Ricky Helms receives supportive pats on the back Tuesday morning after being terminated as Highlands County administrator.

Helms fired

3-2 vote to terminate administrator's contract

By ED BALDRIDGE
ed.baldridge@newssun.com

SEBRING — The county commission voted 3-2 to terminate County Administrator Ricky Helms during their meeting Tuesday.

Commissioner Barbara Stewart made the motion to terminate Helm's contract immediately and received a second from Ron Handley.

Commissioners Jack Richie, Barbara Stewart and Ron Handley voted aye to terminate Helm's contract. Don Elwell and Greg Harris and voted to keep Helms.

"I did not hear anything here today that would change my evaluation," Stewart said.

The vote to terminate came on the heels of a long presentation by Helms outlining his years of service and dedication to the county.

"How do I begin to relate what the last 38 years have meant to me?" Helms said.

Tom Deemer: a captain for God and country

By CHRISTOPHER TUFFLEY
christopher.tuffley@newssun.com

SEBRING — Tom Deemer now lives at The Palms. Going on 86 he is frail, shakes with Parkinson's Disease and is confined to a wheelchair.

Once Deemer was a forceful man, not just healthy, but strong and a leader, risking his life in service to his country. He is still the kind of impressive person who awes those who know him, brave despite the ignominy of aging, retaining his dignity, modest about his achievements.

Born in 1929, Deemer was 16 years old in 1945 when he enlisted in the Marines. "My dad was a chief petty officer during World War I," he said, "all I knew were real macho people."

His parents pointed out it might be better for him finish high school, but he would have none of it — there was a war still going on.

Deemer never served overseas while a Marine. Instead, he cleaned and tested .50-caliber machine guns for men in the field. Disappointed, he said he often wondered, "What am I doing here?"

Discharged in 1946 after 10 months of service he returned to his home town of Miami, remained in the Navy reserves, finished high school and started studies at the University of Miami, where he was a nose guard on the varsity football team.

Leaving college after two years he began work with Swift & Co. selling foodstuffs, like quarters of beef.

In 1950 he was recalled to active duty serv-

Smart Girls Ministry workshop filled with dreams, lessons

By SAMANTHA GHOLAR
sgholar@newssun.com

SEBRING – It was a week filled with learning, discovery and attitude adjustments for the young ladies at Smart Girl's Ministry, Inc.

Attendees of the workshop spent the week not only soaking in knowledge but giving back to the community and those around them as well.

Smart Girl's founder Sherell Simpson was proud of the work the girls were doing throughout last week but was happy to see the girls working hard during their outreach program.

"Today we are at our community outreach project. The girls will be serving to the elderly here and reading Bible scriptures to them," Simpson said.

Along with serving and giving back, Simpson made sure that the young ladies understood the importance of education and following their dreams.

During a tour of Azure College in Sebring, the girls got to experience what it could be like if they chose to further their education beyond high school. Many of the girls will be entering their freshman year when school returns in August, so they admitted they hadn't really chosen a career path at the beginning of the tour.

Azure Assistant Director of Admissions Shirley Sawyer escorted the group through classrooms, study areas, admissions and other parts of the college to ensure they got the entire feel of the higher education world.

Smart Girls Ministry workshop attendees take a tour through a classroom at Azure College. Middle school girls got a lessen in further their education and what it takes to excel beyond high school.

The girls were able to get a close-up look and touch mannequins used for nursing and physical therapy classes.

Sawyer gave the girls some insight into what types of jobs were available with a degree from the college as well as salary ranges and study abroad programs.

Before the end of the tour a handful of the girls stated that they were now interested in pursuing a career in the medical field.

"You can't just go for a job because of the money. It's about caring for the person. It's about being like Christ and serving. You have to remember that, it's not all about the money," Simpson said.

Smart Girls Ministry wrapped up Friday after a week of lessons, enlightenment and fun.

Simpson hopes to continue the workshop each year and bring as many girls through her doors and closer to Christ and their dreams.

Death penalty sought for Fogle

Former local resident charged with killing wife in Lakeland

By ED BALDRIDGE
ed.baldridge@newssun.com

LAKELAND — Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty for a former Highlands County man who allegedly shot and killed his wife in Lakeland last year.

Jeremiah "Jerry" Fogle, 58, was charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of his wife Theresa, 56, in Sept. 18, 2011.

The case is still in the discovery phase and Fogle's attorney, assistant public defender Robert Trogolo, asked prosecutors for additional records for the defense, said Chip Thullberry, District 10 State's Attorney spokesman Monday.

"Yes, we are seeking the death penalty. Aggravating factors in the case make it legally applicable," Thullberry said.

According to reports, Theresa Fogle was found dead in the couple's living room at 740 Savannah Ave. in Lakeland along with several notes showing confessions she had sexual relations with another man.

The Polk County Sheriff's Office stated that Fogle allegedly shot his wife then traveled a block to the Greater Faith Christian Center Church in West Lakeland and shot two church leaders.

The Rev. William Boss and Rev. Carl Stewart were both shot and wounded by Fogle before members of the church could wrestle him to the ground and hold him for authorities.

Boss suffered a minor wound to the head where he was grazed by the shots and Stewart was hit in the head,

FHP ramps up patrols for holiday

Special to the News-Sun

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Highway Patrol will be out in full force during the Independence Day holiday travel period, which extends through 8 a.m. on Thursday.

"The Florida Highway Patrol is committed to making the highways a safer place to drive, by intensifying our patrol efforts to reduce the number of crashes," said FHP Director, Col. David Brierton.

"Our troopers will be on the roadways taking appropriate enforcement action to ensure public safety for Florida motorists during the holiday travel period."

All uniformed FHP personnel, including those normally assigned to administrative duties, will patrol interstates and other major state roads throughout the holiday period.

The strategy aims to increase the Patrol's presence throughout Florida in an effort to deter traffic violations and to enhance services to motorists who break down while traveling or who need other assistance.

Tire tips for driving in Florida's summer heat:

— Check your tires regularly, especially before a long trip. Remember to check tire pressure, including the spare.

— You should inspect tires for uneven wear patterns on the tread, cracks, foreign objects or other signs of wear or trauma.

— Remove bits of glass and other foreign objects wedged in the tread and make sure your tire valves have valve caps.

— For more information about maintaining your tires and ensuring they are fit for the trip, visit www.safercar.gov.

Election law draws new legal challenge

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A Florida election law passed by the Republican-led Legislature is drawing yet another legal challenge.

The American Civil Liberties Union, State Sen. Arthenia Joyner and the National Council of La Raza say that that the Secretary of State is violating state law because five counties are following different election rules than the other 62.

Last year, state legislators passed a law that curtailed early voting hours, imposed new restrictions on groups that register voters and made it harder for people to change their address on Election Day. The law was strongly opposed by Democrats and triggered a lawsuit by voter registration groups.

The changes have never taken effect in five counties — including Hillsborough, Monroe and Collier — because the law it still under review by a federal court. Federal authorities must review any voting changes impacting those five counties because of past discrimination.

In the past, state election officials would delay changes for the entire state until federal authorities had approved them. But then-Secretary of State Kurt Browning directed 62 counties to go ahead and follow the new law. It does not appear that the federal court will make a final determination on the changes until after the Aug. 14 primary election.

Now the ACLU and others want an administrative judge to order state election officials to rescind the policy.

EDITORIAL & OPINION

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

We are the ones making history now

What a glorious day. Happy 236th birthday to us. Of course, we are throwing a party.

Hamburgers and hot dogs sizzle on the grill. Bowls mounded with potato salad, platters stacked with sweet corn, and juicy pink slices of fresh cut watermelon pique appetites as families gather and the sound of children's laughter adds joy to the party.

Bunting hangs off porch railings. American flags fly proudly. Everyone dresses in red, white and blue.

Tonight, the sky fills with exploding chrysanthemums, twirling tadpoles of orange, and zooming ribbons of color booming into the sky.

This is a day we take pride in our past — each individual citizen alive to the sense of belonging to something special, being a part of a much larger whole — we are the United States of America.

We gather to give thanks to those men who made it all happen, who met during a sweltering summer in Philadelphia in 1776, who put their lives and livelihoods into danger as they agreed to "mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Despite deep differences, they joined to face great odds by declaring independence from the mightiest empire then on the earth.

These men voted to change the status quo. They dared to begin something totally new and untested, and they were willing to sacrifice in order to reach their goal.

According to an article by Ezra Taft Benson, on the website latterdayconservative.com, nine of the signers died as a direct result of the Revolutionary War and its hardships; six gave all their money to the war effort; 12 had their homes plundered and burned by the British; three of the four signers from South Carolina were imprisoned by the British for almost a year; John Morton of Pennsylvania, who voted for Independence, was ostracized by his family, friends and neighbors.

But, all this was two centuries, three decades and six years ago.

Tomorrow, July 5, is our day of reckoning — when we have to prove we are more than armchair patriots wearing stars and striped shirts at a picnic.

Tomorrow we go back to facing the challenges before us.

Will we follow in our founding fathers' footsteps and overcome our differences, finding the courage to move into an unknown future by working together?

Or, will we remain afraid of one another and new ideas, quarreling spitefully among ourselves — accomplishing nothing, only making our problems worse.

Will Thursday be the day our elected and appointed officials remember they serve the people?

Will it be the day citizens of opposite views remember we are all patriotic and work to find common ground?

Will it be the day we understand Benjamin Franklin's warning that "We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately," and heed the wisdom of Thomas Paine, who wrote, "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must, like men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it."

Or, will we not?

We are the ones making history now.

How will we be remembered 236 years from now?

Rubio's time will come

Making Sense
Michael Reagan

"Rubio, Rubio, Rubio."

You hear the chants all across the country. On talk shows, on cable TV, on blogs and in op-ed columns, everyone with a conservative bone in his body is urging presumptive GOP nominee Mitt Romney to choose the smart and dashing Marco Rubio as his vice president.

The conservative crowd's clamor for Rubio is beginning to worry me. It could backfire. For one thing, it's setting up Romney for a disaster.

If he doesn't choose Rubio — and I would agree with that decision — it's going to disappoint a lot of Republican voters who think Rubio is the key to de-electing President Obama. And when voters are disappointed, they don't show up to vote.

Don't get me wrong. Rubio is great, maybe the best young talent in the Republican draft pool. The first-term Florida senator is already a superstar and ready for the big leagues — and that's the biggest problem I have with picking him.

When you're trying to get elected president, you don't pick a superstar for your running mate. You pick someone boring, someone who is not going to eclipse you the way Sarah Palin outshined John McCain just four years ago.

I admit it wasn't hard to outshine McCain. But if he hadn't been so desperate to put some life into his lackluster campaign, he would have done the wiser thing and chosen someone even more boring than himself.

It was Reagan and Bush I. Bush I and Quayle. Clinton and Gore. Gore and ????? Whoever it was, he or she was so boring I can't remember their name. Was it Kerry? Biden?

Just joking, but you get the point. In 2000, the Bush II-Cheney ticket turned out to be a mini-mistake. Dick Cheney was so experienced and such a strong personality that he acted like a co-president for eight years, which only caused trouble for George W. Bush.

There's only room for one star on the ticket. Romney doesn't need Rubio or Chris Christie or Condi Rice, or even Paul Ryan. He needs a Tim Pawlenty, a Rob Portman or a Bob McDonnell — a non-star.

He needs someone who's a virtual unknown to the voting masses, but nonetheless experienced in governing and ready to do the VP's thankless jobs of attending funerals and waiting for the chance to break a tie vote in the Senate.

Nobody ever votes for a president because they like the VP. Romney has to be the only star. Period. He has to be the focus of the Republican ticket.

Unlike McCain, who had to appear with Palin most of the time just to draw a crowd, Romney needs to have a VP who can campaign for him elsewhere without attracting all the media attention or showing him up.

That might be hard. Mitt is not exactly known for his star power. But he doesn't need to be exciting to win the White House. He needs to show voters that he has the ideas and the governing skills to pull the economy out of the deep ditch Mr. Obama's got us stuck in.

Rubio will have his day. So will future Republican all-stars like Christie, Ryan and Bobby Jindal. The GOP has a deep bench.

But Mitt's the GOP's QB now. He's got to ignore the crowd of conservatives who want him to throw the long bomb to Rubio. He's got to call his own play for VP — and make it good but boring.

TODAY'S LETTERS

Thankful for the love, support of Highlands County

Editor:

"Be joyful always; pray continually; give thanks in all circumstances, for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesusæ (1 Thessalonians 5:16-18).

Being joyous has been difficult for our family during this situation, but I wanted to share the importance that prayer has played in our lives during this horrible tragedy. We prayed to our Lord to please let us find Aaron … and our prayers were answered. We prayed those responsible would be captured … and they were. We prayed that the Lord would provide a means to mourn the loss of Aaron ... and assistance was received to defray the burial expenses.

When you ask, you do not receive, because you ask with wrong motives, that you may spend what you get on your pleasures" (James 4:3).

Words can never say what we feel in our hearts regarding the outpouring of support from our community. With the kindness of so many, we have been able to defray the final expenses and now look toward the future. Please know we have been good stewards of your generosity and cannot begin to express how humbled we were to have met so many who gave with a Christian heart.

For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." (Galatians 5:14)

We are so thankful for the power of prayer and for those who showered us in the warmth that prayer gives to those in deep sorrow. So many friends shared memories of Aaron, shared stories of renewing their faith in God, and many have dedicated their lives for the first time. We have truly felt the love of our neighbors … and again words just seem so inadequate.

In closing, we are truly thankful for the outpouring of support and prayers during this difficult time. Moreover, we are humbled and blessed to be witness to the way God is working in the lives of so many since this tragedy has occurred. Although we know Aaron was no angel, knowing that Aaron's legacy has saved the eternal lives of his Christian brothers and sisters has given us a moment rejoice in God's plan. As days turn into months and the months turn into years, please know that our family will be forever grateful for a community who showed us unfailing love and support during our family's darkest hour.

Bishop has good understanding of post

Editor:

I support Susie Bishop in her campaign to become the next Supervisor of Elections for Highlands County. Through direct contact with her on several public boards I know how hard she works for the public good.

In recent years by attending most meetings of the county commission and its sub-committees she has gained a clear understanding of how county government works. Her jobs in the school system, several family businesses, United Way and customer service across four counties plus her college degree have equipped her to be an outstanding leader in local government. She is a very well-organized, diligent, service-oriented worker who will never compromise her honesty.

Susie has strong skills in working with the media and technology. Having been a leader in so many different roles, she relates well to people of all ages and all interests.

Voting for Susie in the August 14 Primary will be a vote for hard work, honesty and efficiency.

Sales program removes respect from difficult time

Editor:

Funerals are expensive but we all justify the expense as a way to mark the passing of a loved one with respect. (A local) cemetery takes away all dignity and respect from funerals because of their sales program.

My dad recently died and we tried to purchase cemetery plots from someone that had two plots that she bought back in 1970. The seller no longer needed them because she had moved from the area. (This) cemetery fought us and lied that these plots could not be transferred. They gave us misleading and absurd excuses about why they could not be resold.

The seller of the plots said that she had prospective purchasers previously but they seemed to just disappear. Now we know why.

(The) cemetery has a deceptive sales program that obfuscates the legitimate resale of cemetery plots and they only "allow" you to purchase their plots. I know this has happened before and I request that anyone with a similar experience report it to the Florida Division of Funeral, Cemetery Consumer Services as I have already done. Their complaint form can be found at myfloridacfo.com/funeralcemetery/fc_omplaint_form.pdf.

We were finally able to purchase the plots and to bury my dad, but only when (the cemetery) found out that we were taking legal action. All their excuses magically disappeared.

agreements behind and move forward. The termination at this time would not be in the best interest of the county administration or the taxpayers of Highlands County," Helms said.

Several supporters were encouraged by Helms to speak on his behalf and explain their thoughts to the commission.

"You are not getting anything if you terminate him and pay him the $50,000," said Ted Best, homeowner in Highlands County and owner of Best Insurance.

Best requested that Helms be held over until the end of his contract in eight months in order to bring his experience and education through this year's budget session.

"Do what is best for Highlands County by keeping him on through his contract," Best added.

"Firing Mr. Helms would cost the county more money than keeping him for the short time he has to go," said resident Dale Wilson.

"I am ashamed of this county for bringing this forth because I have worked with Mr. Helms since he was in the clerk's office way back when," said Nancy Wilson, who also pleaded for the commission to keep Helms.

Ricky Helms walks out of the county commissioners' chambers after being terminated and into the arms of many supporters, such as his seventh-grade teacher Mary Jean Reddick.

County Resident Dale Fluke took the commission to task about not allow to the public to speak during the meeting.

"This decision was going to be rammed through except for the efforts of one man," Fluke stated about the previous efforts of Commissioner Don Elwell.

Elwell made a reasoned attempt to sway commissioners at the last meeting by comparing the numbers and polling several groups.

"If we take all the actual numbers into consideration, we find that Mr. Helms is slightly above average. Not sub par," Elwell said last month.

Elwell again left the dais to support Helms, this time to make a passionate plea to swing votes of his fellow commissioners.

"With every ounce of my being, I believe this is the right decision," Elwell said in support of keeping Helms.

Elwell took an impromptu poll by asking those who wished Helm's termination, and got a scattering of participants. When Elwell asked for those who wished Helms to keep his job until the end of his contract, almost all of those in the audience stood.

"Let the man finish his contract," Elwell said. "He was and is the best man for the job."

Elwell's stirring speech still failed to sway the votes necessary when Richie called the question.

An emotional Helms thanks the people of Highlands County for allowing him to serve immediately after the vote.

Max Long upgrades complete weeks ago with the demolition of the old cement block dugouts and bleachers around each of the fields. Shortly after, Hawk Enterprises and Trinity stepped in to complete the project.

The renovation began on June 21 and wrapped on Friday, according to Hawkins.

"We installed 12 roofovers and eight spectator bleachers. They are a huge improvement to the old concrete ones. People and visitors love our fields, they always brag about them and compliment them. They only complaint we ever got was the dugouts. It was just no ventilation and they were very hot," Hawkins said.

With the new dugouts, breezes are easily circulated giving players and coaches ample ventilation and safety during the hot summer months.

For the past two days, Hawkins and the team of workers have been back at the fields for last-minute fine tuning for upcoming games and events.

"They're having opening ceremonies (for Dixie state baseball tournaments) on Friday so we are just doing last-minute checks and things, but we are basically done," Hawkins said.

The project came together at the hands of local contractors, developers and volunteers. Other companies and businesses added their contribution to the project, some even at no cost.

Angel Mota of Hawk Enterprises works to install new dugouts recently at the Max Long Recreational Complex in Sebring.

"Carl Cool of Cool Engineering up in Avon Park, he did all the planning and engineering at no cost. He said to me, 'Well if it's for the ball fields I'll help, I'll do it. My grandson plays out there,'" Hawkins said.

Other volunteers, including Dixie Youth Baseball coaches, affiliates, players and family members all did their part to ensure the improvements went smoothly.

"I truly believe that there is no way this job would've gotten done with any outside contractors. It's all be done by local workers. I know the concrete guy, I know the fencing guy. The city worked great with us. We had so much cooperation, they got the purchase orders out in a timely manner. Andrew Bible, who works with Dixie Youth, he's just a blessing to work with. Everybody got along and it just made the job easy to get done," said Hawkins.

Improvements to the complex were completed through an interlocal agreement between the county and the city. Each of the three parties (the third being Dixie Youth) contributed a percentage of funds to complete the renovations.

"The city needs to continue this, in my opinion. Keep the work here, keep the money here. They should use local business and contractors instead of outside bids," Hawkins said. "They (kids) deserve this. Those kids are talented and have made us proud. They will likely continue winning and bringing a name to this community and this county."

Beloved actor Andy Griffith dies at 86

Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — Andy Griffith, who made homespun Southern wisdom his trademark as the wise sheriff in "The Andy Griffith Show" and the rumpled defense lawyer in "Matlock," died Tuesday. He was 86.

Griffith died about 7 a.m. at his coastal home, Dare County Sheriff Doug Doughtie said in a statement.

"Mr. Griffith passed away this morning at his home peacefully and has been laid to rest on his beloved Roanoke Island," Doughtie told The Associated Press, reading from a family statement.

The family will release further information, the sheriff said.

He had suffered a heart attack and underwent quadruple bypass surgery in 2000.

Griffith

Griffith's career spanned more than a half-century on stage, film and television, but he would always be best known as Sheriff Andy Taylor in the television show set in a North Carolina town not too different from Griffith's own hometown of Mount Airy, N.C.

Griffith set the show in the fictional town of Mayberry, N.C., where Sheriff Taylor was the dutiful nephew who ate pickles that tasted like kerosene because they were made by his loving Aunt Bee, played by the late Frances Bavier. He was a widowed father who offered gentle guidance to son Opie, played by Ron Howard, who grew up to become the Oscar-winning director of "A Beautiful Mind."

Griffith's "pursuit of excellence and the joy he took in creating served generations and shaped my life," Howard tweeted. "I'm forever grateful."

Don Knotts was the goofy Deputy Barney Fife, while Jim Nabors joined the show as Gomer Pyle, the unworldly, lovable gas pumper.

On "Matlock," which aired from 1986 through 1995, Griffith played a cagey Harvard-educated defense attorney who was Southern-bred and -mannered with a practice in Atlanta.

In his rumpled seersucker suit in a steamy courtroom (air conditioning would have spoiled the mood), Matlock could toy with a witness and tease out a confession like a folksy Perry Mason.

The character — lawabiding, fatherly and lovable — was much like Sheriff Andy Taylor with silver hair and a shingle.

In a 2007 interview with The Associated Press, Griffith said "The Andy Griffith Show," which initially aired from 1960 to 1968, was seen somewhere in the world every day. A reunion movie, "Return to Mayberry," was the top-rated TV movie of the 1985-86 season.

"The Andy Griffith Show" was a loving portrait of the town where few grew up but many wished they did — a place where all foibles are forgiven and friendships are forever.

ice, at "the convenience of the government" and reassigned to the army, entering as a private. Within three months, he was promoted to corporal and months after that promoted to sergeant. Then he was selected for Officer Candidates School.

Training at Fort Benning, he became Ranger qualified and attended leadership school.

Assigned to the 82nd Airborne, he was shipped to Korea in 1951 as a second lieutenant, then promoted to first lieutenant, becoming a company commander. He lead daily patrols, and was awarded a combat infantryman's badge, master parachutist wings, two bronze stars, a silver star and a purple heart.

Asked about combat service in Korea, Deemer's immediate response was, "Hot and cold. It was 100 and something during the summer and like the North Pole in winter. There was a big controversy over (what was nicknamed) the Mickey Mouse boot," he added. "It was supposed to keep your feet warm, but they made your feet sweat, so they froze, and it didn't take long neither."

Returning to Miami in 1953, Deemer joined the National Guard.

Called up once more for active duty service in 1957, again "at the convenience of the government," he was sent to Fort Benning to train troops.

A big shift in combat insertion tactics occurred after Korea. Helicopter design advanced to the point they replaced gliders and cut back on parachuting.

This meant, however, that troops, and those who led them, had to be trained in the new ways. There were no lesson plans on how to go about it, however. Deemer wrote those lesson plans.

He had become an expert in the changes because of his experience and education, having attended advanced infantry schools and been certified as an Air Force combat controller. Called Pathfinders, these controllers went in ahead of a operation to guide the advancing troops.

"He had more experience than anyone in the Army," said his friend, Vietnam vet Jack Turbeville. "You should see all the letters of commendation he received for his work, all excellents and outstandings."

Deemer's work took on critical importance during Vietnam as the war escalated.

At Fort Benning, the Army stepped up troop training in the small team insertion tactics needed for Vietnam using Deemer's plans. His work continued saving lives long after he separated from the service in 1962.

That was not the end of Deemer's contributions to his fellow soldiers. He became a minister after leaving the service.

Settling in Highlands County at Buttonwood Bay, Turbeeville said Deemer founded the church in that community. He also became the chaplain for the Vietnam Veterans of the Heartland and American Legion Post 74.

Vietnam veterans have not been well treated by their fellow citizens, Turbeville said, even by veterans of World War II and Korea, who for the most part don't consider Vietnam a war. This meant Deemer's work as a chaplain has been all the more important.

"He's a captain in God's army now," Turbeville said.

Red Cross offers tips for a safe Fourth of July holiday

Many people will visit the beach, enjoy fireworks, or fire up the grill for a backyard barbecue to celebrate Independence Day.

"The American Red Cross wants everyone to have a happy — and safe — Fourth of July holiday, and taking a few simple steps to stay safe can help ensure that this will be an enjoyable holiday for all," said Karen Hagan, Regional Executive Officer, American Red Cross Mid-Florida Region.

Beach safety

If swimming in the ocean is part of someone's holiday plans, they should check the weather and water conditions beforehand and throughout the day, swim only at a lifeguard-protected beach within the designated swimming area and obey all safety rules. Avoid alcohol before and during any water activities and make sure to never swim alone.

Other tips to keep in mind:

— Actively supervise children at all times, even if a lifeguard is present. Stay within arm's reach of young children when they are in the water.

— Have weak swimmers wear a Coast Guard-approved life jacket. Don't rely on water wings or inflatable toys.

— Always enter shallow water feet first. Dive only in areas marked safe for diving.

Rip currents

Be aware of the danger of rip currents and remember the following:

— If caught in a rip current, swim parallel to the shore until out of the current. Once free, turn and swim toward shore.

— If someone can't swim to the shore, they should shout for help, float or tread water until free of the rip current and then head toward shore.

— Stay at least 100 feet away from piers and jetties. Permanent rip currents often exist near these structures.

Additional water safety tips are located at redcross.org/watersafetytips.

Fireworks safety

Nothing says "Fourth of July" like fireworks. To help stay safe while enjoying them, follow these safety steps:

— Never give fireworks to small children and always follow the instructions on the packaging.

— Keep a supply of water close by as a precaution.

— Make sure the person lighting fireworks always wears eye protection.

— Light only one firework at a time and never attempt to relight "a dud."

— Store fireworks in a cool, dry place away from children and pets.

— Never throw or point fireworks toward people, animals, vehicles, structures or flammable materials.

— Stay at least 500 feet away from professional fireworks displays.

— Leave any area immediately where untrained amateurs are using fireworks.

Watch the sun

Everyone should limit the amount of direct sunlight they receive between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., and apply broad-spectrum sunscreen with a protection factor of at least 15 throughout the day. Drink plenty of water and avoid drinks with alcohol or caffeine in them. Wear sunglasses that will absorb UV sunlight to protect one's eyes. And remember to protect one's feet by wearing some kind of beach shoes.

Grilling safety

If a picnic and grilled goodies are part of someone's holiday plans, they should follow these steps:

— Always watch the barbecue grill when in use.

— Never grill indoors – not in a house, camper, tent or any enclosed area.

— Make sure children and pets stay away from the grill.

— Keep the grill out in the open, away from the house, the deck, tree branches or anything that could catch fire.

— Use the long-handled tools especially made for cooking on the grill to keep the chef safe.

— Never add charcoal starter fluid when coals have already been ignited.

— Always follow the manufacturer's instructions when using grills.

Fogle faces death penalty in shooting death of wife shoulder and back and was found dead in February in his home after several months of therapy, according to Carrie S. Eleazer, Public Information Officer for the PCSO.

Charges of attempted murder still stand in the shooting of Boss and Stewart at this point, according to the State's Attorney's Office in Bartow.

"We have not made a determination on the Stewart charges," Thullberry said.

Records from the Highlands County Sheriff's Office show that Fogle was charged with first-degree murder in October of 1986 in Highlands County for the shooting death of his wife Diane Fogle.

Jeremiah Fogle plea bargained that case down to first degree manslaughter in January of 1987, stayed 26 days in jail, paid a $500 fine and served 10 years probation.

He married Theresa Fogle in 2002.

Thullberry also confirmed on Monday that no trial date has been set yet.

Amazing Race raises funds for Children's Museum

By ED BALDRIDGE
ed.baldridge@newssun.com

SEBRING — Nine teams competed for cash prizes and bragging rights on Saturday in the Amazing Race for the Children's Museum.

The annual fundraising race consisted of 16 challenges, both physical and mental, that teams of two had to complete while timed by judges. The challenges were located all over Highlands County and included events like s'more stacking and sod laying .

Team Dressel, consisting of husband and wife team Scott and Kelly Dressel, took the top honors and collected the $300 top prize.

"It was a lot of fun," Scott Dressel, the News-Sun editor, said Monday. "We have done it all three years and every year it is a blast. I hope more teams sign up next year."

The race depends heavily on teamwork as well as working out clues and riddles in order to find the next challenge envelope.

"It is not a matter of the fastest time, it is finishing closest to the allotted times," said Linda Crowder, director of the Children's Museum and event organizer during the briefing on Saturday.

Crowder tests each challenge out herself and sets a time for accomplishing it on one try and moving to the next challenge. She discourages teams from speeding, so the fastest time is not always the winner.

"Everyone who does this comments on how challenging and fun this is. Every year we get a new story about how challenging something has been," Crowder said.

Team Homes by Handley substitutes Chuck Waltman and Chris Mellow took second place. The team donated the prize money of $150 back to the Childern's Museum, according to Crowder.

The Mommanators, Mary Beth Przychocki and last minute substitute Meghan Williams, captured third place and the $75 cash. The original team member, Stephanie Bowyer, was out sick the morning of the race.

Chef's Corner

Tim Spain

You eat with your eyes first

I'm excited you joined me again for the Chef's Corner. This week I want to write about having fun with your food, and I don't mean playing in it!

I believe that a Chef is an artist who creates art to be consumed by the audience. So making your food look appetizing, not just taste great, is a very important part of the cooking process. After all, we eat with our eyes first.

For me, I start thinking about how to plate the dish while I'm preparing it. I take in consideration the shapes of foods, the colors and textures. Consider if you had a mound of mashed potatoes on a plate, then it would look nice if you leaned your vegetables against it to add height. Asparagus is perfect for that.

Symmetry is also important when making a plate presentation. Balance bright colors against bland colors and be sure to have an odd number of items on a plate. Fresh herbs as a garnish will freshen and add color to your plate presentations.

A rosemary sprig is a the perfect accompaniment for mashed potatoes and finely chopped chives sprinkled over a piece of chicken or fish add taste and color.

This week I have a trivia question for you: What are the five mother sauces in Haute Cuisine? Post your answers in the News-Sun "Comments" section below this article or on the FHHeartland Facebook page.

I have a great recipe for you this week. Not Your Mama's Chicken Pot Pie is sure to impress

EGGS AROUND THE CLOCK

FAMILY FEATURES

Eggs have been the star ingredient in breakfast dishes for centuries, and Americans are becoming more interested in new uses for eggs that extend beyond the morning hours.

In fact, a recent survey, conducted by Harris Interactive on behalf of Eggland's Best, found that 64 percent of Americans would follow a new food trend using eggs as a topping. In addition, more than one out of five indicated brunch or dinner as their favorite meal time to serve eggs.

"Eggs are so versatile and one of my favorite ingredients to cook with," said Candice Kumai, celebrity chef and cookbook author. "I always keep my fridge stocked with Eggland's Best eggs to ensure my recipes come out consistent and tasting phenomenal."

When it comes to cooking, Kumai also follows a "Foods with Benefits" philosophy, which is why Eggland's Best can be found in many of her recipes. Compared to ordinary eggs, they contain twice the amount of omega-3s and vitamin D, and 10 times more vitamin E.

At-home chefs can get cracking in the kitchen with these egg dishes created by Kumai. Find additional egg recipes and tips from Candice Kumai at www.egglandsbest.com.

Skinny 3-Veg Scramble

The Harris Interactive survey found 34 percent of Americans prefer to prepare their eggs scrambled. This delicious and healthy scramble recipe is a go-to for Candice Kumai.

Sunnyside Stuffed Baked Potatoes

Loaded with some of Candice Kumai's favorite "Foods with Benefits," this recipe is ideal for the one out of six Americans who revealed in the Harris Interactive survey that they would top a potato with an egg first.

Makes 4 servings

- 4 large russet potatoes
- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
- 1 small yellow onion, finely chopped
- 1 cup baby bella mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups spinach
- Non-stick cooking spray
- 4 large Eggland's Best eggs
- 1 teaspoon fennel seed

Scrub skin of potatoes, dry well. Poke 5 holes in each potato with fork and place in 400°F oven, approximately 1 hour.

In medium skillet over medium heat, add olive oil and onion; cook for 8 minutes. Lower heat, add mushrooms, salt, and pepper; stir about 5 minutes. Toss in spinach; cook until wilted, 2 minutes.

Cook sunnyside eggs in a lightly coated medium non-stick skillet over medium heat. After 2 minutes sprinkle eggs with fennel seed; cook until yolk is medium.

Cut a horizontal slit into each potato. Stuff with spinach and mushroom mixture and gently top with an egg.

Summer Squash & Mushroom Frittata

More than one-third of Americans stated vegetables as their favorite ingredient to pair with eggs, according to the Harris Interactive survey, which makes this recipe a crowd pleaser.

Makes 6 servings

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 cup onion, chopped
- 1/2 cup sliced button mushrooms
- 1/2 red bell pepper, thinly sliced
- 1 cup summer squash, thinly sliced
- 6 large Eggland's Best eggs, beaten well
- 1 teaspoon basil
- 1 teaspoon tarragon
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- 1 Roma tomato, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup shredded Asiago cheese

Coat non-stick, oven-proof skillet with olive oil; heat on stove over medium heat. Add onion and mushrooms; sauté 8 to10 minutes or until soft. Add bell pepper and squash; cook 3 to 4 minutes.

In mixing bowl, combine eggs, basil, tarragon and sea salt; mix well. Pour egg mixture over mushrooms and onions in pan.

Reduce heat to medium-low. When eggs begin to set, gently run a heat-proof spatula around edge of skillet. Cook until eggs are firm. While eggs are cooking, pre-heat oven broiler to medium-high.

Remove skillet from heat; place tomato slices on top of frittata, and sprinkle cheese. Place under oven broiler for a few minutes, until cheese is melted.

Alcoholic feels he doesn't deserve the love of his life

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: I am a 39-year-old gay man in a three-year relationship with a wonderful man. We had both come out of very long and abusive relationships when we met. He works hard, and I stay home and take care of the house, the animals and the yard. There is no kind of abuse in our relationship.

The problem is that I am an alcoholic. He keeps telling me he can handle it as long as there is no abuse. I feel I'm taking advantage of him and that he deserves better than this, and I have told him so.

I have been in rehab several times and tried AA. Nothing worked. I always go back to drinking. Where do I go from here? I don't want to lose the love of my life, but it's killing me inside that he has to put up with my drinking problem.

– Needs Help in Florida

Dear Needs Help: There is abuse going on in your relationship – substance abuse. Until you finally decide that there is something more important than a drink, you will remain stuck in your addiction. And as long as your partner continues to accept and "handle it," he will be your enabler. Where you go from here is up to you, but getting counseling for your low self-esteem and going back to AA would be giant steps in the right direction.

Dear Abby: It seems that every other letter you print concerns a demanding relative (a parent, in-law, sibling, etc.). The writer always wants to know how to avoid unreasonable demands without causing "unpleasantness." May I say a word to these folks?

Be honest and admit that the relationship is already unpleasant. Demanding people are impossible to please. They know their control over you depends on temper tantrums and/or fits of sulking and tears. They'll pitch these fits regularly no matter how hard you try to please them.

When faced with an unreasonable demand, just say "no." Don't waste time giving reasons or trying to work out a compromise. You already know it won't do any good.

Then hunker down and wait for the explosion, keeping in mind that the longer you have been a doormat, the more violent and bitter the reaction will be.

Above all, do not be drawn into a fight. Controlling people love to fight, and they are good at it. Your weapon should be polite withdrawal. Refuse meetings. Screen your calls. Ignore letters and emails unless they contain an apology and indicate a sincere desire for change. It may shock your domineering relatives into more reasonable behavior.

If not, you haven't lost a thing. You may even find that your life is less complicated without them.

Draw the line and let your family know that future relationships will be based on love and respect, or there will be no future relations. You won't regret it.

– Been There, Done That, Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear Been There: People who have spent a lifetime trying to please others may find your recommendations difficult to put into practice.

Habits can become so entrenched that they are hard to break without coaching and positive reinforcement. That is why I advise those who feel constantly put upon to consider taking classes in assertiveness training.

Confidential to My Readers: Have a happy, healthy and safe Fourth of July, everyone!

Declare your independence

FLY Lady
Leanne Ely

In the United States of America we celebrate the anniversary of our Independence Day each 4th of July. The other night a young new reporter said that this was the day we won the war for independence. I thought Robert and I were going to scream our heads off at the TV. We just looked at each other in shock.

We were taught in school that July 4, 1776 was the day the 13 colonies declared their independence from Great Britain. The Boston Tea Party was in December 1773; this was the beginning of our quest for this independence. The battles raged on various fronts all across the 13 Free and Independent States until late 1782.

I woke up this morning to this essay brewing in my head. We all have our own independence days. We don't just wake up one morning and we are free of the stress that is holding us in bondage. We have to declare at least to ourselves that we don't want to live this way another day and set out on our journey to find the peace that we so deserve.

In our perfectionism we just want it to wave our magic wand and have our houses in order, but that is not the real world. We have to go through the struggles to feel the value in what we are doing. This is why it is so important for us to be a part of the independence process. We have to be the one taking charge of our homes.

Let's face it; if someone came in and got rid of all of our clutter we would still be living in CHAOS within just a few days. This is because we had not established the simple habits to keep the clutter from coming back. It takes time and practice to establish these simple habits and string them into routines. The smallest habits help us to win this battle on a daily basis.

Just last night I was talking to a good friend. He was telling me how much having a before bed routine had changed his life. He said that he could no longer go to bed without putting his clothes out for the next day and straightening up his hot spots.

I explained to him that I felt that the Before Bed Routine was the most important one of the day. He agreed with me because if he only does his Before Bed Routine his life runs smoothly.

Our routines free us from the bondage of CHAOS. Your Independence Day was the day you decided to join us in our quest for peace. Every day we have a choice. We can get up and do our routines or we can allow CHAOS to continue to reign in our lives. Every day is a new day. We can jump in right where we are and take the babysteps of our daily habits to celebrate the victory of each day.

Now I am in tears. My sweet darling told me a little proverb. For the want of a nail a horseshoe was lost. For the want of a horseshoe, a horse was lost. For the want of a horse, a horseman was lost. For the want of a horseman the battle was lost and thus the country was lost.

I looked it up and it is a nursery rhyme and it was also quoted by Benjamin Franklin. How appropriate that we come full circle in our thoughts. Since Ben also signed the Declaration of Independence.

"For the want of a nail, the shoe was lost; for the want of a shoe the horse was lost; and for the want of a horse the rider was lost, being overtaken and slain by the enemy, all for the want of care about a horseshoe nail." – Benjamin Franklin

So you see even the simplest of habits can make a difference in the way your day progresses.

Every habit is a nail to hold your routines together to form the foundation for peace in your life.

You can do this. You have to start someplace. Go shine your sink. That can be your Declaration of Independence.

CNN's Anderson Cooper: 'The fact is, I'm gay'

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Anderson Cooper revealed on Monday that he is gay, ending years of reluctance to talk about his personal life in public.

The CNN journalist wrote in an online letter that he had kept his sexual orientation private for personal and professional reasons, but came to think that remaining silent had given some people a mistaken impression that he was ashamed.

"The fact is, I'm gay, always have been, always will be, and I couldn't be any more happy, comfortable with myself and proud," he wrote in the letter, published by Andrew Sullivan of the Daily Beast.

Cooper, the son of Gloria Vanderbilt, had long been the subject of rumors about his sexual orientation. He said that in a perfect world, it wouldn't be anyone's business, but that there is value in "standing up and being counted."

"I still consider myself a reserved person and I hope this doesn't mean an end to a small amount of personal space," he wrote.

"But I do think visibility is important, more important than preserving my reporter's shield of privacy."

CNN said it would not comment, and that Cooper was on assignment and there were no plans for Cooper to discuss it on the air.

Few national television news reporters have publicly acknowledged being gay, with MSNBC's Rachel Maddow and CNN's Don Lemon perhaps the best known.

Cooper's show, "Anderson Cooper 360," received an award this year from the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation.

"Even prior to coming out publicly, Anderson's terrific work has raised awareness of inequalities facing LGBT people, said GLAAD President Herndon Graddick. "He's a role model to millions and now will inspire countless others."

SEBRING — If you travel to the northern part of the county and then head east you will come upon a spot down the road, that perhaps most of the population doesn't even know exists.

Several members of the Sebring Garden Club recently had the opportunity to visit this special place.

A piece of land called "Parrish Island" named after Lieutenant Vinten Parrish, the man responsible for its creation.

If you stay a while, you might find yourself lulled by the peaceful, tranquil surroundings.

A space of five acres filled with both native and exotic plants. Blooms and beauty all around you!

Sounds of nature made by red shoulder hawks and native birds. Squirrels, deer, wild turkeys, turtle and of course, butterflies can be seen everywhere.

Water trickles here and there under stone pathways and flows around the island. A gazebo with benches and tables make it easy to just sit, relax and relish the beauty of nature.

But, this is not only God's work. This beautiful place is a work in progress started in the early 1960's as a non-profit nursery, with little State funding and very little expense to the taxpayer.

The primary purpose was to keep inmates busy and to supply plants for the prison grounds at Avon Park Correctional Institute.

With the help of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs and its 12 districts, the nursery has grown to be a training program supplying thousands of plants for a wide variety of beautification projects.

Pat Shira, a member of FFGC, is the chairman for this special program, and assists Officer Tommy Sauls in raising funds and purchasing needed materials. Shira spends a great deal of time helping the program expand and grow.

The name of the project is "Therapy thru Plants". At present 17 men work five days a week, tending the plants and grounds. They are overseen by Sauls, who like his volunteers, takes special pride in the area.

Sauls has been in charge of the nursery program for a little more than two years and has made tremendous progress.

The men each have a special task. Some make compost, some irrigate plants and others work to identify a species. Others prune the plants and repot when needed.

There are five greenhouses, two shade houses and a potting shed. Filled with both small and large plantings and seedlings of every species. I want to add that this program is the only one of its kind in the state of Florida.

Some of the many varieties of plants include ornamentals, orchids, ferns, begonias, shade plants and native Florida plants.

The inmates have more than 500 books in their botanical library and classes are taught by local garden clubs and professionals give on job training.

When I spoke with the men and asked why they became involved with "Therapy thru Plants," I received a variety of answers.

For some it was self-gratification and the feeling of accomplishment. For another, being in the peaceful surroundings helped them forget where they are presently housed, giving them some hope for the future with the knowledge they have gained from the program.

Yet others said they have always liked gardening and credit their moms with peaking their interest as a child. Others also liked the feeling of the teamwork and completion of a task, being able to see the fruits of their work.

Most were hopeful that this program will be the promise of a job and a way to make a living upon their release.

APCI Warden Alan Chapman spoke in positive and glowing words at the success of the program and the accomplishments of Sauls. Chapman was quoted as saying, "It's all positive, and these men take pride in their work here. I am in full support of the program."

Some of the benefits for inmates are physical fitness, emotional fitness and spiritual fitness. Since the inception of the program there have been six supervisors. Named, "Therapy thru Plants" by Haywood Williams, who served as supervisor for 20 years, because he saw the calming effect working at the nursery with the plants had on inmates and thus came the name. The goal of this program is to teach these men and when they are released, never see them again.

Two times a year the public is invited to the nursery for its plant sale.

In the spring and fall you will find a wonderful variety of all types and all sizes of plants. From small trees to hanging baskets, succulents, exotic plants and all types of ferns. The prices are great too.

Any local community donations would be greatly appreciated as more greenhouses and supplies are always needed for the program.

Rotary learns about Wrede Wildlife Rehabilitation operations

Special to the News-Sun

LAKE PLACID – The Lake Placid Noon Rotary presented a check for $500 to David Wrede from Wrede's Wildlife Rehabilitation Center during the lunch meeting on June 28 at Beef O'Brady's in Lake Placid. Funds for the donation were raised during the annual Wild Game Dinner held in December.

Wrede shared photos of some of the animals he has cared for at the center over the years. He says that Thunder, the Bald Eagle, is the most famous of his animals. Thunder has lived at the center since 1997 when he was found in Lake Wales after being shot with a pellet gun. Thunder cannot be released back into the wild; he is unable to hunt since he is blind in one eye.

Although Thunder did not accompany Wrede on this trip, he is seen frequently at events and meetings around town. Using Thunder's dietary habits as an example, Wrede pointed out that two rodents a day, seven days a week, at $3.50 per rodent adds up to a lot of chow. The center is a non-profit agency and exists solely on donations. The $500 will certainly be used wisely.

The Wildlife Center has been in operation in Sebring since 1986 when Wrede and his wife Karen took in an injured opossum to raise for release. Wrede was quick to point out that wild animals are dangerous and injured wildlife is even more dangerous. The center accepts calls from the public regarding wildlife and does its best to treats injuries and release those animals back to the wild.

Recent storms brought an abundance of fledgling birds to the center, and Wrede and his wife have been kept extremely busy. Wrede's Wildlife Center is at 4820 Wilderness Trail in Sebring and while not open to the public, they do welcome visitors and will offer a tour. Call 385-2770 for information or to report injured wildlife.

'Ted' outstrips 'Mike' in big box-office weekend

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's both a bear and bull market for Hollywood.

The bear is "Ted," Mark Wahlberg and Seth MacFarlane's comedy for Universal Pictures about a talking teddy bear, which opened as the No. 1 movie with $54.1 million, according to studio estimates Sunday.

And the bulls are baring it in the Warner Bros. release "Magic Mike," Channing Tatum and Steven Soderbergh's male-stripper tale that debuted a strong No. 2 with $39.2 million.

The two new movies were backed by a deep bench, with Pixar Animation's Disney fairy tale "Brave" holding up well at No. 3 with $34 million in its second weekend. "Tyler Perry's Madea's Witness Protection," the latest from the dependable breadwinner for Lionsgate Films, opened solidly at No. 4 with $26.4 million.

The four movies combined to keep Hollywood in the money compared to the same weekend last year, when "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" launched with $97.9 million.

It was an equally big weekend overseas, where two huge franchises got a head-start on their U.S. openings.

The 20th Century Fox animated sequel "Ice Age: Continental Drift" opened with $78 million in 34 inter-

PBS film 'The City Dark' laments vanishing night sky

By DAVID BAUDER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — New York pedestrians tend not to look up too much for fear of being mistaken for tourists gawking at skyscrapers. Ian Cheney gazed toward the heavens and got a film out of it.

Cheney's documentary, "The City Dark," is an unexpected walk through the implications of well-lit cities. It airs Thursday at 10 p.m. EDT on most PBS stations, part of the "POV" film series that is marking its 25th season on the air this year.

The filmmaker, who grew up in rural Maine and has lived in Brooklyn for three years, noticed how few stars he could see in the night sky above the city because of nighttime lighting, certainly compared with what he was used to.

"It was surprising when I came to realize how much it was affecting me, how much of a sense of loss I felt," he said.

He pointed his camera upward. Cheney's original idea was to explore what the disappearing night sky meant to astronomers who had to search for more remote locations to get clear views for their telescopes. He found astronomer Irve Robbins, who runs an observatory in Staten Island, who said, "I've seen the Milky Way twice — when there were blackouts."

Cheney's research took him to interesting new places, however, where urban lighting had unanticipated consequences.

For generations, sea turtles that hatch on the beach in Florida have instinctively sought out the starlit horizon of the ocean and headed for water. Now, thousands are being confused by glowing skies from artificial light and are heading the wrong way, and don't survive.

A scientist in Chicago showed Cheney file cabinets with thousands of bird carcasses. The migrating birds had become confused by city lights and slammed into closed windows, killing themselves.

He talked to Suzanne Goldklang, who worked an overnight shift in a well-lit television studio selling jewelry for a shopping channel. She has breast cancer, and has learned about research that is finding people who work night shifts exposed to a lot of artificial light face an increased cancer risk.

The film reflects Cheney's personal journey making it.

"Many times you start out with a script and just fill in the blanks," he said. "In this case, I had to shoot a lot of footage because I didn't know what direction it was going to take."

Reminiscent of the early conservation movement, excessive nighttime lighting is quietly becoming an issue in many communities where regulations are being passed to curb the practice. After one was passed in Bar Harbor, Maine, Cheney's parents (who live in Waldoboro, a few hours south), installed a cap on a security light outside of their barn so the light was only reflecting downward.

"I came to realize that light pollution represents an insidious danger to our society," he said, "not one that makes buildings fall down or leads us into immediate financial ruin, but one that affects us culturally and spiritually in ways that I thought were important to explore."

One bonus in the film is its cool, hypnotic music, made by a college friend of Cheney's who performs under the name The Fishermen Three.

A star-spangled quiz

Whether your car radio is usually tuned to hip-hop or blaring country music, there's something about patriotic songs that unites Americans of all stripes. The national anthem played over a crackling speaker at the little-league ball field, the familiar notes of "Taps" played at a funeral or the sound of a chorus singing "This Land Is My Land" at an elementary-school assembly — these are the moments that bring together Americans, even when so many other things tear us apart.

The same goes for patriotic movies — films that stir up national pride with their flag-waving, bunting-draped tributes to the American ideal. They present triumphs over political corruption, victories on the battlefield and the defeat of alien invaders … or whatever.

Here, we've collected trivia about music and movies that call to mind all the things that America stands for — or, in the case of some of films, try to, anyway. Test your knowledge of patriotic song lyrics (bet you don't know much of the national anthem's fourth verse), your recall of presidential performers, your familiarity with the history of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and more.

— Becky Sher, McClatchy-Tribune

OH SAY, CAN YOU SING?

You know "The Star-Spangled Banner" well enough to mumble along, but how well do you know the lyrics to some other patriotic tunes? Here are four of the most well-loved patriotic songs — can you match each one to some of its lesser-known lyrics? We've started out with some easy ones, to build your confidence.

5 "May God thy gold refine/Till all successes be nobleness/And ev'ry gain divine"

6 "O thus be it ever when freemen shall stand/Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation!"

7 "I have seen Him in the watch- fires of a hundred circling camps"

8 "Let music swell the breeze/And ring from all the trees/Sweet freedom's song"

You cover your heart and sing along with the national anthem at baseball games all summer long. But how much do you know about the history behind the tune? Find out by answering these true-or-false questions.

1 Francis Scott Key was inspired to write "The Star-Spangled Banner" during the Civil War.

2 The flag referred to in the song was flying over Fort McHenry near Baltimore.

3 Key wrote the song's melody, as well as its lyrics.

4 After Key wrote his song, he kept it secret for several years before releasing it.

5 "The Star-Spangled Banner" became the national anthem in the late 19th century.

6 The song has four verses.

7 The U.S. Army and Navy considered the song the national anthem for ceremonial purposes before it was officially designated as such.

8 During the playing of the national anthem, men (except those in military uniform) should hold their hat over their heart.

9 Baltimore flagmaker Mary Pickersgill was commissioned by the U.S. government to make the flag that inspired Key's lyrics.

10 The original "Star-Spangled Banner" is now displayed at Fort McHenry.

ANSWERS:

1. False. Key wrote the lyrics to "The Star-Spangled Banner" during the War of 1812.

2. True. Key was inspired to write the words during the Battle of Baltimore, in September 1814.

3. False. Key directed that the words be set to a British tune called "To Anacreon in Heaven."

4. False. Key wrote the words in September, and the poem was printed almost immediately on handbills. Two Baltimore newspapers published it, and by mid-October, 17 newspapers had printed it.

5. False. It became the nation's official anthem in 1931.

6. True.

Call them what you will — patriotic, nationalistic, jingoistic. Can you match these memorable movie quotes with the actor and his character?

1 "Americans love a winner and will not tolerate a loser. Americans play to win all the time. I wouldn't give a hoot in hell for a man who lost and laughed. That's why Americans have never lost and never will lose a war, because the very thought of losing is hateful to Americans."

2 "Why should I agree to trade one tyrant three thousand miles away for three thousand tyrants one mile away?"

3 "Liberty's too precious a thing to be buried in books. … Men should hold it up in front of them every single day of their lives and say: I'm free to think and to speak. My ancestors couldn't, I can, and my children will. Boys ought to grow up remembering that."

4 "This is a revolution … We're going to have to offend SOMEbody!"

5 "I'm here to fight for truth, and justice, and the American way."

6 "When you end up killing one of your men, you see, you tell yourself it happened so you could save the lives of two or three or 10 others. Maybe a hundred others."

7 "I've often been asked … what was the best moment for me. Well, it was here — the sight of 20 young men of such differing backgrounds now standing as one. Young men willing to sacrifice so much of themselves all for an unknown."

8 "People say that if you don't love America, then get the hell out. Well, I love America."

9 "Victory belongs to those who believe in it the most and believe in it the longest. We're gonna believe. We're gonna make America believe, too."

LAKE PLACID — The Sunday Movie Matinee on June 24 was a "Joyful Noise," with Queen Latifah, Dolly Parton, Keke Palmer and Jeremy Jordan. Despite all the rain, there was a nice attendance. Nu-Hope sponsors these monthly movies with the donations going to elder care services in our area. Cake and coffee were enjoyed by all. Sunday, while we were in the clubhouse, we did not realize that there were tornadoes all around us due to Hurricane Debby. Now that is scary.

Brenda and Rick Knoche made the coffee for the Monday morning meeting. They also served the doughnuts, courtesy of Charlie Price for his 89th birthday. We also sang Happy Birthday to Dorothy Deuel on her 94th birthday with the accompaniment of Laura Bailie on the piano. Our emcee was Peggy Sue Teague on this rainy morning. She asked our Sunshine Lady, Carol Noel, to announce the convalescence in our park: We were glad to see that Emily Snider was back from her back surgery; Jim TenBroeke and Jean Chittenden are home from their hospital stays; John Echelberry and George Susco are still in the hospital but doing better; Jeanne and Ken Sylvia's son, Dale, was in an accident and is in the hospital. Brenda Knoche thanked everyone who came by to the movie, especially since we had such hard rain storms.

Thursday at 3:30 p.m. will be the practice of the Gospel Chorus. If you like to sing, join the group. I'm sure singing gospel music will be an enjoyable activity. Donna Frye and Lorraine Garner will be our leaders. Seeing the movie, "Joyful Noise," was a good influence on all since we are starting our gospel chorus.

The Red Hatters are going to the restaurant, Salsa, on Thursday, July 12 in Lake Placid. Marysue Willeke and Jean Noyes are making the arrangements.

The Ladies Lunch Out is going to be a new restaurant, The Garden Cafe, McLane's Country Garden, downtown Sebring's new eatery on Tuesday, July 17. This should be enjoyable if it doesn't rain. The men, the Mustangs, are going to the Sebring Diner for their lunch out.

The Ladies Coffee was June 26. All 13 of us arrived in between showers. Marilyn Cromer led us in a rendition of "You Are My Sunshine, My Only Sunshine," making us all feel better. Dottie Deuel brought homemade brownies for a treat for her 94th birthday. Of course we sang Happy Birthday to Dottie. We discussed all the plans for this coming month's activities.

Pancake breakfast is Saturday, July 7, just three days after the big Fourth of July. Don't forget. Bring your place setting, money and an appetite. Then, the following Tuesday we will have a big spaghetti dinner with the salad bar luncheon. Won't that be a treat?

Monday it was good to see that Derek and Marysue Willeke were back from their vacation. They said that they are glad to be back to Tropical Harbor after three weeks up north for a college graduation for a granddaughter and seeing old friends, with a side trip to Detroit to see new great-grandbabies for the first time. The twins were born in September in Scotland where their daddy is in college at St. Andrews. The other one was born in March and lives in South Carolina. They had a mini-family reunion at son, Lance's place. Only two of the grandkids were unable to attend. On their way back, they stopped to see Derek's cousin, John Allen, in Ruther Glen, Va. They spent a day touring Fredericksburg with them. It is a very interesting city. They would recommend it for a visit.

It is good to try to end each day saying, "I am glad I did," rather than, "I wish I had."

Debby spawned record number of tornadoes over southern end of state

Associated Press

MIAMI — The National Weather Service says Tropical Storm Debby produced 10 tornadoes over the southern tip of Florida while drenching the northern part of the state.

Debby dropped more than a foot of rain last week over parts of north Florida. Some parts of the Florida Panhandle reported getting up to 2 feet of rain.

According to the National Weather Service in Miami, Debby also spawned 10 tornadoes over southern Florida.

Two tornadoes were confirmed June 23 in Collier County.

On June 24, eight tornadoes were reported in a four-hour period in Glades, Palm Beach, Miami-Dade and Collier counties. The weather service says that ties a record for the most tornadoes reported in one day over southern Florida. The record was set in 1964 when Hurricane Isbell spawned eight tornadoes.

Women and motorcycles: Ridership is on the rise

By LEANNE ITALIE
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Cris Baldwin was 7 when she commandeered her brother's minibike on their Wisconsin dairy farm and first felt the wind in her face. More than 250,000 miles and 42 years later, it's still two wheels and a gas tank for the school administrator.

Baldwin is an assistant dean at Washington University in St. Louis, but that's just one part of her. She's also past president and a chapter founder of the 30-year-old Women on Wheels, one of the country's oldest and largest motorcycle clubs for women at about 2,000 members.

"It really is freeing from your day to day obligations, enjoying the moment, not thinking about bills or sending kids to college," Baldwin said. "I wouldn't trade it for anything. It's my two-wheel therapy."

The number of women motorcycle operators in the U.S. has increased slowly to about 7.2 million of about 27 million overall in 2009, according to the latest survey by the Motorcycle Industry Council. About 1 in 10 owners are women, said Cam Arnold, a vice president for the trade group.

"I hate riding on the back of a bike," Arnold said. "It's a lot more fun being in control."

The American Motorcyclist Association has about 225,000 members. The number of women is under 10 percent, but the number of new women members has increased, driven in part by a higher profile for women on two wheels, more training opportunities and better equipment, said AMA board member Maggie McNally.

Dozens of female-only motorcycle clubs have joined more established groups like Women on Wheels. The makers of bikes and gear are reaching out to women like never before through special events and marketing campaigns that include Harley-Davidson's "No Doubts. No Cages." program.

Women no longer have to endure jackets, gloves and helmets designed for men. And it's easier to find or modify bikes for shorter bodies, said McNally, the AMA's vice chairwoman and the highest-ranking female in the group's 75-year history.

"I'm only 5-1," she said. "I wore boy's work boots for years and found the perfect gloves only three years ago. Things have changed a lot. Manufacturers today have realized that women are a huge part of the market."

McNally started riding in 1981 after hanging out with friends, thinking up dream cars, in a Troy, N.Y., parking lot, the same parking lot where she now teaches newbies of both sexes how to ride safely.

MCT

Stephanie Jones, 48, of Burton, Michigan, and associate director of pre-college programs at Kettering University in Flint, checks her image in a mirror as she puts on her helmet while getting ready to ride her 2006 Harley-Davidson Softail Deluxe.

"I said that I wanted to get a motorcycle and one of the guys said, 'You can't, girls don't ride motorcycles,"' she said. "I thought, 'He shouldn't be telling a temperamental redhead what she can and cannot do.' I had my permit within a week."

Whether they prefer dirt or the open road, a scooter or a Harley, thousands of women will gather July 26-29 in Carson City, Nev., for the AMA's sixth International Women & Motorcycling Conference. Many will be mothers, an anxious status for some when it comes to riding.

"People were shocked that I didn't sell my bike when I became a mom," McNally said, "but I knew that once the bike was gone, I might never get back into the sport."

When her second child came along, she and her husband bought a sidecar. "Riding and motorcycle camping became a family activity that probably wouldn't have been possible otherwise," she said.

Baldwin is a mom who rode. So did her 23-year-old daughter, until she gave up two wheels for four when she got her driver's license years ago.

At 5-3 and about 150 pounds, Baldwin's ride is a 700-pound Harley "clone" designed and built by her husband. Her mom, now 69, was an inspiration, tearing around their farm on a Honda trail bike.

"She gave up riding because she couldn't find other women to ride with. And my dad was totally against it," Baldwin said.

Nancy Sabater in southern Maryland is an off-roader and a street rider. She was chosen as AMA's motorcyclist of the year in 2011 for fighting against a federal anti-lead law written so broadly as to ban dirtbikes and ATVs intended for kids 12 and under. President Obama fixed the law last August.

Sabater, who has been riding for about 20 years, will be among numerous speakers at the Carson City conference. Riding off-road is her first love.

"It's definitely about skill, pushing my own limits, trying to climb a hill, trying to get through a tricky rock section, that kind of thing," she said.

Women are generally more interested in formal safety training than men, with 58 percent of women taking a rider course, compared with 44 percent of men, according to the AMA.

Harley-Davidson, based in Milwaukee, is the market leader in sales to women. The company travels around the country offering training and safety tips for women, including a recent event outside Manhattan's Flatiron Building.

"We've heard from enough women who think they might like to do it but don't know how to get started," said Claudia Garber, director of women's outreach for Harley. "They're worried about things like the bike seems too big and too heavy for me, or maybe I don't know other women who ride."

Roshani Dubel, 33, an eighth-grade math teacher and mother of three in Gilbert, Ariz., was more than ready, but she had to face those fears after winning an essay contest telling Harley why she wanted to learn to ride. She and three others were flown to Milwaukee for mentoring and training last summer.

A video documenting her struggle shows her breaking down emotionally as she tries to walk the bike back and forth. "I'm 5 feet tall. I kept thinking to myself, 'How am I going to ride if I can't even walk this monster?"

Things clicked eventually. She's logged more than 800 miles on her Harley since, cheered by her students and fellow teachers when she rolled up to her school on it for the first time.

Nancy Dilley, 68, of Overland Park, Kan., may never get there, but she sat astride a Harley as she learned the basics while the rear tire spun safely on a platform during the company's event at the Flatiron.

"I had an uncle and he had a big Harley. I was his favorite passenger because nobody else ever wanted to ride with him," she said. "We'd go all over out in the country riding, but once I got married and had kids I didn't want to do it anymore. I felt I had too much responsibility."

Will that change now that she's had a taste of what it feels like up front? "I'm kind of a chicken, but it was interesting," she said.

Lizzy Dabczynski, 22, from Salt Lake City, hopped on as Harley's experts showed her how to turn on their demo bike and work the clutch, gas and brakes.

"I've always been terrified of motorcycles, but it was fun," she said. "It was easier and way less scary than I thought it would be."

Sebring AAs still swinging

By DAN HOEHNE
daniel.hoehne@newssun.com

After the long trip up the Marianna for the Dixie AA (Pitching Machine) State Tournament, the Sebring All-Stars wasted little time in making a statement.

Saturday's opener against Spring Hill saw five runs come across in the opening inning on the way to a dominant, 14-1 win.

But Sunday saw a 16-7 loss to perennial state power West Volusia American, dropping Sebring into the consolation bracket.

Rather than be downed by the loss, however, the li'l Streaks picked themselves up, dusted off and bounced back with two wins Monday.

First, the team powered past Port St. Joe before swinging past South Walton to moved themselves along in the bracket.

That left six teams remaining heading into Tuesday's contests.

In the winners bracket, West Volusia was to face West Seminole, with the victor slated to take on the winner of the Hardee, East Lakeland match-up.

Sebring, meanwhile, was set to face Wesley Chapel Tuesday, with a win continuing them along to face the losing team in the West Volusia, West Seminole game.

Things heat up on the Sertoma Tour

By LAUREN WELBORN
News-Sun correspondent

ARCADIA—Despite sweltering temperatures, a strong field of Sertoma golf tour competitors made the journey over to The Bluffs for a tournament Monday morning.

Even as they took to the driving range early before tee-offs, it became evident that heat would take its toll on the day's scores.

That is not to say that there was a lack of talent, however, as the field overcame the course and the elements in fine fashion.

Ashley Engle faced the 11-to-13 age group single handedly, seeing a solid score of 50 after her round.

The 14-18 Girls division, saw some fierce competition.

However, it would be young Kendall Griffin who came out on top with a score of 81, four her fourth tour win of the season, followed by Sarah Liles at 91.

"The course was in good shape," Liles said. "But the tight lies and trees that seemed to appear everywhere made it a tough play."

Coming in closely behind Liles was Lindsey Moffat, who shot a 93, and then Meredith McKenna with a 99.

Dominating the 6-8 Boys Division was Parker Griffin with a score of 28 that was as blistering as the heat.

Jarrett Hornick came in with a 43 for second, and then it was Ian Frasier who carded a 60.

Beckham Donovan shot a 51 to win the 9-10 Boys Division and coming in a close second was Billy Carol with a 52.

Keeping up the heat of the competition was John Alan Rogers who took third, just one more shot back, with a score of 53, while Jackson Griffin took fourth with a round of 68.

Setting the pace for the 13-to-14 Boys Division was Jett Dexter who carded an 81 to LAKE PLACID – With all eyes on London for the 2012 Summer Olympic Games, local athletes gathered at Coz's Bowling Center for an Olympic-style competition on Saturday, June 30.

There were 85 special athletes from three counties competing for gold, silver and bronze medals to take home.

Highlands County hosted the Special STARS District Games bowling competition for Highlands, Hardee and Okeechobee counties.

They bowled in singles, doubles and team competitions.

Highlands had 42 athletes competing and took 15 gold, nine silver and 11 bronze medals.

Hardee had 16 athletes bowling and they took home six gold, four silver and two bronze medals.

Brahmans take Boys title

By DAN HOEHNE
daniel.hoehne@newssun.com

It was a matter of who could handle the heat best Sunday in the final round of the Dixie Majors District 8 Tournament in Lake Placid.

With high temperatures added to by a sweltering humidity, the sweating started during warm-ups.

But when the games went off, it was the Okeechobee squad that fought its' way through to consecutive wins to claim the crown.

After Lake Placid split its' two games Saturday, a 6-5 win over Avon Park and a 14-4 loss to Okeechobee, it was the junior Brahmans turn to play two on Sunday.

And they wasted little time on setting the tone against the li'l Devils in the opener, scoring twice in the first and plating runs in each of the five innings played in a 14-4 win.

After the pair in the first, four came across in both the second and third, with three more in the fourth for a commanding 13-0 lead.

The Avon Park bats finally came to life in the fifth, bringing four runs across, but Okeechobee got the deciding, mercy-rule run in the bottom of the frame to end it early and send both teams scrambling for the coolness of the shade.

It took a little longer for the players in purple to rev things up in the second contest, as Lake Placid held them scoreless in the first before surrendering one in the second.

But the junior Dragons bats were being held in check as well, and the goose eggs mounted for three innings.

Okeechobee scored twice more in the third to make it 3-0, though Lake Placid got on the board with a run in the top of the fourth to cut it to 3-1.

But five more runs scored in the bottom of the inning to break it open and make it an 8-1 game.

Again Lake Placid scratched for a run in the fifth, and the defense kept 'Chobee off the board.

But only one more run would come across over the next two innings, an Okee score in the sixth, and the game soon came to a close with the 9-2 margin.

With the district title in hand, Okeechobee claimed a spot at the Dixie Boys State Tournament, to begin Saturday, July 14, through Wednesday, July 18 at the Max Long Recreational Complex in Sebring.

Lake Placid will be there as well as they also earned a spot in the tournament with the runner-up finish.

BURNING ISSUES

► K's are wild. Matt Kenseth announced he was leaving. Brad Keselowski won in ... Kentucky. Kasey Kahne finished second.

► Keselowski became the year's first three-time winner. On the PGA Tour, Tiger Woods became the first three-time winner. Coincidence? Yes, completely. And it isn't ironic, either.

► Make no mistake. All NASCAR drivers are free agents once the terms of their contracts have been fulfilled. There are no drafts, no trades and no salary caps.

► One of the reason Roush Fenway Racing let Kenseth get away is that the team feels Ricky Stenhouse Jr. is ready for Sprint Cup. The development program was stopped up, and someone had to go.

► That's not to say that Jack Roush wanted to lose the driver who gave him his first Cup championship. It's more that he could afford to lose Kenseth.

► Keselowski's victory in Kentucky effectively puts him in the Chase. If he falls out of the top 10, he's going to qualify for one of the two wild-card spots by virtue of his three wins.

► Tenth is where Keselowski is currently situated. The incentive lies in the fact that Keselowski can only use the bonus points from the three victories if he finishes the regular season in the top 10.

► By all accounts, traffic was much improved at Kentucky Speedway, but among many reasons was the fact that the crowd was smaller. The official "estimate" of 105,000 was obviously generous.

► Kenseth says his impending departure will have no effect on his title hopes, and after one week, well, he's still the points leader.

► Faulty strategy was the latest culprit, but Carl Edwards has finished outside the top 10 in five straight races. Even though he's still 11th, Edwards is 34 points out of 10th and hasn't won. In other words, he's in trouble.

RICKY STENHOUSE JR. NATIONWIDE SERIES No. 6 SAM'S CLUB/CARGILL FORD

John Clark/NASCAR This Week

With Matt Kenseth leaving Roush Fenway Racing at the end of the year, 24-year-old Ricky Stenhouse Jr. will step into Kenseth's ride.

The Next Big Thing

With Kenseth leaving, Roush can count on Stenhouse

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

Ricky Stenhouse Jr. will begin the 2012 season exactly where he wants to be.

This year Roush Fenway Racing couldn't come up with enough sponsorship to put Stenhouse, the reigning Nationwide Series champion, in Sprint Cup. Owner Jack Roush cut his Cup operation from four to three, leaving Stenhouse to defend his title in NASCAR's leading support series.

Things change.

Last week Matt Kenseth announced he would be leaving Roush Fenway Racing at year's end. Kenseth gave Roush its first Cup championship in 2003 and is a veteran of 13 years at the sport's premier level.

The move, which won't be effective until season's end, opens a spot for Stenhouse, a 24-year-old from Olive Branch, Miss.

"I was kind of shocked when I heard the news," Stenhouse said. "I thought for sure that we would have a fourth car (again) and definitely didn't see Matt (Kenseth) going anywhere, but you have to take advantage of each situation you're in and we have to go into next year ready to go and learn as much as we can, and try to finish this year off on a strong note."

Stenhouse, who once competed for Tony Stewart's USAC sprint and midget teams, doesn't think the impending move will do anything but help his bid for a second consecutive Nationwide Series title.

"I think I can go into it with more confidence and more pep in my step," he said. "I think the team is pumped about it and excited for me."

Roush expressed disappointment at Kenseth's decision to leave but confidence that Stenhouse is ready to fill the void.

"His (Kenseth) leaving the team creates a window, a hole if you like, for which we have very capable, able, ready, enthusiastic, motivated and ambitious drivers," Roush said. "We actually have two of them ready to fill voids. One of them is Ricky Stenhouse, and of course, the other is Trevor (Bayne). The plan is for Trevor to be in some kind of a full-time ride next year, and of course, Ricky is the heir apparent to the (No.) 17 program."

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Newman

VERSUS

RYAN NEWMAN VS. JOEY LOGANO

After the two tangled during the Quaker State 400, Newman said of Logano, "He's got a few things to learn and I'm going to have to be the one who teaches him." After Newman said he spun Logano accidentally ("he lost control"), Logano's subsequent actions angered him. "Then he raced me poorly and lack-of-respect-wise," Newman said. "That doesn't go very far with me. You can see from my past (that) I react to that." Logano said, "Just got hit from behind (by Newman) and knocked in my quarter panel and made me really, really loose for a few laps, and never caught a caution like we needed."

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his take: "Newman clearly feels there's a score to settle. It will be interesting to watch what happens when they're in close proximity."

Matt Kenseth kick-starts the merry-go-round

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

The announcement that Matt Kenseth would be leaving Roush Fenway Racing at year's end dominated discussion in the week leading up to the Quaker State 400 at Kentucky Speedway.

Kenseth's contract status was well known, but few expected him to leave the team with which he has competed for 13 seasons. In Jack Roush's No. 17 Ford, Kenseth has won 22 races and a championship in 2003. He is also the current Sprint Cup points leader.

The reigning Nationwide Series champion, Ricky Stenhouse Jr., will take Kenseth's place next year.

NUTS AND BOLTS

Roush remorse — While at the same time stressing that Stenhouse is ready, Roush blamed himself for Kenseth's exit.

"If I had been as vigilant and diligent and interested in that side of the business as I am on finding why a fuel pump broke or why a connection rod bearing failed or how we could get the next pound of downforce — if I had been taking care of the business side of the business as hard as I tried to take care of the technical side, I might have been able to stop that," he said.

Bon voyage — As in the case of the owner, the Roush Fenway stable of drivers wished Kenseth all the best.

"Yeah, I was a little bit surprised," Greg Biffle said. "Matt and I are good friends, but we don't talk about business much when we are together, other than racing. We don't talk contracts or anything like that. I'm going to lose a good teammate in the garage area. I'm not going to lose a friend, I guess, but I will lose a friend sitting in all the meetings and all that."

"Matt has been a great teammate," Carl Edwards added. "It took us a long time to figure out each other, and I feel that, over the last few years, he has been as close of a friend in the garage as anyone. I have a ton of respect for Matt. He is a heck of a man and a great race-car driver. He has been a huge part of developing things on our team."

But where to? — Kenseth's 2013 destination is unannounced, but the prevailing view is that he will wind up driving one of Joe Gibbs' Toyotas. Whether JGR is planning to add a fourth team — and have Kenseth join Kyle Busch, Denny Hamlin and Joey Logano — or whether Kenseth will succeed Logano in the No. 20 is unknown. Among the other speculative possibilities is the entrance of IndyCar owner Michael Andretti to head up a retooled Dodge program with Kenseth as the team's centerpiece.

Most of the thinking making the rounds appears to be wishful.

1912 — George Mullin of the Detroit Tigers celebrated his 32nd birthday by pitching a no-hitter over the St. Louis Browns.

1925 — Two of the great left-handers of their time — Herb Pennock of the Yankees and Lefty Grove of the Athletics — hooked up in a pitchers duel that New York won 1-0 in 15 innings. Pennock gave up four hits and walked none.

1939 — Jim Tabor of the Boston Red Sox hit three home runs, including two grand slams, in an 18-12 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics in the second game of a doubleheader.

Murray, Mayer reach Wimbledon quarterfinals

By MATTIAS KAREN
Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — On a start-and-stop day at Wimbledon, Andy Murray and Florian Mayer found enough time between rain showers to wrap up their suspended matches and reach the quarterfinals.

Murray advanced to the last eight for the fifth straight year by beating the 16th-seeded Marin Cilic 7-5, 6-2, 6-3 Tuesday while Mayer ousted Richard Gasquet of France 6-3, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

Rain had prevented five of the men's fourth-round matches from being completed Monday.

The weather continued to cause headaches as the start of play was delayed about 30 minutes because of light showers.

When matches started, they were quickly halted again for another rain delay of about an hour.

The women's quarterfinals are scheduled for later in the day.

MIAMI — The NBA champion Miami Heat will get to make their sales pitch to Ray Allen.

A person familiar with Allen's plans told The Associated Press that the free-agent shooting guard will visit with Heat officials Thursday.

Allen also is scheduled to visit Friday with the Los Angeles Clippers, according to the person who spoke on condition of anonymity because the plans were not announced.

Allen is one of Miami's top offseason targets, so much so that even NBA MVP LeBron James tweeted last week that he hopes to play alongside him next season.

For that to happen, Allen would have to take less money than he almost certainly could make elsewhere.

Miami can offer Allen only the mini mid-level exception worth just more than $3 million for next season, or roughly half what the Boston Celtics are willing to pay to keep the NBA's leading 3-point shooter.

Still, Allen's willingness to even listen to Heat President Pat Riley suggests that Miami's financial limits may not be a deterrent to a deal.

NBA.com first reported Allen's planned visits Tuesday morning.

The Heat made just under 36 percent of their 3-point attempts this season.

Mike Miller (.453) and James Jones (.404) led the Heat in accuracy from beyond the arc, though Miller is sorting out what he will do next season as he deals with back and foot issues.

Allen would figure to be a perfect fit with Miami because the Heat want to surround James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh with shooters who extend defenses and therefore create room around the basket for the "Big Three" to attack.

That approach worked perfectly for Miami in the playoffs — the Heat were 9-1 when making at least eight 3-pointers in playoff games (7-6 otherwise), and they hit 14 in the finals-clincher over Oklahoma City.

Allen has made at least 100 3-pointers in 15 of his 16 seasons, the lone exception being when he connected on 74 in the shortened 50-game schedule of 1998-99.

He's established career-bests for accuracy in each of the past two seasons, first making 44 percent of his 3's in 2010-11, then 45 percent this past year.

His 2,718 career 3-pointers are the most in NBA history.

This round of free agency has a much quieter feel for Miami than the summer of 2010.

For example, Heat owner Micky Arison tweeted Sunday that he was beginning a trip to Europe — a far different trek from what he, Riley, coach Erik Spoelstra and others embarked on two years ago when they began wooing James and Bosh to join Wade in Miami.

The selling point that summer was "sacrifice," and that hasn't changed.

James, Bosh and Wade all took less money than they could have made elsewhere to allow deals to fall into place for Miami in 2010.

Last summer, Shane Battier accepted a deal worth $3 million annually.

That's about all Miami can offer anyone this summer as well.

Barring any trades, the biggest chip Riley has to dangle is the mini mid-level.

Magic GM: Howard has indeed reissued trade request

By KYLE HIGHTOWER
Associated Press

ORLANDO — The Magic say they haven't committed to honoring Dwight Howard's latest trade demand that he be dealt to the Brooklyn Nets.

New Orlando general manager Rob Hennigan said Monday that Howard told him in a meeting last week that he would like to be traded, but Hennigan said he has not committed to honoring that demand.

He said will keep communication lines open between both the All-Star and his agent.

It's exactly the scenario the Magic wanted to avoid — for a second time.

Howard listed several teams last season that he wanted to be traded to, but on the day of the trading deadline he committed to the Magic for the 2012-13 season.

Magic CEO Alex Martins has said previously that the organization will not enter next season with Howard's situation unresolved.

Orlando was looking to sign Howard to a long-term deal, however, now that Howard has had his first, face-to-face sit down with the Magic's new general manager, the All-Star center made it clear he still very much wants out of Orlando.

Hennigan said that having Howard single out one team as a desired destination does complicate any potential trade scenarios, but for now, there is no immediate move the Magic to make following the sit down.

"As I told Dwight, I said 'I don't know. I have to think about what you're telling me.' I want to take some time to process everything," Hennigan said of the meeting. "And the answer is we want to map out what's in the best interest of our team. And any decision that at decide going forward with will be one that we feel puts our team in a position to be successful and move forward."

Howard told Yahoo Sports Monday that he want sign long-term with another team if the Magic decide to trade him to somewhere other than Brooklyn.

"There's only one team on my list and if I don't get traded there, I'll play the season out and explore my free agency after that," Howard said.

Howard also vigorously denied an ESPN report that he was claiming that the Magic blackmailed him at the trade deadline to give up the opt-out provision in his contract that would have allowed him to become a free-agent this summer.

'I never used the work blackmail in reference to any of my dealings with the Magic.'

DWIGHT HOWARD

Howard asked to be traded last season, and then opted-in for 2012-2013 — forgoing becoming a free agent this summer.

"I never used the word blackmail in reference to any of my dealings with the Magic," Howard said. "I never said that. It's defamatory and it's inaccurate. I know what blackmail means and any report that I used the term incorrectly is inaccurate."

Hennigan also said the charge was never levied by Howard.

"In terms of his health, I think what I can tell you is that Dwight's rehabilitation process is progressing in the right direction," he said. "I do not believe his health will be an issue going forward."

Hennigan reiterated that beyond sharing Dwight's request, he wants the discussions beyond that to remain private at this time in order as a matter of trust between himself and Howard.

"That's my plan with Dwight and with whoever we talk to on our roster...I would leave it to Dwight to share with Dwight any details he wants to share about the conversation," Hennigan said. "But again, out of respect for the trust and privacy I'm trying to build I'm not really going to talk about what else we discussed."

Aside from Howard, the Magic are facing other lingering free agency questions surrounding career-long Magic players Jameer Nelson and J.J. Redick, and reigning league most improved player Ryan Anderson.

Nelson told the Magic last week that he would opt out of the final year and nearly $8 million of his contract and test free agency.

Redick is due $6.1 million next year in the final season of his deal, but the team can get out of that if they waive him by July 7.

Anderson is a restricted free agent, though the Magic extended a qualifying offer to the third-year forward last week.

It allows the team to match any offer he receives on the open market this summer.

Hennigan said that they will take their time this week making a decision on Redick and still hope to keep Nelson next year.

"My hope is that he remains in Orlando and in a Magic uniform," he said of Nelson. "But there needs to be a mutual desire for that to happen."

AP Source: Hawks agree to deal Joe Johnson to Nets

Joe Johnson looks to be headed to Brooklyn, perhaps paving the way for Dwight Howard to join him.

The Hawks have agreed to deal All-Star guard Joe Johnson to the Brooklyn Nets for five players and a draft pick, and Atlanta will send forward Marvin Williams to the Utah Jazz for guard Devin Harris.

A person familiar with the Hawks-Nets deal told The Associated Press on Monday night that Atlanta will receive guards Anthony Morrow, Jordan Farmar and DeShawn Stevenson and forwards Jordan Williams and Johan Petro, along with a draft pick Brooklyn received from Houston in a prior deal.

The selection only belongs to the Nets if it is not a lottery pick.

The person confirmed the trade on condition of anonymity because it cannot become official until Stevenson signs as a free agent with Brooklyn.

Free agents cannot be signed until July 11.

Johnson has four years and $90 million left on his contract and new general manager Danny Ferry decided it was time to shed payroll and rebuild.

The 31-year-old Johnson averaged 18.8 points per game last season, his 11th in the NBA and seventh with Atlanta.

The Nets are hoping to team Johnson with free agent point guard Deron Williams, whom they are working to re-sign, in the franchise's first season in New York City after decades in New Jersey.

Utah CEO Greg Miller acknowledged the deal for former first-round pick Marvin Williams while picking up guard Mo Williams at Salt Lake City International Airport in preparation for Tuesday's introductory news conference.

The Jazz acquired Mo Williams in a multi-team deal last week that also sent Lamar Odom to the Clippers.

Miller said it was difficult to part with Harris but he was excited by what Mo Williams brings to the team.

Mo Williams said it felt good to be back where he started his career in 2003 and he had always hoped to start for his first team.

The Harris-Marvin Williams deal now clears the way for that to happen.

"It's always unfortunate when we have to let a player go because all of our players work so hard and they're so invested in helping us win." Miller said. "And it's got to be a tough thing for them. I know it is for us. I wish Devin the best in his career."

Mo Williams, dressed in a red T-shirt, black shorts and a New Orleans Saints cap, arrived in Salt Lake City about 8:30 p.m. MDT.

He only has one year left on his current deal but expressed hope that he could be in Utah long term.

"I'm very excited about a new start for me and a second homecoming," Williams said Monday night.

Jazz general manager Kevin O'Connor has called letting Mo Williams leave after just one season "the worst: mistake of his career.

"I know he says that a lot, but at the same time I was a young basketball player at the time," Mo Williams said. "Obviously he made a decision he thought was best for the organization. I never had a bad taste in my mouth about the organization. I always respected them because they gave me a shot.

"I watched 30 teams pass me in the first round. I always had a part of my heart for the Jazz and I'm glad I'm able to come back and prove my worth to them."

Harris arrived in Utah in 2011 as part of a blockbuster deal that sent Deron Williams to New Jersey.

But Harris struggled to find his niche with the Jazz, and while he stepped up his game late last season, he still has a career 31.5 percent shooting percentage from beyond the arc.

Harris, 29, is scheduled to make $8.5 million in 2012-13, the final year of his current contract.

Marvin Williams, 29, has averaged 11.5 points for Atlanta in his seven-year career, including 10.2 and 5.2 rebounds last season.

Mo Williams was an All-Star as recently as 2009, and was part of a Cleveland team that won 66 games with LeBron James and advanced to the Eastern Conference Finals in 2009.

He joined the Los Angeles Clippers in 2011.

"I think it's going to be great for us to have Mo here," Miller said. "Obviously he competed at the highest level. He knows what it takes to win. . I think he's going to help us win games."

Asked if there were more moves to come for the small-market Jazz, Miller said, "I hope so."

DeBruin reported from Salt Lake City.

Following him was Sam Rogers with an 85, Jason Cannon with an 86, and Sam Weber-Callahan with a 95.

In the 15-to-16 Boys, Dustin Baber won with a 77, and tying for second with dueling 81s were Nic Staffieri and Cole Berger with fourth place going to Brad Brewer with an 87.

And though the golfers may have been relieved to get off the course with the oppressive heat and humidity, Will Bennett and Daniel Miller found themselves deadlocked with 77s in the 17-to-18 Boys – forcing a playoff hole.

Bennett would outlast Miller to take first, while Kevin Ladue and Dalton Hewett showed how evenly matched the age group is, tying for third with 84s, while Jonah Brown was just two more shots back at 86 and Blake Fitch one more back at 87.

The Tour continues Thursday, July 12, when the golfers tee it up at Golf Hammock at 8:30 a.m.
