City council approves tentative millage rate, budget for 2019

By Kaylin Parker

682-6524 | kparker@crestview-bulletin.com | @kparkercnb

CRESTVIEW — The Crestview city council unanimously voted to approve the tentative millage rate and budget for the fiscal year, which is from Oct. 1, 2018 to Sep. 30, 2019.

The millage rate is expected to continue at the current rate of 6.9 mills, equivalent to $6.90 for every $1,000 of assessed property value. According to the resolution approved by the council, this rate is more than the rolled-back rate by over 5 percent.

Millage rates are used to calculate local property taxes, and Crestview's rate will allow the city to collect around $7 million in property taxes.

Crestview currently has the highest millage rate in Okaloosa County.

The city council also unanimously approved the tentative budget but it can make changes before the next regular council meeting, which is less than a week away.

However, according to the resolution, the "the city council during fiscal year 2019 may, by resolution, make any amendments to the budget adopted by this resolution, as it may deem necessary and proper."

Although the goal of the meeting on Thursday was to hold a public hearing, no one from the public came before the council.

The final hearing for the millage rate and budget is expected to be held on Sep. 24 at City Hall.

Pet owner offers $600 reward for missing cat

By Kaylin Parker

kparker@crestviewbulletin.com

CRESTVIEW — Two Okaloosa County residents await the day they are reunited with their cat. They're offering a $600 reward to anyone that can help them find their missing pet.

For over two years, Mark Chaffins and his girlfriend, Kim Stanley, have searched for their cat, Binx.

Chaffins and Stanley found Binx's mother a few years ago at an abandoned home in Baker. Soon after they found her, they realized she was pregnant, and they decided to take care of the kittens, including Binx.

In May 2016, Binx went outside for his nightly stroll around the yard. Chaffins whistled as he normally does, but the cat never returned.

Since then, Chaffins has had multiple ads on Craigslist offering a $600 reward to anyone that finds his cat.

Chaffins said Binx has unique qualities that eliminate any possibilities of someone trying to get the reward. He said someone once called saying they had spotted Binx near a McDonalds, but after viewing the picture, he knew it wasn't Binx.

Binx is black and white with long legs and two black dots on each side of his nose.

Chaffins said he got a call in 2016 about Binx being in someone's yard, but they never saw the cat again.

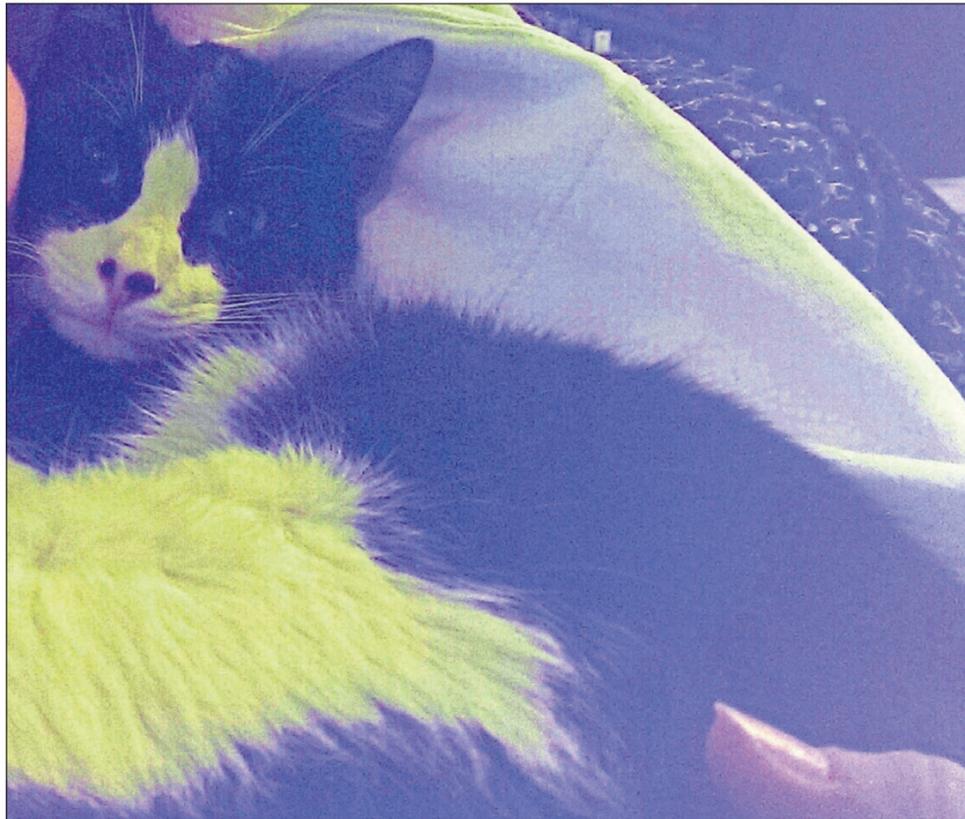

Chaffins isn't quite sure of Binx's whereabouts, though he does have a few suspicions.

"He's a really super friendly cat...hopefully somebody just took it. Hopefully nobody killed it," Chaffins said.

Although they haven't received many calls about Binx, Chaffins said he will continue updating the Craigslist ad and posting on Facebook. He remains hopeful that someday someone will find him.

"I might keep it going until I feel...like six or seven years," Chaffins said.

Until then, Chaffins enjoys the company of his two other cats.

Crestview's Claudis Dale honored as Citizen of the Year

By Kaylin Parker

682-6524 | kparker@crestview-bulletin.com | @kparkercnb

CRESTVIEW — Long-time Crestview resident and valued member of the community Claudis Dale received the Mae Reatha Coleman Citizen of the Year award, which is given to dedicated residents of Crestview.

City Hall was standing room only filled with Dale's family, church family and close friends.

Mayor David Cadle began the presentation of the award by reading Dale's bio.

Dale was born in Alabama along with her eight siblings and began working at the age of 15 to help her parents financially.

Dale moved to Crestview at the age of 24 where she and her late husband raised four sons and one daughter.

At the age of 26, Dale became a member of Macedonia Baptist Church, and has been faithful to ever since. She has also taken on many roles in the church.

"She is truly a Godly woman who loves to lift up the name of Jesus in prayers and songs," Cadle read from her bio.

Along with her church activity, Cadle listed the many organizations Dale is involved with including the Okaloosa County Minority HIV/Aids Task Force, the Carver Hill Memorial and Historic Society, Velma K Conyers Chapter 7 Order of the Eastern Star, and many more.

Dale also has visited the sick and homeless, usually with food.

"You need to get busier," Cadle joked.

Many in attendance stood with Dale and spoke about her love for helping the community.

"A lot of people don't know how to love, but truly, she knows how to love everybody," a fellow church member said.

Along with the friends that spoke highly of Dale's willingness to serve others, her children and granddaughter stood to testify of Dale's hard work and sacrifices.

"I didn't realize how hard she worked on the regular thinking back to when I was a kid reaping all of the benefits and not realizing actually how hard she worked," Grea Dale, one of Dale's four sons, said. "I remember those times. I remember those jobs. I'm a young man, and I didn't want to do those jobs."

After being presented the award, Dale took time to say a few words, and thank those in the crowd that supplied her with a job that she loves.

"I love everybody, black, green, purple ... I ain't got no such thing as colors...I'm with everybody. Let's do things together and love one another," Dale said with a roaring applause from the crowd.

CRESTVIEW — Remodeling a kitchen is no small decision, so John Cassidy, sales manager with BT Kitchen and Bath will be with you every step of the way. Stop by the showroom at 4110 South Ferdon Blvd. Meet John and see how BT Kitchen and Bath can transform your home.

John, his father Paul Cassidy, and Joel Hughes are the leaders behind BT Kitchen and Bath. The showroom has been in existence for eight years but Paul and Joel have decades more experience in the industry.

John's approach to the kitchen and bath remodel is two-fold: simplification and customization with the customer in mind.

In the showroom, you'll see a few hand-picked kitchen designs and a selection of Wellborn cabinet doors.

"We keep it really simple here," John said. "I don't like a bunch of competing brands. I take what I feel is the best bang for the buck and put them on the floor."

From start to finish, BT Kitchen and Bath is about building trust.

Step one is the meet-and-greet. John meets with customers first at the showroom to see what you're looking for and discuss materials.

John will help you stay within your budget and find out what's most and least important to you.

"If they start to pick things out that are pricy I can advise them on that," he said.

Step two, John will come take measurements at your home. He's the sales manager but he likes to put his own tape measurer on projects.

"I want to be face to face with each one of my customers," he said. "It removes some of the miscommunications that can happen in remodeling."

Step three, you'll meet with John at the showroom to see the layout or multiple layouts he's created and the quote. Whether you want a detailed estimate, a simple design or a good/better/best set of options, John can work with you.

"I really try to base my whole process around the needs of the customer," John said.

Step four is the paperwork. BT Kitchen and Bath offers zero percent financing up to 60 months. John can offer other payment options as well.

Step four is the install. On average the process takes six weeks. Know ahead of time

Mark Broadhead

Will you allow yourself to learn from someone who has a different point of view on politics, race, culture, or...? Your mind may not be changed, but because of your conversation, you will learn the other person is a human being, a child of God, who simply thinks differently.

Last Sunday, while on vacation, I attended worship with a different congregation. The pastor spoke very eloquently about a very fitting topic: being judgmental toward others. I felt the preacher was right on track and got me thinking.

I say the message was "fitting" because if you listen to news outlets, read comments on social media, listen to conversations around you, you will hear a great deal of judgmental pronouncements, pronouncements that are causing grave divisions in our society.

There are judgmental statements around the topics of race, sexuality, politics, culture, religious preferences, wealth or lack thereof...

Where does such judgmentalism come from?

For the most part, it comes from an innate fear of anything or anyone that is different than "I".

When someone or something different is encountered, it calls into question and challenges one's own sense of security, whether physically, emotionally, spiritually, politically, socially.

This innate fear says that anything different must be "destroyed" so "I" feel safe or secure.

The kind of destruction utilized most often comes out in judgmental statements in order to malign another's character in order to win like-minded people to "my" side so "I" feel safe.

Most don't like to be challenged or entertain the notion that someone else may have a better idea or way of doing things, because they do not want to acknowledge they just might be wrong.

What does our Lord say about this?

"Do not judge others, and you will not be judged. And why worry about a speck in your friend's eye when you have a log in your own?" None of us is perfect.

Each of us is different than everyone else to one degree or another. We all have our flaws.

So why not break the judgmental cycle? If you find yourself in the throes of being judgmental about others, why not stop to look at yourself first. Are you perfect?

Are you always correct? Umm... nope!

Will you allow yourself to learn from someone who has a different point of view on politics, race, culture, or...? Your mind may not be changed, but because of your conversation, you will learn the other person is a human being, a child of God, who simply thinks differently.

It is important to remember that every person with whom you come in contact is a child of God - just as you are.

The Rev. Mark Broadhead is pastor at Laurel Hill Presbyterian Church and First Presbyterian Church of Crestview.

GUEST COLUMN

By any name, it's still privilege

Charita M. Goshay

During a recent newsroom discussion here at the Canton (Ohio) Repository about the Urban Meyer fiasco, our local news editor, Dave Sereno, remarked, "I don't wanna know what you guys are doing."

It made everyone laugh because we understood what he meant.

Meyer, Ohio State's head football coach, is in a mess of his own making because he has known for years former assistant coach Zach Smith was more trouble than he was worth, and yet kept him on.

Smith, whose estranged wife accused him of domestic violence incidents, is one for the books. Anyone else would have been drop-kicked years ago, but Meyer admits he had a blind spot for Smith because he is the grandson of Meyer's mentor, the late Earle Bruce.

In other words, had Smith's grandfather not been named Earle Brice, he'd be an equipment manager at some middle school and driving an Uber to make ends meet.

While coaching under Meyer at the University of Florida in 2009, Smith was arrested for drunken driving but didn't tell Meyer. Now comes word that in 2014 he took some high school coaches to strip clubs in Florida because, what could happen?

It would be a violation of NCAA rules for Ohio State if it's found Smith paid the coaches' tabs.

Though Smith never has been criminally charged for domestic violence, Meyer was suspended for the first three games of the season for mishandling the accusations.

What is the limit?

In July, Meyer mumbled his way out of a reporter's questions pertaining to a 2015 domestic violence allegation connected to Smith, and the independent investigative panel found he deleted texts pertaining to the issue from his work phone.

Instead of using his platform to make a clear and bold statement Ohio State will not tolerate abusers, Meyer at first offered a limp apology, clearly written by some committee. His second apology was resolutely better.

Of course, for people who hate Ohio State, a three-game suspension isn't nearly enough.

But what is the limit of a boss's responsibility for an employee?

As an assistant coach, Smith made a six-figure salary, which he's now squandered because he wasn't mature enough to handle his good fortune.

If you've ever wondered what privilege looks like up close, this is it.

But truth be told, we all enjoy privilege in some form. The question is, what are we doing with it?

Even with its numerous inequities and injustices — and there are many — the fact you live in America puts you ahead of the game in more ways than you can possibly understand.

People literally are killing themselves to get here, because they know how good we have it compared to so much of the world.

President Trump – if hell freezes over

Dr. Glenn Mollette

President Donald Trump came through Evansville, Indiana like a roaring locomotive last week — August 30, to be exact. If he had landed on the platform wearing a Superman outfit and cape I would not have been surprised. To the approximate 15,000 cheering fans he might as well have been Superman, aka, Super President.

I didn't even know The President was coming to Indiana until the day before and figured I would not get inside the gate. I was reading on the Internet that I had to have a ticket and thus filled out the form to receive the electronic text I was supposed to receive. I filled it out a couple of times and even made a donation. I eventually realized that filling out the form was all about getting my information and a donation.

The doors to the seven o'clock speech were promised to open at 4:00 at the Ford Arena in downtown Evansville. My wife and I got there about 4:30 and found a parking space several blocks away and began the hike to the arena. The line at 4:30 was massive - literally thousands were lined up for what seemed to be a mile or more. We couldn't even find the end of the line it was so long. We knew at this point that even entering the arena was already impossible.

We found a hotel lobby and got out of the summer heat. Fortunately the local television was glued to the events and so we watched Trump get off Air Force One from our hotel lobby and began his high security limo ride to the Ford Center. A few minutes later we walked out of the hotel lobby and lo and behold motorcycled policemen were everywhere escorting the black limo into a tent adjacent to the Ford center. There was our President but not in plain view as they pulled into the heavily guarded tent that would provide a passageway to the Old National Events Plaza and the Ford Center.

My wife and I enjoyed the dynamics of the parade, secret service people everywhere and the hoopla around our President's arrival and figured this would be our evening. As we left the hotel we could see the end of the line in the distance and figured we would get in line and walk with the crowd back to our car. The line was moving and we stayed with it for an hour and luckily made it inside the arena. Behind us literally a couple of thousand more had gotten in line by the time we got to the arena door.

Once we were barely inside the arena there were zero seats to be found. The arena for a concert seats 11,000 people. We felt crammed in like sardines by the time we found a place to stand and it was obvious an extra thousand or so people above the seating limit were standing in the corners, aisles and everywhere else.

We found a standing place on the second level of the arena that was filled with secret service and state police. We were allowed to remain in our little standing place with our backs against a wall but we had great platform visibility.

President Trump came onto the platform approximately at 7:15 to cheers and thunderous applause. I saw one woman escorted out for acting out of order and heard one negative person against Trump as we stood in line. I am told a couple of hundred protesters were out by the courthouse but I did not see or hear them.

Parts of Trump's speech have been replayed numerous times on various cable networks so there is no need to rehash his remarks.

Here is what I can say from what I saw in Evansville.

The only way Trump will be defeated in 2020 will be for hell to freeze over. There is no person on the horizon that will swing the 12,000 people in the Ford arena last week to not vote for Trump. They are going to vote for him. This does not count the two or three thousand people who were standing outside the arena watching him on a screen.

While I was standing in line I did not hear one rude comment. I did not see any crazy behavior from the crowd.

Inside the arena people were respectful, attentive but obviously resolved in their support and cheers for Donald Trump.

Yes, there are all kinds of bad things that have been said and will be said about Trump. I cannot determine what is and what is not true. I know that a few of my acquaintances, friends, old-time buddies, and maybe even a family member or two hate his guts. However, I also know what I saw in Evansville and that is a very sincere, determined group of people who will line up on Election Day and reelect him as America's President in 2020... unless hell freezes over and then anything might happen.

Edible medical cannabis products coming to Florida

By Press Gazette contributor

MIAMI — Florida’s medical cannabis patients will soon be able to access edible cannabis products thanks to a partnership between Bhang and Trulieve.

“We’re proud to partner with the leading medical cannabis company in the state of Florida,” Bhang founder and CEO Scott Van Rixel said. “Trulieve is an outstanding cannabis company with extensive knowledge, resources, and passion in everything they do, and we believe that this partnership will be a great fit for Bhang in Florida.”

The agreement will bring Bhang’s line of edible cannabis-infused products to Trulieve, a Florida medical cannabis provider.

Once the products receive approval from the Florida

Department of Health’s Office of Medical Marijuana Use, Bhang will be available exclusively at Trulieve.

Presently, there can be no assurance as to the timing and scope of such regulatory approval, when and if it is obtained.

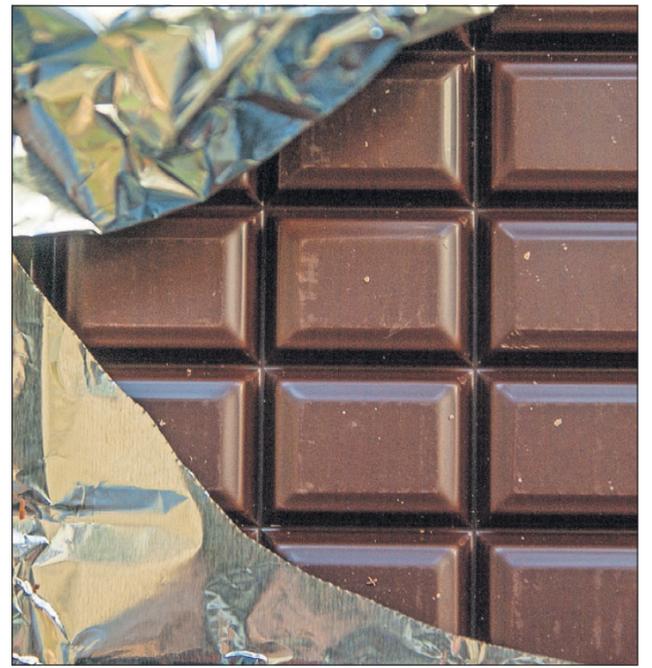

“We continue to look for partnerships that will benefit our patients and continue to provide relief in a safe, dependable manner. As an international, award-winning brand and customer favorite, Bhang’s flavorful, consistent, and reliable products will truly enhance what we can offer to our patients,” said Kim Rivers, CEO of Trulieve.

This agreement is part of Bhang’s continued worldwide expansion. The company’s popular products are currently available in California, New Mexico, and Michigan, with Illinois, Canada, and Germany in the process of coming online. Bhang expects to expand into Puerto Rico and more international hubs like Austria, Liechtenstein, and Switzerland through 2019.

According to a report from BDS Analytics and The Arcview Group, Florida’s medical cannabis market is expected to grow rapidly and exceed $1 billion by 2020. With a population of 21 million, 19 percent of whom are seniors, Florida is on track to have hundreds of thousands of medical marijuana patients.

The burgeoning system currently has more than 150,000 registered patients and 1,650 registered physicians, with those numbers expected to almost triple by 2020.

It can’t be argued some of us have more privilege than others. For some folks, there seems to be no limit on screw-ups, flubs, do-overs and restarts. They careen through life with impunity and dare the rest of us to say something about it.

People who don’t want to admit they enjoy privilege like to pretend they did it all themselves, but the notion of the self-made man is a myth better suited for poetry and western movies. Hard work can never be discounted, but none of us gets where we are without some help along the way.

That help, however small, is called privilege. Sometimes it means you were given a 10-yard head start by virtue of your race, or gender, or talent, or birthplace.

Sometimes, it just means you picked the right parents. Now, you can argue you aren’t privileged, but your time would be better spent in being grateful that you are.

When it comes to privilege, Zach Smith was born near the top of the food chain. When someone like him blows a golden opportunity, it leaves a bitter aftertaste.

13th Annual Northwest Florida Volunteer Firefighter Weekend to kick off

By News Bulletin contributor

NICEVILLE — The 13th annual event is already heading towards record attendance. There are over 300 seats reserved for the Sept. 14 event. Most participants are from Florida. However, this year, there will be students attending from Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia.

Classes are scheduled between four and 16 hours and cover a multitude of subjects. New this year low-angle terrain rescue, electrical safety, and firefighter water safety. A variety of classes such as, firefighter skills, incident rehab, vehicle operations, vehicle extrication and live fire evolutions will provide excellent opportunities for photo ops. Of course, there are several 40+ hour officer level classes also that will begin on Wednesday. Local instructors and those from all over the state of Florida will be sharing their expertise as instructors for the event. A complete list of classes can be found at www.nwflvolunteerweekend.com.

There is no cost to Florida volunteer firefighters. Approximately 20 vendors will be available to show participants the latest in firefighting practices and equipment. Their participation helps defray costs of the event. For the newest firefighter candidates, there are scholarships available from the Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) grants program. These scholarships include, necessary lodging and some of the gear these new firefighters need. In addition, support also comes from the Florida Fire and Emergency Services Foundation, the Florida State Fire Marshal, Florida State Fire College, and the Florida Forest Service.

Crestview's Georgia Small nabs AOTW

By Seth Stringer

sstringer@nwfdailynews.com

Crestview — Money, automatic, steady ... whatever way you want to describe it, the connection between Crestview's Small sisters is undeniable.

Randi delivers the set. Georgia delivers the kill.

Rinse, repeat. Easy peasy lemon squeezy.

"We have this telepathy where we know look at each other and we know who's gonna get the ball, or who should've gotten the ball," said Georgia, a junior and the Bulldogs' 5-foot-8 outside hitter.

It's a connection the 4-0 Bulldogs have ridden to a No. 1 state ranking in 7A and fourth overall in the Sunshine State. But the sisterly bond on the court wasn't always so chummy.

Nah, Randi had to acclimate her lil' sis to the game's speed.

"My first year when I was in sixth grade, she served my 15 straight balls and I shanked every one of them," Georgia laughed. "I cried so hard."

"She never took it easy on me."

Now Georgia is doling out the same punishment to opponents this year.

On the year, Georgia leads the Bulldogs with 42 kills and 42 digs and is second to only Randi, a senior, with nine aces.

Georgia had 15 kills, 16 digs and three aces last Tuesday in a comeback win over Pensacola which the Bulldogs trailed 2-0. A day later, she delivered 11 kills and 14 digs in a sweep of Gulf Breeze.

Fittingly, she's our Athlete of the Week. But it goes well beyond the stat sheet for the vocal leader.

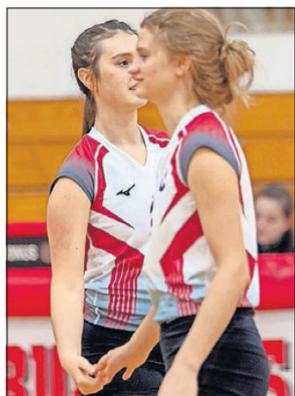

"I get really excitable sometimes," Georgia laughed. "Sometimes I get overwhelmed because of the emotions ... but I think my passion helps. I always try to be positive, upbeat for the team."

A team that Georgia things can make it all the way. After all, Choctaw graduated its top seniors. And Crestview is coming off back-to-back regional semifinals appearances.

"We've been working really hard practicing in the gym and working on our fundamentals," Georgia said. "I feel like we're the closest and most bonded team in all of Florida. We have that certain connection. We're really like sisters."

"We all want that championship."

Of course Georgia says that knowing nothing will be handed to the Bulldogs.

"We're not underestimating anyone," she said. "Fort Walton Beach has big girls, so does Choctaw. We play travel ball against them all the time, so these should be really good matchups. We're super hyped for those games and we're ready to show out and do our thing."

So what makes you such a great outside hitter?

I'm really explosive.

Is there anyone you model your game after, male or female?

Well, my dad played baseball and he actually won two national championships at Troy and went on to play for the Astros. In high school, he also won two state titles before he won two national titles. So I want to strive for that greatness.

What's the goal for college?

"I have a few in mind, but my dream school is one that not only has a good volleyball program but also great academics. I try to keep my grades up and I want to have a reputation beyond volleyball after college. The picture is a lot bigger than volleyball. I've lived in Crestview my whole life, so maybe a college a little farther away."

If you could have dinner with three people, living or dead, who'd it be?

For some reason I've always wanted to meet Blake Shelton. He reminds me of Chandler Holloway, who cracks me up all the time. Probably my grandpa George, too. I was named after him and I'd love to meet him. And then, um, coach Latigia (Willis). She's an amazing woman who's been a really huge part of my life. I don't know where I'd be without her.

What's your favorite meal?

Probably cookies. Fresh baked cookies. Just hot chocolate chip. Randi and I just made them last night. Sometimes you just gotta treat yo' self.

What are you currently watching or binging on Amazon, Hulu or Netflix?

Just watching film on Fort Walton (who the Bulldogs were supposed to play Tuesday before Gordon canceled the meeting).

What's on your playlist?

We have this pregame routine where we listen to a gameday motivation playlist. It has this song, "Bout that action."

Do you have any pregame superstitions?

I have to have my hair in a messy bun. And green gum, the Extra brand. No blue gum or red gum. Green gum.

Who's your best friend on the team?

Randi, definitely.

What's your favorite pastime away from the volleyball court?

There's not very much off-time. I like being in the gym, working out. I'm really, really undersized so I hit the weight room hard.

If you could live anywhere in the world, where would that be?

Probably California. It seems like a great atmosphere and how could you not meet people in California?

College football, week two predictions - Gators up, Cowboys down

By Bill Everett

The first week of college football gave us the peek we have all been waiting for with newly placed coaches, new key players, and some amazing gridiron action. Week one showed us who was ready for the turf and who was not.

Let's look into week two and a few ACC/SEC predictions.

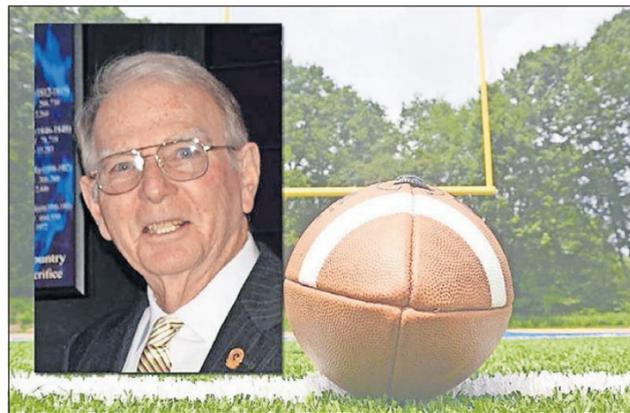

In the ACC

- Clemson Tigers vs. Texas A&M Aggies: In the ACC game of the week, with the Tigers running for the ACC Championship and the Aggies running for the SEC Championship, Tigers win out by 18.
- Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets vs. South Florida Bulls: This is going to be an enjoyable close game, but the Bulls is too much for the Bulls. Georgia Tech wins by 7.

- Penn State Nittany Lions vs. Pittsburgh Panthers: It's early in the season for this rivalry and there could be an upset in the making for the Panthers. But when the clock runs out, the big cats go home. It's Penn State by 7.
- Duke Blue Devils vs. Northwestern Wildcats: Can the Devils pitchfork hold off the Wildcats? Not here they can't, Wildcats by 6.
- Boston College Eagles vs. Holy Cross Crusaders: Wow! What a showing for the Eagles last week and the same this week, Boston College by 21-plus.
- In the SEC
- Arkansas Razorbacks vs. Colorado State Rams: With the Razorbacks looking for win two, do they get it? Sure, by 12.
- Kentucky Wildcats vs.

Florida Gators: The Wildcats looked good last week but it's time to feed the Gators as they win by 20 points.

- Georgia Bulldogs vs. South Carolina Gamecocks: In the SEC Game of the Week, if you're looking for an upset, this is not the game for it. Dawgs by 19.
- Mississippi State Bulldogs vs. Kansas State Wildcats: It's a dog and cat fight but the Bulldogs wag their tails all the way home by 14.
- Wyoming Cowboys vs. Missouri Tigers: Those Cowboys are out of their field and cannot lasso the Tigers. Missouri by 21 plus.
- Tie Breaker
- Texas Christian Horned Frogs vs. Southern Methodist Mustangs: It's raining Horned Frogs all over Gerald Ford Stadium, TCU by 17.

Team/Coach to Watch

- Air Force Falcons vs. Florida Atlantic Owls: Really folks, the pros have the Owls by 12. Not sure what games they were watching this past weekend, but it's the Falcons by 7.

See you next week!
