Hunter charged with shooting dog

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

A Crestview man turned himself in Feb. 28 after being charged for a hunting incident that occurred in Santa Rosa County.

Harold D. McMillion, 51, of Crestview, was charged with damaging property/criminal mischief and animal cruelty.

According to Stan Kirkland with the Florida Fish and Wildlife out of Panama City, on Feb. 4, FWC law enforcement was notified that an FWC employee's dog had been shot on the Hutton Unit of the Blackwater Wildlife Management Area.

HAROLD D. McMILLION

The Hutton Unit is a 7,200 acre section of the Blackwater Wildlife Management Area, located just east of Milton and north of U.S. 90 in Santa Rosa County. Mobility-impaired hunts are normally held in the area.

On the second day of the hunt, FWC employee Marshall Fuqua of Baker told FWC officers that he and two volunteers were using his Jack Russell terrier mix to trail a deer wounded earlier by a mobility-impaired hunter. The dog went through a thick area and got ahead of the three.

Fuqua said they heard two shots and went out to a road where the gunshots came from.

Fuqua and the two others, who were not identified by Kirkland, found evidence on the road indicating the dog had been shot.

They spoke to McMillion, who told them he had just shot twice at a deer.

According to Kirkland, Fuqua walked out approximately 50 yards from where the road was and found his dog dead. It had been shot twice.

McMillion was arrested by FWC officers but refused to speak. FWC officers also seized his rifle and two spent shell casings as evidence.

Information collected by the FWC officers was turned over to the office of State Attorney Bill Eddins, who issued a warrant for McMillion charging him on the two counts.

McMillion has been released after posting a $1,500 bond.

Long-lost father reunites with son, is recognized for military service

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Penny Crawford of Milton has never known her father, but for her husband, Delbert, finding his father was a blessing in disguise.

Both Penny and Del lost touch with their fathers when they were young and for decades had been looking for answers.

Penny's answer came almost 40 years ago when she heard from her brother that her father had passed away. Del's search wasn't as easy. Del searched for almost 30 years for his father, Donald, and found him all the way on the other side of the country.

Del and Penny flew from Milton to Oregon in 2001 to meet Del's father for the first time.

When they arrived at Donald's home, they saw a photo of Del at a young age hanging on the wall. The same photo is still hanging above Donald's bed at

Sales tax for courthouse?

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Santa Rosa County commissioners agreed that in order to build a new courthouse for citizens, a tax increase would have to be put on a future ballot.

Commissioners discussed building options as proposed by architectural firm Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum Inc. for a future judicial center for Santa Rosa County at their Monday board meeting.

HOK was able to draw up a proposed 50,000 square foot facility plan that would cost less than $32 million. That would include furniture, a parking lot and the technology needed to help run the facility.

According to county engineer Hunter Walker, the proposed $32 million building would fit on a 9-acre parcel of land.

Documents state that the building footprint would be roughly 50,000 square feet with parking space for 500 cars, which would take up 175,500 square feet of space.

Both were not wearing their seat belts when the accident occurred. Wallen received minor injuries from the accident.

Downtown building could be saved

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

A building threatened by demolition is being given a second chance thanks to a motion by Santa Rosa County commissioners at their Feb. 23 meeting.

The Chelsea Title property on 5210 Willing St., has sat vacant since 2004.

Last year, the county put out bids to demolish the structure and awarded the project to Cassida Construction Co. LLC for $31,500.

The Milton City Council has taken a minor interest in the property and councilmen attended the county commission meeting to discuss keeping the building as part of the city's history.

Councilman Paul Kilmartin came to the county commission meeting pleading that the county save the building in hopes that it could

Monday, 7:23 a.m.

Hello, this is Tim. It is funny that the state keeps the ditches clean. I live in the county and they don't keep our ditches clean. Bye.

Monday, 7:07 a.m.

Yeah, this is Gene. I was reading the paper Monday and I agree with Kenneth 100 percent. Obama did say the price of gas was going to go up to $5 a gallon and he was going to shut down the power companies that use coal. That is Gulf Power folks. If he shuts them down we will have to go to nuclear, wind, sun, water for our power and will cost Gulf Power a lot of money. Think about that when you go the polls in November.

Sunday, 8:07 a.m.

I don't understand why the article about the meth lab that was found in Milton referred to the quality or level of the meth found there was along the lines of the drug Adderall? To me, it seemed like that statement was a bit defamatory to that medicine by comparing it as so. Since the manufacturers are having such a hard time getting that medication to the pharmacies, why not ask Mr. Stanley for his expertise in this matter so that the people who are on this medication can get it every month without having to call around to many different pharmacies to see if it's available. It's pretty sad when you have to attempt to make your medication, because its not available all the time. The accountability needs also be made by the drug company that makes Adderall. If there was Adderall when I was growing up, instead of hearing, "it's just a phase you're going through" or, "just study harder," I bet my life story would be a lot different, believe that.

Saturday, 6:50 p.m.

In his March 3 diatribe, Walter Williams fails to address the key factor in the issue of income equality. In the current political discussion, concerns about income inequality aren't because of income differences due to career choices, sex, race or lifestyles, it's about the decades-long wage stagnation in middle class jobs. The rich have gotten a lot richer, while everybody else has been treading water or slowly sinking. We make the same or less money for the same jobs we had 20 years ago, while an ever larger share of the gross national income goes into the bank accounts of the wealthy.

Saturday, 6:22 p.m.

One Press Gazette reader writes that Obama hates America; another incorrectly blames him for the price of gas; another slanders him with false accusations. All our Presidents, Democrat and Republican, love America and serve her to the best of their abilities. Please stop the partisan hate and false rhetoric, stop dividing us against ourselves, and instead help us work together for the good of our country. United we shall stand, but divided we will fall.

Saturday, 2:36 p.m.

My name is Dale. I would like to know how many people will have to get hurt or die on our city streets before the Chief of Police and Sheriff order the officers to enforce the traffic laws. I read in Saturday's paper about a five-car pile up in front of McDonalds that sent four to the hospital. There are two traffic lights in sight of McDonalds. How do you get going fast enough to do this? It is a racetrack out there. People are driving foolishly, faster, and more aggressive. I would like to know where the police are, and I will remember this at voting time.

Editor's note: In the story it did say one individual went to stop and their foot slipped off the brake and onto the gas.

Friday, 1:37 p.m.

This is Carolyn in Pace. Concerning Saturday's Speak Out, the party I felt was correct about all they said until they got to the end concerning FOX News. Then they fell into the same category as everyone else. Obviously they do not listen to the news network. They give the liberal and conservative side. That is why they have been No. 1 for the past 10 years. That is why they are called fair and balanced. Thank you.

Thursday, 11:57 a.m.

Are you aware that spice (a drug) is being sold at the convenience stores where young adults can buy it and what it does to them? This has already been outlawed in Georgia and Alabama. If you check at the hospitals you will find many of the people who have ended up at the hospital. When are the people of Florida gonna do something about this! After how many dies?

Local residents in amazement yesterday as Collectors provide a stimulus package to Milton, Navarre, & Pensacola!

They are paying out right on the spot for my stuff. Unbelievable!!

By DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

Spokesperson for the event said he expects to spend in excess of $200,000.00 this week for vintage items and precious metals from local residents. Here are some examples of what is going on in the event that started Tuesday in the Holiday Inn Express, Hampton Inn & Suites, & Holiday Inn:

One person sold an old Gibson guitar that was purchased in the 1960's for less than $250.00 to a collector at the event for $2175.00

Another person had a pocket watch collection that sold for $4600.00, with one of the watches in this collection bringing $375.00 of the $4600.00 talley.

A husband and wife brought in a box of old Jewelry, wristwatches, coins, and two German daggers from WW2 and left $785.00 richer.

This is cool that something like this would come here to our town. Where else would this stuff ever be sold? The refinery has teamed up with the collectors for a 24 month tour of the United States, both big and small towns to dig up hidden gems.

CLAUDIA MCDONALD says, who received $825 for a gold coin minted in 1986.

Dozens cash in yesterday with jewelry, railroad watches and guitars. An estimated $200,000 in Milton, Navarre, & Pensacola!

By DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

The first days of the reclamation drive in Milton, Navarre, & Pensacola will be a hit with those looking to sell their gold and silver. Representatives are on hand this week purchasing all types of unwanted and broken jewelry. An estimated 55 people left the event with over $200 dollars from old class rings, wedding bands, herringbones, and gold teeth. Coins dated 1970 and earlier were bringing big premiums as well. Silver dollars, halves and quarters arrived in large quantities. Lots of gold coins were also brought in. Rebecca Hughes walked away with over $1200.00 after selling an original $20 gold piece from 1888.

On the other side of the room were representatives from the Buyers Association. They were purchasing all types of guitars, large currency bills dated before 1923, military items and pocket watches. One watch was purchased by a collector in Montana for $835 dollars. There were piles of sterling silver items like old silverware sets and tea pots. One gentleman rolled a cart in with 3 boxes full of silver coins. Company officials reported spending over $80,000 the first day of the event, alone. Brian Eades with Ohio Valley said, "We have had an overwhelming turnout this first day and we expect to get busier every day this week." The event continues today and runs through Saturday. The event is free and the public is welcome.

Silver and Gold Coin Prices Up During Poor Economy.

Collectors and Enthusiasts in Milton, Navarre, & Pensacola with$200,000 to Purchase Yours!

By DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

Got Coin? It might be just the time to cash in. This week, starting Tuesday and continuing through Saturday, the International Collectors Association, in conjunction with the Ohio Valley Gold & Silver Refinery, will be purchasing all types of silver and gold coins direct from the public. All types are welcome and the event is free.

Collectors will be on hand to identify and sort your coins. Then the quality or grade will be determined. According to collectors I talked with, the better the grade the more they are worth. With the current silver and gold markets, prices are up for older coins too. Any coins minted in 1970 and before in the U.S. are 90% silver, except nickels and pennies.

The coins worth is determined by the rarity and the grade. Old silver dollars are worth a great premium right now. Even well worn and heavy circulated ones are bringing good premiums. Franklin and Kennedy halves, Washington quarters and Mercury and Roosevelt dimes are all worth many times their face value. While older types like Seated Liberty, Standing Liberties, and Barber coins are worth even more.

Gold coins are really worth a lot right now according to Brian Eades of the International Collectors Association. "This country didn't start minting coins until 1792," says Eades. "Before that people would trade goods using gold dust and nuggets. Some shop keepers would take more gold than needed to pay for items purchased. There was no uniform system of making change." The government opened the first mints and began distributing the coins in 1792. By the beginning of the 19th century, coins and paper currency were wide spread and our monetary system was here to stay. In 1933, Roosevelt required all banking institutions to turn in all gold coins.

Once all banks turned in this gold, the president raised the gold standard from $20.00 per ounce to $33.00 per ounce. This was his way of stimulating the economy during the great depression. However, gold coins were never redistributed after the recall. Not all gold coins were turned in. Many folks during that time didn't completely trust the government and chose to keep their gold.

These gold coins are sought after by collectors today and bring many times the face value. Any gold coins with the mint marks of CC, D or O will bring nice premiums. Collectors at the event will be glad to show you where to look. Other types of coins will also be purchase including: foreign coins, Indian head cents, two cent pieces, half dimes, three cent pieces and buffalo nickels to name a few.

Collectors warn people against trying to clean their coins as significant damage can be done and the coins value lessened.

Items we will accept include:

Scrap Jewelry
Dental Gold
Sterling Silverware
Sterling Silver Tea Sets
Silver Dollars
All Coins Dated Pre 1970
Industrial Scrap
All forms of Platinum

Items of Interest:

Vintage Guitars: Martin, Gibson, Fender, National, Rickenbacker, Gretsch, Mandolins, Banjos and others

Pocket Watches: Hamilton, Illinois, Waltham, Patek Phillipe, Ball, Howard, South Bend, Elgin and others

Wrist watches: Omega, Accutron, Longines, Hamilton, Breitling and many more

Old paper money: United States, Confederate States, Blanket Bills, $1000.00 bills and more

Antique Toys: Trains, Tin wind-ups, Mechanical Banks, Robots, Pressed Steel trucks, and many more

War Memorabilia: Swords, Bayonets, Helmets, German, Confederate, Union, USA, and others

Local records reveal to our research department that recent vintage guitar sold for $2400.00 and another for $12,000.00 to a collector that will be tied into the event this week via live database feed.

Local Residents are ready to cash in!

International antique buyers in town this week and ready to stimulate economy!

By DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

Hundreds of phone calls from local residents this week to the corporate office of the Ohio Valley Gold and Silver Refinery pour in inquiring about items to be purchased all this week by the team of antique buyers that is on site with OVGSR.

The team of buyers this week are purchasing a vast array of vintage items (see left) along with coins, gold jewelry, and sterling silver items the refinery deals in. It is a Local shot in the arm for our economy. The spokesperson for the event expects to spend in excess of $200,000.00 this week at the Holiday Inn Express, Hampton Inn & Suites, & Holiday Inn paying local residents on the spot. The spokesperson for the company explained that these collectors are paying collector price for vintage items. It's a great way for people to get a great value for their items.

Refinery representatives will be on hand through Saturday to purchase all gold, silver and platinum items, as well as coins. Public welcome!

Master-at-Arms 1st Class Scott Grettum, Aviation Boatswain's Mate 2nd Class Darrell Zofcin, and Air Traffic Controller Airman Keesha Hunt were respectively named the Sailor, Junior Sailor and Blue Jacket of the Quarter. All three Sailors were recognized for their outstanding performance on duty and within the community.

Grettum fulfills the duties of Naval law enforcement on base. Specifically, Chief Master-at-Arms Russell Nunn says Grettum "renders assistance to military and dependant personnel on the clarification of Naval law enforcement rules and regulations."

Grettum does this, of course, while acting as mentor and trainer to junior Sailors and Department of Defense patrolmen and guards in security. All told, Grettum is responsible for the guidance of 50 security members.

In addition to being a watch commander on weekends, Grettum has donated over 200 hours of his time to various charitable organizations and causes such as the Moreno Mission, Religious Child Development, Operation Christmas Tree and Operation Elf.

Security Department Head Lt. j.g. Daron Pettus had high praises for Grettum, noting, "Grettum is without a doubt a true motivator, leader, and mentor… he is the finest example of a First Class Petty Officer."

AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLLER AIRMAN KEESHA HUNT

Junior Sailor of the Quarter Darrell Zofcin serves as Crash Division Aircraft Rescue Fire Fighting (ARFF) Chief.

His responsibilities include training an eight-man crew in proper aircraft firefighting and rescue operations at Naval Outlying Field Brewton. During his tenure as ARFF Chief, he has overseen more than 300,000 flight operations and the safe response to 15 actual aircraft emergencies.

Also during the calendar year, Zofcin has dedicated over 100 off-duty hours to the United States Sea Cadet Corps as officer instructor and physical training coordinator.

Lt. Russell Lawrence, Crash Division Officer, said Zofcin, "shows genuine concern for his Shipmates and constantly provides counseling and mentorship …."

Finally, Air Traffic Controller airman Keesha Hunt was praised by Senior Chief Air Traffic Controller Trevor Rowe and Lt. Chris Mitchell, describing her as a "recruit poster" and "invaluable sailor and controller."

One of her greater accomplishments is qualifying "in four controlling positions in less than 40 percent of the allotted training time," according to Rowe. What is more, Hunt is a qualified instructor who has trained four personnel in controlling duties at NOLF Choctaw.

Off the clock, Hunt participates in a number of activities including the command color guard, Divisional Community Service Representative, Divisional Exchange/Commissary Representative, and Habitat for Humanity.

Sailor of the Quarter honors are reserved for top-performing personnel at NAS Whiting Field. Sailor of the Quarter, typically, recognizes the top E-6 candidate; Junior Sailor of the Quarter, E-5; and Blue Jacket of the Quarter, E-1 through E4.

NAS Whiting Field receives retention excellence recognition

Special to the Press Gazette

Naval Air Station Whiting Field's command retention team was named a recipient of the 2011 Retention Excellence Award via a Navy administrative message last week. The base was one of only 39 Navy shore commands to achieve this designation.

The award recognizes commands that achieve established retention goals through the course of the year.

"Your dedication and commitment to career motivation and excellence not only exemplify your superb performance, but also attest to your concern for the personal and professional needs of our sailors. Every member of your command can be justifiably proud of their achievements," Vice Adm. Michael Vitale stated in the message.

Requirements for the award include achieving a passing grade above 85 in the annual retention review; having a first term attrition rate below 5.5 percent; and exceeding 59, 66 and 72 percent retention for first, second, and third term Sailors.

NAS Whiting Field's numbers easily passed those thresholds with 80, 72 and 83.3 percent first, second and third term retention. The overall statistics for 2011 showed a 77.8 percent rate which was more than 20 percent higher than the 2010 numbers.

"The command reached retention goals because of aggressive mentoring, career development boards, and counseling to ensure all Sailors were given the best guidance and structure to make the best informed decisions and stay Navy. Every level in the chain of command played a role," Navy Counselor 1st Class Gwendolyn King said. "I believe we will continue to have sustained excellence in retaining our most qualified sailors."

"Your dedication and commitment to career motivation and excellence not only exemplify your superb performance, but also attest to your concern for the personal and professional needs of our sailors. Every member of your command can be justifiably proud of their achievements."

Michael Vitale
Vice Administrator

Certificates will be sent to the commands and NAS Whiting Field will be able to fly the retention pennant throughout 2012 to recognize the accomplishment.

"This is not only a testament to the efforts of the command retention team, but also recognizes the dedication our Sailors have to their careers and their country," NAS Whiting Field Commanding Officer Capt. Matthew Coughlin said. "It's exciting to receive the award and I hope it isn't the last. Great job!"

Grant awarded to Milton teacher

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

SCOTT ERICKSON

If you asked someone at Milton High School to pick someone that had gone above and beyond for his students, most would point to Scott Erickson.

The teacher and former NCAA Division I hockey player knows a lot about pushing himself and his students to excel in everything they do. He recently proved that by taking home a grant awarded to educators that go above and beyond to promote aviation and aerospace education activities in classrooms.

Erickson was at the forefront of the program when it was brought up over a year ago. Since then, he has pushed two of his students to finish and pass their FAA Private Pilot Knowledge test, a rigorous exam that took almost a year to prepare for.

Erickson learned about winning the grant earlier this year, and received a check in the mail in mid-February. AFA, a nonprofit organization headquartered near Washington, D.C., annually awards grants of up to $250 to worthy projects, like the Milton High School Aviation Program, that benefit students and promote knowledge of aerospace power.

Only 79 applicants received a grant from the AFA this year, Erickson being one of the lucky few.

Erickson said he has received the grant money and is using it on a special project for his students.

"The grant money purchased noise level sensors to be used to measure noise level and intensity at Peter Prince Field for a noise abatement research project," Erickson said.

Erickson said he has tried to stick close to the military community even before he became the aviation instructor at Milton High School. And he credits that close bond to his success and his student's success.

"I have maintained, already established relationships that I had made as far back as 2007 with the Naval National Aviation Museum in Pensacola, the Air Force Association Hurlburt Chapter 398, and have developed a new relationship in the 18 months with AMS Flight School at Peter Prince Field in East Milton," Erickson said.

Erickson has also been under the wing of Chief Flight Instructor Paxton Corwin since he has been a part of the aviation program.

"I would not have nearly the success that we have at this point," Erickson said. "That new relationship is my backbone."

OUR VIEW

Tallahassee has gone too far

Power can go to some people's heads, and when it gets there, things are seldom good.

A couple of years ago, we saw this happen when an outgoing Tallahassee legislator snuck in new language to put many Florida residents under siege via the "Septic Tank Bill."

This past week, those in power corrected this governmental boondoggle by repealing the law.

While this is one good thing, let's take a look at some other issues still going on today.

One bill, CS/SB 1704, deals with high school athletics.

It doesn't sound that bad when you hear they are trying to create the Sunshine Independent Athletic Association, which would offer some schools, especially private facilities, the option to compete within the Florida High School Athletic Association.

Right now, in Santa Rosa County, there are two schools which compete outside of the FHSAA.

Sometimes they play FHSAA schools, but for the most part, they compete against other Christian schools.

We are talking about West Florida Baptist and Santa Rosa Christian schools.

So far so good, right?

Well that is about all the good they are doing when you consider that the bill will allow a student to transfer and instead of sitting out to become eligible at the school, all that parents, or other interested parties will have to do is pay a fine and the student is eligible.

Now that might not sound that big to you, but let's boil it down a little.

Let's say Bob or Sue is a great high school athlete.

Looking at this bill, they could play fall sports at one school and then transfer, paying the fine, to play winter sports at another. And, if Bob or Sue is a three-sport athlete, they could even transfer after the spring.

This is outrageous and ultimately would undermine what is trying to be done by the FHSAA when it comes to athletics.

We understand students move, change schools and, in some cases, these changes have occurred under some questionable circumstances, but they have followed the rule of law according to the FHSAA.

Despite their education-linked accomplishments, we do not think many legislators have seen the inside of a classroom unless it was on PTA night or during a political function.

Still, they are willing to throw caution to the wind and open this potential Pandora's box.

Can you imagine a child going to a private school, but still wanting a spot on the high school baseball team?

If this bill passes, it could happen.

Opting for a private or a home school education has many plusses and minuses, but our state legislators feel they should have more power over high school athletics.

Have they not messed over our education system enough by using the once-promised lottery money to fill in budgeted gaps?

Now that they are in a financial pinch, they are giving the schools less and expecting them to do more to keep up with the 1 million pound gorilla they placed on their backs called the FCAT.

They even feel all youngsters need to know about American history is from after the Civil War (Reformation) to today.

They don't seem to believe students need to understand what led to the founding of this country or how different groups and sects set aside their differences to form the nation they now call home.

When we boil it down, our leaders want to keep the power by making sure we are ignorant.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The big question

With elections in front of us, along with debates, discussions and interviews, does anyone have the courage to ask those running for president of our country the following question:

"If you are elected president, will you follow the example of kings, leaders and prophets in the Bible by dressing in sackcloth and ashes and leading our nation in a day of prayer and fasting in repentance for the 54-million babies aborted in America since 1973?"

Keep in mind that other faiths practice and respect prayer and fasting, such as during Ramadan as prescribed in the Quaran, and the Hindu tradition of fasting also.

We cannot expect God to bless us as a nation and to protect us against calamities as long as we continue to violate His laws.

What happened to unbiased reporting

One reader recently asked "What happened to the concept of reporting news in an unbiased manner?" (PNJ, 3-3-12).

A classic example of news media unbias is reflected in the news reporting by Michael Peltier, News Service of Florida, PNJ on 3-4-12, "Controversial schools bill passes Florida Senate Committee."

Writers are quite adept at using code words and phrases to control readers' thoughts. In this article, Peltier writes: '...(the bill) was rammed through a Senate Committee…"

Of course, there is the excuse that "reporters" express their opinions and are not held accountable for accuracy or truthfulness. They can use code words (rammed) to influence the manner in which the reader understands the story. Too many reporters and columnists create news rather than accurately (and unbiased) reporting news.

With a very high rate of illiteracy among adults in Florida (and many of them vote!), there is little chance that they can see through the code words.

The Devil goes down to Georgia on super Tuesday

"Satan has his sights on the United States of America!"
—Rick Santorum

HART TALK
Ron Hart

With all the issues that matter ("It's the economy, stupid") right in front of them, GOP frontrunners took Obama's bait and wasted weeks entangled in social issues. These highly divisive and contentious issues are, and remain: God, Guns, Gays and Contraception. I feel particularly well-suited to speak to these issues, because they also happened to be my high school prom theme.

With $4 per gallon gas prices (the highest price ever in February), an anemic economy, trillion-dollar deficits, and Americans un- or under-employed, and with the help of his press agents in the media, Obama somehow tricked the GOP into arguing over personal religious beliefs. This is a big loser for the GOP, and it creeps out many independent voters.

As a result, by just sitting there Obama's approval ratings have skyrocketed ten points to a two-year high of 51%. In one week, Obama went from polling dead even against the leading GOP contenders to polling ten points ahead.

Obama's reelection strategy of simply not being the judgmental GOP candidates running against him is paying off.

After Afghans killed more U.S. soldiers over the dubious discarding of old Quarans, Obama apologized. He may actually be the most religious of all; it would take a real Christian to turn his cheek after being struck in the face that many times. Obama gains a lot of good will by being tolerant of all religions, even the ones whose adherents continue to build condos in East Jerusalem.

Over the holidays, Obama reiterated his faith by telling his favorite Christmas story about an extraordinary child, born in a faraway place, who comes home to lead his people. The next day White House Press Secretary Jay Carney corrected the press corps' assumptions and clarified that Obama was actually talking about Jesus.

Democrats think Obama is Jesus and the GOP thinks he is a Muslim. If he was a real leader, like Moses, he could bring peace to the Middle East by arranging a three-way summit with himself.

Republicans should stick to the broader context of hard facts like those related in Charles Murray's books, the most recent one being Coming Apart. His data-laced book, The Bell Curve, drew spurious contempt as being racist. As we know, the left considers facts, by their very nature, to be racist. So Murray focused only on whites in his latest book and concluded that basic virtues like marriage, industriousness, honesty and religiosity define the successful in America.

"Dingy Harry" Reid touched on religion last year when he said he did not know how Hispanics could ever vote Republican. Let's see: the GOP is pro-life, pro-work, pro-free market, pro-right to work and pro-family — and blacks hold them in contempt. E-Harmony has a 99 percent happy marriage rate with fewer compatibility traits.

According to the candidates, in voices heard only by themselves, God told Palin, Bachmann and Cain to run for president. God usually reserves his endorsement for the general election.

As Santorum said, Satan might well have come to America. How else would you explain the Kardashians? But it is politically perilous to get into the theology thicket by advocating the hard-line Catholic prohibition against contraception.

Santorum would do better to lay off his religious dogma and explain his "take one for the team" RINO voting record in the Senate.

Santorum may have met Satan 'way back in the U.S. Senate:

The devil was in a bind, 'cause he was way behind and he was willin' to make a deal. He came across this Jr. Senator from PA who was playing it hot, and the devil jumped up on a hickory stump and said boy, let me tell you what (to vote for). I got this prescription drug entitlement bill and a labor union's dream, I bet you a pot of campaign gold against your soul, you will take one for the establishment team.

My name is Ricky, and it might be a sin, but I will take your bet, I am going to regret, 'cusse I will be running for president again.

Ironically, the only one in the race who has not sold his soul for a fiddle of gold is Ron Paul. It's high praise for a man who really values gold---and the fiddle, too.

be used as either a bathroom facility for visitors to the downtown area or for the local Arts and Culture Foundation.

In order to do that, Commissioner Lane Lynchard said he would have to cancel all bids with construction companies on the demolition project and Cassida Construction Co. would lose their $31,500 paycheck.

"We can work with the City of Milton to see what they can put together," Lynchard said. "If that doesn't pan out, we have to put it out to bid."

Kilmartin said that he didn't know the county had considered tearing down the building until recently, which is why he came to the board meeting to cease construction.

Kilmartin, owner of the Blackwater Bistro, said he knew there was a need for a bathroom downtown because he has people come to his restaurant all the time looking for a bathroom facility.

In order to keep the building, the city would have to pay for renovations and to make it handicap accessible, which might cost more than to demolish it.

A member of Cassida Construction Co. said they'd be willing to work with the city and county to come up with a way to keep the building or refurbish it if the bid was postponed.

Commissioner Lynchard motioned to postpone the demolition process for another 90 days while the city looked at options to salvage the building.

"I'm giving the city the opportunity to work proactively and progressively to bring me a proposal (for the site) within the next 90 days," Lynchard said. "We will not go out for bid again until the city and the county can come up with an agreement."

The plan drawn by HOK would allow the county to build future additions to the facility if needed. According to documentation provided to county commissioners from HOK, the planning and design of the building would focus on future growth in the area.

The current courthouse has portables built onto the back to accommodate the need for more space. Commissioners wanted to eliminate that need in the new facility.

HOK used the Hillsborough Courthouse and Marion County Judicial Center as benchmarks for deciding what the proposed Santa Rosa County courthouse would look like.

Santa Rosa County Commission Chairman Jim Williamson said he feels the only way the county would be able to afford the judicial center is if the county implemented a sales tax increase over a period of time. Once the sales tax increase pays for the courthouse the county would eliminate the increase, reducing the tax back to the current 6.5 percent.

"Right now people are just trying to survive," Williamson said. "But the best way to move this forward would be to add some type of sales tax."

District 5 Commissioner Layne Lynchard said a 1 percent sales tax increase would mean $11 million a year in revenue for the county on average. That means the county would be able to pay for a new courthouse in three years given the cost per square foot does not increase.

Currently, the proposed facility is costing the county approximately $180 per square foot.

"It (current courthouse) has life left in it, but not as a courthouse," District 4 Commissioner Jim Melvin said. "We need input from the public."

Commissioners agreed that input from the public was crucial before moving forward and agreeing to a temporary sales tax increase to be put on a future ballot.

District 2 Commissioner Bob Cole, who has been at the forefront of the courthouse debacle since 2011, said he would like to move forward with plans to build the courthouse in the future, but wants to wait six months in order to get public input and see where the county is financially before moving forward.

Budget cuts over the past few years have weaned off hopes of the county having money to build a new courthouse.

"We need to put a good concrete plan forward and see where we are at in six months," Cole said.

According to the Florida Highway Patrol report, Wallen was southbound on Highway 87 in a Dodge pickup when the vehicle lost control on the wet road surface and began to rotate counterclockwise across the northbound lane of Highway 87, according to a witness.

The vehicle later left the roadway and entered a wood line along the side of the road and struck two large pine trees on the right side hood and door.

The vehicle came to rest when the front of the truck hit a third pine tree.

Beasley was pronounced dead by the medical examiners office shortly following the incident.

Toxicology reports and charges are still pending on Wallen as of press time.

his current residence in Milton, where he lives with his long-lost son.

"There's a lot of memories on those walls," he said, pointing to the photos of his children.

Del lost touch with his father when he was young and went to live with his mother. After Penny and Del were married, they began hunting for clues as to where their fathers might be living.

"Him and my mom divorced when I was 3 or 4 years old," Del said. "Until we found him in 2001 in Oregon, it had been 30 some years since I saw him last."

Del said the reunion was more than he could have asked for. He found out that his father had served in the Army during World War II and the Korean War. Donald was injured in Korea, but was never honored for his courageous efforts.

Donald resided in Oregon and kept in touch with his son and daughter-in-law until 2010 when he was diagnosed with terminal liver cancer, and his newly reunited family moved him to Milton where he is currently under care at Penny and Del's home.

"He's been living here for about a year and a half now," Penny said.

It wasn't just his health that concerned the couple, but the fact that he was never recognized for his service in the military.

"I know he got hurt in Korea, but he did not get a Purple Heart for that," Del said. "He was supposed to, but he never got one.

"He never got any recognition for his service at all."

Donald, who is in Covenant Hospice's care, was given the hospice provider's blessing after they contacted local military officials to see if they could honor Donald for his years of service. With his birthday less than a month away, Penny and Del threw a birthday party for him in conjunction with the recognition ceremony.

Donald Crawford smiles and waves to family and friends gathered for his recognition ceremony.

"We had mentioned the possibility to the family, and we try to do it with every military patient that comes in," said Sharon Oakes, a spokeswoman for Covenant Hospice in Milton. "We try to honor the family's wishes … we really have a strong commitment to our military here on the Gulf Coast."

Donald wasn't expecting the party or the military honor Saturday and was in high spirits with his family by his side. Members from Whiting Field and retired military men and women presented him with his pin, a prayer and a certificate thanking him for his years of service.

Donald will tell you that he might have only been in the military for six years, but every time gets an X-ray of his hand he is reminded of his service.

"I was hit by a piece of shrapnel and it got stuck in my hand," Donald said. "They never did take it out after 50 years."

For Donald, being reunited with his family was more important than receiving recognition for his service.

"We are making up for 40 years of lost time," Penny said. "He can't get out of bed and he doesn't have much time left."

For the Crawford's, the last few months of being together has been the best time of their life.

Del, a retired Marine who hung up his uniform last year, said he could not have been happier to find his father and to finally have him receive recognition for his service.

"This is really big for him because he never got recognized, and I think he deserves the recognition," Del said.

And as Donald will tell you, his time in the military was memorable.

"I loved every minute of it," Donald said. "There are things I wish I could have done better, but I'm proud of my service."

And what made Donald even more proud was when he met his son and daughter-in-law for the first time over 10 years ago in Oregon.

"He came in and shook my hand, and I told him that wouldn't do," Donald laughed. "I gave him a big hug.

"It truly was breathtaking meeting him after 35 years."

Panthers walk to loss

By Bill Gamblin
sports@srpressgazette.com

The Milton Panthers had what appeared to be a huge win within their grasp until the seventh inning.

Six consecutive walks led to the Panthers losing at home to Pensacola Catholic 4-3.

The Crusaders, who notched win No. 600 for veteran coach Richard LaBounty, walked six straight times to go from two runs down to scoring the winning run as Tyler Henry walked to bring in Drew LaBounty, the coaches son.

Despite the loss, Milton (2-2) got six strong innings of three hit baseball from starter Jordan Martin who did not figure into the decision.

Martin went 2-for-4 at the plate and figured into a big third inning where the Panthers sent 10 batters to the plate.

The Panthers jumped out to a 3-0 lead as Cody Lowe and Will Gray also finished with RBIs.

On Friday Pace defeated Lowndes High 6-1 in the Florida-Georgia Challenge at Lowndes High School.

The Patriots fell behind 1-0 in the bottom of the first and rallied to win the game behind the pitching of Thomas Huston who scattered three hits and struck out 11.

Addison Russell went 1-for-3 with four RBIs in the win as Patrick Maddox finished with two RBIs with one hit.

Jay traveled to Navarre on Friday and lost 15-5 to the Raiders.

In girls softball, Milton is rolling right along with senior standout Katie Worley in the pitcher circle.

Friday Milton defeated Navarre 3-1 in 10 innings.

Worley struck out 22 batters and allowed only three hits, while Emily Vasquez drove home with winning run in the 10th inning as she singled with two runners on base.

Vasquez also drove in the Lady Panthers run Thursday night as they defeated Gulf Breeze 1-0.

Worley struck out 10 in this win and allowed two walks and three hits.

At Pace, the Lady Patriots came up short against Tate 7-2 Thursday.

Tate took an early 2-0 lead, but Pace would tie the game in the bottom of the fourth inning.

The Lady Aggies would then bounce back after giving up those two runs to score five unanswered over the next three innings for the win.

Taylor Wade struck out six in the loss while giving up nine hits.

Wade, Mallory Carpenter, Shelby Williams, and Hannah Jones each recorded a hit for Pace.

Argos split conference opener at home

Special to the Press Gazette

The No. 2 West Florida baseball team split their conference opening double header against New Orleans, taking game one 10-9 and falling in game two 12-3, on Sunday. After the series the Argonauts move to 13-3 overall and 1-1 in Gulf South Conference competition.

UNO wasted no time in game one scoring three runs in the top of the first inning on RBI hits by Blake LeBlanc, Beau Boudreaux and Steffan Farrell. The Argos answered back in the bottom half of the inning on a two out two RBI double by Josh Huggins, cutting into UNO's lead 3-2. West Florida made it a new ball game, 3-3, in the bottom of the second inning when Leo Lamarche came in to score on a wild pitch.

The Privateers tacked on another run, 4-3, in the top of the third inning on a RBI single to left field by Boudreaux. UNO plated two more runs, 6-3, in the top of the fourth inning on a fielding error by Lamarche and a RBI single by Clint Coleman. UWF answered back with two runs in the bottom of the fifth inning on a two RBI single through the left side of the infield by Michael Tomlinson, making the score 6-5.

The Argos took their first lead in the ball game, 9-6, in the bottom of the sixth inning on RBI base hits by JR Pryor and Dustin Saulmon. UWF added another run, 10-6, in the seventh on a RBI base hit up the middle by Saulman scoring Taye Larry. UNO cut into the Argos lead, 10-9, in the eighth inning plating three runs on RBI hits by LeBlanc and Dan Perkins but was not enough as the Argos held on to win.

Josh Tanski got the start for UWF on the mound and allowed four runs on nine hits in 2.1 innings of work. Dan Husum followed out of the bullpen and allowed two runs on three hits in 2.1 innings of work. Drew Bryson recorded the win for UWF hurling 2.2 innings allowing three runs on two hits in 2.2 innings of work. Bobby Parker recorded his sixth save tossing 1.2 shutout innings. UNO's Cameron Glendinning received the loss allowing three runs on one hit in 0.1 innings

West Florida struck first in game two scoring a run on a sacrifice fly by Huggins. UNO answered back with three runs on RBI hits by Steffan Farrell and Zach Liberto. The Privateers tacked on two more runs, 5-1, on a two run home run over the left field wall by Seth Laigast. UWF answered back in the bottom half of the inning, 5-2, on a two out RBI single by Tomlinson scoring Saulmon.

West Florida cut into the Privateers lead, 5-3, in the bottom of the fourth inning on a RBI double to right center by Pryor. UNO struck for another run, 6-3, in the top of the sixth inning on a sacrifice fly by Boudreaux. UNO put the game out of reach, 12-3, scoring six runs on four hits and two big Argos errors in the top of the seventh inning.

Jake Stephens got the starting nod on the hill for UWF and received the loss allowing five runs on five hits in four innings. UNO's Jake Fabre earned the win in relief tossing 3.2 shutout innings.

In men's hoops:

The University of West Florida men's basketball team saw its best season in 15 years come to an end Sunday night, as the NCAA released the 2011-12 National Tournament pairings and the Argonauts didn't hear their name called.

West Florida, who ends its season at 19-11, was ranked at No. 6 in the South Region before the Gulf South Conference Tournament this past weekend. The Argos took down regionally ranked No. 8 North Alabama before losing on a buzzer beater three to top seeded Alabama-Huntsville in a Saturday semifinal match up.

Unranked Florida Southern won the Sunshine State Conference in an upset on Sunday afternoon, likely bumping the Argos from a spot in their first ever NCAA Tournament.

West Florida put together one of the top seasons in school history and was one win shy of tying the all time single season win mark. The Argos also won their first GSC Tournament game in 11 years as they took down the Lions on Friday.

Lumberjacks rained out

Woodsman's competition, children's crafts continue

Competitors at Saturday's Lumberjack Festival called it quits after downpours had people running for shelter throughout the day.

The 24th annual celebration brought in several hundred people throughout the day, but most headed inside the Pensacola State College buildings to partake in children's activities or to just learn the history of lumberjacking.

Even through the rain, many participated in events such as the log roll and axe throwing competition.

Many vendors also stuck around to educate attendees about the rich history of lumberjacking in Northwest Florida.

Downpours didn't stop artists from showing off their skills on the Pensacola State College campus on Saturday. Left, Dillon Shelton plays with items at a table at the Lumberjack Festival during downpours. Above, Morris Buchanan shows visitors at the Lumberjack Festival how to make homemade butter.

The McCavis Bayou Canoe Launch and Dock, part of the Old River Trail is accessible for canoes, kayaks and wheelchairs.

Trail gets new life

By Mathew Pellegrino
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Visitors to Milton now have an even bigger excuse to get in touch with nature.

The City of Milton announced the completion of Old River Trail, a recreational road that runs between the city and the Northwest Florida Water Management District, Blackwater River Management area.

The road was previously closed to motorists after Russell Harbor Landing was built, and the city decided to reopen the trail as a walking and biking trail only.

"When we built Russell Harbor Landing, we closed that road off to through traffic," said Milton city manager Brian Watkins. "Now its back open as a walking and biking trail."

The half-mile trail is located on the path of the original River Road, which once serviced the properties from the Blackwater River Bridge, north to Whiting Field's Recreation Facility near Wrights Basin. Those looking to access the trail can do so at the north end of Russell Harbor Landing or where the Northwest Florida Water Management District Office is near Whiting Field, according to Watkins.

The trail has a lush nature setting with lots of Atlantic white cedars, cypress and red maple trees. The trail is also home to the endangered Panhandle lily.

The trail will include a dock on the McCavis Bayou for kayakers and canoers. Visitors are also allowed to use the waterside venue to fish and bird watch.

The trail will be open to biking,

According to Watkins, the trail opened thanks to the hard work of city employees who helped restore the trail using their own time, not grant money.

"It did overgrow, and we had to go in and clear it back and level and compact the road and seed it and do repair work up on there," Watkins said. "We did that off and on for about five to six months … we worked it when we could."

The water management district owns the property and the city will maintain the trail as park of its park and recreation system.

TRAIL RULES AND REGULATIONS:

- The trail is designated for day use only and the general public may access it year-round from 1½ hours before sunrise until 1½ hours after sunset.
- Overnight camping or campfires is prohibited.
- Motorized travel, except for wheelchairs or maintenance equipment is prohibited.
- Do not litter, and all trash is to be placed in containers provided at each entrance or is to be removed by the user. At the west entrance is a pet waste station.

The Old River Trail is now open to hikers and bicycles. Milton City Manager Brian Watkins said volunteers spent between five and six months clearing the trail and preparing it for city use.

Milton man charged with burglary

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

A Milton man was arrested Thursday night after a burglary was reported on Bluebell Street in Milton.

David Alto Bostic, 34 of Milton, was arrested and charged with burglary of a dwelling, structure, or conveyance armed, two counts of damage property criminal mischief $200 and under, possession of a weapon or ammo by a convicted Florida felon, and larceny $10,000 less than $20,000 state of emergency.

DAVID ALTO BOSTIC

According to Bostic's arrest report, deputies with the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Office responded to burglary on Bluebell Street in Milton.

The victim reported to officers that when he arrived home the drawers to his wife's dresser were open with clothes hanging out of them and his small gun safe had been broken into. While looking around the room, the victim heard the blinds to the sliding glass door move, he turned around and discovered the door was open, but he did not see anyone.

Some of the items reported missing included jewelry from a jewelry box, a watch, a .25-caliber semi-automatic handgun, prescription medications, a plastic jar that contained change, and other items that totaled over $10,000.

Investigators were able to get the description of someone who was in the front yard.

After stopping Bostic later Thursday night, the Milton Police Department requested assistance from the Santa Rosa Sheriff's Office.

Officer Dwayne Smith stopped a red jeep driven by Bostic and found a weapon and several items of jewelry in the car.

After Smith read Bostic his Miranda Rights, Bostic said he had stolen the items off of Bluebell earlier in the day.

According to the arrest report, while talking to a Santa Rosa County Deputy Sheriff, Bostic said his first name was 'Dumb Ass.'

During a recorded interview after he was read his Miranda Rights a second time, Bostic admitted he parked his jeep on Bluebell Street and walked to the home he burglarized.

Bostic remains in the Santa Rosa County Jail with his bond set at $70,500.

Milton man arrested on animal cruelty charges

By Bill Gamblin
news@srpressgazette.com

A Milton man was arrested Thursday on a warrant for 10 counts of animal cruelty.

Cordderryl Lee Pittman, 24 of Milton, was charged with eight counts of conservation of animals torment, deprive, mutilate, or kills, a first degree misdemeanor and two counts of conservation of animals cause cruel death, pain, and suffering, a third degree felony.

Pittman remains in the Santa Rosa County Jail without bond.

CORDDERRYL LEE PITTMAN

According to the probable cause affidavit, an investigation was started by the Office of Agriculture Law Enforcement on Feb. 19 after receiving multiple emails from the Panhandle Equine Rescue.

In the emails there were numerous photos of horses in which investigators could see the bony structures of the neck, shoulders, and withers of the horses.

The affidavit indicated the horses clearly appeared to be emaciated due to being deprived of necessary sustenance.

On Feb. 20, Officer Charles Padgett and Division of Animal Industry Investigator Michael Stevenson went to the Quiet Creek Road home of Pittman where they noticed a 10 foot by 20 foot shelter that appeared to be holding horses.

While at the residence, they noticed a red colt that had no water and only a small amount of hay available.

During their visit, investigators learned that several of the horses had been given away by Pittman.

Investigators went to visit those who had received the horses and learned that several of the horses were in the same condition as the colt was at Pittman's home.

During the course of the investigation Dr. Sara Clark was interviewed.

Clark had to euthanize a horse that was owned by Pittman on Feb. 17. The doctor indicated that she was called out by the Santa Rosa County Horse Assistance Council due to the emaciated condition of the horse.

Clark indicated she had reported the conditions to the SRCHA to have someone investigate the critical conditions of the animals.

The doctor gave the horse she euthanized a body condition score of two on a scale of nine. She went on to say five of the horses she saw had a BCS score of three of nine and one of those horses was suffering from paraphimosis. The doctor also identified three more horses with a BCS score of four out of nine.

Prior to his arrest Pittman signed over all rights to the remaining three horses to Santa Rosa County Animal Control on Feb. 28 at which time they were taken to Alaqua Animal Rescue in Walton County for treatment and placement.

Dear Pastor Gallups, " I heard you on WEBY the other day reporting on Sheriff Joe Arpaio's legal findings on Obama's birth certificate. Can you elaborate? It looks like you have been right on this issue all along!"

B. D. – Milton

Dear B.D.,

Sheriff Joe Arpaio of Maricopa County, Arizona assembled a six-man investigative team over six months ago to investigate the legitimacy of Obama's purported Birth Certificate, which Obama presented to the nation back in early 2011. On March 1, 2012, Arpaio released his findings in a one and a half hour public news conference. It was attended by many major media sources. The bottom line of his finding was that the Birth Certificate and Obama's supposed Selective Service Registration information are proven FORGERIES and FRAUDULENT. See the entire conference at www.carlgallups.com.

Remember, these findings were from a six-man team of three criminal investigators and three attorneys, working independently of Arpaio. They also employed the services of a myriad of forensics examiners and renknowned digital document experts. Below are some quotes from that conference.

"To quell the popular idea that Obama was actually born outside the United States, we examined the records of Immigration and Naturalization Service cards routinely filled out by airplane passengers arriving on international flights that originated outside the United States in the month of August 1961 [Obama's birth month]. Those records are housed at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. Interestingly; records from the days surrounding Obama's birth, August 1, 1961 to August 7, 1961 are missing. This is the only week in 1961 where these immigration cards cannot be found."

"Absent the authentic Hawaii Department of Health 1961 birth records for Barack Obama, there is no other credible proof supporting the idea or belief that President Barack Obama was born in Hawaii, as he and the White House have consistently asserted. In fact, absent the authentication of Hawaii Department of Health 1961 birth records for Barack Obama, there is no other proof he was born anywhere within the United States."

Yes – It looks as though I was right all along. I wish that I was not right. It appears that we might have a treasonous usurper in the White House. Pray for our nation.

METULLA, Israel (AP) — An Arab-Jewish hockey team has become an unlikely icebreaker in this remote corner of northern Israel, overcoming barriers of language, culture and conflict.

In the arid Middle East, hockey is virtually unheard of, and relations between Arabs and Jews in this combustible area, next to the tense borders of Lebanon and Syria, are generally downright chilly. The Arab players on the Metulla junior ice hockey team, coming from the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights, technically aren't even Israeli.

But thanks to an accidental combination of philanthropy, enthusiasm and a sports-mad Arab mayor, the mixed team of teens and preteens is thriving.

"When you play together, you forget that you are Arabs and Jews," said Mayyas Sabag, a 12-year-old forward from the Druse village of Majdal Shams. He is one of five Arab athletes on the 14-member team.

The team is the product of Metulla's Canada Centre, a sprawling sports complex donated to this rural border town in the 1990s by Canadian Jews. The building houses Israel's only Olympic-size hockey rink.

And when the hockey players get skating, the only tension they feel is the thrill of competition.

"When I'm on the ice, I don't feel the ground underneath me," said Maya al-Yousef, a 13-year-old Druse Arab.

With her curly hair crushed into her helmet, al-Yousef was among two dozen youths speeding, skidding and weaving on the ice during a recent practice.

The two Arab girls and three boys on the team said they had never met Jews their age before playing ice hockey. Jews said the same about Arabs. The Arab youths have adopted a halting Hebrew from Jewish teammates.

The coach, parents and sponsors all acknowledge the project is only a small step toward real peace in the region. And though many players said they were not necessarily close friends, they said the meetings have changed the way they view each other.

"In a short period of time, we got to know each other," 14-year-old Niv Weinberg said. "We aren't the only ones living here. This country isn't ours alone."

Levav Weinberg, a 30-year-old Metulla apple farmer and hockey enthusiast, began the Canada-Israel Hockey School two years ago with funding from Jewish Canadian philanthropist Sydney Greenberg. He subsidized coaching, equipment, uniforms and rink time.

To encourage enrollment, Weinberg talked up the project to a friend, Dolan Abu-Saleh, the mayor of Majdal Shams.

Majdal Shams village is nestled in the Golan Heights, a mountainous plateau Israel seized from Syria in the 1967 Mideast war. Although Israel later annexed the territory, the move was never internationally recognized, and unlike Israel's own Druse community, who serve in the military and are generally well integrated, Golan residents still consider themselves Syrian, or refer to themselves simply as Arabs or Druse.

Such barriers made little difference when 34-year-old Abu-Saleh promised parents a free bus to Metulla, 12 miles away, if their children took up the sport. Within weeks, 100 Arab youths turned up. They even had a translator.

Weinberg then faced a new challenge: getting Jewish youths involved. Their parents were reluctant to allow them to play with Arabs, he said.

Weinberg won parents over with $5 classes, an affordable way to keep children busy. More than 200 Jewish children have since signed up, in addition to about 120 Arabs.

The school keeps new Arab and Jewish students in different classes, seeking to build their confidence on ice before introducing them to each other. But when they are skilled enough to compete, the youths are placed on mixed Arab-Jewish teams.

"Then they understand: 'These are the team members I have, and (getting along) is the only way to win the game,'" Weinberg said.

For a while, Weinberg also brought in a small number of Lebanese children, thanks to another accident of history. The border runs through the nearby Israeli-controlled village of Ghajar, where the residents, while citizens of Lebanon, are allowed to enter Israel.

But the project collapsed when some Ghajar parents withdrew their children. An Israeli army checkpoint at the village's entrance frequently delayed other players, holding up training.

Ice hockey in Israel, a country of nearly 8 million people, is modest: There are about 6,000 players in Israel in three different age leagues, coach Ben Chernie said. But thanks to its rink and a large local population of immigrants from the former Soviet Union, Metulla has emerged as Israel's hockey capital.

The Metulla junior ice hockey team has trained together for more than 1½ years now. They are ranked No. 4 in Israel's Peewee league.

"Next year, if not first place, they'll be second place," Weinberg said. "A year ago, they weren't in a level to play in the league."

Their patron, Greenberg, is hoping to improve their rank — and love of the sport — by flying them to Canada for a 10-day ice hockey tour.

They'll watch the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Ottawa Senators play, meet some players, receive coaching and play against other teams, said Shoshana Rabinowitz, Greenberg's assistant.

They'll be hosted by Jewish families in each city. The Druse and Jewish youths were partnered off together to help foster friendships, Weinberg said.

"This is how it starts: in small things," he said.

During training on the rink this week, Sabag and his Israeli teammate, 14-year-old Lidor Bez, buzzed around Weinberg on the ice, demanding to be partners during the Canada trip. They want to sit beside each other on the plane and stay with the same families, they said.

"He's a friend of mine — a good friend," Bez said. "When we play together, we aren't going to let each other fail. Even if he is from Syria, and I am from Israel."

Studies: Crime fell around Connecticut casinos

LEDYARD, Conn. (AP) — When the first of two massive casinos opened in a remote corner of Connecticut two decades ago, some officials and residents feared the gambling centers would lead to organized crime, prostitution, drunken driving and other crime.

But the crime rate since Foxwoods Resort Casino and Mohegan Sun opened has fallen in the nearby municipalities compared to the years before the casinos opened — mirroring a drop in crime nationwide. Crime did not decline in some towns near the casinos as much as it fell statewide, but local officials acknowledge the worst fears never materialized.

"I'd say those fears have not come to pass," said Montville Mayor Ron McDaniel.

The crimes studied include murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary and thefts. Mohegan Sun opened in 1996, Foxwoods in 1992.

Montville has averaged 13 crimes per 1,000 residents annually since 1996, when both casinos were open, through 2009 — down 35 percent from the 19 crimes per 1,000 residents logged in the seven years before either casino was opened, 1985-1991.

Montville's post-casino decline is slightly less than the statewide average decline of 36 percent, compared to the seven years before the casinos arrived.

Ledyard experienced a 25 percent decline compared to the period before the casinos.

Crime fell 19 percent in the nearby city of Norwich, 33 percent in Preston and 24 percent in North Stonington.

Then-Gov. Lowell Weicker warned in 1991 that Foxwoods would lead to organized crime, prostitution, drunken driving and other crime.

But records show prostitution arrests are rare in the casinos and host towns and there is little evidence of mob activity.

"We haven't experienced that type of criminal behavior," said Lt. J. Paul Vance, a spokesman for Connecticut State Police, which has policed the casinos since they opened. Organized crime, he said, "really has not crossed our radar."

As for Weicker's prostitution prediction, Mohegan Sun had no prostitution arrests inside the casino from 2003 to 2008, the last year for which statistics were available. Foxwoods had two arrests. Montville and Ledyard, the towns that host the casinos, had none.

Drunken driving arrests are down in Norwich, an average of 208 from 1985 until 1991, the year before Foxwoods opened. From 1992 through 2009, Norwich averaged 163 drunken driving arrests.

Disorderly conduct arrests are also down in Norwich, from an annual average of 767 in the pre-casino years to 354 arrests annually since the casinos.

Drunken driving statistics for the other four towns were not available before 2003.

The two casinos attract tens of thousands of visitors daily and rank among the biggest in North America with about 18,000 employees combined. Mohegan Sun posted $719 million in slot-machine revenue in the last fiscal year, compared with $650 million for Foxwoods.

Thefts did rise substantially after Foxwoods Resort Casino opened. Larcenies account for most of the crimes that occur in both casinos.

Around Connecticut, embezzlements have more than tripled, a trend some blame on gambling debts. The state has averaged 158 embezzlements annually since the casinos opened, more than triple the average of 49 before casinos.

Studies have reached different conclusions on whether casinos cause more crime.

In a 2006 study, two economics professors looked at crime in every county in the country between 1977 and 1996 and compared crime rates in counties with and without casinos, taking into account factors ranging from population density to income. The professors, Earl Grinols at Baylor University in Texas and David Mustard at the University of Georgia, found a rise in all crimes except murder as a result of casinos and concluded that more than 8 percent of property crimes and more than 12 percent of violent crimes in counties with casinos were because of the presence of the casino.

"Specifically, problem and pathological gamblers commit crimes as they deplete their resources, nonresidents who visit casinos may both commit and be victims of crime and casino-induced changes in the population start small but grow," they wrote.

Grinols said the paper was original academic research, and he was not paid to do it other than through his university position.

Steven Lanza, a University of Connecticut economist, concluded in a study in 2008 that the state largely had escaped the ill effects of casinos. Lanza found the crime rate fell less in the casino towns than the state average from 1990 to 2000, but concluded the casinos were not a significant factor.

Lanza said his study was the outgrowth of his research on the topic as editor of The Connecticut Economy, supported in part by the Mohegan Sun but mostly by the University of Connecticut and other partners. Mohegan Sun is no longer a financial contributor, he said.

Lanza said many factors affect crime rates, including population density, the age distribution of the population, the unemployment rate and the wealth of the community. He said after taking those factors into account, crime in Montville and Ledyard was actually lower in 2000 than might have been expected.

The improving economy in the 1990s probably provides much of the reason that crime dropped most everywhere in the state, Lanza said.

Connecticut might have escaped the adverse effects of the casinos because of its remote location and the fact that the state's casinos are destinations rather than gambling strips within a town or city, Lanza said.

"It's something of an obstacle to it spilling into the community," he said. "The results were kind of surprising."

Casinos' anti-compulsive bet programs vary widely

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — As lost weekends go, this one was a doozy.

The woman and her longtime boyfriend, regular Atlantic City gamblers, lost $100,000 in two days in early January. She lost her job, and they now owe $205,000 to five Atlantic City casinos, with no realistic prospects of paying it back.

She picked up the telephone and called her host, John Conklin, Resorts' vice president of player development, whose job it is to keep gamblers happy — and coming back.

"This is more than I can handle," she told him. "I'm in over my head. All of my real estate is underwater. I don't know what I'm going to do."

Conklin was concerned.

"She sounded desperate," he recalled. "I could hear it in her voice."

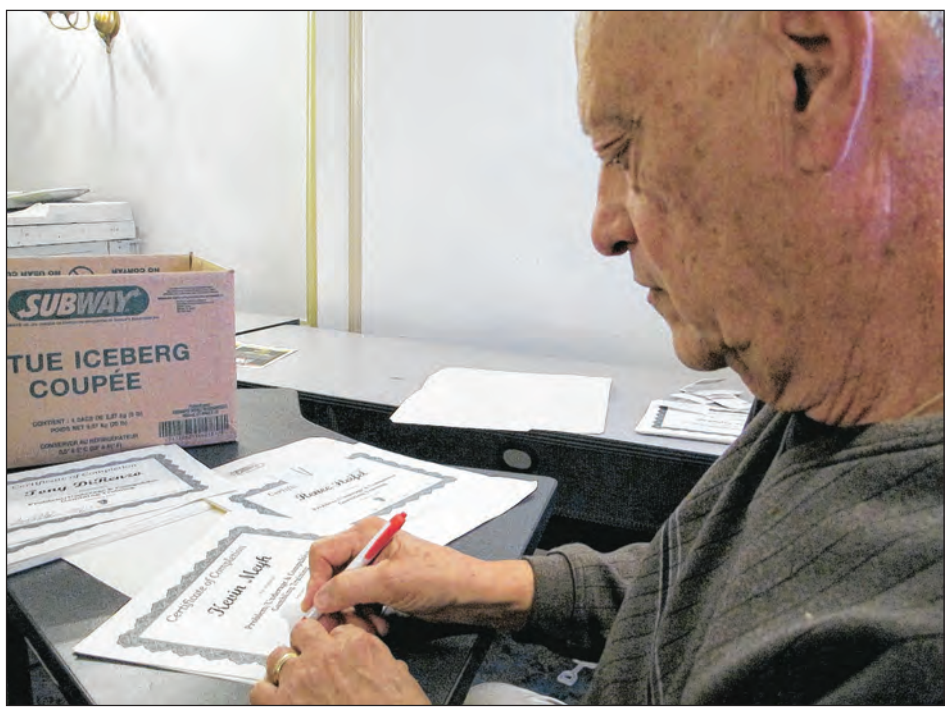
He gave her the phone number of Arnie Wexler, the former head of New Jersey's Council on Compulsive Gambling and himself a former gambling addict. Wexler helped get the woman and her boyfriend into a program for gambling addicts, promised to help her work out some sort of arrangement with the casinos and let her know she was not alone, that there are thousands like her.

Wexler travels the country giving training sessions to casino employees on how to spot potential compulsive gamblers and what to do if they encounter any.

The casino industry's efforts to spot problem gamblers and intervene with them range from intense, hands-on sessions like those Wexler gives, to much more passive efforts like having brochures about where to get help for a gambling addiction available on the casino floor or handing out pens with the toll-free number of a help line printed on them.

Though most casinos have adopted some form of responsible gambling policy, it can be a delicate balance in an industry whose very business model relies on gamblers risking and losing money. The casino industry has two main motivations in dealing with problem gamblers, said Alan Feldman, a vice president at MGM Resorts International and chairman of the National Center for Responsible Gaming.

"There is a strong belief among many of the casino executives that there is a moral obligation to do this," he said. "But there's also a strong business reason: Problem gamblers make for lousy customers. By their very nature, they will turn into bad debt.



AP

Arnie Wexler, former head of new Jersey's Council on Compulsive Gambling, signs certificates for employees of Resorts Casino Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J., who completed a training program he runs on compulsive gambling.

"For them to hit bottom, they have to cause a lot of pain along the way, to themselves, their families and to companies," he said. "It serves no purpose in any business to have customers who can't pay their bills."

The center developed a training program called Emerge, which has become the standard among casinos belonging to the American Gaming Association, the industry's main trade group. Different casinos use it differently, but the aim is the same: to intervene when there is a problem, Feldman said.

Wexler's advice to the dealers, hosts and player reps at resorts was simple, and borrowed from the homeland security slogan: If you see something, say something.

"You're not clinicians, you're not counselors," he told the workers. "It's not your job to run over to a customer and say, 'Hey buddy, you've got a gambling problem.' But you can kick it upstairs to an officer in your casino, and they can intervene and take care of it. Let a supervisor know about it."

Warning signs

There are a few signs dealers and other customer service workers can pick up on that might indicate a patron has a gambling problem, said Donald Weinbaum, the current executive director of New Jersey's compulsive gambling council.

"If you have a regular patron and you see them making larger, crazy wagers, it might be that they're trying to break even. It might be that they're caught up in an addiction. If you see a patron going through mood swings, that could be another indication. Talk to the patron. Maybe suggest a brief timeout. Give them the 1-800-GAMBLER number and let them know there's a place where they can get help."

Of course, that can sometimes require diplomacy worthy of a Washington ambassador. For an employee to suggest that a customer stop gambling, even briefly, requires supportive bosses.

"We feel like we have a moral obligation," said Aaron Gomes, executive vice president of operations at Resorts and the son of former co-owner Dennis Gomes, who died recently. "We're in the business of entertaining customers. When it stops being entertaining, we want our workers to talk to them and see if there is a problem."

An estimated 2 million to 5 million Americans have some sort of gambling problem. A 1999 study by the National Gambling Impact Study Commission estimated another 15 million are at risk for developing a gambling problem. There are 38 states with some form of casino gambling.

The scope of problem-gambling outreach varies widely across the country.

At least 12 states require casinos to adopt and carry out responsible gaming policies as a condition of getting licensed, said Brian Lehman, a spokesman for the American Gaming Association, the main industry trade group. They include Nevada, Louisiana, Iowa, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Florida, Illinois and New York. New Jersey, however, has no such requirement.

Many states have so-called self-exclusion lists, where gamblers can sign up and require casinos to bar them from the premises either permanently, or for varying periods of time. Many states also assess a charge on casinos to help fund treatment programs for compulsive gamblers.

Michigan, which estimates it has 350,000 residents who are addicted to gambling, places ads for its problem-gambler hotline in church bulletins. The Seminole Indian casinos in Florida, like many others across the nation, put up signs letting customers know where to go for help with a gambling problem and include that information on players club cards and casino advertising.

A problem gambling task force is being formed near Kansas City, Kan., where a casino opened Feb. 2. Neighboring Missouri has a self-exclusion list. And authorities in Massachusetts are considering problem gambler prevention and treatment programs as casino gambling draws nearer there.

'Weed out casualties'

Arelia Taveras started out as an ambitious lawyer and TV commentator who got to know the staff in Atlantic City casinos, and soon limousines were whisking her to the resort for the high-roller treatment. But her gambling spun out of control: She said she would go days at a time at the tables, not eating or sleeping, brushing her teeth with disposable wipes so she didn't have to leave the table. She sometimes passed out.

Her total losses amounted to nearly $1 million, and in 2008, she filed a $20 million racketeering lawsuit against six Atlantic City casinos and one in Las Vegas, claiming they had a duty to notice her compulsive gambling problem and cut her off.

Such lawsuits rarely succeed, but they can be costly for casinos to defend and damaging to their reputation. Taveras' suit was dismissed, and Taveras served nearly 3½ years in prison for stealing clients' money to finance her gambling. She wishes someone at any of the casinos she frequented — including Resorts — would have taken her aside and tried to talk some sense into her when it was obvious she needed help.

"I'd stay three, four days at the table and have a Snickers bar," she said. "There are people who pee on their seats because they don't want to get up. You mean you don't see that? Come on. They have a duty to us."

In a single weekend in September 2005, she said, she lost $150,000 gambling at Resorts. She said the casino asked her to sign a waiver of liability if she wanted to continue gambling there, but she declined. Taveras realizes many people feel she is solely to blame for her own actions. But she gambling can be every bit as addictive as drugs or alcohol.

"Capitalism is capitalism; I get that," she said. "My issue is that they need to take steps to weed out casualties."
