CRESTVIEW — The Emerald Coast Young Marines on Saturday learned about being a U.S. Marine as they honored a service member injured in a helicopter crash in Afghanistan.

Sgt. Kirstie Ennis, of Milton, reportedly received six surgeries for injuries including a torn rotator cuff, shattered jaw and a brain injury. In addition, she experienced post-traumatic stress disorder, or PTSD.

But on Saturday, she was the Young Marines' honored guest at an Elks Lodge luncheon.

CRESTVIEW — Area green thumbs will celebrate Florida's Arbor Day on Friday morning with a tree giveaway and tree planting at the University of Florida/IFAS Okaloosa County Extension on Airport Road.

The Daughters of the American Revolution's Choctawhatchee Bay chapter donated a $200 winged elm tree to be planted during Friday's events. The tree can grow as high as 40 feet, Okaloosa County Master Gardener Sandie Olsen said.

"Its seeds are a great bird attractor," Olsen said. "And it's not susceptible to Dutch elm disease."

The Dogwood Garden Club of Crestview likewise donated a tree, also to be planted during Friday's events.

JOHN MCMAHON

A WOODMAN'S PRAYER

Florida State Forest Service Poet Laureate John McMahon, of Crestview, penned this poem, which is displayed at each of the state's seven Welcome Centers.

"It may be my best poem ever," he said.

Lord, let me be as a tall green tree
Upright and pleasing unto thee
Thankful for my humble birth
And for my time upon the earth.

Lord, as I reach to touch the sky
Keep me in your watchful eye
And if I grow too tall and wide
Prune away my foolish pride.

Be with me, Lord, as the seasons pass
And my dreams fade like the grass
The years will help me understand
That my life is in your hands.

I know time's axe will cut me down
And lay my bones upon the ground
Then Lord, I pray, remember me
In gardens of your memory.

CRESTVIEW — Commuters heading eastbound on James Lee Boulevard into Crestview may have noticed some construction work outside city limits.

Praise, Power and Compassion Ministries recently broke ground for a church at 2188 James Lee Blvd. The 16,000-square-foot facility, to be completed in December, will seat nearly 400 people and include Sunday school classrooms and a fellowship hall.

WANT TO GO?

Praise, Power and Compassion Ministries currently meets at 294 N. Main St. See ppcmin.com for more information.

"It's an awesome feeling to see a vision come to pass," the Rev. Darrell Coleman, the church's pastor, said. "Whenever a vision is fulfilled, it says a lot about the people involved."

CHECK IT OUT

To piggyback on reference librarian Sandra Dreaden's "happiness project" in last week's Check It Out, Jamie Mitchell visited Lap Sit to fulfill her New Year's resolution.

HEATHER NITZEL

I am delighted she chose to participate in Lap Sit with her 1-year-old daughter, Katie. Jamie, a local Realtor, said she enjoys her job's flexibility.

I am sure her New Year's resolution could double as a happiness project!

If you'd like to make this your happiness project, we have opportunities in the mornings for those with flexible schedules like Jamie, and in the evenings and on Saturdays for those with less flexible schedules.

Call 682-4432, come to the library or visit cityofcrestview.org/library.php for a full listing.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS BULLETIN

DULCIMER HOEDOWN, UPCOMING EVENTS

We will host a dulcimer hoedown Jan. 29. The Pelican Pickers will fill Warriors Hall with Appalachian, old-time and gospel music, playing Appalachian mountain lap dulcimers.

They augment their sound with banjo, mandolin, guitar, Irish penny whistles, fiddle, harmonica, Native American flute, recorder and silver flute.

The songs — most of which come from the 1800s and early 1900s — start at 7 p.m. and will end around 8:30 p.m.

Evening Library Time is designed for adults and children 5 years old and up. Bring a finger food to share. Registration is not required for this free event.

OBITUARIES

Feria E. Green

Feria E. Green, 70, of Crestview died Friday, Jan. 11, 2013 at her home.

FERIA E. GREEN

She was born on Nov. 5, 1942, and was a life-long resident of Okaloosa County. Mrs. Green was a member of Live Oak Baptist Church.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Johnny E. (Gene) Green.

Survivors include two daughters, Julie Hooks (Jeff) and Vickie Brooks; two brothers, Scotty Campbell and Joe Campbell; four sisters, Patricia Trobley, Jean Nipper, Pam Kelley and Paula Lunsford; three grandchildren, Chase Brooks, Micha Hooks and Corey Brooks; and two great-grandchildren, Camren Brooks and Tanner Brooks.

Funeral services were at 10 a.m. Monday, Jan. 14 at Live Oak Baptist Church. The Rev. Jerry Nelson officiated the ceremony. Burial followed in Almarante Cemetery.

The family received friends 4-6 p.m. Sunday at the funeral home.

You may share memories and offer condolences at http://www.brackneyfuneralservice.com.

Brackney Funeral Service, Crestview, was in charge of the arrangements.

La Don Peacock

La Don Peacock died from a brain tumor, with his family by his side, on Saturday, Dec. 29, 2012, in Pensacola.

LA DON PEACOCK

Don was born Sept. 13, 1939 in Kinston, Ala., to Albert and Lera Floyd Peacock.

Don was most recently a resident of Crestview, and for the prior 20 years, he resided in Orlando.

Five children, Dawnita, Doran, Denise, Donnette and Kevin; five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren; and seven brothers and four sisters survive Don.

For 20 years, Don took excellent care of his mother, Lera Peacock Barley, in Orlando, prior to her death in 2009.

Don will be remembered for his love of life, an infectious laugh, fantastic gardening skills and all the many home improvement projects he so enjoyed. Don was a gourmet cook and happily shared his experiments with all who visited.

Don will be sadly missed by his little dog, Josie, and his nephew, Alvin Blocker, who so graciously shared his home and his life with Don and Josie for the past two years.

Don's memorial service is at 11 a.m. Friday, Jan. 18, at Barrancas National Cemetery in Pensacola.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations in Don's name to the American Cancer Society.

Zoo experiencing changes, seeks volunteers

By MATTHEW BROWN
682-6524 | @cnbMatthew
matthewb@crestviewbulletin.com

CRESTVIEW — The Emerald Coast Wildlife Refuge is in the process of purchasing the former Sasquatch Zoo, and needs a little help along the way.

The zoo is expected to reopen as the Emerald Coast Wildlife Zoological Park in mid-February, pending license approval, officials said.

"This is the first time (the refuge) has taken on a task like this," Amanda Wilkerson, the refuge's executive director, said.

The not-for-profit organization primarily volunteers efforts in rehabilitating Florida's orphaned, injured and endangered species "in accordance with good wildlife management practices," the group's official website, ecwildliferefuge.com, states.

The refuge seeks assistance in preparations for the re-opening.

"We are asking for volunteers to help with a variety of things including landscaping ... we could definitely use a professional landscaper and (an) electrician," Wilkerson said.

WANT TO GO?

Contact Susan Leveille, volunteer coordinator, 650-1880 or sleveille@ecwildliferefuge.com, to volunteer at the Emerald Coast Wildlife Zoological Park.

Although some specialized help is required, the refuge welcomes anyone interested to contact volunteer supervisor Susan Leveille at 850-650-1880.

"We will have a project for everyone that comes," Wilkerson said, adding only adult volunteers are needed.

Wilkerson expressed gratitude for those who have shown their support by volunteering. Volunteers this month have been meeting at the zoo on Saturdays. Nearly 25 volunteers showed up to participate on Jan. 5, Wilkerson said.

Ring-tailed lemurs peer out from their cage at the Sasquatch Zoo near Crestview.

The Sasquatch Zoo — established in 1987 near Shoal River — moved to Deer Springs Drive two years later after flooding. It houses more than a hundred animals including lions, bears and monkeys.

Debbie Mattox — who has managed the zoo since it opened — contacted the refuge when she decided to retire.

"I wanted to find a way to keep the zoo here for the community," she said, adding county officials referred her to the refuge.

The zoo closed at the end of December to allow the refuge and volunteers to work.

It was a win-win situation for the refuge and the zoo's inhabitants, for which Mattox deeply cares, she said.

"I have raised most of the animals since they were infants. They are like my children to me," she said.

Mattox and her husband, Bill Bitsche, plan to stay involved with zoo operations after the transition.

Especially since they live next door.

"I joked with the refuge that they would have to keep me away with a broom," Mattox said.

She particularly anticipates additions.

The refuge will add "animal ambassadors" after the zoo reopens; details will be released later, Wilkerson said.

The park also will add a summer educational program and new exhibits.

State college grand opening today

Special to the News Bulletin

NICEVILLE — Northwest Florida State College's new Activities Center will have a grand opening 1-3 p.m. today at the Niceville campus.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony at 1 p.m. will be at the west entrance facing the new courtyard between the Activities Center and the Student Services Center. Receptions start at 1:15 p.m.

Parking is available in lots adjacent to the Student Services Center. Signs leading to the Activities Center will be posted.

Renovation of the 31,675-square-foot College Mall was a $25.5 million project's final phase. The project transformed the mall into the Activities Center and included construction of a three-story Student Services Center, which opened in January of 2012.

The Activities Center houses the Academic Success Center, which provides free tutoring and academic support for students; a Barnes & Noble store including a coffee shop that exclusively serves Starbucks coffee; and offices for the college's Student Activities program.

Offices of Florida's Great Northwest, an independent economic development organization, are also in the Activities Center.

The grand opening will recognize the newly named Janet Nadel Morell Conference Room on the adjacent Student Services Center's third floor in the Costa Leadership Institute.

Janet Nadel Morell, formerly of Niceville, died in 2004. She had moved to Niceville at 79 and enjoyed the community and cultural offerings of the college, a spokesperson said.

Family members Bob and Venita Morell of Niceville and Susan and David Cohen of Potomac, Md., established the Janet Nadel Morell endowment to name the large community conference room. The endowment's earnings will provide funds for equipment, instruction and the Costa Leadership Institute's program needs.

PARENTS CAN PAY FOR RESOURCE OFFICERS

I think if parents donated $5 a month to their child's school, this cost could be offset. I have one child in school and another about to start (kindergarten) in a year. I would gladly do this to improve security and ensure the safety of my children.

My child's school has 850 kids enrolled; at $5 per child, that would be $4,250 a month to hire security.

TOP COMMENT

TRANSFER REWARDS TEACHER'S BAD BEHAVIOR

There should be zero tolerance for this conduct. I do not believe that he should be transferred to the Department of Juvenile Justice.

He does not seem to be of good moral fiber to be a good influence or role model. Transferring him seems like a reward for misbehavior.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Resource officer additions raise questions

THOMAS BONI
Editor-in-Chief

A post-Newtown world has raised many questions for communities.

Amid discussions on mental health and potential gun control is a solution that ostensibly brings security straight to schools in the form of a uniformed officer.

After a gunman reportedly killed 26 people on Dec. 14 at Sandy Hook Elementary School, Okaloosa County's attention focused on security measures, including keeping school resource officers on elementary campuses.

Such a certified law enforcement officer would be a law-related counselor and educator, according to the Center for the Prevention of School Violence. The officer has an established connection with the school and its students, showing up not just during crises, and maintaining a long-term school presence.

Providing school resource officers here in Okaloosa isn't cheap; $3.5 million will keep them on campus for a year.

The county must raise $1.1 million to keep 26 deputies in elementary schools through June, but the county's making inroads to these goals, the Northwest Florida Daily News reports.

The Okaloosa County School Board on Monday voted 4-1 to spend $523,000 ensuring school resource officers stay in our elementary schools.

Okaloosa County Sheriff Larry Ashley said he could pull $300,000 from forfeiture funds.

The County Commission is next; the board on Jan. 22 is expected to vote on whether to cover $265,000 that would close the gap.

Of course, the $3.5 million question is whether the program can help, particularly since it requires sacrificing other needs.

The school board already cut guidance counselor and staff specialist positions, with no known consequence on school safety, newspapers report. A post-Newtown environment spurred a vote that favored allocating funding for the program, but that $523,000 also could be used elsewhere within the school system — like rehiring those guidance counselors and staff specialists.

So, is this a wise investment?

Is the task of keeping a school safe just too much for one school resource officer?

The Center for Prevention of School Violence believes we shouldn't underestimate the officer's influence.

The center justifies school resource officers because, it says, school violence and other crimes are not just campus problems. Smaller disciplinary problems, unchecked, can grow into larger problems that affect the whole community.

Because school disciplinary problems reflect community crimes and the cycle repeats, the community, not just the school, should police the problem, the center states.

School resource officers primarily could develop crime prevention programs that help potential victims protect themselves in violent situations; teach kids about peaceful conflict resolution; and help craft school policy promoting a safer environment, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

It's fitting that Ashley would seek more of these officers for Okaloosa schools, as a Miami police chief purportedly coined the term school resource officer, or SRO, in the mid-1960s, spurring Florida school districts' first SRO programs within the next two decades, according to the center.

However, Second Amendment supporters suggesting teachers and other school staff should carry licensed, concealed weapons would be at odds with the National Association of School Resource Officers, whose website, nasro.org, states no one but the officer should be armed on school property.

Additionally, constitutional rights advocates may have concerns, as school resource officers searching student property could be acting as law enforcement officers or school officials — which opens another contentious issue: whether students should be read their Miranda rights before being questioned.

MY VIEW

Can resource officers really help?

BOB ALLEN
Guest Columnist

In the past several weeks — after 26 deaths in the Dec. 14 Sandy Hook Elementary massacre in Newtown, Conn. — there has been outcry for more protective measures in our schools.

Frankly, I question these proposals' practicality.

Before I go further, I am an ardent supporter of our Second Amendment and the privileges I and every other American derive from that portion of our Constitution.

I support the idea that, if one is deemed worthy, he or she should be allowed to carry a concealed weapon.

In fact, for one's self-protection, I believe a concealed weapon should be allowed wherever the carrier chooses to go.

I believe one loses the desired degree of protection if the weapon of choice must be left elsewhere if admission to certain facilities or functions is desired.

To protect students, educators and staff members, there have been those who have advocated a host of protective measures.

I read one piece in which it was suggested that every school campus be entirely fenced in, with razor wire atop the 10-foot-high fences. Innumerable individuals have suggested both educators and other adults in schools be trained and armed.

Others have gone so far as to suggest that National Guardsmen be stationed at all our school facilities and various events.

Why?

I understand these suggestions' driving motivation, but I wonder if those who have made these proposals have thought them out to figure what would be their effect.

Do we want our students to be in armed camps?

Currently, in Okaloosa County, there is a school resource officer in virtually every school. Of recent date, I have read comments from parents who claim to be much more comfortable knowing that little Johnnie or Suzie is safe from some individual determined to bring death and destruction to a facility.

When I read these remarks, I almost laugh aloud!

People think all will be well because a single uniformed officer is on campus?

I am on more than one campus each week. I see the resource officers, and I see their marked county vehicles parked out front. This past week, I saw a resource officer leave a school, climb into the county-provided vehicle and drive away.

Gee, I wonder if someone wanting to do harm would notice there was no resource officer on campus!

At another institution, I saw the resource officer talking with a staff member.

Where was the "protection" of students and educators?

Assigning resource officers to virtually all county schools gives a "warm and fuzzy" feeling, but it is extremely expensive and very ineffective.

Have you ever looked at our schools' construction?

Facilities are not like they were 50 years ago, when several floors were stacked atop each other and there were only one or two entrances. In the wisdom of planners, schools now cover more than a square city block, have several wings emanating from a central administrative area and feature several entry points.

Just how would a single resource officer be effective?

Recent reports indicate Okaloosa County will expend upward of $1 million on resource officers this year.

This might seem like money well spent, but I believe it is little more than a publicity stunt to pacify parents while knowing it will be very ineffective.

I understand the life of every child and every adult cannot have a price tag applied to it.

But with literally hundreds of officers of the law and school administrators, there must be a more effective and efficient way to protect those in our schools.

Bob Allen is a former city councilman who lives in Crestview.

WORD ON THE STREET

Do you feel students are safer with police officers in the schools?

"Probably."
Diana Thiele, visitor

"Crestview is such a small town — the safety of students is fine; police officers are needed, (but this is) just something to make parents feel at ease."

Exhibit displays young artist's work

BRIAN HUGHES
Arts & EntertainmentEditor

Jasmine Maughon, one of our community's most remarkable up-and-coming artists, delights art lovers with her sweet personality, shy smile and remarkable, inherent artistic ability.

No matter what media she gets her hands on, when she's through, it's been beautifully transformed into a memorable work of art.

The exhibit of Maughon's work currently on the north wall of the Crestview Public Library amply demonstrates the young artist's skill in two and three dimensions, as well as her assured manipulation of a variety of media.

The 2012 Crestview High School grad is a former president of the school's Art Club and recipient of multiple blue ribbons at both school and community art shows. She majors in studio art at Northwest Florida State College and the University of West Florida.

Maughon's exhibited works come from high school and college projects. Pen and ink, charcoal, watercolors, fabrics and even house paint are among the media she employs. Works range from whimsical, serious and even a trifle, um…scary.

Of the latter, I especially liked a trio of perturbing pastels and ink interpretations of fairy tales.

"Seven Dwarfs" depicts a sleeping Snow White being visited by seven demonic, gremlin-like creatures that lack the Disney hugability of Dopey, Doc, Sneezy and others. Rendered primarily in black and white, their gleaming red eyes burst through the nocturnal gloom of Snow White's boudoir.

"They were my concentration project for high school when I took (Advanced Placement) portfolio," Maughon said. "I had fun with those."

Contrast the fantasy of the grim fairy tales with the artist's still lifes, such as the delicate "Tea Rose" rendered in charcoal, or the wonderful "Beautiful Bones," from a decidedly different subject, rendered in charcoal and ink. As you ponder it, Maughon's sense of humor shines through.

Dimensional work includes a piece called "Graffiti Jungle" that reflects her interest in fabric art, and "Life Mosaic," a vibrant, exciting ceramic work that tantalizes the viewer on multiple levels.

I particularly loved the "Iron Maiden," an assemblage of everything from delicate cloth to bits of electronics and mechanical parts.

My only regret is that Maughon didn't exhibit her lively manga drawings, though a hint peeks through if you look carefully at "Graffiti Jungle."

Her characters embody rich personalities and are rendered so brilliantly they seem ready to pop off the paper.

But maybe that's subject matter for another exhibit.

We can always hope!

Lipdub tops 200,000 views

Crestview High School graduate Ben White's acclaimed student lip-synch video to Katy Perry's "Firework" is still making viewers — as the lyrics say — go "oh, oh, oh."

The production, which White shot primarily in one continuous take, recently topped 200,000 views on YouTube.

"I am excited to say that the lipdub has reached so many views because of the community's help," Ben said.

The video displays energetic personalities from most of the school's student organizations, including clubs, sports and academic groups.

It can viewed at http://bit.ly/KikBVA.

White followed the production with a teacher lipdub as a surprise gift for the graduating class.

With close to 12,000 views, that video can be seen at http://bit.ly/UNKC4X.

Artists sought

The Journey Java Connection invites interested local artists of all levels and types to exhibit their works at the coffeehouse, 269 N. Main St.

If selected, artists can show their work for one month.

A selected Artist of The Month will have a larger exhibition area and will be honored with a reception.

Submit a photograph of your work to Peggy@drphh.com or hand-deliver it to the Journey Java Connection.

Call 398-8814 for more information.

Call to artists

Feb. 4 is the deadline to submit works for consideration at the 21st Southeastern Juried Fine Arts Exhibition.

The Arts and Design Society invites southeastern artists to submit works for the exhibition, hosted by Northwest Florida State College and presented by Cox Communications.

JPEG images of works are due by midnight Feb. 4 for the exhibition, which runs April 21 through May 31. The entry fee is $35 per submission, with a three-entry limit per artist.

Contact adsoart@yahoo.com or visit www.artsdesignsociety.org and select "Call to Artists" for details.

Poster competition

A poster design contest is the first component of Northwest Florida State College's upcoming 50th anniversary celebration.

The contest, which offers an $800 reward, is accepting entries. Poster contest rules and the entry form are at www.nwfsc.edu/50.

The contest submission deadline is April 1.

CRESTVIEW — The U.S. Air Force's 919th Special Operations Wing, or SOW, inducted six community leaders in its honorary commander program Saturday at Duke Field.

The program pairs inductees with commanders, allowing them "to visit the 919th Special Operations Wing and learn about (its mission and its Air Force Reserve role in) national defense and support personnel involved in worldwide operations," said Dan Neely, a 919 public information officer.

"Our mission is to employ specialized personnel and to equip and support the community of us … special operations commanders and geographical combatant commanders in the execution of world special operations."

The unit has approximately 1,300 personnel, Neely said.

The wing commander takes his place at the top, followed by the wing command chief and the Mission Support Group, Operations Group, Maintenance Group and Medical Squadron.

Wing commanders annually select applicants recognized as leaders in their community, whether they are civilian or otherwise, "though many are members of the Chamber of Commerce," Neely said.

MATTHEW BROWN | News Bulletin

The Emerald Coast Young Marines and staff gather for a photo outside the Elks Lodge in Crestview on Saturday following a luncheon honoring Sgt. Kirstie Ennis.

She appreciated meeting group members who sent her letters of encouragement while she recuperated.

"To put faces to the names of the young Marines that have been writing me throughout my recovery is a great feeling," Ennis said. "I hope I can empower them half as much as they have done for me."

Elks Lodge 2624 provided lunch for Ennis, her family and the Young Marines, their parents and staff.

Attendees said Ennis was a role model.

"She really inspires me … how she can be in a helicopter crash and (still) be here to tell us about her experiences," Pfc. Michaela Cantwell, 10, of Milton, said.

"Now I'm thinking about being a gunner," Michaela said. Ennis served as gunner on helicopters that transport military personnel and supplies.

Many Young Marines said Ennis' story wouldn't deter them from facing dangerous situations.

Pfc. Carson Caldwell, 10, of Crestview found Ennis' ordeal emotional, but said he still wants to be a Marine. "I think I can handle it; I'm strong enough," he said.

Carson's brother, William, also is a member of the ECYM. Their mother, Michelle Caldwell — a group volunteer — has personal experience dealing with wounded service members. Allen, her eldest son, received a serious head injury during hand-to-hand combat training at the United States Naval Academy, ending his military career with an honorable discharge.

Allen has since attended the University of Central Florida and, all things considered, his mother said he is doing well.

"It has left him with some personality changes … I don't know if he will ever be fully recovered," Michelle said.

Although being a military mom can be difficult, Michelle said her children have chosen this path.

"Some other countries, you don't have a choice, but in this one, you do," she said.

"We should all do what we can for our country and our community," Michelle said. "Sometimes, we have to sacrifice ourselves for other people."

As for Ennis, she plans to meet with a medical review board to learn whether she can continue her drill instructor career.

If she retires, Ennis would like to pay it forward with a medical degree.

"I want to work with service members who have PTSD," she said.

CHURCH from page A1

The people whom Coleman was referring to are his congregation, nearly 160 people who attend services.

"Were small, but engaged," Coleman said, referring to the church membership and its dedication.

"Funding for the (over 9-acre) property and the building wouldn't have been possible if it weren't for the donations from within the ministry," he said.

The fellowship hall should help those with more than spiritual needs, Coleman said.

"We have people that come in off the street who attend on Sunday morning," Coleman said, adding the ministry provides food and clothing to the area's homeless.

The church membership also ministers to nursing home residents and performs gospel music for them. In addition, the church weekly ministers to Okaloosa County Jail inmates.

Coleman and Lula, his wife of 31 years, started the church in 2002 after moving to Crestview.

Praise, Power and Compassion is a "non-traditional, non-denominational ministry based in the infallible word of God," the ministry's website, ppcmin.com, states.

"Churches have a very orthodox way of doing things," Coleman said. "Were just a little bit different."

"I believe the spirit of God should dictate how the service should flow," he said.

Those interested in learning more should attend a service one Sunday, Coleman said.

"They (county Master Gardeners) have a landscape master plan and this will be part of it," Dogwood member Celia Broadhead said.

County Extension officials, Master Gardeners and state forestry officials will offer advice on tree planting in the north county region, including a planting demonstration by County Extension commercial horticulture agent Sheila Dunning. Maria Wilson, the Florida Forest Service's senior forester, will distribute free mayhaw, red maple, cherry bark oak and yellow poplar saplings.

Planting these and other trees native to northwest Florida is preferable to importing non-native exotic species, such as the palm trees some residents like to plant in their yards, retired forester and Forest Service Poet Laureate John McMahon said.

"Native trees are likely to adapt better to our local conditions," he said. "They grew up here and are acclimated to growing in our soil. They've adapted to our conditions, including our colder winters. They are easier to maintain than exotic trees."

Events begin Friday at 9 a.m. with the sapling giveaway, which lasts until noon or until all trees are given away.

Dedication of the DAR's winged elm is at 10:30 a.m.; Dunning's planting demonstration will follow.

Coffee and a guided tour of the new extension building will be provided at 11 a.m.

All events are free.

McMahon encouraged interested residents to visit the Crestview McMahon Environmental Center on Butler Circle, off Maypoles Street, beneath the fire tower. The center has been the location of past years' Arbor Day events.

"We have more than 100 native species tagged for easy identification," said McMahon, for whom the center was named.

Though national Arbor Day is celebrated on the last Friday in April, state Arbor Days are observed to correspond with optimal local tree planting conditions.

Florida's Arbor Day is the third Friday of January.

WANT TO GO?

Arbor Day events — Friday at the University of Florida/IFAs County Extension office, 3098 Airport Road — are as follows.

9 a.m. to noon: Sapling giveaway (while supplies last)

10:30 a.m.: Dedication of DAR winged elm; tree planting demonstration

10:45 a.m.: Dedication and planting of Dogwood Garden Club's tree

11 a.m.: Refreshments and tour of County Extension building

Admission for all events is free.

Give the officials their due respect

There have been times in this column space when I haven't been easy on the men and women who officiate local high school sports.

NORTH END ZONE
Randy Dickson

I try to give the officials the benefit of the doubt, but every now and then, must call it like I see and point out a badly missed call or — on rare occasions — calls that seem strongly slanted in favor of one team.

That said, 99 percent of those who sacrifice their time for a comparatively small payment are people of honor.

I've gotten to know many of the officials — some by name, others by face. We will chitchat before a game and, sometimes, during the event, as time permits.

One of the men officiating high school basketball in the area is former Northwest Florida State College baseball coach Keith Griffin. I got to know Griffin when I covered Raider baseball for the Northwest Florida Daily News.

Griffin worked the Baker-Laurel Hill girls basketball game I was covering Thursday night. During the game, we talked about the recent Baseball Hall of Fame elections, for which nobody was elected, and Alabama's win over Notre Dame for the National Championship in football.

I will chuckle sometimes when a coach is giving Griffin a hard time because I saw him give enough umpires plenty to think about during his days with the Raiders.

There are times I joke with the officials before the game and tell them not to call it tight so we can get home and watch a game on TV or maybe catch an early supper.

Sometimes, it seems as if they agree with me. But perhaps it's more of a case that the teams are playing a clean game than anything else.

In reality, I need to be in the officials' good graces to do my job more easily. Often, I let the officials know that I'll be taking photographs of baseball or softball games and where I'll be standing.

By rule, teams are supposed to provide a marked photographers box, but many umpires will let me have some flexibility where I stand; they know I'm aware of my surroundings and will get out of the way.

I try to work with the officials as they work with me so that everyone wins in the end.

My angles to plays often are similar to officials'.

Sometimes, I'll agree with the call; other times, I won't. There are times when a photograph I take proves the official was right, despite the howling masses of fans in the stands.

In my younger days, when I was more of a fan and less of a writer, I was a good heckler. I could work an officiating crew or the opposing team, but I would never go after a team that wasn't at least at the college level.

Bulldogs band together in win

NICEVILLE — Crestview boys basketball coach Ken Meisner had a three-word challenge for the Bulldogs prior to Friday's District 2-6A boys basketball game with Niceville.

"Band of brothers," is what he wrote on the board in the locker room.

"When you say band of brothers to a military unit or an athletic team that goes a long ways," Meisner said. "These kids bought into that tonight. We win together and we lose together, and if we fall, we help each other up.

"You don't leave anybody behind and that's what we did tonight. Each possession meant something. We worked for it and that's all we can ask."

Friday night, the Bulldogs won together, beating the Eagles 49-40.

In typical Crestview-Niceville fashion, the two heated rivals squared off toe-to-toe, trading baskets throughout the first quarter.

Freshman Mitch Morken sparked the Eagles early, scoring Niceville's first five points.

A basket by Crestview's Denzel Ware followed a Morken 2-pointer. When Morken dropped home a 3-pointer, Ronnie Baylark answered for the Bulldogs (7-9, 1-2) as Crestview embraced the band of brothers mentality.

Andrew Mitchell sparked the Eagles (6-12, 2-4) midway through the first quarter, scoring six quick points. A Mitchell basket with two minutes left in the opening period put Niceville up 13-12.

Twenty-six seconds later, Roman Donofro hit a 3-pointer, giving Crestview a 15-13 lead, and the Bulldogs didn't trail the rest of the way.

Crestview led 18-15 at the first quarter's end and 30-27 at half. Niceville kept things close through the break after a pair of 3-pointers by Nicholas

Former Laurel Hill basketball star Brad Reese takes the ball to the basket for his Usti Nad Labem team in the Czech Republic.

Reese hooping it up in Czech Republic league

By RANDY DICKSON

randyd@crestviewbulletin.com

Brad Reese's basketball journey first took him from Laurel Hill to Southeast Louisiana, Gulf Coast Community College and Texas Tech University.

In recent years, that journey for the 2006 Laurel Hill graduate has taken him halfway around the world.

Stats

Last season, the 6-foot-7, 200-pound athlete played professionally in Spain. This year, Reese has taken his skills to the Czech Republic League; he plays Usti Nad Labem's shooting guard.

To say the former Hobo star has made his presence felt on his new team would be an understatement.

Through 20 games, Reese led the team in scoring with 16.9 points per game and minutes played 30, was second in rebounding with 6.5 rebounds per game and blocked shots (.6 per game) and third in steals with 1.8 per game.

His best game of the season was on Nov. 7, when he scored 35 and had 12 rebounds against Decin.

Life as a professional basketball player — and newlywed, as he married last summer — agrees with Reese.

"I'm doing pretty good," he said during a recent phone interview. "We are struggling as a team right now, but other than that, I'm actually playing pretty well. I'm playing OK, but what's been tough is we've had three different coaches this year.

"I've been working trying to keep my career going right and just trying to play good basketball. My whole life, I dreamed of

Vikings cruise past Bulldogs

By SETH STRINGER
315-4421 | @SethSnwfdn
sstringer@nwfdailynews.com

FORT WALTON BEACH — Before Friday night's District 2-6A tilt against Crestview, Fort Walton Beach coach Holly McDaniel asked to see a little aggression from her team.

Judging by the Vikings' 35 free throw attempts in a 70-36 win, it's safe to say the message was received.

"That's what we've talked about for the past two days and I thought they delivered that tonight," said McDaniel, whose team improved to 12-5 and 5-2 in district play.

The Vikings (12-5, 5-2) hit 23 of those attempts from the charity stripe, where Mercedez Clayborne might as well have set up camp. The 5-foot-11 junior shot 11 for 16 from the line as part of a team-leading 19-point, 11-rebound effort, with seven of those boards coming on the offensive end.

"I was really proud of the way she offensively rebounded and defensively as well," McDaniel said. "She really got to the basket and didn't settle."

Clayborne wasn't the only standout on an offense that shot 47 percent from the floor and buried seven 3-pointers.

Katie O'Neal added 14 points and a team-best seven assists, Quay McNabb added 10 points, and four players ended up with seven or more points.

"You shoot well and good things happen," McDaniel said.

On a night when the whistles dictated the game's slow pace, Crestview (9-11, 1-6) also got to the line consistently.

But the charity stripe wasn't so charitable to the Bulldogs.

Once, I singlehandedly won a pizza for being the rowdiest section at a Tennessee baseball game, but I did so without profanity and with plenty of humor. Although that poor pitcher from the University of Georgia probably didn't find my questions about his control and eye sight so funny.

In the end, everyone has a job to do at a game. A coach is there to coach, players to play, officials to call the game, media to cover the game and fans to cheer on their favorite team.

It would be hypocritical of me to say fans shouldn't give the officials a hard time when they deserve it. But I would encourage fans to think before they yell something stupid.

Anyone who's called a youth league basketball game or church league softball game will tell you officiating isn't easy.

I once read that being a sports official was the only job in the world where you had to be perfect the first day and improve from there.

Come to the games and cheer your teams and even jeer the officials, but remember: officials are human too and they are doing their best.

Crestview's Jerry Aaron shoots against Niceville on Friday.

Haynes, who led Niceville with 12 points, in the second quarter.

The Bulldogs got a second-quarter boost from Trevin Arrington and Rashard Bess, who came off the bench to score five points each and help Crestview to keep the Eagles at arm's length.

Crestview's defense stepped up in the third quarter, holding the Eagles to six points. Baylark scored four of his game-high 16 points in the third period as Crestview pulled in front by seven after three.

Donofro's second 3-pointer of the game at the fourth quarter's 5:24 mark gave the Bulldogs a 45-34 lead and Crestview held on down the stretch to close out the win.

"This does a lot, not only for the program but for the community of Crestview," Meisner said. "Any time you can beat an arch rival, it's just a great feeling.

"You saw the electricity with our student section and parents tonight when the kids busted their butts and gave everything they had against Niceville."

Anderson, Gators pound Chiefs

By RANDY DICKSON

BAKER — There would be no slow start for Baker girls basketball coach Brian Wagner to worry about Monday night as the Gators hosted Northview in a District 2-1A game.

Cassidy Anderson hit a 4-point play 31 seconds into the game, igniting a 19-0 Baker run as the Gators made short work of the Chiefs 49-26.

"It felt really good for us to come out and play the way we are capable of playing," Wagner said. "That's the first time that's happened. I'm real proud of that, but I'd like to see us sustain it throughout a game.

"We had several girls hit some buckets pretty quick and that gives you confidence any time that happens."

Anderson, who led all scorers with 21 points, was fouled as she sank a 3-pointer from the right baseline and made the free throw to give the Gators (11-6, 4-4) the quick lead they would never relinquish. Anderson finished the first quarter with 12 points, scoring from both inside the paint and beyond the 3-point arch.

Anderson scored Baker's first 10 points before Sarah Hudson got into the act with back-to-back baskets to up the Gator lead to 14-0. A Kathryn Quigg 3-pointer that put the Gators up 19-0 with 1:35 left in the first quarter followed Anderson's final score of the first period.

"It felt really good for us to come out and play the way we are capable of playing,"

Northview finally got on the scoreboard with 1:03 left in the period. A Bethany Chestnut free throw for Baker made it 20-2 at the first quarter's end.

The Chiefs never got closer than 15 points the rest of the way.

Northview mounted a small rally against the Gator backups in the second quarter, but the Chiefs never came close to cutting the Baker lead to under 10 points.

Anderson added five points in the second quarter, Chestnut scored four points and Lily Phillips two points as Baker led 31-13 at the half.

Haley Wagner hit a pair of 3-pointers for the Gators in the third period, keeping the momentum in Baker's favor.

Anderson finished off her big night with a basket in the third quarter and a pair of free throws in the fourth quarter.

Fittingly, the free throws were the game's final points as Anderson helped finish the route she started.

The Bulldogs shot just 10 for 28, a figure that Crestview coach Kathy Combest said was unacceptable.

"We didn't make our free throws," she said. "We made 12 of 28, and you can't do that in high school basketball. You have to at least shoot over 50 percent."

While free throws dictated the night, it was 3-pointers that told the story early on. The Vikings hit three in the opening quarter, O'Neal poured in eight points and their defense forced 10 Crestview turnovers en route to a 15-8 lead.

Megan O'Neal and McNabb added a pair of treys to open the second quarter and then the Vikings expanded the lead at the free throw line.

In fact, the Vikings didn't even knock down their first two-point shot until 12 minutes into the game, but that meant little with them making 18 trips to the line in the quarter to build a 43-22 halftime lead.

Combest, though, didn't think the abundance of trips was warranted.

"Did you see us fouling any more than they were fouling?" she said. "I don't think so."

Out of the locker room, Fort Walton came out on fire.

A 9-for-14 shooting effort, mixed with holding Crestview to just five points on a 2-for-12 effort, gave the Vikings a 65-27 lead heading into the fourth.

Crestview head girls basketball coach Kathy Combest motivates her team.

"At halftime, we talked about coming out in the third quarter and not settling and taking care of business," McDaniel said. "I told them that they couldn't relax, the game's not over and we can't give them any confidence."

From there, it was all she wrote, as the running clock started and Fort Walton cruised to the commanding win.

playing ball professionally either in the NBA (National Basketball Association) or overseas. I've been trying to get that going and keep getting better each and every day and trying to support my family."

Playing abroad

Reese sees his year in Spain as being a positive experience, even though he didn't see as much playing time as he would have liked.

"The team in Spain was a veteran club that had been playing together a while and I was one of the younger players," he said. "I had to earn their respect first and I just never got the right shot to do it. But Spain, overall, is a really good basketball country.

"It is probably the best basketball country in Europe, by far. They just do things good professionally, and the style of basketball is just really good. Coming from Texas Tech to Spain, I could see similarities. It was really good basketball, talent-wise."

The most difficult thing about his rookie season in Spain was the adjustment of being so far from home for the first time and learning how to play European-style basketball, Reese said.

"They call the travel more so you have to get used to that," Reese said. "But other than that, it's just getting comfortable in the situation that you are in. That's the hardest thing: being away from home and getting used to the new situation and being comfortable in the country you are in.

"You miss your family and the language barrier can be tough. On the court, basketball is basketball. Since I was a young kid, I've played basketball and I do not think that's changed."

The European game is a little more physical than the one played in the United States, Reese said.

"In Spain, it was real physical," he said. "Spain was more physical than the Czech Republic, that's for sure.

"They let you bang in the post and hand check a lot, but you've just got to get used to it. Playing and practicing, you get used to it pretty quick."

Although Reese and his bride, Brooke, honeymooned in Jamaica, he said they are enjoying the opportunity to have an extended honeymoon of sorts in the Czech Republic.

"I've got my wife with me and she's enjoying it. We actually live pretty close to Prague, and it's one of most beautiful places in Europe with all the old castles and bridges," he said.

"It's a different experience for both of us with the different culture and everything. And we are just trying to have fun and experience everything right now."

Language barrier

The transition to the Czech Republic hasn't been bad, as far as having to learn the language, Reese said.

He's near the German border and the German and Czech people in the region speak English as a common language. His coach also speaks English, as do his teammates.

He has still tried to learn the basics so he can ask for directions or thank someone. And while Reese took four years of Spanish in school, he's not ready to tackle Czech, which is considered one of the hardest European languages to learn.

Reese is embracing the Czech culture, too.

"It's totally different from Florida and Texas," he said. "Being here is real cool because everybody's so down to earth. Everything is so much slower in the Czech Republic.

"Everybody just kind of goes slow and there's not much really going on. I'm just trying to enjoy it. Playing ball in Europe has been my dream so I try to take the good with the bad and just know that I'm doing what I want to do for a living in playing basketball.

"And it's just a blessing."

Council OKs water system for NW Crestview

By BRIAN HUGHES
682-6524 | @cnbBrian
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

CRESTVIEW — With local officials projecting northwest Crestview will be the city's next area of growth, the City Council took steps toward preparing for the quadrant's expansion by approving a new water system.

Meeting Monday evening in its first business meeting of the year, the council received a report from Michael Bomar, vice president of Tetra Tech municipal water system consultants. The city had directed the company to develop a master plan for Crestview's water system. Improving service to the growing northwest quadrant enclosed by Old Bethel Road was one of Tetra Tech's recommendations.

Bomar presented bids for the system's two components, which he said came close to or below Tetra Tech engineers' estimated cost.

BRIAN HUGHES | News Bulletin

New subdivisions, such as Silver Oaks, have opened in recent years along Old Bethel Road. Northwest Crestview is projected to experience the next growth wave.

Speegle Construction submitted the low bid, $2 million, for Part I, encompassing drilling the city's new Well No. 9 and building a water tank for it.

However, Tetra Tech was able to strip from the bid "value engineering items … that we do not feel will decrease the level of service for this project," Bomar stated in a letter to the city.

Removing items including a generator and its soundproofing enclosure, and providing a shingle roof instead of a metal roof on the well house, reduced the bid by $91,840.

Evans Contractors Inc., submitted the winning bid of $428,830 for Part II, the construction of a network of water mains. The council unanimously accepted both bids.

Council President Ben Iannucci III asked Bomar if the cost would've been less if only one contractor did the work.

"The reason we broke it out is to save the city money," Bomar said, explaining contractors generally have a specialty, such as drilling, and would in turn substitute the project's other components, charging the city for the project management and the actual work.

The work would likely start within 30 days of signing the contracts with Speegle and Evans, Bomar said.

In other matters, the city:

• Unanimously approved a social media policy for city employees that will govern use of such Internet sites as Twitter and Facebook.

• Unanimously approved a request by Catherine Dortch of the Concerned Citizens Group for city support of its annual parade honoring the Rev. Martin Luther King. City attorney Jerry Miller recommended the group be added as an additional insured entity on the city's liability insurance.

• Unanimously approved Mayor David Cadle's recommendation to appoint Warrant Officer Joann Durm to the Crestview Public Housing Authority board, replacing long-time member Sgt. George Stakely, who recently resigned.

• Unanimously approved a revised returned-check policy requested by City Clerk Betsy Roy. The new policy will protect utilities customers who passed a bad check from having their service turned off on a weekend or holiday when they can't make a proper payment because city offices would be closed.

Church holds discussion with area leaders

By MATTHEW BROWN

MATTHEW BROWN | News Bulletin

Panel members discuss national and local issues Sunday night at New Life Missionary Baptist Church. The discussion was one activity to celebrate Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

CRESTVIEW — Instead of having a regular Sunday evening service, New Life Missionary Baptist Church had a panel discussion on current events.

The discussion, sponsored by the Carver-Hill Memorial and Historical Society, involved input from community members of different political backgrounds including members of Republican, Democratic and Tea Party organizations.

County Commissioner Wayne Harris represented the Okaloosa County Commission and the Crestview Area Chamber of Commerce.

Also on the panel was Sabu Williams, representing the National Association of the Advancement of Colored People, or NAACP, and the Rev. Charles Flowers, representing the local clergy.

The discussion became heated when gun control was raised in a question regarding the Dec. 14 tragedy at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn.

Williams and Democratic Party member John Whitley favored banning the sale of assault rifles that can fire multiple rounds before reloading.

"When (the Founding Fathers) wrote the Second Amendment, they only had muskets," Whitely said.

Williams agreed with banning assault weapons, but said Americans should be able to defend themselves.

"I believe every household should have a gun," Williams said.

Harris weighed in on the impact of additional gun laws.

"There are over 25,000 gun laws in this country; one more won't make a difference," he said.

Instead, the country should focus on improving mental health treatment, he said adding that God should be brought back to public schools, a statement that drew applause.

Among other topics discussed involved Crestview's economic infrastructure and political differences within the parties.

Organizers allowed questions from the audience, one of which pertained to whether Crestview traffic can be alleviated on State Road 85.

The county lacks the funds to add or improve roadways, Harris said, adding that neither he nor the other commissioners have a say on S.R. 85.

"Highway 85 is a state road; we can't touch it," he said.

The Rev. Jerry Jones, associate pastor at Mercy Seat Ministries in Fort Walton Beach, was the discussion's facilitator.

"Things got a little heated at the end, but that's the thing about living in this country where there are different points of view," he said.

The Rev. Sanford Hayes was pleased with the event.

"It was a good turnout," he said. "The (panel members) answered the questions in an intelligent manner."

Hayes said he thought the audience gained insight on the issues discussed.

The panel was part of Carver-Hill's recognition of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

Hayes previously said this panel discussion is part of King's dream of becoming one nation, not divided.

Shalimar residents Gary and Nancy Stelling attended to support Whitley and the Democratic Party.

"It was good to get everybody together and talk about it," Nancy Stelling said. "It seems to me it was at least a good starting point."

Arden Farley, an Okaloosa County resident, agreed.

"I thought it was good," Farley said. "I thought they all made excellent points."

"I plan on coming to the next one," Farley said.

City ranks in top 100 for growth

Boost brings challenges for community

By BRIAN HUGHES
682-6524 | @cnbBrian
brianh@crestviewbulletin.com

CRESTVIEW — An influx of neighbors arriving with military reassignments from North Carolina, Texas and Alaska has boosted the local population and propelled the city into the University of Florida's top 100 growing cities in the state.

Though Crestview barely made it to the top 100 in 2010, when it ranked 100th, UF's newly issued December report covering 2012 found the city had nudged its way up to 97th place. The city was ranked 109th in 2000.

The university's Bureau of Economic and Business Research, using U.S. government census reports, determined that Crestview has 22,742 residents — up from 2010's 20,978 and a 42 percent leap from 2000's 14,766 residents.

Mayor David Cadle primarily attributed the recent growth spurt to the 7th Special Forces Group (Airborne) cantonment south of Crestview, which brought nearly 6,000 soldiers, support staff and their families to the area.

As the city diversifies its businesses, particularly at Bob Sikes Airport and through the city's Enterprise Zone, more growth can be expected, Cadle said. This will translate into more and better job opportunities for residents, and an increased tax base for the community, he said.

"I'm very excited about the continued growth of Crestview and I think we're going to see more of that to come as we expand our industrial base," Cadle said.

The city's growth far outpaced that of neighboring communities on the UF list. The nearest was Pensacola, which at 51 on the list saw a 7.7 percent population decline since 2000 and a .2 percent growth since 2010 to 52,022 residents.

Panama City, the next closest neighbor on the list, ranked 73rd, with a 2.5 percent population decline since 2000 and .8 percent increase between 2010 and 2012 to 35,800 people.

No other Okaloosa, Santa Rosa or Walton County communities made the top 100 list.

However, with the city's growth come growing pains.

Most noticeably, the homebound evening commute from the county's south end has increased in recent years. New growth clogs feeder roads including P.J. Adams Parkway and John King Road.

The city addressed infrastructure expansion in expectation of the Base Realignment and Closure-mandated arrival of the 7th Special Forces, including expanding water and sewer systems.

However, traffic problems remain an issue because the county or state controls the roads that most sorely need widening, officials say.

"The city's growth creates opportunities but it also creates challenges, and I think we have to be careful not to pursue growth simply for growth's sake," County Commissioner Nathan Boyles, who represents the north county, said. "We want to make sure we are growing in a way that allows us to develop economically but also allows us to preserve our unique quality of life.

"One important component of that is infrastructure. If we grow so fast that we can't maintain the necessary levels of service with our infrastructure, we won't be a very good place to live and we won't stay on that (UF) list very long."

Boyles cited ongoing engineering planning projects — like P.J. Adams Parkway's widening and creation of a P.J. Adams/Antioch Road bypass around Crestview's southwest quadrant — as examples of county officials' increased focus on the Crestview area.

"I think the job of equitably distributing the limited resources of the county is a challenging one," Boyles said. "I think having two commissioners from the north end of the county for the first time will help assure our area will get its fair share of those resources."

By the numbers

Crestview ranked 97th among nearest cities on the University of Florida Bureau of Economic and Business Research's list of top 100 state community population rankings.

Rank	City	Population 2000	Population 2010	Population 2012	% change
51	Pensacola	56,255	51,923	52,022	-7.7
73	Panama City	36,417	35,505	35,800	-2.5
97	Crestview	14,766	20,978	22,742	42.1
