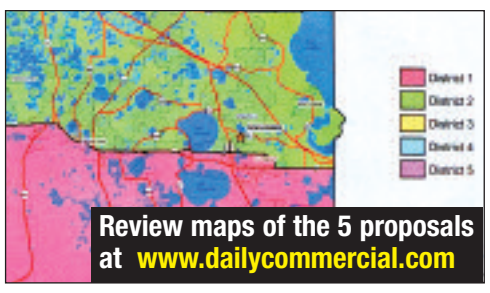
What's your thoughts on
REDISTRICTING?



Lake County leaders are changing the shape and size of commissioners' districts. That means your local representatives — the people who decide many of the rules you live by — may also change. There are five redistricting proposals being considered. And county leaders want your thoughts on which proposal is the best choice. We encourage our readers to go to www.dailycommercial.com and review the five options, and then contact your county commissioner and voice your opinions.

Maps show 5 options for new districts

Compiled from staff reports

Officials are seeking public comment on a series of five proposed Lake County Commission redistricting maps.

A public hearing on the new maps has been scheduled for Aug. 30.

The maps are currently on display at the Lake County Administration Building, located at 315 W. Main St., Tavares, and at area libraries.

To view the proposed district maps online, or to submit comments to the Lake County Board of County Commissioners, visit www.lakecountyfl.gov/redistricting.

You can also review the maps on the South Lake Press' website at www.southlakepress.com

Public feedback can be filed online by using the comment form at www.lakecountyfl.gov/redistricting. Comments must be filed by 5 p.m. Aug. 26.

For questions regarding the district maps, call the county commission's office at 352-343-9850.

- Two-thirds of seniors believe they will be victims.
- Many seniors alter their lifestyles because they fear being victimized.

To teach seniors how to protect themselves from crime, the Lake County Sheriff's Department has started a new program, Seniors and Law Enforcement Together.

Many seniors are Living in fear

MILLARD K. IVES | Staff Writer

The elderly in Clermont are getting help in fighting crime. Clermont police have launched a SALT (Seniors and Law Enforcement Together) program, with meeting mostly held in elderly communities.

Studies conducted by Consumer Law Center reveal that fraudulent telemarketers, for example, direct anywhere from 56 percent to nearly 80 percent of their calls at older customers.

Police spokesman Capt. Jon Johnson said education is the first and the biggest step in crime prevention. He added people who are made aware of fraudulent schemes and techniques used to defraud are less likely to become victims.

"By decreasing crime and the fear of crime, we hope to raise the livability standard for our seniors," Johnson said.

SALT, part of the department's COP (Community Oriented Policing) initiative, currently focuses on identity theft, banking, phone and Internet scams and frauds, which Johnson said tends to target seniors.

"I have talked to seniors who have been scammed, and they will come up to me after the meetings and say, 'If I only knew that.'" Johnson said.

Johnson said some of the prevalent frauds prevalent in Clermont recently are the "International Lottery," the "Hello It's Me" the "Mystery Shopper," and "Phony Bank Email."

During the meetings, brochures on scams against the elderly are handed out and discussions held on the subjects.

"Through this mutually beneficial program, seniors and law enforcement can learn about the newest ways of manipulation," Johnson said.

Clermont's first meeting was held at King's Ridge in July, and the next one will be scheduled sometime in September, with following meetings in mostly communities of ages 55 and over.

The King's Ridge meeting had about 25 participants, including 63-year-old resident Robert Frank. He called it an excellent and beneficial program.

He said the elderly sometimes tend to be a more vulnerable for scams because they can be more forgiving.

"I like to think I'm pretty savvy," said Frank, a former policeman. "But we all tend to let our guards down.

The Clermont program was sparked by an incident involving an 89-year-old driver. He was asked to pull over in Clermont on May 21 on U.S. Highway 50 by a group of motorists who convinced

Where sidewalk ends, bus stops begin

THERESA CAMPBELL | Staff Writer

The Lake County School Board has approved a temporary fix to a major transportation concern near the new Lake Minneola High School.

The school board has agreed to temporarily waive its policy requiring students living within two miles of a high school to find their own transportation. With sidewalks missing on portions of Turkey Farm Road, the board has heard from a number of concerned parents.

"Some parents thought that the path was unsafe," said Chris Patton, spokesman for the Lake County schools.

Beginning Monday, on the first day of school in Lake County, a pair of temporary bus stops will be operating in the area to get students to and from the new high school. One will be at a small park in the Skyridge Valley subdivision and the other will be near the Boys & Girls Club in the High Pointe subdivision.

Students in every other direction within the two-mile radius of the school can use sidewalks for the entire trip. The reason the sidewalks are missing on Turkey Farm Road

Lake County Cub Scouting fall recruitment begins

Special to the South Lake Press

Beginning Aug. 23, Lake District Scouting will begin its recruitment drive.

Through September, parents of boys ages 6 through 11, or grades 1 through 5, will have the opportunity to sign up for Cub Scouts at their respective schools and attend a Cub Scout pack.

Through Cub Scouts, boys will get the chance to pursue awards in a host of both academic and physical subjects, including astronomy, family heritage and soccer. Through scouting, elementary school-aged boys learn the value of hard work and discipline, while at the same time building self-confidence and self-esteem. They will also get the chance to go hiking, swimming and camping.

Since Cub Scouts is a family-based program, the entire family is encouraged to participate in any and all activities and meetings.

In October, recruitment attention shifts to the district's middle school aged boys (grades 6-8 and ages 11-14) so that they have the opportunity to join Boy Scouts. Boy Scouts is geared towards teaching boys leadership and character-building skills. In Boy Scouts, boys get the chance to pursue merit badges in subjects, including geo-caching, environmental science, robotics and citizenship.

At summer camp, activities include personal watercraft and ATVs as well as a host of other fun and exciting opportunities. On a monthly basis Boy Scouts get the opportunity to hike, canoe, kayak, camp and participate in scouting competitions.

In November, high school students, both male and female, will have the opportunity to join either an outdoor water/land program called venturing, or enroll in career-focused posts. Some of these career paths include, journalism, medicine, firefighting and law enforcement.

Scouting is a low-cost program that teaches youth how to become better citizens, hold themselves accountable for their actions and to give them a chance to learn leadership skills that will prove invaluable over their lifetimes.

For more information on how to join scouting at any level or for a recruitment date and time, contact Jason Setser, district executive, at 352-328-6979, or jason.setser@cflscouting.org.

him to let them remove spots from his vehicle.

Although the man later told police he wasn't aware of any spots.

According to an arrest affidavit, the group took the man afterward to a place to withdraw money for the work, and told him to let them use his Visa credit card to "save him the trouble of going to the bank."

But after going to various locations, the group told him the card wouldn't work.

At one point, the victim got back into his vehicle, and it wouldn't start. One of the assailants told the senior his car needed repairing, and he could fix it because he was a mechanic.

And he would give him the senior a $900 discount off the $2,400 repair price — if he paid in cash.

The senior gave them a $100 down payment and promised him the rest two days later.

But sometime in between, the victim became suspicious and called police. He also discovered more than $500 had been charged to his card.

Criminal justice awards given to members of CJD

Staff report

Six employees of the county's Criminal Justice Department were honored this week by Chapter 27 of the Florida Council on Crime Delinquency for making a difference.

"These are criminal justice professionals who have stood out above the rest and made a difference in the community," Council Chapter's President Elect Shikita Gerard said. "It's about how they made a difference through their profession."

The six honorees were recognized by their peers in six different categories at an awards luncheon at the Lake Correctional Institution's Training Building in Clermont.

is because the county hasn't been able to secure rights of way yet from private landowners.

"I think this is a good temporary fix as we continue to work with the county," School Board member Kyleen Fischer said. "This shall give parents some assurance that their kids will be safe."

Some 250 students live within two miles of the school and it's unclear how many will want to ride the buses, Patton said.

"The school board is going to evaluate it after a couple of weeks," he said. "They will be checking the ridership numbers."

At a recent workshop session, the school board directed staff to find transportation alternatives for students who would have to cross Old Highway 50 and walk along Turkey Farm Road.

"I recognize many students will use the bike trail to access Old Highway 50 and Turkey Farm Road and that's okay," Ardena Lewis, a parent whose daughter will be attending the new high school, told the Daily Commercial last week. "However, crossing Old Highway 50 onto Turkey Lake Road is not (okay)."

Get involved with your kid's education

BE ENGAGED: Learn more about your child's teachers, the school, the curriculum and other aspects of their education. It may be just the boost they need to excel.

When parents get engaged in their children's education, academics improve. Children's grades increase, and students realize the importance of study and acquiring a good education.

"When schools, families and community groups work together to support learning, children tend to do better in school, stay in school longer and like school more," a recent Southwest Educational Development Laboratory report stated.

A collection of research on the topic over the past 15 years, the report goes on to state that students with involved parents are more likely to earn higher grades and test scores, attend school regularly; have better social skills; graduate and go on to postsecondary education.

Heading back to school can be especially worrisome for first-time students.

Classes start in Lake County on Monday.

Many of the schools hosted "Meet the Teacher" events to smooth the transition back to the classroom, and to help prepare the students. If you have kids in school, make sure you take advantage of these meetings.

Studies show that schools that reach out to incoming students and their parents perform better academically.

A report from the National Assessment of Educational Progress states that nationally, 90 percent of fourth graders had parents participating in parent-teacher conferences. That percentage dropped to 57 percent at the eighth grade level.

A U.S. Department of Education report said parental involvement drops in the higher grades because parents feel children should do homework alone, especially on subject matter that might be unfamiliar to parents.

While parental involvement may get more challenging in the higher grades, research indicates that it's just as important on all levels, and it just might be key to your child's success.

If you're a parent, the best way to help your child is simply to get involved. Learn more about your child's teachers, the school, the curriculum and other aspects of their education.

It may be just the boost they need to excel.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our nation will survive because its citizens care

We can all agree that both parties have failed us in the past, rather than doing what is best for our country many were more concerned with the preservation of their position in Washington.

Were it not for Roger Ailes, Rush Limbaugh, Bill O'Reilly and Fox News bringing balanced information to the public rather than the slanted views of the other major networks that twist the facts or ignore them altogether, we would not have witnessed the creation of conservative groups such as the tea party and the Heritage Foundation, which are bringing pressure on the Republicans to get their act together.

Heretofore what the public was getting from the mainstream media were comments like the one from a well-known commentator that he "felt a tingle up his leg every time he heard our leader Obama speak." Really makes one wonder what kind of Kool-Aid they are drinking.

In spite of people like this, our Republic will survive and become once again the leader of the free world because our citizens by the millions have had enough. Let us all keep the faith for an election is not that far away.

Yes, the Republican Party can regain its conservative base but only if and when we, the people who hired them, demand it.

Sadly, due to corrupt voting practices in many of our states, along with the failure of government to control our illegal population, it has become necessary to prove who you are when approaching the ballot box. Truly not a loss of rights but rather protection for one of our cherished freedoms.

JAMES FEATHERSTON | Tavares

Don't tax corporations more, tax everyone less

I must address Alvin H. Greenberg's comment on increasing corporate taxes as a way to "help solve some of our national debt."

As is so prevalent today, Greenberg does not understand that corporations don't pay taxes, individuals pay taxes.

Corporations simply pass the taxes on to you and me in the form of higher prices. So if we were to raise taxes on the corporations, as Greenberg thinks we should, prices would not go down as he implies but would go up in order to cover the higher taxes imposed on the corporations.

A better solution would be to lower the tax rates on everyone (yes, even the corporations) to spur growth in the economy.

Every time taxes have been lowered, revenue collected by the IRS has increased. I don't think that's a fluke. How about you?

H.J. STEELE | Leesburg

George W. Bush is at root of this financial mess

We need to understand how we got into this financial mess.

Just 10 years ago, we had a huge debt of $5.7 trillion, but were on the road to recovery with two years of a budget surplus.

George W. Bush and his party passed the worst bill in the history of our nation, and cut the taxes on the rich that had created the surplus.

Even worse was the decision to give back to the people the surplus in the form of rebates. This was done when we had a $5.7 trillion debt hanging over our heads.

The rest is history as the debt increased from $5.7 trillion to $11.2 trillion in just eight years after the tax cuts were implemented.

The targets of cutting spending, Social Security and Medicare have some $4 trillion in IOU's that were used to finance tax cuts, wars, etc.

MARVIN JACOBSON | Clermont

'No blank checks'? Don't you believe a word of it

Don't pay attention to those slick adds about "no blank checks." Remember, they are being paid for by the same big-money interests that refuse to fairly share the load in the current debt ceiling crisis!

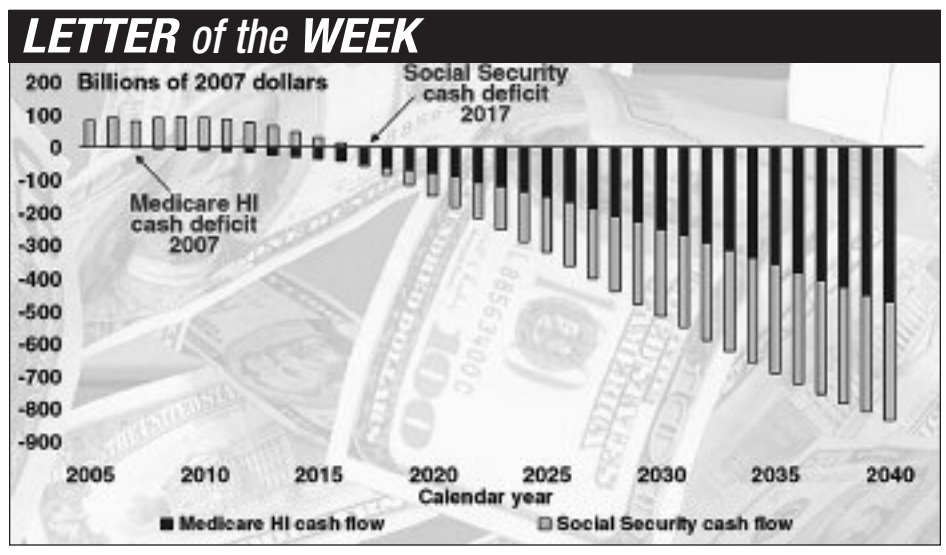
The Tea Party-fueled Republican Party in Florida and in Washington are asking the disabled, the poor, the teachers, the postmen, Social Security and Medicare recipients, and now even military retirees to pay to reduce the debt.

They refuse to ask people making $250,000 or $2 million, big oil, or big corporations to give up any tax breaks in spite of their record earnings.

Are you a good, law-abiding citizen who pays his taxes? Beware if you're not in the top 1 percent, you will be next!

BILL LORSON | Leesburg

LETTER of the WEEK



SOURCE: GAO analysis of data from the Office of the Chief Actuary, Social Security Administration and Office of the Actuary, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

Social Security is no Ponzi scheme

Daily Commercial columnist Russ Sloan seems to know a lot about Ponzi schemes but not much about Social Security.

Those payroll tax deductions are a "pay as you go" system, paying current recipients with the excess payments added to a form of annuity known as the Social Security Trust Fund. The trust fund is invested in government-backed securities, which totals approximately $2.6 trillion.

In 1999, alone the trust fund was paid $55.5 billion in interest by the federal government. These interest payments would also be in jeopardy if we do not raise the debt ceiling, and the U.S. Treasury will determine who gets paid first, not the president.

The trust fund trustees have reported (2011) that these funds will enable full payment of retirees until 2036. After that the "pay as you go "system will still pay 77 percent of benefits. A small adjustment such as raising the income cap gradually on payroll taxes would solve even that estimated shortfall.

The Social Security system has structure, logic and mode of operation having nothing in common with Ponzi schemes or pyramid schemes. Our system has been a continuous successful operation since 1935. Charles Ponzi's scheme (the original) lasted barely 200 days.

The Republican tea party needs to raise the debt limit so the current debts are paid, and our AAA credit rating is not lowered, affecting all levels of personal, state and federal credit.

We then need a balanced effort to cut expenses and increase revenue to trim the national debt.

And of the actors, McCoy simply commented, "highly talented."

"This is one of my favorite types of shows because it relies heavily on character work, instead of on large set pieces, special effects or complicated plots."

McCoy said the three actors — Chuck Truscott, Sonny Dyon and Nathan Jessee, are teachers — a drama teacher, football coach and student teacher, attempting to teach the books to a remedial English class.

Some of the books they cover are "Don Quixote," "The Odyssey," "War & Peace" and "Little Women."

Even the premise is fun.

"Everybody gets to go back to high school for just one night and be part of this wacky wonderful, 98-minute class," he said.

"All The Great Books Abridged" is McCoy's second directing stint. His first was The Moonlight Players' production of "The Odd Couple."

McCoy's assistant director is Jennifer Roman.

"All The Great Books Abridged's" opening night was Aug. 5 and the production runs through Aug. 28 at the Moonlight Theatre, 732 B W. Montrose St., in the heart of downtown Clermont, just north of State Road 50.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $12 for students. The show times are 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. on Sundays.

International Gold, Silver and Diamond Buyers paying on the spot for valuables this week in Leesburg

By Debi Lambert
STAFF WRITER

Leesburg-area residents are in for a rare treat when the International Gold, Silver and Diamond Buyers (IGSDB) host an event here from August 16th - 20th at the Best Western Plus. The company has identified this region as prime territory for purchasing valuable gemstones and precious metals—especially gold and silver. The IGSDB estimates that local residents have millions of dollars worth of valuables that they no longer need or want. That is where the IGSDB comes in—they specialize in buying those items from local sellers in the U.S., Canada and Europe.

Items like gold coins, scrap gold, sterling silver, tea sets and diamond rings are in high demand right now, and IGSDB is purchasing massive quantities of them on behalf of their global network of collectors, dealers and refineries.

Currently on an international tour, IGSDB has included Leesburg on its list of stops for this week. Residents are urged to mark their calendar for this special opportunity to meet one-on-one with gold, silver and diamond specialists.

Because of IGSDB's low overhead, extensive resources and massive volume, the company is often able to pay out more than other dealers and retailers. Many customers are surprised at how much they are offered for seemingly small amounts. "I had two bent herringbone necklaces, a class ring, and some outdated earrings that I brought to a show. I walked out with $425 in less than 15 minutes," said a satisfied guest.

Providing an economic boost to each region it visits, the IGSDB projects to pay out $350,000 at each event—a testament to the high volume of items they purchase and the prime prices being paid. Offers are made based on rarity, numismatic value, condition and market value.

Company spokesman Matthew Enright says, "We just paid $4,700 for a loose 1.25—carat diamond. Our mission is to pay local residents on the spot for loose gemstones, fine jewelry, coins and precious metals—especially silver and gold." The company has seen a huge influx of gold lately. "Customers have been scrambling to cash into the record-high value of gold," adds Enright. For those who are unsure if their items are genuine gold or silver, or simply costume, company will test it for free. "The best strategy is to bring all items to the show for a free evaluation from our specialists. It always amazes me how a small handful of gold and silver can turn into hundreds of dollars in just a few moments. We test, weigh and buy items right on the spot," Enright says.

At a recent show, a small—town dentist had a nice pay day. "I have been collecting dental gold for years from patients who didn't want their extracted teeth. It really added up—my check is for over $31,000!"

While most people don't have buckets of dental gold at their fingertips, they do have $750 worth of scrap gold scattered throughout their homes, according to industry Specialists.

In addition to scrap gold, fine jewelry and gemstones, coins are a big hit. Offers will be made on all coins dated 1970 and earlier—gold coins, silver, silver dollars, half dollars, quarters, nickels and dimes. Enright explains, "U.S. coins made before 1970 are worth more than their legal tender amount because they contain 90% silver. Rare dates and mint marks can make them even more valuable. We recently paid $78,000 for an amazing coin collection. One couple brought in a rusty coffee can filled with silver coins, sawdust, and a dead spider. The can had been in the basement for years. We were happy to send them home with a check for more than $700!"

Leesburg-area residents should start collecting their valuables now to bring to the free event, which runs Tuesday - Saturday. Deals will be made and money will be paid on the spot. Attendance is expected to be high, but no appointment is needed. Enright encourages everyone to take advantage of this special opportunity to meet directly with specialists from the International Gold, Silver and Diamond Buyers. He concludes, "It's a great chance for people to cash in their old diamonds, jewelry, coins and scrap gold. This is a seller's market, so don't miss out!"

Here's How It Works:

- Local residents should gather all items of potential value and bring them to the event. No appointment is necessary and attendance is free to the public.
- Guests will be greeted at a reception station where they will sign in and then be seated in a waiting area. The wait can be up to 45 minutes, depending on the number of guests and the volume of items brought to the show.
- IGSDB specialists will be posted at stations throughout the event room where they will meet one-on-one with each guest.
- Guests will be asked to place all of their items on the table for viewing and evaluation. Similar items should be grouped together and coins should be separated into denominations to help expedite the process.
- After careful evaluation, an offer to purchase will be made on the spot for items of value to IGSDB's global network of buyers. On average, offers are made on 80% of the items brought to a show.
- Guests have the option to decline the offer or to sell their items for an instant payout. Many guests leave with hundreds, even thousands, of dollars for their items. There is never any pressure to sell and there is no obligation if the guest chooses not to sell.
- The process typically takes 15–20 minutes—larger collections can take up to a few hours.
- The IGSDB handles all of the interactions, including shipping, with the collector, dealer or refinery who ultimately takes possession of the items.
- Guests receive 100% of the purchase price with no hidden deductions or fees.
- An 'express pass' is given to guests who would like to return to the show with additional items—they are also encouraged to bring friends and relatives. The 'express pass' rewards return guests by moving them immediately to the front of the line.

Sharing the Gift of Light

These lamps, received in Graham Monroe's honor, remain on at all times.

ROXANNE BROWN
roxannebrown@dailycommercial.com

Unfortunately, loss is something Heather Monroe knows about all too well.

She lost her father to cancer in November 2007, which affected her family greatly.

She and her mother helped one another get through the days, and found comfort in two gifts her mother received in his memory — lamps.

Each lamp came with a personalized card that included kind words of encouragement and a sentiment that suggested she be reminded of my father every time she lit the lamp.

Remarkably, the lamps provided comfort beyond words.

"My mom and dad were married for 37 years and his passing was very hard for her," Monroe said. "Lighting the lamps daily gave mom strength and encouragement that dad was in a much better place."

That's when Monroe decided she wanted to share that feeling with others, so she began researching different lamp distributors.

She also spent the next several months looking into the possibilities of opening her own business selling the lamps on her free time from her everyday job in sales and marketing.

Shortly thereafter, however, Monroe's mom became ill, and any business plans were placed on the back burner so Monroe could help care for her.

Feeling a little under the weather herself, Monroe soon found out she was pregnant with her third child — a boy.

Shortly thereafter, Monroe's dream of owning her own business was revived.

"It was definite then that I wanted to have the ability and flexibility to spend more time with my children, and share with others the joy and strength the lamps provided," Monroe said, about knowing in her heart that her own business would be able to provide her with what she needed.

Her plans soon turned bittersweet, however, when her mom died.

Meet Your NEIGHBOR

MO MYDLO

■ HOMETOWN: I grew up living in Clermont half of the year, and upstate New York half of the year. My dad was a builder, so we would spend the winters in Florida as there was not much construction happening in New York in the winter.

■ OCCUPATION: Outreach director for Real Life Christian Church/Real Help

■ FAMILY: I have been married almost 19 years to my amazing husband. Tommy Mydlo. We have four children — Jacob, 18, Travis, 15, Sara, 12 and Eli, 6.

What do you enjoy most about South Lake County?

I would have to say, everything! I am a true Florida girl. I love the weather, the people. Even the Citrus Tower gives me a feeling of peace, because my Grandma used to work there, and it still reminds me of her today.

If you had to summarize your philosophy of life in one sentence, what would it be?

It would probably be summarized by my favorite scriptures, Joshua 24:15: "But as for me and my household, we will serve The Lord."

Name a person or incident you've come across recently that's touched you in some way. Why did this person or incident impress you so much?

I would have to say my nephew and his new wife, Angel. They have only been Christians for a very short time, and they just found out that their

Reliving history through the pages of the South Lake Press

Ann Dupee
REMEMBER WHEN

A weekly column that reprints some of the more interesting news stories that have appeared over the years in the South Lake Press.

IT'S DÉJA VU ALL OVER AGAIN

An excerpt from a letter to the editor written by Norval Brown of Clermont:

"As one of your readers, I wanted to urge you in the strongest terms possible to increase your coverage of the fact that for every new dollar that Congress has raised this year in new taxes it has increased spending by 17.8 cents.

"To put it bluntly, last year Congress conned the American people and the news media, telling us we should go along with their 'deficit reduction package,' which included tax increases for every American because we had to get the deficit under control. But in the end they just wanted to take more of our income in taxes.

"In the name of deficit reduction, they enacted the second largest tax increase ever, and then turned right around and increased spending by $111 billion — pushing the deficit to a new record.

"1) Congress enacted the second largest tax increase in history.

"2) Congress increased spending by $111 billion.

"3) Congress enlarged the budget by $100 billion to an all-time record of $320 billion for fiscal year 1991 alone.

"4) Congress pushed the national debt to a new record and increased the annual interest payment on the debt to a staggering $254 billion.

"5) Congress destroyed the Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act and all other effective controls on future congressional wasteful spending."

NEARLY 1,400 MAKE TREK TO BASEBALL CITY

Clermont Night at Baseball City is a joint gift of Baseball City (Kim Rester Sams of Clermont, public relations liaison for the baseball stadium), and the South Lake Press. Tickets were free, and 1,398 persons saw the Baseball City Royals beat the Winter Haven Red Sox 4-1.

Baseball City is the new spring training facility of the Kansas City Royals on U.S. 27, a short distance south of I-4.

It was fun to see so many young players in their team T-shirts, including the "Little Critters" from Groveland and the Clermont High School baseball players.

The door prizes were outstanding. Donors were displayed on the scoreboard as prizes were awarded. Prizes included a pastel painting from the South Lake Art League, golf umbrella, cholesterol screening for two and two insulated water bottles, South Lake Memorial Hospital; professional fishing jacket, Culprit Lures; fishing rod and reel, Clermont Bait and Tackle; tenderloin of beef, cut and wrapped plus two gift certificates, Hometown Foods.

Gift certificates came from Winn Dixie, Publix, Classic Look Beauty Salon, Flower Vendor Florist, Giachetti's Men's Wear, Green Valley Country Club, Clermont Bowling Lanes,

Watch for symptoms of Alzheimer's Disease

Cheryl Decker

THE DOC IS IN

Do you have an acute care medical question that might also interest others? Send your question to info@docsin.com.

Want to be famous? Name a really horrible disease without cure after yourself?

In 1906, Alois Alzheimer, a German neuropathologist, first described the most common form of dementia. Today it bears his name.

In 2006 it was estimated that 26 million people worldwide suffered from Alzheimer's Disease (AD).

Do you have a loved one with this diagnosis? Are you concerned by symptoms you see in others, or even yourself?

In the early stages of AD the most prominent problem is the inability to acquire new memories resulting in difficulty recalling recently observed events. The earliest stage of AD, labeled by the medical profession as mild cognitive impairment, will have symptoms of forgetting recent conversations, getting lost in familiar surroundings, and frequently misplacing things.

As AD progresses, patients have difficulty with normal daily activities. They will not be able to pay bills, prepare meals or even properly dress or bathe.

The last stage of AD is characterized by diminished communication with the world. The most severe Alzheimer patients will not recognize loved ones, or be able carry on a conversation.

The course of the disease and progress through the stages of AD are variable. Some patients decline rapidly in two to three years, but there is some good news. Only 10 percent with mild dementia will progress into the last severe stage of dementia.

AD results from plaques and tangles in the brain. The causes and progression of the disease are not well understood but extensive research is under way.

Presently, there are more than 500 clinical trials being conducted to identify treatments, and this research has resulted in some medications and therapies which help manage the symptoms of AD.

Until recently, we thought there was no cure, but in the last few years there are some promising "AD reversing" drugs in clinical trials.

The first step in making the diagnosis of AD is a visit to a primary physician for a full physical exam. If alternate diagnoses for symptoms do not emerge, then brain imaging should be considered to evaluate for AD.

Presently, there are several imaging methods, including PET, MRI or SPECT, and your physician will select the most appropriate.

An early diagnosis of AD is critical because during the stage of "mild cognitive impairment" the most can be done to slow the progression of symptoms.

It has been shown that early treatment with medications and psychosocial interventions can have a considerable effect on maintaining a patient's current level of memory and functioning.

We would all like to know if there are ways to prevent getting Alzheimer's disease. Stay tuned … the next article will discuss AD prevention.

LIGHTED MEMORIES

wrote. "Her passing was sudden and affected me greatly.

"I received two lamps in memory of her, however, and I light them daily, finding strength and comfort knowing that they are both together again."

Once again Monroe decided she wanted to share the comfort of the lamps with others, and began looking into what it would take to start her own business.

In her investigation, Monroe was pleasantly surprised because she found out that the lamp came in all types of styles, and could be given as gifts for all types of occasions, such as births, birthdays, anniversaries, Mother's Day or graduation.

People can even send lamps depicting their favorite sports team.

She was sold and in the fall of 2008, Lighted Memories was born.

In November of 2008, after the birth of her son, Graham Raymond, Monroe faced a decision about rejoining the workforce, or following her business dream.

"I knew in my heart how much my mother cherished her lamps, and how much I cherished mine, so the decision was easy," she said. "I continued with the finalizing of my lamp orders, preparing the website for my grand opening, and enjoyed every minute with my new son."

Just when everything was falling into place, however, Graham died of unknown causes. That was on May 10, 2009, and Monroe's grief was almost too hard for her to bear. Once again, she received two lamps in memory of Graham. The lights in those two lamps, Monroe said, are never turned off, and the memories of her parents and her youngest son remain in her heart.

After losing her son, Monroe continued receiving orders for the lamps, and somehow she found the strength to continue in her endeavor. Today, her business is flourishing. Though some days are still tough, Monroe knows that she wants to press on in order to offer the same comfort that was offered to her family by way of the memory lamps.

"I began creating Lighted Memories because of the power the light held for my mother," Monroe said. "I completed the creation because of the power it holds for me.

"I know that when you share the gift of light with someone special in your life no matter what the occasion, you will be able to see the everlasting comfort and joy it will bring," she said.

Monroe has continued her business and has an office in her home where she displays them and helps customers place their personalized orders, by appointment.

Monroe's web site also allows people from all over the country to order lamps and have them shipped to wherever and to whomever they feel they'd like to shine a little light on.

(NOTE: The property where Baseball City was located was developed and opened on Thursday, April 25, 1973, as Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus World. After it failed, developers kept the giant ferris wheel and other midway attractions and operated as Boardwalk and Baseball with a 7,000-seat stadium and five practice fields. That total facility has also been demolished.)

PUD REQUEST DENIAL LEADS TO LAWSUIT

E.O. Roper Trust, whose request for Planned Unit Development rezoning on 549.63 acres on YMCA Road, one mile west of State Road 454 bordering Orange County and called Glengarry Lakes, was rejected by Lake County Commissioners.

The trust has filed suit against the county in circuit court, seeking an injunction and relief damages exceeding $10,000. Roper Trust claimed the county was acting contrary to the proposed Comprehensive Plan in not granting the rezoning from the one unit per five acres agricultural to allow proposed resident development at 2.3 units per acres.

The new Comprehensive Plan before the state for review had designated the area as Urban Expansion with densities up to four units per acre.

Commissioners denied the request March 19.

The suit said the county denied because the developer did not have inter-local agreements from Orange County to provide transportation, 911 emergency fire and police services, since the property is more easily accessed through Orange County roads. The developer had gotten preliminary approvals from the Orange County administration and government staff, read the complaint.

Roper's attorneys claimed a taking of property without compensation since the owner was unable to utilize his property at the Urban Expansion designation and denial of constitutionally guaranteed due process and equal protection under the law.

The board approved a similar property to the south bordering Polk County (Ray's Ranch on S.R. 474) that had environmental concerns due to its location within the Green Swamp Area.

The county has 20 days to respond.

NEIGHBOR

one-year-old daughter, Kailee, has brain cancer. Their faith in God and their perseverance in this tough trial has been so inspiring to me. They have made a commitment to trust Him, no matter the circumstance. In many ways, their faith, has strengthened mine.

How does what you do contribute to the welfare of the area?

Being the outreach director at Real Life, I am blessed to help hurting, hungry and homeless individuals on a daily basis. Whether it is through our food pantry, our Resale shop (2econd Life Resale), or our Real Help ministry in which we do repairs and renovations for hurting people in the community, God has truly blessed me with the ability to put my faith into action by being "others minded." My greatest accomplishment so far in life is very difficult to pinpoint, because I have not accomplished anything on my own. God has put me on an amazing team of believers, and we lean on Him daily for our strength and wisdom. I guess I am most thankful for Him killing selfishness in my life, which has given me more peace than I could have imagined.

What's something you've always wanted to do but haven't yet?

Well, I guess most people would say is "skydive," or "see the seven wonders," or something very cultured like that. Because I know someday I will see Heaven, the things of this world don't impress me that much. But at the risk of sounding a little bit like a redneck, I am really a country girl at heart, and I would love to attend the Country Music Awards someday.

What advice would you give to people who want to help out in the community?

Just do it. There is something so healing in service work. Our daily problems just fade away when we are able to get our minds off of ourselves, and love on others. Find something you are passionate about, and get your hands a little dirty. Some of the happiest people on earth come home smelling not so lovely, but filled with a peace that passes all understanding.

Leesburg High School football player Jaleel Brown works on defensive stances with Leesburg Jr. Jackets Pop Warner players Christopher Williams, 9, and Bry'tavion Jackson, 9, on Saturday at Leesburg High School. Reaching out to the community and building a foundation for future Yellow Jackets were two focuses of the event, according to coach Randy Trivers, but it also taught his players what it is like to be on the other side of the whistle. D'Mauri Jones and Austin Thomas joked that they saw a lot of themselves in the rambunctious crowd, but it was a lot of fun, they said.

ERA TOM GRIZZARD

'The Springs' on Lake Harris

A few of the many features include the diagonally positioned porcelain tiles throughout, cherry cabinetry, a gas fireplace with remote (can be wood burning), tray ceilings and crown molding. This 3 bedroom, 2 1⁄2 bath home was custom built with a split bedroom and open floor plan. Rather than have a porch area that can only be used certain times of the year, the owners enclosed that 59 foot by 10 foot space with lots of double pane picture windows for year round pleasure. There is lots of room on the fishing pier stretching a long way out to the boat house and shaded deck. In addition to the attached 2 1⁄2 car garage, your "dream come true" RV garage and workshop is just a few steps away with plenty of room for a 30' RV. Other features are not so obvious, such as the electronic air filtering system. Enjoy the spring fed community pool, the waterfront park, and marina with friends and neighbors. Be sure to request a brochure and check out the visual tour. http://www.visualtour.com/shownp.asp?sk=13&t=2557612. $495,000 Call Linda Grizzard.

What sellers should expect from real estate agents, part 2

Now that you have determined a price, what should your agent be expected to do to actually sell the house? The list of activities and techniques from which to choose is a long one. There are open houses, media advertising, direct mail, internet listing and more. Not all techniques are appropriate for all homes.

You should trust your agent to select and schedule the tasks. You should expect a firm commitment, perhaps even a written one, detailing the effort. You may choose to make this a condition of the listing agreement, providing you with an option to terminate if it is not upheld. Some firms include a multi-tiered written marketing plan with listings of luxury homes. One of the easiest tasks to execute, and also one of the most important, is completion of the actual multiple listing. The degree of neglect and inaccuracy in some listings can be appalling.

You should consider requiring review and approval of the listing before it is activated. Make sure there are clear directions to the house, accurate tax and HOA information, identification of all levels of public schools, enticing and comprehensive remarks and the maximum appropriate number of in-focus pictures. Don't let your listing be one of those with comments like Carroll Jaskulski, Jr.

Carroll Jaskulski Jr is a Broker/Associate with HOME Real Estate Professionals in Mount Dora.

"breathtaking lake view," "impeccably decorated interior" or "expansive outdoor living area" backed up by one photo of the front of the house. The current MLS software allows for twelve pictures. All prospects can view them, with very little effort. Remember, "One picture is worth … "

You also have the right to expect pro-active communications. You should receive regular updates on prospect visits and, when available, their feedback. You should be kept abreast of market activity, like sales and newly listed competition, and general market conditions, like interest rate changes, or events that could impact demand. When you are presented with offers, you should expect insightful consultation beyond the obvious issues of price and closing date. This would include evaluation of all contingencies, the likelihood of them being met, and resourceful suggestions for counter offers if other deal points are beneficial to you.

Finally, a few miscellaneous but significant notes. Realtors are not attorneys. There is a distinguishable line between advising you on issues relating to value, and processing the contract to a successful closing, versus legal implications of contract language or actions of the principals. Don't expect your agent to cross that line, or accept it, if he or she does it voluntarily. A reliable agent will put a valuable body of experience and effort to work for you. Please repay that with your loyalty. I have made references to selecting the services of a full-time agent.

The term part-time establishes the fact that someone's primary focus is elsewhere. Before you engage a friend's sister who got a license so she could get away from the kids, or the brother-in-law who sells appliances but needs to earn vacation money, consider the value of your purchase or sale. If you had to defend yourself in a lawsuit in which you could lose that much, would you retain a part-time lawyer? Or, would you trust that, or any amount of your retirement nest egg, to a part-time financial planner?

Association hosts holiday food drive

The Realtors Association of Lake and Sumter Counties is sponsoring a Labor Day food drive seeking non-pershable food items and cash donations in an effort to assist local food banks with needed items for the local community. The week-long event is Aug. 22 to 26.

Donations go directly to the Lake Cares Food Pantry in North Lake County; New Beginnings in South Lake County, and the Wildwood Food Pantry in Sumter County.

Non-perishable items needed: canned pasta items; dry pasta, rice, canned fruits and vegetables; boxed macaroni and cheese, cereal and canned spaghetti sauce. These items can be dropped off at any one of four different locations: Coldwell Banker All Village Realty, 117 N. U.S. Highway 27/441 in Lady Lake. Pierce Realty, 605 N. Donnelly St., in Mount Dora. Coldwell Banker Tony Hubbard Realty, 1795 E. S.R. 50 in Clermont and Smith & Smith Realty, 206 N. Main St., in Wildwood.

Cash donations can only be made at the Realtors Association office, 30001 S.R. 19 in Tavares.

For information call the Realtors Association office at 352-343-3003.

'Fence painter' hangs cheerful paintings on garden

DEBBIE ARRINGTON
Sacramento Bee

Carolyn Groth found her niche as a "fence painter," but don't expect her to haul out the whitewash.

The accomplished Elk Grove, Calif., artist creates paintings to hang on fences — or anywhere else where they might be exposed to water and sun.

"People think I'm actually painting the fence — not something to hang on it," she said. "I did paint one of my fences, but paint peels off wood. That doesn't look very pretty."

With the trend of turning yards and patios into outdoor "rooms," art created specifically for the garden has grown in popularity, too.

"You're decorating, just like an indoor room," Groth said. "So you take art outside, too."

Jennifer Khal, owner of The Secret Garden in Elk Grove, has seen this trend escalate as people treat their yards like living space — a place to rest, relax and entertain, not just garden.

"Absolutely, people are treating outdoor space as rooms," Khal said. "You go about decorating that space just like your living room. Start with a big piece, such as a couch or armoire, then add all the elements that make you feel comfortable and at home." Among Khal's stock of garden art and sculpture are these best sellers: decorative wall art, wrought iron and colorful pieces of Talavera pottery.

SHNS

Carolyn Groth's colorful, weatherproof paintings fill a niche as homeowners dress up their outdoor spaces.

The Secret Garden also sells Groth's paintings, priced at $44 to $65.

"It's fabulous," Khal said. "I've had one on my fence for five years and it still looks bright and vibrant. I hung it on a fence under a big pine tree. It adds a spot of color where I couldn't grow anything."

Said Groth: "It's hard to sell art, especially in this economy, but fence art really sells."

Like any form of creative expression, art is in the eye of the beholder, and in garden art, the scope widens.

A salvaged brass bed can become a garden fence. A ceramic platter can become a birdbath. Rusted pieces of metal can become sculpture. An assemblage of rocks and broken crockery could pave a path.

Groth perfected her fence-art technique through trial and error. Instead of canvas, she uses hard backerboard, designed for shower-stall installation, covered with a coat of primer. Her paints all are weatherproof acrylics. The finished painting gets a coat of sealer to add to its longevity.

Groth usually paints floral themes such as bouquets of red poppies or big fluffy hydrangeas. She's also done fruit-filled still lifes and the occasional seascape or lighthouse, creating an instant "view" for an otherwise visual boundary.

"Flowers are pretty for the fence," she said. "They're really bright. I call them my happy paintings."

Bringing a smile to garden owners and visitors often is part of garden art's appeal. Hence, the continuing popularity of pink flamingos and cute gnomes.

"People buy them because they think they're endearing and they love them," Khal said. "Or they buy them as a gag. I know a guy who keeps moving his gnome around the garden, like it's peeking through the bushes. It drives his wife nuts. But it's just another way to have a little fun in the garden."

WE ARE NOT A PAWN SHOP!

New design website a valuable resource for anyone

MAUREEN GILMER
Scripps Howard News Service

When it comes to landscape design, photos of built projects are the best way to find great ideas that really work. All over America, landscape architects and designers are creating outstanding residential projects that are rarely seen.

Unlike front yards or well-designed public landscapes, such excellent work is generally sequestered in backyards from Maine to Montecito, Calif. So many great ideas remain unnoticed unless they are lucky enough to be featured in a magazine or book.

So naturally I got all excited to discover Landscapingnetwork-.com, a site created to help homeowners hook up with local landscape designers and contractors. But that's not why I like it so much.

What makes this site so sweet is that it collects photos of built projects by landscape architects, designers and design-build firms wanting to put their best work in front of potential clients. They hail from every state, so we get to see the regional design vernacular for fresh contemporary forms.

As I wandered through the site, I realized that our designers are producing some truly outstanding residential landscapes.

Thankfully, it also provides plenty of affordable ideas for first-time homeowners — from trim color to paving variations to pots.

To get right to the great ideas, go to the black title bar and click on "PICTURES." From here you can explore various categories, such as seating area, deck design, fireplaces, planting design and so much more.

My personal favorite is the Patios section. I could pore over these images for hours, studying every choice the designers made. Captions with these large, easy-to-see images of truly fine work indicate who designed it and where that firm is headquartered.

If you're contemplating a new patio or landscape, or have already started on the process, these photos will help you communicate better with your designer. Each picture might contain something you really love, so if you print it and give it to your designer, you can be clearer about exactly what you want. Or, print the photos you find most appealing, and these will tell your designer what you have in mind.

If you have trouble articulating your desires to a designer, you're not alone. Unless you have a firm grasp of design language, it's nearly impossible to get some ideas across without drawing a picture. But if you're lucky enough to know about a website that's becoming a clearinghouse for outstanding new landscape-design ideas, simply print the picture and point.

I guarantee that doing so will save you a thousand words, at the very least.

Green cleaners tackle dirt but vary in strength

ROSA COLUCCI
Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

We've all seen the commercials. Just spray on a cleaner and magically, as it drips down the surface ...Voila! It's clean!

But is it? Really?

We all want an easier way to clean our home. Somewhere along the way, we have been sold the idea that it can be done fast and with little or no elbow grease and that all of these magic chemicals will make life easier. Sometimes, they do. Most times, it's just overkill, cleaning the surface while exposing you to an alphabet soup of chemicals and volatile organic compounds that irritate your skin, eyes and nasal passages.

After I eliminated 95 percent of the household chemicals in my home (I still use a "regular" automatic dishwasher detergent), I found that I could breathe easier, and my sense of smell was much improved. Most importantly, my house was still clean.

Most of the environmentally friendly cleaners on the market today do a really good job cleaning up most messes. But not all are up to the biggest challenges — bathroom and kitchen surfaces. Getting a surface clean requires breaking the bond between the surface and the dirt. "Green" cleaners work best when they are sprayed on the surface and permitted to soak in for a minute or two. This gives them time to break that bond and dissolve the solids, permitting them to be easily wiped away.

Here's a brief overview of some green cleaners:

iQClean: New product line, Green Awards Winner 2010 for Packaging. Sold in a refillable bottle; small refill cartridges can be purchased separately and mixed with water, reducing plastic waste and transport costs. ($4.99, refills are $1.99)

Method: Established green-product company whose line includes cleaning products and some personal-care products. Fresh, natural-based scents. Available at Target and Giant Eagle. ($3.99-$5.49)

Martha Stewart Clean: New line of products manufactured by the Hain Celestial Group. Full line of household cleaners is fragrance-free and sulfate-free. Available at The Home Depot. ($3.99-$4.99)

Mrs. Meyer's Clean Day: Large stable of products that provide green cleaning with aromatherapy. Products are scented with natural essential oils and mixed like perfumes with top, middle and base notes. ($3.99-$4.99)

Seventh Generation: Established line of home and personal-care products created by one of the pioneers of the green-cleaning movement, Jeffrey Hollender. Most products are unscented or naturally lightly scented. Available at most retailers. ($4.99-$7.99)

Here is how some of these products stacked up in home trials:

Glass: While most of the cleaners did an adequate job, Martha Stewart's Glass Cleaner was the best for my money, even picking up streaks that others left behind. Her formulation of corn-based ethanol (alcohol) and vinegar outperformed both chemical and green cleaners.

Bathroom: Most green cleaners do a good job cleaning sticky hair spray and bathroom gunk if you let the spray sit for a few minutes. Bathtub rings are another matter. To erase them, you really need an abrasive sponge or non-scratching powder like those available from Method or Mrs. Meyer's.

Of the sprays, I preferred the Mrs. Meyers when I want a scent and Martha Stewart for unscented. iQ did not perform well, even with a scrubbing sponge. Method also makes a daily shower spray (ylang-ylang scent) that does a nice job of keeping the shower in good shape between cleanings.

All-purpose cleaners: Method All-Purpose (clementine scent) worked great on my appliances and yucky stove. I loved the smell, and it left a great shine. Mrs. Meyer's Countertop Spray does a great job and has a bonus: When the bottle is empty, you can refill with a mixture of its all-purpose cleaner and water. Martha Stewart and Seventh Generation are good for the unscented crowd, but I prefer a scented cleaner in the kitchen.

Other products: Finding a green automatic dishwasher detergent is really hard. Dishwashers release vapors during the drying cycle and therefore are a big source of indoor air pollution. They should be run only when full. The best performer was Mrs. Meyer's, which is a little pricey at $7.99 for 20 gel packs.

Other products that are new to the market are green disinfectants made from Thymol, a component of thyme oil and anti-bacterial cleaning wipes. These products kill 99.9 percent of household germs, including influenza, and are easy to use. Method and Seventh Generation both carry a large assortment of products.

Whatever products you choose, go green. It will drastically improve indoor air quality, reduce your overall chemical exposure and help keep the water supply clean.

Carriage's value limited by lack of mark

HELAINE FENDELMAN and JOE ROSSON
Scripps Howard News Service

Dear Helaine and Joe: I have a porcelain carriage that must be at least 65 to 70 years old. It is 10 inches long by 8 inches tall. It is marked "Germany." What is its value? — A.L., Acton, Calif.

Dear A.L: The mark "Germany" usually suggests a piece made in that country before World War I, but we feel the look of this piece is later, and it should be circa 1930 (plus or minus 10 years).

A number of companies made carriages or coaches such as this one, and its use of the word "Germany" suggests it was made to be exported as a decorative item — possibly to the United States. A.L. needs to look hard for an additional mark — he may find it in blue, or it may just be impressed in the clay.

Many times when coaches like this are sold, they are referred to as either "Dresden" or "Royal." No porcelain was actually manufactured in Dresden, but some fine porcelain items were decorated there.

For the most part, when a coach like this one is characterized as "Dresden," it implies this is fancy, highly decorated and well made. It also suggests that the women are dressed in "crinoline," which means a long, full, artistically proportioned hoop skirt that is often made from porcelain-dipped netting or lace.

The word "Royal" implies that there are royal personages in the coach, and most often these "royals" are associated with Napoleon. At the crest of a royal coach, there is usually a crown and eagle crest, and a coat of arms on the door. This makes it clear that the coach in today's question was not intended to be a "royal coach."

If A.L. does not find another mark, we will never know exactly which German factory made this piece, but there are two leading suspects.

SHNS

This charming porcelain coach is made in Germany, but its manufacturer is unknown.
