

APPENDIX M
NOTES ON THE AUTHORS

Kwan S. Kim

Dr. Kim is currently a visiting economist with the Office of Economic Affairs, Bureau of Program and Policy Coordination, AID, on leave under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act from the University of Notre Dame where he is an Associate Professor of Economics. He is a graduate of Seoul National University and received his M.A. in Political Science and his Ph.D in Economics from the University of Minnesota. He was a Rockefeller Foundation visiting professor at the University of Nairobi and the University of Dar es Salaam, each on a two-year tour. He has been awarded numerous research grants for economic studies of various developing countries, has presented papers to professional societies, and has published monographs and numerous articles in professional journals. Recently, he edited Papers on the Political Economy of Tanzania.

Robert I. Jackson

Dr. Jackson is a senior agronomist with AID's Bureau for Science and Technology, Office of Agriculture. He has served overseas for more than 25 years. His first assignment was to Indonesia as a hybrid corn and rice breeder, followed by Sudan as an agronomist working on seed production/processing and the production of kenaf, sorghum and peanuts. He then went to Ghana as the Food and Agriculture Officer. From there he returned to Indonesia as the Representative/Team Leader for the International Rice Research Institute. Dr. Jackson was educated at the University of Chicago and Cornell University. He has published technical articles on corn, rice, kenaf, and seed production.

Song Hae-kyun

Dr. Song Hae-kyun is Chairman and Professor of the Department of Agricultural and Extension Education, College of Agriculture, Seoul National University, and is concurrently a Senior Rural Guidance Officer with the Office of Rural Development. After graduating from Chungbuk National University, he received his M.S. degree in Agricultural Education from Oklahoma State University and his Ph.D in the same subject from the University of Illinois. He is also a member of the Educational Policy Advisory Board of the Ministry of Education as well as Director of the Agricultural Textbook Research and Development Board. Dr. Song is President of the Society of Korea Agricultural Education and is the author and editor of a number of works in Korean.

David I. Steinberg

Mr. Steinberg is with the Office of Evaluation, Bureau for Program and Policy Coordination, AID, and was formerly Director of the Office of Technical Support, Asia and Near East Bureaus. Educated at Dartmouth College and Lingnan University (Canton), he has an M.A. from Harvard