HELICOPTER CRASH KILLS 1

SEBRING — A helicopter reportedly nosedived into the ground at a sod farm near the Sebring Regional Airport Jan. 30 afternoon, apparently killing the pilot.

No official information had been released as of Tuesday afternoon, but an eyewitness spoke to the News-Sun Saturday morning near the scene of the crash site on the Sebring, Citrus andlake property near Sebring International Raceway.

The National Transportation Safety Board was probing the wreckage, which was near an irrigation pond. Saturday morning, Jordan Snell, an employee with the contracting company that helps manage the property, said the incident occurred around 5:20 p.m.

“I had been working back there all morning then we moved up here to the front of it about 12 (noon). I saw what happened. He flew over a few times, probably about four or five times. Each time he kept going higher and lower. The last time he was right on top of those trees and it looked like he noosed down then I saw it (helicopter) blow up when it crashed into the ground,” Snell said.

Snell stated that another employee called in the emergency and he went to the crash site and offered help.

“I saw the pilot’s leg all the time the fire trucks got here, he was OK. I saw the smoke. I saw the pilot’s leg all mangled up in there. It is bad,” Snell said. “There was one other worker nearby when it crashed but he was OK. “It was definitely a crop duster but I don’t know that he was spraying anything or not.”

County to study private EMS

By BARRY FOSTER

SEBRING — Despite a prior council stand against even talking about the idea of privatizing Highlands County’s Emergency Medical Services by Commissioner Jim Brooks, the balance of the Highlands County Commission Tuesday agreed to continue investigating the possibility.

Brooks, a former Highlands County EMS co-founder himself, said he was not in favor of even entertaining the idea.

“The county is responsible for providing EMS service. We should be responsible for the local service,” he said. “I don’t know that I am comfortable with that idea.”

Other commissioners disagreed, with Commissioner Don Eubanks suggesting the commission take a look in the numbers to see if privatization or even a blended system might be advantageous to citizens either in dollar savings or increased service.

“I think we should take a strong look at it. It certainly won’t hurt,” Commissioner Jack Richardson said.

The idea of hearing a presentation from private sector ambulance services came from resident Dick Noll, who made the suggestion follow-

Boys and Girls Club ‘regrouping’ in Avon Park

Not on Monday agenda with annexation, impact fees, assessment

By PHIL ATTINGER

AVON PARK — Residents interested in city annexation, impact fees or the fire assessment will have plenty to talk about at Monday’s City Council meeting.

However, they probably won’t hear about a proposal the Boys and Girls Club to expand facilities in Avon Park. Wally Randall, director of community relations for the organization, said the group has asked the item to be pulled from the agenda.

“They don’t think we have the support necessary to get the motion passed,” Randall said.

The Boys and Girls Club has asked if the city would be willing to revert part of the land given to it by the School Board to the...
Ewell plans 6th town hall meeting

Commissioner Don Ewell will be hosting his sixth town-hall style meeting at 6 p.m. on Thursday in the Plantation Ballroom of the Kenworth Lodge in Sebring. For more information, call or email Commissioner Ewell at drewell@sebringfl.gov. Ewell has decided to change up the agenda format just a bit.

“At many of the previous town hall meetings, I’ve tried to broadly review and give updates on 8-10 important topics affecting the county,” Ewell said. “Although that seemed to work well, it didn’t seem like the best time to focus on the two or three biggest, ‘hesten’ issues we’re facing right now, leaving some time during the meeting for an open forum where citizens can bring up any thing they like.”

Ewell said the commi- nister’s current efforts to im- prove a successful county-wide recycling program is one of the most popular topics. “I have received many comments and questions on that almost daily,” he said. “In addition, I’ve had a number of questions that we are starting a major budget battle this coming year, due to a large imbalance between our current rev- enues and expenditures. I could probably spend several hours on just these two topics alone, but I’ll probably teach on the Parkway and the topic of privatization as well, which will certainly affect our upcoming budget decisions.”

The two-hour event will also be dedicated to taking questions from citizens to weigh in on their own concerns as well.

“There are an awful lot of issues existing about right now, but I promise to let each and every one of you know, if not more, than the audience at those town hall meetings,” Ewell said. “I have often read some of the comments and suggestions that I gave from the town halls and some of the decisions that myself and the other commissioners make.”

“We’ve got some really big decisions directly ahead, but that doesn’t mean we can’t work together in making them.”

“Be sure we know what you can get done in a couple of hours when we walk the pizza involved.”

Pizza, soda and bottled water will be provided at the event. For more information, contact Ewell at 381-5622.

For years Highlands County Sheriff Susan Johnson has pressed the county commission to build a new sheriff's complex. Her staff and new technology needs have long outgrown the current building downtown.

For years the issue has been held in abeyance. The delay has had political overtones, including the cost of the construction and the difficulty, finding money to construct it. Regardless of the difficulties, the time has come to find a permanent solution. Highlands County has approved and the sheriff’s office has to keep up with these changes.

For example, the county population grew by a third — 10 years — in 1990 the county population of Highlands County was almost 65,000. By 2010 it had grown to just over 98,000.

The problem with renting housing is that it can be handed over, but there was no way to keep an eye on it. The property out there certainly would not meet the sheriff’s office needs for a public safety building. That building could not house all of the troops that we have at Highlands County. Fear the men we still have here downstairs,

Sheriff’s Schrader had suggested the county build a facility currently being transformed into a property and evidence facility for the county’s new property and evidence building.

After viewing the broadcast of the commission’s discussion on the issue, Schrader had himself come over to the county building to see if there was more detail on the matter.

Staff members told him that the board had asked them to investigate the site for their plans.

He said in any case, the facility that commissioners are looking at is simply not suitable.

“The property out there certainly would not meet the sheriff’s office needs for a public safety building,” Schrader said.

At the meeting, Handley said that “other than a sprinkler system, if that is required, all you are talking about is building partitioning, drywall, wiring, planting, and conditioning. I dare say you could do it for $500,000.”

He suggested that $500,000 would be the amount of rent commissioners would have to pay for the Liberty Star location.

The commission also compared the Liberty Star location to the county’s new facility, noting that both were located on a small, fenced-in piece of land.

“Nothing says ‘Christmas’ like a Nativity and yuletide cheer,” said Mark Schrader, the sheriff’s chief deputy.

LAKE PLACID —
Lakeview Christian School in Lake Placid treated the students to a vehicle show at the school on Friday. Classes took time going to the parking lot, where a line of vintage autos were supplemented with a snow buggy, two big trucks, a dune buggy, a big tractor, an old bus, and a race car.

“There are even almost every month, but this is the first time we have had an auto show with automobiles,” said Kathy White, school administrator. “I thought it would be a good idea and a treat for a few of the parents and grandparents and it came together.”

“I think it’s great,” said Missy, a third grade teacher. “We have never had a snow buggy before. I didn’t know they had built buses in them.”

Baily Smuckert, one of Boggan’s students, said that her favorite vehicle at the show was the big green tractor, since it belongs to her family, and we use it in the gardens.

“I was a favorite of Colt Youngman because he could climb in it and I am going to be a truck driver in the future,” said Youngman also that the day pickup: “I’m sure we can do it again next year.”

The snow buggy seemed to be the students’ favorite vehicles. The buggy is owned by Don Clarke, who said that it had a 561 engine with a rear wheel running gear. It can be seen at the Christmas parade this year in Lake Placid, provided Clarke doesn’t run into problems with it.

“I have been stuck and had to pull it out. The problem is with the big things that they get stuck, they really get stuck. Luckily, I have a lot of friends with snow buggies to pull me out when I do get stuck.”

The classic cars and truck that were represented were a 1964 Chevy pickup truck, a 1931 Ford pickup truck, a 1937 Chevy hot rod pickup, a 1931 Ford pickup and a鹦鹉, 1940 Ford.

The school started in 1983 and has 94 students enrolled this year,” White said. “There is one class for each grade from pre-k through the fifth grade. Once the students reach the fifth grade, they must either go to the public schools or find an alternative school to continue with a private school education.”

What said there are many social functions associated with the school. “February will be the major fundraiser for the year. It will be a dinner dance and auction,” she said.

extend it a bit, but a score and free throw from Montiel Jackson off a free throw from Cook and it was 56-52. This is when Sebring kicked it into gear and went on that第③ round run to open it up.

Gary Demarest scored six of those 10, with Cook and Ancrum each adding a free throw.

Then, on a Cook jumper the caromed off the rim in the waning seconds, Strickland got the rebound and put it through the net in one motion just before the buzzer sounded for a 44-32 lead at the half.

The third quarter would then see a scoring bonanza as the two teams combined seven points.

Strickland shot 10 of those for Lemon Bay, but Sebring’s scoring was spread evenly over the eight minutes, with Powery and Ancrum each adding a free throw.

Strickland got the rebound and the lead stood at 78-56.

The lead would hover around 20, with Rouse, Hester and Cook adding baselines to their totals while Lemon Bay was doing their scoring at the free throw line.

And when they were able to keep it over 20, at 84-65, with just over two minutes to go, Harris finally felt this one was secure.

“It was important to get this win and make a statement,” he said. “We played well and got a lot of contributions. There are things we will need to work on, but we’re getting better each time out.”

The Rays got 20 points each from Gila and Strub, 14 from Jackson. Sebring, meanwhile, saw five players get into double figures with Cook leading the way with 23.

Strickland matched his uniform number with 13, Powery and Ancrum each had 11 and Demarest added 10.

The team can never being alone away the district over the weekend before leading to Clewiston Tuesday in a non-district tilt.

The Streaks then return to their district schedule with a Friday road date at DeSoto.

half, Sebring saw Christacia Dawkins hit a pair of hoops, along with an inside score from Jaymie Houser to help come out on top as Sebring led 10-7 and up the lead back to six points.

But again, the team went 0-of-6 from the line to allow Lake Wales to stay a little too close.

Especially when 6-foot forward Zada Williams had 11 and Demarest added 10.

When the fourth was com- plete, the Streaks had scored 34 points, to the Rays’ 24, complete, the Streaks had scored 95 points Thursday.

And when the night was done, Christacia Dawkins is about to step and pop a jumper for two of her team-high 14 points Thursday.

Dawkins added a bucket each with just over two minutes to go, Harris finally felt this one was secure.

“Those girls weren’t a team that we could come out and stink on,” Dawkins said. “Those were some good girls. I think we didn’t play as tough as we can, but we are ready for them when they make the trip to Sebring. We know what we have to do to prepare ourselves.

That rematch is still more than a month away, while Sebring looks ahead to a busy week coming up.

They will host Mariner Tuesday, play at Avon Park Thursday and get a visit from DeSoto in a district matchup Friday.

Bradley to caution Jaguars about brash remarks

By MARK LONG

Jacksonville Jaguars coach Gus Bradley is trying to prevent his players from playing a little too loose, a little too brash.

Speaking to reporters Friday after a joint practice with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Bradley said he wants his team to do things with class.

"I don’t want us feeling like we can beat anybody, we can win anything," Bradley said. "We’re getting better and we still have a lot to work on.

"My goal is to get back to being a team that’s going to take care of it."'

Following the prima-vista victory, several Jacksonville players used the spotlight to respond to Bryant, who called the team the worst in NFL history.

Everybody who was talking noise can just cut some noise," guard Uche Nwaneri said.

Running back Maurice Jones-Drew called out a specific sports talk show for apparently ripping the Jaguars game long before kickoff.

"You can see every game we’re all adults and we all get paid," Nwaneri said. "You don’t do your job to the best of your ability."

Jones-Drew said that he could adjust his practice routine to account for the talk online.

"I’m not going to be too upset about it. Those guys that are hearing their bums every day and no one said anything to them.

"They still talk trash about us. We’re figuring out how to get better and we are going to be keeping players. We are going to be doing our thing and be happy for everyone around us that is making progress.

"Bradley said his players are frustrated, he doesn’t want to see it.

"The Jaguars played one of their more complete games.

AP sources: Beltran, Yanks agree at $45M, 3 years

By RONALD BELMAN

NEW YORK — Carlos Beltran agreed to a $45 million, three-year contract with the New York Yankees on Friday, an agreement announced.

The All-Star outfielder is coming back to New York, this time to the Bronx.

The Yankees agreed at $45M, 3 years

The 15-time All-Star has协商ed with the Rangers before, and the Yankees are likely pleased with the deal because of the uncertainty in Boston and the overall market for outfielders.

Kobe Bryant to return to Lakers lineup Sunday

By ANTONIO GONZALEZ

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Kobe Bryant will make his long-awaited return from a torn Achilles tendon when the Los Angeles Lakers host the Toronto Raptors on Sunday.

In a dramatic video posted on his Facebook page before the Lakers played at the Raptors last weekend, Bryant said he had a nearly six-week training program and was ready to return.

The video, which was also uploaded by the Lakers in the season opener, showed Bryant's rehabilitation progress and was titled: "Season of Legend: Lakers announce Kobe’s return."

The video shows Bryant's No. 24 jersey hanging in the locker room.

There is rain, sleet, snow and lightning for nearly 2 minutes.

At one point, his jersey tears.

Sunshine breaks through the clouds, but the camera fades to black.

Flashing images across the screen that read, "The Legend Continues. December 7."

"Today, the most important day of my life, right there," Lakers teammate Nick Young squeaked for the camera on Friday when he showed him the video on his smartphone in the locker room.

How effective Bryant will be when he returns is the last lingering question for the Lakers as they prepare for Sunday's game.

Lakers coach Mike D'Antoni cited Bryant's return for 2014.

Hiroki Kuroda agreed to an $85 million, seven-year deal

Friday night's game with a $45 million, three-year contract with the New York Mets from 2005-11, according to a person with direct knowledge of the deal who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because it was not announced.

The agreement was first reported by The New York Daily News.

Beltran, 38, is an eight-time All-Star who played for the Mets from 2005-11, when he had a $45 million, three-year contract with St. Louis.

He's batting .286 with 21 home runs and 65 RBIs in the postseason.

In the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, Beltran was in the Mets dugout when the Pentagon was hit.

The All-Star outfielder was expected to be a big part of the Mets' lineup, but New York was never the same.

Beltran's return was set to give the Mets a big boost, but New York was never the same.

The Mets were 77-85 in 2001 and 71-91 in 2002.

Beltran joins a crowded outfield market, with Alfonso Soriano and Jacoby Ellsbury among the players expected to be available.

Sebring’s Cormier wins Best of Show in ‘Black & White and Read All Over’ exhibit in Winter Haven

By MARY CANNADAY

Correspondent

WINTER HAVEN – One often thinks of black and white in terms of simplifying things, as in “It’s right there in black and white.” But “it sees things in terms of black and white.”

When it comes to art, however, those two terms can be quite challenging, relying on shadows and light, strong subjects and pattern, and often, in the case of pen and ink, paleontological details.

The theme is repeated each year, and according to Christy Cormier, executive director of the Ridge Art Association, the name came from its early affiliation with a local newspaper.

Paintings, photographs and sculptures fill the gallery and somehow, the black, white and gray tones bring focus to each piece.

According to Cormier, 129 pieces were submitted for the juried show, and of those, 78 are on exhibit. She is heartened by the volume of submissions.

“In 2008, when the economy got so bad, people from further away dropped off some of their more voluminous items,” Cormier said. “It’s expensive to crate and mail the pieces, but it also drives across the rais to bring them in.

So the fact there were so many submissions might be yet another sign that things are looking up economically, she surmised.

In addition to veteran artists returning, the gallery is also showing new people, Cormier noted. That’s good for the art world — keeping things fresh, she said. “I think those people place you can enter art, the buyer,” she said. The Ridge group was sad to hear of Lakeland’s Arts on the Park closing a few months ago.

“Black & White and Read All Over” was judged by Paul Ammon, who teaches at Polk State College and has a master’s degree in fine arts from the University of Florida, with a concentration in ceramics.

Sebring’s Juan Cormier, who won Best of Show for his black-and-white film, said he has entered all the Ridge Art shows for the past year and will continue doing so.

“As a matter of fact, I won the Best of Show in ‘Black and White’ last year too,” he said. “Black and white is a favorite medium of mine."

Regarding the “Ana” painting, she said the original did it as a smaller painting and a friend suggested she do it large-scale.

“It wasn’t rare about that, but it turned out to be a good idea,” Cormier said. The painting is a facial portrait about 1½ feet high that covers about 3 feet high that covers the entire canvas.

The “Black & White and Read All Over” exhibit runs through Dec. 22. The gallery is open 12-7:30 p.m. on Monday in Friday and one hour before Theatre Winter Haven shows. A reception, open to the public, will be 6-8 p.m. Saturday. The gallery is in the Chain of Lakes Complex, 210 Cypress Garden Blvd., Winter Haven. Call 291-5661 or visit www.ledgeart.org/.

Advisory board says AP museum proposal needs to be more attractive

By PHIL ATTINGER
phil.atinger@newssun.com

ADVISORY board members for the Community Redevelopment Agency’s Main Street district have already expressed their desire to turn the space into a museum downtown.

They also like what they are still hearing from Fred Leavitt, president of the Heartland Cultural Alliance, who proposed setting up the museum in the second-floor area of the Avon Park Community Center, 310 W. Main St.

However, they have advised him to make the offer more attractive to the CRA Board — which is made up of City Council members — by drawing up a lease agreement and specific plans for renovations so the CRA Board can see out what building would cost.

Leavitt has proposed $17,000 from the CRA to make it happen, but the advisory board told him that is one estimate to the city.

CRA Board members want to have at least two estimates.

The next time Leavitt can talk to the CRA Board will be at 5 p.m. Dec. 23.

He has asked to convert the upper floor of the city’s community center into a museum dedicated to the world-renowned Florida artist Peter Powell Roberts. He has the Main Street Advisory Board meet there Thursday’s regular meeting, so members could see the space.

He suggested closing off the north and end by the elevated, to both provide a storage/office area and to get extra security should the CRA Board choose to make it a museum 24 hours a day.

Leavitt also said the plan would be to have track lighting throughout the space to illuminate the artwork throughout.

Fred Leavitt, left, president of Heartland Cultural Alliance, explains some of the proposed plan to convert the upstairs of the Avon Park Community Center into a museum featuring work by Peter Powell Roberts. The city’s advisory board for the Avon Park Community Redevelopment Agency’s Main Street District met Thursday on the second floor of the community center, to get a feel for his ideas.

Leavitt said the advisory board plans to have a discussion Jan. 6, just for a request on donation.

He also said the non-profit museum doesn’t have enough money to pay utilities or hire workers, having to rely instead on volunteers.

“We are taking a risk,” Leavitt said.

Originally, the HCA had offered sharing a percentage of museum souvenir store profits with the city, but CRA Board members didn’t think that income would be regular enough to provide a lobby/storage area and light-emitting diodes (LED).

With a lot of bulbs comes a lot of heat.

Leavitt said, which would waste electricity, run up the power bill and make air-conditioning work harder.

Frederick Fuerte, deputy chairman for the CRA Board’s membership board, suggested using city facilities.

Leavitt’s museum’s membership board has sold at least four of Roberts’ works to help fund the museum.

Leavitt said the CRA Board’s membership board has sold at least four of Roberts’ works to help fund the museum.

The board would have the option of moving its meetings to the downtown area.

“We’re building an attraction, not a business,” Fuerte said of the museum, adding that the CRA’s role should be to help bring people to Avon Park to spend money.

City Commissioner Garrett Anderson suggested Leavitt might approach other local businesses, such as the Hotel Jacaranda, about displaying some of Roberts’ art with plans of promoting the museum.

Leavitt is trying to make the offer more attractive to the CRA Board members for the Avon Park Community Redevelopment Agency’s Main Street District met Thursday on the second floor of the community center, to get a feel for his ideas.

Gift Guide: Lots of high-end laptops to pick from

By MIKE FOWLER
AP Technology Writer
NEW YORK — Whether you're shopping for someone who finds thin and light, or wants a tablet that performs like a laptop, there's plenty to choose from if you're willing to spend a bit more for a high-end laptop computer.

Regardless of how much cash you have, you need to take into account the needs of the person you are buying for. Is a super-sharp screen important to you? What about a fast processor? How important is the gift recipient willing to cart around a laptop?

This gift guide screens laptops with starting prices of more than $1,000, including a class of thin, light Ultrabook laptops known as ultrabooks. If that's too pricey, check our earlier review of budget and mid-priced laptops at http://bit.ly/1bdUMXz.

Most brands are making changes and suggestions, and you can often shop around for deals.

Dell Inc.'s XPS 12, starts at $1,000

What sets this ultrabook apart from others in the way it converts into a tablet. Basically, you pop the screen out of its frame, flip it around and then close the laptop. The more you use the screen on the outside and the keyboard on the inside.

It's a quick and easy switch. But because the keyboard remains connected, you're not dropping any of its 3.4 pounds. While reason- able for a laptop that's about triple the weight of many full-sized tablets currently on the market.

The XPS might be good for someone who needs a fairly powerful laptop for work, but still wants to kick back in bed without a key- board getting in the way.

Apple Inc.'s MacBook Pro, high-resolution, 13-inch starts at $1,299

There's no touch screen, something that Apple oppo- nents in its laptops, but it does offer nearly the same crys- tal-clear monitor on the laptop (iPad). The screen is among the best at this price. Apple's sold Windows 8, an operating system that some people find confusing to use. The Mac system and integrations will work with other Apple products, including iPhones, iPads and Apple TV.

Two price cuts this year and the laptop is a super-powerful MacBook Air of the same size. For the 13-inch version, you'll be paying at least $1,099.

Sony Corp.'s Vaio Pro 13, starts at $1,250

The Vaio is exceptionally thin when closed and weighs about 3 pounds, making it almost half the weight of other laptops at this price. But it also made the laptop feel cheap and plas- tic-like. The small size also comes with sacrifices. Sony says battery life is up to 6.5 hours, considerably less than other laptops at this price point. But it is good for someone who wants to get work done on the road while traveling light. You can save $100 by choosing from an 11-inch model.

Lenovo Group Ltd.'s Yoga Pro, starts at $1,199

Like its name implies, the Yoga is very flexible.

Besides the traditional laptop mode, you can bend it 180 degrees all the way back to close it, so the screen is on the front and the keyboard is exposed on the back. In that configuration, it looks like a tablet.

Flip it into a triangle, lay one edge on a flat surface, and the display angled like a text. This lets you use it as a tablet, but keep it upright. It's particularly helpful when you're cramped for space. Or, you can flip it almost all the way around, so that the keyboard is on the bottom.

The laptop isn't as thin as the Sony Vaio, but keep it upright regardless of where you are. Although it weighs more than the Sony Vaio, it's slightly thinner. The rubber edges that give the laptop traction when it's set on a surface are nice touches.

If you want your laptop to stand up on one leg, the Yoga comes in orange besides the more traditional silver and gray combinations.

Samsung Electronics Co.'s ATIV Book 9 Plus, starts at $1,400

This was one of the more beautiful laptops I looked at from its metal construction to its high-definition touch screen, it doesn't scream elegance and class.

The laptop is super-thin, at 0.56 inch thick, but weighs just over 7 pounds, similar to several others I tested. It feels heavy relative to its size.

Battery life clocked in at 7.5 hours, considerably less than other laptops at that price. But the trade-off is a super-sharp screen that makes the MacBook Pro, which already has among the best displays at that price. You might like this if you want to impress other mobile workers at the coffee house, don't want a lot of bulk and don't feel the need to replace your tablets.

Microsoft Surface 2 Pro, starts at $899

It also has a cover with magnetic clasp for $130 more at $1,029. Oh yes, this isn't actually a laptop, but it does a lot of the same work without the bulk of one.

The Surface Pro 2 is a more powerful version of Microsoft's Surface tablet, and the company is pushing both as replacements for lap- tops. Just like a PC laptop, it runs Windows 8 and gives you access to all Microsoft Office programs. This tablet's kickstand has been redesigned to include two positions — important because that makes it practical to actually use on your lap. You're better off buying the extra size for the $150 Type Cover 2, the keys on the Touch Cover 2 don't move and are harder to use. Looking for something cheaper? The $499 Surface 2 runs a lightweight version of Microsoft's Windows 8, called RT, but that tablet works only with apps designed specifically for it, so the broader pool of programs available for Windows PCs.

Mandela daughters ask that film's premiere go on

Associated Press LONDON — Prince William and others attending the London premiere of a new film about Nelson Mandela were told of his death Thursday night as the closing credits rolled.

The news broke during the premiere. Stopping the screening of “Mandela: Long Walk to Freedom” was “dis- couraged,” but the news had already been released.

Mandela’s daughters asked that the film continue, a spokesman with the production said Thursday night.

His two youngest daugh- ters, who were at the pre- miere, were told of their father’s death during the screening “and immediately left the cinema,” a statement from the foundation said.

The film’s director, Andree Singh, announced Mandela’s death in a statement read over the public address system on the set.

“Yesterday evening the world lost one of the greatest leaders of our time,” the statement said.

Actor Idris Elba, who portrays Mandela in the film, said in a statement “I am stunned at this very moment as a response to the news of the world. Mandela did so much and inspired so many. His legacy will live on and we all learn from it.”

Mandela’s family honored him.

“Mandela was an inspiration to us all. We were so proud to be associated with him.”

This year, Bob Barker’s birthday presents include a return to his longtime television home.

The iconic game show host turns 90 on Thursday, Dec. 12, the day he’ll be seen again on the CBS game show “The Price Is Right.” Barker’s reappearance will be a highlight of a full week of celebrating him on the program, with current host Drew Carey also presenting a daily segment on a career-long advocated by animal rights activist Barker: pet adoption.

“It went very well,” the evergenial Barker says of his birthday show, which was taped last month. “It was heartwarming to even be there. The people were so nice, from (executive producer) Mike Richards right on down and certainly including Drew. He has always, always been very nice. “There are people there with whom I had worked, and it was great to be reunited with them,” notes Barker, who hosted “The Price Is Right” from 1972 to 2007. “Others who had left the show, but were still at CBS, came down to see me. They have a new head of daytime, Angelica McDaniel, and she came down to see me. I could go on and on; they couldn’t have made it a nicer day for me.”

Those hoping to “come on down” and play various pricing games made the occasion memorable for Barker, too. “The audience was very receptive. I got a standing ovation, and I told them it warmed the cockles of my heart. I miss that applause.”

Barker adds with a chuckle that he’s solved that last problem: “When I walk into the room now, my housekeeper applauds. And if I go outside and he’s there, the gardener applauds.”

Despite his good humor, also famous from his lengthy run presiding over “Truth or Consequences,” Barker—who’s 19 Daytime Emmy Awards include one for lifetime achievement—admits returning to “The Price Is Right” was quite emotional for him.

“I had a lump in my throat early on, and tears in my eyes. As I told Rich and Yandy [Singer Ray J; (MTV) Ridiculousness] ‘Selfies.’”

‘Blue Bloods’ lets Len Cariou know when it’s time for dinner

As long as the members of television’s Reagan family gather to eat each week, Len Cariou always will know where his next meal is coming from.

As patriarch and former New York police commissioner Henry Reagan, the stage and screen veteran is guaranteed his moment in every episode of the Friday CBS police drama “Blue Bloods.” That’s as happened one Thanksgiving – and Cariou finds such scenes special for several reasons.

“We’re usually done by lunch,” he reports. “Because of the kids, we film (those scenes) early. It’s the biggest scene in any episode, so it usually takes the most time because you have to cover everybody filmwise. Everybody looks forward to it, though, because we have that time together every week.”

Cariou believes those scenes appeal to viewers because “they all did this at one time in their lives, stopped me on the street and said, ‘We love your show. Our whole family watches it because of that scene.’”

The dinner sequence has been a staple of “Blue Bloods” right from the pilot episode. “In fact, that was the very first scene we ever shot,” Cariou confirms. “Tom (Selleck) and I looked at one another and said, ‘Gee, maybe we should wait a day or so, so that at least we all know who we are.’

“We made up a scenario about the family pretty quickly, though. We said to (executive producer) Leonard Goldberg and the writers, ‘If we know there’s going to be a dinner scene, it’ll be a special scene every week.’ And indeed, that’s exactly what it’s turned out to be.”

Now well into the fourth season of “Blue Bloods,” Cariou – whose earlier work includes the movie “The Four Seasons” and a Tony-winning stage performance in “Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street” – has learned a big trick to filming the dinner sequences.

“If you’re really clever, you don’t have to eat at all,” he muses, “although when the camera is on you, you can be swallowing something. I think the kids have gotten a few tummy aches.”

What are you currently reading?
“I’m reading Michael Feinstein’s book about the Gershwin, because I’m putting together an evening of Gershwin music.”

What did you have for dinner last night?
“I had lobster.”

What is your next project?
“The Gershwin show is really the next thing.”

When was the last vacation you took – where and why?
“I went over to England in May to do a concert honoring (theater producer-director) Harold Prince at the Royal Albert Hall.”

They are Oscar winners all, and seeing them work together is what gives “Last Vegas” an inherent type of fun it likely wouldn’t have if other actors were involved.

As it stands, you get plenty of high-caliber stars for the price of one: Michael Douglas, Robert De Niro, Morgan Freeman and Kevin Kline ... and also Mary Steenburgen, as the lucky lady amid all that impressive testosterone.

If you were to guess from the diversity of the performers that “Last Vegas” services them all by being a reunion story, you’d be right. The occasion is the Douglas character’s decision to marry his much-younger girlfriend (insert your own “art imitates life” line here), so he gathers the literally and figuratively old gang back together for a spree in Sin City.

In fact, all the actors seem to, and “Last Vegas” probably was a busman’s holiday for them. The chance to work with such esteemed peers had to be a kick, and even if they had a better time overall with “Last Vegas” than you might, there’s pleasure to be had just from seeing that.
