The School Board meeting on Tuesday evening started out ceremoniously for Madison County School District. The district was awarded silver level recognition from Florida Action for Healthy Kids after high scores on a self-assessment, taken in order for the county to achieve the highest standards possible in school health.

assessment are health education; physical education; health services; nutrition services; counseling, psychological and social services; healthy school environment; health promotion for staff and parent and community involvement. These components are checked against the district's infrastructure, policy, programs and practices that are identified from national and state guidelines and Florida statutes. After the assessment, a score rating at the bronze, silver or gold level is possible. Florida Action for Healthy Kids, The Florida Coordinated School Health Partnership and Florida Association of District School Superintendents recognized 27 school districts as Florida Healthy School Districts. The Madison School District received a silver rating and was noted for having district strengths in the areas of counseling, psychological and social services, and healthy school environment. The remainder of the meeting was low-key as board members discussed mostly old business, giving updates on issues of student school trips, construction project updates for the high school (which begin soon) and more on the old hospital building at NE Marion Street (moving forward with an appraisal). A few items that stood out on the agenda was an update on the new scoreboard for the high school and several personnel changes, mostly resulting in jobs for the county. Superintendent Doug Brown gave an update on funding for the scoreboard, with monies collected being $20,500 so far, with another $16,500 committed, which Brown felt certain would be coming. The district's goal is to purchase the scoreboard strictly with advertising funds with Brown mentioning there were still spaces available on the

IRS SCAM UPDATE

By Jessie R. Box
Greene Publishing, Inc.
It was reported in Wednesday's edition of the Madison County Carrier that residents of Madison County were receiving automated phone calls threatening to come after people and get the money owed to them. The call would give them a phone number and a code to enter.
The IRS Scam has resulted in over 200 phone calls to the Madison County Sheriff's Office, on Wednesday, Sept. 17, reporting the scam, and more calls were coming in at the time of press on Thursday morning.
"This is the most aggressive scam that I have ever seen," said Captain David Harper of the Madison County Sheriff's Office.

TIME FOR A CHOLESTEROL CHECK

Diann Douglas
Guest Columnist

If you don't know your cholesterol numbers, it's time you did. September is designated as National Cholesterol Education Month to remind us to keep a check on cholesterol levels. One of the health risks for heart disease is high cholesterol. A cholesterol number of 200 or below is considered desirable. Low density lipoproteins (LDL) should be under 100 and high density lipoproteins (HDL) should be higher than 49. It is recommended healthy adults get their cholesterol checked at least once every five years.

Cholesterol is a type of dietary fat found in animal sources of food. Humans produce our own cholesterol and it plays vital roles in our bodies. The problem arises when cholesterol levels get too high, which increases your risk of heart disease. Some people have good genes and their body does an efficient job of eliminating excess cholesterol, while others people may have high levels of cholesterol.

There are a number of things we can do to reduce our intake of cholesterol and improve our body's ability to eliminate cholesterol. A combination of smart food choices and increasing physical activity will help improve cholesterol numbers. Here are a few pointers to get you started:

Eat a diet low in fat and cholesterol: Switch to low-fat dairy foods. Reduced-fat cheeses are now more flavorful. Take your milk down a notch by switching to a lower-fat version. If you drink whole milk, switch to two percent. Give yourself a few months, then take it down to one percent. Before you know it, you will be able to switch to skim without noticing a big change in flavor and texture.

Choose leaner cuts of meat and trim visible fat before cooking. Round, flank and sirloin are examples of leaner cuts that can be very tender if you prepare them with the appropriate cooking techniques. Remove skin from chicken and you'll eliminate most of the fat. Bake, broil, simmer or roast all meat, poultry or fish. Leave frying out of your food preparation - it's too messy anyway, so you will save time on clean up.

Be careful with ready-to-serve baked goods. Many of these foods are prepared with saturated fats which tend to increase cholesterol levels.

Eat less than 300 milligrams of dietary cholesterol a day: Read labels to determine the amount of cholesterol in the food you are eating. Prepare lean cuts of meat and keep it to a 3-oz. serving size, which is equal to the size of a deck of cards. Switch to low-fat and fat-free dairy foods.

One egg yolk has about 300 mg. of cholesterol (the recommended number for the day), so limit your servings to two or three eggs per week. Egg whites, on the other hand have no fat or cholesterol, so get creative when serving eggs. If you are preparing scrambled eggs, use one egg with additional egg whites. When baking, use two egg whites in place of each whole egg in a recipe and you eliminate all of the cholesterol in your cakes and muffins.

Eat more foods high in soluble fiber: Soluble fiber has been proven to help your body get rid of cholesterol and there are a variety of foods that contain soluble fiber. Dried beans and peas are an excellent source of fiber; increase your intake of kidney beans, limas, lentils and black-eyed peas. Vegetables rich in fiber are squash, sweet potatoes and broccoli. The old saying, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," you guessed it, apples are high in soluble fiber. Oatmeal is another source of soluble fiber.

Increase your physical activity: Aim for 30 minutes each day and if you can make it an hour, do so as often as you can. Walking, swimming and bicycling are examples of moderate level activities. Regular household chores like gardening and cleaning also count as activity. Be sure to consult your doctor before starting an exercise program.

Weight management: Maintaining a healthy weight will also help keep your cholesterol levels in check. By keeping your food intake in check and increasing your activity level, your weight will reach a healthy level without any effort.

Three components of a healthy lifestyle - sensible eating, regular activity and managing your weight all work to keep your cholesterol level at an acceptable level. If you have difficulty keeping your cholesterol below 200, be sure to consult your doctor. For more information on food and nutrition, contact the Madison County Extension Service.

Why Net Neutrality Matters

Net Neutrality is the single greatest thing that the open market has ever had: since we have moved away from small town marketplaces and towards a global economy, it is essential to the Capitalist model.

And now, Net Neutrality is under attack. For those who are not familiar with this bland, uninteresting term, here is a little exposition.

Net Neutrality is the idea that all websites are treated equally. A blogging mom, for example, can get her content to her viewers with the same speed and efficiency as walmart.com: for viewers, that means that all websites display with the same speed. That movie from Netflix downloads just as quickly as the County Commission agenda from our local government website.

With Net Neutrality in place, cable service providers are not allowed to show favor to websites or the companies, individuals, or organizations that own them.

The Federal Communications Commission is currently discussing taking away Net Neutrality. The FCC is now headed by Tom Wheeler a former cable lobbyist. Frighteningly, Wheeler used to spearhead cable lobbying efforts. To quote Last Weeks Tonight Show host, John Oliver, "Yes. The guy who used to run the cable industry's lobbying arm is now running the agency tasked with regulating it. That is the equivalent of needing a babysitter and hiring a dingo. [...] They are practically overseeing their own oversight."

In his infinite benevolence, Wheeler has proposed a "two-tier system" which would work like this: website owners who could afford it, would pay an (exorbitant) fee or "premium" to display content at current internet speeds: cable leaders call this the "fast lane." Those who could not afford it would be knocked down to slower speeds (think dial up).

This system does not add a faster "premium" tier: it adds a slower tier that would become the new "standard." This flies in the face of the Capitalist model, wherein companies must evolve to offer faster and cheaper services in order to survive.

The two tier system, therefore, is a major setback to technological and economic advancement.

It lines the pockets of cable companies. They would not only be making a killing off of their customers by offering terrible service at nearly criminal rates; but also be making a killing off of website owners by charging them a great deal just to offer content at current standard speeds. They would be getting money from both sides of the equation (the provider and the viewer) for the same slip-shod services they have been providing. This is not the problem, though.

The problem is that this disenfranchises every rural community and small business owner in the United States, and removes the level playing field for which our country is renowned. It is a challenge to the capitalist economy that does nothing short of shattering the free market.

In sum, it is un-American.

This is one of the few countries left where the little man has a chance: where in a single generation— by the grace of his God and the sweat of his brow—a man can bring himself up from abject poverty into the middle class. Start up is costly and laborious, even in the current system; his wife and children lack for his attention, and his income goes back into his growing business—not his household. Ending Net Neutrality would squeeze him out of standard internet speeds and therefore out of business. When the business folds, his labors are lost and he is cast into poverty once again.

It can be argued that American men and women have stood against all sorts of adversities and persevered. Indeed, they have, and should Net Neutrality end, they will again. And yet, that struggle would rock this country to its core. Established businesses would struggle: some would even fold. New businesses would not survive this harsh new economic climate.

With so much business failure and struggles, even more people would be eligible for—and subsequently dependent upon—Social Security, a program that has already stretched this country to its limits. According to the Senate Budget Committee, the US government spent over $3.7 trillion on welfare and poverty assistance from 2009-2013: this is over five times the combined expenditures of NASA, Education and Transportation in the same years.

And what of rural America? Many small businesses do not even wish to make the kind of money necessary to get standard internet speeds. They service small areas and populations such as Jefferson and Madison County, FL., where they and their customers are content. Such small markets do not have enough Gross Domestic Product (that is, money in the market) to spend on the premium tier.

Unfortunately, when advertising for services is not convenient, most customers opt out. If a radio commercial is too loud, they turn the volume down. If a newspaper ad is too busy, they don't read it. If a website loads too slowly, they are simply going to close the window and ignore small businesses who cannot afford standard internet display speeds. How can a farmer advertise his livestock or training services; or a restaurant their lunch specials; or an antique store their wares; if they cannot pay for the "fast lane?"

But this does not just affect the common man. It is a threat to local governments and municipalities.

The end of net neutrality would mean the end of small town online infrastructure.

City and county departments in areas that are already strapped for funding would suffer.

Jefferson and Madison Counties have worked so hard to bring themselves into the modern age. They provide public records online. They offer local government meeting agendas, property history, information about local departments, and even an interactive GIS map on the Property Appraiser's website. Because of these capabilities, the area is blessed with informed and politically active citizens. These online resources are beneficial to the public, but would quickly be made obsolete by slower display and download speeds. For example, the GIS map would not be supported by a slower connection. The government cannot afford to pay the premium to (read: bribe) cable providers for standard speeds.

Nor should they.

The end of Net Neutrality is a threat to the common man; to rural communities; to municipalities; and to the protestant work ethic upon which our forefathers built this country.

And today — right now — there is something you can do. The FCC is welcoming public comment until the end of September. Visit www.fcc.gov/comments and click on the link "09-191: In the Matter of Preserving the Open Internet Broadband Industry Practices."

Legalize Dope? No Thanks!

Giving out free Marijuana? That's what it has come to, in California. Yes, in the name of medical marijuana, those suffering from maladies, such as insomnia, will qualify for a prescription.

The law offers free doses for "poor" patients. "Poor" being described as anyone with an income of less than $32,000 a year for individuals.

Called in the law, "the charity cannabis mandate," officials claimed they were simply trying to ensure "equal access" to a drug they emphasized as medicine, useful for treating cancer pain and other maladies.

"Instead of taking steps to help the most economically vulnerable residents get out of that state, Berkeley has said, 'Let's just get everybody high,'" said John Lovell, a lobbyist for the California Narcotic Officers' Association.

Mr. Lovell said the free marijuana would sap patients' motivation to look for work-after all, it is not a drug known for encouraging anyone to get off the couch and could easily be resold on the street for profit by people who are short on money.

In a New York Times article, of Sept. 3, 2014, entitled: "Berkeley Pushes a Boundary on Medical Marijuana," the cat is let out of the bag.

Who would have thought that by "legalizing Medical Marijuana," one could open up something called "compassion for insomnia," as a legal right for dope?

"I don't see anything progressive about that," Mr. Lovell said.

Cigarettes are bad, Marijuana OK!

Are things upside down, or what? Nearly 20 years after California became the first state to legalize medical marijuana, Berkeley's new law highlights a paradox of marijuana as medicine: Whether it is sold illegally on the street or legally in a dispensary, access to the drug depends almost entirely on whether you can pay for it. Yet, because marijuana remains illegal under federal law, insurance companies refuse to cover such treatments, which can run to hundreds of dollars per ounce for designer strains like All Star Sonoma Coma at local dispensaries.

Marijuana, a gateway drug, is not difficult to find. Parents are legally required to "lock up" their firearms; but not so their "medical marijuana."

How's that for compassion? Hooking your kids on a lifetime of dope. And that's progressive? Give society a break!

Cpl. Alan Whigham and Sheriff Ben Stewart look over a sign opposing the legalization of medical marijuana. Known as "NO" on proposition Number 2 on the Nov. ballot. The Sheriff has a video, "The Devil Is In the Details," on his Facebook - Madison County Sheriff's Office.

Portrayed as Compassion

Sean Luse, the dispensary chief operating officer, for Berkeley Patients Group, worries that the city mandate could lead to resale on the street. Currently, about 100 people, not all of them Berkeley residents, receive free marijuana from his dispensary, representing about one percent of the drug the facility dispenses. The new law will now compel the dispensary to give away about twice as much.

"No one has really quantified the legitimate demand; they just set the two percent threshold out of the thin air," Mr. Luse said. "Are we going to be forcing medicine on people just because it's the law? There could definitely be a financial incentive for folks to resell it."

Regarding personnel, there were a few minor changes, but it was requested school positions that received the most discussion. Cheryl James approached the board, requesting two teaching positions and one paraprofessional position for after school tutoring for migrant students. James said the migrant program was growing and with extra money in their account, felt it was time to add more help, which she received from the board.

Other positions that opened up, also granted by the board, was for approximately 20 reading and mathematics interventionists (tutors) at the Central School for remedial and enrichment students. The salaries of the granted personnel will be funded by the school's newly acquired SIG (school improvement grant).

The board finished the meeting with updates on the New Millennium Charter School by Superintendent Brown. He informed the rest of the board that the charter school had been introduced, and was receptive to, working with a department designed to help charter schools with financial issues, and that New Millennium seemed to be working through the required agreements, made by the school and the Madison County District. This ended the meeting the way it started, on a good note.

Maxie Estelle Harrell, 87, died Sunday, September 14, in Marianna. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m., on Friday, September 19, at Beggs Funeral Home Madison Chapel with burial at Ebenezer Cemetery. Visitation will be one-hour prior to the service from 1-2 p.m. at Beggs Funeral Home. She was born in Athens, Ala., on June 16, 1927 to the late George and Myrtle Franklin. She moved to Tampa, at the age of eight and lived there until her marriage to T. W. Harrell in 1944. They moved to Madison County, where they raised their children. Later years she lived in Marianna, Fl., to be closer to her oldest daughter, Sheila. She retired from the State of Florida where she worked with the (WIC) Women, Infant, Children's program. She had a real sweet spirit and was a member of Grace United Methodist Church, in Marianna, Fl. She enjoyed life no matter what hardships came her way; she would deal with it and smile. She will be remembered for her kindness and creativity and for her love and loyalty to her family. She was a beautiful lady, loving mother and wife. She is survived by six children: Sheila Adams (Jimmy), Jimmie Agnes Lundgren (Steven), Ted Harrell (Suzanne), G. W. Harrell (Hope), Rick Harrell (Linda Lee), Susie Atwood (J. R.) and ten grandchildren: Jeannie Johnson (Matt), Landis Adams (Suzanne), Taylor Harrell, Leslie Harrell, Kelsey Harrell, Travis Harrell (Olivia), Madison Harrell, Maxwell Harrell, Delaney Atwood and Bellamy Atwood; and six great-grandchildren. Her loving husband T. W. Harrell preceded her in death in 1971. Beggs Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements, (850) 973-2258. # Pioneers Of Madison County

William Sever 1788-1870

Submitted by the Madison County Genealogy Society

A true Florida Pioneer, William Sever and his wife Mary Priscilla Lewis arrived in Madison County before 1830 from Emmanuel County, Ga., with seven children. William's father was Henry Sever; Mary's parents were Abraham and Prudence Lewis. Their children follow: 1. Nancy, 1810, who married Silas Overstreet; 2. Elizabeth, 1816, who married Felix K. Eason; 3. Mary, 1818, who married remarried Carrie Mae in 1935.

James T. Leslie; 4. William Henry, 1821, who married Mary Griner; 5. Martha Ann, 1823, who married Daniel Burnett; 6. Dicey, 1825, who married James Edward Vann; and 7. Susannah, 1828, who married William Pierce. In later years (1865) William married Mrs. Ann B. Boyd.

James H. 1876, married Della May and the couple had Bessie May, 1902; and Charles W., 1903.

Louis Leon, 1896, married Fannie Bell, and the couple had Louis Leon, Jr., 1924.

Henry, it appears, moved to Dade County, died in 1986, and was buried in Lamont.

Fifth Generation: sons of William H.

Charles Eason, 1903, lived in Tuten and married Nellie Mae and the couple had Joseph H., 1929, and Charles, 1939.

Ed Andrew, 1898, married Wilhemina, and the couple had Ellen W., 1929; Willard, 1930; Maggie, 1931; and Andrew Ed, Jr., 1937.

Will T., 1896, married Hoyett and the couple had the following children: William H., 1930; Elbert, 1932; Glen Etheridge, 1940; and Linda, 1944.

In Summary, William Sever had six daughters and one son, William Henry. (William was a big name in the Sever family, and the Williams seemed to remain here). William Henry remained in Madison County and had six sons. It seems that only one of the six sons, William W., raised his family in the county. William W. had nine sons, and three of them remained—William H., James H., and Louis Leon. William H. had three sons that raised their families in Madison County: Charles Eason, Ed Andrew, and Will T.

The William Severs are only half of the Severs in Madison County. Around 1845, Benjamin Sever moved in, we think from Jefferson County, and married Mary Tillis. This branch of Severs does not seem to be at all connected to the William Sever family who arrived in 1830. Our next article will cover the Benjamin Sever family.

Aucilla Prevails Despite Litany Of Turnovers

By William Smith
Greene Publishing, Inc.
“Two steps forward, one step backward.” Warrior head coach Colby Roberts might consider getting this mantra tattooed across his forehead after yet another performance brimming with encouraging highs and maddening lows Friday evening as Aucilla travelled to St. Augustine to defeat the Flashes of St. Joseph in conference play 28-13.

It was a game of duality, a Jekyll/Hyde story of two sides of the same coin; one where the most promising aspects of the Warriors’ achievements begat ugly, evil twins that were the corruption of those very same positives.

Firstly, there was the dichotomy of physicality: this was one of the most dominating performances yet by an Aucilla line in Roberts’ tenure with the team. Both offensively and defensively, the Warriors controlled the line of scrimmage in a convincing display of moxie, bulldozing their way to a 21-7 halftime lead that seemed to portend the all-but-certain occurrence of a blowout. Then, the second half came, and with it, the pestilence of penalties. “Holding,” “block in the back,” “neutral zone infraction,” “off sides,” all were called, and frequently. They were enough to derail an otherwise banner day for the trench men.

Secondly, there was the contradiction of a rushing attack that was physical and intimidating, but entirely, destructively mistake-prone. The Warriors enjoyed what was easily the most productive day so far in this 2014 season for running the football (271 yards and two touchdowns on 44 carries, over six yards per carry), but frustratingly, could not stop fumbling the ball at the most inopportune of times. In fact, Aucilla suffered no less than five fumbles lost Friday evening, a malady of epic proportions that led Roberts’ to thank his lucky stars for prevailing.

“I’m not entirely sure what the percentages are for a team’s chances of winning when turning the ball over as much as we did tonight, but I’ve got to believe that it’s a fraction of a percent. We just could not hold onto the ball. That has to change in the future. It’s not acceptable to make those kinds of mistakes and beat yourself when facing conference opponents.”

Unfortunately, the turnover issue facing Aucilla backs and receivers overshadowed some quality performances that seem to forecast that a burgeoning Warrior offense is finally ready to realize its potential as a powerhouse force.

Chief among these performances was another bruising rushing display by senior quarterback/running back Wesley Smyrnios (23 carries, 102 yards, one touchdown). Since last week against Oak Hall, Smyrnios has deftly filled the role of power back, setting the tone as a short yardage specialist who also has the wheels to gouge opposing defenses for big gains when not properly “wrapped up” in a technique tackle.

The yang to Smyrnios’ yin came from fellow senior quarterback Austin Bishop (12 carries, 124 yards), a finesse runner who gashed the Flash defense on the ground with several quarterback draw plays run to perfection. This “thunder and lightning” combo of runners has been sorely missed by the Warrior’s offense for the purpose of controlling tempo and morale this year, and can be a huge asset if it continues to be effective.

As Aucilla controlled the line of scrimmage with its rushing attack, receiving opportunities opened up for the reliable senior wide receiver Timothy Burrus, who had a workman-like eight catch, 105 yard night that could have been spectacular had a 50+ yard touchdown pass not been called back due to a holding penalty. However, in light of the prevailing running game, the passing scheme played second fiddle as both Bishop and Smyrnios combined for 15-21 for 154 yards, one touchdown, and one interception.

Defensively, the night was highlighted by senior defensive end Nick Roberts, who turned in an outstanding game, tallying seven tackles and two sacks. Roberts lived in the flash backfield all night, pressuring St. Joseph quarterbacks and harassing their talented and speedy running backs.

It was an exceptional night in general for the Warrior front seven, as several defensive linemen and linebackers easily penetrated into the opposing backfield to wreak havoc, a fact not necessarily reflected by the final score of the game. Those ever-present turnovers and penalties nearly cost Aucilla the game, as St. Joseph took full advantage and rallied late to keep this contest in doubt.

“I’ll tell you that though I have confidence in the way that we were moving the football throughout the game, I’m very happy that St. Joseph didn’t have another five minutes of game clock to work with there at the end,” said coach Roberts. “For two weeks in a row, we’ve started strongly, and ended poorly. That’s a recipe for disaster. We’re going back to the drawing board to figure out how to finally play a complete game.”

Aucilla will return to action this Friday evening against divisional opponent John Paul II in Tallahassee, a game that always carries with it the added bonus of the extra motivation of a rivalry: Aucilla and JPII have no love lost between them, and have had several notably one-sided matchups in the past, including a 54-26 Panther drubbing at the hands of the Warriors last year.

ACA CROSS COUNTRY COMPETES IN BAY INVITATIONAL

By Bryant Thigpen
Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Aucilla Christian Academy Warriors cross country team traveled to Panama City on Saturday to participate in the Bay Invitational, their first time competing in that event. The boys and girls team had a successful run with both teams beating personal records.

“That was our first time racing at the Bay Invitational, so it is always exciting to go somewhere new,” said Head Coach Dan Nennstiel. “I thought our team ran decently, but we still have a lot of work to do.”

Of the boys team, Dawson Bishop finished the race in 22:28, beating his former record of 22:43. Ian Hutsell completed the race in 28:12, beating his former record of 55:55. Travis Wheeler finished in 29:33, setting a new record from 30:15. Jason Hamilton also beat his personal record by 27 seconds from 30:53 to 30:26.

From the girls team, Summer Dee beat her personal record of 34:30 by finishing this race in 33 minutes.

Overall, the boys team finished in 10th place out of 16 teams, and the girls finished eighth out of 12 teams.

While in Panama City, the teams enjoyed a team cookout and an evening of fun in the sun on the beach.

“The kids really enjoyed it, it’s not something that we get to do a lot,” Nennstiel said.

The team will travel to Bainbridge, Ga. on Saturday for the Bainbridge Bearcat Invitational.

The School Bell

By Megan Dickey
 Madison County Central School – S.T.E.M.

My name is Megan Dickey, and I teach an elective class at Madison County Central School. This is my fifth year here. I would like to introduce those that are not familiar, to an exciting class that is available for your child here at Madison County Central School. The world around us is changing rapidly and we are responding and adapting to these changes. The way in which students learn best is also changing.

For these reasons, we are pleased to offer a STEM class (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math). In STEM, students are exposed to a variety of real world concepts with a focus on technology. Students work in teams of two and develop knowledge and skills using multimedia and hands-on activities. Students will also learn if their interests and aptitudes are suited for a wide range of technology-based careers. The following are the units in the lab that students may encounter:

- CAD (Computer Aided Design)
- Electricity and Electronics
- Energy and Power
- Environment and Ecology
- Flight Technology
- Health and Fitness
- Laser Technology
- Pneumatics
- R & D (Research and Development)
- Robotics
- Structural Engineering

'The School Bell' is a weekly column featuring educators in Madison County. Each week, Greene Publishing, Inc. will feature one teacher who can express their views and opinions, share lesson plans, a classroom activity, or any other educational subject of their choosing. If you are an educator or school administrator and would like to submit an article, please email Rose@greenepublishing.com.

Devandre Washington uses a Band Saw to carve a racecar and Dawson Rutherford is using a Drill Press to drill wheel holes for his car in Megan Dickey's STEM class at the Central School.

I am thrilled to have our students experience this STEM class and I look forward to their families seeing all of the fun and interesting permanent products they get to take home!

As a teacher, when asked to write an article, of course I wanted to highlight my classroom. However, the first thing that popped in my mind was my students. It is my students that make this class. I find joy in teaching when I see them running down the hall to get to my classroom because they are ready to start their modules. Nevertheless, I'll get on to them for running, but in the back of my mind I'm just thrilled that I have the opportunity to make learning fun for these students. Just like them, I am learning something new every day.

As much as I would love to highlight every single student, I've picked two that have shown exemplary behavior and hard work so far this school year. Dawson Rutherford and Devandre Washington are currently in my fourth period class and are working together in the R&D modneering (Research and Development). They are learning how to identify and define specifications, tolerances, and their required use in vehicle design, as well as producing their own prototype of a CO2 racecar. In the picture you will see Devandre Washington using a Band Saw to carve his racecar and Dawson Rutherford using a Drill Press to drill his wheel holes. When I asked these young gentlemen what they looked forward to most about coming to fourth period, Dawson replied, "I can't wait to race my CO2 race car and hopefully I can get into Flight Technology next and build a rocket." Devandre's response was, "I look forward to getting to work in the Structural Engineering module, as well as Energy and Power where I can work on the motor."

After hearing what these young gentlemen had to say, it gave me extra motivation, that not only do they love what they're doing now, but they can't wait to experience something else and something new. This is our future. This is what teaching and learning is all about my friends!

STUDENT OF THE WEEK

By Rose Klein

Every week, Greene Publishing, Inc. will spotlight a student from one of the Madison County Schools in a 'Student of the Week' column. If you are a parent or educator and would like to nominate a student for this feature, please email Rose@greenepublishing.com.

JAKE MURPHY

Jake Murphy is a 2nd grader who attends Lee Elementary School in Madison County. He says he likes school because he gets to learn things and see his friends, but he does NOT think kids should have homework because he goes to school all day and then has things to do at home. Jake's favorite academic subject is Science because he gets to use tools like binoculars and his favorite thing to do at recess is "playing with my friends."

Regal Woman's Club In Greenville

The Regal Woman's Club was started in 1975 and was the brainchild of Ms. Clifford (Beauty) Brown, who initiated the club in order to serve the Greenville community. She formed the club with the help of Lillie Mae Jones who was the mother of charter member Gertrude Miller. The club's mission: to advance community potential on a grassroots level.

Club efforts include activities such as: awarding an annual scholarship to a college-bound Greenville student; providing aid to families in distress, such as victims of fire and families experiencing chronic illness; sponsoring recreational activities such as little league teams and supporting churches and other outside organizations in their efforts to improve the community.

Other community service events these lovely ladies have organized are appreciation dinners for area seniors, serving breakfast in the park during Greenville's Annual Veteran's Day celebration, Christmas gifts to nursing home residents, Thanksgiving baskets to local families, Easter egg hunts coordinated with JoAnn Bridges Academy and providing assistance to the Boys' Choir and the Boys and Girls Club of Greenville.

This year the club has taken on a new venture, to adopt and assist Greenville Elementary, at the request of charter member Lucile Day, who is a retired educator. The club formed a School Advisory Committee made up of Chairperson Cheryl Clemons and Vice Chair Emily Dickey, who will be the liaisons between school and club, assisting in "whatever way new Principal Barbara Petiford requests," says Day. All of the Regal ladies are alumni from the Greenville school system, attending the school when it was known as Greenville Training School, educating students in 1st - 12th grades.

One of the first items on the club's to-do-list for the school is to help purchase a new curtain for their stage. Club members say for the past few years, the school has resorted to using garbage bags pieced together to mimic a curtain. Other plans the ladies have for the school is to encourage community involvement, especially in the way of role models and mentors for students, emphasizing men are especially needed. Several of the members discussed the addition of a physical education curriculum and instructor, and while they acknowledge none of the other Madison County elementary schools have this either, it is still a worthy goal considering the epidemic of today's childhood obesity.

The women in this regal group understand that although it takes hard work to accomplish all their goals and commitments, there is also need for an occasional well-deserved break. Educational trips are planned with community members and organized by member and Business Manager Gwendolyn Johnson who says they have taken as many as two Greyhound busloads on their trips. Places these ladies have visited include: Washington, D.C., Canada, New York, The World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., Henning, Tenn. (author Alex Haley's Home and Museum), Williamsburg, Va. and their latest trip, The Holy Land in Orlando.

These royal ladies are proud of their Greenville community and committed to their mission in advancing the town's potential. They do occasionally have dinners and other fundraisers to help them in their efforts, but most of the funds used in their services to the town are from their own pockets. What they will tell you about their commitment is this: "We thank God for our longevity and for the opportunity to be of service."

Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS)

What Is Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS)?

Story Submitted

Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), sometimes called Lou Gehrig's disease or classical motor neuron disease, is a rapidly progressive, invariably fatal neurological disease that attacks the nerve cells (neurons) responsible for controlling voluntary muscles. In ALS, both the upper motor neurons and the lower motor neurons degenerate or die, ceasing to send messages to muscles. Unable to function, the muscles gradually weaken, waste away, and twitch. Eventually the ability of the brain to start and control voluntary movement is lost. Symptoms are usually first noticed in the arms and hands, legs or swallowing muscles. Muscle weakness and atrophy occur on both sides of the body. Individuals with ALS lose their strength and the ability to move their arms and legs, and to hold the body upright. When muscles in the diaphragm and chest wall fail to function properly, individuals lose the ability to breathe without ventilatory support. The disease does not affect a person's ability to see, smell, taste, hear or recognize touch. Although the disease does not usually impair a person's mind or personality, several recent studies suggest that some people with ALS may develop cognitive problems involving word fluency, decision-making and memory. The cause of ALS is not known, and scientists do not yet know why ALS strikes some people and not others.

Is there any treatment?

No cure has yet been found for ALS. However, the drug riluzole--the only prescribed drug approved by the Food and Drug Administration to treat ALS--prolongs life by two to three months but does not relieve symptoms. Other treatments are designed to relieve symptoms and improve the quality of life for people with ALS. Drugs are available to help individuals with spasticity, pain, panic attacks and depression. Physical therapy, occupational therapy and rehabilitation may help to prevent joint immobility and slow muscle weakness and atrophy. Individuals with ALS may eventually consider forms of mechanical ventilation (respirators).

What is the prognosis?

Regardless of the part of the body first affected by the disease, muscle weakness and atrophy spread to other parts of the body as the disease progresses. Individuals have increasing problems with moving, swallowing, and speaking or forming words. Eventually people with ALS will not be able to stand or walk, get in or out of bed on their own, or use their hands and arms. In later stages of the disease, individuals have difficulty breathing as the muscles of the respiratory system weaken. Although ventilation support can ease problems with breathing and prolong survival, it does not affect the progression of ALS. Most people with ALS die from respiratory failure, usually within three to five years from the onset of symptoms. However, about 10 percent of those individuals with ALS survive for 10 or more years.

What research is being done?

The National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke (NINDS) conducts research in its laboratories at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and also supports additional research through grants to major medical institutions across the country. The goals of this research are to find the cause or causes of ALS, understand the mechanisms involved in the progression of the disease and develop effective treatments.

National ALS Registry

Both the NINDS and the Centers of Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) are committed to studies of disease patterns or risk factors among persons with ALS in order to better understand the causes of ALS, the mechanisms involved in the progression of the disease and to develop effective treatments. In keeping with this goal, the CDC has launched the National ALS Registry, a program to collect, manage and analyze data about persons with ALS. The Registry includes data from national databases as well as de-identified information provided by persons with ALS. Persons living with ALS who choose to participate can add their information to the Registry by going to the website at www.cdc.gov/als. You may also contact the Florida Department of Health in Madison at (850) 973-5000 or in Jefferson at (850) 342-0170 for more information.

Madison Farmer Richard Terry Re-elected To Farm Credit Of Northwest Florida Board

Story Submitted

Madison farmer Richard Terry has been re-elected to the Farm Credit of Northwest Florida Board of Directors by the organization's membership. Mr. Terry is a member of the organization as well, and will represent the interests of farmers and Farm Credit customers in Region 3 (Eastern Region), which covers Gadsden, Leon, Jefferson, Wakulla, Franklin, Madison and Taylor Counties. Nine of twelve directors are Farm Credit of Northwest Florida members elected by fellow members, which reflects the organization's cooperative, customer-owned philosophy.

Mr. Terry has been a member of the Farm Credit of Northwest Florida Board since 1992. He has served as Chairman of the Board and as the District Advisory Committee for Ag-First Farm Credit Bank. Mr. Terry has been a self-employed farmer for more than 50 years, and he further serves the agricultural community in positions such as board member of the Madison County Farm Bureau, the Madison County Tobacco Warehouse Association and the Farmers Cooperative of Live Oak, Fl.

About Farm Credit of Northwest Florida

Farm Credit of Northwest Florida is a member-owned financial cooperative, headquartered in Marianna, Fl., that serves 18 counties throughout the Florida panhandle. Farm Credit offers highly competitive credit to meet the financing needs of farmers, agribusinesses, rural landowners and homeowners. For more information about the types of financing available, or how cooperative lenders share their profits with borrowers, please visit www.farmcredit-fl.com.

Cost Share Helps Farmers, Ranchers Conserve Natural Resources

Application Deadline For Environmental Quality Incentive Program Nov. 21st

Story Submitted

Florida farmers and ranchers can apply until Nov. 21 for financial assistance in fiscal year 2015 through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) to improve soil, water, air, plants, animals and related resources.

Through EQIP, the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) develops contracts with agricultural producers to help plan and implement conservation practices that address natural resource concerns. Eligible land includes cropland, rangeland, pastureland, private non-industrial forestland and other farm or ranch lands. The application process for conservation programs is continuous, but funding selections are typically made once a year.

Begin by visiting your local NRCS field office and requesting help developing a conservation plan. Our experts provide this free service to help you use your natural resources more efficiently. To learn about technical and financial assistance available from NRCS, go to www.nrcs.usda.gov/get-started

LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS URGED TO ENROLL IN DISASTER ASSISTANCE PROGRAM BEFORE OCTOBER 1ST

Story Submitted

Producers who have suffered eligible disaster-related losses are encouraged to act to secure assistance by Sept. 30, 2014, as congressionally mandated payment reductions will take place for producers who have not acted before that date. Livestock producers that have experienced grazing losses since October 2011 and may be eligible for benefits but have not yet contacted their local Farm Service Agency (FSA) office should do so as soon as possible.

The Budget Control Act passed by Congress in 2011 requires USDA to implement reductions of 7.3 percent to the Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP) in the new fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, 2014. However, producers seeking LFP support who have scheduled appointments with their local FSA office before Oct. 1, even if the appointment occurs after Oct. 1, will not see reductions in the amount of disaster relief they receive.

USDA is encouraging producers to register, request an appointment or begin a Livestock Forage Disaster Program application with their county FSA office before Oct. 1, 2014, to lock in the current zero percent sequestration rate. As an additional aid to qualified producers applying for LFP, the Farm Service's Agency has developed an online registration that enables farmers and ranchers to put their names on an electronic list before the deadline to avoid reductions in their disaster assistance. This is an alternative to visiting or contacting the county office. To place a name on the Livestock Forage Disaster Program list online, visit <http://www.fsa.usda.gov/disaster-register>.

Producers who already contacted the county office and have an appointment scheduled need do nothing more.

The Livestock Indemnity Program, the Tree Assistance Program and the Noninsured Disaster Assistance Program Frost Freeze payments will also be cut by 7.3 percent on Oct. 1, 2014. Unlike the Livestock Forage Disaster Program, applications for these programs must be fully completed by Sept. 30. FSA offices will prioritize these applications, but as the full application process can take several days or more to complete, producers are encouraged to begin the application process as soon as possible.

The Livestock Forage Disaster Program compensates eligible livestock producers who suffered grazing losses due to drought or fire between Oct. 1, 2011 and Dec. 31, 2014. Eligible livestock includes alpacas, beef cattle, buffalo, beefalo, dairy cattle, deer, elk, emus, equine, goats, llamas, poultry, reindeer, sheep or swine that have been or would have been grazing the eligible grazing land or pastureland. Producers forced to liquidate their livestock may also be eligible for program benefits.

Additionally, the 2014 Farm Bill eliminated the risk management purchase requirement. Livestock producers are no longer required to purchase coverage under the federal crop insurance program or Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistance Program to be eligible for Livestock Forage Disaster Program assistance.

To learn more about USDA disaster relief program, producers can review the 2014 Farm Bill fact sheet at www.fsa.usda.gov/farmbill, the LFP program fact sheet, <http://go.usa.gov/5JTk>, or contact their local FSA office.

The Bush Wealth Advantage

Our column, "The Bush Wealth Advantage" is our way of giving back to the community with all sorts of insights, relevant news, and practical wealth planning strategies.

Reaching Retirement: Now What?

Stacy Bush, President
Bush Wealth Management

You've worked hard your whole life anticipating the day you could finally retire. Well, that day has arrived! But with it comes the realization that you'll need to carefully manage your assets so that your retirement savings will last.

traditional IRAs when you reach age 70½, whether you need them or not. Plan to spend these dollars first in retirement.

If you own a Roth IRA, you aren't required to take any distributions during your lifetime. Your funds can continue to grow tax deferred, and qualified distributions will be tax free. Because of these unique tax benefits, it generally makes sense to withdraw funds from a Roth IRA last.

Review your portfolio regularly

Traditional wisdom holds that retirees should value the safety of their principal above all else. For this reason, some people shift their investment portfolio to fixed-income investments, such as bonds and money market accounts, as they approach retirement. The problem with this approach is that you'll effectively lose purchasing power if the return on your investments doesn't keep up with inflation.

Spend wisely

Don't assume that you'll be able to live on the earnings generated by your investment portfolio and retirement accounts for the rest of your life. At some point, you'll probably have to start drawing on the principal. But you'll want to be careful not to spend too much too soon. This can be a great temptation, particularly early in retirement.

A good guideline is to make sure your annual withdrawal rate isn't greater than 4% to 6% of your portfolio. Remember that if you whittle away your principal too quickly, you may not be able to earn enough on the remaining principal to carry you through the later years.

Plan for required distributions

Keep in mind that you must generally begin taking minimum distributions from employer retirement plans and

Know your Social Security options

You'll need to decide when to start receiving your Social Security retirement benefits. At normal retirement age (which varies from 66 to 67, depending on the year you were born), you can receive your full Social Security retirement benefit. You can elect to receive your Social Security retirement benefit as early as age 62, but if you begin receiving your benefit before your normal retirement age, your benefit will be reduced. Conversely, if you delay retirement, you can increase your Social Security retirement benefit.

By planning carefully, investing wisely, and spending thoughtfully, you can increase the likelihood that your retirement will be a financially comfortable one.
