50th anniversary of the F3 tornado that claimed 17 lives

By BILL GAMBLIN
377-4611 | @SRPG_Bill
news@srpressgazette.com

At 8 a.m., 50 years ago today, tragedy struck Milton.

Longtime residents of Santa Rosa County still recall the day and the damage. An F3 tornado claimed 17 lives, injured 100 people, and destroyed approximately 130 homes.

Damage estimates from the 1962 storm were just over $1.5 million.

"That was a day, a bad day," said Milton City Councilman Buddy Jordan, who was on the job at Monsanto during the strike. "We heard bits and pieces, but communication and news back then was not like it is today."

Many people heard something had happened, but they didn't know the full extent of the storm until they tried to go home or check on a loved one.

Jordan rode home with a co-worker later that day and said what he saw was "shocking."

"That is when we saw the traffic and the mess," Jordan said. "The guy I rode to work with had a fiancée that lived on Cedar Street and I went up there with him to check on her."

Fate had doomed the fiancée to be one of the 100 injured by the twister that had started just south of Hamilton Bridge Road and cut a 440-foot wide path to Munson Highway near Wolfe Road.

According to Jordan, the woman was already at the hospital and she ended up losing an eye.

Carol Barnes, who worked at Gunter-Dunn Furniture which was then located where the United Way stands today, said, "We were sitting at the store and knew something was going on. It was an eerie feeling as we watched the wind pick up, things were blowing in the air and the trees were bending to the point they were literally touching the ground."

While Barnes and her co-workers were watching the storm, they saw Byrd Maypoles driving his car through the storm. Barnes said, Maypoles ended up going on an unexpected ride through the air.

Maypoles, who owned WEBY-AM and WXBM-FM at the time, had car trouble.

"I was at the corner of Magnolia and Orange streets, at the top of the hill driving towards Stewart St. when my car quit," Maypoles said. "It started and quit on me three times. When I looked in my rear view mirror, I saw debris everywhere."

Maypoles said he ducked down and

Avalon still hitting businesses in pocket

By MATHEW PELLEGRINO
393-3669 | @SRPG_Mat
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

Even with an open portion of the new four-lane Avalon, motorists are still avoiding businesses along the stretch of road that links Milton to Interstate 10.

Deb Casey, owner of Casey's Nursery and Landscaping had been complaining for months to the Florida Department of Transportation about the road.

Casey said that when road crews were widening Avalon from two to four lanes, they did not leave an open space for customers to turn into her business.

She said that's when business started going downhill.

"There are still people who will just not get on that road," Casey said.

Casey said even after they opened up a four-lane stretch of the new Avalon north and southbound lanes earlier this year, business has not picked up. She said that the road, not the economy still plays a major role in the cutback in business.

"It has picked up a little. It makes it much easier to get in and out," Casey said. "But I hear a lot of people tell me that the intersection of U.S. Highway 90 and Avalon is so bad they won't even negotiate that entrance there."

Casey said even now she has had to hold sales at her nursery to help business pick up a little.

"They're taking their time and not wanting to hurry up," Casey said about the road crews. "It seems like they're not getting anything done out there."

Casey said that last week, she had a customer come in and complain about the roadway. She said that usually the woman brings her son in with her. The woman said her son was too afraid to get in the car because they knew they had to travel on Avalon Boulevard.

"I see people at the grocery store and they'll tell me they're glad the road is partially open, but they say it's such a mess up by The Moors and Hwy 90 they just won't use it.

"There are plenty of people who will just not get on that road."

But not all businesses are feeling the same affects as Casey.

David Burton, the owner of Fort Storage said his business has actually been "good" even with lane shifts along the road.

"All last summer until now our business has been good," Burton said. "I can't say the construction has hurt our business."

Burton said that when road crews started construction, they paved new entrances for his business on Avalon and then a side entrance on Commerce Road. He said those improvements have actually kept customers coming back.

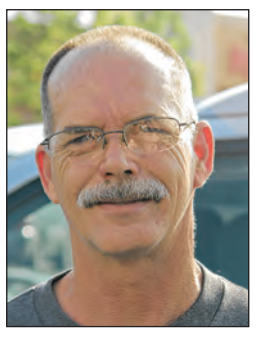
WORD ON THE STREET

Q: What do you feel is the most dangerous intersection or road in the area?

It is hard to say, but with all the construction it would be Avalon and Highway 90. I know it will be fixed, but it is dangerous for now.
Kelly Buster

Five Points is pretty rough where Berryhill Rd. connects to Chumuckla Highway. It is hard trying to get over to Quintett Rd. from Berryhill.
Bill Barrett

Avalon Boulevard is extremely dangerous. I traveled it a month ago and I don't want to again.
Ashley Wilbur



Pace Lane and Highway 90 by What-a-burger. It is a cluster there and is always dangerous.

If you have a short comment you would like to make, call the Speak Out line at 623-5887. Longer comments are better suited as a letter to the editor.

I really don't understand what motivates Ron Hart to attack President Obama week after week with misinformation, misrepresentation and outright falsehoods. Ron, mean-spirited fantasy is not the same thing as humor — although it is pretty funny that you claim Obama's poll numbers have "cratered", while in reality, Obama now holds double-digit leads over both (Mitt) Romney and (Rick) Santorum in the national polls, and his approval rating is over 50 percent. I'm laughing, Ron; how you doin'?

Wednesday, 3:26 p.m.

In the March 24 Gazette, Walter Williams writes: "Crime is one of the results of the liberal agenda." Nothing could be further from the truth. Crime is demonstrably one result of unrestrained (and sometimes criminal) capitalism wherein a tiny majority of the population gains control of the majority of the wealth (as well as the means to achieve it), often leaving the poor, the disadvantaged, and the undereducated with little recourse other than crime simply to survive.

Wednesday, 10:24 a.m.

Yes, this is Ron from Milton. I would like to comment on the courthouse they want to build. I think they should build where they tore down the old jail instead of buying new property. There is plenty of room to leave the current courthouse and build where the old jail was. They can go back towards the railroad tracks if they need parking, or build a parking garage if they need to. They can build higher for more room and they don't need a basement. It makes no sense buying property and putting the courthouse out of the city. I think the courthouse should be in the historic district where it has always been. Thank you.

Tuesday, 8:48 p.m.

This is Ed. I am getting pretty scared of this country. I have heard they have passed a law where they can kill a bald eagle, which is our national symbol. I am really scared. What will they do next? Bye.

Tuesday, 5:10 p.m.

Thank you for referring to Bubba Watson in the article 'Bubba and Boo Finish in the Money' as 'Bagdad's Bubba' before recognizing him as a 'Milton High graduate.' Nothing wrong with being a Milton High graduate, but there are deeper roots with his family in his hometown. An issue reiterated by his father's wishes just before his death. He requested entry signs into Bagdad saying 'Welcome to Bagdad, Hometown of Bubba Watson'. At his fathers request, the signs were put on the left side of the road for the obvious reason. The Bagdad Village Preservation Assoc. was honored to facilitate the signage.

Tuesday, 2:38 p.m.

This is Fran. I would like to encourage everyone to call Sen. Bill Nelson at 1-407-872-7161 and tell him that you are against him voting for Medicare that will take away our rights to have Medicare as we see it now. They want to force us to go to doctors and do things we don't want to do with our health care. It will bankrupt Medicare the way we know it now. Please find out about this and call his number.

Tuesday 12:24 p.m.

Hi, this is Chuck in Milton. I see where the United States Government paid $50,000 to each individual that was allegedly murdered by the Army Sergeant. I also see where Afghan forces killed three NATO troop members. I think the Afghan government, not funded by the U.S., should pay $50,000 to each NATO person killed.

Tuesday, 10:14 a.m.

This is Doris Kingery. Don Salter was quoted as saying there are some who want to know how tax dollars are spent. I don't think that is very large. Now I think that remark is the height of arrogance. Does he think only politicians need to know? We citizens do care and we want to know how our money is spent. Kudos to (Jerry) Couey and (Alan) Isaacson. It is a problem when politicians think they own the government. Thank you.

Monday, 8:11 p.m.

This is Jake. In our capitol in Tallahassee I saw a state legislator and the governor have made a law now in Florida where school children here can not be denied and have the right to pray at school, a school activity, or school function. I would like to hear the superintendent comment on this law. A paper reported they tried to contact him, but so far they did not get a response. With the new election, I would like to hear from those who are planning to seek office and will be running the school in the years to come. Thank you so much.

Obituary

Anna Grace McMath

Anna Grace McMath, newborn daughter of Amista Rowell McMath (Misty) and Joseph Leroy McMath, III (Joey,) and younger sister to Abriana Joy McMath (Abby) and Josiah Luker McMath (Josiah), went to the ams of her Heavenly Father on March 27, 2012, just five hours after her earthly family embraced her into theirs.

Her life was brief but so beautiful, and her family longs for the day when they will all be reunited.

Anna lived within her mother's womb for eight months, and during that time, she made a great impact on many who loved her and prayed for her.

She was born at Sacred Heart Hospital on March 27, at 10:18 a.m., weighing 4 pounds, 11 ounces. Every treasured minute of her brief life was sacred and was filled with love and joy, and she passed peacefully while being cradled by her family. Hers was a short but full life designed by her loving Creator.

Anna leaves behind her Mama, Daddy, big sister, Abby, and big brother, Josiah, all of Pace, as well as grandparents, Joy and Roger Rowell of Berrydale and Susan and Joe McMath, Jr., of Flomaton, Ala.; great-grandmother, Virginia Boothe of Allentown, and Mary McMath of Atmore, Ala. She also leaves behind aunts, uncles, cousins and many, many family members who will always miss sweet baby, Anna.

Anna was precded in death by a sibling miscarried a year before Anna's passing as well as her great grandparents, Alex Boothe, Jr., of Allentown, Hazel and Pasco Rowell of Berrydale, Joe McMath, Sr., of Atmore and Inez and Clyde Northrop, Jr., of Flomaton.

A private family graveside service will be held in Flomaton, Ala., at a later date. Services will be provided by Flomaton Funeral Home.

If you wish to honor Anna Grace through a memorial gift, donations may be made to the Pregnancy Resource Center of Milton, 5736 Stewart Street, Milton, FL 32570; 1-850-983-2730. There is an established link titled "In Honor of Anna" on the PRC website, www.prcofmilton.org.

Bicyclist seriously injured

By BILL GAMBLIN
377-4611 | @SRPG_Bill
news@srpressgazette.com

A Milton resident was injured early Wednesday while riding his bicycle near the intersection of U.S. Highway 90 and State Route 87.

John Paul Kirk, 41 of Milton, was cycling westbound on U.S. 90 when a truck driven by Kenneth Barnes, 42 of Holt, struck him.

According to a Florida Highway Patrol press release, Barnes was westbound on U.S. 90 at 5:35 a.m. and attempted to change lanes when he failed to observe Kirk.

Kirk's bike was struck from behind and was transported to Sacred Heart Hospital in serious condition.

The release said Kirk was wearing dark clothing, and the bicycle had no lights.

Kirk was cited by the FHP for improper lights.

FEMA congratulates county for flood rating improvements

Special to the Press Gazette

Brad Loar, FEMA, Region IV, Mitigation Division Director congratulated the Santa Rosa County Board of Commissioners on improving their CRS Rating from a Class 6 to a Class 5 at their March 22 board meeting.

Santa Rosa is one of only 14 communities in the state of Florida to be awarded the Class 5 designation, placing it in the top five percent in Florida and top six percent in the nation. A class 5 rating results in up to a 25 percent discount for residents in the premium cost of flood insurance for National Flood Insurance Program policies.

With the increased discounts, property owners in Santa Rosa County now save a combined $1.1 million each year on flood insurance premiums, an average additional savings of $51 per year per household.

The activity that most significantly accounted for the classification improvement was the development of the Santa Rosa County Multi-Jurisdictional Flood Mitigation Plan adopted in February, which scored higher than any previous flood mitigation plan in the history of the CRS program nationwide.

The plan was developed by the Santa Rosa County Flood Mitigation Task Force, a group composed of a broad spectrum of community stakeholders and county staff, with the assistance of CRS Max Consultants, Inc. The task force conducted meetings for six months analyzing and evaluating the community's flood hazard and making a variety of recommendations to mitigate the hazard.

Homeowners should contact their insurance provider or Santa Rosa County Floodplain Manager Karen Thornhill at (850) 981-7029 to find out if they qualify for the discount. Residents can also check their flood zone classification online at www.santarosa.fl.gov/gis by selecting "Interactive GIS Mapping System." Once in the mapping program, enter the home's address and select "flood zones" under the map layer tab to view the letter classification rating.

Locklin scoops up wins at tournament

By MATHEW PELLEGRINO
393-3669 | @SRPG_Mat
mpellegrino@srpressgazette.com

The Santa Rosa County school district has done it again.

Locklin Tech, the school district's workforce education facility took home 27 awards in the 2012 Regional SkillsUSA competition.

This year the district took home 13 gold medals, nine silver medals, three bronze medals and two honorable mentions during the competition.

As any student will tell you at Locklin Tech, it's not just the books, but the hands on education that helped them succeed in the competition.

Many students, such as Caroline Nelson took home medals. But Nelson is not like many of the students at Locklin.

Nelson is a 65-year-old worker, and she said she is not looking forward to retiring anytime soon. Nelson lost her job as a respiratory therapist a few years ago after being in the field for 25 years. She lost her job because of an injury.

So Nelson was lucky enough to hear about Locklin and enrolled in the Medical Adminstration program. She placed first in medical terminology at the regional SkillsUSA challenge.

"I didn't know what it would be like going back and learning something new," Nelson said. "The teacher really didn't help me prepare for the competition, but she told me what I should really study for before I went."

The students who placed in first and second will advance to the state competition on May 2. The state competition will be at the Pensacola Civic Center.

At the regional competition, students competed in categories such as welding, automotive and pharmaceuticals.

Last year, 17 students placed in the top three at the regional level and seven individuals came in the top three spot at the state competition.

Competitions at the regional level including hands-on and comprehension-based exams were at Pensacola State College Main Campus and George Stone Technical Center in Pensacola.

Locklin Tech assistant principal and industry certification specialist Maria LaDouceur credits much of the success at the competition to the hands-on approach the school uses.

"We do a lot of hands on training here at the school, and I think that's what separates us from the other competitors," LaDouceur said.

Nelson said she was nervous about the regional competition and is even more nervous about state, but she said she has learned so much in a short period of time, she could be ready for anything.

"This was a fast track course for me," Nelson said.

She said she plans to graduate after only a year in the program with industry certification.

"This course is really an individual progress course," Nelson said. "It's good because I can get done and get back out there in the job market again."

This year, the director for the regional competition put together an award to give to a Locklin instructor for his years of service at the school. The award was given to Jim Sullivan, a welding instructor.

"That's what is separating them from their opponents," LaDouceur said. "We have instructors that are teaching them with hands on components.

"It's one thing to know something and it's another to actually be able to do it."

Adam Kemmler, a student who placed at the regional competition for residential wiring, said he also was nervous going into the competition. Kemmler attends the electricity course at Locklin.

Kemmler started working for a job before he was at Locklin and he was later told by his employer that in order to go farther in his career, he should get training.

"I figured, if I'm going to stick with it, I'm going to stick with it," Kemmler said. "So I came here and continued my education."

SkillsUSA is a partnership of students, teachers and industry leaders working together to ensure America has a skilled workforce. In addition, the organization provides quality education experiences for students in leadership, teamwork, citizenship and character development. got on the floor of his car, but when he looked back up he was in for quite a shock.

"I remember things getting very still and quiet and I thought to myself, it being like a hurricane. I was waiting for the second half," Maypoles said. "Then I decided to look and see what had happened.

BYRD MAYPOLES

"When I looked up, I found myself staring at Red Riley, who owned an appliance store on Stewart Street. He had hid behind the counter of his store and the tornado had picked up my car and carried me two blocks. The first thing I saw was Mr. Riley staring at me and I guess I was staring back at him."

Maypoles saw a man in shorts walking down Stewart Street. He called him over to get into his car and out of the heavy rain that had started.

The dazed man, who Maypoles identified as Ronnie Helms, wanted to get to his grandmother's. She lived near the current Bass' Quick Burger location.

Helms lost his wife, Elvie, and baby, Bonnie, in the twister.

"I think he was very dazed and stunned," Maypoles said about Helms.

While many wanted to get out of Milton, Phyllis Blazier, then 17, didn't know what had happened when the phone conversation with her mother suddenly got interrupted.

"I remember that day vividly for two reasons," Blazier, who was a Milton High school senior, said. "One was it was the day of the state district band competition and I was looking forward to it. The second reason was my mom was so close to the storm."

Blazier's mother, Bea Williams, worked at Uptown Motors, the Nash Rambler dealership, at the corner of Park Avenue and Stewart Street.

"When the phones came back on, I got a call that the band trip to Pensacola was cancelled because of how many were affected by the storm," Blazier said. "There were many of us who were worried that our just completed school gym and auditorium had been damaged by the storm."

The news spread across the area, including Atlanta, Ga., where Chrys and Dr. John Holley were, at the time.

"I had just left the doctor's office, as I was pregnant at the time, and heard the news on my car radio," said Chrys Holley, who worked at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. "It was a very frustrating time for us as we could not get through to my in-laws back here in Milton."

Accounts of this day live on with people like Gayle Thames, who later married Dr. Rufus Thames.

Dr. Thames was a patient at Santa Rosa Hospital the morning of the tornado.

"He told me he was suffering from a gall bladder attack that morning and was laying on a stretcher in the hallway," Gayle said. "He told me the tornado came very close to the hospital, which was on Stewart Street across from the high school at the time, and that he had to get up off his stretcher and work on patients who were coming in with injuries."

Due to the number of people injured in the twister, individuals were taken to Escambia General, Baptist Hospital, Sacred Heart, N.A.S. Pensacola, and Santa Rosa Hospital, where 52 others were treated and released.

Many say one of the most well known places in Milton for damage was Jo's House of Pizza on Stewart Street.

Jordan, who worked with search efforts, recalled a home he saw in the aftermath.

"There was just two walls, a kitchen table, and a cupboard," Jordan said. "It looked odd to me at the time that everything else was gone, except those two walls and two items inside the house.

"When I started looking around I expected to see overturned trailers and things, but I didn't expect to see that."

Debris from the tornado stretched from Milton to Andalusia, Ala. That is where the Southern Generators sign was found after being ripped from its Stewart Street location.

Maypoles, who was one of the few with two-way radios at the time, was called upon by the Navy to do an aerial survey of the city.

"I remember describing the trash and debris I saw from the air," Maypoles said. "There were refrigerators and other debris spread from Milton all the way to north of Baker."

The April 1, 1962 edition of the Press Gazette, published the Sunday after the tornado, noted schools were closed the Monday following the tornado and that long distance calls clogged the few telephone lines left in operation.

Burton's business is on the east side of Avalon Boulevard. Most of the businesses, like Casey's, on the west side were affected by construction because of poor markings of business entrances.

"Now, if we had been on the west side of the highway instead of the east, we would have probably been hurting," Burton said.

Burton, like Casey said he is frustrated because construction crews still haven't completed work at the intersection of Hwy 90 and Avalon Boulevard.

"Most of the comments I get from customers are 'I'll bet you'll be glad when this construction is over with,'" Burton said. "And I tell them, 'well, you're not really going to believe this, but it really hasn't hurt me.'"

For most Avalon drivers, construction has hurt their driving commute, but for some, it hasn't affected their driving habits at all.

"I take this road everyday, it's my only option to get to and from my job," said Frank Hagger. "It has been frustrating at times, but you get used to the people that drive up and down this road.

"Having them open that entrance up to the four lanes has helped out though."

MINORITY VIEWPOINT

Racial profiling

Right now, there isn't enough known about the circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting of 17-year-old Trayvon Martin, a black, by George Zimmerman, a 28-year-old part-Hispanic, during his neighborhood watch tour in an Orlando suburb. If evidence emerges that Zimmerman's actions were not justified, he should be prosecuted and punished; however, there's a larger issue that few people understand or have the courage to acknowledge, namely that black and young has become synonymous with crime and, hence, suspicion. To make that connection does not make one a racist. Let's look at it.

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
Walter Williams

Twelve years ago, a black Washington, D.C., commissioner warned cabbies, most of whom were black, against picking up dangerous-looking passengers. She described "dangerous-looking" as a "young black guy ... with shirttail hanging down longer than his coat, baggy pants, unlaced tennis shoes." She also warned cabbies to stay away from low-income black neighborhoods. Did that make the D.C. commissioner a racist?

In some cities, such as St. Louis, black pizza deliverers have complained about having to deliver pizzas to certain black neighborhoods, including neighborhoods in which they live. Are they racists? The Rev. Jesse Jackson once remarked, "There is nothing more painful for me at this stage in my life than to walk down the street and hear footsteps and start thinking about robbery — (and) then look around and see somebody white and feel relieved." Does that make the reverend a racist?

The former Charleston, S.C., black chief of police, Reuben Greenberg, said the problem facing black America is not racial profiling. "The greatest problem in the black community is the tolerance for high levels of criminality." Former Los Angeles black police Chief Bernard Parks, defending racial profiling, said, "It's not the fault of the police when they stop minority males or put them in jail. It's the fault of the minority males for committing the crime. In my mind, it is not a great revelation that if officers are looking for criminal activity, they're going to look at the kind of people who are listed on crime reports." Are former police Chiefs Greenberg and Parks racist?

According to the Uniform Crime Report for 2009, among people 18 or younger, blacks were charged with 58 percent of murder and non-negligent manslaughter, 67 percent of robberies, 42 percent of aggravated assaults and 43 percent of auto thefts. As for murder, more than 90 percent of the were black. These statistics, showing a strong interconnection among race, youth and crime, are a far better explanation for racial profiling and suspicion than simple racism.

Black Americans have spoken out against racial profiling by police. They've been insulted by store personnel who give them extra scrutiny. There's the insult of the sound of a car door being locked when a black approaches. It's insulting to have taxi drivers pass up a black person and pick up white people down the street. In a similar vein, I'm sure a law-abiding Muslim is insulted when given extra scrutiny at airports or listening to Fox News reporter Juan Williams, who was fired by National Public Radio in 2010 for publicly saying he gets nervous when he sees people on a plane with clothing that identifies them as Muslim. Blacks and Muslims who face the insults of being profiled might direct their anger toward those who've made blacks and crime synonymous, and terrorism and Muslims.

God would never racially profile, because he knows everything, including who is a criminal or terrorist. We humans are not gods; therefore, we must often base our decisions on guesses and hunches. It turns out that easily observed physical characteristics, such as race, are highly interconnected with other characteristics less easily observed.

For most blacks to own up to the high crime rate among blacks is a source of considerable discomfort. Beyond that, it creates suspicions and resentment, which are destructive of good race relations, and it's devastating to the black community, its primary victim.

Walter E. Williams is a professor of economics at George Mason University.

I am a delivery driver and it would be the intersection next to Ollie's on Highway 90 or at the Tom Thumb at East Spencer Field. I don't like either one because people make U-turns.

Katherine Folzman

The intersection at Five Points. The traffic backs up at the light and when you try to turn onto Woodbine from Berryhill you take your life into your own hands.

Travis Reed

Lately for me it has been Northrup and Highway 90 in Milton. I don't know if it is the visibility or red light. It has made the paper a lot.

Becky Hassler

Watkins Lane and Highway 90 is a problem because some people do not realize there are two left hand turn lanes.

Natalie Ziegler

I would say Highway 90 and Avalon Boulevard because of the construction and there is always a huge traffic back up.

JoAnna Hart

MAT PELLEGRINO

BILL GAMBLIN

Pro Con

In the March 28 Press Gazette, we asked people on the street what they would like to see here that isn't here. Misty Phillips said she would like to see more assistance offices to help those in need. Currently many of these offices are in Escambia County. Should there be more offices like that here as Ms. Phillips suggests? Mat and Bill debate.

Pro: Give aid to the people who need it

You can laugh all you want, Bill, but there are people here who need these types of services, and they need them closer to home.

There are a number of ways you can apply for assistance. Some things can be accomplished online, but most people feel more comfortable going into a traditional office. Such a setting allows them to make eye contact and ask questions.

There are not a whole lot of services here in our county. And being one of the poorest counties in the state of Florida, I think that's a crying shame. A good 30 percent of the residents here are not in the workforce. Do we just ignore them?

You know, you can tell me people who need assistance are just too lazy to get a job or that they are a waste of taxpayer money, and I say you're pretty heartless. These people are just trying to get by. They need a place to go that is comfortable and that allows them to get whatever service they need in a timely manner.

I can sit here on my computer and buy stuff off of eBay all day, but if I ever have a question about a particular item, I know I have to email the seller, wait a day and finally get a response back. In those times, I know it would be easier to just go down to the store, find the same item and have a clerk answer my questions.

You seem to want to make a difficult process even more difficult.

You know, Bill, folks who are without a job might not have a vehicle. If they do, they certainly can't afford $4/gallon gasoline.

Many of these people might not be able to afford a drive to Pensacola to get the assistance they need. And even if they can, it would be more handy if the office were here.

At least if they had one here in the northern part of Santa Rosa County, everyone would have access to it. Even people who live in Pensacola could use the facilities.

Personally, I think you are fighting a lost cause, Bill. You can bring all the Walmarts, all the grocery stores and all the convenience stores you want, but can people get around? Not everyone that "boosts the economy" is rich, Bill. Most are just like me … small wallet, but willing to spend.

Believe it or not, having these services here actually might help boost our economy. People would have access to the office, and might, in turn, spend the money here they would otherwise spend getting to and from Pensacola.

Most likely, someone who drives to Pensacola ends up spending money there for lunch or something.

They'll say to themselves, "Look there is a Winn Dixie here on 9 Mile Road, I'll just shop here since it's on my way back to my house."

Con: How many should we tell no?

Mat, how many people should do without just so you and others can feel justified by having the convenience of a local assistance office?

During this era of constant budget cuts and nonstop attempts to balance the budget, you want to waste funds that could be used to help others.

Just to open such an office could cost $100,000 or $150,000. This is a conservative estimate when you look at a year's worth of salaries (an office manager, secretary/receptionist, and one or two case workers), employee benefits, office rent, office equipment expenses and other necessities like power, water, phone and the like.

From where do you think this money will come?

It will come from the same pot of government funds earmarked for the very people you want to help.

Maybe I am more conservative than most, but I could see that $150,000 being used to help several families instead of adding to the quagmire of red tape and governmental paper pushers.

I want my tax dollars appropriated for assistance to actually help people get fed, get clothed or get medical care. On the other hand, you apparently want to save a few dollars of gas.

Mat, maybe you should give up your career as a reporter and launch your prospective political career.

Too many times we think it has to be done one way.

Because of the numerous regulations and governmental red tape used to justify an agency or bureau's existence, the people who need help are often overlooked or forgotten. When an idea comes along to streamline or improve an assistance program, the mere thought strikes fear because it is new and untested.

I am old enough to remember the outrage when some agencies revealed that 50 to 75 cents of every dollar they received went to administrative costs and overhead.

That is not much help for those who really need it. We should strive for 80 to 85 cents of every dollar earmarked for assistance to actually be used for assistance.

Mat, you are like every politician out there today. You are telling the people what they want to hear … not what they need to hear.

ROPE-A-DOPE-A-DOPE-A-DO: A RESPONSE

The idea that Walter Williams can blame inner city poverty on local black and Democratic governments is laughable (Political rope-a-dope, SRPG March 24). Government is not the problem; business is the problem. Business has been the problem since the housing bubble burst and the country's banks suffered a financial meltdown.

Local governments cannot create jobs in the private sector. At best they can create government jobs, tax relief and assistance programs. For funding, local governments rely on property taxes. As housing prices have tumbled since the bubble burst, local governments have experienced catastrophic revenue short falls and have suffered cutbacks in jobs and services. Meanwhile, the big banks have been hoarding cash and creating a hostile environment for small business establishment and expansion, the economic engine of job growth. Local governments black, white, Republican or Democrat, cannot counter this trend in any meaningful way.

Williams goes on to blame black and Democratic-led city governments by inference for a rise in black-on-black crime, without making any statistical attributions to those named individual cities. Black-on-black crime and crime in general are social conditions responding to poverty and class division, and they are not the peculiar aberrations of what Williams calls "liberal" city governments. Williams states, "Often politicians who call for law and order are viewed negatively …" Baloney! Law and order are not the exclusive provenances of Republican governments, and I do not think any responsible citizen of any city in these United States would agree with him.

Finally, in the first of two concluding paragraphs, Williams states, "Democratic and black politicians are beholden to and serve the interest of the powerful vested interest groups, such as labor unions, teachers unions and assorted liberals, not the ordinary people who voted them into office." Let's be clear; the unions to which Williams refers are entirely made up of "the ordinary people." If in fact these are the people to whom the "Democratic and black politicians are beholden," then these politicians are indeed serving the people who voted them in.

In the final paragraph of his column, Williams states, "None of this is to say that blacks should vote Republican. It is to say that political power doesn't necessarily translate into economic power and well being for the ordinary citizen." At least he got that right. Fortunately most city and county government elections are nonpartisan, and voters are encouraged to vote the candidate and not the party line. That's probably the way it should be for state and national elections as well.

"Political rope-a-dope" is but one of a long list of columns written to manipulate rather than inform readers regarding political and social questions. Through the breadth of his columns, one can surmise that Walter Williams is a resolute Republican. If is the spin he puts on economic issues as they relate to political issues that I find troubling, and that he is a professor of economics at George Mason University leads me to wonder and worry about what brand of voodoo economics he must be preaching to his students.

Sadly, misinformation is the political currency of the times. It's a shame that Williams has subverted his persuasive abilities and professional credentials to serve that end.

Sheriff cracks down on meth use, production

By BILL GAMBLIN

news@srpressgazette.com

Santa Rosa County Sheriff Wendell Hall has sent a strong message to methamphetamine cooks, sellers and users: "If you make meth, we are after you."

During a press conference Tuesday, Hall announced the arrest of 19 people Friday on warrants from a meth investigation his narcotics officers started in October 2011.

Thirteen suspects were at large Tuesday morning; 10 of those have since been apprehended. Hall is seeking the public's help in apprehending those who still are wanted.

See area arrest mugshots at srpressgazette.com.

"While we were serving our warrants on Friday, we discovered two more active meth labs at two different homes and got search warrants for them," Hall said. "Arrested in connection with those labs were Levi Pittman and Dirk Pound."

Still on warrants for meth-related charges as of Thursday were:

Meranda Anne Anderson: possession of listed chemicals with intent to manufacture a controlled substance.

Anthony Ray Barnes: possession of listed chemicals with intent to manufacture a controlled substance and five other non-drug related outstanding warrants.

Nathan Garret Stephens: conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamine and possession of listed chemicals with intent to manufacture a controlled substance.

BeforeFriday'swarrants being served, Hall's narcotics investigators and deputies arrested 94 people who were charged with 197 felonies and 23 misdemeanors.

Of the 94 people arrested, 71 of them were methamphetamine-related charges.

The largest of those arrests came when Amanda Sue Hoffman, 29, of Plano, Texas, was arrested and charged with 56 counts of obtaining a controlled substance by fraud and eight counts of trafficking in a controlled substance.

"Santa Rosa County use to be known as the No. 1 county in Florida for marijuana," Hall said. "A lot of those individuals have quit and gone to producing meth.

"There is a lot of it going on and we are trying to contain it."

Hall pointed out one way they are trying to stay ahead of the problem is through enforcement and education.

"We are trying to stay a step ahead of the issue," Hall said. "If we are not a step ahead we are right behind the issue."

While making the 71 methamphetamine arrests, Santa Rosa County Narcotics Deputies discovered 19 meth labs, six meth lab dump sites, one rolling meth lab in a vehicle and a 791.4 grams of meth and meth oil with a street value of almost $80,000.

Those arrested on warrants include:

The Lady Royals, who broke the game open in the bottom of the fourth, capitalized on Sidney Lowery's six strikeout performance where she allowed only four hits.

Former Panther reaches No. 500

Ohio Dominion University's Marcella Vanlandingham celebrates win No. 500 of her college-coaching career with her Lady Panthers after a 6-0 win over Northwood (Mich.) University.

By BILL GAMBLIN
377-4611 | @SRPG_Bill
sports@srpressgazette.com

Once a Panther, always a Panther.

That often-repeated theme in Milton never has been more true than it has been for Marcella Vanlandingham.

MARCELLA VANLANDINGHAM

On March 24, the 1988 Milton High grad, notched her 500th career-coaching win as the head coach of Ohio Dominican University, a Division II school in Columbus, Ohio, defeating Northwood (Mich.) University 6-0.

"The only reason I knew I was getting close to No. 500 was because of the sports information department," Vanlandingham said. "This is not about me, it reflects the quality of student athletes we have had here the last 16 years.

"It was the athletes who did all the hard work."

Vanlandingham, who became the third generation of her family to attend Asbury (Ky.) College, didn't start out to become a coach, but had planned on following her father Charles' footsteps in becoming a pharmacist.

"I only played one year of softball in high school because it was frowned upon to try to play sports and be in the band," Vanlandingham said. "I played some in the summers and really enjoy the game."

When Vanlandingham arrived in Wilmore, Ky., which is 15 miles south of Lexington, Ky., she decided to play softball for coach Rita Pritchett, who serves as the schools athletic director, head softball and head volleyball coach.

After graduating from Asbury in 1992, Vanlandingham returned to Santa Rosa County for one year, but decided teaching was not for her.

"I was hired as an assistant by coach Pritchett and then was offered the head coach position at ODU," Vanlandingham said. "I have had some opportunities, but I like where I am at."

Vanlandingham started the 2012 season as the Panthers' all-time winningest coach with a career mark of 490-368.

During her 17-year career in Columbus, she has won eight consecutive American Mideast Conference titles, as well as NAIA Region IX titles and World Series appearances in 2002 and 2005.

Vanlandingham has taken the NAIA program and advanced it to a NCAA Division II program.

Besides being an Eagle for her years in Wilmore, Vanlandingham has been a black and gold Panther.

"I tell my kids all the time that I was a Panther in high school and here at ODU, but was an Eagle in between," Vanlandingham said.

Vanlandingham, who is the daughter of Charles and Marcheta Vanlandingham, always has reminded her girls to take advantage of their opportunities. This is something she didn't believe was as readily available when she went to school as it has become today.

"There is a lot of opportunities to go places and play while getting your education," Vanlandingham said. "The first thing you have to do is take care of your grades and class work, but also be reminded not to close doors.

"You have to find the right niche and right place for you. Schools look at quality."

Vanlandingham, who played slow pitch at Milton and in college, would have loved an opportunity to play fast pitch softball.

"I would love the opportunity to play the game they get to play," Vanlandingham said. "I can't go back, but I think there was a lot of good athletes in my ear who would have really excelled at this game we play today."

Vermilion snapper larger than 12 inches will be open to recreational harvest in state waters of the Atlantic through Oct. 31. State waters in the Atlantic are from shore to 3 miles out. Anglers may take up to five fish per day in Atlantic waters; however, the captain and crew of for-hire vessels may not keep the daily limit.

Gulf of Mexico grouper species that will open to harvest in state waters include red, black, yellowfin, yellowmouth, rock hind, red hind and scamp. This harvest season will remain open through Jan. 31. State waters in the Gulf are from shore to 9 miles out.

Gulf of Mexico gag grouper also will open to harvest April 1 in state waters in the following counties only: Taylor, Jefferson, Wakulla and Franklin, including all waters of the Steinhatchee River, Apalachicola Bay and Indian Pass.

This season is for 2012 only and will remain open through June 30. Gag grouper will be open to recreational harvest in Gulf of Mexico federal waters and the rest of state waters (not including Taylor, Jefferson, Wakulla and Franklin) from July 1 through Oct. 31. To learn more about the gag grouper season in the Gulf of Mexico, visit MyFWC.com/Fishing and click on "Saltwater" and "Latest News-Hot Topics."

Anglers targeting Gulf grouper must use circle hooks and have dehooking devices and venting tools aboard their boats. Anglers targeting vermilion snapper in Atlantic state waters must also have dehooking devices aboard their vessel. Use of these devices helps increase the chance of survival for a fish that is caught and released. To learn more about how to use these tools, visit MyFWC.com/Fishing and click on "Saltwater" and "Regulations."

The first day of the spiny lobster closed season also is April 1.

The spiny lobster recreational and commercial season closes to harvest in state waters starting April 1 and will reopen Aug. 6. A two-day sport season is July 25 and 26.

Local law enforcement hit the streets on Tuesday with a burning desire.

That desire was lit and put in the hands of each of them as they carried an Olympic torch from the McDonald's in Milton to the Veteran's Memorial Plaza in downtown Milton.

The run is put on every year to raise money for the Special Olympics, and this year was no different. Almost two dozen local law enforcement came out to the event.

The Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Department received the torch after it was handed off by members of the Escambia County Sheriff's Office.

BonfireJam heats up P'cola Beach

By Bill Gamblin
377-4611 | @SRPG_Bill
news@srpressgazette.com

Crops are currently growing in Chumuckla so BonfireJam is going to Pensacola Beach before heading back to the country in December, bringing another star-studded country music line-up with it.

The Santa Rosa RIsland Authority and organizers are billing the event as BonfireJam fans chance to put their "toes in the water; fannies in the sand."

Headlining the Saturday, May 12 production at the Casino Beach's Gulfside Pavilion will be Ronnie Dunn, one-half of the 15-time county music vocal duo of the year: Brooks and Dunn.

Since retirement in 2010, Dunn has launched a solo career, with his first single "Bleed Red",", but his concerts are filled w/ all your Brooks & Dunn favorites.

"We're extremely excited about landing someone of the stature of Ronnie Dunn for the first show we are promoting on Pensacola Beach," said SIRA Executive Driector Buck Lee and BonfireJam Producer Joe Lewis.. "This guy is a true legend and epitomizes the kind of quality music we want to bring to Pensacola Beach."

Lewis recently announced the addition of three more acts: Craig Morgan "Redneck Yacht Club", Sunny Sweeney "Drink Yourself Single" and Brett Eldredge "Raymond".

"We are very excited about the opportunity to partner with the Santa Rosa Island Authority and the people on Pensacola Beach," Lewis said. "We have been very fortunate to work with Buck Lee and the SRIA team along with others who help make the BonfireJam a wonderful and great experience for everyone.

"We're really excited about the package of opening acts we've put together," Lewis said. "Fans are going to see four of the best talents around, Craig Morgan is already a member of the Grand Ole Opry and Sunny and Brett are performers everyone is going to be talking about very soon.

"When you couple (Morgan, Sweeney and Eldredge) with Ronnie Dunn, you see we're bringing a show that will be one of the best values ever for fans of country music – ten dollars an act if you do the simple math."

Ticket sales are underway at www.bonfirejam.com. Active duty and retired military personnel have until April 18 to apply for a 20-percent discount which applies to all tickets. The discount does not, however, apply to parking.

"Northwest Florida, with NAS Pensacola, NAS Whiting Field, Eglin and Hurlburt Field, have always had a rich military tradition," Lewis said. "This is a small way we can give back and say thank you to the people who give and sacrifice so much."

The organizers of this event have chosen the Pensacola Beach venue on purpose. They note the location, as just last year, Pensacola Beach was still feeling effects of the BP oil spill.

"The SRIA thinks this is a great way to bring attention to our beach and all the great attractions we have here," Lee said. "Working with a real professional like Joe Lewis gives us the confidence we are going to have a great show that will be wonderful for the locals and will attract visitors as well."

Dunn, during his two-decade partnership with Kix Brooks, sold more than 30 million albums, received multiple Country Music Association, American Country Music and Country Music Television awards, a Grammy, People's Choice awards, Billboard music awards, America Music awards, and more.

Reborn as a country soloist, the 57-year-old Dunn, with his self-titled album "Ronnie Dunn", is enjoying the change.

"I have to say, I'm sure enjoying feeling `new' all over again," Dunn said. "Kix and I were very honored in so many ways.

"We didn't just accomplish everything we dreamed of as a duo. We accomplished a lot more than we ever expected. I have absolutely no complaints and no regrets."

The BonfireJam-Pensacola Beach is being presented by the SRIA and is sponsored by Pen Air Federal Credit Union, Mediacom, Budweiser, and the Santa Rosa Medical Center.

Craig Morgan

Morgan, whose latest album is "Good Ole Boy," has been a mainstay on the country music charts with a body of work that includes14 top-ten hits. Among those songs, fan favorites "Redneck Yacht Club," "Almost Home," "That's What I Love About Sunday," and "Tough."

As a performer, Morgan has entertained across the globe and, in 2008, achieved one of his lifelong dreams by becoming a member of the Grand Ole Opry.

Over his 10-year career, Morgan has toured with Carrie Underwood, Keith Urban, LeAnn Rimes, Brad Paisley, and Trace Adkins while building his own solo career.

An Army veteran with almost two decades of service, he was among the first performers to entertain troops in Afghanistan, something that won him the 2006 USO Merit Award.

"(Our event was) right after the invasion. They were still sweeping up glass in Kandahar in the airport. I got to give those men and women a little piece of home. It really does make a difference," he said.

Sunny Sweeney

Sweeney, a Texas native with a traditional, old school country sound, had her first hit in 2010 with a song she penned, "From A Table Away."

Her second album, "Concrete," was released in 2011 with the songs including "Staying's Worse Than Leaving" and "Drink Myself Single."

"I'm from East Texas, and if you talk to me, you'll probably be able to tell that," she says. "I have what I like to think of as a 'healthy obsession' with Merle Haggard.

Brett Eldredge

Some life-changing moments are only apparent in retrospect. Brett Eldredge says he recognized his as it was happening.

The Paris, IL native was at the Station Inn, an historic bluegrass/country venue, in Nashville. His cousin Terry, a veteran of Dolly Parton's band and now a member of the Grascals, was playing with another group, the Sidemen. A mesmerized Brett was in the crowd.

"(Terry) asked me to come up on stage and told me to pick a song to play with the band," says Brett. "I (chose), 'Amarillo By Morning,' and when I heard that fiddle intro, chills shot up my spine. I sang it for the crowd there and it was a magical experience. That was the point where I thought, 'This is it. This is something I've got to do.'"

And every since, he's been sticking with it. He has co-written "I Think I've Had Enough" for Gary Allan and then released his first single, "Raymond," in 2010. Brett performed for the first time on the Grand Ole Opry stage later in 2010.

Some locals may remember Eldredge from last summer's Pepsi Summer Concert Series at the Fish house Deck in Pensacola.
