Seasonal shopping under way

By OBIE CRAIN

Holiday shopping in the area is alive and well.

That's the outlook most area business managers and a chamber of commerce executive director have following Black Friday, the year's most intense shopping day in the country.

The volume of business sales for the post-Thanksgiving holiday had not been tallied by press time, but the outlook for the number of shoppers leading up to the day following Thanksgiving was optimistic.

The weather, an element that weighs heavily on shopper turnout, also cooperated, allowing shoppers to move more comfortably among stores.

"I've talked to a lot of business people (concerning the local economy) around the area, and everyone seems to have a positive attitude about their expectations," Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Donna Tucker said. "Inventories are high, spirits are high and businesses are promoting themselves, getting together in a spirit of cooperation that is certain to bring about a very successful season for them," Tucker said.

She also said the Chamber is putting together a "shop local" campaign that is also expected to have an impact. "The campaign will urge people to support local businesses by shopping here, rather than out of the area."

"I think it (the economy) is going to be slow this season," said Margi Anderson at Margi's Emporium. "I'm hoping it will pick up, but I'm not sure it will. Money is tight right now. People just don't have it to spend."

Barry White at Tops Appliances in Milton appears to agree with Anderson, except he isn't quite as optimistic.

"I don't see where things (the economy) are going to get any better in the next four years… No, make that 12 years," White said.

"I think the business climate and the economic environment in general are good and will continue to be good in the foreseeable future," Milton Mayor Guy Thompson said.

HOLIDAY DUTY

Those who work to serve the public sacrifice holidays

By BILL GAMBLIN
288-0037 | @SRPG_Bill
news@srpressgazette.com

Most of us enjoyed Thanksgiving with the family, but some were ready to spring into action despite the occasion Thursday.

Firefighters, doctors, nurses, law enforcement and select others either celebrated the holiday early or waited until their shift ended. They unselfishly did this so you would be safe and protected in case of an emergency.

Professions like these and a few others do not understand how it feels to have a holiday off, but they knew this coming into the profession.

"We find a way to work it out," said Paul Gilliard, a firefighter with the Milton Fire Department. "(My wife) would rather have me at home, but it is just the way the shift falls."

Gillard has worked every holiday this year, and he knows that Christmas Day and New Years Eve are on his schedule as well.

Auction features local businesses

Special to the Press Gazette

The only thing better than a discounted gift certificate is a discounted gift certificate from a local retailer.

Toward that end, The Santa Rosa Press Gazette and its sister Halifax Media Group newspapers in the area will launch their first online Emerald Coast Holiday Auction on Nov. 25. It's billed as the largest ever gift certificate auction on the Emerald Coast.

The gift card has become a staple of the gift-giving Christmas season. And Press Gazette readers will soon have a chance to purchase nearly $150,000 worth of gift certificates from more than 90 local businesses.

The auction is perfect if your shopping list includes jewelry, high fashion, furniture, a remodeled kitchen or bathroom, professional photos, a new vacuum or surfing gear. For the more active among us, consider bidding on a gift certificate for some rounds of golf, a personal trainer, dance lessons, a gym membership or even martial arts classes.

If you'd rather give the gift of relaxation in the form of good Emerald Coast eats, a spa treatment, a professional mani/pedi or a hotel vacation package, we have you covered there too.

People can view the selections online now at thedestinlog.com before the bidding begins Nov. 25.

Speak OUT

If you have a short comment you would like to make, call the Speak Out line at 623-5887. Longer comments are better suited as a letter to the editor.

Online comment:

Looking each night as I am driving across town, it is just plain threatening. It's like watching communism KGB police each night. The police race up and down the highways, blue lights everywhere, seeing cars parked with police blue lights. This scene is on every part of Milton nightly.

Milton is now under police communism to make their quota, and it has became one of the riches police towns in Florida.

If you want to live in Milton be ready to pay.

Tuesday, 11:08 a.m.

Yes, I would like to know what the definition of the word soon is. The Santa Rosa Press Gazette printed about two months ago that Panhandle Paving was going to fix their screw up going to the access road.

My car is still getting beat up. Either you are covering for them or they are lying. This is a mess. My tax dollars at work like this makes me happy.

Editor's note: Those were the words we were given by the Florida Department of Transportation Spokesperson.

Monday, 8:46 a.m.

Hi, Ron here. To the people in Florida, this dispute over public funding for a OHV facility in Milton is getting nasty. Some dirt bike people feel the public funding belongs to them to run a 640-acre park for themselves.

The 640 acres is part of the Blackwater State Forest just northeast of NAS Whiting Field. Dirt bike people never change.

Gov. Rick Scott said no to public funding, but these people feel they need your money for their private business.

If you need money, borrow it. If dirt bikes are not good for East Milton, then they are not good for North Milton, West Milton and South Milton.

"This is the career path I chose, and I work with it," Gilliard said. "When you have kids, you celebrate early or you do it really early in the morning."

Firefighters, like Gilliard at the Milton Fire Department, have to report by 7 a.m. but are expected to be there early so the shift commander knows if he needs to keep someone over or call someone in.

Law enforcement is the same according to Sgt. Scott Haines, with the Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Department.

"We know what shifts we have to work, and there is not a lot of adjusting to the schedules, if any at all," Haines said. "We just work around the holidays when it comes to things with our friends or family."

Sometime there are very special moments where someone who has grown kids or is not going to be with their family offers to help a fellow officer or firefighter.

That was the case a couple of years ago for Milton Firefighter Steve Maddox.

"Sometimes a fireman will work to let one with kids enjoy the time with their family. I am looking forward to the day I can pay that back to a firefighter who was in that situation when I get older."

Steve Maddox
Milton firefighter

"Sometimes a fireman will work to let one with kids enjoy the time with their family," Maddox said. "One Christmas Lt. Randy Hendrix's wife was working and he called me and told me to enjoy my time with my family and kids.

"I am looking forward to the day I can pay that back to a firefighter who was in that situation when I get older."

So how do they pass the time in a fire house?

"We do things to keep busy," Gilliard said. "We might work out, cook or watch some football after we get all of our daily duties done."

While some are scheduled to work, there are others like those at Lifegaurd Ambulance Service who volunteered their time this weekend.

Those volunteers worked to help assist those in area nursing homes and assisted-living centers, who were able, to spend the holiday with their families through their program Home For the Holidays.

The idea for the auction originated with Steve Krammes, advertising director for the Northwest Florida Daily News, who organized similar auctions while working at the Fosters Daily Democrat in Dover, N.H.

"People love gift certificates for Christmas presents, and we worked the timing so the bidding will start on Sunday, Nov. 25, just a couple of days after Black Friday and the day before Cyber Monday," Krammes said.

Area businesses have pledged a combined $148,453 in gift certificates for the auction, which will launch online at 12:01 a.m. Nov. 25. Bidding will end at 8 p.m. Dec. 2. The minimum bid for each gift certificate will start at 50 percent of its actual value. People will be able to go to www.srpressgazette.com and click on the auction banner to register and begin bidding.

Krammes said the program is designed to promote local businesses while minimizing the cost to them.

The Press Gazette has already started promoting the businesses participating in the auction and will publish a special section on the program in the Nov. 24 edition of the paper.

Regardless of how much the gift certificate sells for in the auction, as long as it does sell, the newspaper will provide the business the full retail value of the gift certificate in advertising credit, while the newspaper will retain the revenue from the actual auction.

"I've always thought of it as a win-win-win for the retailers, the customers and our company," Krammes said.

"New businesses are being established here, bringing opportunities to more people. I believe things will continue to get better as the season progresses."

"People are a little reserved," said Becky Smith of Simply Southern Gift Sop."Yet, expect everything to pick up as we go into the season of giving; and (we should) be thankful for our blessing and be thankful for each other.

"It's hard to tell," said Dr. Jimmie D. Hill of RGH Alternative Health Food Store in Pea Ridge. "It all depends on what they do in Washington. It could go either way.

November and December are traditionally the biggest shopper-friendly months of the year, beginning the day after Thanksgiving (Black Friday). And although the business climate may seem lucrative during these holiday months, it must be factored into those long winter months when shoppers are less inclined to be out and about. Generally speaking, however, once the economy begins to move (in either direction), in most cases it has the capacity to regenerate itself.

Scratch Ankle set to return March 14

By OBIE CRAIN
623-2120 | @SRPG_News
ocrain@srpressgazette.com

With a sense of nostalgia, Milton councilmen (and women) have decided to resume sponsorship of Scratch Ankle, taking up where they left off when the festival was a kinder, gentler celebration.

The festival was originally established in 1971 as a community undertaking in which family relationship, civic clubs and organizations and church groups could come together, enjoy one another and share their special interests and resources. Although it was sponsored by the Milton City Council, it took shape as a project of the Milton Youth Council, high school-aged people who wanted to make a difference.

Over the years, the Scratch Ankle celebration prospered and grew to some extent, but it never lost its community, family-oriented flavor. It enjoyed a wide reputation of home-spun values that made it popular with both civic and church groups.

There came a time, however, when Main Street Milton took over the celebration. It was considered more of a project that Main Street Milton should be doing. The transfer was made with the highest of expectations, but as the years wore on, the theme and the temperament of the celebration appeared to change.

"It became more of carnival atmosphere, straying from what it was originally intended for," Milton Mayor Guy Thompson said. "So we (the City Council) decided to take it back and see if we couldn't take it back to its roots."

Mayor Thompson said taking it back would amount to starting over.

"It might be a smaller group to start with, but it will be much more of a fit for the atmosphere that we were trying to establish when it was started," Mayor Thompson said.

The celebration that was begun in the early 1970s with booths of various family projects, such as ice cream by a church group and ethnic snacks by another group, is what the council is aiming for.

The celebration usually took place during the spring months, but it was not held this year because of the transition from one organization to another.

"But it definitely will (if the Good Lord's willing and the creeks don't rise) become a reality next year," he said.

Scratch Ankle will mark its official return on March 14 and applications to participate can be found online at the City of Milton's website, www.ci.milton.fl.us, or by calling 983-5466.

Tuffy opens new retail store in Milton

Special to the Press Gazette

BILL GAMBLIN | Press Gazette

Tuffy, a real American Quarter Horse, has opened a new retail store in Milton at the former Riven Bark house.

Responding to these "tough times," Tuffy, A Real American Quarter Horse LLC opens new retail business designed to educate, inspire, and enable others to succeed.

Tuffy, a local horse that has been working for the last six years to generate a new source of charitable dollars to support local education initiatives and inspire kids to read is stepping up the pace locally among the growing small business sector of social entrepreneurs.

Tuffy, dba as "Milton Antiques and Boutique Farm Products" at the corner of Berryhill Street and Stewart Street in Milton across from the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce in the long favored Rivenbark House has opened a local retail store committed to educating locals about the Santa Rosa county's agriculture industry which annually produces 75 million in total agriculture outputs, 6.9 million of which is livestock, cattle, horses, goats, and chickens inspiring more locals to rethink the time tested values and possibilities of boutique or small farm life in this uncertain economy.

"Nationally, we see a resurgence of farming and ranching on small parcels of land; within Florida, the increase of small farms last year was 27%, the highest rate of increase in the nation. With so much of Santa Rosa county covered by critical flight patterns of military aircraft; land use planning providing for small farms underneath those areas will provide long term viability for both the military and the small farming enthusiast." said owner, Kyle Holley. "We have already seen folks moving into our area from south Florida, Alabama, Maine, Tennessee, and Nevada as a result of the affordability of small farms in Santa Rosa County."

Milton Antiques and Boutique Farm Products will specialize in primitive farm antiques and new boutique items made locally by beekeepers and some of the new dairy goat owners that have increased the goat herd in the County.

"These people are well educated, accomplished business people who value a traditional lifestyle in an area like ours with solid conservative values and respect for hard work."

Consistent with Tuffy's commitment to social entrepreneurism, Milton Antiques and Boutique Farm Products will be providing a safe shopping environment for local seniors who cannot risk having strangers come to their homes to buy some of their furnishings as they continue to downsize their homes. Many of the local families have a need to place items in a high traffic area as they liquidate their estates early, also as a result of these tough times. It just made sense that Tuffy would offer to help with estate liquidations while protecting the privacy of local families and at the same time help to build on the long history of Milton founded in 1844." Said co-owner Leslie Kaufmann. "The idea really came to us as part of Tuffy's ongoing commitment to beautification, the location had become an eyesore for the 14,000 passersby each day, that can be depressing and we just do not need anything else negative affecting people right now.

"So we decided to clean it up and provide some specialized services from the location, we will operate like a welcome center to Milton and as a gateway to Santa Rosa County, we will offer an inventory of small farms scattered throughout the County, beautiful antiques, new farm products made locally and highlight local craftsmen and their skills."

Proceeds form the store will continue to fund Tuffy's literacy campaign which is now receiving an increased number of calls from other states, mostly to the west of us consistent with our tourism drive market. In order to fund further travel Tuffy LLC will have to earn the money to travel.

Our resources are committed to local investment in community, in order for us to invest in other communities we will have to develop a new resource and we think this store, Milton Antiques and Boutique Farm Products, can do that for us.

We are looking forward to traveling outside the area to help others learn about our County and its love for agricultural lifestyle values and amenities.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Transportation system shutting down is hurtful hate seeing how we try to take one foot forward and always manage to take to steps back in progress for a better community.

Kay Harris Kamm

We've been wondering what is going on at the Peter Prince Airport? There appears to be a pretty significant construction project going on, but haven't been able to find any information on what's happening.

Melanie Bell

Sure would be nice to have a dog park in Pace. Maybe the county could spend some of that $10 electric fee money.

Don McLachlan

ESCAMBIA COUNTY GAS TAX

I will never buy gas in that county again.

Carl Franklin

I'm glad I don't live there and I think the county commissioners should be forced out. What sense does it make to punish people who don't use the bus system, which is run by a union?

Jamie DeBord Williams

Just another way of forcing one group of people to pay for the conveniences of another group. When will they come up with a tax to lower my car insurance?

Shane Wolters

I wonder how long it'll be before the Santa Rosa County Board sees this as an excuse to also add to our gas taxes. I've limited my shopping here in Milton somewhat since they put cameras on the traffic lights. Fortunately, there are sources of cheap gas in Pace.

OUR VIEW

Hard to imagine not being accepted

Following reader comments and listening to others, it's hard to imagine not being accepted.

We are sure this happens, but apparently we never were fully aware of how bad it can be.

It has been almost 200 years since President Andrew Jackson signed the Indian Removal Act, yet some natives (as far back as a generation or two ago) still felt the sting of its message.

What other messages are we sending as a society?

We preach tolerance and acceptance, but do we practice it?

The only people who were native to what we call the United States are the Native Americans.

If you are not a Native American, your family came here from another country.

As you listen to some people, acceptance today is almost comical like the character Frank Burns in the old television series M*A*S*H*.

Burns, who we will try to quote on individualism said, "Individualism is great as long as we all do it together."

Well, truth is, if you are an individual, there is no doing it together.

While some of the protests today do not make a lot of sense, the desire to be different and be your own person does.

We see people who look, act, or believe differently than we do and while they have that right, many want to point fingers and criticize.

We live in a great country, state, and we would argue the best county across the land, but at times we feel we could be so much better.

Our society talks about morals, ethics, and standards, but is capable of being down-right mean.

Do we have different people judging? Do we not often see one person or group held to a different standard that others?

When you play a game or participate in something, even at work, you desire consistency and a standard so you understand what is expected.

Today, we have little consistency.

What is fine today is often not so tomorrow.

We aren't urging you to go out and change the world, it can't be done overnight, any way.

What can be done is changing your own little corner.

If we change do that, pretty soon we all can change for the better.

Democracy and majority rule

MINORITY VIEWPOINT
Walter Williams

President Barack Obama narrowly defeated Gov. Mitt Romney in the popular vote 51 percent to 48 percent. In the all-important Electoral College, the difference was larger, with Obama winning 303 electoral votes and Romney 206. Let's not think so much about the election's outcome but instead ask: What's so good about democracy and majority rule?

How many decisions in our day-to-day lives would we like to be made through majority rule or the democratic process? How about the decision to watch a football game or "Law and Order"? What about whether to purchase a Chevrolet Volt or a Toyota Prius? Would you like the decision of whether to have turkey or ham for Thanksgiving dinner to be made through the democratic process? Were such decisions made in the political arena, most of us would deem it tyranny.

Democracy and majority rule give an aura of legitimacy and decency to acts that would otherwise be deemed tyranny. Most people would agree that having our decisions on what television shows to watch, what kind of car we'll purchase and what we'll eat for Thanksgiving dinner made through the democratic process is tyranny. Why isn't it also tyranny for the political process to determine decisions such as how much should be put aside out of our paycheck for retirement; whether we purchase health insurance or not; what type of light bulbs we use; or whether we purchase 32- or 16-ounce soda containers?

The founders of our nation held a deep abhorrence for democracy and majority rule. The word democracy appears in neither of our founding documents: our Declaration of Independence and Constitution. In Federalist Paper No. 10, James Madison wrote, "Measures are too often decided, not according to the rules of justice and the rights of the minor party, but by the superior force of an interested and overbearing majority."

John Adams predicted, "Remember, democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts, and murders itself. There was never a democracy yet that did not commit suicide."

Edmund Randolph said, "... that in tracing these evils to their origin every man had found it in the turbulence and follies of democracy."

Chief Justice John Marshall observed, "Between a balanced republic and a democracy, the difference is like that between order and chaos."

In a word or two, the founders knew that a democracy would lead to the same kind of tyranny the colonies suffered under King George III. Our founders intended for us to have a republican form of limited government where political decision-making is kept to the minimum.

Alert to the dangers of majoritarian tyranny, our Constitution's framers inserted several anti-majority rules. One such rule is that election of the president is not decided by a majority vote but instead by the Electoral College. Nine states have more than 50 percent of the U.S. population. If a simple majority were the rule, conceivably these nine states could determine the presidency. Fortunately, they can't because they have only 225 Electoral College votes when 270 of the 538 total are needed. Were it not for the Electoral College, presidential candidates could safely ignore less populous states.

Two houses of Congress pose another obstacle to majority rule. Fifty-one senators can block the designs of 435 representatives and 49 senators. The Constitution gives the president a veto that weakens the power of 535 members of both houses of Congress. It takes two-thirds of both houses of Congress to override a presidential veto. To change the Constitution requires not a majority but a two-thirds vote of both Houses to propose an amendment, and to be enacted requires ratification by three-fourths of state legislatures.

Today's Americans think Congress has the constitutional authority to do anything upon which they can get a majority vote. We think whether a measure is a good idea or a bad idea should determine its passage as opposed to whether that measure lies within the enumerated powers granted Congress by the Constitution. Unfortunately, for the future of our nation, Congress has successfully exploited American constitutional ignorance or contempt.

Walter E. Williams is a professor of economics at George Mason University.

Living Truth Church buys 'Ministry Outpost'

Special to the Press Gazette

Living Truth Church (LTC) has been meeting in various schools around Santa Rosa County for 12 years and has just purchased the Chumuckla's Farmer's Opry & Campground.

Living Truth is excited to finally have their own "Ministry Outpost." The 10½ acres will give the congregation plenty of room to grow.

"We're excited to see how God continues to use this ministry to love on this community," Pastor Norman Sullivan said. "When the opportunity came to buy the Farmer's Opry (five miles north of the Pace Soccer Fields) it was more of a God-thing than anything else. It was just the right time for both us and the Wyatt family. We were looking to build and, they were ready to slow down."

Living Truth Church considers itself a very open and welcoming church.

"We will use the Opry location in keeping with the vision of a come as you are to hear God's word-church. Our church family is truly a family," Sullivan said. "This is just a building and campground and we want to use it for God's glory. It's going to be exciting to see what God has planned for us here at our new location.

"Our congregation is made up of folks from East Milton, Pensacola, Cantonment as well as Milton and Pace proper. We look forward to meeting new folks from the nearby Chumuckla community who would like to come check us out."

The Church plans to still host concerts and other various events to stay in-touch with the community, so stay tuned for upcoming events of that nature. For more information about the church, go to www.livingtruthchurch.com.

"The main thrust of Living Truth is to follow Jesus' mandate to be disciples-making disciples," Sullivan said. "We connect folks to Christ and His church, help them grow spiritually, get them to love on the community by serving, and then multiply who they are in Christ. And we do a lot of this through small groups that meet throughout the local area during the week."

One of the plans of the church is to reach the next generation extra hard.

"Our modern worship style differs from other churches, but that's just because we're trying extra hard to reach the next generation," said Disciple Pastor Andy DeGuire. "The cool thing is that the older folks enjoy this worship style (or some of them put up with it because they know we're trying to reach their kids and grandkids)."

Everyone is invited to come out to Living Truth and be a part of God's plan for this church and this location. Sunday Service is at 10:30 a.m.

UWF heads to NCAA Regional seeded No. 2

Special to the Press Gazette

By winning the 2012 Gulf South Conference Tournament, the No. 17 West Florida volleyball team earned the right to advance to the NCAA postseason and will enter the NCAA South Region Tournament as the No. 2 seed, the NCAA Selection Committee announced Sunday.

Two GSC squads advance to the postseason, and a rematch of the GSC Tournament final will commence in the first round after Christian Brothers (20-12) earned the No. 7 seed in the region.

The teams face each other on Nov. 29 at 2:30 p.m. ET in Tampa in the Bob Martinez Center as No. 7 Tampa earned the right to host as the No. 1 team in the South Region.

West Florida (26-7) was ranked in the top three of all three preliminary regional rankings, starting as the No. 2 team in the South Region before dropping to No. 3 for the past two weeks despite no losses and jumped back up after winning the GSC Tournament.

The Argonauts own a 22-3 in-region mark after defeating North Alabama and the Buccaneers over the weekend.

Last season, the Argonauts' postseason run was cut short when they fell in the first round of the NCAA Regional Tournament to Florida Southern 3-2. The deepest UWF has ever made it in the postseason is two separate appearances in the NCAA South Region finals, the last ending in a 3-2 loss to Tampa in 2010.

A 'Formula' for Snowball Derby week

By BILL GAMBLIN
288-0037 | @SRPG_Bill
sports@srpressgazette.com

This 45th Snowball Derby could prove quiet interesting as locals like Milton's Wayne Niedecken, Augie Grill, Mike Garvey and others could be left in the shadows of some NASCAR names doing battle on the track.

One name who should draw quite a bit of interest to race fans is Nelson Piquet Jr., the former Formula-1 and current NASCAR Camping World Truck Series driver, has been tabbed to replace Aric Almirola.

Almirola, who was entered to drive next week, has pulled out due to a death in his family, according to Five Flags Speedway General Manager Tim Bryant.

The other twist could result from the Camping World Truck Series finale at Miami-Homestead Speedway, where Cale Gale notched his first win after crowding Kyle Busch into the wall coming out of turn four.

Gale and Busch are both entered in this year's field and could provide their fair share of fireworks.

"We could see some excitement between Kyle and Cale after the truck race in Miami," Bryant said. "But we are just as excited to have Nelson Piquet Jr., in the field as he is the first Formula-1 driver ever to race in Pensacola."

Bryant said the entry list is still fluctuating, but they had over 100 cars at last week's test session.

Besides the NASCAR series drivers on the entry list, defending champion Chase Elliott is in the field as is former champion and NASCAR Nationwide Series drivers Johanna Long and Steve Wallace.

Past champions like former NASCAR drivers Pete Hamilton, Donnie Allison, Darrell Waltrip, Gary Balough, Butch Lindley, Jody Ridley, Butch Miller, Ted Musgrave, Rick Crawford, Rich Bickle Jr., Tammy Jo Kirk and Jeff Purvis, add to the mistique of the Snowball Derby.

"When you say you have won the Snowball Derby or you have had a strong finish in the race it serves as something to note," Bryant said. "This race has a built in reputation for Super Late Model Drivers and it gives the drivers a sense of accomplishment.

"By winning or finishing well in this race it shows others that they are no fluke."

Tickets for the Snowball Derby will be $15 on Thursday, $20 on Friday, $30 on the night of the Allen Turner Snowflake 100 and $40 on the day of the 45th annual Snowball Derby, which is set to begin at 2 p.m.

For more information on the Snowball Derby, go to www.snowballderby.com or call 944-8400.

Farmers bring goods to town to help feed needy

On Tuesday, farmers in Santa Rosa County took locally grown food and sent it to the tables of those who needed it, the ones who without it might not have had a Thanksgiving meal.

In conjunction with the Bay Area Food Bank and the University of Florida IFAS, more than 400 needy residents were helped with meals and fresh vegetables for the recent Thanksgiving holiday.

Those who were pre-qualified received a prepared box of items including bread, desserts, a turkey and fresh vegetables to put on the table.

"This is the third year we have done this, and this is our biggest year yet," said Suzanne Rowland with the Bay Area Food Bank. "We had volunteers come in to prepare boxes for today and get them here.

"We have had a great deal of support to make this possible, and it by far has been our biggest year yet."

As individuals received their boxes, they were also offered a sample of turnip greens as prepared by the Santa Rosa Homemakers, who work in conjunction with the Santa Rosa County Extension Office.

Along with a sampling of greens and other items, they also were given a booklet on easy recipes to fix some of the items they received from the farmers who participated in the event.
