Tax holiday just in time for Crestview shoppers

By Paula Kelley
paulak@crestviewbulletin.com

The tax holiday begins at 12:01 a.m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday. After a hiatus of a couple of years, the sales tax holiday was reinstated last year. There are a few changes this year. Last year's $50 exemption on school clothing was increased by $25. Last year's $10 exemption on select school supplies went up $5.

Students in Okaloosa County return to school Aug. 22, and area stores are gearing up for a sales tax holiday on select school supplies and clothing items that kicks off Friday and runs through Sunday. No taxes will be collected on exempt clothing items priced at $75 or less, and select school supplies priced at $15 or less.

Consensus reached on charter

Appointed administrator and clerk among changes

By Brian Hughes
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

If approved by voters, the form of Crestview's government would change from its current "strong mayor" to a weaker mayor, an appointed city manager and an appointed city clerk under the type of charter generally agreed on by the city council Monday evening.

Council member Robyn Helt's insistence at the last council meeting that she and her fellow council members arrive at a consensus in time for the Aug. 1 charter review workshop paid off.

In less than an hour, the council arrived at a general agreement on the form of the city's government and the functions of some of its executives. Among the biggest changes, the city council would appoint a city administrator who would manage the day-to-day operations of the city, oversee city departments and budgets, and appoint a city clerk.

Mayor David Cadle had said at previous meetings that some residents were concerned that an unelected administrator would add another layer of government and additional expense and would not be answerable to voters.

Cadle had also said earlier that there wasn't much for the mayor to do under earlier charter-revision drafts.

Cadle suggested a stronger mayor than first proposed, in addition to an appointed city manager.

Among the proposed draft, the mayor's duties would include attending and presiding over council meetings but having no vote; maintaining investigative powers of allegations of malfeasance or nonfeasance of elected officials; holding veto power over ordinances; presenting an annual state-of-the-city report; and assuming public safety powers in the event of an emergency, such as a hurricane.

After discussion, it was also agreed that the mayor would continue to sign checks and contracts for the city, which would then be verified by the city clerk. The city administrator would prepare most city contracts.

Library, Admin Services, recreation budgets presented

By Brian Hughes
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

Two Crestview city department heads presented their respective proposed budgets at a city council workshop last week, drawing both questions and praise for their fiscal stewardship from council members.

Budgets for the Crestview Public Library and Administrative Services would increase nearly 1.4 percent and 2.4 percent, respectively.

Library Director Jean Lewis and Administrative Services Director Mike

Wing represented the city's combined recreational and cultural services. Wing presented the Parks and Recreation department's proposed budget, which would increase 1.9 percent in the 2011-12 fiscal year if approved.

Lewis' total budget request of $637,057 is an $8,739 increase over the current year's budget. Lewis cut more than $2,000 in compensation time and more than $9,300 in group insurance premiums. Still, the library's proposed personnel budget of $480,289 is up nearly $14,000 from the current year.

"Our employees are among the few that are working six days a week," Lewis said. "Our staff is motivated to provide the best in friendly service and making sure our customers feel welcome and comfortable."

The library served 108,000 patrons this fiscal year, Lewis said, and anticipates a 15 percent increase with the arrival of Florida A&M University faculty, staff and students, and the Army's 7th Special Forces Group (Airborne) families.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

My side of the story

Editor's note: This letter is in reply to an Aug. 6 story in the Crestview News Bulletin titled, "City employee owes $600."

Dear Editor:
To begin with, if my water bill had been allowed to build up to $600, someone inside City Hall was not doing their job! And just for the record, I am well and capable of paying my bills. The mayor looked me in the eye Thursday, Aug. 4, and said, "I did not give out your name." But she did; it is in the paper. Why just my name? Why single out just one person? Are my personal finances the general public's business? All 12 names should have been included. As a city employee, I am no different, no better, than anyone else. If I get behind with my water bill cut me off too!

In other words, the ball was dropped from within city hall, not out in the "field."

It seems to me that what we have here is the failure of communication; the failure of facts and truth!

I have been employed for 16 months and still have no rule book or employee policy. If we are going to have a rule book it should apply to everyone. If there is an ordinance why hasn't it been followed for the past 16 months?

The new water clerk is addressing situations that have been looked over for the past 16 months. Looks like she is on board to do the right thing for all concerned, even city employees.

More Laurel Hill citizens need to attend the council meetings and then you can see how this city is really run.

Jeff Senterfitt
Laurel Hill
Water Department employee

member. Mr. Allen hides behind city employ morale as an excuse to personally attack...myself.

Even though the article does not justify a response, the truth does. Mr. Allen uses the employees talking about morale and the furlough days they were forced to endure from last year's budget, a budget he had voted to adopt; and let me remind you, Mr. Allen, our department heads brought the furlough-days idea to the council as a indication of the employees wanting to do their part to help.

My EMPLOYEE

newsletter on May 12 was not an attack on them, but rather an attempt to draw out wrongdoing. All the incidents I had spoken of that Mr. Allen nicely quoted in his article were things that had already been discussed on the dais, nothing new, no new accusations.

And since Mr. Allen did serve four years on the council with nothing to show for it, he should know that the Sunshine Law forbids me stating names in an article, as it might be something voted on later.

One question I have for Mr. Allen is why is this employee newsletter, not a letter to the electorate, such a controversy when the city has much larger issues to deal with? The fact that thousands have been lost in revenue is not important enough for an article? What about the illegal concession stand we had for four years? How about NO accountability for wrongdoing?

The taxpayers pay all of us to operate the city as efficiently as possible, and that includes holding our people accountable. Mr. Allen likes to bring the charter into this newsletter, and the city charter is by far a high priority, and looking to change our form of government to include a city administrator is right on target for giving the people what they need and deserve — leadership, and efficiency.

I doubt Mr. Allen understands either concept since he didn't even wait for Mrs. Janice Young's position of city clerk to get cold, or official, before he was in the mayor's office vying for the position; not to mention since when did he care about the employees before he left. Even after voting to eliminate positions, he wanted to raise the council's salary.

For months since he lost the election he has written articles attacking what the council has been trying to do...progress; something Mr. Allen was either incapable of doing or unwilling. It took Mr. Allen several campaigns to win a seat on the council, and only one term to be voted out.

I think the people have spoken, and the words are "proactive, not reactive." Yes Mr. Allen the city has lacked leadership, and former council members have done nothing but create their own empire; they still do behind the scenes.

I owe the people my dedication to their best interests, not my own. I am not here to campaign, I am here to do what I feel is right. Bob, wasn't it you that said to me that we serve the citizens not the employees? Those in glass houses...

Hypocrisy, just a tip of the iceberg

A recent article written by Mr. Allen, a former council member for Crestview, is a direct attack on a current and one time fellow council

BENJAMIN J. IANNUCCI

Quality health care in Crestview

Rarely does a day or two go by without someone saying to me, "I'm not going back to that place. The place was dirty, and the help were unruly and ill-mannered."

Unfortunately, I have had some acquaintances make such comments about our local hospital. In all honesty, I do not know why, and I surely do not agree with them.

Quite honestly, and as a patient, I have visited two hospitals in our 16 years of residency in Okaloosa County. My bride, on the other hand, has been a guest at just about all of them, and it has been in the past three weeks that she was admitted to North Okaloosa Medical Center and its intensive care unit for an erratic heart that had several doctors intimately involved with her treatment.

For better than two days, a bevy of tests were run. On the morning of her third day, the cause of her palpitations was determined, and in very short order, a "fix" was prescribed and executed. By the middle of the afternoon, she was on her way home.

I make mention of this simply because she got nothing but the best professional care available. Doctors in the emergency room were attentive, thorough and compassionate. The nursing staff attended promptly to her every need, and the various other specialists took the time to explain what was going on and why.

How often would a patient expect to see the CEO of the hospital at the foot of his or her emergency room bed? My bride experienced just that as she awoke from a short slumber to see the CEO of NOMC standing at the foot of her bed "just checking on things."

I have mentioned this to some people, and I've been told, "Yeah, but it's dirty."

In my opinion, and I have had sufficient experience in numerous hospitals, military and civilian, to determine if a place is dirty, NOMC is immaculate!

Friends and neighbors have told me that they are going to Milton or Pensacola to see doctors, and I must restrain myself from asking, "Why?" Aside from a small number of unique medical specialties, just about every area of diagnosis and treatment is right here in our fair community.

In the decade and a half that we have been here, we have seen the capacity of the hospital expand, the number of specialties increased, and the morale and unique qualities of the nursing staff improve. In other words, and this is my opinion based upon personal observations, we have a quality institution of which the residents of Crestview and surrounding area can be proud.

"I like what the mayor's brought forward as far as the powers of the mayor," Council President Charles Baugh Jr. said, adding that he would like to see the mayor preside over council meetings.

"I think the council president is somewhat hampered now, having to let all the other council members speak before he can speak and having to pass the gavel when he wants to make a motion," Cadle said in agreement.

Cadle said the council president could become a more active member in council debates, yet the mayor, as a nonvoting member of the council, could continue in his current capacity as an adviser, meeting individually with council members without violating state Sunshine laws.

The council also agreed with Cadle that voting to remove an elected official chosen by the people "is a pretty big step" and asked that the charter include provision for at least a two-thirds vote by the council rather than a simple majority. Under the current council composition, that would require four of the five council members to vote in favor of removing an official.

After directing Administrative Services Director Mike Wing to incorporate all the recommendations into a new draft document, to be reviewed by the council as well as City Attorney Ben Holley, discussion turned to when the charter might be presented to voters. It was agreed that a substantial voter education period should precede the vote.

"It would probably be in our best interest to have it on the general election" in November 2012, Baugh said, which is a presidential election. "You would get a bigger citizen turnout, and it would give us a better snapshot of the peoples' will."

The next charter review meeting was set for Aug. 29 at 5 p.m.

Unlike last year, however, there will be no tax exemptions this year on books priced at $50 or less.

Some local shoppers, like Crestview resident Reese Williamson, have been buying school supplies early to prevent having to buy everything at once.

Williamson, who was shopping recently at Staples in Crestview with her three children, said she has been looking for "great bargains."

"I have three lists, and they love Trapper Keepers, so we bought those first," Williamson said.

The list of items that are tax-free during the sales holiday changes from year to year.

Clothing items that will be tax-free this year include bathing suits, belts, baseball caps, cleats, diaper bags, bibs, dresses, jackets, formal wear, lab coats, martial arts attire, pants, purses, Scout uniforms, shorts, socks, sweaters, ties and wallets.

School supplies that will be tax-exempt include compasses, protractors, computer flash drives, rulers, glue products, adhesive tapes, scissors, paper — notebook, poster, construction — folders, highlighters, colored pencils, markers, crayons, lunch boxes, notebooks and filler paper, as well as legal pads, binders, pencils, pens and erasers.

Rodney Nobles, deputy superintendent of operations for the Okaloosa County School District, said many teachers put donation items on their classroom lists, but parents are not required to buy them.

"Budget cutbacks are seen everywhere, and the teachers have special projects and often ask for donations toward those," Nobles said.

couraging residents to shop locally for back-to-school clothing and supplies.

"The economic impact that the city would feel from a focused shop-at-home effort would be quite significant and only intensified by our new neighbors from the 7th Special Forces," Harris said.

Lewis' budget includes a request for an additional phone line for the fax and $15,000 to establish an e-book collection compatible with patrons' digital readers, such as Kindles and iPads.

Lewis also requested a book budget of $40,000, restoring funds that were eliminated in the current year's budget, which forced the library to temporarily stop updating its collection, making some books, such as medical references, out of date.

"This year I definitely need the book money," Lewis said.

"I would like to commend you on your first time out as a department head," Council President Charles Baugh Jr. said. "You and your staff have done a very good job."

"We had so little money; we have been very frugal," Lewis replied.

The Crestview Parks and Recreation department has seen a dramatic increase in participation in the last year, Wing reported, including both youth and adult sports players. Even more seniors are attending activities at the senior center in Old Spanish Trail Park than before, he said.

"We're seeing a rapid increase in participants in everything that we do," Wing said. "We've expanded our sports to give children more things to do in the summertime."

Even with more participants, Parks and Recreation's $650,733 budget request is only $12,168, or 1.9 percent, over the current fiscal year. The steepest increases include nearly $9,500 in utility services and $7,100 for operating supplies.

The department's $434,117 request for personnel services is more than $4,000 less than the current budget year and represents more than $17,000 in savings from unscheduled overtime, compensation time, retirement contributions, group insurance and unemployment compensation.

"Our funding levels have remained largely the same while we've increased the number of events that we host as well as the number of event locations," Wing said. "Every one of these increases affects staff in a different way."

Wing also presented budget proposals for the other components of the Administrative Services department, including the community centers, which include the Crestview Community Center and the Warriors Hall auditorium; growth management; building code inspections; and the geographic information system (GIS).

Personnel services for the Administrative Services department would increase $2,524, or less than half a percent, to $739,600, a significant portion of the department's $825,191 requested budget. A proposed salary increase of 7.2 percent would be offset by a decrease in personnel that would eliminate $19,500 in retirement contributions and $15,000 in unemployment compensation.

Community Centers became a city department in 2008, and its $79,415 budget request is a 9.3 percent increase over the current fiscal year. Some of the requested increase represents increased staffing, though both employees serving the department work on a part-time basis. So far, 124 events have been held between the two buildings this fiscal year, Wing reported.

"We're seeing more citizen use of those facilities," Wing said, though with a decrease in user fees, income is also down, he added.

Requested operating expenses for the community centers decreased by 2.3 percent to $38,747, while personnel services would increase $11,740 to $40,668, or 40.6 percent, under the budget.

"You've done pretty well with your budget for Administrative Services," Baugh said. "I have to give each department a star for operating with the money that you have."

"We've been extremely tight, I'll be honest with you," Wing said.

Okaloosa free, reduced lunch program

Special to the News Bulletin

Okaloosa County School District announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals for students under the national school lunch and breakfast programs. Any interested person may review a copy of the policy by contacting Juli-Anna Davis 202-B Highway 85 N, Niceville, FL 32578, or by calling 301-3020. School begins Aug. 22.

Household size and income criteria will be used to determine eligibility. An application cannot be approved unless it contains complete eligibility information. Once approved, meal benefits are good for an entire year and notifications of changes in income and household size are not necessary.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced-price meals, households must complete the application and return it to the school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The application process can also be completed online at www.applyforlunch.com.

The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

Households that receive SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) or TANF (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families) are required to list on the application only the child's name, SNAP/TANF case number, and signature of adult household member.

Foster children will receive free benefits regardless of the child's personal income or the income of the household.

Households with children who are considered migrants, homeless or run-away should contact district liaison Lisa West at 833-5879.

For the purpose of determining household size, deployed service members are considered a part of the household. Families should include the names of the deployed service members on their application. Report only that portion of the deployed service member's income made available to them or on their behalf to the family.

Additionally, a housing allowance that is part of the Military Housing Privatization Initiative is not to be included as income.

All other households must provide the following information listed on the application:

- Total household income listed by gross amount received, type of income (e.g., wages, child support, etc.) and how often the income is received by each household member.

- Names of all household members – check the “no income” box if applicable; if household member is a child, list school name for each.

- Signature of an adult household member certifying the information provided is correct.

- Social Security Number of the adult signing the application or the word “NONE” for this household member if he or she does not have a Social Security number.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the school should be contacted. Children of parents or guardians who become unemployed should also contact the school.

Under the provisions of the Free and Reduced-Price meal policy, Arleen Hamilton (202-B Highway 85 N, Niceville, FL 32578, or 301-3020) will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he or she may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, he or she may make a request either orally or in writing to Richard D. Norris at the same address and telephone number.

Unless indicated otherwise on the application, the information on the Free and Reduced-Price Meal application may be used by the school system in determining eligibility for other educational programs.

To determine annual income:

- If you receive the income every week, multiply the total gross income by 52.

- If you receive the income every two weeks, multiply the total gross income by 26.

- If you receive the income twice a month, multiply the total gross income by 24.

- If you receive the income monthly, multiply the total gross income by 12.

Remember: The total income before taxes, social security, health benefits, union dues, or other deductions must be reported.

Man charged with defrauding 94-year-old Baker woman

From staff reports

RICHARD CHANCEY

The Okaloosa County Sheriff's Office has charged a Niceville man with fraud, theft and exploitation of an elderly Baker woman.

Richard Scott Chancey, 46, of 211 Edrehi Drive, is accused of defrauding a 94-year-old widow of as much as $4,500 between April 15 and June 12 of this year.

The manager of a Baker grocery store became concerned when Chancey kept coming in to cash checks from the victim, according to a sheriff's press release.

The victim told deputies that Chancey said he was using the money to help find several rings, which had been stolen from her.

The rings were gifts from the woman's deceased husband and had great sentimental value, she told investigators.

Chancey admitted to Okaloosa deputies that he told the victim he could help her get her rings back if she paid him, but each time he got cash or a check from her, he used the money to get information and buy drugs from drug dealers, the press release states.

EXTENSION CONNECTIONS

Your health and kitchen connection

By Brenda Smith
Special to the News Bulletin

How would your kitchen rate if a health inspector came in to evaluate it?

Many of us get discouraged when we hear negative reports about local restaurants, but home kitchens also can provide a welcoming environment for germs and food-borne microorganisms.

A clean kitchen can prevent food borne and other illnesses such as the common cold or flu. And, there's more good news: "Keeping a kitchen clean need not be difficult," said Valentina Remig, a food safety and nutrition specialist and former faculty member at K-State, who developed a USDA-funded food safety campaign.

Remig recommends making a homemade sanitizing solution by adding one tablespoon of household bleach to one gallon of water; transfer the solution to a spray bottle for use as needed, and, as with other cleaning products, label the sanitizing solution and keep it out of reach of children and pets.

"Use the sanitizing solution on countertops and other surfaces that come in contact with food before and after food preparation," she said.

"Hot soapy water and a clean rinse also will work," said Remig, who advised sanitizing cupboard handles, knobs and drawer pulls; refrigerator and range handles, acontrols and keypads on appliances; faucets, and the kitchen telephone.

Cleaning tips include:

- Dedicate one cutting board for meats and poultry, and another for vegetables; sanitize cutting boards after each use, and replace when boards become worn. Cuts and grooves can harbor bacteria.

- Change dishcloths daily; choose reusable dishcloths that can be laundered in hot water, or disposable cloths.

- Change and sanitize scrubbers and sponges — or replace them — often.

- Consult appliance manufacturer's instructions, and clean refrigerator and freezer thoroughly by removing shelves and bins at least every three months; defrost ice build-up as needed.

For additional information go online to www.extension.org.

Brenda Smith is with the University of Florida | Okaloosa County Extension Office.

STAFF PICKS

"What's Gotten Into Us? Staying Healthy

in a Toxic World by McKay Jenkins" (362.196 Jen). McKay Jenkins was a man who never smoked, ate right and got plenty of exercise. After completing a routine checkup, he was shocked upon hearing he had developed a tumor. As a result of this wake-up call he decided to investigate the effects chemicals, those considered hazardous as well as those deemed "safe," have on the human body when exposed through everyday occurrences and objects. This eye-opening book exposes the lack of proper regulation on the use of toxic chemicals and the ubiquity of toxins in our lives.

Reading is an adventure like that of discovery itself. Libraries are our base camp. — James H. Billington

Next is a lesson in botany or plant physiology, led by a knowledgeable person and an in-depth study about a particular plant that grows well in the deep South.

The classes are free and open to all who are interested in learning more about the plants that grow well in our area. This month's meeting will be held at the Holley-Navarre Elks Lodge at 2002 Elks Way, Navarre. Facilitator will be Tina Tuttle, horticulturist from Pensacola. The specific plant studied will be Salvia, a member of the mint (Lamiaceae) family.

ABWA selects Woman of the Year

Special to the News Bulletin

Crestview's Working Women Express Network, Inc., of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA), honored their 2011 Woman of the Year, Jerae Blanton, owner of Stroller Strides, on June 14 during the organization's general monthly meeting.

Anita Kirkland and Kathy Warren, award committee co-chairs, presented short biographies on the nominees chosen by the network's membership.

In addition to Blanton, the nominees chosen this year by membership were Esther Phelps, U.S. Army (ret.), currently working with juvenile delinquents in residential treatment centers; and Crystal Boyles, chief financial officer of Emerald Coast Aviation.

The Woman of the Year program was designed so that every ABWA chapter or network can annually recognize a member who has shown leadership, commitment for growth within her career and for herself and continued ABWA networking. Other selection factors include demonstrated community support and recognition by others throughout the year. "Being chosen Woman of the Year is a great honor, one that is highly respected by all ABWA members," Kirkland said.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Tammy McDaniel, owner and manager of Tammy's Journeys in Fort Walton Beach. Her topic for the evening was the importance of becoming involved, taking risk and allowing yourself to grow, even when you may not think you can do it.

"She filled the room with encouraging motivation for our members to absorb," Kirkland said.

Currently a candidate for ABWA National District I vice president, McDaniel has held several positions with the ABWA Emerald Coast chapter, including Woman of the Year and president of both the chapter and council.

ABWA Crestview's Working Women Express Network was established in 2009 and has more than 30 members. This event was part of their membership campaign designed to invite businesswomen from the community to learn more about the organization.

Meetings are held the second Tuesday of every month at Christopher's Uncorked Bistro on Main Street in historic downtown Crestview. Guests are always welcome and do not need a reservation. For more information, visit www.abwacrestview.org.

Hearing Loss and Dementia Linked in Johns Hopkins Study

Seniors with hearing loss are significantly more likely to develop dementia over time than those who retain their hearing, a study by Johns Hopkins and National Institute on Aging researchers suggests. The findings, the researchers say, could lead to new ways to combat dementia, a condition that affects millions of people worldwide and carries heavy societal burdens.

Although the reason for the link between the two conditions is unknown, the investigators suggest that a common pathology may underlie both or that the strain of decoding sounds over the years may overwhelm the brains of people with hearing loss, leaving them more vulnerable to dementia. They also speculate that hearing loss could lead to dementia by making individuals more socially isolated, a known risk factor for dementia and other cognitive disorders.

Whatever the cause, the scientists report, their finding may offer a starting point for interventions — even as simple as hearing aids — that could delay or prevent dementia by improving patients' hearing.

"Researchers have looked at what affects hearing loss, but few have looked at how hearing loss affects cognitive brain function," says study leader Frank Lin, M.D., Ph.D., assistant professor in the Division of Otology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. "There hasn't been much crosstalk between otologists and geriatricians, so it's been unclear whether hearing loss and dementia are related."

To make the connection, Lin and his colleagues used data from the Baltimore Longitudinal Study on Aging (BLSA). The BLSA, initiated by the National Institute on Aging in 1958, has tracked various health factors in thousands of men and women over decades.

Seniors with hearing loss are significantly more likely to develop dementia...

The new study, published in the February Archives of Neurology, focused on 639 people whose hearing and cognitive abilities were tested as part of the BLSA between 1990 and 1994. While about a quarter of the volunteers had some hearing loss at the start of the study, none had dementia.

These volunteers were then closely followed with repeat examinations every one to two years, and by 2008, 58 of them had developed dementia. The researchers found that study participants with hearing loss at the beginning of the study were significantly more likely to develop dementia by the end. Compared with volunteers with normal hearing, those with mild, moderate, and severe hearing loss had twofold, threefold, and fivefold, respectively, the risk of developing dementia over time. The more hearing loss they had, the higher their likelihood of developing the memory-robbing disease.

Even after the researchers took into account other factors that are associated with risk of dementia, including diabetes, high blood pressure, age, sex and race, Lin explains, hearing loss and dementia were still strongly connected.

"A lot of people ignore hearing loss because it's such a slow and insidious process as we age," Lin says. "Even if people feel as if they are not affected, we're showing that it may well be a more serious problem."

The research was supported by the intramural research program of the National Institute on Aging.

BATTER UP!

Former Bulldog opening hitting school

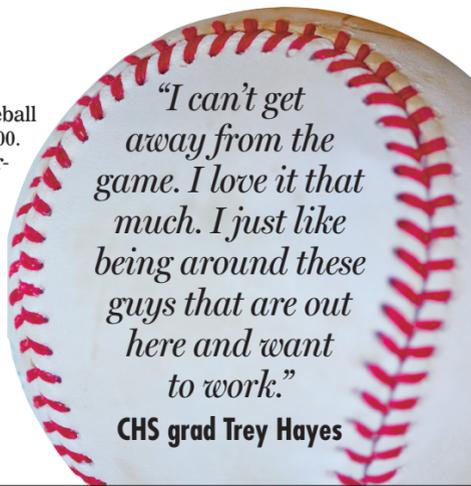

By Randy Dickson
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Trey Hayes knows hitting. As a three-year starter on the Crestview baseball team, Hayes, a 2006 CHS grad, hit well above .300. He continued to swing a hot bat at Northwest Florida State and Division I Samford.

Hayes hit .358 with 11 homers and 46 runs batted in as a sophomore at NWFS. His numbers were equally impressive his senior year at Samford, where he hit .363, belted 10 home runs and drove in 49 runs.

His playing career ended in 2010, but Hayes can't get baseball out of his system. He's now ready to embark on his next baseball journey as he starts the Trey Hayes Hitting School.

Football two-a-days: the stuff of legends

By Randy Dickson
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

I'll admit that I didn't walk to school barefoot, 10 miles through the snow, uphill both ways. But rain or shine, I did usually make the 2-mile walk home from school, and I did endure two-a-day football practices.

Back in another time in place when football was a seasonal sport and not a year-round exercise, it seemed to make sense to bring players into camp a few weeks early to work the offseason out of their system. I guess the logic was if you could get players in shape by practicing them, you could get them in shape twice as fast by having them practice twice a day.

NORTH END ZONE
Randy Dickson

Football players at every level from the pros to college and on down to high school endured the infamous practice sessions. Perhaps none was more infamous than the 1954 Texas A&M camp held at Junction, Texas, under coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. About 100 players arrived at the camp, and only 35 survived the 10-day test of survival.

And though most 40 and 50-something ex football players like to talk about how tough things were, none of us ever went through a camp anything like Junction.

It has been 36 years since the last of my two-a-day practices on what I'm sure was a warm late August evening in Gulf Breeze way back in 1975.

I imagine we did the standard stretching and agility drills of the day. There were monkey rolls, and practice wouldn't have been the same without a lively session of Bull in the Ring.

I'm guessing the practice, which started at 3 p.m., lasted three or three-and-a-half hours, and there might have been one water break, maybe two if we were lucky.

Just when we thought we couldn't go another step, the hitting would stop, and wind sprints in full gear would begin. The running seemed to last forever, but I doubt if we actually ran more than 15 or 20 minutes.

When two-a-days ended, we not only were in football shape and game ready, but we were ready to tackle anything the upcoming year would send our way.

Because many teams back then didn't have the summer programs, two-a-days also served as a time for bonding and building the chemistry so important for the grueling season.

Today, those long ago two-a-day practices are a source of pride and legendary stories that have the practices increasing in duration and difficulty with each passing year.

Come to think of it, maybe I did walk to school barefoot, 10 miles through the snow, uphill both ways. And to think, after all that, I still managed to make it through two-a-days.

Reserved CHS seats, parking now on sale

By Randy Dickson
randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Season ticket holders at Crestview High School will be in for a real treat this year when they pay their $75 for reserved seating.

The Crestview Quarterback Club has spared no expense: New seating will be installed at Jack Foster Stadium in time for the Sept. 9 home opener against Escambia.

"Our main focus is always the players and team," club president Roger Berry said. "This year we are trying to give something back to the community, as we'll be upgrading the reserve seating section with comfortable high-back chairs."

Berry said the chairs, which have armrests, will be spaced far enough apart to give fans a little extra room.

"We've knocked the number (of seats) down a little bit," he said. "It was 28 seats per row, but we went down to 26 seats per row to give more space and make it worth your while to come in and get a little more space and to get that arm room."

"The seats will be installed by the Quarterback Club around the middle of the month. They are red in color with a big gigantic 'C' in the middle of them. It will not only enhance the seating for the comfort of our fans, but it will enhance the view (appearance) of our stadium as well."

Reserved seating is on sale from 8 a.m. to noon through Aug. 22 in the high school main office for returning season ticket holders. Remaining reserved seats will go on sale Aug. 23.

In addition to seating, fans can purchase reserved parking for $25 with premium access to Jack Foster Stadium. The Quarterback Club also is offering a reserved parking section for $20 that will be available for tailgating on the practice field.

Reserved parking also can be purchased at the school office daily from 8 a.m. to noon.

Bulldogs) we've ever pulled off," Crestview Quarterback Club president Roger Berry said. "We will actually have every kid and everyone that will put on a football jersey this year in Crestview at the Meet the Bulldogs Night. They will be introduced or playing in a scrimmage that night.

"That's both middle schools, the city league and all their five, six, seven teams they have. CAYA and all their teams, the semi-pro team and, of course, our JV, freshman and varsity teams will be scrimmaging as well. So it will be a big night of football."

The opening ceremony is set for 6 p.m. and will be followed by a scrimmage between Davidson and Walton County. Shoal River will scrimmage Walton County next.

The fireworks display and light show will start at 8:30 p.m. and will be followed by the high school scrimmages.

"Any time you can do stuff like this as far as a football coach, it's a positive," first-year Crestview coach Kevin Pettis said. "When you are trying to get things ironed out that you can go out there and scrimmage and get your kids in an atmosphere that is not like practice, it is a good thing. It is something you can draw from later on in the year.

"It's the weekend before the opening game, and we are going to go out there and practice under the lights and have a game environment. We are going to use that as a practice because it is a week away from our game. We are going to go out there and we are going to be in full pads, and we are going to do what we do."

Pettis said he is looking forward to watching Davidson and Shoal River play as well so he can get a look at his future Bulldogs.

Berry said the night is more than just an opportunity for fans to see the local football teams. For some players, the experience is as close as they will ever get to the feel of taking the field in a big-time college or professional game.

"Meet the Bulldogs Night is not only for the people to see the teams, but it's special for those players," he said. "They get to come out to fireworks and the sights and sounds. They come out to the smoke, and the crowd is cheering and the band is playing."

"It pumps them up as well. It makes them feel like rock stars. All of them, from 5 years old to 30 years old, it makes them feel like they are at a college game."

"I can't get away from the game," he said. "I love it that much. I just like being around these guys that are out here and want to work."

"I know from my experience that baseball is not a game that you can just play during baseball season. It has to be something that you keep working at, or you are going to pick right up where you left off instead of improving every year."

Hayes' classes are open for players age 8 and up through high school. The cost is $45 for a one-hour session. He also is considering a package discount, as well as a discount for referrals.

Sessions will be held at the Crestview High School batting cages, but Hayes said he is more than willing to work with someone at home if they have a batting cage.

Crestview baseball coach Tim Gillis gave a ringing endorsement for his former player.

"First of all, Trey is the epitome of a hard worker, and he's got tremendous character," Gillis said. "If I was going to let my kid learn from anybody and spend time with anybody, Trey Hayes would be at the top of the list. He's just a super human being, and he obviously played at a very high level."

"He played and earned his way everywhere he's been, and he's done a heck of a job. There are really not a lot of secrets in this game. It's sticking to what you do and doing it relentlessly, and that's what Trey has always done."

Hitting sessions will focus on such things as having proper balance with a swing, learning to hit a ball where it is pitched and knowing the strike zone.

"Baseball, really no matter what level, a lot of it comes down to your balance, and that's the key thing even in young guys," Hayes said. "If their balance is on, they are going to hit well. Major Leaguers, if they have balance, they are going to hit well."

"You can see the slow (motion) shots of it. That's an advantage about having a one-on-one thing. You are not necessarily stuck with a group, and it can play to your strengths and weaknesses and what you need, too."

Hayes prefers the hands-on approach to teaching hitting, but if needed he said he is willing to film players and use that as a teaching tool.

"I can video tape if there is something I'm trying to teach a person and they are not getting it," he said. "I'll video tape and show it to them and say, 'This is what it looks like. I know it feels like you are doing this, but this is what is actually going on.'"

Hayes said parents would always be welcome to video the hitting sessions.

With no other hitting school available in Crestview, Hayes is hoping to find a niche in the community that will help aspiring young players.

"Throughout my career, I've been blessed to play with coaches that love the game and have had success themselves," Hayes said. "They were able to teach me the fundamentals that I build on."

"They taught me how to work so I feel like I have a lot to offer."

Can you tell which signatures are real and which are fake? You can check your answers below the photos.

Sports memorabilia expert can tell fake from priceless

By Doug Irving

Joe Orlando's baseball card career didn't begin with much promise. It began, instead, with a 1975 Topps Jay Johnstone card.

He was just a kid and didn't know that the card he was pointing at under the card-shop glass was next to worthless.

He doesn't make that mistake anymore. Today, Orlando oversees one of the most prominent card and memorabilia-grading services in the country. Thousands of cards and autographs pour into his company's headquarters every month, sent by collectors who want to know that their piece of the game is the real thing.

Most of the time, the cards and other memorabilia are common enough, worth a $20 bill or two. But sometimes ...

Well, sometimes Orlando gets reminded that he's come a long way from that 1975 Jay Johnstone.

"The collector in me would love to just sit down here," Orlando says as he walks through a basement hallway. He leads the way past a security desk, past the heavy door of a vault and into a dimly lit workroom.

It's late in the day, and most of the card graders have gone home. But a few are still at their desks, turning over baseball cards in their hands under bright-light magnifiers the way a jeweler might study a diamond.

This is the dream job a fifth-grader might conjure up for a what-do-you-want-to-be-when-you-grow-up essay: shuffling through early Ken Griffey and Albert Pujolses, maybe the occasional Mantle or Gehrig. Squinting at the fountain pen flourishes on an old ball and knowing that, yes, the Babe himself signed it.

One of the graders, 33-year-old David Lin, looks up from a stack of Griffey rookie cards just long enough to offer, "I love this job."

Orlando is the president here, in a plain office building in an equally plain Santa Ana, Calif., office park. Nothing but a sign in the lobby says that this is where Ted Williamses, Michael Jordans and Muhammad Alis come to be judged: Professional Sports Authenticator.

Collectors know it as PSA. It graded more than a million trading cards last year, authenticated nearly 200,000 autographs and took in $9.7 million in net revenue for its parent company, Collectors Universe.

The company is one of the "most trusted and respected third-party authentication companies" in the industry, said Ray Schulte, a spokesman for the National Sports Collectors Convention and owner of SchulteAuctions.com.

As president, Orlando can spot the difference between the confident lines of an authentic Mantle autograph and the laborious script of a forger. But he leaves the authenticating to experts who can trace a baseball bat to a player based in part on the pine tar patterns on its barrel.

Orlando is just 39, a former college catcher who speaks of baseball cards and sports memorabilia as if they were works of art. He calls them "pieces." He's a lifelong collector who still rattles off stats and facts when he talks about some item that's come through for grading.

Say, the bat that Kirk Gibson used for his arm-pumping home run in 1988.

"There's something magical about the game equipment," Orlando said. "These are the tools that they used to make history. It's pretty neat stuff."

Orlando doesn't have many of his own cards

THE "MOST DANGEROUS" AUTOGRAPHS

Professional Sports Authenticator recently released its list of the most dangerous autographs of last year, those most likely to have been forged. They are:

Athletes

1. Babe Ruth
2. Lou Gehrig
3. Mickey Mantle
4. Michael Jordan
5. Muhammad Ali
6. LeBron James
7. Ted Williams
8. Tiger Woods
9. Kobe Bryant
10. Albert Pujols

Others

1. Elvis Presley
2. The Beatles
3. John F. Kennedy
4. Marilyn Monroe
5. Michael Jackson
6. Jim Morrison
7. Neil Armstrong
8. Jimi Hendrix
9. James Dean
10. Walt Disney

or collectibles anymore — not even that 1975 Jay Johnstone that got him started. He sold off most of his collection when he got the job as PSA president in 2002, to avoid any conflict of interest.

But being president of a company like PSA puts him in contact with pieces of sports history that most collectors could only dream of.

When Mark McGwire slammed his then-record 70th home run in 1998, it was PSA that endorsed the authentication on the game ball. When "Shoeless Joe" Jackson's game bat went to auction in 2001, it was PSA that marked it as real.

The company has certified Super Bowl game balls, World Series rings and more Mickey Mantle baseball cards than Orlando can remember. It once authenticated an autographed handprint of Babe Ruth.

But its most famous call involved an exceptionally rare 1909 Honus Wagner baseball card, often called the Holy Grail of card collecting. PSA graded the card's quality an 8 on a scale of 1 to 10. New York Daily News reporters investigated and later published a book concluding the card had been cut from a sheet long after it was printed.

Orlando wasn't yet at the company when that card came through. But he defended the grade: "In our opinion, it's completely authentic. We stand by it, absolutely."

The flat-out coolest item he's ever seen had a much more obvious history.

On April 18, 1923, Babe Ruth hit a three-run home run to lead the Yankees over the Red Sox on the first day of play at Yankee Stadium. Ruth signed the bat and delivered it to a boy who had won a Los Angeles youth home run contest.

Orlando was at a sports convention several years ago when an auction house approached him with a club of old wood. It weighed at least a dozen ounces more than even the heaviest modern bat, and it still had that signature.

It was Ruth's game bat from Opening Day of the House that Ruth Built.

"When you pick it up and hold it in your hand," Orlando says now, "that's when you say 'My job is pretty great.'"

FSU's Fisher joins fight against Fanconi anemia

Special to the News Bulletin

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State University football head coach Jimbo Fisher and his wife, Candi, on July 25 announced the creation of a new national fund to fuel the quest for a cure for Fanconi anemia, a very rare life-threatening disorder that afflicts their 6-year-old son, Ethan, and many others.

"One thing I've learned as a football coach is to never accept defeat," Fisher said. "We are in this to win the fight against Fanconi anemia on behalf of all the children who share this struggle with Ethan."

Money raised through a new campaign called OnaKwest for a Cure will support research into Fanconi anemia at the University of Minnesota, one of the leading universities pioneering better ways to treat the disorder, in advance of finding a cure. The campaign will raise research dollars for the Kidz 1st Fund, just established by the Fishers, through the sale of T-shirts, wristbands and other products and through online donations. Fisher said he will donate all fees associated with his public speaking engagements to the fund.

This type of hereditary anemia, primarily a blood disease, can affect all systems in the body and leads to bone marrow failure. For decades, the disorder was thought to be untreatable, but promising advances in medical research have improved the prognosis. To extend their lives, most children suffering from Fanconi anemia will require a stem cell transplant, either bone marrow or cord blood, yet many wait years to find a donor who is a perfect match — or never find one.

For that reason, the Fishers also are making a widespread appeal for people to join the National Marrow Donor Registry to determine if they are a match for any of the thousands of people whose lives depend on a bone marrow transplant.

"The news that Ethan has this disease is a call to action for us, and we hope to use our situation to improve the chances of every child whose life may be extended and improved by advances against this illness," Candi Fisher said. "We ask for your prayers, your participation in the bone marrow donor registry and your contribution to speed up the race for a cure."

Florida State coach Jimbo Fisher conducts a radio interview during the Atlantic Coast Conference Football Kickoff in Pinehurst, N.C., on July 25.

Leading Fanconi anemia researcher Margaret MacMillan, a pediatric blood and marrow transplant physician at the University of Minnesota Amplatz Children's Hospital, said the fundraising efforts planned by the Fishers could be "a game changer" in the fight against Fanconi anemia.

"Through research, improvements are made each year in treating patients with Fanconi anemia, improvements that have changed the survival rate after unrelated donor bone marrow transplant for this disease from less than 30 percent to greater than 80 percent in the last 15 years," MacMillan said. "It is with research that we have changed what's possible for children just like Ethan. But there is much more to do.

"We will not stop until we have 100 percent survival. To this end, we are investigating safer treatments, even treatments that may eliminate the need for transplant in the future. Our team has already changed the practice of medicine for Fanconi anemia and other diseases, and we aim to do it again. With philanthropic support, we can give patients like Ethan and his family hope for a healthy and happy future."

FSU Athletics Director Randy Spetman said the Fishers have the prayers of the FSU community.

"They have the support of the entire Seminole family, and we all are teammates for Ethan as he courageously battles this disease," Spetman said.

The Kidz 1st Fund, fighting Fanconi anemia, is affiliated with the Alma Foundation, a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit charity that primarily supports children and family causes, distributing more than $5 million to date.

The OnaKwest for a Cure campaign is dedicated to raising awareness about Fanconi anemia and helping to fund research for finding a cure.

The Crestview High School jazz band entertains during the July Music and Art on Main Street festival. The Big Red Machine's journey to the Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif., will be the beneficiary of several events during the last MAMS of the summer this Friday night.

MAMS offers art for all the senses

By Brian Hughes
Arts & Entertainment Editor

The Okaloosa Arts Alliance-North and the Main Street Crestview Association present the summer's final Music & Art on Main Street festival, an evening full of treats for the eyes, ears, nose and taste buds. From 5-9 p.m. Friday night, the corner of Main Street and Woodruff Avenue jumps to life with sights, sounds, aromas and tastes for all the senses.

Tickle your ears with the sounds of classic rock by The Journey Band, the honky-tonk piano styling of Professor Dennis Mitchell and oldies from the '60s, '70s and '80s by the reincarnation of the popular 1960s Gulf Breeze-based band The 13th Hourglass.

To dazzle your palate, organizers have put together a culinary Tour de Main Street. With a $5 wristband, gourmants can stroll the historic district and enjoy $1 samples of several downtown eateries' tastiest morsels.

As diners visit each of the seven participating restaurants, they'll receive a sticker on their wristband. Those who visit all of the restaurants will be entered into a drawing for a $100 prize. Families and other groups can share an armband, OAA-N chairwoman Rae Schwartz said, and there's no limit to the samples.

"You can buy as many as you want," Schwartz said. "If you hit every single restaurant, you'll have a pleasant walk around downtown."

Visual artists will exhibit a variety of works in media including paintings, photography, watercolor, sketch, fabric, ceramics and dimensional art, with opportunities to acquire some their works for your own collection. Representatives of Crestview's sister city organization will have information about the program that "twins" us with Noirmoutier, France.

A collection of family quilts, made from scrap material from the Alatec factory and other sewing mills in the Crestview area, will be displayed at the Tropical Palm Restaurant. At A Quilter's Place, craftsmen will be working on a Big Red Machine Rose Parade Quilt. For $5 a square, attendees can create their own contribution to the project, with proceeds benefiting the band.

"If they want to embellish it (their square) in any way, feel welcome," said Viola Owens, Main Street Crestview Association member and event co-organizer.

Those wishing to exercise their dancing skills are invited to cut the rug on the dance floor in the courtyard of the Main Street Land Title Company. A "Dancing in the Street" dance contest will be held between 7:30 and 8 p.m., with music by The 13th Hourglass, and will also benefit the Big Red Machine.

The entry fee is $5 per couple, with entrants' names entered in a drawing for a $50 prize. Contest winners, as determined by professional judges from the Crestview Fred Astaire Dance Studio, will receive a handsome trophy.

Corporate dinner tables will be available in the Main Street Land Title courtyard. Seating is limited for a $10 dinner served by Christopher's Uncorked Bistro, complete with appetizers, salad and choice of three entrees including chicken Parmesan pasta, blackened chicken pesto pasta or baked manicotti.

The free festival runs from 5-9 p.m. on Woodruff Avenue at the corner of Main Street. For more information, contact Rae Schwartz at 585-5672 or email her at bakerny@yahoo.com.
