan means imposing UN taxes on currency transfers, fossil energy production including oil, natural gas and coal, the commercial use of oceans, international airplane tickets, and all foreign exchange transactions.

Taxes of this magnitude would give the UN so much power that it would become a de facto world government."

NFCC Artist Series Presents M-Pact Feb. 17

"A Vocal Wall of Sound!" | "Vocal Group of the Year" - Los Angeles Music Awards
- NPR

Imagine... The smooth soul of Stevie Wonder, the percussive power of Stomp, the funk and drive of Earth, Wind, & Fire, the hip licks of Take 6, and the brass bite of the Harry Connick Jr. Big Band...heading to a theater near you! The wait is over... The North Florida Community College Artist Series presents m-pact, hailed "one of the best pop-jazz vocal groups in the world" by the San Francisco Chronicle, at Van H. Priest Auditorium on Friday, Feb. 17 in Madison, FL. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. Show begins at 7 p.m.

M-pact is respected worldwide as a cutting edge trailblazer in the realm of vocal music. Emerging from an age of auto-tune and overproduction, this Los Angeles-based sextet has cultivated a new generation of ears hungry for the fresh, raw power of nature's "first instrument" - the human voice.

From the beginning, the "pact" of these well-studied masters has been to stay true to Music, regardless of style or genre. Their sophisticated sound and accessible appeal have garnered vast accolades, including "Vocal Group of the Year" from the LA Music Awards, an Indie nomination (the Independent Grammy™), "Artist of the Year" (Seattle Music Awards), and Grand National Champs of the Harmony Sweepstakes competition.

Touring renowned fine arts halls and jazz festivals across four continents, m-pact has performed with pop superstars Sheryl Crow, Boyz II Men, Kenny G, Liza Minnelli, Babyface, Rick Springfield and Jackson Browne to name a few, as well as with jazz legends from Ray Charles, Natalie Cole, Bobby McFerrin, Take 6, and the New York Voices to the Woody Herman Orchestra and the Maynard Ferguson Big Band. Over the last dozen years, their signature sound has been used in both TV themes and animated Disney feature films, and is enjoyed on syndicated radio worldwide.

Around the globe, mesmerized audiences buzz from the thrill of m-pact's vocal acrobatics, innovative orchestrations, and commanding yet authentic stage presence. Unknowing ears of all ages come expecting entertainment but leave enriched from an indescribable experience: the musical journey across Technicolor soundscapes produced by this "Cirque du Soleil of Song".

Each of m-pact's five original studio recordings has received rave reviews and multiple awards, including Best Jazz Album, Best Pop/R&B Song, Best Male Vocalist, and Best Vocal Arrangement (the CARA Awards), Best Seasonal Album ("Indie" nomination), and Best Unsigned Band (Billboard Magazine). Pristine production, creativity, and solid songwriting are among the many strengths showcased on every m-pact recording. With national distribution by City Hall (USA) and int'l distribution by Feel Music (Korea), m-pact's music continues to reach the ears of new fans around the world.

Don't miss m-pact at NFCC on Friday, Feb. 17. Tickets are on sale now at the NFCC College Advancement Office (Bldg. 32, NFCC campus) or by calling (850) 973-1653. More information is also available at <http://www.nfcc.edu/community-programs/artist-series/> or email ArtistSeries@nfcc.edu.

What You Should Know: Jerome Wyche Addresses Rotary

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

After 21 years with the military (U.S. Air Force), 12 years as an educator and many more years as a Sunday School teacher and church leader, Jerome Wyche is currently the Director of the Madison County Recycling Program and a leader/organizer for the Madison County Alcohol and Other Drug Prevention Coalition. At the Feb. 1 meeting of the Rotary Club, he told those present a little about the coalition, how it came about, and what it hoped to achieve.

The Coalition is an organization that grew from a series of very small midday meetings in the late 90's. They moved to Madison County Central School in the afternoons, then to various churches, always with relatively few people attending. But those who did attend saw merit in the group's mission, and after some experimentation with different locations, they discovered that a neutral location – not a church, and not a school – would bring out the most people and get them involved.

The group also refocused its mission to deal more directly with the challenges of young adults (ages 12-21) in a small, rural community like Madison. There is no movie theater and very few other forms of entertainment.

If there are no forms of entertainment available to young adults, they'll eventually create their own entertainment.

Statistically, if there is little or no form of entertainment for young adults in a community, that community will see an increase in risky behaviors. There will be higher incidences of binge drinking among high school students. There will be higher incidences of alcohol-related accidents. There will be more prescription drug abuse.

There will be more incidences of teenage violence and higher numbers of teen pregnancies. Right now, Madison leads the state in the percentage of pregnancies among unwed teenaged mothers.

It isn't enough to tell children to say no; the Coalition works to get parents involved and partnered with other community members to present the young adults with alternatives to the risky behaviors.

"We have to offer them alternatives to peer pressure," said Wyche. "We have to offer them a better lifestyle."

Our community has also become tolerant of several factors that favor alcohol and drug abuse: minors having access to alcohol at home, minors hosting parties without adult supervision, and people purchasing alcohol for minors.

Through several focus groups that included young people and their parents, the Coalition came up with some strategies that would both get people to come willingly to the meetings and present the young adults with at least one fun alternative to alcohol and drugs – after the two hour Saturday morning meeting, where everyone was given information about the risks and consequences of drugs and alcohol – everybody was going to go fishing.

Forty-five young adults, their parents and other community members attended that meeting. The Coalition purchased 45 rods and reels that the teenagers could keep afterward. When the meeting was over, everyone boarded buses and spent the afternoon fishing.

After another meeting, with 18 young adults and their parents, 18 young adults learned how to golf with donated clubs. Afterward, the group went to a nice sit-down dinner at the county extension office with four or five big door prizes, and every young adult there received his or her choice of donated golf club. In the days and weeks after that meeting, Wyche told of seeing some those same young people out on the Madison Golf Course, practicing their swings.

Those were just two of the alternatives to the peer pressure, drugs, and risky behavior. The Coalition is working to come up with more in the future. Why? "Because the young adults are the community's future," said Wyche. "Some day they will take over the reins after we are all gone."

If the community doesn't offer them more alternatives, or show them more opportunities for a better, healthier, more appealing lifestyle, they may not be there in the future to take up those reins.

At a question-and-answer session after the presentation, Rotary members asked about a couple of other alternatives, one of them being to contact the YMCA in Valdosta or Tallahassee to see if either would be willing to open a satellite location in Madison. Madison had previously approached the organization with such a request, and the result was close, but no cigar. It was suggested that perhaps this might be a good time to revisit that prospect with the YMCA.

The Coalition is looking to expand, and would like to invite interested parents and community members to bring their ideas and suggestions and join with them in providing Madison County's young adults with healthy, fun alternatives to drugs and alcohol, a better lifestyle and a better future.

The group meets on the second Monday of every month from 6:30 to 7:30 at 316 SW Pinckney Street. For more information, contact Jerome Wyche, (850) 464-0196 or Bruce Smith at

Happenings

At Madison First Baptist Church

By Nell Dobbs
Guest Columnist

Our Sunday School lesson was "Be Different." God's heart is sad and always has been for the world and for the nations. As followers of Christ, we are to have a prospective life like God's and live unlike the world. He gives definite rules for living by giving God His portion and by giving willingly to the poor who will always be among us!

Our guests were Dr. and Mrs. Floyd of Baptist College of Florida in Graceville, twenty years as minister of music, twenty years as pastor. He told of "Mama Ruth" of Boston, Ga., whose favorite scripture was Psalm 13 and it took him 35 years to understand why. His message was very touching and he closed by using the last verse, 6, as he sang unto the Lord who has dealt bountifully with him. "I sing because I'm happy, I sing because I'm free, For His eye is on the sparrow, and I know He watches me." That was our mother's favorite song though she never sang. Our dad was the one who played piano and sang every verse of every song and had everybody who came to see us sing and sing every verse of every song.

As I called Oad for the words of "His Eye Is On the Sparrow," he said, "Let me tell you what happened today. Someone called me. He had left an accordion at Flint Institute of Music and wondered if I wanted it. Of course. When I went to pick it up, there was a stack of music on it and on top was 'I Wouldn't Take Nothin' for My Journey Now.'" That was one of Daddy's favorites. Oad is always thoughtful and giving. He sent Nita a beautiful congratulatory arrangement as manager of Cosmo Prof in Stockbridge, Ga.

Preacher Floyd mentioned there is even a degree in Aviation because so many fields can be reached only by planes. Our niece, Libby Dixon (Devin's wife) is on a two week medical missionary trip to the Philippines and the news is bad - quakes there. Prayers for all the world and for them.

Beautiful flowers were placed in the church by Jean McWilliams in loving memory of Buddy's parents, Clayton and Selma McWilliams and Jean's mother, Edna Phillips. As we think of them, we indeed have many "Precious Memories."

Lee Gordon blessed us with his of-fertory prayer. Worship Choir blessed us with singing "Your Grace Still Amazes Me" and that is so true. I was happy. Natalie, our granddaughter, was home for the weekend and in church with Angie and me.

Many enjoyed Sunday night's Super Bowl - the game, the fellowship and the BBQ cook-off.

There is a men's Bible study group for six weeks, taught by Bill Brown and Jim Carey on David Platt's book, Radical, on Monday nights from 7-8 p.m.

The Ark Singers were at our church Wednesday night, Feb. 8, at 6:30 p.m. and our prayers are with them as they spread the gospel around the world.

The youth group is hosting the Friendship Banquet, Feb. 12, at 6 .m.

The Associated WMU Rally will be held at Macedonia on Tuesday, Feb. 14, at 10 a.m.

We'll pray for the many ill ones.. Melvin Agner - shoulder surgery on Monday; Ruby Lee was very ill with bronchitis; Rudy Hamrick in Madison Hospital; Robbie Beasley on a special mission; Iva Lee Davis, sister of Dorothy Hubble and Geneva Massey; for Calvin Eddins, brother of Dorothy and Geneva; for Tommy Greene and family in his illness; for strength for the Bill Johnson family; and for Preacher and Mrs. Law as he returns Feb. 12 to preach for us.

Help us know God knows all about us and loves us! Amen.
