Bio-refinery idea revisited

By MATHEW PELLEGRINO

mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

There was more discussion on a proposed Jay bio-refinery plant after a month of delay at Monday morning's Santa Rosa County commission meeting.

The proposed plant was drawn up by Integrated Energy Partners, an Orlando based company that would utilize local farmer's crops whether they are alive or dead to create alternative fuels.

The plant, which would be built in the Jay Industrial Park, would bring an estimated 30 jobs to the area.

Rodney Higgins with IEP spoke to commissioners on July 19 about the need for the plant in the area.

"I have been in contact with a number of farmers who like the idea," Higgins said at the July meeting.

Those farmers he said liked the idea of bringing the plant to the area. The processing center would take alive or expired plants and utilize them as bio fuel.

"I heard you all had a bad rain a few years back ... While those crops may have suffered, we can use the residue from those crops for bio-fuel," Higgins said

Reward offered in 2007 drowning

By BILL GAMBLIN

news@srpressgazette.com

A $5,000.00 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction in the February 2007 death of 21 year-old Joshua Whittier.

Whittier's mother, Melody Schmitt, has yet to believe her son drowned accidentally after his body was found between Juana's Pagoda and the Navarre Beach Bridge on Feb. 18 following a Mardi Gras celebration.

"We hope and pray that this generous reward will help give someone the courage to come forward," Schmitt said.

To report information, call the anonymous Fair Justice Foundation tip line at 206-312-7399 or e-mail tips to: tips@fairjusticefoundation.org.

According to the Fair Justice Foundation, a pack of cigarettes and a bottle of Corona beer were close by and his wallet was found empty a bit farther up the beach. Whittier's state identification was located in a truck belonging to the brother of a police officer. That brother has since left the state.

The FJF also states there were scrapes on Whittier's chin, hands and knees that are consistent with being pulled by his feet along with the drag marks found in the sand that lead to where his body was eventually discovered.

The Santa Rosa County Sheriff's office ruled the death an accidental drowning in May 2007. Schmitt contends that's not

Santa Rosa mothers get bundles of information for bundles of joy

Story and photos by MATHEW PELLEGRINO
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Mothers and babies alike rejoiced Saturday morning when the Healthy Start Coalition of Santa Rosa County threw a baby shower for all of the new and expecting mothers in the area.

The third annual Healthy Start Baby Shower kicked off last Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. inside the Santa Rosa County Auditorium.

The informational session made available 36 booths and eleven different educational stations for parents in the area.

"Escambia County started holding this years ago," said Martha Zimmermann executive director of Healthy Start. "It got so popular we started holding one here."

The event, which drew in nearly 650 people last year, drew in hundreds Saturday morning, many of who wanted to get out of the heat.

One of those people was Melissa Herndon who brought her two infant sons Curt and Josh Herndon.

"We've been to a lot of other baby showers," said Herndon as she strolled around her two sons. "These are my husbands first kids, so a lot of this information will help us."

The shower was mainly for pregnant women or parents of infants up to 12 months old who live anywhere in Santa Rosa County. Friends and family members were also encouraged to

SWAT unit arrests Milton man on aggravated battery charge

By BILL GAMBLIN

news@srpressgazette.com

Thursday morning Santa Rosa County deputies responded to Pearson Road and Avalon Boulevard concerning an injured female who had been discovered by a passing motorist.

After interviewing the victim, who has not been identified by Sgt. Scott Haines, Kyle Jackson Burns, of Windover Street in Milton was arrested by the Santa Rosa County SWAT unit without incident.

Burns, 25, was charged with domestic violence battery by strangulation, a third degree felony, and domestic violence aggravated battery, a second degree felony for allegedly beating his girlfriend in the head and strangling her at a residence on Windover Street in Milton.

While the victim was trauma alerted to Sacred Heart Hospital, deputies turned their concern to the lady's four year old son who was still in the residence with Burns.

Deputies could not make contact with Burns, according to Haines and while this was going on, another deputy was preparing an arrest warrant for Burns.

The SWAT unit was called to the scene due to the fact a four year old child was present in the home and that Burns has previous law enforcement experience according to Haines.

When SWAT made entry into the home they found Burns and the child asleep.

Burns was arrested and remains lodged in the Santa Rosa County Jail without bond and the victim remains at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Burns was a former Detention Deputy at the Santa Rosa County Jail from Sept. 2006 to May 2008, when he voluntarily resigned. He was also serving as a Reserve Deputy with the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office until this past September.

In September he was placed on suspended status for medical issues. The Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office will not release the medical issues do to privacy concerns.

Currently Burns was not serving in any kind of law enforcement capacity when the incident occurred.

Speak OUT

Monday, 1:07 p.m.

This is Wayne. I would think it is one of the responsibilities of a newspaper to inform the public when a danger exists. I suggest Matthew Foote would fall into the realm of a danger to children and pets. You should print his home address in Gulf Breeze. Also I want to know what happens to him.

Editor's note: We treated Matthew Foote as we would anyone else charged with a crime.

Monday, 12:11 p.m.

This is Billy. I am giving Santa Rosa County a wake up call about the county commission race. I want you to remember who purchased the land from Bill Pullum. We need to get these yahoos out. They spent all of that money and only were loaned the right of ways. We will have to buy them next at another exorbitant price. Get them out of there while we still have money in the county coffers.

Monday, 5:19 a.m.

Hello this is Marian. The plans for the 21-acre park with trails, a fishing pier, and etc., at the old Bagdad Land and Lumber Co., site is wonderful. A boat launch for all size and types of boats should be built on Pond Creek as well. It would be beneficial and appreciated by all boat owners.

Sunday, 3:54 p.m.

I want to Speak Out. I hate to see the Arizona Immigration Law against the Hispanics. Three years ago a lady almost had her baby in the streets while running from the law. This country needs to be more generous and leave the people here alone.

Sunday, 12:46 p.m.

Hello, I am Betty, or now-law-abiding Betty. I was on my way to exercise class a few days ago humming along with the radio and not paying attention. My attention was brought back to where it was supposed to be by the flashing blue lights of one of Milton's finest. I was driving 39 in a 25 mile per hour zone. With all the courtesy and patience the officer took the appropriate action in my case, and now my reminder is taped to the dash of my car. Please slow down.

Saturday, 12:41 p.m.

Hello this is Dudley calling about the attack on John McCain in Wednesday's Press Gazette. Dale should do his homework before making such outrageous accusations. McCain's father was a Navy Admiral serving in Panama and prepared to defend our country against any enemy. I wonder who Obama's father was serving: al-Qaida or the Taliban? In any event, I am sure McCain would produce a certified birth certificate if asked to do so.

Saturday, 11:05 a.m.

To the lady who agreed with Alice about the fawns being killed, here is a number in Tallahassee you should call and listen to the ignorant laws: Call Deerpoint Lake Officers at 1-888-404-3922. I am forever amazed at the laws and things done behind our backs that we have no say over. That is why I ask you to vote against all incumbents in the state.

Wednesday, 4:50 p.m.

This is Gene. I agree with Bill on the fact we need to vote these people out. But we also need to revise how people like State Representatives are paid. We are paying Joe Scarborough our tax dollars, and he is not even in Washington, D.C., anymore; he is a talk show host. He leaves office but still draws money from us. This is wrong. Santa Rosa, get out and vote.

Wednesday, 4:48 p.m.

Yeah this is for Del. Everybody knew John McCain was born in Panama. His parents were American citizens, and his dad was stationed in Panama when he was born. His father was an officer in the military. Obama, on the other hand, has an American mother, and his father was from another country. He produced a Hawaiian birth certificate without a state seal, which tells me he was not born there. Obama said he agrees with his father's way of thinking. Read the facts.

Immunizations are required for school

Special to the Press Gazette

The Santa Rosa County Health Department would like to remind parents that children must be up-to-date with their immunizations in order enter school.

Students entering the seventh grade must have proof that they have received the Tdap vaccine (tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis). Children older than 4 who are entering pre-K or kindergarten must have completed their 4-year-old shots. Children entering Florida schools for the first time are also required to have a physical.

The health department offers vaccinations on a walk-in basis at all three clinic locations.

Immunizations are free for children through the age of 18.

Parents are requested to bring a copy of their child's shot record with them to the clinic.

School physicals are also available by appointment at the Milton and Midway clinics. The fee is $0 - $50 on a sliding scale based on the family's income. Physicals are not available at the Jay Clinic.

For more information, contact the Santa Rosa County Health Department's Milton location at 850-983-5200 or the Midway location at 850-934-4074.

I grew up on the Gulf Coast. I know these waters. And I'm doing everything I can to clean them up.

Making This Right

- Environmental Restoration
- Health and Safety
- Wildlife

BP has taken full responsibility for the cleanup in the Gulf. And that includes keeping you informed.

Searching For And Cleaning Up The Oil

You may have heard that oil is no longer flowing into the Gulf. But every morning our spotter planes and helicopters continue to search for oil off the coast, heading to areas previously mapped with satellite imagery and infrared photography. If oil is found, they radio down to the ships and boats of all sizes that are supporting the cleanup effort and working to collect the oil. These are local shrimping and fishing boats organized into task forces and strike teams, plus specialized skimmers mobilized from around the world.

We have recovered more than 35 million gallons of oil-water mixture from the Gulf. Other methods have also helped remove millions of additional gallons of oil from the water. We've deployed millions of feet of boom to protect beaches and sensitive wildlife areas.

Hurricane Preparedness

In the event of a hurricane, our first priority is keeping people safe. In coordination with the Coast Guard and local officials, we may suspend operations temporarily but have organized to resume them as soon as possible.

Our Responsibility

We have already spent more than $3.9 billion responding to the spill and on the cleanup, and none of this will be paid by taxpayers. We will work in the Gulf as long as it takes to get this done. We may not always be perfect but we will do everything we can to make this right.

OUR VIEW

Isn't one as bad as the other?

It certainly is amazing how things can be so similar, yet elicit such different reactions.

This past April/May three Pace baseball players were charged with criminal mischief for allegedly damaging a gate in the Stonebrook Subdivision.

Many came unglued when Superintendent Tim Wyrosdick decided to let the legal system take its course with the student athletes.

Then when Pace won the Class 5A State Championship in dramatic fashion, a segment of community became vociferous as it voiced its displeasure with the fact that the three were going to be allowed to play while they awaited adjudication.

Now, we fast forward the clock. Early voting started Monday and, on the ballot, we find three people who could be in trouble with the legal system.

Even more amazing, all three are in the same race.

Ricky Perritt and his wife are facing drug trafficking charges after being arrested by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement with 1,200 pills reportedly being involved.

Next is Greg Brown, II. Brown and his wife, Jennifer, are awaiting Glenn Hess' decision on whether to charge them (in November) for allegedly taking another candidate's political signs.

Then there is Doug Broxson who is facing a charge of placing political signs on the public right of way, which violates state law and county ordinance. Jason Broxson, the candidate's son, is facing charges of video taping the Browns and distributing it.

Earlier this year, when the incident involving the Pace baseball players was at the center of the spotlight, the public's anger could barely be contained. Were the three teens on the Pace baseball team held to a higher standard than these would-be office seekers or has the public simply become so disenchanted with the entire political process?

We say this because, while the situations may be similar, no one has voiced displeasure at the candidates being allowed to continue in the race (as they did when the players were allowed to continue.)

Maybe the public feels this is what it takes to represent at the state capitol.

Either way it is highly irregular to see three candidates in one political race under such a cloud.

The verdict is still out on the three seeking to represent.

But where is the ire and fire about this situation?

Doug Broxson stated, if he gets prosecuted, so should the rest of the candidates who put out signs.

We agree. We also think if one speeder is ticketed, so should every speeder who buzzes through an intersection. Call us silly for thinking everyone should be treated the same.

Unfortunately in this case, these happened to be the ones caught.

If young people are expected to toe the line, shouldn't the same standards apply to those we send to Tallahassee?

Let us know what you think.

VIEWPOINT

The narrow view on The View

A buddy in Memphis e-mailed me the following, which has been described (presumably by men) as the "joke of the year":

"Two women were sitting quietly together, minding their own business."

It explains why The View has been such a daytime TV hit; you just have to listen when women get to gossiping. It is like driving by a car wreck or hearing another couple arguing in the room next door. You just can't help yourself.

It also explains why President Obama chose to appear on the show last week in an attempt to shore up his cratering poll numbers. They have gotten so bad that the NAACP has started referring to him as the "first Hawaiian president."

His appearance on The View marked only the second time a sitting President has appeared on a daytime TV show. However, it did not mark the third time Barbara Walters has appeared on a sitting president.

I feel like I want to rescue Elisabeth Hasselbeck when I see her trying to get in edgewise a sensible word on a show where, like most TV programs, liberals outnumber conserva-

HART TALK

not bring myself to watch, mostly because I felt so sorry for that couch.

Men will watch a show with women in it for only two reasons: They think there is going to be a cat fight or they think someone might get naked. The View falls into the former category, since, except for Elisabeth Hasselbeck, the latter would make us cringe.

The uber-liberal and chalkboard-scratching musings of Joy Behar get on my last good nerve. I am hoping that the cap on the Gulf of Mexico oil spill holds so that BP will try to install one on her next.

Whoopi Goldberg has, surprisingly, come to be a voice of reason on the show, and I like her. She is the Justice Anthony Kennedy of The View, deciding all the tough matters from the middle — like the proper way to moisturize and who wore the best outfit at the Oscars.

Obama did his standard lamenting about all the trouble he inherited, opening with his usual "Blame Bush" shtick. The only non-fawning, legitimate question came from Hasselbeck when she asked him why his stimulus package did not create many jobs. That awkward moment was cut short when Joy Behar rubbed his knee and asked him why his stimulus package is so much bigger and more effective than the Republicans'.

After making more TV appearances and videos than Lady Gaga in his first year interning as President at the White House, Obama has decided to take a different tack in appealing to women. Women viewers and shut-ins, who otherwise would be in the throes of being taken advantage of by the Home Shopping Network or being pitched by a local plaintiff's attorney, are now his target audience. If explaining macroeconomics on The View works for him, he should make a guest appearance on Grey's Anatomy to explain the 2,000-page ObamaCare bill.

He wants to show that he is in touch with the "common" man, but makes no mention of why his wife, Michelle, booked thirty 5-star hotel suites in a ritzy Spanish hotel this week on the taxpayer's dime. We all know the Obamas scorn greed and ostentatious spending — by others.

It was a frenzied week for the cast of The View. Between "Teen Beat" heart-throb Obama being on the show and the Chelsea Clinton nuptials, they had to be in People Magazine-mode overload.

Hard-hitting questions about the Clinton wedding, like what Bill and Hillary told the newlyweds about the secret to a long and successful marriage, needed to be answered on The View. I think they told Chelsea the keys are separate homes in different states, long diplomatic trips overseas, and very loyal Secret Service agents who were preferably ex-Arkansas State Troopers.

Sadly, too many Americans are watching The View, ET and American Idol to make an informed decision on whom to vote for in elections, which explains Obama's victory and a Congress controlled by the Democrats since 2006.

A heart felt thanks

I want to say my heartfelt thank you to the Santa Rosa County Sheriff department and Deputy Lewis for the quick action and response to a burglary at my home on July 27.

Within 36 hours they had made an arrest and my property was returned to me.

I would like to give a special thank you to Deputy Lewis. She understood how upset I was over the personal property that had been taken even though it had no monetary value.

She assured me that she would do everything possible to recover the items and she did personally return those items to me intact.

This letter is also to let the Santa Rosa residents know what an excellent Sheriff's Department we have.

An offer they couldn't refuse

While I realize that this letter will not reach those it is addressed to, it is possible it will reach someone who thinks what is suggested will or may work.

For creditability purposes, I have been accused of being to the right of Genghis Kahn and Atilla the Hun. I left the Republican Party in November of 1998.

The following could have been done in 2001/2002 and still could be done to solve the disaster the un-constitutional military action is now in Afghanistan.

First, Identify the top 50 warlords in Afghanistan and the town and villages in their area. Offer the warlords $10,000 a month to the warlord to do as he wishes, $10,000 a month in basic food supplies, i.e. rice, beans, wheat, corn, cooking oil, and have all of it delivered by air to the towns and villages.

Second, the warlords must agree to eliminate all Al Qaeda from their area, to stay out of control of the food distribution in their area, and to completely do away with the abuse of the females in their area.

Third, the warlords must also agree that all of the above can be checked out monthly and if number two has been violated then number one will cease.

Total cost yearly for all of this plus the food delivery cost is some $12,000,000 a year.

No more U.S. deaths. If your organization is tied to the "military industrial complex" so you cannot consider this then I feel for you.

Discount gas pumps up spirits

By MATHEW PELLEGRINO
mpellegrino@spressgazette.com

The word "discount" has grown to be such a pretentious part of people's vocabulary in the current economy that when someone hears that and the word "gasoline" in the same sentence, people respond promptly.

And that's what the community did when members of the Oasis Youth Group from the First Assembly of God in Milton took funds they would usually save up to do missionary work and put it back into the community by offering 50 cents off the price of a gallon of gasoline at The Other Place convenience Store in Milton on July 31.

The divulgence, which ran from 10 a.m. to noon had cars lined up on Dogwood and Willard Norris Road, where the gas station was located.

"They usually take that money to other countries, but they said they wanted to keep it here and give back to the community," said Donna Stephens who co-owns the store with her husband.

Oasis Youth Group earned money for the event by doing work within the community among other projects they do to help out the local homeless.

"This was the first time we've ever done something like this," said Fred Rogers, senior pastor at the First Assembly of God. "We felt like there were a lot of people that were hurting because of the economy and the oil spill."

Not only did drivers get a taste of what Rogers estimates was a $2.09 unleaded gallon of gasoline, they also received a free windshield cleaning and the teen group even pumped gasoline for the motorists.

"They did all that and provided water for the people waiting in line," Rogers said. "They serviced the people the best way that they could."

The church had been in the works with Stephens and her husband for some time according to Donna. And according to the storeowner, they had plans to do the gas discount again in the future.

"They had a lot more money left over than they had anticipated," Stephens said.

According to Rogers, the youth group sold an estimated 1,800 gallons of gasoline within the two-hour limit.

In the past, Rogers said the youth groups would take the money they spent on the project to do missionary work in Latin America.

Stephens said she and her husband were crossing their fingers when the youth group showed up Saturday morning for the big event.

"We had just had our new gasoline tanks installed and finished the day before, and they (First Assembly of God) did the program the next day," Stephens said. "They cut it close, but it worked out," Stephens said.

Right now Stephens and Rogers said there isn't a set date for a future discount day, but said one was currently in the works.

"We want to start reinvesting in the community. We feel this area deserves it," Rogers said.

Santa Rosa Medical Center receives donation for babies

Special to the Press Gazette

Santa Rosa Medical Center has received a donation of baby clothes from Kayleigh Deffley.

Deffley is a 10 year old resident of Gulf Breeze, and is a student at Oriole Beach Elementary. In May she participated in the "Celebrate Mom" essay contest sponsored by a local department store. Upon winning the contest she was awarded a $100 gift card. She used her prize to purchase baby clothes for those in need.

Deffley and her grandmother visited Santa Rosa Medical Center to deliver the gifts.

Deffley enjoys horseback riding and is a member of the Junior Optimist Club and Crochet Club at school.

Her winning essay was about her mom and grandma — they are one in the same. When Def-fley was 28 months old she was adopted by her grandparents. The essay describes how special the relationship is between her and her Grandma/Mom. Deffley was drawn to make her donation to Santa Rosa Medical Center because she was born here over 10 years ago.

The staff at Santa Rosa Medical Center was delighted by Deffley, and is very appreciative of her donation.

Santa Rosa Medical Center CEO Phillip Wright said, "It was a great day at the hospital today to meet such a thoughtful young lady, and her role model, her Grandma. This is truly an example of how young people can make a difference in our community." The donated clothes, including booties Kayleigh crocheted herself, will be given to babies in need who are born at the hospital. Santa Rosa Medical Center is a full service 129-bed modern hospital facility. Located on Berryhill Road in Milton.

SRMC is quickly and easily reached from all points in Santa Rosa County. With nearly 400 associates, over 100 volunteers, and 121 physicians on staff Santa Rosa Medical Center is well equipped to meet all of your healthcare needs.

Pastor Gallups, "someone said they saw a Youtube video you made claiming that September 11th and the Gulf oil spill might be connected, biblically. Could you explain?" S.O. Milton

Dear S.O.

What many people do not know is that our nation's first capital was in New York City - that is where George Washington was sworn in as president on April 30th, 1789. Our second capital was in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and then finally in 1790 it was established in Washington - not as a state but as a separate district. But it was in NYC in April 1789 where the government began with the swearing in of George Washington.

After the inaugural address, Washington, and all the other officials, the Senators, the House of Representatives, the Vice President, all left the place of inauguration, traveled on foot to a small chapel... they went inside for two hours. There they prayed. The little chapel where our GOVERNMENT was started before God is located at the corner of what is now known as Ground ZERO.

The place where our Nation started with its face toward God - many believe is where 212 years later - God brought one of his first harbingers of Judgment upon our nation - the symbol of where the nation turned its back on God...

For 3 months prior to 9-11 - the United States had consistently condemned Israel for its defensive attacks upon the West Bank - the origin of months of Palestinian terrorist incursions in to Israel.

On that fateful day of 9-11 - three related aircraft catastrophes struck the 3 core places of where our nation's government began - NYC - A field in Pennsylvania and in Washington, DC - the Pentagon.

Could it be that God's national judgment on America - began in the same places where our national government began?

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK addressing the connection to the Gulf Coast and the Gulf oil spill.

NOTE - This article is NOT claiming that 9-11 WAS the judgment of God. It only explores correlations and events and then asks the reader to ponder the question.

Resurfacing of Park Avenue complete with ribbon cutting

Special to the Press Gazette

The Santa Rosa County Board of County Commissioners and the City of Milton are celebrating the resurfacing of Park Avenue with a ribbon cutting ceremony August 17 at 9:30 a.m. For the event, parking is available at the Santa Rosa Clean Community System, Inc. located at 6758 Park Ave. in Milton.

The City of Milton and Santa Rosa County Commission joined together to fund the resurfacing of Park Avenue, which included the milling and resurfacing of Park Avenue that connects Dogwood Drive and Alabama Street. The roadway is not only a connector between Dogwood and Stewart Street, but it is also a vital link for Milton High School and Rhodes Elementary School. This project allows the reestablishment of bicycle lanes and cross walks along Park Avenue which improves safety for pedestrians, bicyclers, and school children who use this roadway.

Santa Rosa County Commission funded the milling and resurfacing costs of the project, and the City of Milton funded the cost of raising and repairing of utility manholes and striping the street.

Pace SGA gearing up for conference

By MATHEW PELLEGRINO
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Pace High School's Students Government Association got geared up Saturday morning when they discussed plans for the upcoming Florida Association of Student Councils' state convention.

The convention, which is hosted by a different FASC district every year will be held by District 1 next February, at Pace High School.

Pace High School makes up District 1 along with Washington High School in Pensacola. Different SGA groups from high schools and middle schools around the state of Florida make up FASC districts.

"This is the first time since 1999 District 1 has hosted this event," said District one president and Washington High School student Luke Bosso. "The last one was held at Tate."

Pace High School will host the three-day event in February (18-20) for two days and the last day, the convention will move to Washington High School.

The convention is part of an FASC annual tradition where a district hosts schools from around the state to share and interpret ideas from what each school is doing to better their school.

"We try to find out what different community service projects the different schools do to come up with ideas for our own district," Bosso said.

Delegates from each school will attend general sessions, seminars and workshops during the conference that are used to teach and motivate them to come up with bigger and better ideas for the upcoming or present school year.

"We're aiming to get 250 (students) out this year. We had 200 last year," said FASC executive director Michael Roland, who attended the meeting inside Pace High School Saturday morning.

The cost for the event is $175 per delegate. That includes a trip to NAS Pensacola and a trip to see an IMAX movie.

The theme of the conference is "The Seven Wonders of Leadership". It will be up to the Pace delegates to decide what those seven things are when they host the conference.

The event will also hold an art, photography and writing contest. Delegates will get a chance to showcase their best work in order to demonstrate artful expressions in relation to the conference theme.

"We get to see what other schools are doing," Bosso said. "Some schools do a lot of unique things, so we learn from that."

The room full of FASC members discussed the upcoming plans for the convention among other business Saturday morning.

"The FASC treasurer hosts the state conference every year. And whatever school they are from is where the conference is held," said Pace High School SGA Advisor Selene Sessions.

The FASC held a normal business session before they discussed their plans for the state conference at Pace Saturday morning. The event, Sessions said is no easy ball game.

"It takes a long time to plan it," Sessions said.

To Bosso, that was an understatement. The District 1 president said they have already been prepping for the event since the end of the last conference earlier this year.

"This is a competition between the districts to see what each of them are doing, and what we can do better," Bosso said.

FWC REPORT

This report represents some events the Northwest Region of the FWC handled from July 30 to Aug. 5; however, it does not include all actions taken by the Division of Law Enforcement.

ESCAMBIA COUNTY

Officer Faris Livesay assisted Officers Joe Simpson and John Clark, who were deployed to the Pensacola area for the oil spill response. The officers checked a vessel in Pensacola Bay and discovered the two occupants on board in possession of four egg bearing lobsters. Officer Livesay arrived on scene and issued two notice to appear citations for the violation.

Officer Kenneth Manning assisted a disabled vehicle parked on River Annex Road in Escambia County near Perdido Wildlife Management Area. When Officer Manning approached the driver, he smelled a strong odor of marijuana. The driver admitted possessing less than 20 grams of marijuana. Officer Manning issued a notice to appear citation for the violation.

OKALOOSA COUNTY

A state fisheries and joint enforcement agreement (JEA) detail was conducted by Officers Steve Bartlett, Matt Webb, Andrew Maltais, Espy Letcher, Van Barrow and Investigations.

The detail targeted enforcement of the federal water closure and state regulations. The detail resulted in citations issued for two undersize greater amberjack and one undersize king mackerel. Eight resource warnings and five boating safety written warnings were issued. Six vessels were found fishing in the closed area of federal waters.

Officer Matt Webb responded to a boating accident that occurred in Garnier Bayou involving a 23-foot Nautic Star. The boat had seven occupants on board and was towing a skier. The boat struck a dock causing the dock house to collapse on top of the boat. One of the female passengers was air lifted and transported to Sacred Heart Hospital in Pensacola. The operator and two other passengers were transported to a local hospital in Fort Walton Beach, where Officer Ryan Nelson interviewed the vessel operator and occupants. FWC Investigators attempted to interview the injured female at Sacred Heart Hospital but were unable to due to her injuries. The female passenger sustained several facial fractures and damaged teeth, but no life threatening injuries. The boating accident is still under investigation.

On May 20, 2008, Santa Rosa County Sheriff Wendell Hall met with Schmitt and her spokesman David Craig.

At that meeting Craig said he would provide new details in a written statement.

"Out of concern for this grieving mother we are willing to answer any questions within our ability to do so, in order to help her bring closure to the loss of her son."

According to Marc Ward, Schmitt and Craig have yet to turn over any new information, and that everything they have provided is just speculation.

Officials determined Whittier had levels of alcohol and cocaine in his system that would have impaired his ability to balance, swim, or tread water.

The cocaine level in Whittier's system indicated recent cocaine usage prior to his drowning.

According to Santa Rosa Sheriff's Office Assistant Public Information Officer Marc Ward, "three different agencies, namely the Santa Rosa Sheriff's Office, Medical Examiner's Office, and the First Judicial State Attorney's Office, conducted their own independent investigation into the matter and came up with the same conclusion."

Whittier's friends speculate foul play was involved since there was no fluid in the lungs to support an accident in the water.

According to investigators original report from 2007, the drugs found in Whittier's system corroborate several witnesses' accounts indicating he was extremely intoxicated and refused several people offering him rides home.

Also due to the cocaine in his system, any type of physical exertion in the water in an attempt to stay afloat would have contributed to his death.

The weeks before his death, Whittier signed with Ford Models of Miami, started a new job in Gulfport, Miss., and traveled home to Navarre on the weekends.

In 2009, Melody Schmitt retained the assistance of the seasoned homicide investigation team at the Fair Justice Foundation.

The FJF team has investigated numerous high profile and cold cases such as the Jon Benet Ramsey, Columbine, Charles Manson and the Tate-LaBianca murders just to mention a few.

O.M. Gray, retired Sheriff's Captain and Municipal Court Judge, reports that there are at least 50 newly uncovered pieces of evidence to further support that Joshua's death was no accident.

"We remain fully committed to following this evidence wherever it may lead us in seeking justice for Joshua," Gray said

Robin Sax, a former prosecutor with the FJF and acclaimed author, questioned the cause of death issued by the Santa Rosa Sheriff's Office.

"If this young man had drowned, even in an inch of water, there would have been clear evidence." Sax continued, "Since there was foreign DNA found on the outside of Josh's clothing and the cell phone in his pocket was still operational, it is pretty obvious that something more than an unfortunate accident happened to Josh."

"I applaud Melody's tenacity in seeking justice for her son, the generous reward offered by the unknown donor, the professionals over at the Fair Justice Foundation and the ongoing support of the Gulf Coast Community to demand justice for Joshua."

come to the free event.

Special gift bags were handed out to the first 200 expecting mothers who walked through the doors of the auditorium that morning.

Along with free goodies, there were a number of prizes, refreshments and games throughout the exhibit hall.

The event also hosted a door prize drawing where a lucky person took home a stackable washer and dryer among several other big prizes.

The only way to enter the drawing for the two items was if visitors took a stroll to every vendor booth at the event and got an entrance card stamped for the drawing.

Zimmermann helped hand out the prizes and gifts during Saturday's event.

Natalie Stillings of Milton, a mother came out to the information session, which she said she attended last year.

"I like all of the information they hand out to you," she said.

Helpful information wasn't the only thing being handed out at the baby shower. There were also books, balloons and free refreshments for parents and their children.

Paula Lou Mapoles with the Milton Women's Club handed out books at her booth inside the auditorium.

This was the third year the women's club had attended the event.

"This is part of our 'books for babies' project that we do at the Santa Rosa Medical Center," Mapoles said. "We work together with an educational sorority to hand out books to infants and their parents at the medical center, and now we are bringing it here to share with these mothers."

Carol Robey of Milton came out with her two and a half-year-old daughter Laine to see what was available at the baby event.

"It's kind of nice to get refreshed with the services offered out here," she said.

One of those services was Families Count, which has two offices in Santa Rosa County and one in Escambia County.

Families Count representatives were handing out information on Sudden Infant Death Syndrome at the baby shower.

Ruthmary Miller who was at the Families Count booth said the number of cases of SIDS has been rising, and she felt it was important the organization was there at the event to help encourage mothers to help keep their newborns and infants safe while they are asleep.

"This is very important information for our community...especially for first time parents," Miller said.

BIO-REFINERY from page A1

in July.

Unfortunately commissioners at the time wanted more reassurance that the need for this type of facility was important at this time.

Commission chairman Gordon Goodin said the need for an alternative fuel is not as steady as it was when gas prices were above $4.

Charley Miller, a representative for IEP spoke with commissioners on Monday in order to answer a handful of questions the commission left Higgins with when he left the meeting in July.

"We've met with Jay City Council several times," Miller told commissioners. "If we do not have a lot of participation in this, I feel we can do well without it."

Participation, Miller said that would come from farmers, community members and the Jay Industrial Park.

Miller said if the plant were built, they would not need bio-diesel credits in order to run.

The main source of revenue, Miller said, would be from electricity.

The IEP representative told commissioners Monday that even if farmers were unable to supply the facility with enough crops to run it, IEP could gather the needed material from other sources.

Right now, the IEP representative said they were in the planning stage of the process and do not have an actual cost for the facility as of yet.

IEP came to commissioners in July to assure bondholders that the commission had the company's back before IEP started applying for a $30 million bond to build the facility in Jay.

Miller said the company would have more information for commissioners on Tuesday to bring forward at the Thursday commission regular.

The plant, Higgins told commissioners in July would hire 30 people if it opened, and would have the potential to hire 20 more in the future.

Because county commissioners would have to issue the bonds, they gave IEP more time to bring them more information on the facility before they could move forward with a decision.

Mahan grabs lead at Bridgestone

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — On a day when the two biggest names in golf played like weekend hackers, Hunter Mahan grabbed the lead midway through the final round of the Bridgestone Invitational and refused to let go.

Mahan shot a 6-under 64 on Sunday and made several huge swings down the stretch to hold off Ryan Palmer by two strokes for his third career win and a spot on the U.S. Ryder Cup team.

"I was nervous," said Mahan, a 28-year-old player who took the lead for good with his second straight birdie at the ninth hole. "I wanted it so bad and I was playing so good. I just didn't want to make any bogeys. I didn't want to give them any momentum out there."

From there he played carefully but not conservatively, putting up eight pars and a birdie at the 13th hole.

At the par-5 16th, the signature "Monster" hole at Firestone Country Club, he hit a 5-wood second shot instead of laying up short of the large lake which fronts the green. He didn't think it was much of a gamble.

"The thing was, there was no out of bounds anywhere — that we could see," he said with a laugh. "The only place you couldn't hit it was short, obviously. There's just not a bad spot to be except exactly where I hit it."

Mahan's shot slid right of the green near a flower bed, and was stopped by a bush. He received a free drop, chipped onto the green, lagged a 60-foot putt to 2 feet and then tapped in for par. Two more pars left him at 12-under 268 and capped a huge comeback from a seven-shot deficit after the opening round. He played the final 27 holes in 10 under, without a bogey.

"To win is ... the best feeling in the world," he said. "To do it when you have to, when you're kind of behind and you need to do something special and do it when you need it, to make putts like I needed to, it feels great."

The $1.4 million check will go a long way toward a nice honeymoon when he and girlfriend Kandi Harris, a former Dallas Cowboys cheerleader, get married in January.

Despite Mahan's flawless play on Sunday, the tournament might be remembered for the failures of Tiger Woods and Phil Mickelson.

Woods, a seven-time winner of the Bridgestone, had the worst tournament of his pro career, closing out a dreadful week with a 77 that left him at 298 and tied for next-to-last in the 80-player field. Struggling all week with every aspect of his game, he ended up 18 over, with 25 bogeys or worse, and finished 30 strokes behind Mahan — all career worsts.

Woods, whose world has turned upside down after revelations of marital infidelity, said he wasn't surprised by how poorly he played.

"It's been a long year," he said simply.

With Woods struggling, Mickelson could have moved up a spot to become No. 1 in the world rankings. Instead, he also had an abysmal round, shooting a 78.

"You're only as good as your last performance," Mickelson said after falling from a tie for 10th place all the way to a tie for 46th. "This wasn't very good."

Meanwhile, others did well on a long course which should provide a good snapshot of what it'll be like next week at the PGA Championship at Whistling Straits.

Long has short night as Bodine lengthens point lead

GLADEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Todd Bodine just wants to win, whether it's a close finish or he blows away the field.

Bodine dominated Saturday night at Nashville Superspeedway, leading 91 laps and earning his second victory of the season at the Nashville 200 NASCAR Camping World Truck Series race.

"We did (it) in the style of Germain Racing and just stomped them," said Bodine, who led the last 88 laps.

Bodine extended his series lead over Aric Almirola to 174 points, but said the championship is by no means a given.

"We've just got to go out and keep doing what we're doing," he said. "We don't (need) to worry about everybody else and we'll be just fine. We just can't make mistakes and put ourselves in a hole."

Rookie Austin Dillon, the grandson of car owner Richard Childress, finished second, followed by Almirola.

"We've never, ever really been good here," Almirola said of the 1.33-mile concrete oval. "This is not one of my favorite race tracks. To come out of here with a third-place finish was a good night for us."

Timothy Peters, who led 57 laps early before trouble with a tire after a pit stop, came in fourth.

The third caution of the race triggered tempers when Mario Gosselin was spun by Joe Aramendia along the front stretch on lap 66. Gosselin hit the wall hard and was forced out of the race. After getting out of his truck, Gosselin picked up what looked to be a brake hose laying on the track and threw it at Aramendia's truck as it passed, just missing the roof.

Pensacola's Johanna Long made an early exit in Saturday's race as she was forced into the wall coming off turn four by Narain Karthikeyan on lap three to bring out the first caution of the race.

This marked Long's second start in the Camping World Truck Series, with her first coming at O'Reilly Raceway Park in Indianapolis.

Kyle Busch won the April Nashville truck race, which was his first as an owner. No current Sprint Cup drivers participated in Saturday's event.

WELCOME HOME

Photos by BILL GAMBLIN | Press Gazette

Saturday, several in Milton and Santa Rosa County turned out to welcome home Lt. Commander Pamela (Todesca) Kilmartin, a registered nurse anesthetist who was called up to serve at the Landstuhl Regional Medical Center at Ramstein Air Base in Germany. Kilmartin was welcomed home as she rode along with her husband, Paul, on their Harley Davidson motorcycle to the Blackwater Bistro, a restaurant they co-own. During the welcome home ceremony, Milton Mayor Guy Thompson; Capt. Pete Hall, commander of NAS Whiting Field; Commissioner Don Salter; and Judge Gary Bergosh, an officer in the Marine Reserves, spoke to Kilmartin's service to a country in its time of need.

Above, Pam Kilmartin did the honors of taking down the Mother's Flag, which has symbolized a family member is serving overseas. The flags feature one blue star unless the soldier dies overseas and then the flag features a gold star. The flag had been on display at the bistro until Saturday when Kilmartin had the honor of taking it down. Above right, Paul and Pam Kilmartin were all smiles Saturday as they rode up to a huge welcome at the Blackwater Bistro in Milton. At right, a sign at the Blackwater Bistro said it all Saturday. At far right, Paul Kilmartin welcomes home his wife, Pam, after she served the past year at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany. ## Volunteers help collect school supplies

mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

United Way of Santa Rosa County kicked off its Cram the Van campaign Thursday morning at the Walgreens in Pace and the Wal Mart in Gulf Breeze allowing donors to drop off school supplies that will help families in the area who may not be able to afford school supplies for their children.

Members of the Pace High School Anchor Club, a community service club at the school, came out to the Pace location and held signs along Highway 90 in order to encourage people to donate school supplies.

Cat Country 98.7 FM also came out to provide music to help the volunteers beat the heat.

Tammie Peterson, who works at the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office volunteered not only her time, but her sport utility vehicle to help deliver the school supplies to United Way.

"They always have someone from the sheriff's office volunteer every year," Peterson said. "We also raise money at the sheriff's office and collect supplies for Cram the Van."

Several locations around the Santa Rosa County area, including the Walgreens in Pace, have placed collection boxes inside of their businesses so donors could drop off school supplies.

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF LAND USE AND INTENT TO CONSIDER AN ORDINANCE

The Santa Rosa County Board and Board of County Commissioners will conduct public hearings to consider a change of land use and/or rezoning of land area depicted on the map within this advertisement. The hearing is scheduled as follows:

Board of County Commissioners (to consider adoption of the ordinance):
Thursday, August 26, 2010 at 6:00 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the Santa Rosa County Administrative Center in the Board Meeting Room, 6495 Caroline Street, Milton, Florida. At the public hearing, Board of County Commissioners shall consider the ordinance entitled:

Ordinance No. 1:

AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO SANTA ROSA COUNTY, FLORIDA; AMENDING ORDINANCE 91-24 AS AMENDED; AMENDING THE ZONING DISTRICTS AS DEPICTED IN THE ATTACHED MAPS; APPROVING THE AMENDMENTS TO THE OFFICIAL ZONING MAP OF THE LAND DEVELOPMENT CODE AS DEPICTED IN THE ATTACHED MAPS; AMENDING ORDINANCE 2003-25; AMENDING THE FUTURE LAND USE MAP OF THE SANTA ROSA COUNTY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN; CHANGING THE LAND USE CLASSIFICATIONS AS DEPICTED IN THE ATTACHED MAPS; PROVIDING FOR CODIFICATION; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

Zoning District Amended: from Ag (Agriculture District) to M1 (Restricted Industrial District).

Future Land Use Designation Amended: from Agriculture to Industrial – total approximately 9.65 (+/-) acres.

The proposed ordinance and map may be inspected by the public prior to the above scheduled meetings at the Santa Rosa County Planning Department, 6051 Old Bagdad Highway, Milton, Florida. The agenda and backup documentation will be available via the Meetings & Agendas Page of the County's website at www.santarosa.fl.gov approximately 1 week prior to each scheduled meeting. Interested parties may appear at the meetings and be heard with respect to this proposed ordinance. All interested parties should take notice that if they decide to appeal any decision made by the Santa Rosa County Board of County Commissioners with respect to any matter coming before said Board at said meeting, it is their individual responsibility to insure that a record of proceedings they are appealing exists and for such purpose they will need to insure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record shall include the testimony and the evidence upon which their appeal is to be based.

Santa Rosa County adheres to the Americans with Disabilities Act and will make reasonable modifications for access to this meeting upon request. Please call Santa Rosa County Planning, Zoning and Development Division at (850) 981-7075 or (850) 939-1259 to make a request. For the Hearing-Impaired, 1-800-955-8770 (Voice). # Navarre man dies following weekend crash

Press Gazette Staff Report

NAVARRE — A Navarre man died after the vehicle he was driving crashed Sunday night just west of Serosa Drive.

Jeremy D. Lock, 28, of Navarre, died at 11:24 p.m. Sunday due to the injuries he sustained in the crash.

Just before 6 p.m., Lock's 2001 Chevrolet Sedan crashed into a power pole, according to Tim Cole of the Holley-Navarre Fire Department.

Lock was flown to Baptist Hospital in Pensacola, while Rico D. Christian, 19, of Gulf Breeze was transported to Baptist Hospital in Pensacola.

According to the FHP press release, Lock was traveling west on U.S. Highway 98 and driving lane to lane in a wreckless manor. Lock reportedly lost control of his vehicle and traveled onto the north shoulder where he traveled approximately 122 feet before striking the pole.

The report indicated alcohol was a factor in the crash and that Lock and Christian were not using seat belts at the time of the accident.

The wreck downed power lines and shut down both lanes of U.S. Highway 98 Sunday evening.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol's website, power lines were down across all four lanes, blocking traffic for about 45 minutes.

Study: Florida libraries yield high returns

Special to the Press Gazette

A study recently released by the Haas Center for Business Research and Economic Development, University of West Florida, reveals public libraries return $8.32 in value for every tax dollar received. Santa Rosa County sees a return on investment estimated at $17.02. The ROI figures demonstrate how even a small investment yields an extremely high value for our community. Residents can find Santa Rosa County specific report information and measure their own personal economic ROI when visiting a county library by using the online calculator found at http://haas.uwf.edu/library/county\_data/santa-rosa.htm.

Key findings of the study entitled Taxpayer Return on Investment in Florida Public Libraries (2010), document that Florida libraries contribute significantly to the Florida economy. Economic benefits extend to job creation, generation of Gross Regional Product, and personal income. Specifically:

- For every $3,491 spent on public libraries from public funding sources in Florida, one job (in the economy, not just in libraries) is created.

- For every dollar of public support spent on public libraries in Florida, Gross Regional Product (the value of all goods and services produced in the state) increases by $10.57.

- For every dollar of public support spent on public libraries in Florida, income (wages) increases by $22.97.

When visiting their libraries, public library users generate "halo" spending. This is the result of combining trips to libraries with other activities such as shopping, eating at restaurants, visiting a coffee shop, etc. Spending by library users visiting other places during their trips averages $47.90. Public library users agree the local public library is an essential service to the community. In fact, Florida library users most desire a public library for their street, as compared to a police station, park, job center or elementary school.

The study conducted for the Florida Department of State's Division of Library and Information Services provides an analysis of return on investment at the state level as well as estimates for individual Florida counties and shows Florida's public libraries return on investment increased from $6.54 in 2004 to $8.32 in 2008. The report shows both an estimated ROI for each county's libraries, as well as economic impact results for these libraries' spending in each Florida county. The ROI figures range from a rough estimate of $2.58 for each dollar invested in Lee County to $30.35 for each dollar in Holmes County. It should be noted that these ROI figures do not necessarily reflect upon the efficiency of library operations in that a lower number is "bad" and a higher number "good." Instead, they demonstrate that even a small investment that keeps a library in existence within a community, no matter that community's size, yields an extremely high value to that community.

The study was funded under the provisions of the Library Services and Technology Act, from the Institute of Museum and Library Services. The full report and informational brochure are available at <http://dlis.dos.state.fl.us/bld/roi/>.

SWAP SHOP

Parents swapping for school clothes

The Associated Press

MIAMI — Kelly Trella has found a way to get rid of her 2-year-old son's old clothes: She swaps them.

Trella was looking for a way to clear out her basement when she stumbled upon a magazine article about thredUP, a children's clothes swapping website. She signed up and has been swapping gently used clothes from her Meriden, Conn., home ever since.

"Its cost-effectiveness is terrific. It's really great to have an opportunity to share with folks around the country," she said.

ThredUP launched in mid-April and now has 15,000 members with another 1,000 being added each week. Founder and CEO James Reinhart says the Cambridge, Mass.-based company is trying to attract parents who are buying back-to-school clothes, which, he says, is one of the largest one-shot expenditures for families during the year.

That thredUP even exists is surely driven by the economy, but there are other ways to swap clothes.

The national retail chain Once Upon A Child sells new and gently used products. These days people who once only dropped off clothes are buying them, too, said Dawn Weston, owner of the franchise in Brandon.

"More people are being conservative. They are being conscious of what they spend," she said. "They didn't have to worry about it before. They still want their kids to have those really nice things, but they don't have the bucks to do it."

Online back-to-school swapping was a natural extension of clothing rental sites for grown-ups. At renttherunway.com, a $1,050 Herve Leger dress can be rented for $150, "to give every woman in American access to this Cinderella experience," said co-founder and CEO Jennifer Hyman. Expectant mothers can rent a pretty dress at RentMaternityWear.com.

ThredUP partnered with a Boston charity Cradle to Crayons to give $1 from every swap to the charity to help clothe the children and buy them school supplies.

The site sends 10 empty post office boxes to each customer. The customer browses the website for boxes of clothing. Once a box is found, the customer pays $13 for shipping and the box is sent to them by whoever currently has it. The customer then agrees to list a box of clothing and they're notified when someone picks it so they can send it off.

items interest them based on variables such as gender, size and season. There are no photos of the clothing, so decisions are pretty much based on brands and descriptions.

"The first box I got, I paid $13 total and I got 13 shirts. No stains. No tears. Yeah, they have gone through the wash a couple times," Trella said.

Trella said her son goes to day care full time, so she wants clothes that can get dirty, and the price is right.

"You are only shelling out a small amount of money," she said, "You are giving and you are getting. It's a nice to share."

The basic membership to the site is free; premium is $29.99. The company relies on customer reviews to weed out the people who are giving clothing that is in bad condition.

Redbook Deputy Executive Editor Melanie Mannarino said there is an element of trust involved for the people who use the site. The magazine featured the site in its August issue.

"It's almost friendly and neighborly," she said.

The risk is whether other people will have the same taste in clothing as you do, she said. But, it's not as limited as shopping at garage sales and thrift stores.

Mannarino said the site shows a shift in the American mentality toward saving and conserving.

"Now these clothes are going to go to somebody else who can use them," she said.

Travel planning just got easier — and more fun

ST. PETERSBURG (AP) — One of the best parts of travel happens before leaving home: reading books, checking out websites and watching programs about your destination.

Months before a vacation, I pore over travel guides and ponder possible itineraries. I pester my husband with questions.

Should we do the Amalfi Coast hike, or spend a night in Capri? Is there a production going on at the Naples Opera House? Is Pompeii worth a second visit?

The planning and research usually reaches a fever pitch on the plane. I generally tote a guidebook along; sometimes I buy a Lonely Planet, other times, I check some offerings out of my local library. The only downside, I've found, is lugging those heavy travel books aboard the flight and on the journey.

My upcoming trip to Italy will be different, however. Not only do I have an iPad — which weighs a feather-light 1.5 pounds — but I've downloaded one of the most impressive travel tools I've seen in a while: the "Discover Italy" e-book by Lonely Planet.

Available only from Apple's iBookstore, the guidebooks cost $14.99 to download (this is an introductory price; the price will likely rise a few dollars in the future).

The text is mostly the same as the softcover guidebook, with headers such as "Italy's Top 25 Experiences" and chapters on Italian history and culture. The book is organized into handy regional chapters, allowing the reader to tap on the city, town or area they want to explore.

But the e-book has some distinct advantages for travelers, especially those who are watching their weight in this era of charge-by-the-pound luggage: there's no added weight of a book in your bag.

There are other fun perks, as well. Colorful and easy-to-read maps are interactive, allowing users to tap and zoom into specific neighborhoods and streets.

Bookmarks and highlights are easy to make with the tap of an index finger; no more dog-eared, highlighter stained pages.

More than 3,000 hyperlinks allow readers to connect directly to a hotel or venue's website (if you are connected to the Internet, of course). I was able to tap on a link to the Naples Opera House and determine what will be on stage during my time in that city.

A veggie burger that means business

A portobello burger with sun-dried tomato mayo is seen in this July photo. Treat yourself to a vegetarian burger that is a step above the usual fare with this burger.

Whenever the word “veggie” modifies “burger,” many people taste skepticism more than anything else.

While it’s true that many veggie burgers are nothing more than mushy patties of ground up produce, this portobello burger with sun-dried tomato mayo is a burger of a different class.

Marinated and grilled just right, a large portobello mushroom cap can be just as toothsome and “meaty” as the real deal. And when you add accoutrements, like char-grilled red onion and red bell pepper, plus a slathering of savory sun-dried tomato mayo, you just might turn a meat eater into a vegetarian. At least until the next meal.

PORTOBELLO BURGER WITH SUN-DRIED TOMATO MAYO

Start to finish: 25 minutes

Servings: 4
For the mayo:
1/2 cup reduced-fat mayonnaise
2 tablespoons prepared sun-dried tomato pesto
1 teaspoon lemon juice
For the burger:
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
Four 5-inch round portobello mushroom caps
Four 1/2-inch-thick slices red onion, cut from a large red onion
1 yellow or orange bell pepper, quartered lengthwise and seeded
4 kaiser rolls, split
1 cup baby arugula

In a small bowl, stir together the mayonnaise, sun-dried tomato pesto and lemon juice. Cover and refrigerate until serving time.

In a large bowl, whisk together the vinegar, oil, garlic, mustard, salt and pepper. Add the mushrooms, onions and peppers, turning to coat with the marinade.

Heat a gas grill to medium-high or light a charcoal fire.

Remove the vegetables from the marinade, letting any excess drip off. Reserve the marinade. Grill the vegetables until browned on both sides and tender, about 5 minutes per side, brushing once with additional marinade during cooking.

Meanwhile, toast the rolls at the edge of the grill or in a toaster.

To assemble the burgers, divide the arugula among the 4 roll bottoms. Top with onions and peppers. Set the mushroom caps on top. Spread a quarter of the mayo on each roll top and set on top of the mushrooms.

Black-eyed peas, tomato and parsley salad is seen in this July photo. Hearty enough for a main dish or served as a side this salad is packed with fiber, protein and other plant-based nutrients.

A simple bean salad that’s good and good for you

Beans are somewhat of a nutritional miracle worker.

Along with being an excellent source of protein, they’re packed with fiber and other plant-based nutrients. Plus, they’re extremely low in fat, can prolong the feeling of fullness after a meal and can help control blood sugar levels.

Many people are hesitant to cook with beans because they think of the dry ones, which can require soaking overnight and, depending on the variety, lengthy cooking on the stove. But canned beans are a convenient must-have for any healthy pantry.

The good news is that unlike many other canned products, beans keep their nutrients during the canning process.

Besides being nutritional dynamite, canned beans are available in numerous shapes, sizes and flavors, making them a favorite among gourmet cooks. They can usually be found alongside the canned vegetables at the grocer, but be sure to check the ethnic aisle as well for some of the less common varieties.

Always rinse and drain canned beans before using them to remove excess salt and indigestible sugars that are in the cloudy liquid.

Because they’re so rich in protein, beans can replace some or all of the meat called for in many dishes. They also can be pureed (with seasonings) to make quick dips and spreads. Or simply add some to a salad for extra protein, flavor and texture.

This summery salad stars black-eyed peas, a bean named for a prominent black spot. Chockfull of fresh tomatoes and parsley, and tossed in a lemony dressing, the dish is reminiscent of a Middle-Eastern tabbouleh salad, but much more satisfying and nutritionally balanced.

Served as a main or side dish, black-eyed peas, tomato and parsley salad is a deliciously cool addition to any summer meal and perfect for breaking the Ramadan fast.

BLACK-EYED PEAS, TOMATO AND PARSLEY SALAD

Start to finish: 1 hour 10 minutes (10 minutes active)

Servings: 6
1/4 cup lemon juice
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/4 cup extra-virgin olive oil
Two 15 1/2-ounce cans black-eyed peas
1 small red onion, quartered and thinly sliced
1 pint cherry or grape tomatoes, halved
3/4 cup coarsely chopped flat-leaf parsley, plus a few sprigs for garnish

In a medium bowl, combine the lemon juice, garlic, sugar, Dijon mustard, salt and pepper. While whisking, drizzle in the olive oil. Whisk until completely emulsified. Add the black-eyed peas and red onion. Toss to coat. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 24 hours.

In a large serving bowl, combine the tomatoes, parsley and marinated black-eyed pea mixture. Toss thoroughly to coat. Season with salt and pepper. Serve garnished with parsley sprigs.

Nutrition information per serving (values are rounded to the nearest whole number): 190 calories; 86 calories from fat; 10 g fat (1 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 0 mg cholesterol; 23 g carbohydrate; 8 g protein; 10 g fiber; 848 mg sodium.

I was curious about what else Lonely Planet had in store for the iPad, and had a short e-mail conversation with the publisher's executive vice president John Boris. He explained that they picked five of the most popular European destinations for Americans as the launch titles for the e-book: Great Britain, Ireland, Spain, France and Italy.

Boris said Lonely Planet's Discover series will be released as e-books soon. The publisher also has hundreds of titles on Kindle and more than 100 city guide and phrase book apps available for iPhone and iPad, plus "reality travel apps" for the Android and other offerings for BlackBerry.

"We anticipate travelers will use different products at different times," he said. "They may use guidebooks to plan for their trip while taking the mobile e-book with them on the trip itself. And different travelers like to access information in different ways, so we want to make sure we have our products available on every channel."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eat, pray, love, shop?

There are plenty of opportunities to plumb the depths of your pocketbook, if not your soul, when the anticipated adaptation of the best-selling memoir hits theaters this month.

It used to be that kids' movies were the ones that got the big product tie-in treatment. There would be matching toys and maybe T-shirts, plus the inevitable Happy Meal or other fast-food connection.

Soon, though, stores will be flooded with all things "Eat, Pray, Love."

Look for candles and moisturizing creams; jewelry, book marks and tote bags; a dedicated shop at Cost Plus World Markets featuring furniture, food and clothing inspired by the film; a branded digital reader pre-loaded with the book; a Republic of Tea blend; a line of designer clothing by Sue Wong; and a weekend special on HSN filled with products pegged to the movie, including prayer beads, scarves and hundreds of other items from the countries the story's main character visits during her quest for self.

"Eat, Pray, Love" follows author Elizabeth Gilbert, a 30-something magazine writer trying to escape an unsatisfying marriage and rediscover an excitement for life. She embarks on a yearlong trip around the world to find herself, indulging in food and pleasure in Italy, experiencing prayer and devotion in India and aiming to balance the two in Bali. She does a lot of eating and a lot of praying during her journey, though not much shopping.

The book has sold millions of copies and been translated into dozens of languages. The film, which opens Aug. 13, is directed by "Glee's" Ryan Murphy and stars Julia Roberts, Javier Bardem, James Franco, Richard Jenkins and Billy Crudup.

Adapting such a popular book — especially with women — into a star-studded film makes it the ideal marketing opportunity for dozens of products, says Ryan Schinman, chief of Platinum Rye, an entertainment marketing company not working with "Eat, Pray, Love."

"Eat, Pray, Love" is a brand, he notes, so products that partner with the film become associated with a beloved book as well as the movie stars who tell the story on screen.

HSN developed 72 hours of programming to showcase its "Eat, Pray, Love"-related products. The network never aligned itself with a film before, but "this lines up with our core audience, which are women," says chief executive Mindy Grossman.

"It's really about finding the perfect marriages that work," Schinman says. "If you want to help sales and get more viewership, film is a terrific way to do it."
