Superintendent gets report card

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Tim Wyrosdick got his report card on Thursday.

And his parents won't be upset. The superintendent of school's grades were based upon surveys filled out by employees, parents and staff members asking the question, "How is the district being run, and how could things in the district be improved?"

Wyrosdick made a presenta-

tion of his 2010 evaluation to a packed board room at Thursday evening's school board meeting, underlining areas in which he struggled and areas in which he excelled in as a leader.

During his presentation, he said parents and employees are worried over the shape the district is in financially.

"This is tough work," he said. "This is like putting on a glove that doesn't fit."

According to Wyrosdick's

GOALS FOR 2011 SCHOOL YEAR

- Department satisfaction
- School grade improvements

report, employees scored the district as a whole 3.8 out of 5 in September 2010 and 3.96 out of 5 in May 2011.

Employees and parents were given two surveys per the new evaluation system both in September and May. Both asked questions the district believed would help them craft a better school system.

Teachers graded the school system higher in the middle school division, with a 4.11 out of 5 in May. High school employees had the lowest approval ratings at 3.68 out of 5, something Wyrosdick said was unacceptable on his part.

"Our schools have become a model for all the districts in the state, and I feel that that is unacceptable on my part," he said.

Parent satisfaction scores showed that parents thought children in the district were excelling thanks to the efforts made by the district.

"Parents are saying that our strengths are our academic achievement," Wyrosdick said. "They are saying we are making students a priority. These parents are proud of their schools their children reside in."

Parents also said they were

School will get under way on Aug. 22, but it is hard to say if the parents or the students will be the ones ready to celebrate.

This Saturday, everyone will be able to celebrate at the fifth annual Back to School Bash, being hosted by Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church and Covenant Church of God.

"With the economy, we are expecting at least 5,000 people this year," said Brother Mark Dees, pastor at Wesley Memorial UMC. "With what we have been seeing with our

5 arrested in connection with gun thefts

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

Five Santa Rosa County men were arrested Thursday in connection with the theft of 66 firearms in the Pea Ridge area.

Arrested are Mitchell Ray Young, 30, Wade Jackson McNeal, 22, Christopher Michael Boyette, 31, all of Milton, Justin Wayne Jordan, 25, and Adam Ronald Starkweather, 26, both of Pace.

All five were charged in connection with the May 5 larceny and break-in of a residence on Barcelona Street in Pace in which 66 guns and other property were stolen.

According to arrest reports, Jordan and Ashley Carter were arrested by the U.S. Marshal's Fugitive Task Force at their residence on East Avenida de Golf on outstanding felony warrants. Jordan also was wanted on multiple counts of burglary and theft in connection to the Pace larceny, according to the arrest report.

Carter's charges were unrelated to the Pace larceny.

After being Mirandized, Jordan gave a statement to investigators at the Santa Rosa County Jail on Aug. 10. He said Starkweather, Young, Boyette and McNeal had broken into the Barcelona Street residence, where they gun safes, firearms and

K-9 to help schools fight war on drugs

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Drugs are going to the dogs this school year after Sheriff Wendell Hall announced he would be utilizing a furry friend to help cut back on drug use in local schools.

A 21-month-old K-9, Idgie, has undergone 10 hours of training a day with deputy Marshall Holbrook, who works with the sheriff's department. Holbrook said by the start of the school year, the dog should be trained to identify 10 types of drugs.

Idgie, a yellow Lab, will cost the district $21,595.17 but will help eliminate the need for school resource officers, which the district cannot afford to have in every school.

"We have had to take school resource officers out of middle schools," Hall said. "We just don't have the grant money to keep them in our schools."

When the SROs left the schools, however, Hall said the district started to see drug-related incidents rise dramatically.

"We had to bring in officers from our high schools to look over our middle schools," Hall said.

Idgie cost the sheriff's office more than $43,000 to purchase and train, of which the school district is paying 50 percent. Hall asked school board members on Thursday to approve Idgie to be used in the school system as a drug dog and a drug educational tool.

"She is going to help us battle the war on drugs," Hall said. "We all know we have a

Speak OUT

Sunday, 7:47 p.m.
Hi, this is Patricia. I was calling about the sheriff's office being involved in another lawsuit regarding their actions taken against the citizens of this county. It is very disturbing that the sheriff and his deputies are facing a lawsuit for something like this. What is even more disturbing is the citizens have to pay for this legal defense of these actions. This needs to be gotten under control. I feel this stems from a lack leadership and someone needs to take control of these actions.

and they helped to keep the peace; now they are called police officers which means to herd and beat down. Unfortunately, law enforcement in our county is coming down to this and I have owned a business in this county for 15 years.

Sunday, 7:34 p.m.
Hi, this is Lela. I am very disturbed about this article on the front page concerning a lawsuit against the sheriff's office and the jury selection awaits. If I understand a month or two ago a similar suit was filed and I know another person in the process of bringing a suit. What is wrong with our sheriff's office here? They are supposed to be our protectors. They are supposed to be our friends. Thank you.

Sunday, 7:43 p.m.
Hello, my name is Matt. I saw the story on the front cover of your paper about our sheriff's department. It is kind of not surprising. It has happened to more than one person, including myself. I just didn't have the money to pursue it. Back in the day, they were called peace officers

Saturday, 9:53 p.m.
Hi, it's 10 O'clock and I just got home and picked up the paper to see the headline about this suit against the sheriff. Well Santa Rosa County, I think it is time to elect a new sheriff and the deputies involved in this lawsuit should be put behind bars. There is so much going on in this county that the public does not know about I sure hope this lawsuit brings that out. Thank you.

Saturday, 6:23 p.m.
This is Robin. I am replying to Martha's feeling that the president should order Congress back to work while they are on vacation. I don't know if she realizes our president is on his third annual vacation this year. He is resting at Martha's Vineyard. Our government is made up of three parts co-equally and not one dictator. There is Congress, the president and a supreme court. Maybe this little bit of education will be enlightening.

Saturday, 5:38 p.m.
Yeah, this is Bobby. You ever wonder why the federal government is always broke and in debt? Every paper you pick up talks about a federal grant for houses, or highways and there is a $300 million grant to build a new bridge across Pensacola Bay. We even got a grant to run a bus up and down Highway 90 that no one wants to ride, but once you get it and try to do away with it you are cruel. Wonder why the federal government is broke? Thank you.

Saturday, 4:57 p.m.
Hi, this is to Joel. I believe the pilings are to sit for six months. That is why there has been no work. And if I remember correctly the road work is to be completed in the fall of 2012. Editor's note: Phase one from Sterling Way to Highway 90 is supposed to be completed in the Winter of 2012. The other two phases are expected to be completed later in 2013 or 2014.

Saturday, 4:01 p.m.
My name is Bob. Everyday somebody is whining because they didn't get the money they expected to get from BP. BP has paid $20 million to the president. They have paid their money and you are trying to get something from that. I don't have a stake in BP but I think you should be bad mouthing the people who are not giving you the money and not BP. Thank you.

Friday, 4:49 p.m.
Hey, this is Dale. Maybe the county and city could branch out on the red light camera deal with those who are turning right on red. I guess the cops and deputies are too busy eating donuts or something. I just thought you were to turn right on red after making a stop and after it was safe. Some of these yahoos don't even stop. They speed up and never look right. All they do is look left to merge. God help you if you are a pedestrian standing on the right hand side of the road.

Friday, 2:40 p.m.
Yes this is Maria. I feel that everyone who commits a crime and all the people who are living off the government should be fighting the Taliban in Afghanistan and Iraq. Bring our soldiers home where they should be. Clean our county from people who get in trouble all the time for no reason like these three punks - the sister and two brothers. Also it is time for cities like Milton and Pensacola to have a curfew. Parent's your children should be home by 10 O'clock.

Thursday, 5:48 p.m.
Lose your job. Can't pay child support. They not only take your drivers license, you can't even fish. They take away your fishing license so you can't eat. And you can't get food stamps because you speak English. Wake up America.

Thursday, 3:38 p.m.
Hi, this is L.L. and this is about the Aug. 10, 2011 story. I remember Coach Hurley Manning had a coach, Mr. Williams, who was a strong black man and ran our defense called the Eagle. We used that defense to attack the passer and sack the quarterback. I think you need to do some research and look in your archives. Editor's note: L.L. we acknowledge Coach Williams' existence as a coach at Milton High School. And we are aware of more than one assistant coach of color, but Chafin Marsh is the first head football coach of color which is what the writer was referring to. We are sorry if that point was not expressed clearly. Other head coaches of color at Milton include the late Kay White (softball) and Stephanie Washington (ladies basketball and tennis).

'Return to health' with one of Milton's newest medical teams

By Obie Crain
PG Advertorial Writer

"Return to Health." It's an invitation extended to area residents by one of Milton's newest and most unique medical teams. And, according to Dr. David L. Snellgrove, a spokesperson for the group, it might actually be a lot less complicated to accomplish than one might anticipate.

"It's all in the way services are dispensed," Snellgrove said, pointing out that Return To Health, Medical Home & Wellness Center has adopted the widening view that a combination of medical services dispensed under one roof, one visit at a time, is both time and cost effective to the patient.

"And it seems to be gaining in popularity," he continued. "One Stop Service, that's what you're going to start seeing more of in the future."

It has been just within recent months that Return to Health, Medical Home & Wellness Center, headquartered in Pensacola, established facilities in Milton. The group, headed by Medical Director and Primary Care Physician John A. Dawson, M.D., chiropractors David L. Snellgrove, D.C. and Philip E. Renfro, D.C., advanced nursing practitioner Leticia Javier, ARNP, and physical therapist Monica Freeman, LPT, has previously offered services exclusively from its Pensacola office at 5330 North Davis Highway.

Last year, after an assessment of the Milton and Santa Rosa County area, the group decided that it would be feasible to expand its services to this area. With that being decided, the Milton practice was opened at 4891 Glover Lane late last year. Local residents will almost instantly recognize the former address as that of Dr. William Waters, a popular and highly profiled local chiropractor who retired a few years ago.

In Milton, currently staffed by Snellgrove, ARNP Javier, and physical therapist Freeman, the practice offering both General Medicine and Physical Medicine (and hopefully soon, pain management), prides itself as a "...premium one-stop shop for all your health care needs all in one location."

In addition to family medicine and general medicine with a wound care specialty physician, the teams of professionals on Glover Lane in Milton and North Davis Highway in Pensacola offer wellness medicine that includes nutritional counseling, hormone balancing, vitamin therapy, and cancer screening through simple blood tests.

"It's a generally accepted theory that it's better to prevent problems than to treat them later," Snellgrove said, "and that's where some of our wellness medicine services such as nutritional counseling and cancer screening come into play."

The business originally evolved from chiropractic associated services and still concentrates heavily in that area.

In that regard a patient survey published in Consumer Reports a few years ago reflected that survey participants gave the highest marks to hands-on treatments. They worked better, they said, than conventional treatments for conditions such as back pain and arthritis which cause significant discomfort, yet don't have reliable conventional cures.

Back pain, neck pain, fibromyalgia, and osteoarthritis accounted for about one-fourth of the ailments that survey respondents told about. Indications were that standard medical treatments tend to provide only partial relief for those maladies, which might be why a higher proportion of readers tried alternative treatments for them than for other conditions.

According to the Consumer Reports article, "Chiropractic was ranked ahead of all conventional treatments, including prescription drugs, by readers with back pain, (readers said it also provided relief for neck pain.) Deep-tissue massage was found to be especially effective in treating osteoarthritis and fibromyalgia, a painful musculoskeletal syndrome that conventional medicine often remains at a loss to treat."

"It makes sense to use alternative treatments when the primary treatments are ineffective," said Howard Beckman, M.D., a clinical professor of medicine at the University of Rochester at the time, with extensive expertise in alternative medicine. "For all four conditions, readers told us that 'body therapies' (that is) massage, chiropractic, exercise, and physical therapy provided more relief than medications, either conventional or alternative," Beckman said.

At the Milton clinic chiropractic care, of course, physical therapy, and massage therapy are house specialties. And although it has not been put in place yet, Snellgrove says the group is planning to add pain management to its offerings. Working with chronic pain that can't be helped by any other means and injective therapy provide a delicate situation and require a great deal of specialization, Snellgrove said.

Pain management is a specialty that is generally provided for patients with pain that cannot be managed through primary care, such as injury degeneration, the doctor said. "We're currently in the process of working out that program and plan to add it to our service offerings sometime in the future," he said.

Return to Health, Medical Home and Wellness Center offers quality primary care situation, Snellgrove said. "We invite primary care patients that have not found a family physician or anyone who is not satisfied with their primary care situation to make an appointment with us," Snellgrove said.

They not only treat injuries or any other primary care situation, but also work with workers' compensation cases and are available as screeners for Social Security disability cases, among others.

"Quite simply," the doctor ordered, "If you have a health issue, you need to schedule an appointment with us today."

The practices at both the Milton and Pensacola locations are accepting new patients at this time. For an appointment in Milton call 850-623-2111, or in Pensacola, call 850-477-8874. The facilities in Pensacola have also recently been improved to include some of the most modern, state-of-the-art offices and equipment, including a full service gymnasium for rehabilitation related cases.

Office hours at the Milton center are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday are 8 a.m. to noon, and from 2 -6 p.m. and on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 8 a.m. to noon.

In the Pensacola office, hours are Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m. to noon, and 2-6 p.m. On Fridays the offices close at 5 p.m.

The Return to Health Medical Home and Wellness center professionals are all situated in the local area or in Pensacola and are dedicated to their specialties.

"Anyone who needs a family physician, chiropractic care, physical therapy, or massage therapy can benefit from the services we offer at either the Milton or Pensacola location," Snellgrove said. "Give us a call. We have all the bases covered, with the potential of pain management as a future potential."

Return to Health is available and waiting.

Pen Air FCU collects cellphones for soldiers

Special to the Press Gazette

Pen Air Federal Credit Union celebrated Military Appreciation Month by assisting those being celebrated: the U.S. military.

To show its support, Pen Air FCU teamed up with TK101 radio station and collected 391 phones from the public for the "Cell Phones for Soldiers" program. Cell Phones for Soldiers is a non-profit organization.

When people donate old cell phones, they are then sold to a company that recycles them.

The money is used to purchase calling cards that are sent to soldiers serving overseas. Each donated phone is enough to provide an hour of talk time to soldiers abroad. This collection generated 23,460 minutes of calling time for the troops.

"Thanks to the kind people and members of Pen Air FCU, we are able to provide enriching experiences to soldiers overseas who cannot talk to their families often," said Cell Phones for Soldiers spokeswoman Sue Koch. "One phone call can truly make a difference."

Pen Air FCU also raised $5,600 for the local USO. This was achieved by public donations, as well as a loan program. For each qualified loan booked through Pen Air FCU during military appreciation month, the credit union donated $25 to the USO.

"We are honored to present this check to the USO," Pen Air FCU President and CEO, Ron Fields said. "Our service members are such a big part of the Gulf Coast community and I am proud of our employees and members for their generosity and support of the military."

Pen Air FCU has more than 100,000 members and 1,000 employee groups that it serves.

The credit union has more than $1 billion in assets and, in December 2010, earned the BauerFinancial 5-Star Superior rating for the 82th consecutive quarter. This year marks Pen Air FCU's 75th anniversary.

Pen Air FCU is a not-for-profit, member-owned financial institution chartered in 1936 to serve civil service and military employees assigned to our military bases in the area, as well as their immediate families.

Headquartered in Pensacola, Fla., Pen Air FCU is the largest locally-based financial institution in the area and now serves many other employee groups, with 15 branches in Northwest Florida and South-west Alabama.

Host families needed now

Child advocacy centers gear up for new school year

Special to the Press Gazette

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic semester and year homestay programs, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families. The students are anxiously awaiting news of their new families. These young ambassadors are looking forward to fulfilling their lifelong dreams.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) President, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15- 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and want to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from one semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local public and private high schools. "At this critical time in our country's history, hosting an international teen is the best and purest form of public diplomacy the United States has," said Doty.

P.I.E. area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. As there are no "typical" host families, P.I.E. can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it is a single parent, a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for P.I.E. are also eligible to claim a monthly charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, P.I.E. has students from Germany, the Former Soviet Union, Venezuela, Argentina, Brazil, Hungary, Croatia, Korea, Mexico, Slovakia, China and many other countries. P.I.E. is also participating in a special government-funded program to bring scholarship students from the Newly Independent States of the former Soviet Union to live in American communities.

P.I.E. is a nonprofit educational organization that has sponsored more than 25,000 students from 45 countries since its founding in 1975. The organization is designated by the United States Department of State and is listed by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel (CSIET), certifying that the organization complies with the standards set forth in CSIET's Standards for International Educational Travel Programs.

Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately, as it will allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet for the first time.

Families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call P.I.E., toll-free, at 866-546-1402. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

Special to the Press Gazette

As children head back to school and teachers prepare for another school year, child advocacy centers (CAC) in the Northwest Region are focused on educating school administrators on mandatory reporting and dealing with child abuse.

"Child advocacy centers provide a place of hope and healing for victims and play a vital role in helping local communities respond to allegations of child abuse," said Vicki Abrams Northwest Regional Director for DCF. "Those of us in the social work field understand the importance for early intervention and desire to break abusive family cycles."

CACs offer workshops, presentations, and trainings that are aimed at educating parents, teachers, staff, students, and professionals of all backgrounds to increase knowledge of child abuse, improve attitudes and change child-protective behaviors. Many times, students will tell school counselors and teachers about being abused. Because their work involves regular contact with children, school staff is mandated by law to report suspected child abuse and neglect.

Currently, the Northwest Region has four CACs that provide services to help identify, treat and support children in abusive situations. Through the following centers, Emerald Coast Children's Advocacy Center, Santa Rosa Kids' House, Gulf Coast Children Advocacy Center and Gulf Coast Kid's House nearly 3,000 children and families from all different races and income level were helped in 2010. Plans are developing to build a fifth CAC in Walton County.

Each CAC helps prevent child abuse through education, protects child victims from future abuse, and provides resources to restore the lives of the child and the child's family. The advocacy centers in the region work with the Florida Department of Children and Families, Child Protection Team, State Attorney's Office, local law enforcement and licensed mental health counselors.

If you suspect a child is being abused or neglected call the Florida Abuse Hotline at 800-96-ABUSE (800-962-2873).

Baptist Health Care 19th Annual Family Expo Sept. 10

Special to the Press Gazette

Building stronger families for a healthier community is the theme for the 19th Annual Baptist Health Care's Family Expo. The premier health and wellness event is scheduled for Sept. 10 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Pensacola Interstate Fairgrounds.

Opinion

OUR VIEW

Is the next crisis upon us?

We have survived a week during which many thought the world was coming to an end. Standard and Poor's downgraded America's credit largely due to inaction on the part of the U.S. Congress. What followed was a wild ride on the Wall Street roller coaster.

While politicians are busy pointing fingers at each other, it might be time to take a long hard look at ourselves to see if we contributed, in any way, to this almost cataclysmic event in Washington, D.C.

While we call ourselves a "Democratic" nation and a free state, there are many social (socialist) programs upon which we have become dependent. First off, Social Security.

This is something we pay in with each check and expect it to be there for us when we retire. Our elected officials use it as bait when it comes to election time and point fingers at one another while this program, along with Medicare, remains in a constant state of flux.

The people did as our government wanted. We did not save our money for retirement. We spent it. That fueled a strong economy - no worry about the fact that we would one day be old. Uncle Sam will pay for that, we were told. It is as if we were led to believe social security was going to be the savior of every retired person.

Then there is the issue of welfare. When times are tough many need assistance, but this mistake creates a pit from which there is no personal escape.

Even if you try to climb your way out, you cannot. If you make just a bit more, you'll make too much for assistance. The government takes it away and suddenly you can't get by. So, you quit the job and go back on welfare. It's designed that way.

Many are so dependent on this form of government assistance that there are generations that can not remember living any other way.

They understand the larger the family the more money they earn.

But if John or Jane Q. Citizen try to get away from this social assistance, they can't do so without a high paying job. To get all that government assistance, John and Jane cranked out as many babies as possible. Now, coming off government assistance means buying food for the hoard. Clothing the clan and paying insurance on the whole family. No minimum wage job will do that. John would need a high-paying job. But, welfare kept him out of school so no such job is available to him. And this is how the system got him poor and keeps him poor.

Thirdly, there are those few who try to capitalize on the situation and charge the government for things unnecessary or even uncalled for.

You have heard of some doctors being charged with Medicaid fraud, but the numbers of those charged for this crime compared to the number of those who commit it are way out of balance.

If this is not bad enough, we should consider an even worse situation - jobs.

For years our government has watched companies send jobs to Mexico, India, Japan, China and other markets because the labor force there is cheaper.

While the labor force is cheaper, the prices you pay at the store are not.

Everyone knows this, but it has come to the point where it is simply accepted. If you need proof, think of the TV commercials where someone calls a company's customer service number and the call is answered by a gruff sounding Russian man named "Peggy." Food network cook Alton Brown says anytime he needs help with an Indian recipe he just dials the number on the back of his credit card.

We have allowed our government to let companies get larger and larger, pinching every possible penny, while it makes us more and more dependent on public assistance and subsidies. To allow companies to make more, America must allow them to improve their bottom line. To do that, they need to ship jobs to countries where people work for much less. This puts Americans out of work. Not to worry, there's welfare. But how can we pay all these bills with an ever-shrinking job pool? That's the rub we have created for ourselves.

If we do not want to be part of another crisis, we have to make sure of one thing: that we are not as dependent on the government as we were during this last bullet-dodging event.

Government, and what it is offering us today, is more addictive than any pill. Unfortunately, these same government people cannot live without the power we have given them.

This is something each and every one of us should consider as we look down the road toward the polling booths.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Passion trumps knowledge

I can agree with Walter Reynolds' (Letter to the Editor Aug. 6) that we should be careful when we go to the polls. On the whole, the electorate is ill informed. Essentially, that is because people like Reynolds are out there spreading around a lot of misinformation.

He would suggest that President Obama is dishonest, lacks integrity and exhibits low moral standards. In truth, Obama is of good moral character, speaks plainly and from the heart. And he seems to be doing a pretty good job of raising his two daughters.

Would Reynolds prefer to see the adulterous Newt Gingrich; Sarah Palin, the beauty queen grandmother of a child born out of wedlock; or Michelle Bachmann, the clueless firebrand in the Oval Office. Talk about role models!

It is easy to see that Obama is trying to do the right thing for our country's entire citizenry and not just the wealthiest 2 percent. That 2 percent, which controls 80 percent of our country's wealth, is the 2 percent that runs Congress.

It's that 2 percent that has been consolidating assets of the big business they control while laying off workers at the height of the recession.

It is that 2 percent that caused the financial crisis that got us into this recession.

Reynolds would suggest that a member of this "elite" would do a better job of running the country. Well we had that with the last presidency and look where that got us.

The "W" era, with its no bid contracts to Halliburton (Dick Cheney's company) and others, and those expensive oil wars added $5 trillion to our now burgeoning $14-plus trillion debt.

Where did that money go? Into the pockets of the "elite", and they are not giving it back.

Contrary to Reynolds' state opinion, the "elite" are not and will not be doing any hiring any time soon and "us commoners" are already footing the bills.

As long as the Republican led House continues to cut programs and services while refusing to tax the "elite", the "elite" will have no incentive to let go of the purse strings. The middle class will continue to suffer and the national debt will continue to climb.

Lets hope that Reynolds and those "who are lucky enough to have jobs" will be able to enjoy a secure and healthy retirement. If the Republican led House stays in its present path, I wouldn't bet on it.

My advice when you go to the polls: Vote your head, not your heart.

Rely on your candidate's record not his or her promises.

Take the vitriol and spin doctoring with a grain of salt and do not mindlessly vote the party line.

The Republican verses Democrat conflict is just a bunch of smoke and mirrors designed to cloak the real issues; issues that nobody in Congress regardless of party affiliation wishes to face.

Bruce Sargent
Milton

The way I see it

I don't know if you have noticed but Obama hasn't been playing as much golf as he once did. All his shots seem to go out of bounds.

Obama has such a dislike for Bush that everything Bush did Obama is doing the opposite. You know, Gitmo, drilling for oil in the Gulf, organized labor unions, the military commitment to the war effort in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Remember when the Generals on the battlefield asked for an immediate increase of 40,000 additional troops? Obama waited four months to make a decision and being the military strategist that he thinks he is sent only 30,00 and then announced he would start withdrawing them within 18 months.

This information should give the enemy the timeline they needed to launch their offensive.

Obama has not been shooting hoops like he did before either; misses too many shots!

It's embarrassing! Are you curious as to why? Yep, you guessed it, Bush!

He just can't seem to concentrate. He spends days and nights wondering "what would Bush do?" and then, when he thinks he has figured it out he does the opposite.

Obama's daughters are causing him anguish too. The other day they wanted a glass of tea (you know where I am going with this don't you). You guessed it! No tea bags allowed in the White House.

Anything that is even remotely associated with the work tea is banned in his domain.

If you haven't heard, the latest talking points within the Democratic Party is "the downgrade of the United States credit rating is the fault of the Tea Party." Really?

I thought it was because of the excess spending in Washington. Eg. Over 100,000 new government jobs with salaries around $100,000 a year (nobody knows what they do).

All the bond holders with General Motors had their investment eliminated, and, before allowing GM to file Chapter 13 Obama gave the UAW a large share of GM stocks. Later on the UAW retirement fund was getting short on case (they gave too much to Obama's election campaign), and again Obama came to their rescue. Bailing out the UAW with tax payer money. Wait a minute.

Does that mean that my tax dollars wound up in Obama's re-election coffers?

Where is the accountability?

Where are the moral standards that should be guiding our elected officials?

When will the madness stop?

Our great nation deserves better, at least that is the way I see it.

Walter Reynolds
Pace

Washington: Blame no one; do something!

As they always do, our representatives in Congress raised the debt ceiling and said they were going to make cuts later. Then they fled Washington to go on a long vacation. Why not address this now? Why the suspense? Congress has not left so many things dangling in front of Americans since Anthony Weiner left.

HART TALK
Ron Hart

They called what they did a "two-step deal." It looks like both were side steps.

Jason Jones compared the "debt ceiling deal" and Congress' reaction to a bunch of monkeys high-fiving each other in celebration, having forgotten that just recently they were throwing their feces on each other.

Remember, Obama kept using the word "bankrupt" and threatened not to pay Social Security checks. The country was not nearly bankrupt; he just used the word as a scare tactic to get his way. Blame and threats are not a strategy. The Democrats called those wanting to cut the spending "terrorists" who were holding the country hostage. Obama might want to be careful; being unable to negotiate the release of hostages invites even more comparisons to Jimmy Carter.

It is getting more dangerous in the Obama administration. Last week a man hopped over the White House fence and made a run for it. Then the Secret Service caught him and told Mr. Geithner he had to finish his term as Treasury Secretary. It turns out it is much easier being the problem than the solution.

After months of indicating that he might leave his post as Treasury Secretary, Timothy Geithner said he would stay. In the end, he decided to keep his safe government job since he determined there is no way of finding a good job in this economy.

Interestingly, last week it was also reported that Washington, D.C. has the highest use of cocaine, pot and alcohol. That explains a lot. The S&P downgrade was not a decision; it was more like an intervention.

Let's be as clear as we can. Federal spending has gone to $3.8 trillion per year and tax revenue remains at $2.1 per year. We run annual losses of $1.7 trillion, and climbing, and Geithner and Obama are blaming S&P and the Tea Party for the downgrade? Wow.

The $14 trillion debt is not so much the problem; we are projected to have a $27 trillion debt in ten years. For Obama and Geithner to blame S&P is like being late for two years on payments for their big screen TV and then shooting the repo man who comes to get it.

Their new stall is the "Super Committee" to be appointed to cut the budget down the road. They are just so delusional that they will call on Superman, Captain America, Green Hornet, Iron Man, Superwoman, Spiderman and Batman to cut the budget. Only those egomaniacs in Washington could call themselves "super" anything. I still snicker when they are called "The Honorable. . ."

Obama used his media arms, NBC, CBS and ABC, to make political points in prime time and told people to call their representatives. The "post partisan president" was surprised that few called to support his spending on entitlements and that the vast majority favored spending cuts.

The dysfunction of Washington is such a disaster that al-Qaeda is claiming responsibility for it. The good news is Obama will soon be making taxpayer-funded visits to swing states in the Midwest, and he will be trying to save jobs - mainly his.

Milton native making difference in the Air Force and community

Special to the Press Gazette

On Aug. 7, Airmen of the 381st Intelligence Squadron spent the afternoon serving the Anchorage Big Brothers and Big Sisters program at the annual picnic at Hilltop Chalet, doing everything from cooking burgers to helping the "Littles" guide their "bigs" through a blind maze.

Milton Florida Native Senior Airman Joshua Owoc, a linguist with the 381st IS, said his work schedule keeps him from getting as involved as he would like, and the picnic was a good way to serve.

"I don't get to have much involvement - so when the squadron as a whole can do this, it's really good," Owoc said. "I like volunteering my time to help - anything to get out of the house."

The day featured a grilled lunch, carnival games, competitions and door prizes as well as face painting and photos.

"The unit has been incredible with helping us plan," said Ashley Otheim, who works with BBBS. "They've put together a great event for our matches."

Airman 1st Class Jaymie Stephens has been a big sister for about six months now.

"We play cards; last week we played a new game called 'In a Pickle,' Stephens said. "We talk a lot about her goals; she wants to be an English teacher," Stephens said. "I like being a big; it's really rewarding, and I've learned a lot from (my Little)."

...a weekly column answering your questions with Biblical answers about life.

Dear Pastor Gallups, "As a Christian and a pastor, what do you believe about the death penalty? Do you think it is really a deterrent to crime?" U.Y. - Pace

Dear U.Y.,

It is undeniable that the Word of God prescribes the death penalty for certain crimes. The penalty is to be administered by the governing authorities that are ultimately accountable to God for the integrity in which they carry out this awesome responsibility. (See Leviticus 20).

Some will argue that in the Ten Commandments, the command, "Thou shalt not murder" would prohibit a people from exercising capital punishment. This is simply not so. Judicial executions were not prohibited. In fact, the same law, which included within it the Ten Commandments, also carries clear provision for the death penalty for certain offenses.

Capital punishment is absolutely a deterrent to crime. When it is administered consistently, swiftly and fairly, people do think twice before invoking this sure penalty upon themselves. If nothing else, it certainly ensures that the person committing the crime never commits another such crime. Also, of course, the ominous responsibility of fairness and absolute justice is upon the society that uses Capital punishment.

It does NOT work as a deterrent if murderers, rapists, terrorists and thugs know that the "death penalty" will probably never really be invoked upon them and that they have an endless maze of appeals and legal maneuvers at their disposal. As it stands today, society most often has to pay for the horrible effects suffered by the victims of the crime, then we pay for the criminal's legal defense, then we pay the enormous expense of incarceration in a prison.

Often we pay for an "education", unbelievable medical costs and pricey "rehabilitation programs." Society is triple penalized because of someone else's lawlessness and godlessness.

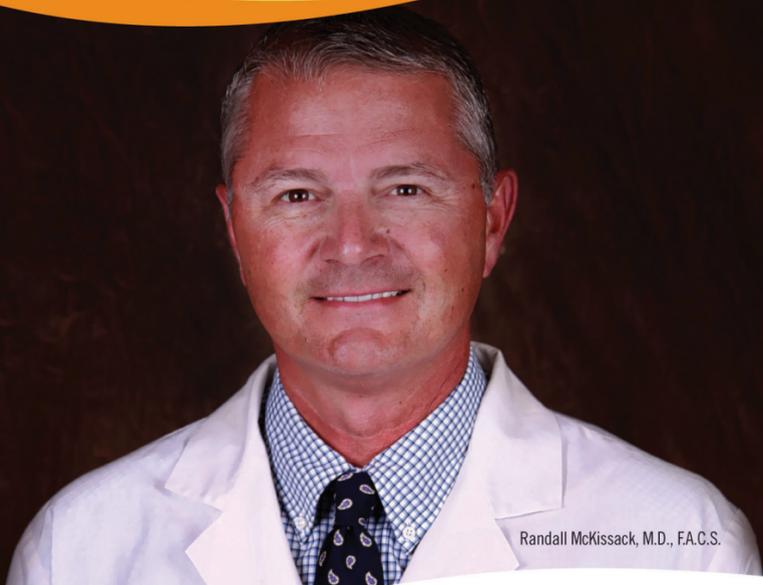

The death penalty that bothers me the most though U.Y. is the one that people invoke upon themselves when they reject the salvation of God offered through Jesus Christ. That penalty is eternal. I pray that everyone reading this today is born-again through the blood of Jesus Christ - who died that we might have LIFE!

problem in our county, like we do in all other counties.”

Drug problems have led to numerous arrests and referrals to the Learning Academy. Depending on the type of drug, most students are sentenced to finish out their school year or career in the Learning Academy.

Hall said Idgie will not only be used to find drugs, but to educate children in schools about drugs and their effects.

“It’s going to be a positive thing for the community,” Holbrook said to board members Thursday night. “This is a gentle dog, and she is good around children.”

Holbrook said the sheriff’s department chose a yellow Lab instead of another dog because Labs are known to look and act less threatening. That will be important because Idgie will be around a lot of children, Hall said.

As of now, Hall said the district only has money to place school resource officers in a handful of high schools. Because of budget restraints, both Hall and Superintendent of Schools Tim Wyrosdick agreed that Idgie would be a good investment for the district to save money and to cut back on drug use.

being treated with respect, Wyrosdick said.

“I put my phone number out there for anyone that needs it,” he said. “We try to be available to answer any concerns.”

In May, parent surveys improved from September to above a 4 out of 5 grade.

What hurt the district in parent and employee surveys was a lack of communication regarding spending.

Wyrosdick put that obligation on the front burner as one of four goals he set for himself and the district for the upcoming 2011 school year.

Despite the district scoring extremely well on FCAT scores and school grades for the 2010 school year, Wyrosdick still wants to up the ante and improve school grades.

He also said he wants to get better acquainted with his employees; satisfaction surveys showed he was not attentive to employee issues.

food pantry and other requests, there are a lot of families out there who are living from paycheck to paycheck, and they do not qualify for free lunch or Cram the Van.

"Our first year, we got over 1,000 people, and that is what I was expecting by year five so this is definitely a God thing."

This year, more than 120 businesses are involved in the bash, and almost 90 of those will be present Saturday. The bash will run from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"When we started, we gave out around 500 bags, and last year we gave out about 1,400," Dees said. "When you look at this bash, we are trying to help all of Santa Rosa County and are expecting over 5,000 people in attendance, and we have over 1,700 bags of school supplies."

Two annual traditions at the Back to School Bash are the grand prize of a limousine ride to one lucky student and a friend for the first day of school and free haircuts from the cosmetology students at Pensacola State College.

"They will be doing free haircuts from 10 a.m. until they get the last one signed up before 1 p.m.," Dees said. "In the past, they have had eight or nine students doing haircuts, but this year they are looking to bring several more students to help out."

Other prizes to be given away at the end of the bash include a boy's and girl's bike as well as a laptop computer.

"We have been really blessed by the support of the community," Dees said. "When we started this, we were asking any and everyone to help, and now people are calling us wanting to be a part of this."

Dees stressed this is a community event, and those in the community are using the church grounds outside of Pea Ridge Elementary School to do everything.

"We are blessed as a partner in education with Pea Ridge Elementary, as is Covenant Church of God, to partner with Pea Ridge Elementary since we are neighbors," Dees said. "It is great to help the youth in this community."

The layout will be a little different than the previous bashes as organizers are trying to move events and items toward the shaded area of the church grounds.

"We have moved things and tried to pack them a little tighter so we can get them under shade and cooler," Dees said. "Last year the heat got to some of the people, and we want to try to prevent that this year."

other property.

Jordan said the four men asked for his help in moving the stolen property.

He said after telling them he did not want the property in his house, the four took the property to the home of another individual, where they used a chop saw to remove the contents of the safe. The chop saw also was taken from the property on Barcelona Street.

According to the report, the safe was dumped in the Escambia River from the bridge on Quintette Road.

The five men arrested in connection to the burglary sold the stolen guns to people in Pensacola and Santa Rosa County, according to the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Report.

One sale documented in the reports indicates that Jordan sold 14 guns for a total of $500.

Young is charged with possession of a weapon or ammunition by a convicted Florida felon, burglary of a dwelling or structure causing damage over $1,000, larceny $20,000 less than $100,000, larceny grand theft of a firearm and dealing in stolen property. He is lodged in the Escambia County Jail without bond.

McNeal is charged with burglary of a dwelling or structure causing damage over $1,000, larceny $20,000 less than $100,000, larceny grand theft of a firearm and dealing in stolen property. McNeal remains in the Santa Rosa County Jail on a $40,000 bond.

Boyette is charged with possession of a weapon or ammunition by a convicted Florida felon, burglary of a dwelling or structure causing damage over $1,000, larceny $20,000 less than $100,000, larceny grand theft of a firearm and dealing in stolen property. Boyette is being held in the Santa Rosa County Jail on a $73,000 bond.

Jordan is charged with a public orders crime of criminal attempt to solicit or conspire in the second degree, possession of a weapon or ammunition by a convicted Florida felon, burglary of a dwelling or structure causing damage over $1,000, larceny $20,000 less than $100,000, and larceny grand theft of a firearm. Jordan is in the Santa Rosa County Jail on a $121,000 bond.

Starkweather is charged with burglary of a dwelling or structure causing damage over $1,000, larceny $20,000 less than $100,000, larceny grand theft of a firearm and dealing in stolen property. Starkweather remains lodged in the Santa Rosa County Jail on a $30,000 bond.

Flyers prepare to take flight

By Chrisa Changala

Florida Freedom Newspapers

Hockey fans the season is getting ready to take flight and here is a look at a few questions what has plagued Ice Flyer fans for the past couple of months.

Over the last couple of months we've all heard owner Tim Kerr and Coach Todd Gordon say the organization is "going a different way."

They said it when players were changed mid-season, they said it when Aaron Epstein was separated from the organization and then came the bombshell

... Kerr had purchased Pensacola's archrivals the Mississippi Surge.

Fears of redheaded stepchild situations danced before our eyes. That coupled with the Civic Center lease situation made it feel as though the team might not last into its third season.

"We are reviewing all aspects of our business model on and off ice, [but] mostly they are referring to players," said Chuck McCartney President of the Ice Flyers. "We are going to bring in two young gun goalies instead of vets."

As to the Civic Center situation, it looked even direr from my perspective because of how little public interaction the team, or its local representatives, has had in community during the summer.

While the Ice Flyers were quiet other teams in the SPHL seem to be putting themselves out into the community already and no one had seen any indications the Flyers were out and about.

"Coach Gordon and Maverick have already been out and about in the community this summer," McCartney said.

He also said they plan for the team to have a more visible presence in the community this season. Last season they tended to focus on the schools even though they did do a few activities at restaurants around the area.

With the departure of Aaron Epstein, Scott Adams (a rabid hockey fan and I100 morning DJ) will be stepping up to fill his role with the team

"We can expect a lot more energy and new events during game breaks," McCarthy said. "For example, there will be mullet tosses with Florabama, and Volleyball on ice with Juana's Pagoda."

The Flyers are also working to return the team to radio and are working on having the games broadcast live as well.

Negotiations are on going with former Ice Pilots voice Paul Chestnutt while away games will be broadcast with the away team play-by-play announcer.

The Flyers are also looking to have a more NHLish look when it comes to jerseys and uniforms.

Flyer fans can also follow the team with a new website that went live as well as a mobile one is coming to help keep hockey fans up to date with what is going on with the Flyers at the Hanger.

FRIDAY NIGHT LIGHTS

Local football teams prepare for football action this Friday night.

By Bill Gamblin

sports@srpressgazette.com

Football action will kick off at Jay, Milton, and Pace high schools this Friday.

The first ever Royal Night will offer Jay supporters the opportunity to come out and meet the 2011 edition of the Jay football team under direction of first year coach and former Royal Kent Smith.

Kickoff will be at 6 p.m. at Merle V. North Stadium with scrimmages between the mini mites, followed by the mites and the midgets.

The Jay High Band will take the field at 7 p.m. followed by the Jay Junior Varsity and Jay Varsity football teams.

The cost is $3 per person.

During the game fans can purchase season passes.

While Jay is hosting its first big event, Milton and Pace will look to continue a tradition and hope for better weather.

Last season rains interrupted Pace's second annual Patriot Night which is a Pace High School event in cooperation with the Pace Athletic Recreation Association (PARA).

This year's events will get underway at 5:30 p.m. with a group photo and each team will play a 20 minute period.

Also participating this year will be the cheerleading squads with their respective teams.

Ticket prices for Patriot night will be $5 per person and kids 14 and under will be free.

At Milton, first year head coach Chafan Marsh will participate in his first Big Cat Jamboree and Fish Fry at Milton High School's Haywood Hannah Stadium.

The Big Cat Jamboree will feature scrimmages between the City of Milton and East Milton youth leagues, starting at 5 pm, followed by high school squads at 7 pm. Gates open at 4 pm, and the fish fry begins at 5 pm.

Admission is free for those who purchase 2011-2012 memberships and $3.00 for others, except league players and children 7 years and under, who will be admitted free.

Members will also receive two free fish dinners, which will also be sold to the public for $10 each. Event T-shirts will also be available for $10.

The local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People held its fourth annual Freedom Fund Banquet inside the Milton Community Center Saturday evening to celebrate the accomplishments of black citizens who serve the community.

The banquet also served as a fundraiser to help raise money for scholarships that the chapter distributes to local school children every year.

The mistress of ceremonies for the event was WEAR News Channel 3 personality Lena DeFlores, and the keynote speaker was new Milton High School head football coach Chafan Marsh, the first black head coach in the Milton football program's history.

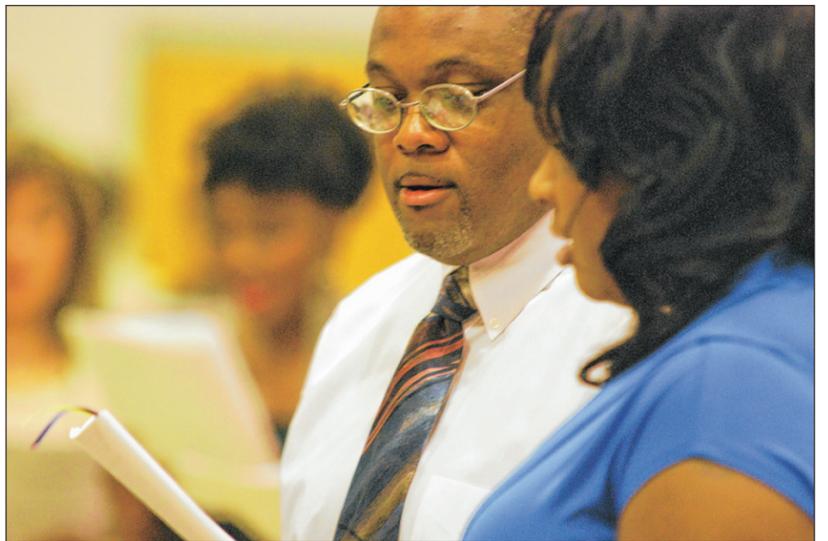

The mission of the NAACP is to ensure the political, educational, social and economic quality of all persons and to eliminate racial hatred or racial discrimination.

Anniversary

Fondren 50th wedding anniversary

Robert and Betty Fondren, who were married Aug. 19, 1961, in Montgomery, Ala., at First Baptist Church Chapel, will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary on Friday.

Wedding

Amy Lee and Dr. Kenneth Jackson DeLay Jr.

Miss Amy Lee Spurlock and Dr. Kenneth (Kent) Jackson DeLay Jr. were united in Christian marriage on March 19, 2011, at Cokesbury United Methodist Church in Pensacola.

The Rev. Clint McBroom officiated the candle-lit ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Noel Spurlock of Pace. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Anita Spurlock of Milton, the late Martin Spurlock and the late Ralph and Libby Harmon of Cantonment.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken DeLay, of Millen, Ga. He is the grandson of Mrs. Retha Moxley of Twin City, Ga., the late Homer Moxley, and Mr. B. J. DeLay and the late Jean DeLay of Athens, Ga.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was lifelong best friend Kaitlin VanSickle Forshee. Bridesmaids were Ashley DeLay, Casey Smith Malone, Lauren Sanchez, Elizabeth Tringas, Melissa Rorer Turco and Rebecca Keown Williams.

Attending the groom as best man was his father, Ken DeLay. Groomsmen were C.J. Chance, Jeremy Clifton, David Freeman, Paul King, John Mikell and Wes Waxweiler.

A joyful reception followed at Mustin Beach Officer's Club, Pensacola Naval Air Base.

The couple enjoyed a honeymoon to the Caribbean and currently resides in Norfolk, Va.

NAS Whiting Field helps collect nonperishable food items

By Ensign John Llewellyn
NAS Whiting Field
Public Affairs

The Department of Defense has been called upon to team up with Federal agencies around the country to fill a federal-wide goal of donating 2 million pounds of nonperishable food items. The DOD's goal is to collect 733,800 pounds.

Known as Feds Feed Families, the campaign is coordinated by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management and the Chief Human Capital Council. It is set up so that families can bring in food items to their local Federal agencies where they are then distributed to local community food banks.

The initiative is a direct response to the "United We Serve Act" signed by the President in April 2009, calling all Americans to contribute to the nation's economic recovery by serving in their communities. This is the first time the federal agencies have come together as one team to support the food drive.

The summer months are especially hard for families in need of food. With school being out many students aren't getting the meals they normally would through the school programs. Since 2006, the demand on food banks has increased by 25 percent but the level of giving hasn't changed.

Spearheaded by the chaplains' office, Naval Air Station Whiting Field is doing their part. Drop boxes for donations are scattered throughout the base, including: the chaplains' office; commissary; Training Air Wing

Ensign Laura Faulk
assistant to the chaplains' office

FIVE building; Fleet and Family Support Center; public works building; Officer Christian Fellowship; NAS Whiting Field command building; Whiting Pines housing office; Training Squadrons TWO, THREE and SIX; and Helicopter Training Squadrons EIGHT, EIGHTEEN, and TWENTY-EIGHT.

Volunteers have already picked up and transferred the food products to the local food banks July 19 and Aug. 2. The last two box pick-ups will be Aug. 16 and 30.

"The turnout is bigger and better than we had hoped for. Everyone seems to be coming on board. Milton and Whiting Field go hand in hand; we help each other out," Ensign Laura Faulk, an assistant in the chaplains' office, said.

Typical items that have been collected include: canned vegetables, canned fruit, peanut butter, canned soups, condiments, individual snacks, cereal, fruit juice, pasta, rice, paper products and much more.

NAS Whiting Field hasn't taken part in a local area food drive in several years and already in the past three weeks they have collected over 300 pounds of food. The food collected is being distributed to the Bay Area Food Bank and the Manana Food Bank in the local Milton community.

"I think this will have a positive impact on our relationship with the community. Bay Area Food Bank is amazed and grateful for what we are bringing them," Religious Programs Specialist 2nd Class Yolanda Jordan said.

This food drive is not the only charitable campaign that the chaplain's office is a part of.

"Every Sunday 75 percent of the chapel's religious offering fund goes out to a variety of local charities. On average we donate over a $1,000 a year to the local food banks," said NASWF Command Chaplain, Lt. Cmdr. Raymond Sumnerlin.

If you would like more information on this program or other charities that Naval Air Station Whiting Field participates in, contact Jordan, religious programs specialist, at 850-623-7212, ext. 7211.

Religious Programs Specialist 2nd Class Yolanda Jordan and Ensign Courtney Brayman gather more food items donated by workers in the command building at Naval Air Station Whiting Field. The Feds Feed Families program on the base has collected more than 900 pounds so far.

"After 2 weeks, my blood sugar went from 180 to 112 and stayed there!"

Heart Surgeon Hails "Antioxidant" Diabetic Drink as 'A Miracle'!

Naturally improves blood sugar, cholesterol, circulation, energy and more in as little as 2 weeks!

What part of your diabetes would you like to see "go away"? Are you plagued by weight gain and food cravings, high and low blood sugar levels, mood swings, low energy and constant fatigue, poor circulation, vision problems, intermittent pain or aggravating bouts of brain fog or memory lapses?

There is good news and it comes in the form of a 'fizzy', drink called OPC Factor™, which quickly revitalizes your entire body and mind!

Better Blood Sugar

The 'miracle' is a powerful blend of super antioxidants called oligomeric proanthocyanadins, or OPCs including powerhouses like grape seed, green tea, pine bark, and red wine extracts, along with lemon bioflavonoids, resveratrol, and 23 naturally occurring vitamins and enzymes.

"OPC Factor™ has helped lower my glucose levels. I sleep better and have more energy and better circulation," says Charles Leavitt of Louisiana.

No More Horse Pills to Swallow!

"Pills and tablets have an absorption rate as low as 2 to 20 percent," says Dr. Vagnini.

Studies have found that free radicals produce oxidation that disrupts insulin sensitivity. OPC Factor™ works 20-50 times better than traditional antioxidants against oxidation.

"I started taking OPC Factor and approximately a week after, I went back and had my blood checked. My blood sugar had dropped from about a 180 down to a 112. I had been having back problems and it seemed to resolve that. I like the taste. The taste is very pleasant. It has helped my overall health. The thing that I've noticed the most is the lack of back pain. I've just felt good this past year." rejoices Doyle Allen, ID.

OPC Factor™ is the first 100% organic formula fueled by a revolutionary, high-speed Isotonic 'liquid' delivery system. It mimics the body's pH; having the same pH levels as blood and tears, the nutrients readily absorb at amazing 97%!

Results in Minutes!

Actual blood scans taken twenty minutes a part show how OPC Factor™ virtually flushes away free radicals, excess cholesterol crystals and sugar molecules in the bloodstream.

NIH Proves It!

"I can feel it when I drink it. It gives a lot of energy," says Ken Murdock.

A National Institute of Health funded "Double Blind" clinical study published in July, 2008, supports customer claims about energy. For diabetics, energy equals better sleep, moods, and overall balance.

OPCs enhance insulin's ability to lower blood sugar. David Payne, a diabetic from Texas, echoes this, "Since taking OPC Factor, my blood sugar is easier to manage. It boosted my immune system and even helped my cholesterol."

"My doctor said, "I don't know what you're doing, but keep doing it." says Teresa Wood, from WA.

All New Customers Receive One-Month Free!

Try OPC Factor™ at no risk to you today and receive a free 30-Day Bonus supply along with a free book, The Aging Antidote.

OPC antioxidants are clinically proven to boost your energy, and help restore youthful circulation, cholesterol and blood sugar levels.

Some people go to the gym to be ogled, and that's fine. But the floor isn't a catwalk, and machines aren't platforms for posing. Also, those who like the view should keep their eyes in their sockets.

WHO ARE THESE

DUMBBELLS?

► If you're hitting the gym, how many of these pet peeves have you spotted?

By LONDON HALL
Freedom News Service

We all have the list in our minds: those hated, maddening quirks and behaviors we witness at our local gym.

Who is Gruntman making those awful growls for? Certainly not himself. And what's with Ms. Pink Spandex over there? She's got all her gear laid out as if she's about ready to make camp for the night: dumbbell, water bottle, jump rope, towel, backpack. Why should we have to detour around her staging area to get to the military-press machine?

On a recent gym visit, I observed a few bad apples among mostly a docile, polite grove of people. Many of them are workout veterans and have seen it all. Based on their observations, and a few of my own, I give you the top 10 most annoying habits you'll find at the gym, beyond those I just mentioned (grunting and camping):

Cell phone chatting/texting. Are you kidding me? Is a jetliner at 30,000 feet truly the last safe haven from BlackBerry intrusions? Sample conversation: "Not much. Just finishing up here. I work on arms and shoulders on Wednesdays" And on and on. "I've been guilty of it too, if someone calls me," said Yvette Campbell of Foothill Ranch, Calif. "But I try to leave it in the locker

9

Getting testy at rush hour. Dude, you're the one who thought it would be a good idea to swoop in for a 45-minute workout at 5:30 p.m., so don't sigh like it's my fault.

8

Unorthodox exercises. That might be the way they used that machine when you were on the Romanian Olympic wrestling team, but can you observe proper technique, please? I once saw a muscle-bound guy at the squat bar standing straight up, hoisting 225 pounds of iron behind his back, while grunting loudly. Total distraction.

4

Not racking weights. One 24 Hour Fitness has a staffer who comes around once an hour or so to put the free weights back where they belong, which shows you how lazy some people are. Removing four 45-pound plates to pick up after someone else is a workout unto itself. "Not everyone can squat 2,000 pounds," said Ryan Bautista of Lake Forest, Calif. You see it on the machines, too: 165 pounds on the rotary chest? Come on. Not only do I have to move the pin down to 80, but you're making me feel bad, too.

Bad class etiquette. If you're going to arrive late for a group class, at least set up on the fringes. Don't try to squeeze in right next to someone. "You have to move over, and it just gets uncomfortable," said Dana Bloomquist of Tustin, Calif.

6

Dropping weights. You don't see this much at the bigger gyms, because, as many of the members told me at 24 Hour Fitness, most of the hardcore lifters go to other gyms, like Gold's. But occasionally you hear the thunderclap of two 80-pound dumbbells hitting the barely padded floor.

7

Wearing overly revealing outfits, or leering at my revealing outfit. Some people go to the gym to be ogled, and that's fine. But the floor isn't a catwalk. At the same time, keep your eyes in their sockets. What? Is this the first time you have seen someone with ripped abs and a bronze tan in February?

Body odor. Not to sound like your middle-school P.E. teacher (back in the days when there was such a creature), but wash those togs every day, please. "I don't know if some people just don't have friends to tell them, or what," Bautista said.

2

Machine hogging. I watched a woman (clearly violating the first part of No. 7) just sitting at the curl machine, bobbing to the hiphop playing on the sound system, and occasionally doing a set. "They're just staying at the same machine, even though they know people are waiting," Bloomquist said. "They're machine hogs." Rich, from San Clemente, Calif., said most people don't have all day to hang around. "You see some guys in here sitting on a weight bench and talking to their buddies. A lot of people just want to get in and out."

1

Take your sweat with you! If you took a poll every year, failure to wipe down machines and benches would be the No. 1 worst habit every time, forever. "I see people here without towels, and they're supposed to have them," scolded Jan Wiviott of Foothill Ranch, Calif.

In her OWN words

Women's activist Gloria Steinem shares her experiences in a new HBO special

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's shocking, I know," says Gloria Steinem, allowing herself a wry grin. And for once, the author, activist and feminist icon isn't talking about a case of gender inequity at home or a human rights violation across the globe. This time, she's talking about her age.

Steinem is 77, and most people are even more shocked than she is. Not only because she looks fiftyish, but because she is, in the minds of many, frozen in the 1970s — a tall, slim, striking woman with long streaked hair (it's still streaked, but shorter now) and those big aviator glasses.

But four decades have indeed passed since Steinem helped launch the women's movement. And this summer finds her in a reflective mode: working on a book about her years on the road — a combination of essays and memoir — and promoting a new documentary celebrating her life. "Gloria: In Her Own Words" premieres Monday on HBO.

Nestled on a couch in her comfortable Manhattan apartment one recent afternoon, Steinem acknowledges that often such tributes come at the end of one's life and career — and she has no intention of either ending anytime soon.

But, she says, maybe this isn't such a bad time to look back a little.

"My hope is, this film will make people think: It's been 30 or 40 years. Where do we want to be 40 years from now?" Besides, she adds: "I want people to realize that if a very imperfect person did this, maybe they can, too!"

That self-effacing tone runs through much of what Steinem says — she likes to stress, for example, that if she had never come along, the same progress for women would have been achieved anyway. (Steinem was a highly visible spokeswoman for the women's movement, but there were many others who made it happen, too.) Her admirers say they're not so sure.

"It would have been like Christmas without Santa Claus — she was the goddess of the movement," says Sheila Nevins, co-producer of the new documentary with Peter Kunhardt, who directed. "She doesn't take credit, but I give it to her."

One of Steinem's most important qualities, says Nevins, is that she showed "how you could be the bull AND the china shop — aggressive AND gentle." She notes that growing up, she was taught to think a girl couldn't be pretty and smart at the same time: "Gloria made me realize I could."

Steinem, though, makes clear that being branded the beautiful, sexy feminist was a double-edged sword at best.

"It's a problem we all share, getting identified by your outside looks," she says. "The most hurtful part is that you work very hard, and people say it's because of your looks."

Steinem learned that lesson well before she became an activist — with her famous Playboy adventure in the early '60s, where she donned the bunny suit to go undercover for a magazine and expose degrading working conditions at the Playboy Club.

She deeply regrets the whole episode. "I could not have made a bigger mistake," she says. "It was personally and professionally a disaster. In the short term it was much harder to get serious assignments, and in the long term it's been used to ridicule me."

Steinem can't escape the Playboy story: Recently she's been asked by many journalists what she thinks of an upcoming NBC period drama about the Playboy Club. For the record: not much, though she hasn't seen it yet.

"They were tacky, awful places to work," she says of the clubs. "This will no doubt be a glamorized version."

Steinem also wonders why a TV interviewer recently used precious air time to ask about that long-ago episode. She would rather have been asked about a New York Times op-ed piece she had just written, about a controversial new naval base on Jeju Island off South Korea.

Such an issue may seem off the beaten path for Steinem, but she's long been vocal about a wide range of international issues, like sex trafficking, genital mutilation, or violence against women across the globe. "I'm just not sure I believe in boundaries anymore," she says.

At home, it won't be surprising to see her weigh in on the 2012 presidential race, as she did in 2008 — opposing Sarah Palin ("Wrong Woman, Wrong Message," she titled a column) and decrying what she saw as sexist media treatment of Hillary Rodham Clinton, whom she supported over Barack Obama in the Democratic primaries.

Steinem hopes the current secretary of state might yet become president. "Many more Americans can now imagine a female chief of state, because of her,"

she says. "After a second Obama term ..."

For the documentary, producers amassed a treasure trove of film clips, photos and other tidbits that tell the story of Steinem's long career.

We see a young Steinem tap-dancing in an elevator — it was one of her talents — and flirting with George Burns in a TV interview. We also see some striking negative reactions to Steinem and her feminism: A vicious call from a female viewer on "Larry King Live," telling her to "rot in hell" and advising her never to have children; or, more recently, conservative host Glenn Beck call her a "cranky feminist" and making a vomit gesture.

There's also news anchor Harry Reasoner predicting that Ms. Magazine, which Steinem co-founded in 1972, would fail (it's still publishing today) and, perhaps most interesting, a segment from the Nixon tapes, with the former president dissing Steinem to Henry Kissinger.

Asked her biggest mistakes, Steinem replies with a laugh: "How much time do we have?" Turning serious, she mentions her father. She did not travel to California to see him in the hospital after a car accident, and he died alone.

"I had taken care of my mom as a child, and I feared I'd never come back," she says.

Steinem also wishes she'd "fought harder" for things she believed in. One of the choices she doesn't regret, however, is not having had children.

"I was in Mumbai at a women's center a few years ago, and they asked whether I regretted that," says Steinem. "I thought, if I tell them the truth, I'll lose them. But there was no point in lying, and so I said, 'No, not for a millisecond' — and they applauded. Because they don't have the choice."

As for marriage, Steinem surprised many when she married for the first time at age 66, to entrepreneur David Bale, father of actor Christian Bale. Bale died a few years later.

"I hadn't changed — marriage had changed," she says now. "We wanted to be together, we loved each other. And he needed a green card. But it was so lucky, because when he got sick, he was on my health insurance." The experience strengthened her commitment to same-sex marriage.

Her greatest satisfaction, Steinem says, is still when people come up to her — in the subway, on a plane — and tell her stories about their lives.

Like the man at the ticket counter at the Washington airport a week ago, who wanted to talk to her about his mother, and all her accomplishments. "It happens all the time," she says.

Though an agitator by profession, Steinem speaks today of a new kind of contentment.

She was in a taxi recently, she says, and her iPhone was out of juice, meaning she had time to look out the window.

"I was looking out, and I had an amazing feeling of serenity, of well-being," she says. "A sense that I don't want a house in the country, or anything I don't have. I was feeling a unity, a oneness."

What was that all about, her interviewer wonders? "It must be my age."

Rainy day BBQ ribs that you can enjoy with less guilt

By Rocco DiSpirito
The Associated Press

Who can resist good barbecue ribs? They are the ultimate comfort food — juicy, tender pork that has been smoked and bathed in a sweet and savory glaze until the meat falls from the bone.

Eating doesn't get much better than that.

It may also have something to do with the fact that you eat ribs with your hands, and get messy in the process. The sauce coats your fingers, your face. Real caveman stuff. Wear a bib if you want to, but I like the gooeey splatter.

But eat enough ribs, and you won't be able to see your own. The calories on a typical plate of barbecue ribs can surge to more than 900 calories, and more fat grams than I can count. That's a lot of punishment to inflict on your scale, not to mention your cardiovascular system.

Am I saying that you have to eat salad instead of those endless slabs of ribs? Not at all. If you want to keep enjoying ribs while making sure your own stay lean, break out my smoky rainy day ribs. They're made with baby back ribs, which are the leanest cut of pork ribs because they come from the back not the belly. They also cook up tender relatively quickly compared to spare ribs.

For the rib aficionado, the outdoor smoker or barbecue is the traditional method for cooking ribs, but my recipe is made in the oven. And while these aren't true smoked ribs, they are healthy and delicious. I always say you shouldn't taste what you're missing and for most people (excluding you grill snobs out there), it's hard to tell the difference between these and proper smoked ribs.

And though you cook them slowly, these ribs require little hands-on time. Just throw the sauce together, dump it over the ribs, then pack it all up in a big foil pouch and throw it in the oven.

As for the sauce, it's not just any sauce. It's a homemade, calorie-saving barbecue sauce you won't mind licking off your fingers. The trick is to use a combination of liquid smoke and smoky spices to infuse the meat with that grilled flavor. Do not use commercial barbecue sauce. A lot of those sauces are loaded with sugar, laced with preservatives and full of artificial flavors, artificial colors and thickeners, the kinds of stuff that works better as a primer coat for a fender.

Once out of the oven, expect tangy and tender ribs that are full of flavor. These are the fall-off-the-bone kind of ribs. The best ribs are tender but not submissive. They make you labor just a bit for their reward — succulent meat with a little tug. Before too long, that plate in front of you is a vast wasteland of bones. And you've only worked your way through 327 calories.

Mmmm. ribs. What's not to love?

This undated file image courtesy of Rocco DiSpirito shows DiSpirito in New York. For the rib aficionado, the outdoor smoker or barbecue is the traditional method for cooking ribs, but this recipe is made in the oven.

SMOKY RAINY DAY RIBS

Start to finish: 2 hours (20 minutes active)

Servings: 4

1 rack baby back ribs (12 ribs), about 2 pounds total, trimmed of all visible fat, cut into 4 equal pieces

Salt and ground black pepper

1 tablespoon sweet and smoky rub (such as McCormick)

1 1/2 tablespoons liquid smoke (such as Stubb's)

1 cup reduced-sugar ketchup

2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar

1 large Spanish onion, chopped
12 cloves garlic, roughly chopped
2 stalks rosemary (about 6 inches each)
Heat the oven to 425 F. Set a 2-foot sheet of heavy-duty foil on a rimmed baking sheet. Season the ribs generously with salt and pepper.

In a large bowl, combine the sweet and smoky rub, liquid smoke, ketchup, balsamic vinegar, onion and garlic. Add the ribs to the bowl and toss to coat completely. Transfer the ribs and marinade to the foil, then top it with the rosemary stalks. Place another sheet of foil on over the meat. Fold up the edges of the bottom sheet of foil and crimp them together with the top sheet to make a tightly sealed package.

Place the ribs in oven and bake for 30 minutes. Reduce the heat to 275 F and bake until tender, about 45 minutes to 1 hour. Spoon some of the sauce from the foil packet over the ribs to serve.
