Fly-in 'a tremendous opportunity'

Special to the Press Gazette

The 22nd annual Naval Helicopter Association Gulf Coast Fleet Fly-In on Thursday was for the young and old of heart.

The fly-in gives flight students an inside look at what they have to look forward to down the road, bringing in roughly 26 fleet helicopters piloted by the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. The fly-in takes future flight students on flights around the Santa Rosa County area and gives them a close-up look of the helicopters and their purpose.

The event served to give flight students in advanced helicopter training their first taste of which aircraft they might be flying after they complete training.

Although the event started with just a few aircraft, it has grown to regularly feature about two dozen rotary winged aircraft.

The NHA brings industry displays from various aviation companies and enables tremendous networking opportunities between pilots and corporate representatives. However, the true value of the fly-in is the effect it has on the flight students as they prepare to make career decisions on aircraft they would like to fly, which will

Fall activities abound in Santa Rosa County

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

The recent nip in the air is an indication of fall in Santa Rosa County, and with it comes Halloween.

There are a host of activities for residents to enjoy in the final two weekends leading up to the annual Trick or Treating by little ghosts and goblins on Oct. 31.

Main Street Milton is getting things started with Helltown, a haunted house this weekend and the next on Elva Street. The horror will start at 7 p.m., and tickets are $5 per person.

Final preparations are also being made for the Santa Rosa Historical Society's Ghost Walk on Oct. 28-29.

This year will feature Elvis on stage at the Imogene Theater as well as the dedication once again of the WPA Post Office Project, featuring artwork hanging inside the Post Master's office.

Another interesting feature this year will be the Santa Rosa County Historical

'Tasteless' images turn up in school bracelets

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

Jay Elementary School has requested that students return slap bracelets they received as part of a fundraiser prize because of a shocking discovery.

One parent, Sandra Lambeth of Jay, contacted the school on Thursday after a slap bracelet given to her daughter was taken apart and images of women were found imprinted on the tape measures inside.

"I would call the images terribly tasteless, but not X-rated," said Jay Principal Danny Carnley.

Carnley said one person had described the images as something you might see in a country garage when referring to the photos found on the four slap bands.

The fundraiser where the slap bracelets were distributed was through Reading for Education LLC, which supervises the Computers for Education Program.

Carnley said since he has been the principal, Jay has used this company for fundraisers.

Elijah Collard, president of Reading for Education, issued a letter of apology to Carnley and Jay Elementary.

"I am writing to formally apologize for the situation you have encountered with one of the prizes we provided," Collard wrote. "I can assure you that we are just as shocked and frustrated as you to discover inappropriate printing on

Area law enforcement agencies practice crisis negotiation

Photos and Story by Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

On Monday, the Santa Rosa Correctional Institution and several other law enforcement agencies from around the Panhandle took part in the ninth annual Crisis Negotiations Training Day at the training facilities at the Santa Rosa Correctional Institution in East Milton.

The institution holds this training seminar in order to get acquainted with other agencies in the West Florida region in case a crisis negotiation or other situation arises in which the agencies have to work together.

More than 14 crisis negotiation teams came to the all-day event that featured several negotiation scenarios, followed by a brief lunch.

Santa Rosa Correctional Institution Warden Randy Tifft came to the event along with guest crisis negotiation speakers from around the Gulf Coast, including a speaker from a Louisiana negotiations department who aided in a recent crisis.

"This allows us to collaborate between these different departments," Tifft said. "We do this in conglomeration with Escambia County, Santa Rosa County, Okaloosa County, Walton County and the Pensacola Police Department."

Anne Hooton, the Santa Rosa Correctional Institution crisis negotiation team leader, helps coordinate the event every year.

The event came just weeks after the Santa Rosa Correctional Institution outlawed inmate smoking. The new ban could spark tensions with inmates housed at the correctional institution. In most cases where prisons ban smoking across the nation, prisoners have been known to revolt. In other cases, prisoners smuggle in cigarettes to the prison.

Beware of traveling thieves: New season brings new scams

Special to the Press Gazette

A cool breeze, low humidity and the return of friends and neighbors from up north can only mean one thing: Fall has once again arrived in Northwest Florida.

Unfortunately, this time of year also means the arrival of "gypsies" and "travelers" who head our way looking for an opportunity to take advantage of those in need of various home repairs.

This alert from the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office serves as a reminder to be on the lookout for these con-artists who are very good at persuading, convincing and finally separating you from your money.

The con starts with a knock on your door and an offer to do repairs around your home.

These repairs could be roof coating/repair of shingles, asphalt paving/driveway sealing, house painting, tree trimming/landscaping, and termite/pest control, just to name a few. They offer to do the work and charge you less than what a reputable local company would charge.

The idea of paying less money is always a welcoming thought, but you must remember that doing business with someone that is just passing through can prove to be a disastrous decision. After receiving a deposit or the full amount, you are told they are going to get supplies and will return.

Some take the money and run; others return but provide extremely poor labor resulting in additional monies being spent at a later date to fix the original problem.

These thieves have also been known to con their way into your home on the pretense of using your phone, checking for leaks, selling a must have item, etc. While inside your home they look for valuables, easy items to pocket and/or your personal information. Some work in pairs and while one of them has your attention, the other is working their way through your home taking what isn't theirs.

BELOW ARE A FEW TIPS TO KEEP IN MIND:

- Never let a stranger into your home.
- Never give full payment for the job until it is complete.
- Don't do business with door-to-door contractors.
- Beware of high-pressure sales tactics and the familiar story of having left over material from another job.
- Keep all doors, including the garage door, closed and locked at all times, especially when you are outside working in the yard. Stepping away from the front of the house to retrieve something in the backyard is all the time needed to gain access to your home.
- Make sure your entry point doors are made of solid wood or metal and have deadbolt locks.
- Do not hide keys under the doormat or rocks.
- Secure sliding glass doors with anti-slide block or slide bolt.
- Contact the Better Business Bureau at 429-0002 or www.sunbiz.org to verify the company is who they say they are.
- Check your warranty. You might already be covered at no cost to you.

I wanted to say to the lady who called about the Homecoming Parade that it is better they did it this way than not to have a Homecoming Parade at all in Milton.

I am glad they have the parades once again.

Wednesday 9:37 a.m.

Hey I was wondering if any one like me feels we have far too many deputies in Santa Rosa County.

When I drive through Escambia or Okaloosa counties I might see two or three deputies.

When I drive from one side to the other of Santa Rosa County I see 10 to 15 deputies and usually they are sitting around and talking to one another.

Maybe we all should take a look.

Citrus shows a "sun spot" result because citrus rust mites avoid feeding on the most sun-exposed portion of the fruit.

THERESA FRIDAY | Special to the Press Gazette

Rusty-looking fruit could be citrus rust mites

By Theresa Friday
Extension Faculty-Residential Horticulture UF/IFAS Santa Rosa County

Citrus grown in the home landscape can be attacked by a number of insect and mite pests. Some are large enough to be spotted early in their infestation. Others are so small that you can't see them without magnification. Consequently, you don't notice their damage until it's too late. One very small pest that delivers an unsightly punch is the citrus rust mite (CRM).

Mites are arachnids rather than insects, making them related to spiders. While there are several different types of mites that affect citrus, CRM is perhaps the most common.

The citrus rust mite is found on all citrus varieties throughout Florida. Populations of CRM can develop quickly under ideal conditions, with a female laying 20 to 30 eggs over a 20-day period. Although they can be found at anytime of the year, peak populations usually occur during June and July.

Rust mites have piercing-sucking mouthparts and feed on the outside exposed epidermal surface of fruit that is 1/2 inch or larger and on plant leaves and green twigs. Feeding destroys the rind cells and ultimately causes a very unappealing and alarming looking fruit.

The appearance and amount of damage depends on when the infestation occurs. When a fruit is injured in summer or fall, the injured surface is smooth and dark brown in color, commonly referred to as "bronzing". Mites feeding on fruit early in the spring produce a peel referred to as "sharkskin" because of its rough, grayish color. Blemished fruit lose water faster than undamaged fruit and will be smaller and appear substandard.

CRMs prefer the fruit on tree's outer canopy that are exposed to sunlight. However, the mite itself will avoid the most sun-exposed portion of the fruit. This behavior results in a "sun spot" of undamaged rind on the sunny side of the fruit. This pattern of damage is helpful in the diagnosis of this pest.

Not all the fruit on a tree will be afflicted and not every citrus tree in the yard will have an infestation. Thankfully, this condition has no effect on flavor; it is strictly a surface blemish. It does make fruit unsellable (and sometimes even hard to give away), but still good to eat. Unfortunately, there is nothing you can do for it once the fruit is damaged.

Since rust mites are not readily visible to the naked eye, by the time the damage has been observed, spraying isn't usually worthwhile. Therefore, early scouting is critical to avoid fruit blemishes. Use a magnifying glass to look for mites when infestation is expected to commence. Mite populations usually begin to increase in April on new foliage and reach a peak in June to July. Depending on weather conditions and the occurrence of natural enemies, CRM populations usually decline in August and September, but increase again in October and November.

Pay special attention to trees recently sprayed with insecticides. The misuse of insecticides can sometime allow an explosion of mites.

Horticultural oils can be used to control many pests that attack citrus, including mites, whiteflies and scales. These products work by suffocating insects and causing them to die. When applied properly, oils provide a very useful tool for controlling some citrus pests without damage to beneficial organisms, but the sprays require careful use to avoid plant Injury.

In general, be sure to carefully read any insecticide labels before applying them to your citrus trees. Before you spray your citrus with any insecticide, make sure citrus is included on the label. Also make sure the insects or mites you would like to control are listed on the label.

Florida aims to white out teen crashes

Special to the Press Gazette

Traffic crashes are the No.1 killer of teens in Florida and in the United States. To keep more teens safe in the driver and passenger seats, the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles joined five high schools in areas throughout the state today to host White Out events.

The Department asked teens, parents, school employees and other safety partners around the state to participate by wearing a white shirt today to help white out teen crashes.

National Teen Driver Safety Week is Oct. 16–22, and DHSMV is using the opportunity to educate teens and their parents about staying safe behind the wheel.

"Today's white out is a good reminder that driving is a big responsibility and that parents and guardians play a key role in teaching their children safe driving behaviors that impact how they drive for their entire lives," said DHSMV Executive Director Julie Jones. "With increased education and parental support, we can work together to save lives by reducing the number of crashes that involve teens."

Teens ages 15–19 have the highest crash rate of any age group in Florida.

Below are statistics from the Florida Traffic Crash Statistics Report 2010 that provide some additional insight.

• 737,645 teens are licensed to drive in the Sunshine State.

• 26,848 crashes involved teens last year.

•144 teens died (includes drivers and passengers).

•18,543 teens were injured (includes drivers and passengers).

• Florida's teen drivers are twice as likely to crash as their parents and three times as likely to crash as their grandparents.

The Department has launched www.TakeTheWheel.net, an interactive website by teens for teens, as well as Drive with CARE (Courtesy, Attention, Responsibility, Experience) to educate teens and their parents about Florida's Graduated Driver Licensing law and the importance of parental involvement in teaching teens to drive.

Drive with CARE provides a drivers guide available online and in state and tax collector operated driver license offices throughout the state.

The Florida Sheriffs Association, numerous state and local law enforcement agencies, and safety advocates throughout Florida are joining the Department in this important campaign.

The Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles provides highway safety and security through excellence in service, education and enforcement. The Department is leading the way to a safer Florida through the efficient and professional execution of its core mission: the issuance of driver licenses, vehicle tags and titles and operation of the Florida Highway Patrol.

Oh by golly, help make the holidays jolly

Special to the Press Gazette

Santa Rosa Kids' House, Inc. (SRKH) is under way with its annual Angel Tree Project.

"Last year in Santa Rosa County alone there were over 200 children that had Christmas thanks to our community. This year we are anticipating about the same number, and we are asking for everyone's support," says Ashley Alonso, SRKH Director.

Currently we are seeking local businesses that would be willing to put up a tree in their place of business. Each business can specify the number of angels they would like to have. Monetary donations for the project are always appreciated. At the end of the project the children that haven't been adopted will still have Christmas from the funds donated. If your business would like to have its own toy drive in honor of the Kids' House, we welcome that option as well. Individuals may also adopt a child. Children range from newborn to 18 years of age.

"We are hoping to have all the trees on display and the angels out in the community beginning the week of Nov. 7 and ending the 2011 project the week of Dec. 5," Alonso said.

Help the children of our community have a Christmas. If you have items and would like to support this project you may drop them off at the Santa Rosa Kids' House located at 5643 Stewart Street in Milton at any time. These children suffer enough, help make the holidays bright for them.

For more information or ways you can help, please contact Ashley at 850-623-1112 or by email at coordinator@srkidshouse.org.

Our mission is to deliver a well-coordinated and multi-disciplined response to child abuse in an environment that puts the needs of children first.

Santa Rosa Kids' House is an independent 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization that is not state or federally funded.

Local coalition to receive part of $2 million DCF grant

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

The Department of Children and Families' (DCF) Secretary David Wilkins announced this week $2,031,337 in grant funding to help local groups implement their care plans for the homeless.

The grant was divided up between 28 agencies across the state of Florida with the Esca-Rosa Coalition for Homeless named as one of the recipients.

They are expected to receive a grant of just over $63,000.

"The ongoing economic recession has left many Floridians in financial crisis," Wilkins said. "It is imperative that we work with our communities to empower at-risk families with the resources necessary to get them back on their feet. This grant does just that."

DCF's Office of Homelessness administers the state's Challenge Grant program from state general revenue according to Florida Statute.

This year, the grant will support services at 133 local agencies helping the homeless with temporary housing and essential services, including meals, transportation, health care, education and employment.

The grant also will assist at-risk families with financial aid to help families remain in their housing. More than 36,000 people in Florida are expected to be helped including individuals, families, youth aging out of foster care, persons with mental illness or substance abuse issues, victims of domestic violence and veterans.

The homeless assistance Challenge Grant was created in 2001 to help implement services and activities contained within local homeless continuums of care plans. These plans detail the community vision for coordinating efforts to prevent homelessness. The grants are being awarded a month before National Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week, which takes place every year the week before Thanksgiving.

Attempts to obtain a comment from ECOH Interim Director John Johnson were unsuccessful.

Blue Waitman Day block party to be Nov. 5

Special to the Press Gazette

In 1984, the City of Milton along with Mayor Guy Thompson and City Councilman R.L. Lewis proclaimed Nov. 7 as Blue Waitman Day.

In a celebration of such an esteemed honor, his descendants will host a community block party from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Nov. 5 on Susan Street. The block party will be free for the community and provide a variety of booths, food, community services and fun activities for all children.

The legacy of Waitman is one of hope, diligence, faith and vision of a better community and a better America. As such, it is our intention to inspire community organizations and individuals to participate in what we believe as a day of the accomplishments Waitman has achieved in promoting community involvement.

With the support of the community, we can continue to invest in a vision and strategy that supports our local economy and empowers our citizens.

In the spirit of Waitman, we are asking for your support by offering your services, donating your time or donating food and refreshments.

For more information or to volunteer at the inaugural community event, call 281-9292, 449-8881 or 623-4265.

Cmdr. Paul Bowdich gives visitors a tour of each of the 26 fleet helicopters at the 22nd annual Naval Helicopter Association Gulf Coast Fleet Fly-In.

accompany them in carrying out their mission with the military.

"I remember that the first time I climbed into a fleet helicopter was during the fleet fly-in, said Cmdr. Hans Sholley, commanding officer of Helicopter Training Squadron EIGHT. "There should be something from each of the rotary wing communities to help the students get some hands-on experience with a fleet squadron. It's a tremendous opportunity to learn."

The four-day event began Tuesday afternoon at Whiting Field. Frequent fly-in participants include the H-53 Sea Stallion, the various versions of the H-60 Seahawk, the MH-60S Knighthawk, MH-60R, Marine Corps H-53 Sea Stallion, AH-1 Cobra, UH-1 Huey and the Coast Guard HH-65 Dolphin.

Students are afforded three windows of opportunity to fly in the fleet aircraft, but other opportunities through social and formal events enable them to ask questions and learn from the more experienced pilots. These events include industry displays, briefs from community detailers for the students, static display aircraft, cookouts and sporting activities with the fleet pilots.

The event takes months to plan and involves cooperation from NAS Whiting Field, Training Air Wing FIVE, corporate sponsors, military contract personnel and more. It is a long process, but one that is eagerly awaited each year by the staff and students in the training squadrons.

"The goal is to make an event that builds on previous years, to set a foundation to help it grow," Sholley said. "It is a great event that brings the training all together for the students. It is a great motivator for them, since they can see the light at the end of the tunnel."

The fly-in comes less than a month from when Capt. Pete Hall will step down as NAS Whiting Field's commanding officer.

the interior metal of the 'Slap Bracelet.'"

We have notified the U.S. supplier about the problem who has, in turn, contacted the manufacturer in China. We are returning all 'slap bracelet' inventory to our supplier, and discontinuing their use.

"We thank you for bringing this problem to our attention and we ask that you extend our sincere apology to any parent this issue has affected."

Carnley said about 160 bracelets were given out, and the offensive images were found on only four of the bracelets. The rest had rulers inside.

"The only way these images were revealed is if you took the bracelets apart," Carnley said. "I have only received one complaint, and nobody was forced to return the bracelets, but it was the right thing to do."

When asked if this will change the school's relationship with the fundraising company, Carnley said he doubted it.

"This will not affect how I feel about working with Computers for Education," Carnley said. "Now if I will want to get slap bracelets again, probably not."

MINORITY VIEWPOINT

Pitting us against each other

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
Walter Williams

President Barack Obama and the Democratic Party have led increasingly successful efforts to pit Americans against one another through the politics of hate and envy. Attacking CEO salaries, the president — last year during his Midwest tour — said, "I do think at a certain point you've made enough money."

Let's look at CEO salaries, but before doing so, let's look at other salary disparities between those at the bottom and those at the top. According to Forbes' Celebrity 100 list for 2010, Oprah Winfrey earned $290 million. Even if her makeup person or cameraman earned $100,000, she earned thousands of times more than that. Is that fair? Among other celebrities earning hundreds or thousands of times more than the people who work with them are Tyler Perry ($130 million), Jerry Bruckheimer ($113 million), Lady Gaga ($90 million) and Howard Stern ($76 million). According to Forbes, the top 10 celebrities, excluding athletes, earned an average salary of a little more than $100 million in 2010.

According to The Wall Street Journal Survey of CEO Compensation (November 2010), Gregory Maffei, CEO of Liberty Media, earned $87 million, Oracle's Lawrence Ellison ($68 million) and rounding out the top 10 CEOs was McKesson's John Hammergren, earning $24 million. It turns out that the top 10 CEOs have an average salary of $43 million, which pales in comparison with America's top 10 celebrities, who earn an average salary of $100 million.

When you recognize that celebrities earn salaries that are some multiples of CEO salaries, you have to ask: Why is it that rich CEOs are demonized and not celebrities? A clue might be found if you asked: Who's doing the demonizing? It turns out that the demonizing is led by politicians and leftists with the help of the news media, and like sheep, the public often goes along. Why demonize CEOs? My colleague Dr. Thomas Sowell explained it in his brand-new book, "The Thomas Sowell Reader." One of his readings, titled "Ivan and Boris — and Us," starts off with a fable of two poor Russian peasants. Ivan finds a magic lamp and rubs it, and the jinni grants him one wish. As it turns out, Boris has a goat, but Ivan doesn't. Ivan's wish is for Boris' goat to die. That vision reflects the feelings of too many Americans. If all CEOs worked for nothing, it would mean absolutely little or nothing to the average American's bottom line.

For politicians, it's another story: Demonize people whose power you want to usurp. That's the typical way totalitarians gain power. They give the masses someone to hate. In 18th-century France, it was Maximilien Robespierre's promoting hatred of the aristocracy that was the key to his acquiring more dictatorial power than the aristocracy had ever had. In the 20th century, the communists gained power by promoting public hatred of the czars and capitalists. In Germany, Adolf Hitler gained power by promoting hatred of Jews and Bolsheviks. In each case, the power gained led to greater misery and bloodshed than anything the old regime could have done.

Let me be clear: I'm not equating America's liberals with Robespierre, Josef Stalin and Hitler. I am saying that promoting jealousy, fear and hate is an effective strategy for politicians and their liberal followers to control and micromanage businesses. It's not about the amount of money people earn. If it were, politicians and leftists would be promoting jealousy, fear and hate toward multimillionaire Hollywood and celebrities and sports stars, such as LeBron James ($48 million), Tiger Woods ($75 million) and Peyton Manning ($38 million). But there is no way that politicians could take over the roles of Oprah Winfrey, Lady Gaga and LeBron James. That means celebrities can make any amount of money they want and it matters not one iota politically.

The Occupy Wall Street crowd shouldn't focus its anger at wealthy CEOs. A far more appropriate target would be the U.S. Congress.

MAT BILL ProCon

Topic: Why occupy Wall Street?

In our blood

Bill, you are obviously an old dude. Unlike you, we whipper-snappers like to get out there and protest our thoughts instead of just whining about stuff over coffee.

People live in the United States because we have freedoms. Freedoms like those being shown not only in Pensacola and Wall Street, but in communities all across the nation. Other countries would arrest men and women for speaking out about what they believe in.

So, obviously what we have here is an American who doesn't believe in the freedoms that we have. On numerous occasions you have called me un-American, Bill. This obviously proves who the real patriot is.

What you don't seem to understand is, according to statistics, every American would have to pay the government $50,000 in order to get this country out of debt. I don't know about you Bill, but I don't have $50,000 lying around in a shoe box.

These "young'uns" are protesting what many have protested silently for years. They are finally coming out of the woodwork and proving a point: As Americans, we are screwed.

I may be young, but I've already been told on numerous occasions that if things keep going the way they are, I'm going to be retiring when I'm 80 because Social Security will not have a dime left by the time I'm old.

I'm sure all the young folks out there appreciate thinking what they have to look forward to down the road when they can't even retire at a decent age.

I might as well get used to working, Bill, because from the sounds of it, I will be doing just that for the rest of my life.

These people want what's best for their country because, no offense, they're not getting it now.

I think we need to change the month we are in now to "Proctober" because of all of the protests that have been beading up everywhere around the nation.

Earlier this month people were upset about the United States Postal Services treatment of their employees and their announcement that they were going to close offices to save money.

The bottom line in all of this Bill, is that there's a growing number of Americans who are as mad as hell and aren't going to take it any more. They look at all their friends, relatives and neighbors who have lost jobs. Those who still have jobs, shiver daily in the thought that they may lose theirs. Companies are asking those who still have jobs to take pay cuts, to work longer hours, to do the job of two or three people. What do they get in exchange? The right to keep their jobs for, maybe, another month.

In the meantime, they see how all these cuts they've taken have resulted in higher profits for the company fat cats. They see the CEO's of these big companies getting $20-million bonus checks while they stand in line for an unemployment check.

They blame it all on Wall Street and the concept of making money today by gambling on how things will be tomorrow – a way of thinking that leads companies to say they MUST make more this year than last year or some heads will have to roll. That, Bill, is what Occupy Wall Street is all about.

Let the protestors stand up for the little people like me Bill. We all know you have an opinion, but whining about it to another person doesn't have the same effect as bellowing it out to the nation.

The problem is us

Mat, I too am a 99 percenter, but I also understand that it is us who has created this problem.

With one statement I could clear out almost every protester on Wall Street (or wherever they happen to): "If you didn't vote in the last election, go home!"

Wall Street might be where our angst is being directed, but it isn't directly Wall Street's fault. It is the fault of the politicians who have not legislated against this type of legal gambling and, since we keep putting these same people back in office, in the end, it is our own fault.

I have long said, I vote so I can complain.

How many in this generation (or any generation) have voted?

Voter apathy is something I have long talked about and now apathy has grown up to become something that has bitten us in the backside.

By not voting, we have allowed a small group, to control our nation.

In 1960, over 63 percent of the voting age population turned out to vote?

That number has fallen to as low as 49 percent in 1996 and in 2008 it was just under 57 percent.

I am not a census taker, but our population has grown significantly.

In 2008, when the voters selected Barack Obama, there were 231,229,580 people in the United States of voting age, according to numbers from the Federal Elections Commission.

In 1960 there were just over 109-million people of voting age in the country. Almost 69-million took the time to vote.

If you don't vote, you are rubber-stamping the ideas of those who do.

Those protesting on Wall Street, I feel, have contributed to the mess by keeping the politicians in office who created the fiasco in the first place. The more important question now is: how do we get out?

These folk are protesting on Wall Street, but I maintain that is not the issue.

As Americans, we have enjoyed the good times thanks to the stock market and there have been the bad times as well.

Those bad times are not only now, but there were the days of the Great Depression and a time (in the late 1970s and early 1980s.)

Mat, I am afraid your generation feels entitled. You don't understand hard times or having to do without.

Your generation is accustomed to getting a ribbon or trophy for just showing up. In life, there is seldom a consolation prize.

I continue to watch the protests and applaud those who are there for the right reason, but I do not see any true direction coming from this.

I am worried the cure could be as bad as the illness.

Instead of Occupying Wall Street, why aren't these 99-percenters in Washington, D.C.?

Isn't this where the problem truly lies?

I remember having my photo taken in Washington, D.C. back in June of 1986 and Mat, you see this photo near my desk in our office every day.

In the photo with me is then-Senator Mitch McConnell.

That was over 25 years ago and McConnell is still there today.

By not voting and letting these pinheads lead our nation down this nightmare we are experiencing we are getting what we asked for.

And I am not going to touch on the fact how some states kept sending the likes of Strom Thurmond and Robert Byrd for even longer.

Mindlessly, we keep sending these same people back. They play with our lives like a puppet master while passing rules that protect themselves. Everyone has the opinion "it is not my senator or representative who is the problem, it is the politician from that other state." Problem is, the people from the other state think their leader is fine and ours is the problem. In the end, we can only vote out OUR politicians. So, no one gets voted out.

As long as we, as Americans, continue to do this, we deserve what we get.

Instead of hearing some people on television talk about the environment or equal justice lets hear them talk about a true balanced budget, term limits, and a flat tax.

That would be a start to correct some of the problems.

Until we, as citizens, take control of the election process and demand more of our elected officials, we will continue to get this dysfunctional government.

They will continue to hand out federal dollars for nothing to their corporate buddies and allow the banks and the one percent to do what they wish while the masses foot the bill.

Remember these are the same people who wanted to pass laws to shore up the banking industry and have done so by allowing them to charge us a whole bunch of new fees to use our money.

Leaders who have been in D.C. for decades created our current financial crisis by allowing institutions to direct Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac funds for home loans.

Now, without jobs, these folks find there is no way to repay the home loans.

Until the 99-percent really want to do something about the problem by voting, I cannot find any reason to support the cause.

WOMEN HAVE A BETTER CHOICE FOR BREAST HEALTH.

I'm a mom, and I love taking care of my family. Thanks to regular mammogram screenings, I'm also a breast cancer survivor. Baptist Health Care located my breast cancer when it was still too small to feel and now I'm cancer-free. As a regional leader in technology that improves lives, Baptist Health Care offers women the latest in digital mammography for unparalleled high-quality images and reliable results – 3-D digital mammography. While this means faster, higher-quality mammograms, for me it means being a survivor.

Accredited by the American College of Radiology

FWC offers hunter safety course in Okaloosa County

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) is offering a free hunter safety course in Okaloosa County. The course will be at the Okaloosa County Extension Office, 127 N.W. Hollywood Blvd. in Fort Walton Beach. Instruction is from 6 - 9 p.m. Oct. 24, 25, 26 and 27. The range portion of the class is Oct. 29 from 8 - 11 a.m. An adult must accompany children under age 16 at all times. Students should bring a pencil and paper with them to take notes.

The hunter safety course is required before anyone born on or after June 1, 1975, can purchase a Florida hunting license. The FWC course satisfies hunter-safety training requirements for all other states and Canadian provinces.

People interested in attending this course can register online and obtain information about future hunter safety classes at MyFWC.com/HunterSafety or by calling the FWC's regional office in Panama City at 265-3676.

Golf attire is required and no steel spikes are allowed on the course. To register call or visit Tanglewood Golf Club at 623-6176.

Lady Argos picked to finish seventh in GSC

Special to the Press Gazette

The University of West Florida women's basketball team was selected to finish seventh in the Gulf South Conference Preseason Coaches' Poll, the conference announced Sunday. Delta State is slated to finish first after receiving seven first place votes.

The GSC will play this season without the six Arkansas schools and will now have eight teams competing in just one division. Valdosta State follows Delta State in the poll with Alabama-Huntsville, North Alabama, West Alabama and West Georgia all ahead of the Argonauts. UWF is predicted to finish ahead of Christian Brothers.

West Florida finished at 11-15 overall last season and 4-8 in GSC play.

The Argos will open up their regular season on Nov. 11, with a contest at Saint Leo. UWF will make its home debut on Nov. 15 when Mobile comes to town for a 5 p.m. matchup. For more information on UWF women's basketball and all UWF Athletics, visit www.GoArgos.com.

out to be anything but average," Blackman said. "After winning the JD Mac Invitational a few weeks ago the team set its sights on winning the Pace meet. Not only did they win the meet they achieved a perfect score."

Ironically Jay's boys cross country coach Teresa Hendricks was on the last team to complete the slam in Jay roughtly 15 years ago when she ran under coach James McDaniel.

"Perfect scores don't happen often, but when they do it's a day of celebration," Hendricks said. "So congratulations to Coach Blackman!"

In all there were over 70 runners participating in the meet with representatives from Pace, Milton, Central, Tate, Rocky Bayou, and Northview.

Hendricks was also celebrating as her team, which had been ravaged by the flu managed to make a strong showing with only two runners.

Micah Kemp, a ninth grader at Jay, kept things going in favor of the Royals as he took the top individual spot in a time of 18:22.

With most of the same schools participating in the EscaRosa Cross Country meet today at Sims Middle they changed up what their plans were for today.

"My varsity girls were pacing the JV girls and they all set new PR's in the process, the JV girls that is," said Pace girls head coach James Martin. "We will be full power on Saturday morning."

While Jay finished with seven runners in the top 12 spots overall, Central's Lady Jags had 10th, 11th, and 15th wrapped up with Kennedy Fuller (24:18), Beth Smith (24:29), and Erica Waters (24:27).

Central's head coach Nick Golden was happy with his performance but also very impressed with the Lady Royals.

"I wanted to compliment Jay's Girls on their accomplishment and also their sportsmanship," Golden said.

After they achieved the shutout yesterday they could have got together and celebrated but they didn't. They walked along the course and cheered on their competitors who were still running.

"They have done this at every meet we have ran with them this year. It shows great sportsmanship on their part and is a reflection of their coach."

Overall in the boys competition Pace took the team honors with 36 points followed by Northview (66) and Milton (92).

Pace won the race with the varsity top seven being paired up with the JV team in order to improve their race times before the ESCAROSA Championship on Saturday.

Brandon Amendt paced Tyler Brabham who led the JV runners with a time of 18:52, which was his best time of the season.

According to Pace boy's coach Scott Denney, Amendt is determined to bring his time down into the low 18's by District on Nov. 5, which will also be held at Sims Middle.

Netting the district is a goal

By Bill Gamblin
sports@srpressgazette.com

On Tuesday the volleyball district tournaments will get underway with several teams eyeing the opportunity to win a district title.

For Milton, winner of the last two District 1-5A titles, it has been an interesting year as they looked to challenge for the first District 1-6A title.

After a strong start the Lady Panthers have hit a rough spot and fallen to fourth in the district seeding behind Washington, Tate, and Pace.

The Lady Panthers (10-10; 8-6 in District 1-6A) will look to members of the previous district championship teams Katie Worley, Virginia Ffrench, Emily Brooks, and Kasandra Gilley as they look to make the state tournament field for the third straight year.

"The keys we need to focus on for the tournament to be successful is consistent play, communication, limited errors, controlled serving and passing," said Milton head coach Lori Erickson.

While Milton has hit a rough spot, a slow start at Pace has turned into an 18-6 season after defeating West Florida Tech on Tuesday.

Pace won the match in three straight games 25-13, 25-10, and 25-9.

Pace is in a good position as they head into next week's tournament, which the Lady Patriots will be hosting.

"For us to have a strong showing we need 90-percent or better serve success, great serve-receive game, and great defense," said Pace head coach Mark Gough. "Those three things lead to great offense."

Central and Jay will be traveling to Baker for the District 1-A tournament.

The Lady Jags are looking to challenge for the new District 1-A (rural district title).

Ironically for Jay Central Tuesday will be their third meeting as the Lady Jags have taken the first two meetings.

Central finished the regular season 12-7 overall and 6-2 in District 1-A with its only two losses in district play to Baker.

Leading the attack for Central will be sisters Sarah and Brittney Forsythe as well as hitters Makayla Simmons and Haleigh Padgett.

For Jay (10-8 and 3-5 in District 1-A) it has been a long season.

"The keys to us winning against Central will be to receive their serve and not let them run off points in bunches. If we can do that, we will feel like we have a chance," said Jay head coach Scott Campbell.

"Baker would be the same deal, we have to get the ball to setters and then allow our hitters to be in good spots to hit the ball down. It all starts with our receive."

A Royal day at Sims

The Jay Lady Royals accomplished something very few teams have ever managed in a cross country competition on Tuesday at Sims Middle School.

Led by Jorja Agrait, the Lady Royals scored a perfect score of 15.

A perfect score or slam, as many familiar with cross country call it, is when a team has its top five runners sweep the top five spots.

Agrait got things rolling with a time of 21:53 on Tuesday, while spots two through five fell into place.

Allison Blair finished second (22:12), Jessica Thornton was third (22:15), Savannah Brown secured fourth (23:03 and the last part of the feat was when Jenna Thornton finished fifth (23:05).

"This is just awesome," said Jay coach Stan Blackman. "I have seen it done, but this is the first time I have ever coached a team to accomplish something like this.

"This is just awesome and all the credit goes to the girls."

Many thought Jay would be rebuilding in 2011 with the loss of Leely Trevino who runs at Florida State and Robin Blackman who now runs at Troy University.

"After the loss of these seniors the Royals hoped to at least have an average season but this season has turned

Four linksters will advance to regionals

By Bill Gamblin
sports@srpressgazette.com

Central's Jesse Jernigan, Milton's Christian Pope, along with Pace's Spencer Olson and Casey Moye will advance to their respective regional golf tournaments.

Jernigan on Tuesday carded a 76, which was good enough for a tie for seventh place among the top 10 individual players in the District 1-A Golf Tournament at Osceola Golf Course.

Catholic took the top spot as a team with a 301, while Central finished in fourth place 67 strokes back in fourth place.

Rounding out the Jaguars scoring were Dakota Gregory 89, T.J. Beasley 101, Wendall Cooley 102, and Weslee Vance 108.

Jernigan will play in the Class A Region 1 tournament on Tuesday at A.C. Read Course in Pensacola.

In District 1-2A Niceville was the head of the class at Stonebrook with a team score of 314 followed by Gulf Breeze at 317.

Pace finished fourth with a 327 and Milton finished fifth with a 335.

Individually it was Christian Pope carding a round of 73 to finish third overall, which was four strokes behind individual medalist Trey Aguirre's 69.

Pope will be joined in the Class AA Region 1 tournament by Pace's Spencer Olson and Casey Moye.

Olson finished in a tie for fourth place with a round of 75 while Moye tied for ninth carding a 79.

At Ft. Walton Beach Municipal Golf Course on Monday Niceville took the girls title in District 1-2A with Gulf Breeze finishing second with a 347.

Milton just missed qualifying for the regional tournament by five strokes as they finished third at 352.

Pace finished fifth in the team standings by carding a 370.

The Lady Panthers were led by Hallie Rice's 83 and Alexis Worrell's 84.

Miranda Cobb carded an 87 to lead Pace.

'Old banker'

Milton's senior banker retiring after 57 years of service to the community

By Obie Crain
Special to the Press Gazette

From bookkeeping to the board room and on to the president's office, the journey has been a challenging one for Santa Rosa County's senior banking official, Wilbur Adams, who officially "closed the books" yesterday afternoon, Oct. 21, on a banking career that has spanned a period of 52 years.

A reception was held Friday afternoon at the Milton branch of (formerly First National Bank of Florida), 6512 Highway 90, to honor the friendly, soft-spoken gentleman and astute businessman who, at the time of his retirement, was the longest serving banker in the Santa Rosa County banking circuit.

It was June 1, 1984, that First National Bank of Florida was chartered as First National Bank of Santa Rosa. Two years later on April 1, 1986, Adams joined the bank as a financial consultant and was shortly thereafter elevated to president and chairman of the board. He continued to serve in that capacity until CharterBank of West Point, Ga., took control of the bank, absorbing its assets and liabilities, the weekend of Sept. 9, 2011.

CharterBank officials asked Adams to stay on in a leadership capacity when they took it over, and he agreed to remain briefly during the transition phase. But the commitment he made contained the stipulation that his service would not extend beyond his birthday this year.

Adams will turn 72 on Sunday, Oct. 23.

Always touted as "Santa Rosa County's Only Hometown Community Bank," First National Bank of Santa Rosa grew and prospered, gaining stature and strength by the month, with ranch offices added in Pace and Navarre.

In March 1997, ground breaking ceremonies were held in Pensacola at the site of what is now the Pensacola Branch on Airport Boulevard. In that same year, First National Bank of Santa Rosa changed its name to First National Bank of Florida to more aptly reflect its stature and consideration of itself as a major banking facility.

On the eve of its closing, First National Bank of Florida had operational offices in Milton, Pace, Navarre, Pensacola, Destin, and in three Walmart Supercenters.

But this story is about a banker, not a bank. First National Bank of Florida's growth and development, however, is so indelibly linked to the career of Wilbur Adams that each's welfare becomes relative, if not essential, one to the other.

Adams was born and raised in Holt, Fla., the son of a modest family, which owned and operated a grocery store in the small community. It was here that he got his initial introduction to responsibility and ethics, traits that became forever ingrained into his philosophy, amplified each year as he grew up and negotiated a career.

Adams went to Baker High School and during his four years became a skilled basketball player. His plans were at the time, if he went to college, were to become a high school basketball coach. He was team captain and so good at the game that he was offered a scholarship to Pensacola State College (then Pensacola Junior College).

"I loved basketball," he said, "and if I had gone on to college, I would have become a basketball coach."

But he also had other things in mind. "I loved my wife even more," he said. It was in his junior year at Baker High that he met his future wife, the former Iris Stanley. He was strongly attached to her, even to the point of knowing that he was two years and a week older than she.

At 17, just out of high school, wanting to get married, he needed a job. Luckily one afternoon as he was filling the gas tank of a customer — a family friend — he was informed that John C. Malone of First National Bank in Milton needed a young man to work in a general capacity at the bank. His mild interest turned serious eventually, and he put in his application.

He was accepted and on Aug. 20, 1957, he went to work in the bank's bookkeeping department. Mr. Malone took a personal interest in him immediately and helped pave the way to his career. Malone owned both banks in Santa Rosa County, First National in Milton and First National in Jay, and Adams felt good about his position and began to learn the "banking business."

"John Malone took a liking to me," he said, finding that Malone's interest in him grew as time went by. It was years later, long after Malone became blind and passed away, that Adams learned from a friend who knew Malone during his last days why the interest was so strong. Malone had lost a son, and vicariously "adopted" Adams, cultivating him, and in a sense, "…he was reliving his banking career through me."

Adams took great pride in that relationship, and never forgot about it. "He took great pride in me," Adams said, "and I hope I haven't let him down."

After going to work at First National Bank in Milton, Adams applied himself strenuously, and advanced rather rapidly in the chain of command. At 28, he was vice president, perhaps one of the youngest banking officers in the state. He served as senior lending officer and as eventually interim president for a time.

But as hard workers sometimes do, Adams became disenchanted with his banking duties and asked that he be released from his position. After a year waiting for a replacement (bank officials thought he might change his mind about leaving), at the end of 1983, Adams left on his own. It was a friendly parting, however, and never actually acknowledged as a "retirement." It was more a parting of the ways, he said.

During the next two years, he worked as a builder. A number of buildings, including apartments and homes were the result of his career change. In fact, the West Florida Family Practice Center was one of his projects during the two years that he was estranged from the banking industry.

But banking was in his blood, and after a two-year hiatus, he went back into practice, taking the position of financial adviser at First National Bank of Santa Rosa joining a group of investors.

He was always interested in ownership in addition to leadership, and knowing that he would never be able to own anything at First National Bank in Milton accelerated his unrest and departure from the bank.

But the new group of investors seemed to be an alternative, and it sparked that part of him that always stirred when he was excited about a deal or a situation, and on April 1, 1986, his original banking career became reinstated.

During his career, Adams worked hard and selflessly. By choice he never sought fame or fortune as an end in themselves. Making a living was important, but he was the kind of person who always wanted his fellowman to be able to do the same.

He put the assets of his bank to work for others and can be credited with much of the growth and development of the county. His philosophy was one of "sharing," and he was always able to sleep at night knowing that someone had prospered by his hand, something that he had done, a door he had opened, or a financial boost that helped someone succeed.

Adams has always been a "private person" of sorts. He never seemed to go out of his way in public fanfare but rather remained in the background, not seeking attention or recognition. But that doesn't mean that he was not emotionally compensated, because he has testimonials from all kinds of people who have appreciated his efforts over the years. He said he always liked meeting new people and making new friends, especially new customers.

"These cards and letters that often came over the years were items that I couldn't really share," he said. "But just knowing that someone had prospered to some degree because my assistance has always been beyond price."

His success as a manager is evident. Over the years he has had a great many people under his supervision. The most at any one time was 155 individuals. They had to be paid, too.

Both "sadness and satisfaction" are emotions that pull at his heartstrings as he looks back at the demise of First National Bank of Florida. It was the last of the "hometown" banks. "Sadness is pervasive knowing that something is being put to rest forever, but it's heartening to know that it was a good thing and that it played a great role in the lives of countless people," he said.

There have been ample opportunities over the years to shift the responsibility of the bank to new owners, through sale or merger, but Adams never made a move in either direction. Why? "I promised the original shareholders to always keep he bank locally owned," he said.

Running a bank and being responsible for so many people and other people's money most surely was a worry, he admitted. But stress was never a problem for him.

And what does "community" mean to him? "It reminds me of family," he said. "You should do all you can to make it the best possible place or environment to live and work and interact with others in a beneficial way."

Looking back on his personal life, Adams says his career has never been an impediment or obstacle to his personal life. "However," he admitted, "it might have been pleasant to have spent more time with our children when they were young."

His marriage to his wife, Iris, has withstood a 53-year relationship. That says a great deal for both him and her. They have been blessed with three children, seven grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

And the fall is a special time for them all. His birthday is tomorrow, his wife's is Oct. 30, and their anniversary is Nov. 6. And he remembers that their first child was born nine months and two weeks after they were married.

"So, you see, I have been an old man all my life!" he said.

And what about the legacy that he will leave behind as he walks away into retirement? Of course, he would like to be judged by his deeds. Otherwise… "Good husband, good father, good grandfather, good friend…and old banker!"

ARCHIE AND BESSIE SMITH

Smiths celebrate 75 years of marriage

On Oct. 4, 1936, two starry-eyed sweethearts got married. Bessie Hardy was 16 years old and Archie Smith was 20; the community of Winston County, Ala., said the couple might last about six months. Seventy-five years later, the couple are happy and celebrated their anniversary at the Smith Family Reunion held at Olivet Baptist Church in Milton.

Few people live long enough to celebrate this happy occasion, much less stay together that long. They have outlived their critics and then some.

Archie and Bessie Smith have been totally dedicated to God and each other for 75 years.

They have raised two children, Martha Jo (Smith) Cobb and Joseph Waylon "Pete" Smith, who both live close to their parents.

Most of Archie and Bessie's extended family still live in the Santa Rosa and Escambia county area, while they have been Milton residents for 55 years.

They give their Lord Jesus Christ the credit and thanks for their long and happy marriage.

There is a sign in their yard on Magnolia Street that says they have been married for 75 years. Toot your horn when you see it.

FRED AND BARBARA THOMPSON

Thompsons to celebrate 50 years

Fred and Barbara Thompson will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Oct. 28. They were married in 1961 in Prichard, W.Va. Fred served in the Marine Corps, then was a superintendent of Pavement Specialists Inc. for 41 years until his retirement. Barbara was a Santa Rosa County bus driver for 13 years until her retirement. They have one daughter, Melody Thompson Michener, and a son in law, Eric Michener. They are enjoying their retirement spending time gardening, traveling to festivals to show Fred's steam engine and especially being grandparents to their two grandsons, Chance and Ezra Michener. They will celebrate their anniversary by having dinner with their family.
