City Commissioners Approve The '14-'15 Budget

By Jessie R. Box
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The City Commissioners approved the 2014-2015 budget with a vote of 4-1 with Commissioner Marcus Hawkins opposing the budget. The budget is based upon seven mills for property taxes.

During the budget workshop, Commissioner Hawkins addressed the commissioners about cuts to the budget.

"We're saying that (cutting expenditures) and yet we are picking and choosing what we want to cut," said Commissioner Hawkins.

"We're saying that (cutting expenditures) and yet we are picking and choosing what we want to cut...Are we seriously considering cuts or are we tinkering on the border?" - Commissioner Marcus Hawkins.

He continued to discuss the cuts to the budget and compared to the '13-'14 budget there is a $16,000 cut to public works, a $19,000 cut to the police department, a $48,000 cut to the fire department and no cuts to the administration or Economic Development Council.

"Are we seriously considering cuts or are we tinkering on the border?" asked Commissioner Hawkins.

Mayor Judy Townsend addressed Commissioner Hawkins questions by saying, "We are not cherry picking the budget. Mr. Bennett has presented the budget...This Bobby Pickels, Duke Energy Community Relations Manager for North Florida, recently presented a donation to the Madison County Foundation for Excellence in Education.

Paving Ways To Alternative Energy

Madison County Foundation for Excellence in Education is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization started in 1992 to enhance the education in Madison County. They participate in the Take Stock in Children program, give mini-grants to teachers in Madison up to $500 and host the Teacher of the Year banquet. The Consortium of Florida Education Foundations will match the donation made by Duke Energy.

The donation will enable students to explore an alternative energy curriculum in the science classrooms as well as a site visit to a Duke Energy site to discuss alternative energy sources. Students will participate in a competition hosted by North Florida Community College featuring their projects on alternative energy.

School Board Meeting Addresses Minors, Media and Mediation

By Rose Klein
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The School Board's agenda was full of items concerning upcoming student trips, personnel changes and health insurance for county educators, but Tuesday night's meeting seemed to center on two topics, creating heavy emotion or personal opinion, from the audience and board, respectively.

The meeting began with public comment from Earnest Raines, who addressed the board concerning juveniles pictured on the front page of Greene Publishing, Inc. newspapers. Raines told board members he felt it was wrong for minors to have their mug shot and name pictured in the newspaper and said he contacted other local newspapers concerning their policy on the matter and stated, "The Tallahassee news and a lot of others don't publish minors' mug shots or names." Raines affirmed he was aware of the law, allowing the information to be published, but just felt it was wrong to do so because not only would it be harmful to these minor's futures, but also because it made no positive impact on their present. He said the kids didn't look at their pictures in the paper as negative but as positive, telling friends they were famous for being in the newspaper. He told the board he knew they could not stop juveniles from being printed in the newspaper but asked them, just as he had asked other Madison offices, to consider writing a letter to Greene Publishing, Inc. asking them to stop. Raines' final comment received heavy agreement from several residents attending the meeting. "We as adults and guardians of our youth need to help make this change."

The next item on the agenda that brought discussion and dissenting opinions among board members was a proposal from Chief Academic Officer James Mills. This proposal, brought before the board a second time, was to convert a position currently held by a 12-month teacher, to be promoted to the status of a coordinator, that would result in a $5,000 salary increase. Mills asked for the position, in order to serve the new Madison County Virtual School students 12 months out of the year instead of the traditional 10 months, citing the explosive growth Madison County has experienced in online learning.

Board Member VeEtta Hagan stated she felt this county already had enough coordinators with Board Member Kenny Hall in agreement, saying he would instead like to see more personal instruction in the classroom. Board Member Karen Pickles sided with the proposal, giving personal experience with online teaching as explanation. Superintendent Doug Brown urged the board members to consider the proposal saying, "We will continue to support all students in our classrooms, but online learning will only increase every year, not decrease, and right now there's online learning taking place in all our classrooms." The item was brought to a vote and the proposal of adding a Coordinator of Media/Instructional Technology and Online Learning was denied for a second time.

Another high interest item on the agenda was the New Millennium Charter School Mediation. The charter school and school board have been at odds concerning FTE funds intended for the school but not released by the school board. The board withheld July and August payments to the school due to the school not having secure facilities and lack of fiscal soundness. At a special school board meeting that took place on Aug. 21, Attorney Ball, on behalf of New Millennium, told the board the eviction was dismissed and the school was up and operating, with students in their seats. Addressing the financial issues, Millennium School Director Dr. Jerri Haynes spoke on the school's lack of a budget by saying the numbers needed to prepare the budget were not yet available but that the New Millennium Board of Directors were working to remedy that.

At the Tuesday night meeting, School Board Attorney Tommy Reeves presented a Stipulation that he and New Millennium Attorney Angela Ball prepared to address the two issues between the school board and the school. The Stipulation proposed that the school board would release the FTE funds to the school if certain conditions were met. Conditions that should be met by the school for the 2014-2015 school year included: Submit a revised educational program and budget; Submit an operating budget; Provide proof of sufficient funds or a letter of credit to assure prompt payment of operating expenses; Provide a copy of the executed court order dismissing the eviction case; Provide fully completed certificates of all insurance policies and Submit all overdue monthly financial reports, if any, and thereafter providing all financial reports in a timely manner. The Stipulation also proposed that a neutral third party from Tallahassee, selected by both Attorney Reeves and

The Purge Did Not Happen In Madison

The 2013 movie, The Purge, was based on a future society that annually had one 12-hour period where all crimes are legalized. This was based on the premise that it was cathartic for the citizens and would act as population control. This movie and its sequel, The Purge: Anarchy, have sparked the discussion and plans on social media of it becoming a reality.

The Madison Police Department had heard talk about people participating in a purge to happen on Sunday, Aug. 31. Since hearing

September is National Food Safety Month, a campaign of the Partnership for Food Safety Education with the goal of teaching consumers about safe food handling. It's hard to convince people that their daily food handling practices may be putting their family at risk for food-borne illness. There are many different bacteria responsible for food borne illnesses and they are all invisible to the human eye and you can't taste or smell them either. Most people dismiss food illness as a 24 hour bug and it often goes unreported.

According to national statistics, each year there is an estimated 76 million cases of food borne illness in the United States, with approximately 325,000 people being hospitalized. These statistics are the reason USDA and the Partnership for Food Safety Education want consumers to follow the following guidelines of food preparation to prevent food-borne illness in your home.

Clean everything!

Cleanliness is a major factor in preventing food-borne illness. Anything that touches food should be clean. Wash your hands, often; before you prepare food and after you contact raw meat, poultry, seafood and eggs. If you answer the phone, help your child with homework or pet the dog, wash your hands before you resume cooking. Make sure countertops, utensils and all food preparation surfaces are frequently cleaned.

Keep Foods Separate

The concern here is cross-contamination. Harmful bacteria from raw meats, poultry and fish can be left on cutting boards and utensils then transferred to other foods. For example, you cut up raw poultry and then slice vegetables for a salad without washing the cutting board. You have contaminated the salad with bacteria that can cause illness.

Use a food thermometer

You can't tell food is cooked safely by a visual check. A food thermometer allows you to determine the internal temperature of a food which will determine if the food is completely cooked. Harmful bacteria like Salmonella or E coli are destroyed at certain temperatures and there are different recommended temperature for different food. USDA recommends steaks, roasts and fish be cooked to an internal temperature of 145°F, pork, ground beef and egg dishes to 160°F, chicken breast to 170°F and whole poultry to 180°F.

Use the two hour rule

Chill leftovers within two hours of cooking. Most people are under the false impression that food needs to be at room temperature before it is put into the refrigerator, but that is not the case. The Danger Zone -- temperatures between 40° and 140° F, is unsafe because harmful bacteria grow rapidly. Food left to cool on the countertop is in this temperature range for a long time!

A large quantity of food, like soup or a casserole should be stored in several smaller containers and placed in different areas of the refrigerator to promote rapid cooling. Placing a large container of hot food or stacking several smaller containers on top of each other in the refrigerator will slow the cooling process. This also keeps food in the danger zone for an extended period of time, increasing the growth of bacteria.

Following the four recommendations offered by the National Food Safety Education Partnership will help you keep your food safe to eat and drastically reduce your family's risk of food-borne illness. For more information on food safety, contact the Madison County Extension Service.

Gun Safety For Children

Police Chief Gary Calhoun

I grew up, as many of you probably did, with guns in my home. As a child, I was taught a healthy respect for firearms. Being in law enforcement and having children in the house caused its own set of issues. Everyone, including the kids, knew that I had at least one gun in the house. Children are going to be curious and there is probably not a hiding place that they will not eventually find. I tried to take away the mystery by showing my guns to my kids. As soon as they were old enough to show any interest I told them of the dangers of guns. I let them look and touch as long as I was there and the guns had been made safe. We had a standing agreement that anytime they wanted to see one of my guns, all they had to do is ask and I would take the time to safely show them. Once the initial curiosity was gone, they rarely asked to see them.

Here are some safety tips to review with your children: Stop, Walk Away and Tell an Adult.

If you find a gun in a home, on the street or anywhere; don't touch it. Stop, walk away and find a trusted adult to tell. Even if you believe the gun is a toy, go tell an adult. Some real guns look like toys and some toys look like real guns. If the toy gun does not belong to you, don't touch it.

If you go to a friend's house and they offer to show you their parent's gun, tell them no. You should walk away and tell an adult that your friend knows the location of a gun and offered to show it to you. Situations like this often turn serious or deadly when children are just "showing" their friend a gun.

I support law abiding citizens owning guns but gun ownership comes with great responsibility, especially if there are children in your home or children who visit your home. It is often a difficult balance to keep your guns accessible in case of an emergency, yet out of the hands of children. Check with a local sporting goods store to see what new technology is available to keep your guns secure. If you have questions or need more information, please do not hesitate to contact us here at the Madison Police Department at (850) 973-5077.

RECALL UPDATE

Two Deaths Reported With Ace Bayou Bean Bag Chairs RECALL ANNOUNCED DUE TO SUFFOCATION AND CHOKING HAZARDS

It's the worst case scenario, and the reason recalls exist, to protect consumers and prevent needless injury, or perhaps even death, by getting defective products off the market.

Sometimes, though, tragedies happen in spite of all the safeguards, as when consumers and companies discover, too late, a product's hidden flaws.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) and Ace Bayou Corp., of New Orleans, La., are announcing the voluntary recall of about 2.2 million beanbag chairs following the deaths of two children.

The zippers on the beanbag chairs can be opened and children can then crawl inside, get trapped and suffocate or choke on the beanbag chair's foam beads. The voluntary standard requires non-refillable beanbag chairs to have closed and permanently disabled zippers.

A 13-year old boy from McKinney, Texas died and a three-year-old girl from Lexington, Ky., died after suffocating from lack of air and inhaling the chair's foam beads. Both children were found inside the chairs.

The recalled beanbag chairs have two zippers that can be unzipped and opened, including one of the exterior cover and other directly underneath that zipper. The recalled chairs with zippers that open were sold in a variety of sizes, shapes, colors and fabrics. They include round or L-shaped, vinyl or fabric, and are filled with polystyrene foam beads. They were sold in a variety of colors, including purple, violet, blue, red, pink, yellow, Kelly green, black, port, navy, lime, royal blue, turquoise, tangerine and multi-color. The round beanbag chairs were sold in three sizes, 30, 32 and 40 inches in diameter. The L-shaped beanbag chair measures 18 inches wide by 30 inches deep by 30 inches high. "ACE BAYOU CORP" is printed on a tag sewn into the beanbag chair's cover seam.

The recalled beanbag chairs were sold at Bon-Ton, Meijer, Pamida, School Specialty, Wayfair and Walmart stores and online at Amazon.com, Meijer.com and Walmart.com before July 2013 for between $30 and $100. The beanbag chairs were manufactured in China.

Consumers should check their bean bag chairs for any zippers that can open, take those that can open away from children immediately and contact Ace Bayou for a free repair kit to permanently disable the zippers so that they cannot be opened. Contact Ace Bayou toll-free at (855) 571-8151 from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. CT Monday through Friday or online at www.acebayou.com and click on "Recall Information" for more information.

Becket Fund For Religious Liberty

The Supreme Court's Hobby Lobby ruling followed the Supreme Court's June 30 Hobby Lobby ruling.

It's a bit of false modesty, however, since the fund also prides itself on being highly selective about the kinds of cases it accepts, looking for appellate-level lawsuits that have the ability to change legal precedents. "We defend religious liberty as a principle. In and of itself," Arriaga said. "We believe religious liberty is not about who God is. It's about who we are."

In the Hobby Lobby decision, the justices ruled that the religious owners of the chain of craft stores do not have to provide full contraceptive coverage for female workers as required under Obama care.

The Becket Fund played a key role in the Supreme Court's unanimous 2012 decision that gave broader powers to churches and religious schools to circumvent federal anti-discrimination laws. Becket successfully defended the Michigan church school that fired a teacher after she claimed she was discriminated against because of her narcolepsy.

is a balanced budget, which we have dealt with year after year after year. I think we maybe have had too many employees to start with and I think now we're getting back to where we need to be."

The budget includes a 12 percent increase in the cost of healthcare insurance, a 10 percent increase in dental coverage and an eight percent increase in vision coverage. With this budget, water will increase 10 percent, wastewater will increase 12.5 percent and sanitation will increase five percent.

The budget includes $10,000 for the Senior Citizens Center and $2,500 each for the Chamber of Commerce, Economic Development Council and Madison In-Town Shuttle.

This is a $2,500 cut for the Chamber of Commerce and Economic Development Council based on last year's budget. The In-Town Shuttle requested $12,000 for this year and last year they received $5,000 to fill a gap in funding.

Commissioner Hawkins had suggested to the commissioners of cutting the Senior Citizens Center by $3,000 and dividing that with the Chamber of Commerce and the Madison In-Town Shuttle to make it a more cut across the board. No changes were made to the budget in regards to the Senior Citizens Center, Chamber of Commerce, Economic Development Council and Madison In-Town Shuttle.

The budget is based upon the city receiving $614,190 from property taxes from the projected $92,359,099 of gross taxable value of the city. The Property Appraiser's office advised the city that the $92,359,099 could be lower. The city will have three days to adjust their budget to balance it, should there be a discrepancy in the property taxes received. The commissioners do not wish to raise the millage rate but it could be a possibility.

It was previously discussed having all community events such as the Down Home Days and the 20th Of May Celebration paying for all of the overtime incurred by the police officers and public works employees. The Chamber of Commerce had an agreement to pay for half of the overtime for the police officers for working the Down Home Days events. It was decided that the Chamber of Commerce would not be charged for overtime. Event overtime data will be collected and the commissioners will decide at a later date to charge overtime.

The City Commission will hold the first public hearing for the budget on Monday, Sept. 8 at 5:30 p.m.

According to online information Eastern and Western

Equine Encephalitis is also known as the 'Sleeping Sickness,' and human beings are also susceptible to these diseases when the virus is transmitted to them by infected mosquitoes; however, horse-to-horse or horse-to-human transmission by mosquitoes is highly unlikely, because the amount of virus in the blood of horses affected by EEE or WEE is small. Of these two encephalidites, WEE has the lowest mortality, approximately 50-percent. Eastern equine encephalomyelitis is the most virulent for horses, with mortality approaching 90-percent. Epidemiological evidence indicates that young horses are particularly susceptible to disease caused by EEE. Symptoms in horses occur one to three weeks after infection, and begins with a fever that may reach as high as 106°F (41 °C.) The fever usually lasts for 24 to 48 hours. Nervous signs appear during the fever that include sensitivity to sound, periods of excitement, and restlessness. Brain lesions appear, causing drowsiness, drooping ears, circling, aimless wandering, head pressing, inability to swallow, and abnormal gait. Paralysis follows, causing the horse to have difficulty raising its head.

If you suspect your equine is infected, contact your veterinarian. If you would like to report a case of EEE or WEE, contact Madison County Animal Control Director Jamie Willoughby at (850) 973-6495.

School Board

Attorney Ball, perform an audit of the school's financial records that would become public record. All board members approved the Stipulation, moving the New Millennium Charter School's mediation forward to its administrative hearing on Monday, Sept. 8.

Publisher's Note: After reading the comments made at the school board meeting, I feel compelled to write my response to the discussion, since I was not there to answer questions or give explanations.

First I would like to say that I find it odd that Mr. Earnest Raines went to a school board meeting requesting others to write me letters and/or call me when he, himself, has not even contacted me to discuss the matter at hand; and I would have been happy to attend the meeting had I known I was going to be the topic of conversation.

Mr. Raines admits he knows the law, but for the sake of everyone else..... below is an excerpt taken from the Florida Bar website in regards to media reporting on juveniles and crime.

The law allows a law enforcement agency to release for publication the "name, photograph, address, and crime or arrest report" of a child taken into custody "for a violation of law which, if committed by an adult, would be a felony." Fla. Stat. § 985.04(5) (2004).

It goes on to say....

As has been noted by two Attorney General opinions, the move for open records was intended to focus public awareness on serious juvenile crime. See Fla. AGO 94-91 ("[t]he clear goal of the Legislature was to establish the public's right to obtain information about persons who commit serious offenses, regardless of age"); Fla. AGO 95-19 ("Legislature has allowed for greater dissemination of information relating to juvenile offenders").

inuation of information relating to juvenile offenders").

I would like to remind everyone that the Madison County Carrier and the Madison Enterprise-Recorder are merely the messengers when it comes to Madison County news (good and bad). We don't make the news – we just report it.

Is it not sad that this uproar is occurring because I am allowing juvenile pictures and names to be printed instead of the uproar occurring because the juveniles are actually committing these crimes. This is a prime example of the old saying "Don't Shoot The Messenger."

Instead of time spent writing me letters why don't we all spend time figuring out how to keep our youth off the streets committing crimes. Let's give them loving homes that teach them right from wrong and good from evil. If they weren't committing the crimes to begin with, then there wouldn't be anything for the media to report on.

I, for one, agree with the Attorney Generals' opinions on the fact that it is the public's right to have information about persons who commit serious offenses.

Every week we have anywhere from 10-24 pages of news. Only ONE page of those has bad news on it – the front page; IF there is any bad news to report. Notice that today's front page does NOT have any crime stories on it. Every week the other pages are filled with school news, community news and sports. We never hear complaints or thank you's for all the good news but are always slammed when there is bad news to report.

Again I say, these newspapers are only the messengers. We just report the news.... We don't make the news.

I encourage everyone to try to solve the problem where-in it lies – with the persons that are committing the crimes.

Woman Marries Stray Dog To End Curse

In Ranchi, India, a Hindu woman was married to a dog as a means of lifting a curse that village elders said would cause the death to any man the 18-year-old might marry. Mangli Munda, who lives with her family in a Jharkland village, was given a traditional Hindu wedding to a stray dog dubbed Sheru. Sri Ammunda, the girl's father said, "We had to make sure that the evil spell is destroyed." The bride stated, "Every girl dreams of marrying a prince. I am not happy with this marriage." She is happy however that the wedding to the canine will rid her of the "evil spell" and allow her to find a human husband. After Munda finds her new husband, Sheru will become the family's pet.

DoveLewis Emergency Animal Hospital spokeswoman Shawna Harch told the local newspaper that Dr. Ashely Magee noted "a lot of foreign material in (the dog's) stomach" after having an x-ray. Harch said Magee operated on the dog for two hours and removed 43½ socks from the ailing Dane's stomach. Whereabouts of the missing ½ sock remains unknown.

Intoxicated Woman Loses Dog And Ends Up Arrested

In Jupiter, Fl., 38-year-old Rebekah Altieri took her dog with her to a bar, but after Altieri became drunk, the dog ran away. She called police to report the missing dog, but police were already on their way to the bar concerning an intoxicated patron, which happened to be Altieri. The police reports Altieri began throwing chairs because she was upset her dog ran away and attempts to persuade Altieri to call a cab or friend were reportedly refused. After she began calling 911 repeatedly, she was arrested and charged with drunk and disorderly conduct and misuse of 911. Police were not able to find Altieri's lost dog and the report shows she was too drunk to give them a proper description of her pet.

WAY BACK WHEN

September 5, 1952

A four-to-five foot long rattlesnake with six rattles and a button was found at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James, next door to the relay station one day last week, when the little James boy started up the sidewalk and found the snake lying across it. The snake went under the house but was finally gotten out by running a fishing pole after it. Mr. Track Canova then shot and killed it.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sistrunk have purchased three lots, a small house and a gorgeous tree in Greenville from Mrs. C E Bruhl.

September 4, 1953

Seventeen-year-old Mrs. Bobby Jean Dame was injured Saturday night in an auto accident west of Greenville on U.S. 90. Mrs. Dame, who suffered a fractured pelvis and shock when her parents and the driver of the second car were killed, was said to be no longer in a coma at Tallahassee Memorial hospital, and had regained consciousness.

Mrs. Ann Foster Pierce is the new Madison County Health nurse, succeeding Mrs. Rena Hendry Dodge.

Mrs. M S Letchworth entered the hospital Aug. 29 for treatment for burns. She was burned about the face and one hand and arm in the explosion of a gas oven.

September 3, 1954

Mrs. Gwendolyn Kinsey, whose marriage to Richard Clark was a recent event was the inspiration for several delightful parties given the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J O Cook, Sr., have returned from a trip to the mountains of North Carolina, and a visit with relatives in Thomasville, N.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Peacock and family of Albany, Ga. are new residents of Madison and are living in one of the Studstill houses in Lakeside.

Submitted by the Madison Genealogical Society

A quick short article on the original Madison County Pioneer, Dennis Driggers, turned out to be a little more complicated than expected. Dennis Driggers arrived in Madison County before 1840, and was listed on the 1840 census, before Florida became a state. So, Dennis Driggers is a true Florida Pioneer. Lots of references were used to write this article, including various family trees on Ancestry.com, census records, Googled family histories, information from John Lastinger Family of America, by Mrs. Aurora C. Shaw Lastinger, Genealogist, 1960, and Clydie Driggers Russell's article on her father, Sim Driggers, in the Madison County Florida Family History Book. And there are probably quite a few mistakes. Please, Driggers Family, help us set the record straight, if you see errors.

You see, the story is complicated by the often told story of two brothers, bringing their families to a new territory to start a new life. And to add to the confusion, the brothers, as often brothers did back then, named their children with the same names.

It seems that Jonas (born 1755) and Elenor (born 1754) Driggers, from South Carolina, by way of Bulloch County, Georgia, where they died, had the following children: 1. William, born 1776 in South Carolina, and died in Columbia County, Florida, who married Emily Lastinger. 2. Jonas, Jr., born 1777 in South Carolina. 3. Dennis, born 1778 in Georgia, and died in Madison County, who married Elizabeth Neville. 4. John, born 1781 in Georgia and died in Georgia. 5. Simeon, born 1785 in Georgia, and 6. Catherine, born 1782 in Georgia.

Dennis was in Madison County before 1840; he would have been around 65 years old. Also in the county, in Dennis' household on the 1840 Census was another male, who was between 50 and 59 years old, possibly his brother, William. No records were found to indicate that William lived in Madison County. However, it is believed that William and several of William's children were in the county in 1840 and 1850—possibly Matthew, Jacob and Simeon. Some of William's children remained in Bulloch County, Georgia, where the family lived before moving to Madison County. Other children of William moved into Lowndes County, Georgia, and over to Lafayette, Columbia and Baker Counties, Florida.

According to various sources, Dennis, who was married to Elizabeth Neville, had the following children: Dennis Franklin, Jr., Marantha, who married Alfred Williams, Andrew Jackson, Simeon, and Berrien. In 1840, Dennis served in Bradley's Company, Florida, with the Mounted Volunteers.

The children of William, Dennis' brother, were Mark, Sarah, Rebecca; Mary Ann; Elender; Jonas, born in 1814 and died in Columbia Florida; Jacob, born 1815, married Nancy, and died in Florida; Simeon, born in 1816 and married Catherine Collins in Madison and died in Florida; William H., Jr., born 1817 and died in Florida; Emily (Mily), born 1819 and died in Levy County, Florida; Matthew, born 1821 and married Louisa Elliston in Madison; Catherine; Elizabeth; Penina L.; and Diana.

Generation Two

In 1850, only Dennis and Elizabeth's children had families in Madison County.

1. Andrew Jackson, born 1824, and married to Mary Polly Williams, in 1845, had Elisha, born 1846, and Rosa, born 1848. We think Alfred was born to Andrew Jackson and Mary Polly in 1852 and William in 1854. Andrew Jackson died around 1855; in 1860, Rosa Ann, Alfred, William and Elisha were living with William and Mary Clemons. Likely, Mary, Andrew Jackson's widow, remarried a Clemons, as there were also younger Clemons children in the household.

2. Simeon B., born around 1812, and married to Elizabeth Gornto, we think, had Elisha W, born 1846; Rebecca J, born 1848; Matthew, born 1853; Elizabeth, born 1853, and Louisa, born 1861. Simeon enlisted in the Civil War in 1862 in Gainesville and died Feb. 9, 1865, as a POW in Ohio. His widow Eliza and daughter Louisa were in the 1870 census in Madison County in one household. Next door were the rest of Simeon's children: Elisha, Rebecca, Matthew, and Elizabeth. We think Elizabeth married Thomas Jewel in 1881.

3. Dennis Jr., born around 1817, and married to Elizabeth Sapp, born 1826, had the following children: James E., born 1839; Mary M., born 1842; Dennis III, born 1843; and William J. (Jacob?), born 1845. In 1870 Dennis, Jr. was in Lafayette County, married to Sarah Ann Parker, and had William, born 1858 and Matthew, born 1860. Dennis, Jr. died in 1880, after being a Private in the U.S. Army in the Indian Wars, and in the Civil War. He is buried either in Live Oak, or in Lafayette County.

This is Qua. He is an eight-year-old Madison County resident that is in the third grade. He is the oldest child of one of the employees that works for Arby's 579. He has sickle cell disorder. Sickle cell is an inherited disorder where red blood cells are abnormally shaped. This abnormality can cause serious infections, chronic anemia and damage to body organs. Qua must go to Shands Children's Hospital once a month and spend two days there to have his body cleaned. Without the help of Shands Hospital and the life saving technique, he would not be here today. It is fundraisers like this that help Qua and kids just like him.

Love's is hosting Fun Day at Love's and Arby's located on CR 255 on Saturday, Sept. 13 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. to benefit the Children's Miracle Network Hospitals. There will be a barbecue chicken dinner plate sold for $6 along with pony rides for the children, horse and buggy rides for the adults, a car wash and a raffle.

This is the 16th year that Love's has partnered with Children's Miracle Network Hospitals and through events like this one has been able to raise more than $9 million.

The Madison County Sheriff's Office has donated the use of a grill, Pilgrim's Pride is donating the chicken and Winn-Dixie and Food Giant are both donating food. Other businesses have donated prizes to raffle off.

A hundred percent of the money made at the event will go to Shands Children's Hospital in Gainesville. If you would like to donate or help in anyway, contact Jamie Stewart at (850) 971-2761 from Tuesday thru Saturday 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Madison County Courthouse Is 100 Years Old

After a change in the county seat and a series of fires that destroyed its predecessors, the present Madison County Courthouse was built and has stood here for 100 years.

By Lynette Norris

Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison County Courthouse has reached the century mark, but its history goes back even further, when the county seat was about 10 miles further south, and Florida was not yet a state (that wouldn't happen until 1845), but a territory.

In 1821, Spanish Florida passed into U.S. ownership, and became the Florida Territory. In 1827, Madison County was created, but it was about four times larger than it is now. As time went on, it would be subdivided to create three other counties: Dixie, Taylor, and Lafayette.

For a little more than a decade after the county came into being, the county seat was San Pedro, a Spanish fort about 10 miles further south than the present day City of Madison. The courthouse was rather primitive - a one-room log building, near the intersection of State Road 14 and County Road 360.

In 1838, the county seat was moved to its present location, but the town was then known as "Newtown." A bunker/blockhouse type building, located in the middle of what is now Four Freedoms Park, was used as the courthouse. Around that same time, a deed transfer of 160 acres of land to the administrative governing body resulted in the creation of the "Original Town of Madison," named for Madison Livingston, the person who deeded the land; this 160 acres was bordered on the north by Livingston Street, the south by Bunker Street, the east by Duval Street and the west by Parramore Street.

By 1839, the brand new town had a post office, and in 1840, a new courthouse as well, again made of logs, but with two stories, it was a bit more substantial than the little one-room affair in the old Spanish fort of San Pedro. The courthouse existed until a mysterious fire razed it 36 years later, on March 23, 1876. The reason for the fire was never proven, but rumors pinned it on a carpetbagger named David Montgomery, who was thought to have purposely destroyed the courthouse to destroy evidence of tax evasion on his part.

Then, there was the quandary of where to build the new courthouse; one citizen offered land and cash for a new courthouse - in Greenville. The County Commission at that time apparently wasn't interested.

However, there had been a great fire in downtown Madison eight years earlier, in 1868, that had left several blocks of the town vacant; one vacant lot happened to be where the present day courthouse sits. In 1880, the new courthouse was planned for that location and built a year later, opening for business in November of 1881. By 1896, the first public water system was put in as well. The old standpipe is still there. This courthouse would serve for 31 years.

Fast forward to November of 1912, when yet another fire had razed this building to the ground. Again rumors flew, this time in connection with a wet/dry election, especially since the fire followed mere hours after a meeting was held on that issue in the upstairs part of the courthouse. But again, nothing was proven.

Citizens and firefighters worked through the night, battling the flames and hauling old records out of the building. They managed to save records dating back to 1831, records which are housed today in the Clerk of the Circuit Court's Records Division.

By October of 1913, there was a contract to build the courthouse that stands there today. During construction, the county judge worked out of an office next to the telephone exchange, the county supervisor's office was actually in the

If You're Ready To Quit Tobacco HELP IN MADISON IS FREE!

By Rose Klein

Greene Publishing, Inc.

In an effort to help all Floridians with their struggle in quitting tobacco, Tobacco Free Florida (TFF) offers three types of assistance. The first way you can use TFF's services is to call a "quit coach," who will help you develop a plan and serve as a coach during your tobacco cessation. A second way is to take part in an online program that allows you to develop your own personalized web-based quit plan, where you can work at your own pace. The third plan is local face-to-face classes, where individuals meet in a group setting, offering support and accountability with other group members.

Madison County Memorial Hospital (MCMH) will host Tobacco Free Florida's Area Health Education Centers (AHEC) group classes that will guide you through many is-ssues related to tobacco use. The classes were designed by an ex-smoker and will be led by a trained facilitator who will provide support, guidance, and quit aids like nicotine replacement patches, gum and lozenges, when available and medically appropriate. Classes cover all forms of tobacco.

There will be four class dates to choose from, each class lasting two hours long:

Monday, Sept. 8, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 13, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Monday, Nov. 10, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Monday, Dec. 8, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

To register for a class, call Preston Mathews at (386) 956-5788 or email pmathews@bigbendahec.org.

telephone exchange building, the tax collector and assessor were about Moseley's Drug Store and the court clerk's office was above the Smith Mercantile Company.

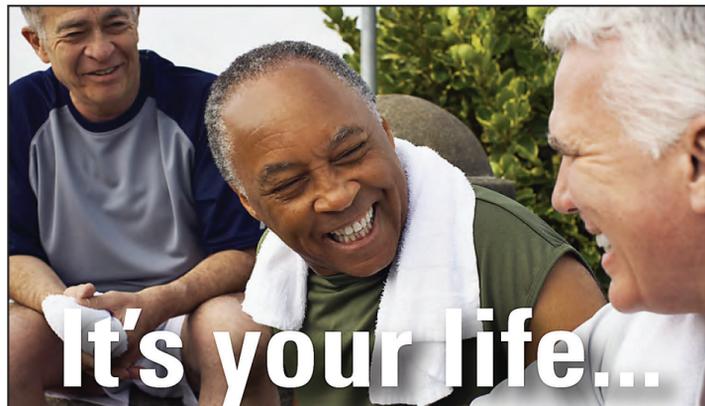

With the contract made, the courthouse cornerstone was laid Dec. 19, 1913, the third such cornerstone in a 73 year period. It was celebrated with a barbecue, balloon rides and even an airship that sailed around town for several minutes. The Madison County Courthouse was open for business by the November of the following year.

Today, the courthouse and the records it contains are kept safe by a state-of-the-art fire suppression system from basement to belfry.

To celebrate the building reaching the century mark and the history it both represents and keeps safe within its walls, the Madison County Clerk of the Court's Office and the Madison Chamber of Commerce is selling pole banners to be displayed around the courthouse, said Clerk of Court Tim Sanders. The banners, costing $100, are two feet wide by four feet high, and can be personalized with the name of the person, family, business or organization, along with a short message. For example, they can be in honor of someone or in memory of a loved one.

The banners are ready to be ordered, and Sanders stated that as soon as they have at least 20 orders, they will start getting the banners ready and displaying them around the courthouse and downtown Madison. The banners will remain on display until the end of the year, and then those who ordered them can keep them as souvenirs.

Those who wish to purchase a banner may contact Cindy Veas at the Chamber of Commerce, (850) 973-2788, or Tim Sanders at the Clerk of Court's Office, (850) 973-8000.

MCHS COWBOYS DEFEAT TAMPA CATHOLIC IN SEASON OPENER

By Bryant Thigpen
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison County High School Cowboys (1-0) hosted the Tampa Catholic Crusaders (0-1) Friday night for their season opener and defeated the visiting team 23-6. Head Coach Mike Coe said his team prepared well for the challenge.

"After a dramatic victory over arch rival Suwannee High School in the Kickoff Classic last week, we challenged our guys to just simply get a little better and to correct the mistakes that we made during that game," Coe said. "Our young men took the challenge personally and had a tremendous week of practice and preparation heading into the Tampa Catholic game."

Offensively, Eric Bright led the way rushing over 100 yards against a stout Crusader defense. Bright ended the game with 41 attempts, 177 total yards, averaging 4.3 yards per carry.

In just seven attempts, Akevious Williams rushed for 73 yards and one touchdown, averaging 10.4 yards per carry.

In the passing game, Williams led the way with six completions out of 11 attempts for 32 yards, averaging 5.3 yards. Receiving, Javon Redding led the team with 14 yards on two receptions.

Although the offense was able to outscore the visiting team, Coe said the team lacked execution during pivotal moments of the game.

"The effort was there...we just lacked execution on pivotal moments of the game," he said. "We will continue to get better and better, and I assure you our young men on offense will make major improvements as the weeks roll on."

Coe added, "I was really impressed with Juquon Smith and Zack Sprenkle on the offensive line, both of whom are returning starters. Also, Eric Bright had a great game with close to 200 yards rushing."

Defensively, the Cowboys held the Crusaders to just six points for the entire game.

"Catholic boasted a roster filled with transfers from various schools in the Tampa area, including the number one ranked player in America, Wide Receiver Nate Craig," Coe said. "Our defense took it as a personal challenge to play great team defense and to play with perfect effort, for each other. I was extremely proud of their effort and physicality last Friday night."

Coe said the effort of the defense was a result of Coach Rod Williams' leadership.

"Coach Rod Williams and his defensive staff put together a tremendous game plan and the kids executed it to a tee," he noted. "Strong Safety James Monlyn had four bone-crushing tackles and Cornerback Bump Robinson had three interceptions, the last one he returned for a game sealing touchdown."

Coe also acknowledged Kicker Andrew Strom for his performance Friday night.

"I cannot say enough about our kicker," Coe said. "He has worked his tail off to become a very good kicker and weapon for our football team. I am really, really proud of him and Coach Dykes for his work with our special teams."

The Cowboys will take on the Brooks County High School Trojans (1-1) Friday night at Boot Hill Stadium at 7 p.m.

"We need Boot Hill to be packed and ready to go to give our guys the home field advantage that they need," he said. "See you Friday night under the lights at Boot Hill."

LOOKING AHEAD TO FOOTBALL SEASON

By Lynette Norris
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Bobby Scott, former Rotarian and sports radio announcer, stopped by the Madison Rotary Club for a "Pigskin Preview" of the current football season, talking statistics, commenting in general about the current football season for the ACC's Southeastern Conference (including FSU, UF and the Georgia Bulldogs), and even speculating a little about how the Madison County High School Cowboys might do in their upcoming football schedule.

Commenting about how the average weight of the offensive linemen were tipping the scales in excess of 300 pounds, he remarked that, "they're just building 'em bigger these days," he also noted which teams were highest in the recruiting race, "the lifeblood of all teams," and how many returning starters each one had.

He expected that the FSU Seminoles would come out strong against the Oklahoma Sooners and continue the trend when they played the Citadel a few days later, Sept. 6, and then their other major competitors like Clemson and Notre Dame.

The Gators "will bounce back in a big way," he said, in spite of the fact that they didn't do so well last season, when they lost their quarterback for quite a while due to an injury in the third game. They will have to improve their running attack and their offense, he said, but their defense is a strength, an observation he said many other sports commentators concurred with.

As for the Georgia Bulldogs, their defense was "much improved," he said, especially with Heisman Trophy candidate Todd Gurley as running back. Defense may have been a problem last year, but that should also be much improved with defense coordinator Jeremy Pruitt, who came to the team from FSU. His departure from FSU is rumored to have left the Noles "scrambling."

When it comes to football his interest also includes the high school level, and he took a few moments for a brief overview of the Madison Cowboys. In spite of their somewhat disappointing finish last season, he expects the team to rally this season with the kind of championship and pay-off seasons they have had in years past, and a few "border rivalry" games with teams in Georgia. The Brooks County game, he expects, will be especially interesting, predicting that the stadium in Quitman will be packed for the occasion.

"It's a great team and a great program," he said. "I think Madison will come back as a good football team this year."

The Bush Wealth Advantage

Our column, "The Bush Wealth Advantage" is our way of giving back to the community with all sorts of insights, relevant news, and practical wealth planning strategies.

Why Women Need Life Insurance

Stacy Bush, President
Bush Wealth Management

Today, women have more financial responsibilities than ever before. How will your family or loved ones manage financially if you die? Whether you are single, married, employed, or a stay-at-home mom, you probably need life insurance. At the very least, life insurance can help pay for the costs of funeral and burial services, estate administration, outstanding debts, estate taxes, and the uninsured expenses of a final illness.

Who Needs Life Insurance?

Working Women

Increasingly, families depend on the income of two working parents. If you're a working mother, your income can have a significant impact on the quality of your family's lifestyle. Your income helps cover the cost of ordinary living expenses such as food, clothing, and utilities, and it provides savings for your children's college education, and for your retirement. Life insurance protects your family by providing proceeds that can be used to replace your lost income if you die prematurely.

Single Women

Often, women, like men, think that it's not necessary to buy life insurance because they have no dependents. What's often overlooked is that life insurance can provide necessary funds to pay off car loans, education loans, debts, a mortgage, taxes, and funeral expenses that might otherwise be the responsibility of family members. Also, the cash value of permanent life insurance may be used to supplement retirement income.

Single Moms

Whether you're divorced, widowed, or simply a single mom, you're most likely primarily responsible for your child's support. If you die prematurely, life insurance can provide ongoing income to cover child-care costs, medical expenses, debts, and future college costs.

Stay-at-home Moms

Maintaining a household is a full-time job, and you have many important roles and duties. The cost of the services performed by a stay-at-home mom could be quite significant if someone had to be hired to do them. If you die, your surviving spouse may have to pay for services such as child care, transportation for your children, and housekeeping. Taking over these added responsibilities could cause your spouse to shorten work hours, resulting in a reduction in income. Proceeds from your life insurance can help your spouse pay for services that keep the household running and allow your spouse to keep working.

Bottom Line

Life insurance protection for women is equally as important as it is for men. However, women's life insurance coverage is often inadequate. It may be time to consult a financial professional who can help you assess your life insurance needs, and offer information about the various types of policies available.

Aucilla Ushers In 2014 Season With 26-19 Loss To Branford

By William Smith
Greene Publishing, Inc.

Like an old, familiar friend, it has returned once again. Back for our time, attention; sometimes, our sanity. Hackneyed, right? Perhaps, but insanity might be exactly what Aucilla fans, coaches and players are feeling after seeing what could be one of the most talented teams in a decade or more lay the proverbial egg Friday night against Branford, a frustrating misstep to begin a season that holds much promise.

This Warrior team has nearly everything: experience (a senior class of 10 players); ability at skill positions, including senior receiver/quarterback duo Timothy Burrus and Austin Bishop, seniors Cole Schwab and Bryce Sanderson anchoring both ends of the offensive line at tackle, and newcomer offensive weapon Sean Blue; as well as a winning tradition (22-7 in the past three years). The Warriors even had the fortune of returning Wesley Smyrnios, gifted quarterback from two seasons ago who set the all-time record for passing yards at Aucilla (which was subsequently broken last year by Bishop), providing an interesting two-quarterback system that caters to each player's strengths.

Remember "nearly everything?" The missing cog is a massive one: a reliable power running game. After graduating running back Brandon Holm from last year's team, who was responsible for a whopping 1600 plus combined rushing and receiving as well as 16 touchdowns, the Warriors are scrambling to replace him with a capable option. The problem? The team lacks a beefy ball-carrier to get the tough yards desperately needed to keep defenses honest and open up the increasingly more spread-oriented offense that head coach Colby Roberts will continue to run this season.

Case in point: Branford held Aucilla to under 50 yards rushing, and the lack of a two-dimensional offense was apparent. Apart from a few Tim Tebow-esque called runs from Smyrnios (3-18 yards), the Warriors could not consistently move the ball down the field, costing the team any sense of rhythm. Add to that, the fact that running back/receiver Blue was lost to injury after the first series, and the game plan quickly devolved into "throw the ball deep to Burrus," which certainly yielded results (13 catches, 227 yards and three touchdowns) but failed to sustain drives. Bishop finished the day 22-31 for 317 yards and three touchdowns. Blue, as it happened, was not the last Warrior to leave the game due to injury. In a bizarre display, several Warrior players were forced to leave the game due to cramping, some lying in pain on the field for minutes at a time while trainers worked to release their muscles, while Branford suffered no cramps at all.

It was an exercise in Murphy's Law, with everything going wrong that possibly could, including scoring-drive, killing turnovers and costly sacks when Aucilla found itself in field goal range.

The defense fared even worse, struggling to stop what seemed like a two-play offense from Branford, including a wing sweep and a tight end drag that routinely gouged a Warrior unit that was unable to adjust. Lone standouts included senior linebacker Cole Schwab (16 total tackles, including two tackles for loss), Bishop and Dalton Browning, who each secured an interception from the safety position.

Aucilla did mount a late comeback that featured a 43 yard touchdown strike from Bishop to Burrus followed by a recovered onside kick which ignited the faithful fans and players, however, it was too little, too late.

If any silver lining can be gleaned from the loss, it is that despite the myriad of injuries and poor play, the Warriors were still only a few positive bounces away from victory, a sentiment echoed by Roberts in a post-game quote: "We're definitely disappointed with the outcome of the game. But, we're confident that we are better than what we showed tonight. With a little bit of luck, we would get that victory. At the same time though, executing properly and not leaving the game to chance is always the better game plan. We have a lot to work on, but I'm confident in what this team can accomplish."

The Warriors return to action this week against Oak Hall in Gainesville, part of a three-game road stretch that will test Aucilla's ability to move on from this difficult loss. The Warriors defeated Oak Hall last year by a score of 52-14.

School

The School Bell

By Nancy Taylor
Teacher at New Testament Christian School

Nancy Taylor

Dictionary.com defines education as “the act or process of imparting or acquiring general knowledge, developing the powers of reasoning and judgment, and generally of preparing oneself or others intellectually for mature life.” Thus, as an educator, my job is to impart general knowledge to my students so that they can develop the powers of reasoning and judgment and be intellectually prepared for mature life.

I like to take it beyond that definition. I believe that a teacher must also provide students with opportunities to prepare them physically, emotionally and spiritually for mature life. I view my job as more than a job, it's a calling – and I know many other teachers who feel the same way.

I am blessed to work in a Christian setting where the door is open for me to help my students discover and understand who they are in their hearts and not just their heads. I am able to show them through the Scripture that they were created to be more and do more than what they see in the mirror or on the report card.

Yes, I teach reading, writing and arithmetic (and a lot of it ... just ask my students). Teaching my students to be effective communicators is my academic passion. I tell them all (first through 12th graders) that it doesn't matter what or how much they know if they cannot effectively communicate it to others. However, even more important to me than that is that they find and develop a confidence in being the person they were created to be.

Everyone is unique. There was no cookie cutter assembly line when God created humanity. Over and over science and the Bible confirm that. If you simply choose to look at DNA, you will see it is true; but this truth is also seen in the Bible “I praise you because I am fearfully (carefully) and wonderfully (uniquely) made...” (Psalm 139:14, parenthetical comments are mine).

Unfortunately for many people, the rest of that verse is not a known or believed truth concerning themselves: “Your works (O God) are wonderful; I know that full well.” (Psalm 139:14b)

The educational establishment is partly to blame for this. It insists on a set of common courses/skills that all students must master in order for the system to say that the children have been successfully educated. As a result, if a student is a poor reader, has a speech problem, or finds it impossible to solve an algebraic equation, they feel like a failure. They are left with a feeling that achieving success is as unlikely as learning to swim in a gravity-free environment.

If we as teachers (and all people really) would remember that at some point in our lives, we have also come face-to-face with the seemingly impossible expectations of others, we would be much more patient and understanding in our interactions with those we are commissioned to teach and lead.

“When educating the minds of our youth, we must not forget to educate their hearts.” (Dalai Lama – quoted from verybestquotes.com). Now, I am not a follower of Dalai Lama, but I do agree with his statement. An educator's calling is that of teaching a child -- not achieving a standard. Children who have discovered their unique gifts, talents and callings (and have been encouraged to grow in them) become valuable contributors in the world in which they live. A student who has experienced this level of education comes to know that “all things are possible for (the one) who believes.” (Mark 9:23). When teachers can motivate students to become and do their best, the world becomes a better place for everyone.

NFCC Public Safety Academy Receives Meritorious Award From Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission

Submitted By NFCC Office Of College Advancement

The North Florida Community College Public Safety Academy received a Meritorious Award at the August Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission (CJSTC) Meeting in recognition of attaining a “perfect audit” for the CJSTC Trust Fund for fiscal year 2012/2013. NFCC was one of three training centers to receive the award. The NFCC Public Safety Academy has received the Meritorious Award for the last four consecutive audits including fiscal years 2006/2007, 2008/2009, 2010/2011, and 2012/2013.

FDLE Standards and Training staff audits the Trust Fund accounts received by the 40 Training Centers in Florida to ensure the training centers are in compliance with the rules, statutes and policies and procedures of the CJSTC. This includes inspections of all course files, facilities and equipment, and instructor certifications to ensure that the academy is in compliance with the Criminal Justice Standards and Training and Florida Administrative Code.

“I am blessed to have excellent co-workers,” said Rick Davis, NFCC Public Safety Academy Director. “Their commitment and dedication to the Public Safety Academy is what makes our training center one of the best in the State.”
