Aiming for traffic relief

Access road to link SR 85 shopping areas

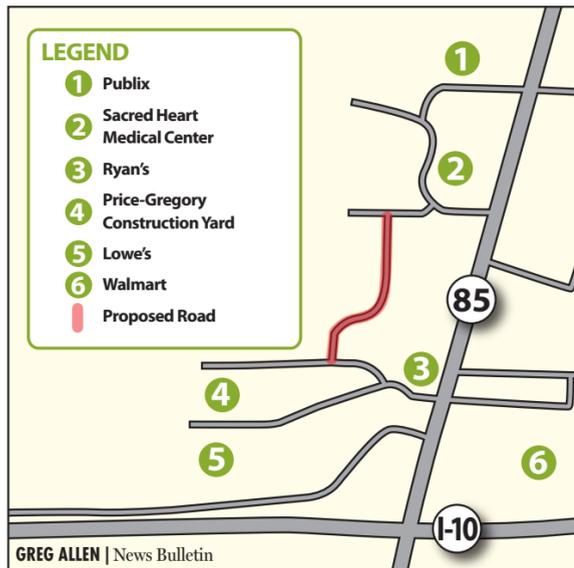

Michael Stewart
michaels@crestviewbulletin.com

Crestview residents like Richelle McCraw will soon be able to drive from Lowe's near Interstate 10 to Publix or Sacred Heart Medical Center without ever getting on busy State Road 85.

City crews are expected to complete a connector road soon from Crosson Drive to Physician Drive. Crosson Drive is linked to Mirage Avenue, which provides access to Lowe's. Physician Drive ties into West Redstone Avenue, which leads to a popular shopping center anchored by Publix.

"I'll use it when it opens," McCraw said. "There is way more traffic on (State) 85 than there is access. More connector roads would be great."

for the access road is complete, and the subgrade has been laid, Crestview Public Works Director Wayne Steele said.

Hopes were to lay asphalt last week, but the threat of rain delayed the project. Work to lay the base is under way, and if weather cooperates, asphalt will soon follow.

"It won't take long once the base is completed," Steele said.

The city is providing the labor and $9,400 of the $84,400 cost to build the road. Price-Gregory, a subcontractor building a Florida Gas transmission pipeline through the area, is kicking in the remaining $75,000.

Crews with Price-Gregory, which are based at a construction yard set up at the former flea market location north of Lowe's, have been using the

Judge sets Ates retrial in murder case

Ann Spann
News Bulletin

Okaloosa County Circuit Judge William Stone has set a Jan. 10 trial date for the retrial of Jimmy Ates on a charge of murder in the shooting death of his wife.

Stone spoke with defense attorneys and the state's lead prosecutor in the case during a telephone conference status hearing from the Okaloosa County courthouse in Crestview on Wednesday.

"It's the third time we've set the trial; are we still looking at three weeks?" Stone asked the attorneys.

"I anticipate that the state will present its case and rest in one week," replied James Colaw, Clay County assistant state attorney, the lead prosecutor in the case.

Ates will be retried for the June 2, 1991, death of his wife, Norma Jean Ates, whose body was found in the family's home in Baker by firefighters responding to a structure fire.

She had been shot at least five times at close range, according to officials.

Investigators believe someone used candles to set a delayed-reaction fire that eventually engulfed the house.

The case remained open until 1997, when Ates, a former preacher and Baker schoolteacher, was charged in connection with her death. Ates was sentenced in 1999 to life in prison on a conviction of first-degree murder.

His conviction was vacated in December 2008, and he was granted a new trial. The request for a new trial was based on expert ballistics evidence presented at Ates' initial trial that was determined to be unreliable and inaccurate. Comparative bullet lead analysis (CBLA) was a procedure in which scientists claimed to be able to link bullets to a particular batch or box on the basis of their chemical composition.

In 2005, the FBI discontinued its use of CBLA. Ates is the first person in the nation to have a conviction overturned based on the FBI's disavowal of CBLA.

Attorneys Ann Finnell and Patrick McGuinness of Jacksonville will represent Ates during his retrial.

Judge Stone also set another status hearing that will take place via a telephone conference call Oct. 6, stating that he wanted to stay in touch with the case to avoid any issues that would further delay the trial.

unpaved connector road to relieve traffic congestion at the intersection of State 85 and the entrance to Walmart.

Once it is paved, the road will be opened to general traffic. An added benefit is that the new road will help relieve traffic on State 85, officials said.

Last week, members of the Crestview City Council approved the $9,400 city expenditure for the roadwork, which will come out of Public Works funds.

Steele said the city is getting a good deal.

"Basically, we got that whole new street for $9,000," Steele said.

Council member Linda Parker was concerned that heavy construction equipment used by Price-Gregory workers might damage the new connector road once it is paved.

Steele said, however, that officials with Price-Gregory have agreed to pay for road repairs if the company's equipment causes any damage to the completed road.

"Our customers usually need it yesterday," Keller said, explaining the "severe time constraints" caveat. Then he jokingly added, "If they have a couple of years, they go to the Air Force."

The company's flight-test aircraft have been extensively modified. Seat tracks in the planes accept equipment in racks capable of withstanding 9 G-forces without flying loose from their fittings. The planes' airframes have been strengthened to support external equipment, such as instrumentation pods and test munitions such as an advanced flying naval torpedo developed by defense manufacturer Raytheon.

SAI has an FAA-certified avionics laboratory in which the company modifies both civilian and military aircraft. The company holds a Department of Defense security clearance, and networks with other area defense companies.

"There is a lot of capability in this area, and we talk to each other quite often," Keller said.

Keller told the packed conference room at the Chamber of Commerce office, "We have been doing this for many years. A lot of what we do I can't talk about."

One of the projects he can discuss publicly is advanced radar mapping with the ALIRT system, a capability his company successfully proved earlier this year. Sunshine Aero flew about 150 hours of mapping missions in Haiti after the devastating earthquake earlier this year.

The company's equipment peered through thick jungles, clouds, smoke and other obstructions to identify roadways and County airport officials are extremely pleased with the partnership that led to the creation of the technology airpark.

"When I see you taking off, that's what makes me happy," said Okaloosa County Airports project manager Tracy Stage to Keller. "We want to do those things to make you and our other tenants succeed."

The new 24,000 square feet of hangar that SAI will lease is a first step in the airpark development and is well under way. It should be ready for occupancy by November, Keller said, and will also house his company's offices, avionics lab and workshops.

"It's going to be a nice-looking facility and certainly what we need," Keller said.

The company has a Crestview staff of 18. He has a further 12

Sunshine Aero staff members working at its smaller refueling facility at the Florala, Ala., airport. Last year's total sales surpassed $6.3 million.

"And we're still growing," Keller said proudly. "We try to hide what we do out there because it's a lot of fun."

'Suspicious package' at Eglin wasn't a bomb

From staff reports

EGLIN AFB — Several buildings were evacuated after a suspicion package was found at the base's post office Thursday morning.

The Eglin Fire Department, Bioenvironmental and Explosive Ordnance Disposal personnel were called to the scene to investigate, according to an Eglin news release.

Responders determined the package wasn't an explosive, and it was removed about 11 a.m. No injuries were reported.

Base officials evacuated people from the post office and several surrounding buildings as a precaution, the release said.

As of 5:40 p.m., the investigation was closed and the offices reopened, and normal business operations resumed.

Eglin officials would not say why the package was considered suspicious or where it came from.

FHP to target drunk drivers

Special to the News Bulletin

The Florida Highway Patrol will participate in the national Drunk Driving "Over the Limit, Under Arrest" campaign now through Labor Day.

The FHP will join thousands of other law enforcement and highway safety agencies across the nation to reduce the number of impaired drivers on Florida's roadways in an effort to save lives, according to a press release.

"Drunk driving is simply not worth the risk," FHP Director Col. John Czernis said. "Not only do you risk killing yourself or someone else, but also the trauma and financial costs of a crash or an arrest for impaired driving can be significant."

"Violators often face jail time, the loss of their driver license, higher insurance rates, attorney fees, time away from work and dozens of other expenses. Do not take the chance. Remember, if you are over the limit, you can expect to be under arrest."

The campaign encompasses the Labor Day holiday weekend, which began Friday. The holiday caps off the summer season for many, and historically, travel increases with people driving to celebrate with friends and family.

In addition to the national enforcement campaign, the FHP will participate in Operation C.A.R.E. (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) during the four-day holiday weekend. The operation involves all state police and highway patrol organizations across the U.S.

All uniformed FHP personnel, including those normally assigned to administrative duties, will patrol interstates and other major state roads during the four-day holiday period. FHP Auxiliary and reserve troopers also will volunteer to augment patrol officers this weekend.

The FHP aims to increase its presence throughout Florida in an effort to deter traffic violations and to enhance services to motorists who break down while traveling or who need other assistance, according to the press release.

Motorists are asked to dial *FHP (*347) to contact FHP to report an aggressive or impaired driver or to request roadside assistance.

Officials cautioned that Florida's primary safety belt law authorizes law enforcement officers to stop and cite motorists solely for failure to buckle up. Troopers are also asking drivers to move over for stopped emergency vehicles with flashing lights on the side of the road.

If you are unable to change lanes safely, slow down to 20 mph below the posted speed limit, or to 5 mph if the speed limit is 20 mph or less.

The information below came from the Better Business Bureau about two Facebook scams.

One features McDonald's. A message will say "OMG!! McDonald's might soon shut down because of this, you have to see this." If you click on this link, the program will attempt to steal your password.

Another scam concerns a link promising to show you a video revealing the truth about Coca-Cola. If you click on the link, you'll be asked to share the video. However, the counter doesn't work, so eventually you'll be tempted to click on a link that says, "Cant Be Bothered To Wait? - Click Here To Skip This."

The second link takes you to a poll, which is the central part of the scam.

Officials are advising people not to click on a suspicious link, even if it comes from their Facebook friends who might have fallen for the scam. And under no circumstances should you give away your personal information, unless you're absolutely sure why and who you're giving it to.

Driver to police: 'Well, I've been drinking'

Wendy Victoria

Florida Freedom Newspapers

After a citizen called in concerns about the driver of a blue BMW at 11 p.m. on Aug. 22, an Okaloosa County Sheriff's Office deputy fell in behind the vehicle to observe the driving pattern. The two were right outside of Crestview city limits at the time.

The deputy told a Crestview police officer that the driver was drifting in his lane and that, at one point, the driver stuck his head completely out of the left window while making a turn. The sedan continued to drift across the center line, while traveling 15 miles per hour under the speed limit.

The deputy stopped the sedan and approached the open window, where he could smell alcohol, according to the driver's arrest report. The driver said he had a suspended driver license.

The deputy turned the traffic stop over to a Crestview Police Department officer because the two vehicles had traveled into the city limits by then.

When the officer reached the window, the driver put his hands in the air and asked the officer not to be "rough" with him. The officer said he just wanted to determine whether the driver had too much to drink.

"Well, I've been drinking," the driver replied, according to the report. "That's all I can say."

Vandalism costly for Okaloosa County

From staff reports

BAKER — Officials are looking for vandals who damaged road equipment last weekend.

A bulldozer and two loaders were damaged inside a locked, fenced area at a clay pit on Keyser Mill Road, according to a news release from the county.

“On top of coping with numerous storms, rain days and overall damage to our roads, it is disheartening to also lose equipment, more work days and money to senseless vandalism,” Public Works Director John Hofstad stated in the news release. “It’s a real problem.”

The vandals busted windows, punctured tires and put sand in the equipment’s fuel tanks.

According to an Okaloosa Sheriff’s Office report, the vandals also threw chunks of asphalt through the bulldozer’s glass door.

Total damage to the three machines was estimated at $10,000, according to the news release.

Okaloosa officials are asking for help to locate the vandals.

Anyone with information about is asked to call Emerald Coast Crime Stoppers at 863-tips (8477). Tips can also be submitted online at www.tipsubmit.com.

You are our Wittle Angel from Heaven you were sent and though it was so very short we hold dear the time we’ve spent
You were a miracle from the start
They said it would never be
But we hoped and prayed and tried so hard
And soon the world would see
The most beautiful creature
God’s perfect gift
You made our lives worthwhile
Our spirits you did lift
God has called you home now
Our sadness and pain, to express we can’t begin
We will Love and Miss you always
And soon we’ll be together again

The world is a much better place having had you in it, if only for 15 months. You taught us more in your short time here than any of us could have imagined. We continue to learn and be open to new things because of you. In the year since you have been gone, strangers have come to us saying how you impacted their life. Police: Man resists arrest at probation office

Mona Moore

Florida Freedom Newspapers

A man with a warrant for his arrest was taken into custody in the lobby of the state probation office.

The warrant was for violating the terms of his probation, according to an arrest report from the Crestview Police Department.

When a police officer arrived, he found the man standing in front of the state probation facility. The man gave his first name when the officer asked. He also complied when the officer asked him to step inside the building.

The 22-year-old’s probation officer came out of his office and informed him that he had violated his probation and that there was a warrant.

The man struggled to break free as he was handcuffed and “began to lunge toward the front door of the building,” the arrest report said. The officer held on to the man’s cuffed left hand and the probation officer grabbed the free right hand.

The officer told the man to stop resisting then “pressed (him) into the wall of the building in an attempt to restrain him,” the report said.

The man stopped resisting and said, “I’m not gonna. I’m not.” He was charged with resisting without violence, a misdemeanor.

Scareware — protect your computer

Special to the News Bulletin

Most internet security companies will not use ads to tell you your computer’s been infected with a virus; most of these pop-ups are scams, and, according to the FBI Internet Crime

Complaint Center, it is one of the fastest growing types of Internet fraud.

The scam, known as “scareware,” uses scare tactics to get you to purchase their “antivirus” software. This so-called antivirus software actually installs malicious software (malware) into your system.

Many of these criminals operate outside the U.S., making investigations difficult and complex for law enforcement, officials said.

How to protect yourself: Make sure your computer is fully protected by legitimate, up-to-date antivirus software.

No oil has flowed into the Gulf for weeks. But we know this is just the beginning of our work. BP has taken full responsibility for the cleanup in the Gulf and that includes keeping you informed.

Restoring Gulf Communities

We can't undo this tragedy. But we can help people get back on their feet. We have been working with impacted communities since day one.

Partnering with local governments and community organizations, my job is to listen to people's needs and frustrations and find ways to help. We have 19 community centers and teams in four states, listening and helping.

Restoring The Economy

BP is here in Gulf communities with shrimpers, fishermen, hotel and restaurant owners, helping to make them whole.

More than 120,000 claim payments totaling over $375 million have already gone to people affected by the spill. We have committed a $20 billion independent fund to pay all legitimate claims, including lost incomes until people impacted can go back to work. And none of this will be paid by taxpayers.

BP has also given grants of $87 million to the states to help tourism recover and bring people back to the Gulf beaches.

Restoring The Environment

We're going to keep looking for oil and cleaning it up if we find it. Teams will remain in place for as long as it takes to restore the Gulf Coast.

And we've dedicated $500 million to work with local and national scientific experts on the impact of the spill and to restore environmental damage.

Thousands of BP employees have their roots in the Gulf. We support over 10,000 jobs in the region and people here are our neighbors. We know we haven't always been perfect, but we will be here until the oil is gone and the people and businesses are back to normal. We will do everything we can to make this right.

Looking for adult kickball teams

Randy Dickson
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Just about everybody, at some time in elementary school, has played a game of kickball on an old dusty playground during recess. There's good news for those who miss those games of kickball. The Crestview Parks and Recreation Department is forming an adult coed kickball league. Registration originally was set to end Aug. 31, but the minimum of four teams required to field the league hadn't registered, so Chuck Powell, director of Parks and Recreation, has extended the registration deadline to Sept. 15, with play scheduled to start Sept. 20. Powell said a local resident approached him with the idea of starting the league, and his first impression was that it would be something adults could enjoy. "It's something none of us have done probably since we were in elementary school," he said. "Nobody else in the area is doing it." "And every time an adult hears about it, they say, 'That's pretty neat. That would be a lot of fun.'" Kickball, as is the case with all other adult sports in Parks and Recreation leagues, requires team registration rather than the individual registration of youth league sports. The cost of registration is $150 per team and $15 per player. A regulation kickball is included in the registration fee. Each team is guaranteed at least 10 games.

Field work completed at Twin Hills Park

Randy Dickson
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Workers have been busy putting the finishing touches on the football/soccer field at Twin Hills Park as the fall season officially gets under way Tuesday night with youth-league soccer play.

The renovation project, which included putting in a new irrigation system, laying new sod and putting up a new fence around the field, was expected to be completed by Friday.

"We hit a couple of snags that are typical when you start doing construction-type site work," Parks and Recreation Department Director Chuck Powell said. "It took a little bit longer than we anticipated, but once it got going, it went pretty quick."

"I was a little bit concerned about the sod being established well enough to start playing on it, but I was really surprised that in about two weeks it had really taken root good. Then we top-dressed it with some sand to fill in some voids where the sod didn't go."

Powell wasn't convinced that the new sod, which wasn't in place until mid-July, would be ready, but his concerns turned out to be unfounded.

"I was skeptical," he said, "I have to admit it, because we were late getting the sod on the ground."

"It wasn't anybody's fault; it was just the way it went. I'm pleasantly surprised and real pleased with the way it has taken root."

The field is now on a regular mowing schedule that helps the grass grow more quickly.

And while the regular season starts Tuesday, the field was used for football and soccer jamborees last week.

When the fall schedule gets into full swing, 15 games will be played on the field each week.

"There are six soccer games and three football games on that field every Saturday," he said. "And during the week, we will have football on Monday nights, soccer on Tuesday nights and football on Thursday nights. We play Monday, Tuesday and Thursdays, so there will be six games on that field during the week (days)."

Powell's biggest concerns as the sod takes root have to do with football.

Baker lead to 9-7, but that's as close as they would get.

The Gators picked up a point off a PCA serve and continued to push the issue with Carly Barton in serve. Barton delivered two aces during a 10-point run that put Baker up 20-7.

However, as would be the case throughout the night, the Warriors refused to go away, as they narrowed the Baker lead to 23-17 before finally running out of points.

Mollie Royal delivered an ace to close out the first set victory.

Things got interesting when PCA won the second and third sets.

Midway through the second set, a Jennifer Ellis ace put the Gators up 16-10, but the Warriors battled back 10 of the next 11 points to take a 20-17 lead on their way to the set win.

Set three was nip and tuck, with the Gators holding a 17-12 lead before PCA made another charge to climb in front before eventually taking the win.

"I think we took some points off; it was evident," Parks said. "We scored five points and would give up five.

"We've got to learn to play and keep up that intensity. If we give up a serve, we've got to get the ball right back."

With their backs to the wall, the Gators played with that missing intensity in the fourth set.

Katie Wickery took charge in service as Baker came out and quickly took a 6-0 lead and never looked back.

PCA broke the early Baker run with a point to make the score 6-1, but that was as close as the Warriors got.

Baker took control early in the deciding set and then held off another Warrior run to wrap up the win.

"PCA is scrappy; they are very scrappy," Parks said. "Our girls are getting to that point. We have to learn to play every point, every time, every second, every minute, so we are working on that.

"I guess it feels good just to get that first one (win). Now we can just keep building."

The teams must have at least 10 players, with an equal number of males and females on each squad. Another rule requires that the kicking order alternates males and females. There also must be an equal number of male and female infielders and outfielders.

Powell said adult recreation leagues in softball and other sports tend to be very intense and competitive, but he's hoping that won't be the case with kickball.

"I even said that in our rules," he said. "One of my first statements is, 'First and foremost this is a recreational league intended for the participants to have fun, socialize with friends and family and to gain some degree of physical fitness. Play with dignity and with the mind of the children that may be watching. We are adults playing a children's playground game.'

"It just seems like it would be a real good, fun stress reliever just to get out and play a kids' playground game for a while and not be too intense. I think that it's the fact that people will be playing with those memories in the back of their mind that they created as a fifth-grader. It kind of just gives it kind of a different feeling about the competitiveness of it, and the level of intensity you should be playing with as an adult."

Although it's an adult league, the kickball league is open to children 13 and older. By allowing 13-year olds to play, Powell hopes to encourage families to play together.

"Soccer is not quite as hard on the field, because they are spread out and it's not as concentrated and they are moving all over the field," Powell said. "In football, you have 22 people within a 30-square-foot space. A lot of times, you come out here with this level (youth) of play, and you have a strip right down the middle of the field because that's where they play, right in the middle, and it wears it out real quick. 'I've talked to referees to use the hash marks and to try and get away from traditional ball placement as far as where the position of the ball is. I want them to kind of move it around for a while. Until it is really established (the grass grown in), I'm going to have them move the ball around."

As the work on the field draws to a close, Powell is happy with the finished product. "It's a good-looking field," he said. "I'm really proud of it."

— U.S. Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood

DOT grants to help business owners

Special to the News Bulletin

WASHINGTON — U.S. Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood recently announced $11.6 million in grants to help disadvantaged business enterprises (DBEs) compete for federal highway contracts in 30 states and Puerto Rico.

"Giving these small businesses the assistance they need to compete for federal highway contracts creates jobs and ultimately helps taxpayers by reducing project costs," LaHood said. "Any way you look at them, these grants are a 'win-win' for the American people."

A DBE is a for-profit, small business owned by minorities, women or socially and economically disadvantaged individuals or, in the case of a corporation, in which 51 percent of the stock is owned by one or more such individuals. The daily business operations must be controlled by at least one of the socially and economically disadvantaged owners.

The state of Florida was awarded $600,000 for the program.

The grants from the Federal Highway Administration's Disadvantaged Business Enterprise/Supportive Services (DBE/SS) program provide federal aid to qualified firms to improve their ability to compete for and fulfill federal highway contracts.

Since 1982, the Federal Highway Administration has promoted the participation of DBEs in federal-aid highway contracts through state-managed programs. The DBE/SS grants are part of an ongoing federal effort to help state departments of transportation train certified DBE firms on a wide range of business management practices, including procurement assistance and guidance on securing bonding.

The goal of the program is to help the businesses successfully compete for federal highway projects.

"Helping DBE firms and their workers enriches the competition for federal highway contracts," Federal Highway Administrator Victor Mendez said. "Grants like these will help people find jobs and are an important part of economic recovery."

More information about DBE eligibility can be found on the U.S. Department of Transportation's website at www.dot.gov.

Local Eastern Star Chapter receives grant

Ann Spann
Crestview News Bulletin

The Velma K. Conyers Eastern Chapter 7 Order of the Eastern Star recently received a community grant for $1,000 from the Crestview Walmart Supercenter.

The grant funds will be used to take students from Okaloosa and Walton Counties on a college tour to Tuskegee University, according to Worthy Matron Darnell Doyle.

"We will travel by bus, and there will be no expense to the students or parents," Doyle said.

The trip, which is set for Oct. 30, during the university's open house, is designed to help high school students begin to explore different career paths, focusing in the fields of science, engineering and mathematics based degrees.

The "Star Lights", a youth organization under the Velma K. Conyers Chapter 7 Order of the Eastern Star, will coordinate the trip. The mission of the D. Doyle "Star Lights" program is to provide early intervention services through mentoring relationships to "at risk" youth ages 6 to 18. The program provides mentoring, service-learning opportunities, college visitation, scholarships and positive life-skills workshops.

The youth organization is open to any youth who needs help or a little push. The organization does not discriminate on the basis of race, sexual preference, religion, gender, ethnicity or Masonic affiliation.

Late summer landscape jobs

Some summer landscape jobs pay big dividends a little later.

Touch-up pruning on a number of shrubs can greatly improve their appearance. Ligustrum, elaeagnus, cleyera and a number of other shrubs tend to send up shoots that significantly protrude from the canopy.

These longer shoots should be completely removed or at least cut off below the canopy. This will give the shrubs a more natural look.

Gardeners often neglect their roses during summer. Here's how to get those bush roses blooming for fall.

First, remove healthy top growth as well as dead twigs and branches. Cut out diseased, injured or spindly growth and shorten the main canes and lateral branches. But leave at least half the length of each main cane that's one to three years old. It generally takes healthy rose bushes approximately six weeks from pruning to the beginning of a flush of flowers.

Second, follow a spray schedule for control of insects and diseases. A weekly application of a fungicide is especially important. This will provide a "protective shield" over the new growth that will reduce black spot and powdery mildew.

Third, if the roses have not been fertilized recently, an application of fertilizer now will be beneficial. If granular fertilizer is used, be sure to spread it well beyond the drip line of the foliage and water it in for faster action.

It's probably not too late to force crape myrtle and Vitex (chaste tree) to re-bloom. To encourage a second crop of blossoms, remove the spent flower heads.

This will prevent seed formation and allows that extra energy to go back into this season's flowers. It should take about four to six weeks for the plants to re-bloom. But act soon; pruning too late will not allow enough time for flower initiation before the cooler, shorter days of fall.

Late summer and early fall are ideal times to lift, divide and replant daylily clumps. The objective is to get the new divisions to establish a good root system during fall and winter.

Divide the clumps, retaining as many of the roots as possible with each division. Prior to planting the division, cut the foliage back to one third of its original height. Don't plant too deep. Set the new daylily divisions only as deep as they grew originally.

Get your hunt on

Even though you can hardly tell, summer is officially over. Kids have returned to school, and hunting season's already been going on for a month now in south Florida. Finally, the time of year we've been waiting for is upon us — the beginning of archery season.

Besides hunting the rut, archery season provides a great opportunity to take a trophy whitetail and arguably is one of the best times to do so. If you're stealthy enough and have done your homework, you've got a good chance of having a nice one come within shooting range of your bowhunting setup.

Before you take to the woods, though, there have been some major changes to hunting in Florida this year that I want to tell you about, including hunting zone modifications, the addition of a new fourth zone and different hunting season dates.

Hunting season still comes in first in the South Hunting Zone, which, by the way, has been renamed Zone A and remains that part of the state south of State Road 70. Archery season there started back on July 31, and it actually just ended Aug. 29.

The state has a new hunting zone, made up in part by the Green Swamp Basin. This fourth zone, which previously was the southwest portion of the old Central Hunting Zone, is called Zone B and lies south of S.R. 50, west of U.S. 441 and the Kissimmee Waterway, north of S.R. 60 and east of the Gulf of Mexico.

Zone B was created because the deer in that area

Florida Outdoors
Tony Young
FWC Media Relations Coordinator

have a much later breeding period. Archery season in this new zone will always begin on the third Saturday of October each year. This year, that falls on Oct. 16, and the season will run through Nov. 14.

The boundary line separating what used to be called the Northwest Hunting Zone (now Zone D) from the Central Zone (now Zone C) has been moved a little farther west.

The new line begins at U.S. 27 at the Gadsden County-Georgia state line and runs south on U.S. 27 until it meets S.R. 61 in Tallahassee. From there, it follows S.R. 61, running south until it hits U.S. 319. The line follows U.S. 319, continuing south to U.S. 98; it then runs east along U.S. 98 before turning south on Spring Creek Highway and continuing to the Gulf of Mexico.

If you hunt west of that line, you're in Zone D, and changes to season dates there push opening day of archery back one week, so the season is Oct. 23 through Nov. 24 this year.

In Zone C, however, the archery season begins one week earlier than usual, and from now on will open on the third Saturday in September. This year, those dates are Sept. 18 to Oct. 17.

Beginning this year, besides the usual hunting license and archery permit that you need to hunt during archery season, you will also need a $5 deer permit to hunt deer in Florida.

During archery season, you can take deer of either sex, regardless of antler size (except for spotted fawns). The daily bag limit on deer is two. Bag limits for deer on wildlife management areas (WMAs) can differ, so check the area brochure before you hunt, and don't forget that you need the $26 management area permit to hunt on WMAs.

You can hunt wild hogs on private lands year-round with no bag or size limits. On most WMAs, there's also no bag or size limits, and hogs are legal to take during most hunting seasons except spring turkey. On a few WMAs, bag and size limits do apply so, again, check the brochure.

In addition to hunting big game, it's also legal to shoot gobblers and bearded turkeys during archery season, given you have a turkey permit, which, by the way, increased this year to $10 for residents and $125 for nonresidents. You may take only one turkey per day, and there's a two-bird fall-season limit. But, it's against the law to hunt turkeys in Holmes County in the fall.

Only bows may be used during archery season — no crossbows are allowed. Only hunters with a disabled crossbow permit are allowed to use crossbows during archery season. Bows must have a minimum draw weight of 35 pounds, and hand-held releases are permitted. For hunting deer, hogs and turkeys, broadheads must have at least two sharpened edges with a minimum width of 7/8 inch.

As far as legal shooting hours go, you're allowed to let your arrow fly between a half-hour before sunrise and a half-hour after sunset. Except for turkeys, you're permitted to take resident game over feed such as corn or soybeans on private property. It's against the law to use bait on WMAs.

Before you take to the woods, though, there have been some major changes to hunting in Florida this year that I want to tell you about, including hunting zone modifications, the addition of a new fourth zone and different hunting season dates.

FWC biologist/Get Outdoors Florida! chairman named Conservation Educator of the Year

Special to the News Bulletin

Bob Wattendorf, a fisheries biologist with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission, recently received the "Conservation Educator of the Year" award from the Florida Wildlife Federation.

In 2008, Wattendorf initiated an effort to bring together a statewide coalition of agencies, universities and businesses to encourage families and children to participate in nature-based recreation. The collaborative effort resulted in formation of Get

Outdoors Florida! (www.GetOutdoorsFlorida.org) a coalition of more than 100 active partners, including major state and federal agencies and diverse groups interested in offsetting the problems associated with "nature-deficit disorder," a term coined by Richard Louv in his book "Last Child in the Woods."

Florida Gov. Charlie Crist and his Cabinet recognized the Get Outdoors Florida! Coalition in 2009, when they signed a resolution recognizing the Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights for Florida. The coalition, integrated into the Children and Nature Network, is working to extend the reach of such programs as President Barack Obama's America's Great Outdoors Initiative (www.doi.gov/americasgreatoutdoors), and first lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move Outside (www.LetsMove.gov) program to combat obesity.

"Conservation education today is all about integrating efforts to introduce newcomers to the beauty and value of an active, nature-based lifestyle,"

Wattendorf said.

Researchers have documented the health, education and societal problems associated with too much time spent indoors and dealing with electronic media. Research now shows that embracing a lifestyle change — spending more time outdoors in nature, whether, fishing, birding, paddling, gardening or just hiking in the woods — leads to a happier, healthier and smarter population (www.childrendandnature.org).

During his 31-year career with the FWC,

Wattendorf has served to promote Florida as the Fishing Capital of the World, worked with the Recreational Boating and Fishing Foundation to bring about best practices for "Boating, Fishing and Aquatic Resources Stewardship Education" and helped craft the "Federal Aid Supplement for Aquatic Education Programs."

The Florida Wildlife Federation is a nonprofit conservation education organization composed of thousands of concerned Floridians and people from all walks of life who have a common interest in preserving, managing and improving Florida's fish, wildlife, soil, water and plant life. As the state affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation (www.nwf.org), it has been helping Florida's wildlife since 1937.

In presenting the award on behalf of the federation, Preston Robertson, vice president for conservation, praised Wattendorf "for his tremendous efforts on behalf of conservation and the need to get Floridians outside and into the natural world."

Snook harvest closure still in effect

Special to the News Bulletin

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) reminds anglers that the harvest season for snook in Florida, which usually opens on Sept. 1, will remain closed through Sept. 16.

The FWC issued an executive order in January that temporarily closed harvest seasons for snook statewide to protect snook populations affected by prolonged cold weather in Florida earlier this year.

The FWC recently issued this order to enable FWC Commissioners to hear a report by staff at their Sept. 2 public meeting in Pensacola Beach regarding the latest information on the status of the snook population. They will also receive public input and determine whether to reopen the fall harvest season or continue to prohibit

Car wreck sidetracks Crestview man's music ministry

By Brian Hughes

brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

There was a time not long ago when Brian Fowler could barely find time to sit back, meditate and relax. Between his day job as a painter and his passion for his music ministry, the soft-spoken, spiritual man was always on the go.

"I used to do concerts," Fowler explained, playing guitar and singing in a group called Awakening Ministries, of which he was president. The secretary sang as well, Fowler said, "but the vice president was a little bit too sheepish about singing."

But then came the fateful collision at the intersection of State Roads 85 and 123. A driver paused at the stop sign waited until Fowler was almost at the intersection, suddenly pulled out, "and hammered me right in the side," Fowler said.

Suddenly his world was turned upside down. It took 13 operations before Fowler could walk again. A steel rod was inserted in his femur.

"One of the doctors told me I was real lucky they didn't amputate my foot," Fowler said.

BRIAN HUGHES | News Bulletin

READY TO WORK: Brian Fowler, injured in a car wreck, yearns to return to his music ministry following removal of a steel rod in his femur.

Though the other driver was insured, the settlement was a one-time payment.

"It covered $300,000, and it took a big chunk of that to cover the surgeries," Fowler said. "I used the money to pay for the operations and a lot of medical expenses. One of the doctors told me if the steel rod in my femur causes problems, it will have to be taken out."

Used to working hard but knowing he couldn't stand on his injured leg for any length of time, Fowler bought a piece of land in Holt to open a boat restoration business. He bought several used boats and began restoring them.

"I figured I'd recuperate pretty quick," Fowler said.

But things only deteriorated. His Crestview home burned down, forcing him to live in a motor home on the Holt property. Then began the thefts. Tires, construction materials, boat trailers and even boats started to vanish from the property.

"I was doing OK as far as keeping up with the bills, but all the vandalism and theft, ..." Fowler said, his voice trailing off sadly. "I didn't have anything to fix the boats with."

Without materials to restore the boats, Fowler's income was slashed. In August 2009, the land was foreclosed on. Meanwhile, Fowler's injuries continue to haunt him. It has become apparent the steel rod must be removed, doctors told him, but without insurance and denied Social Security benefits, he has no money for the operation.

"I feel nauseous all the time. I have no energy, and my foot swells up real bad," Fowler said. "I used to work anywhere between eight and 16 hours a day."

But now, after two hours of work, Fowler said, he is exhausted.

"It causes my finances to be so low. I would pay for the operation if I could," he said. "I have always been like that — paying cash for what I need and working hard."

"My plan was to buy the boats, restore them and sell them, then build a big building, a 7,000-square-foot concert hall, for the Awakening Ministries."

The situation in which Fowler finds himself is confounding to a man used to paying his own way and contributing where he could.

"I've always been a person to run a business, to be an active part, to contribute to a community," he said. "I've always been a taxpayer. It was a tough decision to apply for Social Security."

He's still singing, "but not very much. I want to do something ministry-oriented," he said.

Fowler believes that if he could sell the boats that remain, "as is," the money will finance the outpatient operation to remove the steel rod he says his body is rejecting, and restore his health.

"I'm not a lazy person, but when my leg don't work, it makes it real difficult to get anything done," he said, indicating his swollen foot with his cane. "It's been difficult getting around. Even just walking, my foot swells up. It swells up so much it's unbearable to walk for two or three days. If I walk too much, it just snaps, crackles and pops. Sometimes I sound like Rice Krispies."

Now living with a friend in Holt, Fowler welcomes any offer to buy his boats, the first step in his ultimate goal of reviving his music ministry and singing the praises of his Lord.

"I believe that live entertainment really helps inspire people," Fowler said. "I think it helps people think about God and be inspired."

If you wish to assist Brian Fowler with his ministry or purchase his boats, you may call him at 603-0761. His boats can be seen at 1515 U.S. Highway 90 in Holt on Baggett Hill. He also welcomes your prayers.

Honor your father and mother

Life's lessons come from many sources: parents, children, friends, enemies, colleagues, the Scriptures. Different lessons from different places.

Parents are usually great teachers for their children. They want to instill strong values, morals and manners.

Kymerly Nies told this story about her young daughter. She said, "We've always tried to instill in our children God's desire that they respect and obey their parents. One morning, after an evening of explaining the Golden Rule to my preschool daughter, Katie, I quizzed her: "What's the Golden Rule?" I asked. With a look of exasperation she replied, 'I know, I know. You're the mommy!'"

Some lessons come from our parents later in life. Mickey Mantle was born in 1931 in Oklahoma, the oldest son of Elvin "Mutt" and Lovell Mantle. Mutt worked in the zinc mines, and Mickey once remarked: "I knew it was killing him. He was underground eight hours a day. Every time he took a breath, the dust and dampness went into his lungs."

Mutt had a better future planned for his son: baseball. From the time Mickey was 5, his dad coached him to play the game.

After signing with the New York Yankees, Mantle spent a couple of years in the minor leagues before being called up to the major leagues in 1951. But after a month, he wasn't hitting, and he was sent to the minor league team in Kansas City.

Mantle's hitting slump continued. He called home and told his father, "I don't think I can play baseball anymore." The next day, Mutt arrived in Kansas City and started packing his son's belongings into a suitcase.

"What are you doing?" Mickey asked. "Packing," his father answered. "You're going home. You're going to work in the mines; that's what we'll do. You can go back down there."

That was enough to jolt Mantle out of his slump and into a hall of fame career. One of the Ten Commandments says we are to honor our father and mother.

Typically, it is fairly easy to bring honor to a parent who has treated us fairly in our lives. But what if someone had a parent whom they deem to be unworthy of honor? What if someone had a parent who was abusive, emotionally or physically? Is a child supposed to honor that kind of a parent? It would be easy for me to say, "No. Don't bother." But that is not the route to take.

So what do we do with this commandment when we feel as though our father or mother is not worthy of honor? I know what you are about to read is easier said than done. But hang in there.

First, don't deny that he or she is your parent. He or she played a part in bringing you into this world.

The reality is, your life — not the events that may have happened to you, but your life — is a gift from God. Your parents played the biological part in giving you your physical body. But God gave you your soul. God breathed his life into you.

So even in light of how your parent — or parents — might have wounded or injured you, you are still first and foremost a child of God. You can still forgive a parent for what may have been done to you, without condoning it.

This doesn't mean pretending an offense never happened. It doesn't mean you go back for more abuse. You take the lessons learned and the newfound freedom that comes through forgiveness and move forward as a new person following the path of God. You can give honor to your father and mother for being God's instruments for bringing you biological life.

When you are able to forgive parents — again, without condoning what they have done — you will feel a huge burden lifted. Anger and hatred will disappear.

Be aware, however, these emotions will more than likely be replaced with two others: disappointment and sadness for what might have been or could have been had circumstances been different. Eventually, these will dissipate as well.

So when you open yourself to the possibility of forgiveness, you begin to show honor by recognizing that they, too, are children of God — messed up, maybe, but still children of God. Even through difficult or awful circumstances, valuable lessons can be learned — even if the lesson is "I will never do that to my children!"

Lessons learned as children stay with us for a very long time. We may tend to forget some of them, but they influence us as we grow older. The important lessons stay with us our whole life through.

Hold tight to the lessons you have learned. Emulate those that give life. Learn important lessons of what not to do from those who hurt or destroy. Honor your father and your mother. As you do, you will also give honor to God.

Angel Tree sponsors sought

brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

Though summer is not yet over, already the Salvation Army is looking ahead to the Christmas season. In addition to bell ringers in Santa hats attending their collection kettles outside local stores, another manifestation of the organization's involvement in Christmas is the angel trees that sprout in local businesses.

While different businesses choose different ways to display the paper angels they receive from the Salvation Army, the principle is the same: Generous donors select an angel bearing the name of a local child, 12 or younger, and buy the youngster one of the three gifts he or she lists on the angel, returning the gift to the sponsoring business.

The Salvation Army will collect the gifts from participating businesses in time to distribute them Dec. 16 and 17.

"Our agency provides Christmas gifts every year to children in Okaloosa and Walton counties who are less fortunate," said Salvation Army Social Services case manager Lisa Martinez in an appeal letter. "Without the Salvation Army's help, some of these children ... may not have gifts under the tree at Christmastime."

Parents may register their children for the angel tree program at the Tri County Community Council's office in Crestview, 290 Martin Luther King Jr. Ave., on Oct. 18 or 19 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. At that time, they may indicate up to three gifts from their children's Christmas wish list and also register their children's clothing and shoe sizes.

Some businesses' employees choose to buy gifts for each angel they receive from the Salvation Army, while other companies invite their clients and customers to share in their generosity.

"We are expecting twice as many families to sign up for Angel Tree this year due to the economy," Martinez said. "I would greatly appreciate all of you who are willing to help."

If your business would like to participate in the Salvation Army's Angel Tree Program, contact Lisa Martinez at 243-4531 or Lisa_Martinez@uss.salvationarmy.org.
