

BOMB THREATS

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison County Sheriff's Office (MCSO) is currently investigating bomb threats, received by phone, at Lake Park of Madison, located at 259 SW Captain Brown Rd. on Wednesday, Oct. 24, and Thursday, Oct. 25.

According to MCSO Major David Harper, all residents and employees of Lake Park of Madison were evacuated while the building was searched by multiple MCSO deputies during both incidents. It was determined that nothing suspicious was identified or located. Lake Park of Madison was then cleared and deemed safe for residents and employees to return and resume their normal schedule. No injuries were reported during these incidents.

The investigation to identify and locate the person(s) responsible for making these threat is currently on-going. If you have any information regarding these incidents, you are asked to call the Madison County Sheriff's Office at (850) 973-4001, ext. 1, and ask to speak to an investigator.

Hawthorne man in critical condition and a Madison woman with serious injuries.

According to a report by the Florida Highway Patrol (FHP), Anthony McQueen, 55, of Hawthorne, was traveling southbound on State Road 53 South, behind two vehicles, in the area of SW Emerald Dr. Reports state that as McQueen was driving, the vehicle in front of him was slowing for another vehicle that was preparing to turn right onto Emerald Dr. McQueen was unable to slow down enough and swerved into the northbound lane, into the path of a 2011 Chevy Equinox, driven by Sheila Vann, 61, of Madison.

As a result, FHP reports the front of Vann's vehicle struck the passenger-side quarter panel and door of McQueen's vehicle, causing it to rotate counterclockwise. The rear passenger-side quarter panel of McQueen's vehicle then stuck the rear driver-side quarter panel of Vann's

Early voting begins Saturday

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Early voting is set to begin and Madison County citizens are getting ready to head to the polls for the 2018 general election, in anticipation of electing a new Florida Governor, Senator and other local officials. Here's what you need to know before the polls open.

According to the Florida Division of Elections, early voting is defined as casting a ballot in person prior to Election Day at a location designated by the Supervisor of Elections and depositing the voted ballot in the tabulation system. The voter uses the same type of voting equipment that is used at the polls on Election Day. In all elections, when there is a state or federal office race, early voting is required to be available. Early voting may be offered in county, municipal and other local elections.

Polls will open at various locations for early voting on Saturday, Oct. 27. Those polls will continue to be open until Saturday, Nov. 3. Once the polls close, no other residents will be able to vote until the primary election on Tuesday, Nov. 6. Voters then, and only then, can vote at their designated precinct.

If you have moved, please change your address by calling the Supervisor of Elections office before visiting any polling location. If you are unsure of where your precinct is, log onto votemadison.com and click 'Find your Precinct.' Then, enter your house number and type in your street name. You do not need to enter the direction or street type. You will then select your street name from the options that appear.

If you will be away from home during the election or prefer to vote by mail, you are asked to call the Madison County Supervisor of Elections office to request a vote-by-mail ballot. Vote-by-mail ballot requests are valid for two general election cycles; call the Madison County Supervisor of Elections office

Convertible rear-ends pickup

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

On Friday, Oct. 19, at approximately 3:15 p.m., a car accident involving a convertible and a two-door pickup occurred on Base St., near the intersection of Parramore Ave.

According to a report by the Madison Police Department (MPD), Joshua Clark Richardson, 16, of Madison, was driving eastbound on Base St. in a 2014 Ford Mustang. Melodie Moore Staten, of Madison, was also traveling eastbound in a 2006 Chevrolet Silverado two-door pickup when she began to slow in an attempt to turn north onto Parramore Ave.

Richardson informed MPD that he did not see Staten's vehicle slowing for a turn and made contact with the rear of Staten's vehicle with the front of his vehicle, which caused severe front-end damage

Two individuals were transported to Madison County Memorial Hospital for evaluation.

Passing Parade: Who are you?

Nelson A. Pryor: Guest Columnist

Americans generally choose between two political philosophies, or alternatives: either you are a subservient, an (Alexander) Hamiltonian, or those who are unmanageable, (Thomas) Jeffersonian.

"Thomas Jefferson and his followers," wrote John Adams, the former Federalist President, on July 9, 1813, "Are the most difficult animals to manage of anything in the whole theory and practice of government. They will not suffer themselves to be governed." Cappon, Lester (Editor) Adams-Jefferson Letters. Chapel Hill, N.C. Press, 1959. 2:352.

The Media on us

The media doesn't understand that there are, in these united States, people of principle. People who believe in limited government as outlined in our Constitution.

Kentucky Resolution, 1798

Adams, a Hamiltonian, was alluding to Jefferson's basic philosophy, as expressed in the Kentucky Resolution of 1798, which outlined a fear of tyranny, from big government, and his support of States' Rights.

Tea Party Attitude

Benjamin Franklin also saw the pre-revolutionary war Americans as unmanageable. On February 13, 1766, Franklin, as the Ambassador to the English Crown, for the two Colonies of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, addressed the British House of Commons, as a "Committee of the Whole," on the question of the Stamp Act. Asked: "Do you not think the people of America would submit to pay the Stamp duty if it was moderated?" Franklin responded: "No, never, unless compelled by force of arms ... and then, sir, you will not stem a revolution but will create one." Smith, Albert H. (Editor) Writings of Benjamin Franklin. NY: Macmillan Co., 1907. 4:418

More Attitude

While meeting jointly in their general convention, each of the Twelve Colonies, represented by their Deputies, declared an "Address to the People of Great Britain," that none of them would be "Hewers of wood and drawers of water," for anyone. Journal of the Continental Congress, 1774-1789, Library of Congress Edition, 1904. 1:89. Submission? Never!

A Narcotic

Later, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the "New Deal" champion, recognized that the "unmanageable American" could not be reduced to accepting the dole. He even warned the Congress, that the continuing doling out of relief, as was being done, "(I)s to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit ... I am not willing that the vitality of our people be further sapped by the giving of doles, of market baskets, by a few hours of weekly work cutting grass, raking leaves or papers in the public parks." January 4, 1935, Congressional Record 95.

Virginia Fuller, of Tallahassee, Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, says you need to get out there and early vote.

Disloyal?

Edward R. Murrer, in his March 9, 1954, "See it Now" TV program, said this about those "unmanageable Americans": We must not confuse dissent with disloyalty. When the loyal opposition dies, I think, the soul of America dies with it."

We, the Unmanageable

We, who support free enterprise, the Constitution and Biblical principles, are not going away. Watch us early vote, or on Election Day, November 6. We, the unmanageable will be heard. That rumble you hear ... that's us! Blessed be the "unmanageable!"

From the sunny side: Cooler weather

Rick Patrick

I think of all the times of the year, right now is just about my favorite. The days get shorter (yes, I am the only person breathing air who actually enjoys the shorter days of autumn and winter) and the first hints of cooler weather make their long-awaited appearance. Earlier this week, I was up around 3 a.m. to let my four-legged alarm clock outside and I almost wished I had put a jacket on. It was a welcome feeling, indeed. Well, about as welcome as anything, other than still being in bed, can be at 3 a.m.

The appearance of cooler weather means something else that is always very special to me. The holiday season can't be far behind. Next week, I will be able to forego my self-imposed rule about holding off playing Christmas music until the first of November. In fact, I'll let you in on a little secret, but you have to promise not to tell anyone. I have already begun playing Christmas music on my work computer, but I use headphones out of respect for some of my "Scrooge-Grinch" fellow workers. (Well, only one in particular, I won't name names, but his initials are John Willoughby.) I once tried to play Christmas music in the middle of July trying to trick myself into thinking the temperature wasn't really 98 degrees. It was a nice try, but it really didn't work. I wonder if my friends from up north play Beach Boys songs in the middle of winter trying to trick themselves into thinking that there's not three feet of snow piled up outside their door.

So, enjoy the cooler morning temperatures. Take that sweater out of storage. Get ready for all sorts of festive sights and sounds. After all, "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year!"

The Editor's Desk: Tobacco roads

Savannah Reams

Savannah Reams:
Greene Publishing, Inc.

You'd be surprised to know how much time farmers spend on the road. Hundreds of thousands of miles wear down their pick-up trucks as they commute from field to field, alongside rows of crops, down dusty dirt roads lined with wildflowers and ditches crawling with crickets and moccasins. I remember my father's dashboard was covered in notepads, business cards and receipts-- all covered with geometry equations, figures and data pertaining to each field. Farmers double as mathematicians-- cultivating an irregularly-shaped field requires a great deal of accurate calculations and strategic planning. The farmer's pick-up truck serves as his office and, it was in my father's truck, where I spent a great deal of my time growing up.

Daddy farmed tobacco, among other crops. However, tobacco was what fed us. The life of a tobacco farmer isn't easy-- it's difficult, it's stressful and, above all, it's time consuming.

Ultimately, the best place we had to spend time together was on the job and that was exactly where I loved to be. I would ride with my dad from county to county-- Madison, Jefferson and all the way to Taylor-- checking on every field and the crops therein. Our days were never short of stopping to work on equipment that had failed or picking up the slack if we were shorthanded. I use the term "we" lightly-- I was a small child so I mostly supervised. Daddy kept a tape recorder in his truck to make notes throughout the day of the status of each field. While he was tending to the farm, and I was in the truck cab, I'd tell him stories on his tape recorder so he would have entertainment while on the road.

Daddy's job didn't end when the sun went down. A tobacco barn, the facility used to cure tobacco, can make or break a perfectly healthy crop if not tended to carefully. If too hot, the crops will burn, if not hot enough, they will rot. These machines were extremely finicky. If crops were curing during the night, Dad was driving from barn to barn-- across counties once more-- to make sure each structure was functioning properly. On certain occasions, he would let me ride with him. There was nothing better than the smell of tobacco curing. It's not what one would assume and, contrary to popular assumptions, smells nothing like a cigar or cigarette. Tobacco leaves curing in a barn have a sweet, earthy smell that is nostalgic to many southerners who grew up near tobacco fields and the barns nestled next to them.

As we drifted down lonely highways and barren dirt roads, we would sing country anthems at the top of our lungs-- George Jones, Dolly Parton and Tom T. Hall kept us company and, despite the exhaustion, worry and anxiety my dad must have felt, he managed to put on a smile and sing a song. He was, and is, living proof that when life is hard, you refuse to sink, get a grip and do what has to be done.

I learned a great deal on those long drives and every ounce of gumption I've got comes from my dad. Strong women and men, like my father, have made Madison County a community of fighters. Farmers, entrepreneurs, educators, healthcare professionals and the like, wake up every morning and move to the sweet southern song of survival that sits us apart from the rest. It's something to be proud of. I hope the work ethic, unabashed guile and fearlessness that comes from being raised in a dirt-road-driven farm town will continue to be passed on from generation to generation.

Letter to the Editor: WAKE UP AMERICA!!! DON'T LET THE FOX INTO THE HENHOUSE!!!

On a balmy, moonless Cuban night 58 years ago, I said a crying goodbye to my buddy and hero, my grandfather...it would be over a year before I would see him again. I was lucky; others would never see their loved ones again.

He worked for an American company and was singled out to be arrested and possibly executed by a firing squad as an enemy of the revolution. He and two of his friends were going "Al Norte" he told me, and soon we would be joining him there.

So, under the cover of darkness, they carried a boat, that he had built in our backyard, powered by an old Perkins engine, to the river, less than a block away. He carried a small handheld compass, for navigating, and five gallons of water. After a few agonizing days of not knowing his destiny, my family somehow found out that they had made it to Marathon, in the Florida Keys, and had been granted political asylum. The Castro regime also found out and the nightmare intensified. They quickly confiscated all of our property, branded us "gusanos" and we were threatened and harassed daily. I will not go into details, as there is a point I am attempting to make with this letter.

My grandfather petitioned the U.S. State Department to allow his family to emigrate to the United States. It took over a year before my grandmother and I were allowed to leave, with only the clothes on our backs. At the airport, as we walked towards the plane, the people called us terrible things and chanted "Muerte A Los Gusanos!" (death to the worms) while spitting at us. My father, mother, and sister would not join us in freedom for another year, enduring the hunger, misery, and lack of freedom in the Godless society that is Communism. My grandfather, not speaking the language, did carpentry, odd jobs, and fished in the same boat that brought him to freedom in order to pay for all the legal costs to bring us to America. He, nor my parents, asked for handouts. Instead, they worked for everything and taught us kids to also work for everything and to give something back to this wonderful country. We were taught to embrace Old Glory, learn the language, and embrace the culture; and woe be to us if we ever broke the law. I had a curfew imposed by my father, even when I was 18-years-old, and he made sure that I didn't have friends that would lead me astray.

Now to my point: I'm for immigration... the lawful way... and if you are going to be a law-abiding, productive citizen. The people marching towards our border will never love our country. They are being paid to destroy it. Look at their actions, their demographics, and how they shamelessly use children. A trek like this will take 67 days walking 25 miles a day. They are arriving before midterm elections, being fed and supported by the left.

WAKE UP AMERICA!!! DON'T LET THE FOX INTO THE HENHOUSE!!!

U.S. Attorney: Report disaster fraud

Story Submitted

In the aftermath of Hurricane Michael, the United States Attorney's Office for the Northern District of Florida encourages Floridians to be mindful of the potential for fraud in disaster situations and report it to the National Center for Disaster Fraud (NCDF).

The Department of Justice established the NCDF in the wake of Hurricane Katrina when billions of dollars in federal disaster relief poured into the Gulf Coast region, which opened opportunities for criminals to exploit people during vulnerable times. The NCDF, a national coordinating agency within the Department's Criminal Division, operates a call center at Louisiana State University, in Baton Rouge, La., and serves as a centralized clearinghouse for disaster fraud complaints and information relating to both natural and man-made disasters. The NCDF seeks to improve and further the detection, prevention, investigation and prosecution of fraud related to natural and man-made disasters, and to advocate for victims of such fraud. More than 20 federal, state and local agencies participate in the NCDF, which allows them to forward on complaints to the appropriate agency for investigation.

Contact the National Disaster Fraud Hotline toll-free by phone at (866) 720-5721, by fax at (225) 334-4707, or by e-mail at disaster@leo.gov. The telephone line is staffed by live operators 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Learn more about the NCDF at www.justice.gov/disaster-fraud.

Christopher P. Canova, U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Florida, said: "Fraudsters will use every available opportunity, including the chaos and suffering caused by disasters, for their own gain. Hurricane Michael has destroyed many areas in the Florida Panhandle, and North Floridians are now in great need. My office works with the NCDF and our local, state and federal law enforcement partners to prosecute individuals who exploit the charitable spirit of Americans or claim disaster assistance to which they are not entitled."

Since Hurricane Michael's landfall, many people are left without food, water or shelter, and are experiencing devastating damage to life and property. Unfortunately, criminals are ready to take advantage of victims before, during and especially after a natural disaster. They are looking to strike those at their most vulnerable time.

Georgia man sentenced to 120 months for attempted enticement

Story Submitted

Frantisek Pribyl, 49, of Snellville, Ga., was sentenced to 120 months in prison recently after being convicted on May 23 of attempted enticement of a minor and travel with intent to engage in illicit sexual conduct. The sentence was announced by Christopher P. Canova, United States Attorney for the Northern District of Florida. In February 2017, undercover investigators conducted "Operation Cupid's Arrow" to identify individuals seeking to engage in sexual activity with minors. Pribyl responded to a Craigslist advertisement in which an undercover officer posed as the mother of a 14-year-old girl and then as the daughter. Over the course two days, Pribyl continued his conversation with the "girl" via e-mail, discussed sexual activity with her over e-mail and during a controlled telephone call, and traveled more than 250 miles to Tallahassee to meet her to have sex. Pribyl was arrested after arriving at the designated meeting location.

The United States Attorney Canova said: "Together with our law enforcement partners, we will continue to investigate and prosecute child predators through online undercover operations to protect innocent children and keep our communities safe," said Canova.

"Like the other suspects in Operation Cupid's Arrow, Frantisek Pribyl had a strong desire to have sexual relations with children," said Tallahassee Special Agent-in-Charge Mark Perez. "We will continue to investigate and arrest criminals who want to hurt our children."

"While this predator thought he was going to victimize a young girl, he found law enforcement officers instead," said HSI Tampa Special Agent-in-Charge James C. Spero. "This case highlights the importance of the North Florida Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force and our role in keeping our communities safer."

The case was investigated by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, the Panama City Police Department, the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement Homeland Security Investigations, the U.S. Marshals Service and the North Florida Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force. The case was prosecuted by the Assistant United States Attorney Christopher J. Thielemann.

While compassion, assistance and solidarity are generally prevalent in the aftermath of natural disasters, unscrupulous individuals and organizations also use these tragic events to take advantage of those in need. Examples of illegal activity being reported to the NCDF and law enforcement include:

- Impersonation of federal law enforcement officials;
- Identity theft;
- Fraudulent submission of claims to insurance companies and the federal government;
- Fraudulent activity related to solicitations for donations and charitable giving;
- Fraudulent activity related to individuals and organizations promising high investment returns from profits from recovery and cleanup efforts;
- Price gouging;
- Contractor fraud;
- Debris removal fraud; and
- Theft, looting and other violent crimes.

The public should apply a critical eye and exercise due diligence before trusting anyone purporting to be working on behalf of disaster victims. They should also exercise the same care before giving contributions to anyone soliciting donations on behalf of disaster victims and be extremely cautious before providing personal identifying or financial information to anyone, especially those who may contact you after a natural disaster. Solicitations can originate from emails, websites, door-to-door collections, mailings and telephone calls and similar methods. People who suspect fraud, waste, abuse or mismanagement involving disaster relief operations, or believe they have been the victim of fraud from a person or organization soliciting relief funds on behalf of disaster victims are encouraged to call the Center.

Numerous U.S. Attorney Offices in districts impacted by recent hurricanes have established task forces comprised of local, state and federal agencies in their respective areas to combat disaster fraud.

The church will be having their annual Fall Festival on Saturday, Oct. 27, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. There will be fun activities for young and old alike, including hay rides, games and much more. The Madison Church of God is located at 771 NE Colin Kelly Hwy., in Madison.

Trick-or-Treat in the Street next week

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Halloween is less than a week away and the Madison Police Department (MPD) is excited to host Trick-or-Treat in the Street, on Wednesday, Oct. 31, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Calling all ghosts and goblins, the annual downtown trick-or-treat event will take place in Downtown Madison, south of US Hwy. 90. The event is free to the public and gives a safe place for kids to celebrate Halloween.

During the event, MPD will be hosting a costume judging contest for participants ages infant to 12 years old. To enter the contest, visit MPD's booth, which will be located at the intersection of Range Ave. and Pinckney St. on Halloween.

Any individual, business or organization can register to give out candy! Call or stop by the MPD to sign up. You can also call MPD at (850) 973-5077. Locations of tables will be on a first-come, first-serve basis on the day of the event. Locations will not be assigned. MPD is located at 310 SW Rutledge St., in Madison.

Hometown Veteran

Alan Androski

Commander Alan Androski, a retired reservist since 2009, looks back on his time both in the reserves and active duty. Born in Tyrone, Penn., Androski received an appointment to the United States Naval Academy (USNA), where he graduated in 1988 with a Bachelor's degree in Naval Architecture.

Androski did not attend basic military training; however, during his time at the USNA, he completed rigorous training, similar to the kind most servicemen and women undergo. Androski took part in surface warfare officer training, engineering officer training and damage control assistant training, all taking place in Newport, R.I.

Androski's first duty station was on the U.S.S. Paul, out of Mayport, Fla. Other duty stations and deployments include joint operations and the exercises department at the Naval European Command in London; Commanding Officer of the Reserve Detachment for the U.S.S. Klakring, stationed in Mayport, Fla.; and Commanding Officer of Reserve Personnel Mobilization Team at the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville. Androski left active duty in 1992 as a Lieutenant; however, he enlisted into the reserves, of which he retired in 2009 as a commander.

Androski has been a math teacher for 23 years in the Madison County School District. He is married to Christy Davis and they have two children: Leah and Sarah. "You will meet challenging times in life," said Androski. "But always do your duty – work hard, do your best and respect people around you."

The Bush Wealth Advantage

Our column, "The Bush Wealth Advantage" is our way of giving back to the community with all sorts of insights, relevant news, and practical wealth planning strategies.

Why Medicare Should Be Part of Your Retirement Planning

The premiums and coverages vary, and you must realize the differences.

Medicare takes a little time to understand. As you approach age 65, familiarize yourself with its coverage options, their costs and limitations.

Certain features of Medicare can affect health care costs and coverage. Some retirees may do okay with original Medicare (Parts A and B), others might find it lacking and decide to supplement original Medicare with Part C, Part D, or Medigap coverage. In some cases, that may mean paying more for senior health care per month than you initially figured.

How much do Medicare Part A and Part B cost, and what do they cover? Part A is usually free; Part B is not. Part A is hospital insurance and covers up to 100 days of hospital care, home health care, nursing home care, and hospice care. Part B covers doctor visits, outpatient procedures, and lab work. You pay for Part B with monthly premiums, and your Part B premium is based on your income. In 2018, the basic monthly Part B premium is $134; higher-earning Medicare recipients pay more per month.

You also typically shoulder 20 percent of Part B costs after paying the yearly deductible, which is $183 in 2018.

The copays and deductibles linked to original Medicare can take a bite out of retirement income. In addition, original Medicare does not cover dental, vision, hearing care, prescription medicines or health care services outside the U.S. It pays for no more than 100 consecutive days of skilled nursing home care. These out-of-pocket costs may lead you to look for supplemental Medicare coverage and to plan other ways of paying for long-term care.

Medigap policies help Medicare recipients with some of these copays and deductibles. Sold by private companies, these health care policies will pay a share of certain out-of-pocket medical costs (i.e., costs greater than what original Medicare covers for you). You must have original Medicare coverage in place to purchase one. The Medigap policies being sold today do not offer prescription drug coverage. A monthly premium on a Medigap policy for a 65-year-old man may run from $150-250, so keep that cost range in mind if you are considering Medigap coverage.

In 2020, the two most popular kinds of Medigap plans – Medigap C and Medigap F – will vanish. These plans pay the Medicare Part B deductible, and Medigap policies of that type are being phased out due to the Medicare Access and CHIP Securities and advisory services offered through LPL Financial, a Registered Investment Advisor, member FINRA/SIPC. The opinions voiced in this material are for general information only and are not intended to provide specific advice or recommendations for any individual. Bush Wealth Management and LPL Financial are separate entities.

Reauthorization Act. Come 2019, you will no longer be able to enroll in them.

Part D plans cover some (certainly not all) prescription drug expenses. Monthly premiums are averaging $33.50 this year for these standalone plans, which are offered by private insurers. Part D plans currently have yearly deductibles of less than $500.

Some people choose a Part C (Medicare Advantage) plan over original Medicare. These plans, offered by private insurers and approved by Medicare, combine Part A, Part B, and usually Part D coverage and often some vision, dental, and hearing benefits. You pay an additional, minor monthly premium besides your standard Medicare premium for Part C coverage. Some Medicare Advantage plans are health maintenance organizations (HMOs); others, preferred provider organizations (PPOs).

If you want a Part C plan, should you select an HMO or PPO? About two-thirds of Part C plan enrollees choose HMOs. There is a cost difference. In 2017, the average HMO monthly premium was $29. The average regional PPO monthly premium was $35, while the mean premium for a local PPO was $62.

HMO plans usually restrict you to doctors within the plan network. If you are a snowbird who travels frequently, you may be out of the Part C plan's network area for weeks or months and risk paying out-of-network medical expenses from your savings. With PPO plans, you can see out-of-network providers and see specialists without referrals from primary care physicians.

Now, what if you retire before age 65? COBRA aside, you are looking at either arranging private health insurance coverage or going uninsured until you become eligible for Medicare. You must also factor this possible cost into your retirement planning. The earliest possible date you can arrange Medicare coverage is the first day of the month in which your birthday occurs.

Medicare planning is integral to your retirement planning. Should you try original Medicare for a while? Should you enroll in a Part C HMO with the goal of keeping your overall out-of-pocket health care expenses lower? There is also the matter of eldercare and the potential need for interim coverage (which will not be cheap) if you retire prior to 65.

Discuss these matters with the financial professional you know and trust in your next conversation.

Adoptables: Ava and Daisy

Ava, a six-and-a-half-year-old black lab mix has been in the shelter since she was nine-weeks-old. Ava was first adopted in September of 2017 to be a house dog, however, she liked the outdoors too much and was brought back to the shelter just two months later. At first, Ava is skiffish around everyone but is willing to love and be loved. You are encouraged to go meet Ava today!

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Ava and Daisy are up for adoption at the Suwannee Valley Humane Society and you could be their next forever family. Are you interested in meeting them? The Suwannee Valley Humane Society is a no-kill, not-for-profit facility that provides a safe place for the animals of Madison County to live until they find their forever homes.

The center, located at 1156 SE Bisbee Loop, in Lee, can be reached at (850) 971-9904. The Humane Society is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. You can also make adoption appointments outside of normal business hours by calling the number listed above.

For more information on adoptions, volunteering opportunities or current donation needs, log onto suwanneevalleyhumaneociety.us. You can also visit the Suwannee Valley Humane Society on Facebook.

Call the Suwannee Valley Humane Society today to set up an appointment to meet and play with these two animals who are eager to be loved. Adoption fees are $100 each, which includes feline leukemia test, spay/neutering, booster shots, deworming and microchipping when they are adopted.

Daisy, a one-year-old tortoiseshell cat, has been in the shelter literally half of her life and is attentive, curious and friendly. Daisy's one-of-a-kind gentle personality is sure to make for a good companion. Could you be her next human to love on?

NFCC announces support for panhandle colleges

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

In the wake of the devastation caused by Hurricane Michael on Wednesday, Oct. 10, Gulf Coast State College (GCSC) in Panama City, Fla., and Chipola College, in Marianna, were both badly damaged by Hurricane Michael. North Florida Community College (NFCC) has recently announced their support and stands with both colleges as they rebound from this devastating storm.

NFCC joins the Florida College System and Chancellor Madeline Pumariega in support of GCSC and Chipola College's recovery efforts.

To contribute to the relief efforts, the GCSC Foundation is currently accepting donations for the hurricane relief fund. Log onto donate.gcccfoundation.org/donatenow. "Hurricane relief" can be found in the donation designation.

More hurricane resources and information can be found at floridadisaster.org/info.

Holidays are coming: Buy your wreath today

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

As Halloween draws near, that only means that Thanksgiving is coming, which in turn means that Santa Claus is getting ready to make his long-awaited journey throughout the world by making a list and checking it twice. What better way to prepare for the holidays than by buying a handmade wreath, presented by the senior citizens of Madison County?

The wreaths come in different sizes and colors and have many different decorations adorning the creation. There is quite the variety to choose from! Small wreaths are $13, and large wreaths range from $20 to $30.

If you're interested in buying a wreath, place your order with Crystal Meehan or Claudia Goodman at (850) 973-4241. You may also place your order at the offices of the Senior Citizens Council of Madison County, located at 1161 SW Harvey Greene Dr., in Madison. Happy Holidays!

Need to prepare your car for the fall season?

Greene Publishing, Inc. believes in the importance of shopping local. We strive to advocate for downtown businesses in Madison, as they are the backbone of our community. Every week in the Downtown Business Spotlight, we will showcase a small business that plays a vital role in the Madison neighborhood. Keep an eye out for this section to learn about interesting local businesses you can support by shopping local!

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

The family business began in Rochester, N.Y., some 70-plus years ago. Today, Paul Cucinella and his family help run the best pizzeria in Downtown Madison: Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria, located at 201 SW Rutledge St., in Madison. They recently expanded, opening a second location in Perry, Fla.

Selling anything from pizzas, wings and subs to salads and calzones, Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria has been open for nine years and "as long as it is with the right operators, I don't see a lifespan," said Paul Cucinella.

Born in Rochester, N.Y. and formerly of St. Augustine, Fla., Paul Cucinella is proud of what kind of business he has brought to both Madison and Perry. "You have to find your passion, work hard and be honest," said Cucinella about being successful as a new business owner. "It all starts with a solid business plan. I look at franchises and study."

Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria offers a variety that isn't found everywhere. Since beginning the pizzeria in Madison, Cucinella has seen a 20 percent growth each year, due to, as he says, the service and quality of his product.

Since coming into Madison, Cucinella has contributed to the area, as he was able to refurbish the apartment/business complex that stands across from the pizzeria which now hosts space for business and apartment tenants. As he has seen the historical aspect and Madison's potential for growth, Cucinella states that he loves to see new businesses start in Madison.

Having been open for just nine years, the Cucinella family has seen what success is like in Downtown Madison. Enjoying Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria and contributing to the success of Downtown Madison, owner Paul Cucinella says he sees no lifespan for the brick oven pizzeria.

In July, Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria was a campaign spot for Rick Scott, who is currently running for United States Senate. Just days after, Cucinella's was filmed by Do Good Media, showing a behind-the-scenes look of how their pizzas are made.

Paul, married to Deborah Cucinella, has four children: Ryan, Sean, Angela and Daniel. Assisting at the pizzeria is a family of four: Karon Mazella, Diana Mazella, and Ben and Renee Horton, all of which Cucinella states are very good workers. For more information, call Cucinella's Brick Oven Pizzeria at (850) 973-3388. You can also log onto facebook.com/cucinellasbrickoven.

Paloma Rambana to speak at Kilpatrick Auditorium

Ashley Hunter: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Paloma Rambana is a nationally recognized 13-year-old author from Tallahassee and activist to help raise awareness about the challenges facing visually impaired students between the ages of 6-13.

In Florida, infant-5 years old and children between the ages of 14-18 receive funding to assist in obtaining equipment and mobility training, but children who are 6-13 do not receive any funding assistance.

13-year-old Paloma Rambana is an author and activist out of Tallahassee. As a teenager with impaired vision, Rambana seeks to help other visually impaired youth between the ages of 6-13 receive the funding required to help them receive the equipment and mobility training required to help them learn and function throughout life. On Friday, November 2, Rambana will speak at the Kilpatrick Auditorium to Jefferson County's middle schoolers and interested members of the public.

Rambana started a campaign called "Fund The Gap" to request that the Florida Legislature reexamine the Division of Blind Services (DBS) and offer funding for the unfunded age gap.

Rambana has led rallies, and met with Governor Scott and the Florida legislature to make her dream a reality.

On Friday, November 2, Paloma Rambana will visit Jefferson County through an event arranged by the Monticello Rotary Club.

At 9 a.m., Rambana will speak at the Kilpatrick Auditorium to Jefferson County's middle school students about her dream, her activism and how other young people can achieve their goals.

Rambana has been called an "Inspiring Life Changer" by Oprah Winfrey, "Tomorrow's leader" by Former President Barack Obama, and a "Model of American Spirit" by President Donald Trump.

Rambana's speech will be free and open for public attendance and the Monticello Rotary Club asks that all who attends bring a donation of peanut butter for the UF/IFAS Peanut Butter Challenge.

For more information about this event, contact Mark Kessler at (850) 242-9364 or Angela Gray at (850) 997-3356.

The Kilpatrick Auditorium is located on S. Water St., just past the Jefferson Public Library.

28th Annual Founder's Day sees 2,000 people

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Hickory Grove United Methodist Church welcomed at least 2,000 people during the 28th Annual Founder's Day celebration on Saturday, Oct. 20. As in years past, fun was had, events were enjoyed and life-long memories were made.

Dedicated to the late Bobby Joe Buchanan, Founder's Day kicked off at 8 a.m. with a delicious breakfast, cooked on old wood-burning stoves. During the festivities, Skipper Hair, of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes Outdoor Ministry, featured an archery demonstration, showing God's plan for eternal salvation. Additionally, Hickory Grove United Methodist Church's Pastor Steve McHargue brought the word of God during Founder's Day.

Entertainment was provided by Amber Lee Abbott, Jessica Ratliff and Family, Cady Fender, the Reflectsons and the Williams Family and Reagan. All in attendance were able to enjoy quilting demonstrations, "diggin' for gold" old school house bible lessons, cane grinding, homemade ice cream and Aunt Callie's homemade cakes and venison chili; a tradition started by Bobby Joe Buchanan. The chili was made by Buchanan's son, Michael, with the help of Buchanan's wife, Mary Buchanan.

The art of making cane syrup

Old time sugar cane grinding is alive and well at Founder's Day. Once you grow sugar cane, there is only one way to harvest the juice; with an old-timey cane grinder. The concept of a cane mill is more than 1,000 years old and has changed little over the years. Robert McLeod is pictured as he puts the sugar cane stalks into the mill as Corkey Brandies leads the horse around, in order to turn the mill to grind the sugar cane. Sadie Meyer is enjoying herself as she rides the horse.

Greene Publishing, Inc. Photo by Emerald G. Parsons, October 20, 2018

Sugar cane syrup is made by evaporating cane juice to concentrate the sugar content of the juice. This preparation involves boiling the juice for several hours and making sure to skim the surface of the juice throughout the process. Sean Oliver (left) and Dennis McLeod (right) are pictured as they skim the cane syrup.

Red Ribbon week celebrated nationwide

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

This week, from Sunday, Oct. 21 to Saturday, Oct. 27, schools and individuals alike around the nation have been celebrating Red Ribbon Week, the nation's largest and oldest drug prevention campaign. The theme for Red Ribbon Week 2018 is "Life is your journey, travel drug-free."

According to redribbon.org, Red Ribbon Week focuses on awareness of the killing and destruction caused by drugs in America, advocacy for helping eradicate drug abuse and resources to help prevent drug abuse. Since 1985, Red Ribbon week has touched the lives of millions of people around the world with the mission of leading and supporting families and communities in nurturing the full potential of healthy, drug-free youth.

Weather Modifiers sometimes attempt to turn a hurricane against itself. Flying through a storm's eye, an airplane seeds the turbulent eyewall clouds with particles of silver iodide, transforming water droplets to ice crystals thus releasing heat. The releasing heat disrupts the eyewall causing it to rebuild outward. Extension of the wall slows the storm's winds.

Innovations of the Past: Apollo 11

Mickey Starling: Greene Publishing, Inc.

In 1961, President John F. Kennedy decided the United States should be the first country to put a man on the moon. This directive was placed into the hands of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which pursued bringing Kennedy's desire into reality. Eight years later, Apollo 11 blasted off from Cape Canaveral, in Titusville, Fla., with astronauts Neil Armstrong, "Buzz" Aldrin and Michael Collins aboard. Four short days later, Armstrong stepped foot on the moon, uttering the words, "one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." The "a" is often left out of this famous quote, but Armstrong was adamant that he said, "one small step for a man."

I remember being gradually sucked into the event as it unfolded on television, but I confess a reluctance to care until I realized that all three of the TV stations were carrying it, making me a captive audience. I was too young to have realized that books were something that could actually be interesting. To this day, there are those who question the legitimacy of the landing, citing the fact that there was no air on the moon, but the flag appears to be blowing in the breeze after being planted.

Greene Publishing, Inc. reached out to gain the perspective of locals who remember this famous milestone. We've included some of their memories.

Pam Gentry: "I recall watching on television with my dad. I took a few minutes to step out on the porch and look up at the moon and think about a person being there."

Keith Ruff: "I was salivating and drooling, literally. My first birthday and first birthday cake was coming up in just five more days."

Jacob Bembry: "I remember my daddy waking me up in the middle of the night when I was five years old so I could watch history being made. I have so many memories with my father, like the Nixon resignation, Hank Aaron's 715th home run, troops coming home from Vietnam and sadly, 9/11. All brought to us by the miracle of television."

John Adams: "We were around the old black and white Zenith TV. I remember because my dad had passed in October of 1968 and was not there to watch with us. I remember Neil's famous saying and I am still amazed by the sight of our flag on the moon."

Laurie Rice: "I was seven years old. I remember my parents watching it on CBS."

Cowboys Game Day ... Rivals

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

The Madison County High School (MCHS) Cowboys will face a familiar foe tonight when they take on the Bulldogs of Suwannee County High School in Live Oak. One of the area's oldest rivalries, the annual game actually pre-dates Madison County High School, when the school was simply Madison High School.

The Bulldogs are coming into the game with a 5-3 record and an improved team. "Coach Hall has done a great job of getting things turned around at his alma mater," said MCHS Head Coach Mike Coe. "They have a big [offensive line] and really good skill kids. Their [quarterback] is definitely a play maker and he has a lot of experience as well. They play an attacking style of defense and we will have to play well up front to move the ball with any consistency."

The Bulldogs' offense is led by Tyree Taylor, 5' 10", 205 lbs., a dual-threat quarterback with a strong arm. Between running and throwing the ball, Taylor averages 159 yards per game in offensive output. So far this season Taylor has eight passing and four rushing touchdowns to his credit. The Cowboys' defense will have to find a way to put pressure on Taylor, while respecting his ability to use his legs if receivers are not open.

The game takes place on Friday, Oct. 26 at Suwannee County High School, located at 1314 Pine Ave. SW, in Live Oak, Fla. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. Live play-by-play can be heard on Talk 107.5 FM, or streaming online at talk1075.com.

ACA's Megan Schofill wins region tournament

Rick Patrick: Greene Publishing, Inc.

The accomplishments of Aucilla Christian Academy (ACA) senior golfer Megan Schofill continue to accumulate. Schofill recently shot a 68 to place first for individual qualifiers in the Florida High School Athletic Association Region 1 Class 1A Girls' Golf Tournament at The Links Golf Club, in Sandestin.

On Thursday, Oct. 18, Schofill punched her ticket to the region tournament when she shot a 69 in the District 3 Class 1A Tournament. That score placed Schofill first for individual qualifiers on the district level, at Southwood Golf Course, in Tallahassee.

During her high school career at ACA, Schofill has established herself as one of the top young amateur golfers in the nation. "In the last two years Megan has gone from being a solid high school golfer to being one of the best junior players in the country," said ACA Golf Coach David Jackson.

Schofill will move on to the state championship at the Mission Inn Resort in Howey-in-the-Hills, Fla., Tuesday, Oct. 30 and Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Schofill plans to take her golfing skills to the bluegrass state to play for the University of Kentucky when her high school days are finished. She is the daughter of Billy and Paulette Schofill, of Monticello.

ACA golfer Megan Schofill recently placed first in individual competition at the Region 1 Class 1A tournament in Sandestin, Fla.

Molnar's dream plays out on White Stripe Farm

Greene Publishing, Inc. Photos by John Willoughby, October 22, 2018

Greg Molnar's White Stripe Farm pork operation is very natural and stress-free for his pigs and hogs who live on his land for an average of eight to nine months before being bought and processed. Molnar's way of producing quality pork is making them hearty and keeping them healthy.

John Willoughby: Greene Publishing, Inc.

Greg Molnar, a science instructor by day and a blueberry and pork farmer by mid-evening, has had farming in his DNA for quite some time. White Stripe Farm grows each and every year, largely due to Molnar's aptitude for agriculture.

Molnar holds himself and his farm to high values and standards to provide the best quality products to his customers. Raising naturally-raised, hormone and antibiotic-free pork and naturally grown blueberries, Molnar prides himself on what he does.

A native of Ft. Myers, Fla., Molnar came to Madison in 2004 when he saw an ad in the local newspaper for an instructor position at North Florida Community College. Thinking he wouldn't get the job at first, he applied anyhow and, to his surprise, got the job.

Moving toward a farming lifestyle, Molnar spent the first three to four years making room on his land for the farm he has today and, in approximately 2008, Molnar began growing blueberries. Since then, the operation has grown the last five years, every year. "The demand exceeds the supply," said Molnar.

Located at 958 Rocky Springs Church Rd., in Madison, White Stripe Farm grows southern high-bush and rabbit eye blueberry plants. Over the course of several years, Molnar has planted a variety of species. Their soil, mixed with the natural rain and the season of winter, is what makes their blueberry growth process suitable. Keeping "organic" in the name, Greg uses organic methods of production. The plants start off rather slower than normal, however, once established, the plants thrive in their soil, which is enriched in pine bark and oak leaves from the farm. Berries begin to arrive at the start of May and continue through July.

Epsoma Organic holly-tone provides the nutrients to grow, such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. "Ever year, they get a soybean meal, blood meal and bone meal," said Molnar. "The larger plants probably get three or four cups of that, scattered around the base, and that gives them some nitrogen and phosphorus."

One of the most common responses to Molnar from customers who have bought blueberries from White Stripe Farm is signifying the obvious taste of freshness. According to Molnar, a customer can put an order in on Monday and have the blueberries on Tuesday. "Freshness is the key," said Molnar. "How long has it been off the vine? Every day longer, some of the flavor is gone."

After blueberries have been picked and have not been sold within 48 hours, preserves are made in a four-ingredient package, including a squeeze of lemon, cane sugar and pectin. "We pick them when they need to be picked," said Molnar. "If I couldn't make preserves, I'd be in trouble because sometimes I've got five gallons of blueberries I can't sell."

Blueberries can either come in one pint, one quart or one gallon. One pint of blueberries will cost the consumer $4, a quart of blueberries are sold for $7 and one gallon of blueberries will cost $26.

Approximately 50 bushes produce many blueberries on White Stripe Farm. If the blueberries that have been picked have not been sold within 48 hours, the blueberries are made into preserves.

Additionally, Molnar has a number of pigs and hogs on his farm. Uniquely enough, White Stripe Farm pigs are raised in a system which is not common in commercial productions; allowing the animals to interact and grow without being cramped and stressed in a concrete cell which measures about three by eight feet. According to Molnar, stress creates tougher meat with less flavor, which is what customers do not want. "We've been selling pork for six years," said Molnar. "I've got a little customer base in South Florida and in Valdosta Ga."

A normal life cycle for a pig on White Stripe Farm is generally eight to nine months and Molnar believes that leaner pork is different from the heavier pork that he raises. Corn, which gives energy, and soybeans, which provide protein, are what Molnar feeds his pigs. Harris Farms, of Madison, provides Molnar his corn. "Our pigs are going to be heavier than what is sold at market because it's very inefficient from a feed standpoint to fatten. I think the flavor's in fat. My pigs will have a little more fat on them at the time of slaughter which, I think, is synonymous with flavor. Clean fat is the kick."

Currently, Molnar sells whole hogs and half-hogs, with processing. However, some customers choose to buy the hog and have it processed themselves. Currently, a whole hog costs $400, whereas a half hog costs $225. Of course, additional fees can be charged for processing.

"Most of what goes on out here is a hobby but, at the end of the day, my goal is to make money. It goes from me to you, there is no middle man. I can make money and you can get a great product at a decent price," said Molnar.

Molnar has two children: Seth Molnar, 21, and Atticus Molnar, 16, who have been instrumental in helping and developing White Stripe Farm. Molnar also has a three-year-old helper, Jase, who is Molnar's grandson. More information can be found by logging onto whitestripefarm.com.

NEW MOVIES IN THEATERS

No trick here, just a return that's a treat By Paul Hall

Michael Myers. The name itself strikes fear in fans of the horror genre. He's spoken of alongside the likes of Freddy Krueger, Jason Voorhees and Norman Bates as one of the most memorable horror film villains in history. Now, 40 years removed from the original film, "Halloween" is back and so is Michael.

Haddonfield is a community that has never forgotten the night Michael unleashed a killing spree upon it. While Laurie Strode (Jamie Lee Curtis) made it out alive, she also has never forgotten. She has isolated herself in what can be called nothing less than a compound, and seems prepared for the apocalypse, or at least the return of the boogeyman.

Michael has been in an institution for years and is about to be transferred to a new facility, but that has never gone well, has it? When Michael is free, what will happen to the rest of Haddonfield?

Laurie has always prepared her daughter Karen (Judy Greer) for the return of the boogeyman. Laurie was so intense in her preparation that the relationship became fractured, and Karen was removed from the household at a young age. As Laurie's granddaughter Allyson (Andi Matichak) prepares for Halloween, she wants Grandma to be a part of her National Honor Society induction.

Laurie knows she needs to finish Michael and end the grip of terror that he has held on her life. But can she finish him, or is Michael's newest rampage destined to eliminate Laurie and her entire family?

The '80s slasher film makes a return with the newest "Halloween," and it is a welcome one. Director David Gordon Green and all those involved have made a film that is scary and tense. While creating the atmosphere, the writing team is able to pay homage to the original, work in some humor and introduce us to a new generation of Laurie's family -- all welcoming aspects of the film.

I loved seeing Curtis back in her role as Laurie. She embodies a woman on a 40-year quest for closure to the worst night of her life, and at the height of her strength as a woman.

I was nervous in seeing "Halloween" revisited 40 years later, but I'm happy to say that the iconic John Carpenter-crafted signature theme evokes emotions to this day, and seeing Laurie Strode and Michael Myers again is truly a great experience. When it comes to a horror-movie franchise, "Halloween" delivers all treats and that is no trick.

CONCURRENT NOTICE
NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS
October 26, 2018
City of Madison
321 Southwest Rutledge Street
Madison, FL 32340
850.973.5081

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS
On or about November 14, 2018, the City of Madison will submit a request to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity for the release of Community Development Block Grant funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, to undertake a project to install 2,600 linear feet of replacement sanitary sewer lines to serve homes on Arnold, Hall, Hudson and Walton Streets; provide sewer hookups for 28 low- and moderate-income households on the same four streets; repave Arnold, Hall, Hudson and Walton Streets; replace the Railroad Lift Station on Happy Street and 3,000 linear feet of force main; and install 3,200 linear feet of sanitary sewer line along Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive from Arnold Street to Southwest Bum Gardner Drive. Construction costs include $644,000 Community Development Block Grant funds and $50,000 City Wastewater Enterprise Funds.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT
The City of Madison has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record on file at City Hall, 321 Southwest Rutledge Street, and may be examined or copied weekdays 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

RELEASING OF FUNDS
The City of Madison certifies to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development that Ina Thompson in her capacity as Mayor consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The State's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under National Environmental Policy Act and related laws and authorities and allows the City of Madison to use the Community Development Block Grant funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS
The Florida Department of Economic Opportunity will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Madison certification for a period of 15 days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Madison; (b) the City of Madison has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations at 24 Code of Federal Regulations part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 Code of Federal Regulations Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by the State; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 Code of Federal Regulations Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures at 24 Code of Federal Regulations Part 58, Sec. 58.76 and shall be addressed to the Florida Department of Economic Opportunity, Community Development Block Grant Program, Mail Station 400, 107 East Madison Street, Tallahassee, FL 32399-6508. Potential objectors should contact the City of Madison to verify the actual last day of the objection period.
