Cops brace for human trafficking

LIVI STANFORD | Staff Writer
livi.stanford@dailyccommercial.com

The Lake County Sheriff's Office made its first arrest two weeks ago for human trafficking. Members of the county's Human Trafficking Task Force said it illustrates the organization is trying to address the issue before it becomes a major problem.

"We want to make sure it does not become a problem in this county," said Capt. Todd English, co-chair of the task force. "It is very important to prepare, be aware and trained on how to handle it."

The recent undercover operation resulted in the rescue of a 14-year-old victim of human trafficking and the arrests of 44 alleged prostitutes, pimps and "johns."

The suspect, Gregory Lionel Foster, 28, is accused of abducting the 14-year-old from a gas station on April 9 and trying to force her to have sex with a man for money at an Orlando home and raping her himself

STORY HIGHLIGHTS

- There are 27 million people enslaved worldwide.
- Florida ranks third in the nation for trafficking activity.
- Lake has 10 cases under investigation and has seen 10 other potential victims in the last three years.

before taking her to the motel where he thought another customer awaited, according to an arrest affidavit.

The task force is investigating an estimated 10 possible human trafficking cases in the county, representing a relatively low number in comparison to larger cities such as Orlando.

But, English said the presence of I-4 to the east and I-75 to the west increases the potential for human trafficking. The truck stop in Wildwood could also be a catalyst for trafficking.

"Based on my training experience, all truck stops should not be ignored as a potential location where drugs are bought and sold as well as women," he said.

Currently, the task force receives no federal funding and two detectives in the homicide and special victims unit are investigating human trafficking cases as part of the task force.

English said he hopes to apply for federal funding.

"It comes with building your task force and the infrastructure of your task force that federal grants require," he said. "At this point we take this task force on essentially as an added job responsibility."

Human trafficking is considered a form of modern day slavery by experts. Victims of human trafficking are subjected to force, fraud or coercion for the purpose of sexual exploitation or forced labor, according to the Florida state statute 787.06 on human trafficking.

Popular goat missing again

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer
roxanne.brown@dailyccommercial.com

Nearly two years ago, Patrick Borse, one of the owners of Red Wing Restaurant in Groveland, found himself appealing to the community for the safe return of a baby goat stolen from a fenced-in petting farm at the eatery at 12500 State Road 33.

Soon after that, and just as mysteriously as he'd disappeared, Elvis the goat was returned. Over the past two years, he's been joined by other goats, pigs and animals that Borse has either rescued, is fostering or that have been born throughout the months.

About a month ago, though, Elvis vanished again, this time with many of his companion animals.

"I was very upset at first and thought maybe they'd gotten out somehow, but that wasn't the case," Borse said. "They were just gone. Some of the little kids are really upset, too, because they like feeding the animals and the goats are a big part of that."

Along with Elvis and his father, Donald, Borse claims someone

MASCOTTE

Ex-cop files lawsuit against city

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer
roxanne.brown@dailyccommercial.com

Mascotte officials have been sued twice since March over actions taken against former officer Sgt. David Grice before, during and after his termination in January.

One suit was filed by the Florida Police Benevolent Association, alleging that Grice's Officers' Bill of Rights was violated as a result of the way the firing process was carried out.

Another suit recently filed by Eustis Attorney Derek Schroth alleges that city officials made false accusations against Grice in retaliation for complaints Grice made about Police Chief Ronaldo Banasco, that he was secretly videotaped without his knowledge, and was harassed, humiliated and mistreated.

The suit seeks damages of at least $15,000.

"I really feel that Sgt. Grice's Officers' Bill of Rights were abused," said Schroth.

Schroth said when the city learned of a pending suit by the FPBA on Grice's behalf, city officials claimed he was never fired, but records show no payment stubs for Grice since January.

"I've never seen anything like this," Schroth said.

Documents obtained from the city show that Mascotte police fired Grice in January for refusing to cooperate with an internal investigation for allegedly harassing a female officer.

Grice contends he was the target of discrimination by Banasco because of complaints he Individuals without health care coverage are subject to fines collected by the IRS. What do you think should be done with the collected funds?

About 27 million people are enslaved worldwide, according to the National Human Trafficking Resource Center.

In 2011, the resource center ranked Florida third in the nation in the number of calls received by the center's human trafficking hotline.

Representatives from the Department of Children and Families and Lake County Shared Services Network in 2012 approached Sheriff Gary Borders about starting the task force.

"Lake County is a wonderful example of getting ahead of the curve, being smart and getting prepared," said Kimberly Grabert, statewide human trafficking prevention director for the Florida Department of Children and Families and the task force's chairwoman. "We are building a continuum of care. We are working closely with leaders, providers and therapists across the state."

Grabert said many of the victims of human trafficking "are desperate to be part of something and to be loved."

As a result, they are often drawn into sexual or labor exploitation when they meet a pimp who tells the victim she "is wonderful, beautiful and they will provide the clothing and food for them," said LCSO Detective Daniel Morales, an investigator for the task force.

"The juvenile or adult then goes back with that trafficker and soon afterward becomes hooked on drugs," Morales said.

Then, the trafficker will tell the victim they must repay them for providing food and clothing through prostitution, he added.

What we know about this population is there is a "high rate of them being exposed to violence in their household," Grabert said. "They are seeking relationships with people they are lacking in their personal lives. It fills the void for the child and we have to fill that void: sometimes it is their therapist or child protective investigator."

Statewide, Grabert said she is seeing quite a bit of gang activity in which victims are sold by siblings.

The hardest part of many cases is getting victims to comply and keeping them safe, task force officials said.

"When law enforcement recovers them, they disappear," Grabert said. "It is a hard population, but they desperately need our help."

The biggest challenge, Morales said, is many don't feel they are victims of human trafficking.

"A lot of people in that lifestyle don't understand the meaning of human trafficking," he said.

English said it is much harder to get victims to come forward.

"They won't cooperate with us in the interview process to give us what law enforcement needs to have probable cause to hold their traffickers," he said. "They can be difficult cases as far as to investigate, bring to conclusion and bring to an arrest."

Kelly Smallridge, executive director of Haven of Lake and Sumter Counties Inc., a shelter, which provides emergency, long-term shelter and counseling for victims of domestic violence, said about 10 potential victims of human trafficking have come through her shelter in the last three years.

All of the victims were from southeast Asia and Russia and did not speak English.

Smallridge said she would never forget the 21-year-old girl from Asia who was in the hospital for six weeks after being beaten severely by a trafficker.

"She finally healed and went back to Thailand," she said.

Many traffickers take advantage of the fact that the victims often don't speak English, Smallridge said, threatening many with deportation if they do not do what the traffickers wanted.

Morales said he is encouraged that the Florida Legislature has implemented stricter penalties for those charged with human trafficking.

"It is now a felony," he said. "It makes it more difficult to get out of jail."

Stiffer laws could be on the horizon. If passed, HB 1019 would "prohibit minors from working in an adult theater, remove the statute of limitations for human trafficking violations and increase certain penalties relating to the trafficking of children," among other things.

The bond for Foster, who was arrested and charged last week with human trafficking, is $200,000.

has stolen 13 of his 14 fainting goats and two pot-bellied pigs.

Unlike the first incident, Borseley called law enforcement to report the theft and is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the safe return of his animals.

Lake County Sheriff's Office spokesman Lt. John Herrell confirmed that Deputy Sheriff Brett Rutzebeck is on the case and actively investigating leads as they come in.

"I just want them (animals) back," Borseley said. "I have taken them on and they are like family. Every single one of them. Some have been born on the farm. I'm just hoping none of them had made it to anyone's dinner tables."

Since filing the theft report, one of the two missing pigs has been returned, found through a Facebook posting of someone kissing a pig that looked much like Borseley's.

Borseley said a friend noticed the posting and showed it to him. Immediately, Borseley recognized the little fellow and called Rutzebeck, who followed up and got the pig back.

No arrest has yet been made however, pending further investigation, Herrell said.

"We're working the case and they've (Red Wing) also got their own investigation going through social media," Herrell said, adding that he encourages anyone who knows anything to call the department so the animals can be returned.

"I am just asking that whoever knows something just come forward and step up because I want my animals back," Borseley said.

Anyone with information about the missing animals can call the LCSO at 352-343-2101 or Central Florida Crimeline at 1-800-4236-TIPS, where one may be eligible for a reward for information leading to a felony arrest.

made against the chief, including the alleged bugging of police cars.

On Friday, Schroth said that one thing that stands out in his mind is a copy of a video he obtained from a camera Banasco was wearing when he fired the officer.

"They made him take his badge off, take his gun out and they made him get into the back of a police car to be transported back to the police department from city hall to get his car," Schroth said, adding that the tape shows Banasco speaking unprofessionally even after Grice gets into his car and drives off.

"It was obvious that an attempt was being made to humiliate Grice in an unprecedented manner," Schroth said.

In addition, Schroth said that when Grice was fired in January he was not fired in accordance with the Officers' Bill of Rights. Grice would have been entitled to a judicial hearing and certain protection — representation by the FPBA and a review of all allegations against him until he could be proven guilty of an offense.

In the suit, Schroth seeks to be reinstated to the same position he held prior to being fired in January. He also wants his benefits and seniority rights restored, his wages, benefits and other losses paid back, and an injunction to prevent the city from further retaliating against Grice. He further seeks damages and court and attorney costs he incurred.

Banasco could not be reached for comment and no comment could be obtained from the city because its offices were closed as of Thursday around 5 p.m.

Dog mauled by bear finds a new home

Staff Report

A plucky little dog that survived a bear attack in late March has found a new home.

"When Deana Osenieks' 7-year-old son saw Percival on the news, he knew that the Treeing Walker coonhound would make the perfect addition to the family," Elisha Pappacoda, a county public information officer, said in a press release.

Percival was picked up as a stray by Lake County animal control officers in the Ocala National Forest. The dog had a grapefruit-size wound on his back.

"He went to a couple of vets and I think they weren't sure exactly what happened to him, but the last vet said 'bear attack,'" Pappacoda said. "She said definitively it was a bear attack."

The Osenieks family from Volusia County — including two kids with three dogs in tow — visited Percival at the Lake County Animal Services shelter in Tavares and held their breath that Percival would be theirs, Pappacoda said.

"I had to tell them if it's meant to be, it's meant to be," Deana said.

The family realized Percival, or Percy, would make an ideal best friend for the family's dog, Shotgun, a redbone coonhound who got his name after suffering two bullet wounds, Pappacoda said. Coincidentally, Shotgun was a Lake County Animal Services shelter dog before being adopted by the Osenieks last year through a local rescue group.

Firefighters model bras, boxers for cancer charity

LINDA CHARLTON

Special to The Daily Commercial

"Come on ladies. He's worth more than a 100 bucks. He put on a bra for you!"

With those words, auctioneer Laura Mancinelli urged her audience to up the ante for the custom-designed bras (and boxers) up for bid at the Bras for the Cause fundraiser of the Greater Clermont Cancer Foundation Saturday.

It was the seventh year the Foundation has held the event, which took place at the Heritage Hills clubhouse in Clermont this year.

The new twist was that many of the bras were modeled by firefighters — both men and women.

As event coordinator Kay Simpson said in her opening remarks, "I have learned one thing about firefighters. They can run into a burning building and rescue people and cats, but they have a hard time wearing a bra. They took a lot of coaxing, but they are here."

The first entry, the "Studded" bra worn by firefighter Robert Siegworth went for $175. Tamara Richardson, as Cruella DeVille, got the bidding into high gear with an ensemble that fetched $500. Firefighter Dak Rakow didn't hit that mark, but he set the tone for many of the firefighters with his campy approach to the runway, as he tossed stuffing from his bra into the audience of about 250 people.

Firefighter Eric Strange closed out the show, modeling his black kitty bra and doing his best to act cat-like. The two high bidders for the kitty bra, with bids of $500 and $525, decided to both pay up, according to Simpson. It was Ann Dupee who, with a $500 bid, got to take the bra home.

"I will have to see where it ends up, either at the fire department, or city hall or traveling around the city," she said. "I'd like to do something fun with it."

Noting that last year's event netted close to $25,000, Simpson said she was hoping this one would bring in $30,000.

In her opening remarks, Simpson dedicated this year's event to longtime Cancer Foundation supporter Kathleen Kelley Brown, whom Simpson described as our "Seminole-loving Irish valentine." Brown died of cancer on Wednesday.

Unlike many cancer foundations, the Clermont organization does no research. Instead they give grants to local families who have a hard time dealing with the financial burden that can come with a diagnosis of cancer.

In addition the foundation gives scholarships to high school seniors whose lives have been affected by cancer. In 2013 they gave $76,000 in grants and scholarships, according to Simpson.

For more information on the Foundation, go to their website at www.gccf.us.

OUR VIEW

The state's pass-the-buck Legislature

When the Florida Legislature's annual session ends next month and campaigning for state offices begins, incumbents seeking re-election to state offices will brag how they have kept taxes low.

Their claims will be correct.

Florida ranked 47th in total per capita taxation heading into this year's session. What's more, legislators are likely to reduce some revenues this year by, for example, lowering vehicle-registration fees. In this context, Florida TaxWatch, an independent organization that studies state taxation and spending policies, cites these state revenue sources: lottery proceeds, documentary stamps on real estate transactions, a sales tax (6 percent) and taxes on utilities, cellphones, motor fuels, insurance, alcoholic beverages and tobacco.

Indeed, Florida's statewide taxes are low compared with those in other states.

But, there's more.

Florida's place on the bottom rungs of state-level taxation and total revenue are due in part to an extraordinary reliance on local governments — not only to provide services, but to generate dollars.

Thanks to the folks at TaxWatch, who recently issued their 2014 "How Florida Compares" report, we know that:

■ The state has the fifth-highest percentage (50 percent) of state and local taxes generated by local governments.

■ Florida has the second-highest percentage (55 percent) of state and local revenue generated by local governments.

■ Local revenues include not only property taxes but local-option sales taxes, impact fees, franchise fees for utilities and special assessments.

In general, cities, counties and other local entities in Florida are assigned and assume disproportionately greater responsibility for courts, social services, infrastructure, health care for indigent patients and education.

Nowhere is the state government's reliance on locals more evident than in public education.

The Florida Constitution requires the state to adequately fund high-quality education and also prohibits the state from levying a property tax.

Yet, each year, the Legislature requires school boards to levy property taxes at specific rates.

Even though local, per capita revenues in Florida rank seventh nationwide and local, per capita taxes rank 22nd, the combined state and local tax burden is below average.

Ranked 33rd, Florida's state and local governments collect $5,599 per person in total revenues; the average in the United States is $6,303. In terms of state and local taxes, Florida ranks 37th — $3,420 per capita; the national average is $4,287.

It would be polite for incumbents in state offices to thank local governments and their taxpayers for making them look good.

OPINION

LETTER of the WEEK

The generosity of bikers

I have lived in Leesburg for 24 years and I have been a biker for more than 50 years. Having said that, here are the good, bad and the ugly sides of Bikefest.

I have gone to every Bikefest since the first one. I even have the original T-shirt. The good is that the Leesburg Partnership puts on a great rally. The bad is that non-bikers hate it.

Now the ugly. The "Sound of Money." That was the front-page headline on Easter Sunday in the Daily Commercial. Bikers are the most generous group of people on the earth. They will assemble in masses to donate to charities. So why does the Partnership and every vendor screw them?

Basically, Leesburg is a charity, a depressed community. Hundreds of thousands of bikers come to Leesburg each year and bail them out by pouring millions into the economy. What do they get for this? Michael Vassell, general manager of Holiday Inn Express Hotel & Suites in Tavares, says this, "A standard room normally goes for $101 to $125, but during Bikefest that goes up to $150 because rates are based on demand." Don't you really mean greed?

I remember when beer cost $2 at Bikefest. It is now $5 to $6, not counting the cost of a commemorative cup. Parking used to be free. Food prices have soared because the vendors have to pay so much for their spaces. The list goes on, and on and on.

Leesburg, think about this: The bikers come here to help, and what do they get? What would happen if Bikefest came and no one showed up? Where are your millions then?

Get back to reality before you become Daytona. A lot of bikers don't go there any more for the same reasons I mentioned above. Be thankful for the bikers. Don't screw them.

YOUROPINIONS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Oppose corporate greed

In the April 6 edition of the Daily Commercial there was a great article by Kevin G. Hall, of the McClatchy Washington Bureau, "U.S. companies chipping away at retiree benefits."

Employees need to get organized and unionize against these companies who only show their support through their stockholders and their CEO's large salaries.

The poor and middle class Americans need to boycott these companies. And everyone in America needs to vote Democrat in upcoming elections for a better Congress who will increase the minimum wage and protect Social Security, allow immigrants who were born here to become U.S. citizens and also keep women's rights intact.

LINDA GREEN | Leesburg

The founding fathers would have been pleased

Russ Sloan in his diatribe on Easter Sunday on the welfare system wrote, "The Preamble to the Constitution reads, 'provide for the common defense and promote the general welfare,' not vice versa. That is absolutely correct, but he fails to mention the Preamble has no legal standing when we interpret the Constitution.

The Founding Fathers in their great wisdom wrote in Article 1 Section 8, Congress shall have the power to, "Provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States ..." Sloan has a propensity for not telling the whole story, just what fits his ideological beliefs.

The founding fathers also added in Article 1 section 8, "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the fore going powers ..." In essence, they gave the Congress the power to make any law necessary and proper to provide for the general welfare.

Sloan also wrote, "We have so distorted the intent of our founding fathers that they would be in shock to see what a welfare mentality we have accepted."

I do not have the clairvoyance Russ seems to claim, but most probably would be pleased to see Congress has used the power they gave them to provide for the general welfare.

There are some things they probably would be shocked about, like non-property owners, women and blacks voting, that corporations are people, money is speech and a black man is president.

MARVIN JACOBSON | Clermont

Not the place of the Supreme Court

I am referencing an article on the front page of the Daily Commercial on April 17 by Jim Turner of the News Service of Florida, "Amazon to start collecting sales taxes."

The article goes on to say if the entity has a presence in the state that a person is ordering from, then they will be charged sales tax. The Supreme Court ruled some years ago that if the business had a presence in a state that a person orders from then a tax can be collected. This is a classic example of the court legislating from the bench.

Article 1 section 9-10, states that no tax can be collected from items crossing any state line or from port to port. The proper way to handle it would have been to amend the Constitution but they knew that the amendment would never fly. I imagine that political influence was exercised in this process.

I do not pay sales tax on items ordered across state lines. If the shipper hints at charging a tax, I cancel the order. I refuse to be a part of this tax, tax, tax! It is just another way of draining the citizen of a few more drops of blood in the form of taxes. I would rather do without the product than pay the tax.

The state of Florida had to return $700 million to people who were charged a tax for bringing their cars into the state. The person taxed had to make application for it. The state should have been required to purge the archives and see who paid the tax and notify them at their last known address. But then again, they never do the right thing.

This ruling by the Supreme Court should have been revisited by a more competent Court than made the ruling. I do remember that one of the judges on the ruling court had a stroke at the time the 5 to 4 decision was made.

I have no problem with a 6 to 3, or 7 to 2, but a 5 to 4 is no good.

MINNEOLA

Hawks outlast Yellow Jackets in Class 6A-6 title game

FRANK JOLLEY | Staff Writer
 frank.jolley@dailycommercial.com

Drew Mendoza scored on a bases-loaded walk in the seventh inning on April 24 to give Lake Minneola a 9-8 win in the Class 6A-District 6 title game at Lake Minneola High School.

Mendoza's run capped a two-run rally in the seventh inning for the Hawks and earned them a home game in Thursday's regional quarter-final round.

Aaron Pandorf picked up the win for the Hawks (15-11). The third pitcher used by Lake Minneola coach Mike Smith, Pandorf went one hitless inning and struck out two on eight pitches.

Ryan Halstead, the third pitcher used by Leesburg, was tagged with the loss. Halstead allowed two hits and two runs — one earned — in one inning of work. He walked two and struck out two.

Even though the Yellow

Jackets lost April 24, they will play in the regional quarter-finals. However, Leesburg (10-17) will be forced to play on the road.

Their opponents were not known at press time, although both games will play at 7 p.m. Thursday.

In the bottom of the seventh inning, Kevin Lora reached on catcher's interference and Mendoza laced a single through the left side of the infield. Jon Hoskinson then doubled down the right field line, scoring Cameron Recny, who was running for Lora.

Brett Coffel was walked in-tionally to bring up Tucker Rayburn, who was 2-for-3 in the game. After falling behind 1-and-2, Rayburn eventually worked Halstead for a bases-loaded walk that plated Mendoza with the walk-off win.

Lake Minneola had 13 hits off the Yellow Jackets' pitching triumvirate of Kyle Brana, Brendin Perkins and Halstead. The Hawks also benefited from six Leesburg errors.

Mendoza and Coffel paced Lake Minneola with three hits. Rayburn and Brandon Hartley had two hits apiece.

Rayburn had three RBIs, while Coffel and Hartley had two apiece.

Mendoza and Hoskinson scored two runs each.

Hoskinson started for Lake Minneola and went 4 1/3 innings, allowing seven hits and seven runs, although only four were earned. Michael Tow and Pandorf combined to pitch 4 2/3 innings of hitless relief.

Brana and Jaden Langley had two hits for Leesburg. Tucker Smith had three RBIs and Luis Montalvo had two RBIs.

Brian Hepburn and Langley scored two runs apiece.

LEESBURG

Lloyd becomes FAL's first football signee

FRANK JOLLEY | Staff Writer
 frank.jolley@dailycommercial.com

Trevor Lloyd is typical of many students at First Academy of Leesburg.

He's respectful, particularly towards adults, always looking others in the eyes when speaking to them and is quick to offer a greeting and a firm handshake.

One thing, however, sets Lloyd apart from all other students who have attended the small Leesburg private school — he is the first student-athlete in school history to sign a National Letter of Intent to play football at the next level.

Lloyd inked a deal on April 22 to attend Methodist University, a private school in Fayetteville, N.C., where he is expected to be a receiver for the Division III institution. He hopes to help the Monarchs improve on their 8-2 overall record in 2013, which included 6-1 mark in USA South Athletic Conference.

"This is a great feeling for me," Lloyd said after a signing ceremony in the library at First Academy of Leesburg.

Lloyd, like many players at First Academy of Leesburg, played multiple positions for the Eagles. On offense, he was primarily a receiver, while on the other side of the ball, he was a defensive back and a linebacker.

He played an integral role in leading First Academy to the Sunshine State Athletic Conference championship in 2013. Lloyd averaged 21.5 yards per catch, with three of his 13 grabs going for touchdowns.

Defensively, he had three interceptions and defended 17 passes. He returned one interception for a score.

Lloyd said he had "three or four" schools on his short list, but made his decision after his official visit to Methodist. He liked the philosophy of Monarchs coach C.J. Goss and the campus.

"It was an easy decision after seeing the school," Lloyd said. "I could see myself going there for four years. I was comfortable the whole time I was there and then when I talked to (Goss), everything seemed to fit what I wanted in a college."

Lloyd took time during his signing ceremony to thank his teammates and his family for his success. His parents, Leroy and Vernetta, sat beside him as he signed his National Letter of Intent.

"My parents kept me level-headed through the entire process," Lloyd said. "And my teammates, especially quarterbacks David (Elliott) and Byron (Masoline) made the difference for me. I don't think I'm signing today without the support of my teammates."

Lloyd also credited the atmosphere at First Academy of Leesburg for his success. A transfer from Leesburg High School prior to his senior year, Lloyd said First Academy's stiffer academic requirements and the unique athletic demands at the school made him a better person and player.

Barajas wins state title

FRANK JOLLEY | Staff Writer
 frank.jolley@dailycommercial.com

Tavares High School is home to a state champion.

Jose Barajas lifted a combined weight of 635 pounds on April 25 to win at 169 pounds in the Florida High School Athletic Association Class 1A Boys Weightlifting Finals at the Kissimmee Civic Center.

According to Tavares weightlifting coach Chris Gauntlett, Barajas is the second Bulldog to win a state weightlifting title.

Barajas outlifted his closest competitor, Altha's Tristan Griffin, by 30 pounds. Barajas had 340 pounds in the bench press and 295 pounds in the clean-and-jerk.

Griffin lifted 330 pounds in the bench press and 275 pounds in the clean-and-jerk.

Barajas was the only local lifter to win a state title.

At 119 pounds, South Sumter's Valentino Avant finished seventh with 370 pounds — 200 pounds in the bench press and 170 pounds in the clean-and-jerk. Avant's teammate, Alan Macias, also earned spot in the finals at 119 pounds, but did not record a weight.

Eustis' Corey Davis finished fourth at 139 pounds and Umattilla's Brett Bush was fifth. Bush's teammate, Chris McEntire, was ninth.

Davis lifted 480 pounds — 220 pounds in the bench press and 260 pounds in the clean-and-jerk — to finish 10 pounds ahead of Bush, who had 265 pounds in the bench press and 205 pounds in the clean-and-jerk. McEntire had a final total of 435 pounds — 225 pounds in the bench press and 210 pounds in the clean-and-jerk.

McEntire was tied with two others in total weight, but was awarded ninth place because he weighed less than the two lifters with whom he finished in a tie.

At 199 pounds, South Sumter's Joey Mohler finished eighth with 605 pounds — 310 pounds in the bench press and 290 pounds in the clean-and-jerk.

South Sumter's Caleb Simmons was seventh at 219 pounds following a bench press of 355 pounds and a clean-and-jerk of

Lake Minneola hoops coach plans camps

FRANK JOLLEY | Staff Writer
 frank.jolley@dailycommercial.com

Lake Minneola boys basketball coach Freddie Cole is conducting two youth basketball camps in May for players looking to improve their fundamentals and ability to perform in game situations.

The two-day camps are Friday and Saturday and May 23-24 at the Lake Minneola High School gymnasium for boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 17.

Cost of the camps is $50. The first day for both camps will run from 5 to 8 p.m. and the second day, which is a Saturday, will begin at 9 a.m. and end at noon.

Cole is the only boys basketball coach in Lake Minneola's history. He led the Hawks to a 28-4 record in 2013-14 and the Florida High School Athletic Association Class 6A state championship game.

After playing collegiately at Bethune-Cookman University in Daytona Beach, Cole played professionally overseas before becoming a high-school coach. Lake Minneola is 60-22 during Cole's three seasons at the helm.

Many of the teaching tools Cole said he plans to use in the camps were learned during his college and professional careers.

Registration forms for the camp are available on request. Email coal are colef@lake.k12.fl.us to obtain a registration form or for any questions.

Cole said spots in both camps are filling fast.

"I've had 15 people sign up the first day I put out a sign-up sheet," Cole said. "I planned to stop at 50, but I will gauge any additional interest in the camp if we get to 50 registrations."

LAKES REPORT

a weekly update from
CHERYL STALEY-ARCHER

■ SORRENTO BAIT & TACKLE | SORRENTO

Some specks are still spawning in the canals in Lake Carlton and Lake Beauclair among the cat tails, brush and fallen trees where eel grass and lily pads flourish. Specks are being caught in approximately 10 feet of water in the Apopka-Beauclair canal and out from Deer Island. They are being caught on Ron's Zip jigs and small ice jigs fished around 5 to 6 feet covering a lot of water. On Lake Carlton, drift the jig tipped minnow across the lake. Post spawn bass are biting early in the morning in the mouths of residential canals on noisy top water baits like Rat-L-Traps. Lots of hybrid bass are biting at the mouth of the Wekiva River and around the feeder creeks early in the morning on Rat-L-Traps and shiners. A mixed bag of fish are being caught in Lake Monroe fishing the channel and deep water. Stop in and get the latest daily report.

■ SOUTHERN TACKLEWORKS | TAVARES

Largemouth bass are being caught on soft plastic baits such as June bug or June bug blue trick worms and watermelon red and June bug red swimming worms. Shell cracker are being caught on grass shrimp and yellow tailed worms. Some crappie are still being caught on chartreuse or pink jig heads tipped with minnows. Sandy's next regular bass tournament will be an open tournament held May 17 this tournament will usher in a new season. For information, call the shop at 352-742-0036.

shrimp. Pine Island has a full supply of live baits including grass shrimp as well as a variety of artificial baits. RV sites, camp sites boats and slips are available for rental. Check out the restaurant before going out or coming off the lake.

■ PALM GARDENS | TAVARES

A few stripers are being caught on saltwater shrimp and lures with silver spoons. A few specks are still being picked up on minnows. The shell cracker action has slowed with the passage of the most recent cold front. Palm Gardens has pontoon boats available to rent.

■ NELSON'S FISH CAMP | WEIRSDALE

Shellcracker activity has been strong. Shell cracker are biting on grass shrimp. Bass action has been very good. They are biting on spinner baits and soft plastic worms. Bluegill and speck have been biting on grass shrimp and worms.

■ BLACK BASS RESORT AND FISH CAMP | LEESBURG

Action has been a little slower with the passage of the last cold front. A few fish are being caught from the dock. In addition to canoes and rowboats Black Bass now rents kayaks. Minnows, red worms and night crawlers sales continue to be strong, suggesting specks, bream and catfish are biting. Want to try something new, try fishing from a kayak.

Iron Jungle Weightlifting continues to move along.

Lake County's only weightlifting club competed recently at the Florida Youth Trials, a tune-up meet at Port Orange Spruce Creek High School and Iron Jungle Weightlifting had two more lifters earn spots in USA Weightlifting's Youth National Championship in June.

"I only had four lifters compete, so half of our competitors qualified for nationals," said Iron Jungle Weightlifting coach Josh Boyer. "That gives us four team members who have qualified (for nationals).

We have a tough six-week prep period coming up, and our success at Youth Nationals will be a direct correlation to the approach to our training. We are past the level of being content with qualifying and now it is time to bring home medals each time we attend a national championship.

"I have confidence that we will have our best training days over this next month-and-a-half."

Alexis Smith and Carlos Molano had solid performances at Port Orange Spruce Creek to join teammates Morgan Rhone and Brett Ollila at nationals. Smith competed at 75 kilograms (about 165 pounds) and Molano lifted at 69 kilograms (about 152 pounds).

Smith entered the competition needing 97 kilograms (213 pounds) to qualify for nationals and Boyer said she turned up at the meet "ready to succeed." She hit personal records of 41 kilograms (90 pounds) in the Snatch and another personal record weight of 56 kilograms (123 pounds) in the Clean-and-Jerk for a total of 97 kilograms, a third personal mark.

Smith hit on four of her six total lifts and qualified for nationals with her second attempt in the Clean-and-Jerk. Her performance earned Iron Jungle its only medal of the competition.

"I couldn't be more proud of Alexis because she has come so far in reaching this point," Boyer said. "Alexis hurt her wrist during the high-school season and has battled the mental block many athletes go through on their road to recovery. I shared with her that I don't ask of my student-athletes to do anything I have done myself. In college, I broke my femur in a football game.

"I explained that I to her that I completely understand the physical and mental challenges she was going through. Being able to relate to her situation, I think, helped her in overcoming the mental obstacle of being healed."

ERIN KOCZUR

■ HOMETOWN: "Hometown" is going to be a bit hard. I consider myself a New York baby and a Jersey girl with an extended stay in the Poconos. I have lived in a few states and moved here from the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, where I resided for 20 years before coming to Florida.

■ OCCUPATION: Ordained minister, reiki master/teacher, medium, intuitive and angel guidance readings, spiritual counseling

■ FAMILY: My youngest daughter, Marisa, lives here with me and is a freshman in high school. My oldest daughter, Megan, lives in the Poconos and is working toward her teaching certificate.

1) If you had to summarize your philosophy of life in one sentence, what would it be?

I have two that I live by. One: "I am neither defined nor limited by labels," and two: "Ask, believe, receive."

2) Name a person or incident you've come across recently that's touched you in some way. Why did this person or incident impress you so much?

The sweetest thing happened about a month or two ago. My daughter loves Chinese food and roughly twice a month I take her to a local restaurant. We walked in and the young lady that worked there came flying out around the corner and said, "Oh my! It's YOU!" I had no idea what was going on. She gave me a BIG hug and said, "Today is my last day here and I was hoping to see you because you are one of my most favorite customers." Well, I gotta tell you, that simple act of joy and appreciation is one I will carry forever in my heart.

3) How does what you do contribute to the welfare of the area?

Everybody, at one time or another,

Clermont to host dragon boat races

ROXANNE BROWN | Staff Writer
 roxanne.brown@dailyccommercial.com

Clermont will hold its first dragon boat festival Saturday on Lake Minneola.

All proceeds from the event, hosted by New Beginnings, will benefit the New Beginnings organization that serves homeless families, individuals and children and other charities in the area.

New Beginnings founder Steve Smith said the event is expected to draw thousands of visitors to Waterfront Park to watch as more than 25 teams race across the lake in teams made up of locals, city officials, police and fire department personnel, plus regional teams visiting from throughout Florida.

"We are so excited about this event because not only will it help us raise money so that we can continue to help homeless families and children but because we think this is going to be a great event for the city of Clermont," Smith said.

In fact, Clermont's City Manager Darren Gray, the event's honorary chairman, will be at the event to present the day's awards and trophies.

The Clermont Dragon Boat Festival will start at 9 a.m. on Saturday.

"The city will host a team, and our police department was so excited about the event, they are fielding a second team. I think it will quickly become an annual tradition," Gray said.

"Dragon boat races have been growing in popularity all over the world. I think as word gets out and people see what a beautiful park and waterfront we have and how many other activities, restaurants and shops we have, the crowds will grow."

The weekend event, produced by High Five Dragon Boat, LLC, starts Friday at 5 p.m. with dinner and entertainment at the Waterfront Pavilion. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children. The races start at 9 a.m., Saturday.

The event will also feature food vendors, a health fair and kids zone, with bounce houses and face painting.

The races will pit local and regional teams against each other in a series of heats.

Novice teams get instruction — led by Lee Cerovac from The Villages, Team USA Senior Rowing Team Coach — and all of the necessary equipment to race.

Spectators are encouraged to come to Waterfront Park with their lawn chairs and blankets.

 REMEMBER WHEN

A weekly column that reprints some of the more interesting news stories that have appeared over the years in the pages of the South Lake Press.

Congratulations to John Claypool, son of Shirley Claypool, recently selected as the Good Citizen of his Class of 1987 at Groveland High School.

Clermont High School now has a golf team, the first in many years since the Modica boys and Jackie Gaines were bringing home so many honors. Brian Roddy and Carol Ploszaj are the coaches. The home course is Green Valley Country Club. Roddy is employed full-time in golf course maintenance on the Magnolia Course at Walt Disney World and is the teaching pro at Green Valley. Miss Ploszaj teaches at Clermont Junior High School.

The Clermont team has two seniors, Mickey Olivenbaum and Lance Walsworth; five juniors, Bradley Beerlohm, Matt Jones, Danny Lindsey, Craig Stephens and Gary Surin; four sophomores, Jake Doty, Eric Eyerly, Tim Misuraca and Terry McCarthy; and two ninth graders, T.J. Garrett and Scott Severinhuis.

A special mention to Carolyn Mathieson, a 10th grader, who is the only girl right now. The coaches hope more girls will join this promising and flourishing new program at CHS.

CLERMONT HIGH SCHOOL PROM

Saturday night, the Junior-Senior Class Prom of Clermont High School was held at the Orange Lake Country Club's clubhouse on U.S. Highway 192.

Following the prom, Ron and Donna Clarke and two of their children, Raechel and Ronnie, members of the junior class, were hosts to a breakfast. Assisting the hosts were Werner and Marty Heinrich, John and Joanne Hughes, Jim and Brenda Mayer and Wanda Cox. Attending were Principal David Cogshall and his wife, Carol; Assistant Principal Bill Sullivan and his wife, Rosa, and teacher Gary Kinninger.

LOCAL 100-YEAR-OLD RECOGNIZED

NBC weatherman Willard Scott often recognizes people celebrating their longevity of life. Clermont's

Paul Halstead, who just turned 101, received a nice letter from Scott, adding his own good wishes to those of many who recognized this very special milestone.

During the Clermont Centennial in 1984, Scott showed the Centennial T-shirt on the network's Today Show and told all about the celebration.

Local store to mark Free Comic Book Day Saturday

Staff Report

The 13th annual Free Comic Book Day returns on Saturday with more than 2,000 comic shops in over 60 countries participating, including locally owned Heroes Landing in Clermont.

Heroes Landing, 12348 Roper Blvd., will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and will be hosting Batman Eternal writer Tim Seeley.

Free Comic Book Day is the world's largest annual comic book event, with more than 4.5 million comics available to be given away free to those who visit a participating retailer, Marco Davanxo of the Comics Professional Retail Organization said in a press release.

More than 50 special Free Comic Book Day editions are being published, featuring a wide variety of entertainment for all ages and audiences, from kids' comics to content that is on the leading edge of pop culture, he said. More than one million people visited participating comic shops last year and that number is expected to grow as it has every year since the first Free Comic Book Day in May 2002.

The event was founded by Comics Professional Retail Organization board member and comic book retailer Joe Field as a way to introduce new readers to comics, while calling back former readers and thanking current fans.

"Free Comic Book Day calls attention to a very rich and diverse entertainment medium," Field said. "If you want to know where Hollywood gets its best ideas, then your local comic shop is the place to be."

This year's list of free comics include: Guardians of the Galaxy, Archie, Hello Kitty, Spongebob Squarepants, Transformers vs. GI Joe, Sonic the Hedgehog and the Smurfs. A complete list can be found at www.freecomicbookday.com/comics.

Free Comic Book Day also calls attention to the creativity, strength and community importance of locally owned comic book stores.

For information about Free Comic Book Day, go to www.freecomicbookday.com.

PINE RIDGE ELEMENTARY STUDENTS USE RECYCLABLES FOR CRAFTS FOR A CAUSE

Second graders Kaelyn Neuhauser and Catherine Decker, along with other second graders from Pine Ridge Elementary in Clermont recently created crafts using reusable materials and sold the items to raise money at the school's annual Bear Olympics held on April 5, to benefit a fellow Lake County second grader who was recently in a serious accident. The students with the help of other Pine Ridge Elementary families were able to raise $175 for the cause.

Skaters heading to Clermont for challenge

Staff Report

The Ian Tilmann Foundation and the Lake County Tourism Council are sponsoring The 2014 Clermont Challenge 5K / 10K / Slalom Races on May 3 at Lake Louisa State Park in Clermont.

The day of racing features morning 5K and 10K longboard distance races sanctioned by the International Distance Skating Association (IDSA), according to a press release. The afternoon fan will watch a Dual Head-to-Head Hybrid Slalom Race, hosted by world-class pro Keith Hollien, and sanctioned by the International Slalom Skateboarding Association (ISSA).

The longboard races are a Pro/Am event and will draw longboard skaters from the entire east coast, the release stated. Pro/Am skaters and dozens of sponsored skaters will compete for a piece of the $1,000 cash and skate product prizes.

The event has industry support from skateboarding companies including Sector 9, FreeRide Skate, Bustin, Landyatchz, Klever, Inspiration, Honey, S-ONE, Bern Unlimited, Triple 8, Loaded, J Bords, Gravity, RAD, Arbor, Inspiration Longboards and many others, the release stated.

The state park gates open at 8 a.m., the IDSA distance races start at 10 a.m. and the ISSA slalom races start at 1:30 p.m.

Advance on line registration is recommended as this event is expected to sell out. On-site sign-in starts at 8:30 a.m. located at the Lake Louisa State Park Canoe parking area.

The Ian Tilmann Foundation's mission is the prevention of brain injury resulting from skateboarding.

The foundation accomplishes its mission by giving free helmets to skaters who promise to wear it when skateboarding. Since January 2006, The Ian Tilmann Foundation has distributed over 4,500 free helmets throughout the nation.

"The foundation actively promotes helmet use in hopes that others won't suffer such a senseless and preventable tragedy as struck our family when Ian Tilmann died from traumatic brain injury in 2005 from a skateboarding fall," said Marcy Tilmann, the foundation's director.

'Boeing Boeing' is filled with physical comedy

Theresa Campbell | Staff Writer
theresacampbell@dailyccommercial.com

Audiences who remember the mayhem from the 1965 movie "Boeing Boeing" starring Jerry Lewis and Tony Curtis are in for more laughs as Bay Street Players bring the comedy to the stage.

The farce runs through May 11 at the historic State Theatre, 109 North Bay St., Eustis.

"It is just absolute fun. It's a fun comedy that has a 'nice naughty' to it," said Jim Meadows, producer and co-director with Brendon Rogers, who believes theatergoers are going to love the show's physical comedy. "We expect to have people laughing throughout the evening."

Set in the 1960s, the play features American architect/bachelor Bernard (Rick Paulin) living in Paris as he juggles schedules and his life around three fiancées, all young flight attendants, who are unaware of each other. The women regard Bernard's flat as their home during their Paris layovers.

"He balances them all out by having one in the air, one at the airport ready to take off, and the third one is at his apartment," Meadows said, noting the apartment has seven doors, "so you have people running in and out all the time."

Gloria (Bre Lewis), Gabriella (Lauren Morgan) and Gretchen (Kami Spaulding) star as the three flight attendants, and Bernard's so-called perfect life gets rather bumpy when his friend Robert (Paul Castaneda) comes to stay and a new and speedier Boeing jet throws off his careful planning. The mayhem comes to a climax during a scheduling mishap when all three flight attendants end up in Paris and at Bernard's apartment at the same time.

What are Bernard and Robert going to do?

"The way that I like to describe it is that you've got three beautiful, intelligent females who are all flight stewardesses with two idiot guys," Meadows said. "The only thing that has changed from the 1960s and now is that we call them flight attendants instead stewardesses ... the guys in the 1960s are idiots and they are still idiots. They try to keep control of things, but the guys find out that they have no control."

And because of the lack of control, Meadows said the physical comedy in "Boeing Boeing" is at its best.

"Bernard and his best friend visiting from Wisconsin are going crazy trying to balance it all out," the producer said, and there's also the long-suffering housekeeper Berthe (Liz Curtis) who is caught in the middle of it all. "Robert is forgetting which lies to tell to whom, and even with the help of Bernard's housekeeper, catastrophe looms."

"Boeing Boeing" was initially penned by French playwright Marc Camoletti and translated by Beverly Cross and Francis Evans before it was Americanized for the 1965 movie with Jerry Lewis and Tony Curtis.

"Deliciously, deliriously innocent" is how The New York Times has described the farce, which recently enjoyed hit revivals in London and New York. It was also bestowed a Tony Award for "best revival."

The local production features set design by Scott Fattizzi and Tom Mangieri, lighting design by Jon Whitely and costumes by Sara Gray.

"It has been really, really exciting for me to work with Brendon Rogers and co-direct this production," said Meadows, who also noted it has been just as much fun working with the cast and crew.

Tickets for "Boeing Boeing" are $18 for Wednesday and Thursday shows and $21 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday performances. Students with ID are admitted for $11. Matinee shows are at 2 p.m. and evening performances are set for 8 p.m. Tickets may be reserved by calling 352-357-7777.

MOUNT DORA

Orange Blossom Cannonball returns Saturday

Staff Report

The Orange Blossom Cannonball will begin serving Mount Dora again after a five-year absence.

Tavares, Eustis & Gulf Railroad officials have announced that service between Tavares and Mount Dora is scheduled to begin May 3, according to a press release from the railroad. The last tourist train to serve the city halted operations on Dec. 31, 2009.

"The train returning to Mount Dora will have a tremendous impact," Mount Dora Mayor Cathy Hoechst said in an email. "We're looking forward to welcoming even more visitors to our town now that the train is back. We're all very excited."

The initial schedule calls for three round-trips between Tavares and Mount Dora. Departures from Mount Dora will be at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Departures from Tavares will be noon, 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

The railroad will maintain depot facilities in both cities. The Mount Dora depot will be at 150 West Third Ave. The gift shop/ticket agency is housed in a 1935 former Seaboard Air Line American Flyer passenger coach.

The Tavares depot is in a new facility in Wootton Park.

Tuesday through Friday trains will be pulled by a 1941 GE center cab diesel locomotive. Saturday and Sunday trains will be pulled by a 1907 2-6-0 wood-burning steam locomotive.

All trains will feature

Mount Dora, Tavares, Eustis, Lake Jem and Orlando. That ended in 2009.

Several companies have tried to serve Mount Dora with tourist trains in recent years. The Mount Dora and Lake Eustis Railroad took over operation of the former Orlando and Mount Dora Railway about 15 years ago, leasing about seven miles of track from Florida Central Railroad.

Then, in 2005, Inland Lakes Railway, later known as Florida Rail Adventures, had a tourist train operating between the towns of Mount Dora, Tavares, Eustis, Lake Jem and Orlando. That ended in 2009.

Since then, some 6,000 railroad ties have been replaced, new crossings installed and ballast added to bring the railroad track up to federal standards.

The Tavares, Eustis & Gulf Railroad began operating between Tavares and Lake Jem in October 2011. Since then, more than 58,000 guests have ridden the train.

Steam train tickets are $35 for adults and $24 for children ages 4-12, while diesel train tickets are $25 for adults and $16 for children those same ages.

The company's steam locomotive #2 and its vintage cars have been featured in the movies "3:10 To Yuma," "True Grit" and "Appaloosa." The train was recently used in the feature film "Walt Before Mickey," set to release in June.

Reservations can be made at www.orange-blossomcannonball.com or by calling 352-742-7200, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

NEIGHBOR

I am currently working on my Bachelor's degree in Metaphysical Science, something I've been working on for a while. This will be a major goal when accomplished. I am also in talks with Blogtalk Radio to host my own weekly show. However, and though this may sound corny or even cliché, the thing I consider my greatest accomplishment is being a mother. I absolutely love being a mom. Nurturing, guiding, supporting and making lifelong memories with my daughters, as well as the many "adopted" kids I have the pleasure of loving. Being a mother uses everything you've got. It also propels you to keep growing and learning. It is seriously the most rewarding part of my life.

4) Name one of your greatest accomplishments so far.

5) What's something you've always wanted to do but haven't yet?

I've always wanted to open a wholeness center that is equipped for everyone, including those with hearing or sight disabilities. As someone who wears hearing aids, I know the frustration of wanting to learn about, explore and get certified in the various topics within the holistic, metaphysical and spiritual fields. I have yet to come across any avenue for someone with hearing or sight disabilities. I really desire to address this and offer a solution.

6) What advice would you give to people who want to help out in the community?

First off, realize that every one can help someone. Open a door, carry a package or mow a lawn for a neighbor. Look people in the eye and say hello. Wish the cashier a happy day. You'd be amazed at how much this simple act of kindness matters. If you have 30 free minutes in a week, volunteer somewhere that calls to you (animal shelter, church, nursing home, library, hospital, a school). If you want to do something financially and find your budget thin, make a change jar. When you fill it up, donate it (those pennies and nickels add up). If you are housebound, call people and ask how they are doing. There are an endless amount of ways to make life brighter.

Leesburg's Bikefest may have set new world record

TERESA CAMPBELL | Staff Writer
 theresacampbell@dailycommercial.com

Leesburg may have earned bragging rights and set a Guinness Book of World Records for tying 2,545 black bandanas together to create the "longest chain of bandanas on Sunday, the last day of Bikefest.

The 2014 Leesburg Bikefest bandanas in the chain were meticulously videotaped, documented, photographed, counted and measured in the city's attempt to beat the previous record of 2,450 bandanas set in 2011 by the Hiratsuka Coming of Age Day Ceremony Committee in Japan.

"I think that we're going to break the record. It looks like to me that we are going to achieve that goal. Hopefully, nobody broke it somewhere else over the weekend," said Joe Shipes, executive vice president of the Leesburg Partnership.

The crowd gathered around Towne Square cheered when it was announced at 12:10 p.m. that the 2,451st bandana — the one to beat Japan — had been validated. By 12:23 p.m., the last bandana in the chain, No. 2,545, was officially marked and held up for photographers and videographers to record.

"This is real fun, absolutely. It's all for a good cause and it has been a great event for the city, and I'm excited to be part of it," said Leesburg City Manager Al Minner, who served as an official witness and certifier along with Daily Commercial Publisher Steve Skaggs.

Brandt Booth and Pete Jaequese from Booth, Ern, Straughan and Hiott (BESH) of Tavares were the official surveyors documenting and measuring the chain of bandanas.

Event officials said it may take several weeks before Leesburg learns if it has earned the world record; documents to have to be sent to England to be considered for a Guinness record.

Rachel O'Ryan, marketing coordinator for Bikefest, said proceeds from the sale of bandanas used in the attempt will benefit Folds of Honor Foundation, which supports spouses, children and dependents of soldiers who have been killed or disabled.

"The public can help by continuing to buy bandanas," she said, noting the 2014 Leesburg Bikefest bandanas will be available throughout the week at leesburgbikefest.com.

"I am extremely excited with the support that we have gotten from all of the people who have attended here," O'Ryan said of Bikefest. "A lot of motorcycle riders have a military connection, whether they are military or their family is military. They support our troops and Folds of Honor has been an awesome organization to work with ... They are doing what they can to support the spouses and children of our fallen and injured heroes."

O'Ryan said all of the bandanas that were strung together for the longest chain of bandanas world record attempt will be untied and each bandana will be sent to a U.S. military member serving overseas.

"The troops are going to get a little present from Leesburg," O'Ryan said, noting the bandanas will be sent as part of the care packages prepared by members of Operation Shoebox in The Villages.

Leesburg Bikefest concluded Sunday afternoon with a performance by recording artist Uncle Kracker.

"This has been a good weekend," said Leesburg Partnership board member Steve Knowles. "People have really enjoyed the good weather, and the bands have been really good and I think everybody has had a fun time."

He noted a special highlight of Bikefest was the camaraderie.

"There has been a lot of community involvement — a lot of people out here working hard to help out — and that makes a good team," Knowles said.

Enchanted Living Home Decor

Enchanted Living Home Decor offers an enchanted world of unique items and furnishings in one shop
 By Terri Wells

Nestled on Eighth Street in Historic Downtown Clermont, Enchanted Living Home Decor invites visitors in with treasures carefully displayed in every corner. Whether you're looking for a gorgeous antique couch or a much smaller item to help pull your room together, chances are you'll find it here.

While owners Anissa Mills and Tony Wallace just opened the shop in February of this year, their passion for antiques goes back much further. Wallace's mother ran an antique business in Saint Augustine, so he learned about it at her knee.

Wallace has always been a collector. He's passing the passion on to the next generation, as daughter Ashley works in all aspects of this family-owned business. She does a little of everything, from picking out furniture to running the cash register to helping out at events. "She does it all," Mills declared.

The family has been living in Clermont for three years, as the result of "an accident," as Mills described it. Wallace came down for a job, and Mills followed him three months later, but both of them fell in love with the area. "The scenery, the mountains, it's all so different from anywhere else in Florida," Mills reflected. It reminded her of her home state of Ohio.

When not hunting out antique treasures for his customers, Wallace can be found fishing out on the lake or indulging his enthusiasm for motorcycles. He's also an enthusiastic and experienced chef, citing Jamaican cuisine as a favorite — a passion he learned from his father, who is Jamaican.

Asked about her favorite aspect of the business, Mills pointed to the people. She loves talking with them and learning their stories. The business attracts a diversity of customers, from residents who have lived here for years to visitors from out of the country. Wallace's favorite aspect of the business is finding and buying unusual items for those customers.

In the future, Wallace and Mills hope to grow their business. "We've outgrown our space," Mills admitted. The couple hopes to open a second store in the future.

Enchanted Living Home Decor is located at 639 Eighth Street in Historic Downtown Clermont. You can call the store at 352-243-8888, check out their Facebook page at www.facebook.com/pages/Enchanted-Living-Home-Decor/260209717442997, or visit their website at www.enchantedlivinghomedecor.com/default.html.

Mount Dora restaurant, farm doing business locally

AUSTIN FULLER | Staff Writer
austin.fuller@dailycommercial.com

Joshua Jungferman, the operating partner and general manager of Mount Dora's Pisces Rising, prefers smaller farms over big, industrialized farms.

"What seems more natural to me is a working farm. You know, where you can talk to the farmer," Jungferman said. "As a restaurant, it would be nice to be able to meet the farmer ... and maybe talk to him before he's seeding his next crop and let him know what you're looking at, what you want to do."

Jungferman said his restaurant is in the process of exploring its options to buy more of its ingredients locally, like it did in January when it began buying microgreens from ARC Greenhouses in Mount Dora.

Pisces Rising, however, is just one of approximately 15 area restaurants that buys from ARC Greenhouses, according to manager Rachel Vanlandingham. Those restaurants also include Cask & Larder and The Ravenous Pig in Winter Park, and Dally in the Alley in DeLand. ARC Greenhouses is the company and the brand is Mr. McGregor's Greens.

Vanlandingham said it is nice to be able to see where ingredients come from.

"Just like in Dally in the Alley in DeLand, they have a huge blackboard in there and it shows all of their local suppliers," Vanlandingham said. "Just to go in there and see, you know, oh, hey, these tomatoes are coming from so-and-so's farm, and hey, these microgreens are coming from Mr. McGregor's over in Mount Dora."

She added chefs can tour the farm's facilities and are able to talk to her about growing ingredients smaller or larger for their dishes, or suggest something that they might want grown.

"They can specify to me, as the grower and the supplier, exactly what they're looking for," Vanlandingham said.

The local restaurant purchases are mixed with distributor purchases, Vanlandingham said, and the farm is located at 3050 Britt Rd. in Mount Dora. The farm expanded to Mount Dora from its other location in New Jersey, according to the company's website.

Vanlandingham advised restaurants looking to participate in the farm-to-table movement not to be afraid to reach out to local farms to see if they sell to the public or restaurants and to establish those relationships.

"There should be more restaurants that are seeking to do farm to table, because ... it's becoming a trend that everybody wants to know where their food is coming from," Vanlandingham said.

She said Pisces Rising purchases micro rainbow mix and micro wasabi from the farm.

Meanwhile, Jungferman said Pisces Rising is exploring its options to source more locally, which includes looking for small-scale, local distributors, and they are currently talking with the company Local Roots. Local Roots' website states that it "only sources food from Florida farms of the highest standards."

He said it is the restaurant's responsibility to push clientele to locally sourced food.

"People look to us to know the right wine to pair with something. They look to us to know which spirits to mix together for a cocktail. They look to us for our recipes. So, I think that's an important platform ... we should use it fully to really explore the benefits of local — local and small, as opposed to the big, industrialized farms," Jungferman said.

Jungferman said buying locally has long been important to him and the chef, but they now are able to pursue sourcing locally as Jungferman became an operating partner of the restaurant in January.

"It is a financial undertaking. Usually, the food is a little costlier and then you're also spending time," Jungferman said. "And it's a newer concept."

He said while the restaurant is transitioning to using more local products, it has always sourced most of its seafood locally.

Workers space out basil plants at ARC Greenhouses in Mount Dora. The company participates in both the Jersey Fresh and Fresh From Florida programs.

Source: "Local Food Systems in Florida: Consumer Characteristics and Economic Impacts" by Alan W. Hodges and Thomas J. Stevens of the Food and Resource Economics Department at the University of Florida.

A study, titled Local Food Systems in Florida: Consumer Characteristics and Economic Impacts, by Alan W. Hodges and Thomas J. Stevens of the University of Florida's Food and Resource Economics Department, estimated the total value of all food purchased annually through local market channels in 2011-2012 in Florida at $8.314 billion.

Of that, the study states, $6.079 billion was through grocery stores; $1.813 billion through farmers markets, u-pick operations and roadside stands; $320 million came through restaurants and food service; $91.2 million came through special arrangements with producers and $11.4 million through Community Supported Agriculture organizations.

The study claimed an average of $1,114 spent annually per household on local food purchases.

The study values vegetables as the largest local food category at $1.699 billion. Fruits were valued at $1.574 billion; fish at $686 million; beef at $641 million; poultry at $569 million; beverages at $541 million; prepared foods, jams or jellies at $530 million; dairy at $489 million; honey at $439 million; pork, lamb and other meats at $393 million; eggs at $372 million and nuts at $315 million.

Local food purchases in 2011-2012 in Florida were estimated by the study to lead to an economic impact of 183,625 full- and part-time jobs.

The research was based on a mail survey in the summer of 2012 to 7,500 households and had 1,599 usable responses, according to the study.

The study also notes that "there was no standard accepted geographic definition of 'local' foods among survey respondents." Some of the definitions included in the survey results were within Florida, in the respondent's county or specific city, the Southeast or within a 100-mile radius from the respondent's home.

"I think it's consumer demand," said Danielle Treadwell, an associate professor of horticultural sciences at the University of Florida, of restaurants buying locally. "I think ultimately consumers pretty much drive demand and there has been a lot of education, a lot of media attention and a lot of word of mouth."

Citing the USDA Census of Agriculture, Treadwell said there are 44,519 farms in Florida, with 93 percent being small farms.

She added numerous reports and data show most small farms sell direct to consumer, which includes selling to a restaurant.

"To me, it's a no-brainer. I really would encourage restaurateurs to work with their local farmers and ranchers," Treadwell said. "Food, we know, is a lot more nutritious when it's consumed as quickly after harvest as possible. Purchasing things from other states that require days, if not weeks, to arrive, just aren't going to taste as good."
